Introduction

The Handbook of the Birds of the World (HBW) and BirdLife International digital checklist reflects the taxonomy published in the two volumes of the HBW and BirdLife International Illustrated Checklist of the Birds of the World (non-passerines: del Hoyo and Collar 2014; passerines: del Hoyo and Collar 2016) and subsequent updates resulting from the ongoing work of the HBW/BirdLife International Taxonomic Working Group. BirdLife uses this digital checklist as the basis for much of its global, regional and national conservation work. It also sets the taxonomic basis of BirdLife's assessment of all birds for the IUCN Red List, which is widely used by conservationists, scientists, governments, policy instruments and the private sector across the world, and also underpins the identification of Key Biodiversity Areas (KBAs).

This pdf version of the checklist includes the scientific and common names used, the authority (for the original description of the taxon), the latest global IUCN Red List category (e.g. Extinct, Vulnerable, Least Concern, etc.), the currently recognised subspecies of each taxon, and a record ID number unique to the taxonomic entity used in the IUCN Species Information Service (SIS). Previously recognised taxa are also included and distinguished as 'Not Recognised' (NR): this includes concepts recognised prior to a split or lump and those taxa shown to no longer be valid. Taxonomic notes have now been completed for all species and are available in a separate document, as are details and results of the acoustic analyses undertaken and the morphometric measurements taken from hundreds of museum specimens to support many of these decisions. These documents can be downloaded from the BirdLife taxonomy page (<http://datazone.birdlife.org/species/taxonomy>).

Future updates and taxonomic revisions

Knowledge of bird taxonomy is constantly improving and therefore the digital checklist is a work in progress, with updates released annually. The HBW/BirdLife International Taxonomic Working Group makes decisions on modifications to the checklist, making extensive use of systematic criteria by which species rank can be consistently assessed where this is necessary (e.g. for newly described species or proposed splits). These criteria (Tobias et al. 2010) involve weighting morphological and acoustic differences as compared with the nearest believed relatives, and are particularly intended to help make decisions involving allopatric taxa (as opposed to those in sympatric, parapatric or hybrid zone situations, where the situation is generally clearer). Molecular evidence is also considered, despite the challenges with scoring genetic differences between species. Further details on the basis of the checklist, the application of these criteria and the incorporation of molecular data are given in the introductions to the two published volumes (del Hoyo and Collar 2014, 2016).

The BirdLife Taxonomic Working Group welcomes comments on its taxonomic decisions and suggestions for future changes. Please email taxonomy@birdlife.org or post comments on our Taxonomy Forum (<https://globally-threatened-bird-forums.birdlife.org/about-2/globally-threatened-bird-forums/taxonomic-change-suggestions/>).
