Cassidy Lake School Walkaway Apprehended

Thanks in part to quick responses by two Chelsea citizens, Chelsea police were able to capture Timothy Edison, 18, within a few hours after he walked away from Cassidy Lake Technical School last Thursday, April 23.

According to Police Chief Lenard McDougall, a resident of the area near Ivey and Bush Rd. saw a man running through a field east toward the village. He immediately called Chelsea police, who, in turn, called the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department and Cassidy Lake, of whom he requested an emergency head count. That count revealed Edison to be missing.

The call came in at shortly after 10 a.m. The Sheriff's Department sent help in the form of a K-9 unit and a helicopter. Shortly after help was dispatched to the area, another citizen called the Chelsea police saying he had seen the man near Conway and Cavanaugh-Lake Rds., less than a mile from where he was seen the first time.

After the second call, Chelsea officer Rick Walters was sent to the scene. As he approached the area, Edison ran across Conway Rd. in front of him into a barren field. Walters contacted the helicopter unit. Edison surrendered soon thereafter, at shortly after noon.

Fire Marshal Imposter Harasses Man With Legal Burning Permit

What do you do when a man driving a fire truck, with flashing lights and blaring radio, drives up while you're burning brush and he tells you that what you're doing is illegal and that you'll be fined $500 and thrown in jail if you don't put it out, even though you've obtained a legal permit to do the burning?

That was the dilemma that faced Ted Steinbach of Steinbach Rd. in Lima township, Saturday, April 20.

What resulted was that both Steinbach and the man in the truck called the Dexter Fire Department. The strange part about it was that the official-looking man calling himself a state fire marshal was a fake.

"I had a pretty good fire going and you could see it from the road," Steinbach said. "He told me he had come to the scene to direct other firemen. Generally speaking, he just cussed me out."

Once the Dexter fire fighters arrived, the imposter left the scene, according to Fire Chief Mike Collins.

The imposter was so convincing-looking, Steinbach said, that some of the Dexter fire fighters thought he was probably from the Chelsea Fire Department.

"He (the imposter) hooked the dispatcher," Collins said. "He used all the right terminology and knew all the fines. If you know how to talk you can get somebody. This guy was not just an ordinary kook, he was an informed kook. He really harassed Steinbach and, as far as I'm concerned, verbally beat the guy up."

The imposter was described as about 5'3", weighing about 170 pounds, and in his early forties. He was driving a red truck that had a light bar for flashing lights.

Collins referred the case to the Michigan State Police for investigation on possible charges of impersonating a police officer because the state fire marshal is a captain in the Michigan State (Continued on page seven)

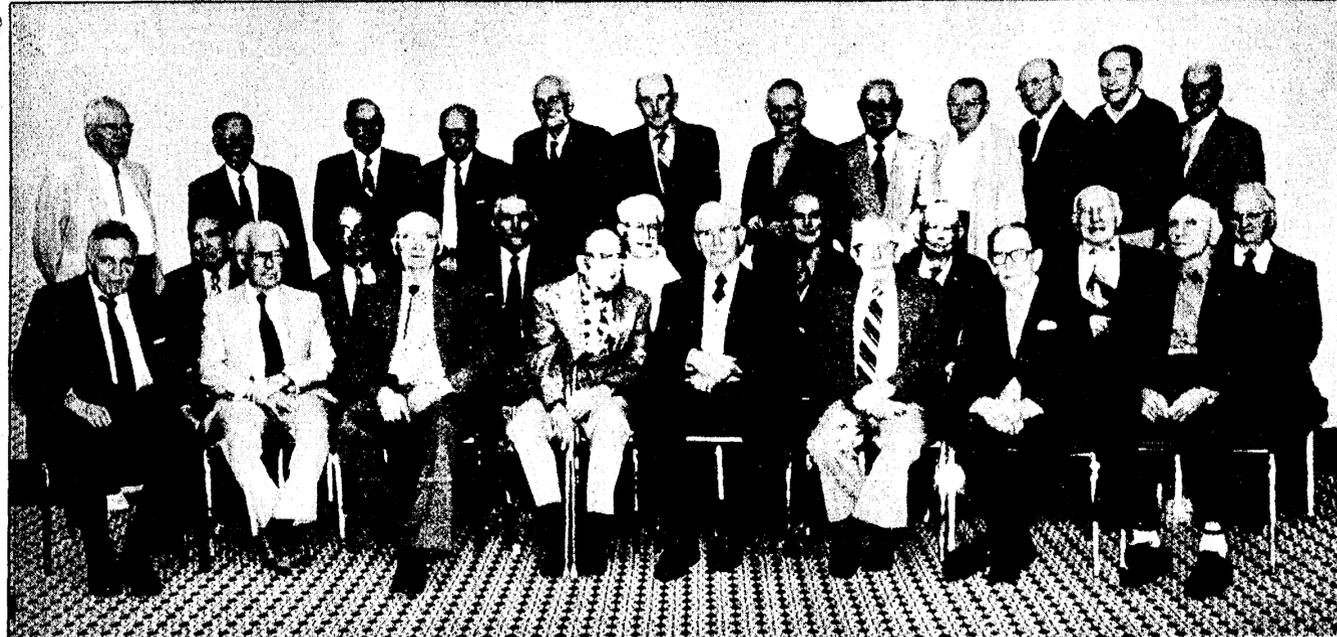

Appliances, Guns Stolen from Home

Appliances and guns valued at approximately $2,000 to $3,000 were taken from a Werkner Rd. residence, Friday, April 26 sometime during the day, according to Det. Paul Wade of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department.

"It was typical, forcible breaking and entering," Wade said.

Stolen were a cassette player, stereo receiver and speakers, a video camera and video cassette recorder, a 19-inch color television, a microwave oven, and 12 rifles.

No one had been arrested for the crime as of press time.

Manchester Village Endures Long Week

It has been a long week for officials in the Village of Manchester. On Tuesday, April 23, the building inspector for the village was suspended from his job after he was charged with arson in a fire at his own home.

Then on Friday, April 26, the superintendent for public works was arraigned on charges that he raped a mentally-impaired woman.

Joseph Alexander, 57, was arraigned April 11 on the arson charge for a fire at his home at 531 Adrian St. on April 8.

According to Manchester Police Chief William Zsenyuk, the fire Alexander is charged with igniting was the second at his home within a period of two weeks.

The first fire, which caused about $2,500 damage, occurred March 27 in the basement of Alexander's home. The fire was extinguished when it melted plastic water pipes in his home.

The second fire, which was reported anonymously on April 8, was a closet fire that caused about $5,000 damage, according to Zsenyuk. He said that Alexander became an arson suspect because of the location of the fire.

Zsenyuk said that Alexander has given police a statement, although he refused a polygraph test. He is free on $1,000 personal bond.

Donald Smith, 40, is accused of assaulting a woman in her Territorial Rd. home on the morning of Friday, April 12, according to Zsenyuk. Smith was suspended by the village April 19, pending further investigation.

Smith was arraigned on charges of first-degree criminal sexual conduct by 14th District Court Magistrate Nil Rahn on Friday, April 26. Bond was set at $10,000.

According to Zsenyuk, Smith went to the woman's home dressed in village attire and driving a village truck although he was not on official village business at the time of the alleged assault.

Zsenyuk said the alleged assault was reported by the victim's mother, who noticed her acting unusual.

Brown has been employed by the village for the last 14 years, Zsenyuk said.

Extra Police on Duty For Saturday's Prom

The Chelsea Police Department will have extra patrolmen on duty this Saturday night, May 4, due to the junior-senior prom at Chelsea High school.

Chief Lenard McDougall said that his patrolmen would pay particular attention to activities outside the high school during the prom, and that "special attention" would be paid to any teenager driving an automobile.

"We'll be on the lookout for alcohol," he said, citing his main concern.

McDougall said that in the past there has been a tendency by some law enforcement officials to have a teen-ager simply pour out whatever liquor he was caught with in his automobile. He said this won't be the case on prom night, and that his department would use whatever legal avenues are open.

The crackdown on teen-age drinking is part of a county-wide effort by the Washtenaw County Criminal Justice Association, which includes a wide variety of agencies concerned with law enforcement. The association is particularly concerned about graduation parties, which will come in June.

Among the avenues open for enforcing laws about teen-age drinking are: the impoundment of automobiles used by minors for transporting alcohol, no matter who the vehicle belongs to, for up to 30 days; and the prosecution of adults who serve alcohol to minors.

According to the association, in 1984, 59 people were killed in automobile accidents in Washtenaw county and more than half of those were alcohol-related. Twenty-four of those killed were under 21 years old.

New Agreement May End Trouble With Indian Fishing
 A new agreement to regulate the activities of Indian, commercial, and sports fishermen in the upper Great Lakes should help end racial enmity along with assuring better regulation of the state's fish stocks, Natural Resources Department Director Ronald Skoog has announced.
 In briefing the Natural Resources Commission on the agreement, which was approved recently by U. S. District Judge Richard Enslin, Skoog said he was pleased that the different parties had been able to reach an agreement after so many years of controversy and conflict over the Indian use of gill nets.
 The agreement will specify areas where the gill nets may be used, other areas where tribal fishermen must convert to impoundment equipment and lake trout refuges where all fishing of the species is banned.
 The agreement came after an intense three-day negotiating session between officials of the DNR, the U. S. Department of Interior, Michigan United Conservation Clubs, Michigan Steelhead and Salmon Fisherman's Association, the Michigan Charter Boat Association along with tribal leaders of the Bay Mills Indian Community, Sault Ste. Marie Chippewa Tribe, and the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa/Chippewa Indians.

 The agreement negates the need for a trial which was scheduled to start in late April, Skoog said, although the court has given any parties time to challenge the agreement.
 The compromise divides portions of Lakes Michigan, Huron, and Superior into areas where Indian fishermen can continue to use gill nets and other areas where they must phase out the use of gill nets by 1990 in favor of impoundment equipment.
 In those areas where gill netting will be used, commercial fishermen will either be phased out or allowed to fish under state quotas.
 Skoog said the state would have to buy out some of the commercial fishermen in those areas.
 The agreement will cost the state approximately $4 million over the next several years, mainly in matching funds for federal moneys, he said.

 For the remainder of the current fiscal year the state will have to spend $500,000 to implement the agreement, plus an amount to buy out some fishermen, he said.
 But of the state's 110 commercial fishermen, no more than 25 percent will be affected by the agreement, the director announced.
 The agreement also calls for joint enforcement along with joint administration of commercial fishing.
 Skoog said the agreement should help diffuse some of the racial enmity that has existed between Indians and whites in recent years.
 He said some of that tension had been relieved in recent years because of education efforts, but the controversy over the use of gill nets has led to much of that tension, "and when you remove the conflict, you have an impact on the tensions. You'll never get away from it completely, you'll always have some rednecks."
 The deadlock between the groups was broken because all sides wanted to resolve the issue, Skoog said.
 The groundwork was laid last year, he said, when the state decided to stop battling the Indians' treaty rights and acknowledging those rights, and began negotiating with the tribes on their rights.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
 It says here that the chemics used to take caffeine out of coffee so you won't have a heart attack may cause cancer. So you git up, you fumble your way to the kitchen and right there, half asleep, you got to decide which way you want to go. It ain't no wonder, like the fellers was saying at the country store last week, that Americans have fergot how to put fun in their lives.
 While you set there with that first pick-me-up cup of take-out-pick death you glance at the paper and see "Most White House Intruders Harmless." You read where a sychiatrist at St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, D. C. has done a study of 328 cases of uninvited people trying to see the President over a four-year period. The finding was that all was crazy to some degree, but 93 percent didn't mean him no harm.
 What I think about that research is that it wouldn't be comforting to me if I was in the White House when any one of them nuts showed up in the living room. It is safe to say that most folks walking the street are non-violent sane, and most of the insane are harmless. Fer that matter, most drivers you meet at a closing speed of 110 mile a hour are alert and cold sober, and most people that git on airplanes don't want nothing more than to git from where they are to where they're going. But it don't take many crazies to mess up the safety statics. You got one jetliner passenger with a bomb and a death wish and you got big trouble.
 I mentioned the White House intruder study during the session at the country store Saturday night, and Clem Webster was quick with a item that took more fun out of air travel. Clem had saw where airlines are cutting off air pumps to save fuel and passengers are getting sick on reused air. One case was reported where a jetliner waited on the ground 45 minutes with the pumps off. The same air was breathed so many times just about all the oxygen was used up and everybody caught the flu from one passenger. What they're finding, Clem went on, is that when the air pumps are cut off on long trips the air takes on the quality of what the passengers would git if they were closed up in their cars with a hose run in from the tailpipe.

