Not Recognised taxa

These are taxonomic concepts that are no longer recognised, either due to being split, lumped or demonstrated to be invalid taxa. In the case of splits and lumps, the taxon name will continue to be recognised but has been transferred to a new concept, as it no longer refers to the same taxonomic entity. For example, we still recognise Ostrich Struthio camelus, but not the NR concept below which relates to the previous taxonomic entity prior to the split of S. molybdophanes. Most entities in the list below have been recognised as species in previous BirdLife taxonomic checklists, however there are some concepts that are included where species status was investigated but found to be unsupported by the BirdLife Taxonomic Working Group.

Please see the taxonomic notes, available for all species in a separate document in the zipped checklist, and also available on the BirdLife taxonomy page: <http://datazone.birdlife.org/species/taxonomy>