 Practical speaking, you can do anything with statics. The airlines can take passenger miles and prove how safe they move people. What could be fun is watching them come up with figgers on chances of surviving a three-hour ride without coming down within three days with a head cold, TB or whatever any of the other passengers might have, was Clem's words.
 Speaking of fun, Clem went on to say he was waiting fer the Reagan Administration to crank up its news and feature service. He had saw where all the President's men was as worried as Jesse Helms that they weren't getting a fair shake in the papers, so they're planning to put out their own good news. If that ain't enough, Clem said, the Administration is thinking of broadcasting Voice of America propergander to Americans to make sure they are told how much fun they're having.
 I didn't git into that angle, but I'd say the Reagan service ought to carry the news with reports from Congress. If nothing else we'd save the $111 million in free mail members of Congress used last year to send home their version of the truth.
 Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

Beach Sixth Graders Going to Annual Camp

In what is becoming a yearly tradition, nearly 150 Beach Middle school sixth graders will be spending half a week at Mill Lake Camp during the week of May 6-10.
 Unlike other camps, the sixth graders will be taking courses on a wide variety of subjects, most of them following this year's theme of "The Great Outdoors."
 The children will go to the camp in two shifts. The first half go from Monday until noon Wednesday, and the second half go from Wednesday noon through Friday. Principal Darcy Stielstra is planning to spend the entire week there.
 In addition to Beach staff members, nearly 60 parents are donating their time or talents to help with cooking, classes, cabin counseling or evening activities. Stielstra said they are "always looking for new blood." Some staff members, such as the custodians, have to do double time, cleaning both the school and camp.
 During the daytime, more than a dozen different courses will be taught over the span of the week. Included are courses like life in a bog, nature photography, reptiles and amphibians of Michigan, Michigan birds, candle dipping, and nature detective, to name a few.
 In the evenings there will be sports, games, and demonstrations. One of the demonstrations will be authentic Indian dancing by the Stanley Morseau family. The children will stay in cabins.

 "This is all planned in immense detail," Stielstra said of the weeks of preparation that go into the camp. "There is even someone in charge of carrying dimes out to the camp in case anyone has to make a call home."

Scholarships Offered By Hospital Auxiliary

Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary will present $500 scholarships to three area students. To be eligible for a scholarship a student must be enrolled full-time in a health career program for which certification is given or a degree is granted, and must be a resident of the hospital service area.

Scholarship applications are now available at Chelsea Community Hospital and may be picked up at the information desk near the main entrance. Applications may be obtained between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. The completed applications should be returned as indicated on the form with the deadline being Saturday, June 1.

After initial screening, personal interviews will be conducted for the candidates deemed most highly qualified. The awarding of the scholarship will be based on academic achievement and sincere interest to further education in a health oriented field.

Chelsea Community Hospital has given over $6,000 in scholarships since 1979.

Monies came from projects such as the Christmas Home Tour, the Arbor Nook Gift Shop, cookbook sales, a fashion show, raffles and bazaars.

Members of the scholarship committee are Gail Olson, Donna Lane, June Flanigan and Madeline Vallier.

Applicants Sought for Palmer Scholarship

Applications are now available at Chelsea Community Hospital for the A. A. Palmer Memorial Scholarship. This $500 scholarship is awarded to a Chelsea High school graduate who is pursuing a career in medicine, primarily family practice.

1985 marks the 15th presentation of the scholarship, which was set up by the original group of physicians at Chelsea Medical Center to honor the late Dr. A. A. Palmer, a Chelsea physician for many years. The award is now under the auspices of the Auxiliary Scholarship Committee.

Scholarship applications may be picked up at the information desk near the main entrance of the hospital. They may be obtained between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. Completed applications should be returned as indicated on the form with the deadline being Saturday, June 1.

The first monies for the A. A. Palmer scholarship were raised by donations from local physicians and businessmen. Since 1973, the scholarship has been made possible by the Chelsea and Painters, a group of area artists who sell their works at an annual art fair held the first week-end in June at Chelsea Community Hospital.

Determination of a recipient is based on academic achievement, extra curricular activities, and motivation to pursue a career in medicine.

Dog Walkathon Set for May 11

On Saturday, May 11, the Humane Society of Huron Valley needs to borrow plenty of feet for its sixth annual Dog Walkathon, which is being held in celebration of "Be Kind to Animals" Week, May 5-11.

Last year, more than 200 Humane Society supporters collected funds for the Animal Rescue and Cruelty Investigation Programs. Walkathon participants solicit pledges from friends, neighbors, relatives, schoolmates, teachers, and local businesses. Walkers and their dogs then walk between 6 and 18 miles along lovely, unpaved rural roads. According to Susan Schurman, executive director, who will be walking with her dog, PT, "The Walkathon is a great way for animal lovers to have a fun day and raise money for the Society at the same time."

Prospective participants may obtain walker packets at the Humane Society or the following stores: In Ann Arbor—Ann Arbor Pet Supply, Padare Lane Pet Supply, Scamp Pet Supply, and University Aquarium. In Ypsilanti—Denny's Pet Supply and Grand Truck, Ltd. (Depot Town), and in Plymouth at Specialty Pet.

Interested people who cannot be there in person can be there in spirit by pledging support for a walker by calling the Society, or to receive packets by mail, phone 662-5545.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

The uproar over whether President Reagan should pay a ceremonial visit to a West German cemetery in observance of the 40th anniversary of V-E Day (I'll simply say I don't think he should, and let it go at that) caused me to try to remember exactly where I was and what I did on May 8, 1945.

The word "try" is used advisedly, because I honestly can't recall anything about that day, despite a memory that is usually reliable. If anything memorable had happened to me personally on that day, I think I would recall it.

All I know for sure is that I was an 18-year-old student at the University of Michigan, having been twice deferred from military service because I couldn't even see, much less read, the chart on the wall in the vision testing room. I may have been in class, in my room, studying in the library, working in the Michigan Daily office, sharing a Coke with my girlfriend, or somewhere in between, when the news was announced.

I am sure I felt good that the war in Europe was over, and I assume I must have celebrated in some way, quite possibly by sneaking an illegal drink or two. The point is, I don't remember anything about it, and it wasn't because I was stoned or blacked out. My best recollection is that there was no general celebration—no going out in the streets, collecting in crowds and whooping and hollering. I'm willing to swear that nothing of the sort happened in whatever place in Ann Arbor I was at the time.

What I do remember is that the announcement, when it finally came, was kind of anti-climactic. The end of the fighting in Europe had been foreshadowed all through the spring of 1945. Hitler's Germany was in collapse. American and British armies on the western front and Russian troops on the east were overrunning Germany against token resistance. Their daily advances were measured by the miles that supply lines could be extended. Wehrmacht soldiers were surrendering by the tens, even hundreds of thousands. Victory was only a matter of time, a short time.

There was a false alarm on April 28, when a British news agency flashed word that Germany had surrendered. That report turned out to be wrong, but it touched off a few hours of rejoicing before the denials registered. My dim memory suggests more celebrating was done that day than later.

On May 7 came another news flash, this one from the Associated Press. Germany had surrendered unconditionally. It was official. Well, it was and it wasn't. The capitulation document had been signed that day, but the three victor nations had agreed to delay the announcement for 24 hours so the news could be released simultaneously in Washington, London and Moscow. A group of American reporters had been given an advance briefing, and one of them couldn't keep the secret, a flagrant breach of journalistic ethics for which he was fired.

Again, the surrender story was blasted out in bulletins by radio stations everywhere. Several newspapers put "extra" editions on the street. It was one of journalism's darkest, most irresponsible hours. Within minutes, there was a confusion of denials, apologies and waffling statements. People on the receiving end of all this "information" didn't know what to believe.

Thus it wasn't surprising that the "official" announcement the next day was greeted with a certain amount of skepticism which undoubtedly dampened enthusiasm for celebrating. The story was right that time, but most of us weren't quite ready to believe it. We kept waiting for somebody to come along and say, "Wrong again."

More important than that, however, was the feeling among Americans that nothing had really ended. There was still a war going on in the Pacific and, to most of us, that was the most important war. It looked like it might go on for a long time, perhaps several years, and there wasn't much cause to celebrate until it was over if it was indeed winnable at all.

Except for those who had family members involved, the war in Europe had seemed somehow kind of remote to people here at home. American territory had never been threatened, much less attacked. American troops had never suffered a serious setback once they got into the fighting. Beginning with the North African invasion, the European war had been a steady parade to victory, sometimes slowed down but never stopped.

The Pacific war was something else. The Japanese had attacked us and inflicted a series of humiliating defeats on our forces. The tide didn't turn for more than two years and, even when it did, small victories were won at terrible costs. On such previously obscure little island as Okinawa, Iwo Jima, Saipan, and Tarawa, the Japanese had fought fanatically, dedicated to exacting the highest possible toll of American lives.

Self-proclaimed military experts—and there were lots of those—declared that the Japanese home islands would have to be invaded and conquered one by one, and that the campaign would take years and cost a million or more American lives. There was no reason to think they were wrong.

What none of us knew, of course, was that American scientists were working to make an atom bomb and were getting close to success. The A-bomb was the best-kept secret of World War II until the first one was dropped on Hiroshima, followed a few days later by another exploded over Nagasaki. Mercifully, for America anyway, those bombs put a quick end to a war that had threatened to go on bloodily and indefinitely.

I remember V-J Day vividly. That's when we celebrated. The whole awful mess of World War II was finally ended, and we were the winners.

In no way do I mean to diminish the accomplishments of those who fought and won in Europe. What they did must never be forgotten, and our debt to them can never be repaid.

Former Chelsea Residents Win Honors In Virginia School

Former Chelsea residents, Sheri and Todd Rowe received first-place honors on the same day. The proud parents are Morgan and Nan Rowe, who lived in Chelsea from 1964 until 1983.

Sheri, a senior at Bruton High school, in Williamsburg, Va., took first place honors in local and district competition in the Virginia Junior Women's Club Art Contest. On April 19 she was notified that her painting took first place in state competition. She has been accepted and begins college on Aug. 18 at Ringling Art Institute in Sarasota, Fla. Sheri attended Chelsea schools until 1983 when her family moved to Virginia. At Bruton she is president of the Art Club, chairwoman of the African Relief Fund, is in SCA, French Club, FBLA secretary, plays field hockey and was on Homecoming Court the last two years.

Also on April 19 Todd, a freshman at Bruton High, was awarded first-place trophies for high game and high series in the major league bowling. Todd was coached at Chelsea Lanes for eight years by John Harook. Besides bowling, Todd plays basketball and softball at Bruton.

My Pet Goldfish

Once upon a time there was a goldfish. He had a nice master. The goldfish's name was Matt. I was the master. Matt was a comet goldfish, and he was proud to be a comet. One day when Matt's master was feeding him, Matt jumped and then a crab tried to eat Matt. But I was too fast for that crab. I grabbed that crab, flushed it down the toilet and now my fish is safe. Tomorrow is Matt's birthday. I will give him some new gravel. He will like that. In the morning I was feeding Matt. I gave him the new gravel. Matt liked that. "I am going to let you go in the lake. Bye Matt."

School Board Notes

Present at a regular meeting of the Chelsea Board of Education Monday, April 22 were Schumann, Heller, Dils, Grau, Feeney, Comeau, Redding, superintendent Van Meer, assistant superintendent Mills, principals Williams, Stielstra, Benedict, Wescott, assistant principal Larson, community education director Rogers, athletic director Nemeth, guests. Meeting called to order at 8 p.m. by President Schumann. Board approved the minutes of the April 8 meeting.

The board presented a certificate of appreciation to Pat Wellnitz, switchboard operator/receptionist. Pat has been employed by the Chelsea School District since 1976. She and her husband Jack will be moving to Florida. Her last day will be April 24.

The board finance committee indicated that the budget is close to being balanced and will be presented to the total board as an information item on May 20.

The following communications were received:

—Invitation to board members and administrators to visit the Sixth Grade Camp at Mill Lake during the week of May 6.

—Letter from North Allegheny schools, Wexford, Pa., commending the symphony band's performance.

—Letter from Rose Borton indicating her objection to material distributed through a science project at the recent high school science fair. The material pertained to abortions and was printed by The Right to Life.

The administration reported that Chris Seufert has been informed that the diving portion of her program cannot be for profit, but can be held as an activity of the Chelsea Aquatic Club. This complies with existing board policy.

Principal Benedict reviewed the selection of K-6 Scott-Foresman Reading series. The board complimented the committee on its selection process.

Principal Williams reviewed the itinerary of the recent symphony band spring tour. A parent present at the meeting indicated his displeasure with the process and procedure used by the administration in sending home the five students who had been involved with drinking wine on the trip, and questioned the suspension practices and the withholding of credit. The board discussed the incident in depth in executive session. Upon return to public session, the board indicated that the suspensions will stand, and that the policy has always been for students to be allowed to make up work.

A parent present at the meeting asked to have placed on a future agenda the review of the computer program evaluation by Dr. Johns, and the direction in which the program is moving. The parent also asked for a review of the math curriculum.

The board accepted, with regret, the resignation of Lois Maitland, second grade teacher at South school. Lois has been employed by the district since September, 1971.

The board approved reappointment of Barbara Vosters to the WISD Parent Advisory Council. Mrs. Vosters continues to actively represent concerns of handicapped children in Chelsea and throughout the county.

The board approved the acceptance of gifts from the North School PTN: Playworld (similar to a merry-go-round) valued at $1,200, and kindergarten playground equipment valued at $1,050.

The board approved a request from Patti Rogers for a half-time teaching assignment for 1985-86. Elementary art teaching duties will be split between Patti Rogers and Janet Alford.

The board granted tenure to Rahn Rosentreter, Alice Byrne, June Warren, Jean Meconi, Mary Watson and Ann Andraska.

The board denied second-year probation status to Carl Christoff.

The board approved continuing tenure for teachers at North school, South school, Beach school, and the high school.

The board approved second-year probation for Connie Marshall, Joann Stasa, Linda Turok, D'Ann Getzlen, Janet Alford.

The board approved administrative contracts of Fred Mills, Henry DeYoung, Jackie Rogers, John Williams, Ken Larson, Robert Benedict, Darcy Stielstra, Bill Wescott, Ron Nemeth and Larry Reed.

The board tentatively set the date of Saturday, May 18, for a board goal session. There is a possibility that this date could be changed to June 1.

Board members indicated they will ask for a review of all rules and regulations pertaining to school infractions.

Trustee Joe Redding indicated that 55 applications have been received for the position of curriculum director. Posting for this position ends May 15.

The board was apprised of the SADD group's (Students Against Drunk Driving) attempt to schedule an all-night party at Chelsea Lanes in conjunction with the senior prom.

Meeting adjourned at 12:20 a.m.

Chelsea Charms Narrowly Miss State Majorette Titles

Chelsea Charms experienced a disappointing set-back in not placing any of their corps members in title positions at the Miss Majorette of Michigan contest in Temperance.

Miss Majorette of Michigan is a preliminary to Miss Majorette of America, the highest honor a baton twirler can achieve.

The young ladies are judged on the combination of three events—model, strut, twirl—in the search for the "all around" majorette.

Placing high in the preliminaries against twirlers from all over the state, several charms missed the title by only fractions of a point. Laurie Honbaum, 12, finished first runner-up in the highly competitive 10- to 12-year-old intermediate group, losing by one-tenth of a point. Ten-year-old Tracey Wales finished second-runner up in the intermediate age group after winning first in both the model and twirl preliminaries.

Kori White, 8, for the second consecutive year, placed first runner-up in the 7-9 advanced division.

Twirlers winning olympic style medals in their respective age and class divisions were:

Model—1st, Kori White (Adv.), Tracey Wales (Int.), Minta Van Reesma (Beg.); Laurie Honbaum (Int.); 2nd, Amy Weir (Adv.), Chrissy Dunlap (Int.), 5th, Richelle Jones (Beg.).

Fancy Strut—1st, Michelle Graflund (Int.), 2nd, Kori White; 3rd, Laurie Honbaum; 5th, Tracey Wales.

Twirl—1st, Tracey Wales; 2nd, Kori White; 4th, Laurie Honbaum.

Chelsea Charms competing for the title but not placing were: Linda Schaffer (Beg.), Heather Wynn (Beg.) and Liz Maurer (Beg.), Angela White (Beg.).

Results of the open National Baton Twirling Association contest held preceding the state are as follows:

Model—1st, Amy Weir; 2nd, Kori White, Rianne Jones; 3rd, Tracey Wales; 5th, Richelle Jones, Liz Maurer.

Fancy Strut—1st, Tracey Wales, Amy Weir, Kori White.

Solo—1st, Tracey Wales, Laurie Honbaum; 2nd, Kori White.

Beginner Basic—Strut—4th, Rianne Jones.

Beginner Military Strut—2nd, Richelle Jones; 3rd, Kate Steele.

The "Miss Majorette of the Midwest", a regional qualifier for Miss Majorette of America, will be held in Naperville, Ill. on June 22. Several of the Chelsea Charms are planning to attend in the hopes of qualifying.

AN EXHAUSTED KORI WHITE takes a cat nap in the lap of Minta Van Reesma after the Miss Majorette of Michigan contest held in Temperance Saturday, April 27. She was first runner-up in the 7-9 advanced division.

Farm Youth Labor Standards Set

The Fair Labor Standards Act, otherwise known as the federal minimum wage law, stipulates when and how youth under 16 years old may be employed by farmers who are regulated by the act. Farmers who employ at least 500 man days (one man day is established when an employee works at least one hour per day) of hired labor, excluding immediate family members, during any calendar quarter of the previous calendar year must comply with the FLSA. Youth employed on their parents' farm are not subject to the FLSA.

According to Collins, Department of Natural Resources officials have had a similar complaint in the Napoleon area, which is near Jackson. He said statements by Steinbach have led him to believe the man could be from the Jackson area.

"I just want to see if they can catch the guy," Steinbach said.

We're one bank you'll never be too big or too small for.

It goes with the territory. We've been around for so many years, we're as much a part of this community area as the church on the corner and the flagpole in front of the post office.

We're so accustomed to dealing with the financial problems of our news-boys (and girls), we wouldn't deny the time spent with them under any circumstance. Our larger depositors, too, have come to respect our judgment and to rely on us for financial assistance. We just wouldn't change any part of it.

While most of the financial world views modern banking as concerning themselves only with the major corporations in the world, we're still the community bank. And, that's the way we want to keep it.

ORV Users Assist With Trail Plans

Throughout Michigan's Lower Peninsula, more than 2,000 miles of shaded woodland trails are available for use by Michigan's Off-Road Vehicle (ORV) users. These trails, funded through ORV registration fees, were developed by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Much of the advisory assistance in that development has come from users themselves, through the Michigan Off-Road Vehicle Action Coalition (MORVAC).

MORVAC, a state-wide ORV user organization, was formed in 1982.

"Thanks to MORVAC's involvement, and the variety of users represented by the group, we have been able to develop cost-efficient and useful trails," says Henry Webster, chief of the Forest Management Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

MORVAC'S representatives include ORV users from such clubs as the American Motorcyclist Association—District 14, the Cycle Conservation Club of Michigan, the Michigan Motorcycle Dealers Association, the Great Lakes Four-Wheel Drive Association, the Michigan Sport Buggy Association and the Department's Trails Advisory Council.

In addition to funding the development of trails, the ORV registration fees are used to provide safety education programs for young people and to help protect the ecosystem in the trail environment. Thousands of acres of land surrounding the trails are also maintained.

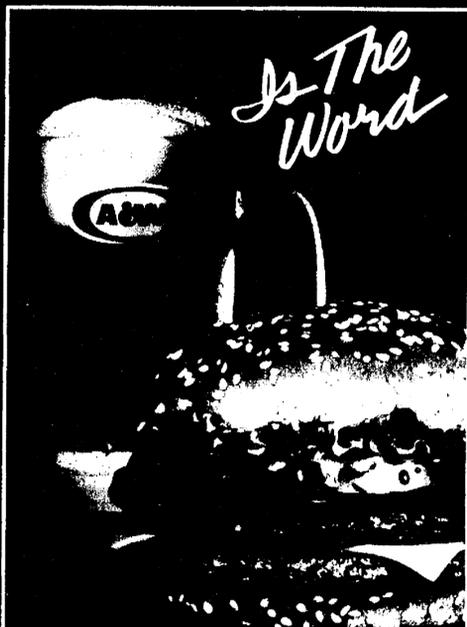

ORV's are required to be licensed by law. All registrations will expire on April 30, and current registrants may renew by simply mailing in the form they received by mail with the $9 required for the three-year permit. Unregistered vehicle owners must bring proof of ownership and proof of paid sales tax to their nearest Secretary of State Office.

A booklet containing detailed maps to cross country cycle trails in Michigan will be available from the DNR in late April.

this summer. The architectural style of the addition matches that of the original building which was completed in 1981.

Arson Suspected In Auto Fire

A "very suspicious" automobile fire at M-52 and Roe on Tuesday, April 23 has led Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department to suspect arson, according to Det. Paul Wade. The Chelsea Fire Department received a call at 10:15 p.m. to extinguish the fire involving a 1977 Monte Carlo.

No arrests have been made as of press time, but Wade said he has two suspects in the case.

An empty can of gasoline was found near the scene.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE

An In-Depth Look

Bill Mullendore
(First of a series)

This is the first in a series of articles about substance abuse—alcoholism, drug addiction, sedativism—call it whatever you wish because they are all the same.

I have written about the problem twice in the Clock Tower column which is printed every week on page 5 of The Standard. In those two pieces I bared my soul, confessing that I am an alcoholic who had gotten into deep trouble from more than 35 years of abusing booze.

My life was out of control when I checked myself into the emergency room at Chelsea Community Hospital on March 8 and asked to be admitted for treatment of my disease. It's a miracle that I got there. I was drunk and defeated. Certainly I had no business driving a car. I can only thank God that I made the trip without hurting or killing myself or, even worse, somebody else.

A second miracle happened. A place was open in the substance abuse program. There are just 13 beds in Kresge House, and there is normally a waiting list. There hadn't been a vacancy for many months before, and there hasn't been one since. I arrived at the right time, and don't tell me that was sheer coincidence or luck.

The treatment and recovery program teaches that there is a "higher power" which helps us if we will let it. For me that higher power is God. I had thought of myself as a religious person. What I realized as I lay in bed drying out was that I had been going through motions—attending church, putting money into the collection basket, but never committing myself to a total relationship with God. When I wanted something special, I sought His help; otherwise, I would run my own life, thank you, and please stay out of it. Especially stay out of my alcohol problem. That's none of Your business, and I'll handle it myself without any help from You or anybody else.

How egotistical can you get?

God was looking out for me on that drunken drive to the hospital. He saw to it that I found a place to be treated and given the opportunity to recover from my disease. I didn't deserve that consideration from a God whom I had ignored except when I sought a favor. Yet, He was there when I needed Him most.

Religion is a very personal thing, and I suppose every one of us has a little bit different interpretation of what it is and what it means. Whatever each of us chooses to accept is up to him or her. I'm not promoting any particular brand of belief, only suggesting that it's necessary to believe in something. I am convinced that, without a true spiritual awakening, recovery from any kind of chemical addiction is not possible. Had I not made a commitment and asked God to take control of my life, which I couldn't manage myself, I would still be drinking myself to death.

Take it from there as you choose.

I am especially appalled by chemical addiction among young people. What goes on in Kresge House is confidential, and so I must be careful about telling tales out of school. I don't think I'm breaking any confidences by saying that all my fellow patients were younger than I am (58) and most were much younger, in their 20's and early 30's. Two were under 21.

That is awful, but there is a bright side. Those young people have the opportunity to straighten themselves out, get back in control of their lives, and live happily and productively ly for many, many years—up to 50 or more according to the longevity tables.

A statistic that brought me up short and made me think a lot is that the average addict dies at age 53, more than 17 short of the average normal life span. What that told me is that I have beaten the odds by five years, and that I would be dumb indeed to push my luck any further. I'm ahead of the game, still another miracle, and am smart enough to quit while ahead. I may have been born an alcoholic, but I wasn't born stupid.

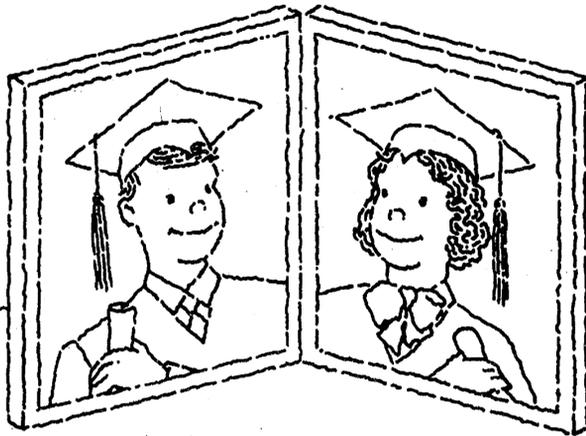

Members of Alcoholics Anonymous—and I'm proud to be one—are counselled to help their fellow sufferers. The best way I can do that, is to use my communications skills to convey the message of hope and recovery, and that is what this series of articles will be all about. If I just reach one person, I will be successful. Naturally, I hope to accomplish more than that.

I am encouraged to make the effort by the many, many expressions of sympathy and support that the two Clock Tower columns brought forth. Nothing I have ever written before provoked so much response. I have received letters, cards, phone calls, personal visits, so many that I have lost count. Thank you all for taking the time to wish me well and tell me to keep up the good work.

What impressed me most about that spontaneous outpouring was that almost all who took the time and trouble to write, call or visit had been touched in some way by the disease of chemical addiction. They are afflicted themselves and seeking a way out, or have a spouse, a parent, a child, some other relative or a close friend who is hooked on alcohol, marijuana, cocaine, heroin, barbiturates, tranquilizers or some combination of those.

The addiction disease has always been there. One of every 10 persons has it. Most of the other nine have had to deal at close grips with someone who has it, and so carry emotional scars. The problem used to be kept hidden, swept under a rug or locked in a closet. Now it's coming into the open. People are recognizing it and talking about it, and that is where a solution starts.

Varsity Softball Team Shows Improvement During Winning Week

"We're improving and starting to play the kind of ball we're capable of," Chelsea varsity softball coach Charlie Waller said after his team defeated Lincoln in its opening Southeastern Conference game last Friday and then breezed through the Livingston County Shelander Classic tournament the following day.

The Bulldog girls whitewashed Lincoln, 11-0, on Friday, and then defeated Fowlerville, Brighton and Okemos in the tourney by scores of 11-1, 6-2 and 5-2.

A scheduled game at Milan last Wednesday was rained out and will be played as part of a double-header here on May 10.

"We're beginning to hit the ball the way we can, and our defense has picked up," Waller said. "We made only two errors in the three games on Saturday, and didn't make any mistakes in the last two.

"Our pitchers are good but not overpowering. When we let down on defense, we can get to be a mediocre team in a hurry. We have to do everything well to be winners.

"We're starting to show some of the play we did last year (when Chelsea was the state Class B runner-up). We aren't making the dumb mistakes that we did earlier in the season."

Beth Unterbrink hurled a strong two-hitter, striking out seven, in the game against Lincoln which was mercied at the end of five innings.

Chelsea pounded out 15 hits, including a home run by Anne Weber, her first ever. Weber is small, about five feet tall, and is noted for her ability to get on base by walking, bunting or poking the ball into holes through the infield.

"It was a legitimate homer," Waller said. "She hit the ball solidly over the left fielder's head, and she can run. There was no doubt about it."

Weber's four-bagger leading off the third inning broke open a tight 1-0 game. Chelsea eventually scored six runs in the frame, then added four more in the fifth to put an end to it.

Lori Folcik, Chris DeFant and Tina Paddock each banged triples. Weber had two other hits besides her homer, and Folcik, DeFant, Paddock, Chandy Hurd and Joanne Tobin hit each banged two safeties.

Kelly Hawker fanned nine and allowed only one hit as Chelsea beat Fowlerville, 11-1, in the first game of the Livingston tournament. Unterbrink and DeFant led the Bulldogs at bat with two hits apiece, and catcher Michelle Easton smacked a home run. The game was mercied after six innings.

Unterbrink pitched the full seven innings in the Brighton game, giving up six hits and two runs. She helped her own cause with two hits. Laura Anderson had three and Tobin two. It was a tight game through five innings, with the Bulldogs holding a 3-2 lead. Two runs in the sixth and one in the seventh provided the winning margin.

DeFant was the starting pitcher in the final game against Okemos and threw five strong innings before being relieved by Unterbrink who kept Okemos in check the rest of the way, thanks in part to a game-ending double-play on a line drive to Anderson who threw to first to catch a runner off the bag. Chelsea scored all of its runs in the first three innings.

Folkick had two of Chelsea's six hits, knocking out a home run and a double.

The four wins lifted the Bulldogs to a 9-3 season record with league contests coming against Dexter here this afternoon, Tecumseh there Friday and Pinckney here Monday.

Firemen Attend Driver Training

A special Drivers Training Course was conducted Saturday, April 19, at the Chrysler Proving Grounds, with a Chelsea firefighter as instructor. Firemen were from several different departments, including Chelsea and the newly formed Dexter Area fire departments. A total of 40 were enrolled to learn more about driving the giant emergency vehicles ranging from smaller pumpers to the aluminum-bodied diesel pumper-tanker from Dexter.

Daniel Ellenwood explained no certificates will be awarded, but instead a notation will go directly on Michigan's computerized driving records, (L.E.I.N.), for each of the individuals successfully completing the course. Several departments sent a fire truck with their firefighters, so there was no lack of available vehicles for the behind-the-wheel instruction.

JV Diamond Team Loses Close One To Lincoln, 9-8

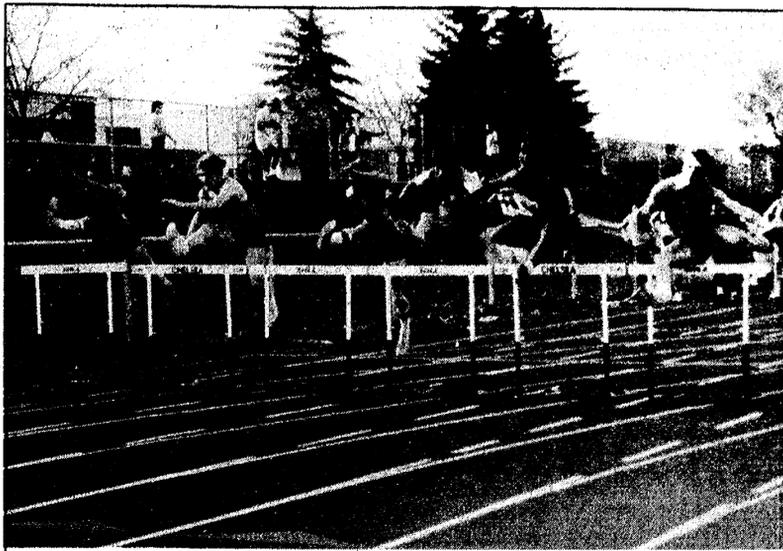

Chelsea's junior varsity baseball coach Jim Ticknor is a philosopher. He had to be one to accept last Friday's 9-8 loss to Lincoln there.

"It was a great game to watch," Ticknor said. "There was scoring in every inning. We had 17 hits, they had nine. They put theirs together a little better than we did, and they made fewer mistakes.

"Actually, it was a pretty good game. The pitching and the defense weren't bad. Both teams were hitting the heck out of the ball. Everything was dropping in."

The score was variously tied at 3-3, 6-6 and 8-8 before Lincoln pushed across the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

Jeff Harvey pitched all the way for Chelsea and, according to

Bulldog Baseball Team Opens League Card By Beating Lincoln

Dan Bellus pitched a strong three-hitter, striking out 10, as Chelsea's varsity baseball team opened its Southeastern Conference season with an 11-1 win over Lincoln here last Friday. The game was shortened to five innings under the mercy rule.

The Bulldogs took charge early, scoring five runs in the first. They added a single tally in the second and put across two in the fourth and three in the fifth to close out the contest.

Chelsea banded out 11 hits and played errorless ball in the field. Jim Toon, Evan Roberts and Mark Mull each hit safely twice. Toon and Mull both stroked doubles.

Lincoln helped the Bulldog cause by committing four errors. The lone Rainsplitter run was scored in the top of the fifth.

Chelsea coach Wayne Welton was pleased with Bellus' pitching performance. The junior right-hander issued just one walk and was in control of the game all the way, thanks to the heavy hitting and tight defensive support of his teammates.

A scheduled game at Milan last Wednesday was rained out. It was postponed to Thursday but again wasn't held. This time the umpires didn't show up. It will be played eventually because all 12 league contests count heavily in deciding the conference championship.

Chelsea Blanked Twice In Willow Run Meet

After an impressive 11-1 win over Lincoln in its Southeastern Conference opening game last week, Chelsea's varsity baseball team fell flat in Saturday's Willow Run tournament, failing to score against either Belleville or Willow Run.

"We drew Class A Belleville in the first game and played them pretty well through five innings," coach Wayne Welton said. "We lost it, 4-0, but we had our chances. We put seven runners on base in the first three innings, but couldn't get the timely hit when we needed it.

"Belleville has a tough pitcher and, once he settled down, we couldn't touch him. We had to get to him early, and we didn't."

Chelsea starting pitcher Chuck Downer had a no-hitter going into the fifth inning but eventually yielded four runs. Meanwhile, his teammates were giving him no support at the plate.

"Chuck threw very well, and we could have won if we had scored some runs when we had our chances early," Welton said. "A key hit at the right time would have made a big difference."

Kevin Maynard, Ray Spencer, Eric Schaffner and Downer collected one hit each.

The Bulldogs were blown out, 11-0, by Willow Run in the consolation contest.

"The less said about that game the better," Welton said. "Our pitchers couldn't find the plate, we couldn't hit, we couldn't field. We did everything wrong, and I'm kind of ashamed of our showing.

"It's good in a way to get a game like that out of our systems. We were just plain bad. We had no intensity, whatever. I just hope the boys learned a lesson. Willow

Springtime Health Hints For Horses

Humane Society of Huron Valley reports that spring is an important time of year from the standpoint of your horse's health. Horses, like dogs and cats need regular veterinary care to remain happy and healthy. Now is a good time to have a fecal exam done and get your horse wormed so that it won't carry as many parasites out to the pasture. A booster vaccine of tetanus, western and eastern encephalomyelitis (EEE) and influenza is a must. EEE is spread by mosquitoes and causes an almost always fatal neurologic disease. It is commonly referred to as "sleeping sickness." Horses are very susceptible to EEE and tetanus, diseases normally found in our area. Horses that are being shown a great deal or mares in foal should have a vaccination for rhinopneumonitis. This disease can cause respiratory problems and/or abortions.

If you plan to travel with your horse over the summer, now is the time to have blood drawn for a Coggins test. This test checks for evidence of equine infectious anemia, and a paper demonstrating a negative result is often required for shows and interstate travel (you will need this paper to enter Canada as well).

The Humane Society also suggests that your blacksmith be called. He or she will trim your horse's hooves and put shoes on if needed. Young horses who are not being ridden need their feet done too, so don't forget them!

JV Softballers Stay Undefeated, Win Three

JV softball coach Pat Clarke is beginning to wonder if he should quit while he's ahead.

Clarke is in his first year of coaching softball, and his team sported a glittering 9-0 record following three victories last week, two at Jackson Northwest and one over Lincoln there.

Clarke was especially happy about the two wins at Northwest. "They have a fine program," he said, "and it's not easy to beat them on their home field. If you come away from there with one win, you are doing well. Taking two was mighty nice. I don't think a Chelsea JV team has ever done that before."

"The winning streak is great, and I'm enjoying it, but we have some tough games coming up. We play Dexter, Tecumseh and Pinckney over five days, and we'll find out how good we really are."

The victories over Northwest didn't come easily. The scores were 13-8 and 11-7, and Chelsea had to rally in the late stages to win both.

A four-run outburst in the top of the seventh iced the first contest in which the Bulldogs held a precarious 9-8 lead after six. The contest saw a total of 15 errors committed, nine by Chelsea.

Pam Brown pitched all the way and surrendered 10 hits. She might have won easily with better defensive support. Kelly Stump delivered a key bases-loaded double to drive in three runs. Trisha Mattoff collected two hits and played fine ball in the field.

The Bulldogs were down, 7-5, after four innings of the second game, then put across six runs in the fifth to end the contest.

Brown started on the mound and gave way to Jenny Pichlik who pitched two excellent innings in relief to earn the victory.

Mattoff stroked three hits and drove in three runs. Catcher Angie DeFant spearheaded a good defensive effort by picking off two Northwest base-runners.

The Lincoln game was a comparative breeze, with Chelsea winning, 14-2, at the end of five innings under the mercy rule. Brown won her sixth pitching victory of the season, yielding two hits.

Mattoff led off the game with a home run, opening the door to a five-run first inning. The Bulldogs added two in the third, two in the fourth and five in the fifth.

It was Chelsea's first win in Southeastern Conference competition. A game scheduled against Milan last Wednesday was rained out and will be played later.

Freshmen Sweep Pair To Record First Wins

Chelsea's freshman baseball team avenged a couple of earlier defeats by sweeping a double-header against South Lyon here last Saturday, 7-6 and 6-3.

They were the first wins of the season for the Bulldog frosh who are now 2-4. Two games scheduled at Adrian last Thursday were washed out by rain and may or may not be played later.

The ninth-graders defeated South Lyon, 7-6, in last Saturday's opener, a game that went an extra inning. Mark Skiff scored the winning run after opening with a double. Clay Hurd brought him home with another two-bagger.

Randy Perry was the winning pitcher, striking out six and issuing just one walk. Hurd had a perfect game at the plate, with three hits and two walks in five trips. Hurd, Perry and Todd Thurkow each hit triples.

The freshmen made the most of just three hits in the nightcap. Rob Lyerla's bases-loaded triple was the key blow. It drove in only two runs because a Chelsea runner missed second base and was called out. Lyerla later scored.

Matt Monroe pitched all the way for the win and had a base hit besides. Jeff Doering had the other Bulldog hit and scored two runs.

"We played pretty well, and I'm pleased with our progress," coach Ted Hendricks said. We played good fundamental baseball, and it paid off.

"Our pitchers are getting the ball over the plate, and that is important at the freshman level. We made some good plays in the field, and we took advantage of our opportunities to score.

Hendricks got 16 of his 20 players into the first game, and promised that "everybody will get a chance" during remaining games. "I'll start a different lineup in every game. It's not easy to give everybody time when you have 20 boys and only 10 (including the designated hitter) can play at once, but I'll do it."

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

I went to a track meet last week, intending to take a few pictures and enjoy being there to watch the show. That reflects a prejudice in favor of track, one of the two sports that I was modestly good at during high school days (the other was basketball).

The experience was disappointing, and let me make it plain that no criticism is aimed at anybody. The people responsible for conducting the meet did their jobs right and well, according to the rules of the system for staging track meets. What I question is the system.

The meet was held at Chelsea, which has perhaps the finest track and field facility in Michigan, certainly one of the best. Visiting teams like to come to Chelsea because the surfaces are so good. Career-best times, lengths and heights are common. Some state records will be set sooner or later.

If the track around Niehaus Field doesn't bring out the best in a runner, it's because he or she wasn't up to par that day. I have run, jogged and walked on it enough to know that it gives new life to old legs. Timing myself with a wrist-watch, I get around the track several seconds faster than on other courses, without exerting extra effort. It's a joy to run on, or walk on. Your feet bounce, so that you don't feel a sensation of lifting them.

I have no experience in the field events, but am told that the Chelsea sites for jumping, vaulting and throwing weights are first-class. I couldn't understand why a badly bent bar was being used in the high jump, but maybe there was a reason. It was the only physical fault I could find; if indeed it was one. Maybe a high jump bar is supposed to be twisted like a pretzel.

The meet was scheduled to begin at 4:30 in the afternoon and I assume it did. When I got there at 4:45, there were a few boys and girls from Chelsea and Milan high jumping, long jumping, pole vaulting, putting the shot, throwing the discus. It took awhile to determine that all those field events were going on, because they were spread around all over

CHS Netters Win Two Meets and Keep Improving

The Chelsea boys tennis team broke into the win column with victories over Brooklyn Columbia Central and Huron Riverview this past week.

The Bulldogs lost to state-ranked Saline, which has won 15 meets in a row and is undefeated this spring.

The 5-2 win over Columbia Central was a big one, according to coach Rahn Rosentreter. Chelsea had lost an earlier meet at Brooklyn, but came back to win on their home court.

Chelsea's Biff Bunten and John Stevens won the No. 3 and 4 singles matches, and all three Bulldog doubles duos won.

Chelsea swept the Riverview meet. Winners were:

Singles—Kirk Lawton, 6-0, 6-0; Mark Henson, 6-0, 6-0; Biff Bunten, 6-2, 7-5; John Stevens, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2. Doubles—Steve Worthing-John Popovich, 6-0, 6-3; David Barais-Chris Herter, 6-2, 6-4; Mike Merkel-Rick Proctor, 6-1, 6-4.

Against Columbia Central, Bunten won, 2-6, 7-6, 6-3, and Stevens triumphed, 6-4, 6-1. Doubles winners were: Worthing-Popovich, 6-3, 6-2; Barais-Herter, 6-2, 6-0; Bob Pratt-Larry Moore, 6-4, 6-3.

Merkel and Proctor scored the only point in the 6-1 loss to Saline, winning at No. 4 doubles, 6-4, 6-2.

"We're playing better," Rosentreter said. "Bunten and Stevens have come along especially well, and the other boys are improving. We're not a bad team when we match up against schools with programs comparable to ours."

"We're in a building phase, and we're making progress."

Tim Bowdish Scores Two Slams in Distance Runs

A slam of the three distance events—800, 1,600 and 3,200 (roughly a half-mile, a mile and two miles) is rare in high school track, but Tim Bowdish did it twice last week.

Not too many years ago the two-mile run was forbidden to prep athletes. They weren't supposed to be able to go that far without endangering themselves physically. They could pick two of three events—the 440, 800 or mile—but couldn't enter all three. That much running was considered to be too much.

Bowdish not only ran and won the 800, 1,600 and 3,200 against both Milan and Lincoln, he also anchored the winning 3,200 relay team in both meets, giving him four first places in each.

His times weren't exceptional because he was pacing himself to run about four miles in competition, but he won every race handily and wasn't breathing especially hard at the end of either meet.

Unfortunately, Bowdish was one of the few bright spots for the Chelsea boys track team, which lost to Milan, 89-48, and to Lincoln, 97-40.

"Tim is running well," coach Bill Wehrwein said. "He has an excellent sense of pace. He knows how to run fast enough to win while saving something for later on. He does what he has to do."

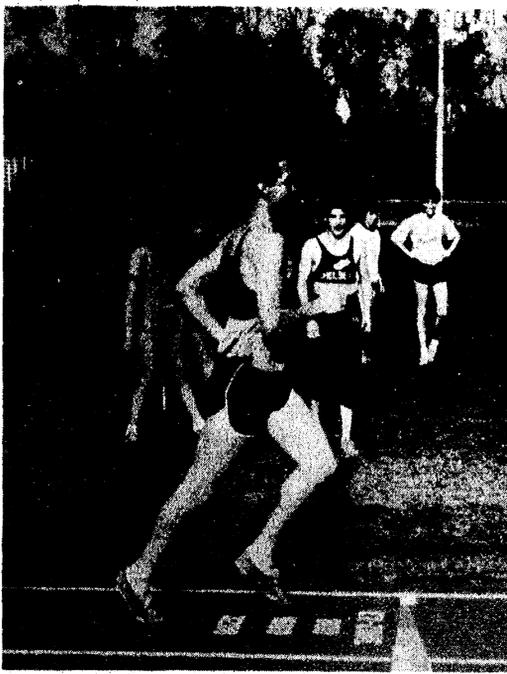

Chelsea's lack of strength in the field events and sprints doomed the Bulldogs' chances against both Milan and Lincoln. Chelsea has several very good distance runners, a good hurdler, a good weight thrower, a good pole vaulter, and not a whole lot more. Injuries have hurt.

Chelsea point-winners included the following:

Milan at Chelsea

April 23

Pole vault, Ed Brosnan, 2nd; shot put, Rob Long, 2nd; discus, Rob Long, 3rd; 3,200 relay, Chelsea (Dean Boote, Allen Kuhl, Kyle Kemmish, Tim Bowdish) 1st; high hurdles, Scott Miller 1st; 100 dash, Curtis Heard 2nd;

TIM BOWDISH put on a one-man show of distance running in Chelsea's April 23 boys track meet against Milan here, scoring a rare sweep of the individual distance events—800, 1,600 and 3,200 meters—and anchoring the winning 3,200 relay team. The outstanding effort was one of his team's few bright spots as the Bulldogs lost, 89-48.

1,600 run, Tim Bowdish 1st, Lee Riemenschneider 3rd; 400 dash, Kemmish 3rd; 800 run, Bowdish 1st, Kuhl 2nd, Greg Brown 3rd; low hurdles, Miller 1st; 3,200 run, Bowdish 1st, Kuhl 2nd, John Cattell 3rd.

In the Mason Invitational last Saturday, points were scored by:

Pole vault, Brosnan 5th; 2-mile relay, Chelsea (Kuhl, Boote, Kemmish, Bowdish) 5th; 800 relay, Chelsea (Jim Eisenbeiser, Dennis Parisho, David Freitas, Chris Gieske) 6th; 440 relay, Chelsea (Boote, Miller, Brosnan, Heard) 5th; low hurdles, Miller 6th; mile relay, Chelsea (Boote, Miller, Kemmish, Bowdish) 4th.

Lincoln at Chelsea

April 25

Pole vault, Brosnan 2nd; shot put, Long 2nd; high jump, Doug Webb 3rd; discus, Long 2nd; 3,200 relay, Chelsea 1st; 1,600 run, Bowdish 1st, Kuhl 3rd; 400 dash, Kemmish 3rd; 800 run, Bowdish 1st, Boote 2nd, Brown

3rd; low hurdles, Miller 2nd; 3,200 run, Bowdish 1st, Cattell 3rd.

In the Mason Invitational last Saturday, points were scored by: Pole vault, Brosnan 5th; 2-mile relay, Chelsea (Kuhl, Boote, Kemmish, Bowdish) 5th; 800 relay, Chelsea (Jim Eisenbeiser, Dennis Parisho, David Freitas, Chris Gieske) 6th; 440 relay, Chelsea (Boote, Miller, Brosnan, Heard) 5th; low hurdles, Miller 6th; mile relay, Chelsea (Boote, Miller, Kemmish, Bowdish) 4th.

Girls Track Team Loses To Milan, Defeats Lincoln

The Chelsea girls track team divided a pair of dual meets and finished a good fourth in the Mason Invitational last week.

The Bulldog girls lost a close one, 69-59, to Milan on Tuesday, then came back two days later to defeat always tough Lincoln, 71-57. The final events decided both contests.

Against Milan, Chelsea was down by just a point with three races remaining but was outscored, 16-7, the rest of the way. Amy Wolfgang turned in a fine individual performance, winning both hurdle events and the 400-meter dash and anchoring the victorious 1,600-meter relay quartet.

The situation was the same in the Lincoln meet but the result was reversed. Again the Bulldogs trailed by a point with three events to go but came on strong to win going away.

At Mason the girls scored a team total of 57 points. Mason won its home invitational with 131, followed by St. John's (94) and Holt (60). First places were won by Laura Damm in the 440-meter dash and Wolfgang in the 300 low hurdles.

Bulldog coach Bill Bainton singled out Jennifer Rossi, Kasey Anderson, Rachel Schmell and Tammi Harris for outstanding efforts even though their names didn't show on the first-place winners' list.

He also liked the teamwork of his distance runners in the sweep of the 3,200-meter run that clinched the win over Lincoln.

Chelsea place-winners:

Milan 69-Chelsea 59

April 23

Shot put, Kris Zerkel 2nd; high jump, Ann Becker 3rd; 3,200-meter relay, Chelsea (Kasey Anderson, Sallie Wilson, Kim Collins, Laura Damm) 1st; high hurdles, Amy Wolfgang 1st, Debbie Tift 3rd; 100 dash, Tammi Harris 3rd; 1,600 run, Wilson 1st; 400 dash, Wolfgang 1st, Damm 2nd; 800 run, Wilson 1st, Anderson 3rd; 300 hurdles, Wolfgang 3rd, Tift 3rd; 200 dash, Harris 3rd; 3,200 run, Mary Ann Richardson 3rd; 1,600 relay, Chelsea (Anderson, Chris Neuman, Damm, Wolfgang) 1st.

Library Adds New Books

Chelsea's McKune Memorial Library recently added eight new works of fiction to its growing collection.

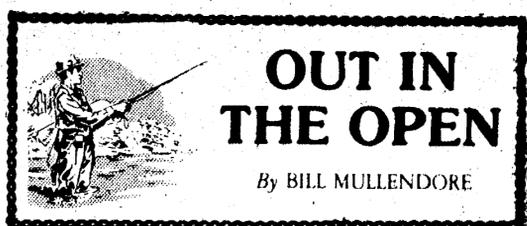

The library is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday and Thursday, 12 noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday. Evening hours are from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The new books in the library are as follows:

"Black Robe" by Brian Moore. It was a time when the French laid claim to everything, but in truth the wilderness that was Canada belonged to the natives. Theirs was a world wholly foreign to the Jesuit fathers, who came, along with soldiers and fur trappers, from the Old World to New France. Brian Moore has fashioned an extraordinary novel out of the conflict that arose between the Jesuit fathers and the Savages, as they called them.

"Echoes of War" by Joan Dial. The time is World War II and Kate, a young American tour guide in Germany, finds herself caught up in a series of events that would change the course of history. When she meets an English aristocrat she suspects is a Nazi sympathizer, Kate can no longer ignore the astroscities around her.

"A Green Journey" by Jon Hassler. On the occasion of her retirement from teaching at the age of 68, Agatha McGee leaves

The canoe had sat in my sister-in-law's backyard for more than a year, not quite abandoned but definitely neglected. It hadn't been in the water since the late summer of 1983, a trip that is memorable only because the river was so low that we kept scraping bottom and we had to get out and drag or carry past the shallow spots.

Last year we never quite got around to going canoeing during the brief time in spring when there was enough water flowing down the Huron to float a canoe without the same frustration. A canoe, after all, is supposed to be paddled, not dragged and carried.

In the water, a canoe is sheer delight, seeming to come alive and respond to the slightest touch and at times, even to thoughts. Out of the water a canoe is a clumsy, awkward object with a mind of its own, determined to frustrate its handlers. If you don't believe that, try lifting a canoe on or off the top of a car. However you hoist it, the canoe will defy you. If upside down it will try to turn right side-up, and vice versa.

Our canoe is a 17-foot aluminum model that weighs 76 pounds. When bought more than 15 years ago, it was the lightest canoe for its size on the market. It was also for sale cheap from a dealer who was going out of business. It now has some bottom scratches and a few minor dents, but is essentially as good as new. It definitely will out-live me.

Vivian and I launched the canoe below the rapids at Hudson Mills Metropark on a sunny Saturday morning a couple of weeks ago, having spotted a car seven miles downstream at Dexter-Huron Park. We couldn't have ordered nicer conditions. The river was high, but not so high as to be in any way dangerous. The weather was warm but not sweaty; we were comfortable in shorts and sleeveless shirts.

Along the banks the leaf buds of shrubs and trees were swelling and showing green, and some had popped. There were early spring flowers blooming if you looked carefully for them—violets, spring beauties, marsh marigolds, hepaticas. Skunk cabbages and jack-in-the-pulpits were growing in the low spots. Mallard ducks jumped in front of our silent progress down the river, sometimes waiting to take off until we had floated close to touching distance. Smaller birds of many species darted and swept and called—sometimes in alarm, often in what seemed to be a greeting. Turtles by the dozen basked on logs. A couple of 10-pound carp leaped clear of the water, making startling splashes as they crashed back.

Old skills come back quickly. I made a mistake during the first few yards, forgetting that maintaining steerage requires that the canoe be moving faster than the current. We got sideways, bumped an emergent branch of a downed tree and spun away with nothing worse than a reminder to stay alert, look out ahead for obstacles, and steer away from them before getting too close.

Our game plan was to float—drift with the current and exert no more effort with the paddles than that needed to keep a straight course. A couple of winter-rusly senior citizens making their first canoe trip in more than a year had no business trying to set speed or distance records. Besides, it was a day to just plain sit back and enjoy while doing as little as possible.

The worst hazard we encountered was the possibility of being burned by the hot sun coming from overhead and reflecting off the water underneath. Our advance planning had taken care of that. We had taken along sun-screen lotion, pants, long-sleeved wind breakers. Skin began to tingle about an hour after setting out, so we pulled ashore and changed clothes. You learn some things as you get older, and one is that a bad sunburn is mighty uncomfortable and therefore to be prevented.

Our day was made a few minutes after the clothes-changing halt. A woman raking her yard first ed us and said ours was the first canoe to come down the river this spring. I'm sure it wasn't, but it was nice to be told that we were pioneers in her eyes.

The trip was all too short. We misjudged the speed of the current, and a planned three-hour float ended way ahead of schedule. Even though we hadn't paddled except to steer, we came around the bend into sight of the Dexter bridge an hour before we expected to get there.

Shortly after that, a young family travelling in two canoes caught up with us, and we drifted along together the last mile to Dexter-Huron Park, exchanging pleasant conversation. Being told that we were the oldest couple they had ever seen canoeing on the river, encouraged to keep it up' and invited to join them on a trip someday later this summer didn't hurt at all.

There always has to be some sort of sour note, and it came after we had pulled the canoe up to the bank. I walked up to the park entry station and asked permission to drive down a service road to the take-out point, promising to be loaded up and gone within 15 minutes. To my surprise, then and now, I was politely but firmly refused. We would have to drag the canoe more than a hundred yards to the nearest place where we could park the car. "It's policy," she said. "I don't know why, but if you try to do it, I'll have to call a ranger and have you arrested."

That's the last kind of trouble I need right now, and so we complied. Nobody—much less a couple of senior citizens, who are a little bit tired—deserves to be hassled that way. What made it even harder to swallow was that the employees of a commercial canoe rental service had access to the road and were using it. If anybody has to drag a canoe, let everybody do it. Something is wrong, and I intend to find out what it is.

We will canoe that stretch of river again in a couple of weeks, because it will be even prettier, then. Meanwhile, I will get a better reading on HCMA's put-in and take-out rules. Providing access to the river and then making it inconvenient to use doesn't make a whole lot of sense.

I hope, too, that enough rain will fall this summer to keep the river navigable. Last year's drought killed the canoeing season at the end of June. May it go on through the summer and fall of 1985.

Michigan Wildlife Festival Will Open May 25 in Clare

An art show and sale will be held both days at the Town & Country Restaurant and an antique duck decoy display will be featured at the Doherty Motor Hotel on Saturday and Sunday, including a swap and sell.

Entries for the Artist of the Year and Carver of the Year contests will be on display at the Doherty Saturday afternoon and at 6:30 p.m. Saturday evening, an awards banquet will be held announcing and honoring the contest winners.

Among his awards are Ducks Unlimited Artist of the Year 1980, Michigan Duck Stamp Contest 1981, and the Michigan Ducks Unlimited Artist of the Year 1984.

and Kate—on a collision course in which the political and sexual passions of a lifetime will ignite in the tragedy that is Ireland today. At home in the backstreets of Belfast as the elegant drawing rooms of London, the novel brings 20th century history vividly to life.

"The Riven Realm" by Nigel Tranter. Sorry the nation where a babe is king, runs the old saying, and surely never was its truth more direly demonstrated than in Scotland after its most grievous disaster, Flodden Field in 1513, with James the Fifth, aged 17 months, succeeding to a shattered realm and the power-hungry waiting like jackals to assail the kingdom and each other. Sixteenth-century power politics and brinkmanship are drawn in bright stark colours by a master Scottish storyteller.

Arbor Days Observed Here

is teacher Don Young who led the enthusiastic Beach Arbor Day expedition.

Chelsea Arbor Days got off to a rough start and a happy ending. Chelsea Rod & Gun Club promised to deliver 200 blue spruce seedlings to the four schools in the community, but was two hours late Friday morning because the seedling courier for the Washtenaw County Soil Conservation District, Cindy Fischer, was delayed by a car accident.

Fifty trees were delivered to each school by 10:30 so the school activities could go on. Students were amazed to learn that the tiny seedlings which could be held between two fingers could someday be 75 to 100 feet high.

There was a special planting of a row of 10 Colorado blue spruces on the south lawn of the Charles S. Cameron pool. These trees from the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club forest are seven years old and will henceforth grow at a rate of one foot per year.

Another special planting was carried out by professional gardeners from the Runciman landscape service. Twenty-five flowering crabapple trees were planted along Book St., next to the fence of the Chelsea High school tennis courts. Kenneth Runciman, a Chelsea resident, did the original landscaping for the high school in 1959.

SYLVIA GILBERT, secretary at Beach school, left, and two students, Vanessa May, center, and Danielle McNabb admire one of 10 Colorado blue spruces planted on the south lawn of the Charles E. Cameron swimming pool. The trees were a gift of the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club, and were expertly planted by the school's own maintenance crew.

TEACHER SALLY SCHLUPE grasps a shovel, showing students how to penetrate the hard earth close to the North school tennis courts. Chelsea Arbor Day was filled with learning experiences.

AN UNEXPECTED VISITOR at the North School observance of Chelsea Arbor Day was this barnyard chick owned by Kelly Brown and held here by Tracey Wales. Behind her is Jodie Kelper.

Understanding your skin

ANTI-AGERS: Skin-Saving Techniques

As your skin ages, major differences occur in its structure. There is less elasticity and support which can lead to wrinkling. Additionally, the skin gets dryer because the skin glands produce less oil and less moisture is retained.

Karen Burke M.D., Dermatologist

Dermatologist consultant, Dr. Karen Burke offers these basic rules for a skin program geared to looking younger longer:

- Avoid sun exposure without a protective block on face, hands and neck. The sun is the single largest contributing factor to skin damage, other than heredity.

- Eliminate harsh, alkaline soaps from your beauty regimen. Soap can destroy the skin's protective coating, or acid mantle, so that even more moisture is lost. A beauty bar such as DOVE, which is one-quarter moisturizing cream, doesn't dry the skin the way soap can.

- Try to maintain a constant weight. Weight swings from binges followed by crash diets can cause lines on the body and actual wrinkles in the face.

SELDOM SEEN ANYMORE: A long time ago kids built "cars" out of fruit crates, odds and ends of lumber and whatever wheels could be salvaged from old toys. You don't see many of those old models any more, but Kyle Miller of 19470 N. M-52 is "driving" one, complete with rope steering gear, tin can "headlights" and an expired license plate affixed on the front. The guess is that Kyle, a first-grader at North school had some help in building his well-crafted machine. He's obviously having a lot of fun with it.

Special Education Now Available to Any Impaired or Handicapped Child

Most people take for granted their children's right to a basic public education. For most children, public school has been a standard part of growing up—they explore, they interact, and learn reading, writing and arithmetic.

However, for children with special needs, it hasn't always been that way. As few as 14 years ago, those children didn't have the right to go to school, according to Dr. Henry DeYoung, director of special education for region V, which includes, Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester, and Whitmore Lake.

"Prior to 1971, it was only out of the good graces of the school system that those children were able to go to school," DeYoung says. "In most states, they simply didn't have the right. But a number of law suits in the late 1960's found that legally, the school systems could not exclude handicapped children."

Since then, special education programs have had some of the same growing pains the civil rights movement has experienced. Creating effective special education has been as much a matter of changing people's attitudes as it has been forcing changes through the courts and legislatures, although the laws are becoming more comprehensive every year.

"The one thing that makes it a real pleasure to work in this community is that people here have a high interest in education," says DeYoung, who was hired by the superintendents in 1976. "In Chelsea, even if there were no mandatory laws, we would do the same things. In Chelsea special education is provided because it is seen as a necessary part of a complete curriculum, not because the law is after us. I'm real proud of that."

One of the initial problems in getting special education accepted was its enormous cost, DeYoung says. People couldn't see spending the extra money on a few children with special problems, especially those with severe problems. Today, while the special education programs are more efficient than they used to be, the average cost per student is about twice that of the average child, DeYoung says. For children with severe problems, the cost can be as high as $10,000 per year. In Chelsea alone, more than $500,000 per year is spent on its 230 children. The total student population is 2,261. Nationally, a 10 percent enrollment in special education is about the standard rate, DeYoung says.

Approximately half the total cost is funded by the Chelsea school district. Most of the rest of the money comes from federal sources or the Washtenaw Intermediate School District. Because Chelsea is considered to be a relatively wealthy district by the state, "very little" state money is provided, DeYoung says.

Children in special education fall into one of 12 state-created categories. They are: severely mentally impaired; trainable mentally impaired; educable mentally impaired; emotionally disabled; hearing impaired; visually impaired; physically and otherwise health impaired; speech and language impaired; pre-primary impaired; learning disabled; severely multiply impaired; and autism. The autism category is new this year.

"It's a little crazy," DeYoung says. "No where in Michigan are people trained to work with autistic children. I can't find anyone to hire to do the job." Autism is a form of severe emotional impairment. Currently there are no autistic children in Chelsea, although there are three in Manchester.

SPECIAL EDUCATION in Chelsea involves more than 200 children and costs more than $500,000 a year. Above, teacher Nancy Cooper, center, instructs a class that includes, from left,

Of the 12 categories, most of the children are speech and language impaired, which is also the most correctable problem, DeYoung says. Learning disabilities are the second most common problem, followed by emotional impairment. These, along with those children who are trainable and educable mentally impaired, are worked with in Chelsea. Children who fall into the other areas have to go to Ann Arbor, or Ypsilanti.

Chelsea has eight classrooms devoted to special education, and there are 20 staff members who serve the entire district. Schools legally have some responsibility, DeYoung says, from the birth of the child until age 26, the most liberal law in the country.

Most children in special programs spend part or most of their day in general classrooms, DeYoung says. He says it's rare for a child to spend no time in a general classroom.

"The object is to get the child to function successfully in regular education, and teachers play a vital part in that," DeYoung says.

The special education program is generally notified about a child early, usually by the parents, a teacher, or even a doctor or minister, DeYoung says. After the referral, the program has to have written permission from the parents to perform any kind of official evaluation.

And how do parents react if they are told their child may have problems?

"Usually in this district I find that most of the parents are so thankful and appreciative that someone wants to help their child," DeYoung says. "Usually the parent knows long before anyone else does. It's funny, but even as early as first grade, a child's classmates will know if he has a problem, just as they know who the smartest kid in the class is. There's no mystery about it. If we have a problem with parents, we haven't done our job."

After a child begins special education, he is re-evaluated every three years by a psychiatrist, social worker, and counselor, but once a year a meeting is held to redefine goals and objectives.

State's Bear Hunting Rules Need Attention

Black bear hunting in Michigan may be seriously threatened in the near future unless steps are taken to survey the bear population and measures are enacted to manage this popular game resource.

That's the assessment of veteran bear hunter Richard P. Smith, who feels that proposed changes in hunting laws in neighboring states, combined with Michigan's weak bear hunting regulations and lack of data on the bear population, are threatening to restrict hunting opportunities for the state's bear hunters.

In neighboring Wisconsin, state lawmakers are considering emergency measures to reduce the black bear kill during 1985 because of recent overharvests that have cut the bear population significantly. If lawmakers are unable to agree on a permit system, the state's Department of Natural Resources will consider shortening the hunting season by two days, Smith reports. He suggests that these steps could force Wisconsin hunters into the Western Upper Peninsula to hunt bear under Michigan's more liberal hunting regulations.

The problem in Michigan is that no one knows, with any reliability, how many bears are in the state. Although Michigan was a leader in bear research, state biologists say it has been years since any solid information about the bear population, other than hunter harvest figures, has been gathered.

Since registration of bears bagged in the Upper Peninsula was not required in 1982 and 1983 and then abruptly resumed in 1984, Smith contends there is no accurate data for determining the state's bear population. Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) records show there were 803 bears registered by hunters in the state last year, 693 in the U. P. and 110 in the Lower Peninsula. That was the lowest bear harvest since 1978 and no one knows why.

Although several factors, such as abundant food supply, adaptability of the bears to hunting pressure and reduced hunter compliance could have contributed to the drop in the number of registered bears, the fact that no one has the answer spells trouble for bear hunters, Smith speculates.

Smith, writing in the April issue of Michigan Out-of-Doors magazine, notes that several steps must be taken to insure that Michigan's bear population remains high.

The author suggests that the best and most equitable way to preserve the bear population by restricting hunting activities would be through a permit system. He contends the DNR should consider issuing 5,000 permits for the U. P. and 1,000 permits for the Lower Peninsula, with 10 percent of the total set aside for non-residents.

"A permit system would immediately improve the quality of the bear hunting experience in Michigan as well as help to protect the resource," Smith notes. "I predict that if the steps suggested here are not taken before this fall, more severe measures will be necessary in the future."

Smith, who has more than 20 years experience hunting bears, also recommends several other schemes for carefully managing Michigan's black bear resource.

—Prohibit the taking of bear during Michigan's gun deer season. This prohibition, now in effect in the Lower Peninsula, should be extended to the U. P. as well.

—Adopt strict controls on the practice of bear baiting. Although outlawing the practice of bear hunting over bait is neither necessary nor wise, establishing reasonable controls would be in the best interests of the hunting community.

Finally, Smith contends that DNR biologists should establish a bear research and management program to document changes in the bear population and provide strict controls over the harvesting of these game animals. If the DNR fails to act, bear hunters should take the initiative.

"If meaningful research programs are not initiated by the DNR, steps should be taken by bear hunters to insure that a portion of their license fees is earmarked for proven bear research techniques," Smith said. "There are too many questions about Michigan's bear population that have gone unanswered for too long."

The Natural Resources Commission is scheduled to consider changes in bear hunting regulations at its May 16 meeting in Mt. Clemens. Interested hunters may make their feelings known to the commission during the public comments segment of that meeting.

GRANT SHEPLER

Dana Corp. Promotes Two Former Residents

Two former Chelsea residents have been promoted to new positions in the warehouse operations division of Dana Corp. in Athens, Ga.

Paula Schaff is manager of depot distribution, responsible for five regional parts depots and their respective factory branches. She has been employed by Dana for 18 years.

A 1963 graduate of Chelsea High school, Schaff went to work at Dana in 1967 and moved to Athens in 1981. During the past four years she has been manager of the regional parts depot there.

Succeeding Schaff as manager of the Athens parts depot is Grant Shepler, who formerly served as manager of industrial relations at the Dana plant in Chelsea. He has been employed by Dana since 1969 and had been located in Chelsea since March, 1983. His transfer to Athens was effective on April 1 of this year.

Electric Bug Controllers Generally Ineffective

Along with spring come bugs—and attempts to stave them off with various ultrasound and electronic devices, citronella candles and chemicals.

Everyone looks for ways to keep insects away, but Gary Dunn, entomology specialist at Michigan State University, does not recommend buying an electric bug zapper or an ultrasonic device.

"The electric bug zapper doesn't control mosquitoes, the pests most people want to control, and the effectiveness of ultrasound devices against any insects is in question," Dunn says.

The electronic bug zapper is probably the most popular pest control device. These work by attracting bugs and electrocuting them.

Electric bug zappers are efficient and effective at attracting and killing certain types of insects, but people should think twice about using them outdoors, Dunn says. Bug zappers are designed to attract insects, so a yard that has a zapper in it will have more flying bugs than one that doesn't. The device works well indoors, however, because insects are restricted from entering the area.

Once invited into the yard, some insects, including mosquitoes, are more attracted to the carbon dioxide humans exhale than to the zapping device.

A bug zapper will never eliminate bugs from an area, because it is continuously attracting them—and you won't run out of bugs to attract.

An electronic bug zapper is not selective and often kills more beneficial insects than pests, Dunn says. And it makes a lot of noise that disturbs a peaceful summer evening.

Much debate is occurring over the effectiveness of ultrasound or ultrasonic devices, Dunn says. Ultrasound devices emit high frequency sound that is supposed to irritate insects and repel them from the area.

The Environmental Protection Agency has filed a civil suit against a manufacturer of ultrasonic devices for false advertising. Though the case is still in court, Dunn says ultrasonic devices may ultimately be banned or carry detailed use instructions to ensure their effectiveness.

Citronella candles have been used for a long time and are effective against mosquitoes—but only mosquitoes, Dunn says. These candles also need to be used on a calm night, because wind blows the repellent out of the area.

Pest strips are often used to eliminate insects, but they also have some drawbacks. Pest strips, porous plastic impregnated with an active insecticide, are designed to treat 1,000 cubic feet of space. Basically, they fumigate a room, Dunn says. They are effective in closed areas but should not be used in rooms where people spend a lot of time. This restriction limits their usability.

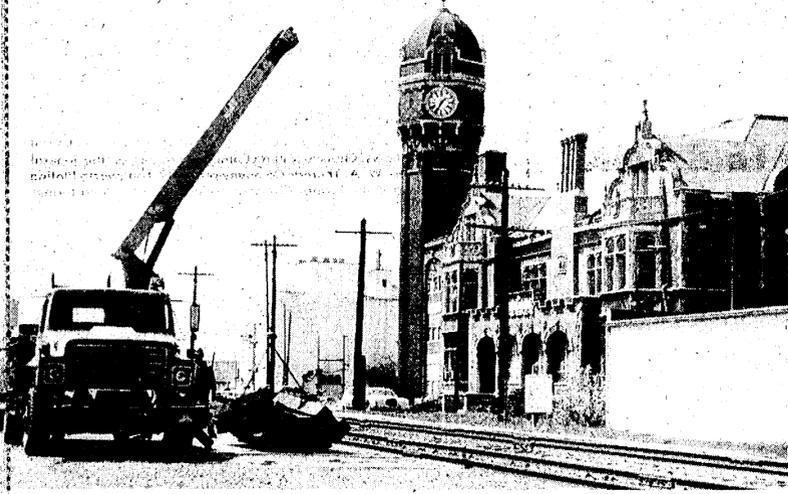

"Nothing can completely eliminate insects, except for a short time in a small area. So be suspicious of any method of product that promises otherwise," Dunn advises.

Fifth Disease Rash May Be Mistaken For Other Diseases
 Springtime for many children means playing out of doors, shedding bulky winter clothes, eating ice cream and looking forward to summer. For some youngsters however, spring means rashes. One generally unheard of and sometimes misunderstood rash is Fifth disease (Erythema Infectiosum).
 Fifth disease is most common among school-age children, affecting boys and girls in equal numbers. A rash appears in three stages. It begins on the face, giving a "slapped cheek" appearance, spreads to the trunk, arms and legs, and finally fades, leaving a rash with a "net-like" appearance.
 The rash may last from 2 to 39 days, with the average being 14. Itching and peeling rarely occur.
 It is important that a physician diagnose a child with a rash to rule out rubella, rubella and scarlet fever, three diseases with which Fifth disease is often mistaken. If a child is diagnosed as having Fifth disease, the child need not be kept home from school. There is no accepted treatment for Fifth disease and no laboratory tests are available to confirm it.
 Dissemination of information about women's participation in the labor force and about programs to expand women's employment opportunities is a significant activity of the U.S. Department of Labor's Women's Bureau.

Citizens Trust Reports Increase In Net Earnings

A 19.8% increase in net income for the first quarter of 1985 was reported to shareholders by George H. Cress, president and chief executive officer of Citizens Trust. Net income for the three months ending March 31 was $502,176 as compared with $419,154 for the same period in 1984.

The improvement in earnings was due to several factors, among them a better interest rate spread; more dollars in the outstanding loan portfolio, which yields a higher return than other types of investments; effective expense control; and the absence of one-time consolidation expenses that were experienced in the first quarter of 1984.

Earnings per share stood at $1.58 on March 31 as compared to $1.33 on March 31, 1984. Total assets rose 12% from $227,081,744 in March of 1984, to $254,294,365 as of March 31, 1985. Total deposits were $235,182,977, up 11.7% over last year's first quarter deposits of $210,598,123. Total loans at the end of the quarter were $149,480,150 compared to $127,975,620 a year ago, representing an increase of 17%.

Cress also reported to the shareholders that during the first quarter of 1985, Citizens Trust introduced a new Discount Brokerage service and a new VISA credit card program.

experience to address their social concerns. This year's theme, "Our Piece of the Action," challenges church women traditionally involved in caring for victims of social inequities to deal with root causes and become directly involved in action that brings about social change.

Church Women United has a long history of addressing the causes of social injustice and taking part in the political process to accomplish their goals of empowerment of women, economic justice, human rights and peace. It is a national movement and the catalyst that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox women together into one "community of caring." Representing a broad spectrum of religious tradition, race, age, economic status and ethnic background, these church women work ecumenically through a national unit, 51 state units including one in Greater Washington, D. C., and 1,800 local units.

Arlene Schroen, president of the CWU Chelsea unit has announced that May Fellowship Day events in Chelsea will be held at Zion Lutheran church, Rogers Corners, Friday, May 3, 10 a.m. with a pot-luck brunch. Those attending are asked to bring a dish to pass and table service. Baby-sitting will be provided.

THAT HURTS MY EARS! Children at the North Lake Co-op Nursery recently had a demonstration about casts and splints by Tom Midura, an orthopedic technician at Orthopedic Surgery Associates of Ann Arbor. Part of the demonstration, above, included sawing a cast off the arm of volunteer Kathryn Gorney, age three, daughter of Thomas and Hermione Gorney of Grass Lake. The saw gave off a high pitched squeal, which caused the children to cover their ears. The idea behind the demonstration was to lessen the children's fears about dealing with an orthopedic specialist should the need ever arise.

Stielstras Are Welcomed to Their New Chelsea Home

During the past two days Jack and Pat Wellnitz departed from their Chelsea home for retirement in Brooksville, Fla., while the family of Darco Stielstra moved happily into the just-vacated home at 276 Cedar Lake.

Stielstra started work in Chelsea as principal of the Dwight E. Beach school in July, 1984 after resigning as school principal in Perry. Since then he has been driving back and forth five days a week from his home in Owosso to Chelsea, a daily trip of 110 miles. At last, this spring, the Owosso home was sold and the Stielstras were able to buy the Wellnitz home.

For years, Jack Wellnitz was supervisor of Michigan Bell Telephone operations in western Washtenaw county. He oversaw the installation of a modern telephone system for the Chelsea School District in 1975. From 1976 to last week his wife, Pat, served as administrative assistant in the office of Chelsea High school.

Monday and Tuesday were jubilant days of moving in and moving out for both families.

A Boy and His Puppy

If I had a dog the size of my pocket, I would take it to school and it would eat with me! He would bark, and if my teacher heard my puppy, it would be fun. I would see a witch and she would make me small like my puppy. But what if she casts an evil spell on me? I would talk to my puppy then would cry and then she would say, "what are you a whimperer or a whiner?" She said, "You can be tall again." And poof, I was tall again. The end.

The Standard building is the only one in Chelsea to be recognized by the state for its historical significance.

Child Safety Program Handbook Available

Each year hundreds of thousands of children are reported missing. Some are victims of custody battles, while others run away or are abducted. Some are found dead and can't be identified. Still others are never found, and many of their cases remain unsolved.

The problem of missing and exploited children has received a lot of attention since the Missing Children Act was signed into law in 1982. Now, Action and the U. S. Department of Justice have joined resources and developed The Child Safety Program Handbook to help families, citizen groups, and community organizations do something about the problem. The Handbook includes safety rules to teach your children, and for you to follow as parents. It will also help you set up a Child Safety Day in your community. You can get a copy of the Child Safety Program Handbook by sending 50 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 402N, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Here are some things to teach your children for their safety: A stranger is anyone they don't know. A "bad" stranger asks children to go with him, offers them candy or presents, or asks them to take his photograph. They should say "no." They do not have to obey strangers and should tell you about strangers they meet. If you have to send someone who is unfamiliar to pick your children up at school, set up a code word so they can recognize the adult. Otherwise they should never go with an adult who says he or she is supposed to pick them up.

Be sure your kids know that they should never tell anyone over the phone that they are home alone. They should never answer the door when they are home alone, and should call the police if someone tries to get into the house.

If you take the proper precautions, your children won't become lost or separated from you. However, it could happen, and your children should know what to do in an emergency. Make sure they know their full name, address including the city and state, and phone number including the area code. Teach them how to reach the operator and how to call long distance.

There is a possibility that your children may become separated from you while shopping or in a crowded place. Tell them to go to the nearest clerk and ask for help. They should never go to the parking lot without you.

As a parent, listen to your children. Know their friends, and be aware of who they are with, and where they are at all times. If a child tells you he or she does not want to be with a particular adult, find out the reason.

Take photographs of your children every year. It is also a good idea to keep a copy of their dental records.

To learn more about child safety, send 50 cents for your copy of the Child Safety Program Handbook. At the same time, you will also receive a free copy of the Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the U. S. General Services Administration, the Catalog lists more than 200 other free and moderately priced federal booklets on a wide variety of subjects.

Speech, Occupational Therapy Programs Set

The summer Speech and Language Program is for pre-school and school-age children with all types of speech and language problems.

The Occupational Therapy Program is designed for the learning and developmentally delayed child of pre-school and school-age. Physical development delays including large and small motor skills, plus all other areas of sensory/motor development are assessed for treatment programming.

Tuition for each program is $250. Some scholarships are available on the basis of need. Scholarship application should be made through the Chelsea Community Hospital Business Office to Cheri Albertson. The deadline

IN THE SAME BOAT together are the presidents of two leading fund-raising organizations. On the left is Dave McAllister, head of Chelsea United Way. Pulling the other oar is Walt Hamilton, president of the Chelsea Civic Foundation. United Way gives ongoing assistance to established civic and charitable organizations. The Civic Foundation provides start-up funding for newly recognized community needs.

Civic Foundation Explores Proposals for Local Benefit

At the April meeting of the Chelsea Civic Foundation a wide range of ideas was considered. It was agreed that the foundation is essentially a community reserve fund to meet special civic and social needs as they arise.

As one trustee expressed it, "The money we collect and hold in the Civic Foundation reserve is comparable to a family savings account. The money is there for any needs that arise, but no one in the family knows in advance what the needs will be. The reserve being built by the Civic Foundation is the same thing, except that it's a community savings account shared by several thousand families."

Present at the meeting were President Walt Hamilton and trustees Dave McAllister, Bill Nuffer, Ann Feeney, Barbara Brown, Marilyn Chasteen, Ray Van Meer, Jerry Ashby and Art Dils. Will Connelly came as a guest, only to learn that he had been elected as a trustee to fill the unexpired term of Ron Olmsted, and serve as the foundation's public affairs officer.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $11,804.78. The foundation plans to distribute a large almost automatic referral to other civic organizations. It was proposed that better liaison be established between local part of this money and obtain replenishment funds through annual campaigns. Families and individuals will be urged to include the Chelsea Civic Foundation in their wills and trusts. If, for example, the foundation had $1 million in capital invested in Michigan municipal bonds, an additional $90,000 a year would be available, as needed, for yearly distribution.

A wide variety of ideas for future community assistance from the Civic Foundation was presented for discussion. Some concepts were pretty far out but represented the willingness of the board to consider any idea that might benefit the community.

One topic was the eventual need for an overpass or underpass of the Main St. Conrail tracks. A large part of the village is separated from the fire department by these tracks. If the Civic Foundation became involved in a municipal matter of such magnitude the foundation might provide seed money for a feasibility study. Many suggestions evoked agricultural interests and industrial groups to expand the local economy.

For example, more growing of sugar beets and the establishment of a sugar refining industry; more wool growing and the operation of a local woolen factory. The foundation would refer such a proposal to the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and farm organizations.

In the same way, a project to identify and preserve historic sites would be assigned to, or shared with, the Chelsea Area Historical Society as well as the state historical commission.

The foundation plans to produce a brochure explaining its goals, its plans to generate capital and its method of distributing funds to area causes.

At present the distribution committee is considering applications for start-up funds for a Chelsea fitness and wellness center, a Chelsea substance abuse task force, and emergency assistance to a social service agency, Faith in Action.

CHELSEA POLICEMAN RICK WALTER spoke to third grade classes at North school recently about what it's like to be a police officer. The talk has become an annual event for Walter. The idea is to give children a better understanding of how a police officer operates, and to lessen their fears about law officers.
