

Shepard Unruffled By Training Grind

By United Press International

Astronaut Alan Shepard spent two brutal years training for his terrifying leap into space and then three more days waiting it out.

None of it ruffled him. He is of that rugged and rare group of combat men who thrive on danger and seek it out . . . as a business man seeks a profit . . . as a novelist seeks a plot. The danger jobs of aviation are those of the jet test pilots, and Shepard was a jet test pilot.

He volunteered to be a man in space. Would you?

For a long time Shepard has been ahead on points in the competitive seven-man race to be first to ride the Mercury capsule down range from Cape Canaveral. His desire was as strong as his ability.

He weighs 160 pounds and is five feet 11 inches tall. His brown hair is crewcut, his eyes blue. Although a man of noted reserve, he has a winning smile and a wide, delighted grin.

He seemed surprised when asked if he slept well the night before his first ride was postponed last Tuesday. Of course he did, despite the awesome journey he was about to undertake.

Since that day, when he suffered some disappointment at the postponement, he remained secluded on the Cape. He studied and ran through simulated flights and waited for the moment when his shoulder was tapped by someone saying, "It's time, Alan."

Shepard was born 37 years ago in East Derry, N.H., son of a former Army man, Alan Barlett Shepard Sr.

Ivan Hackler, who taught Shepard in East Derry's school years ago, recalls that his student had a keen interest in science as a youngster.

"A good student and a boy extremely well liked," Hackler said. "He was a good athlete, particularly in baseball and football."

His mother has said that "Alan has never feared anything."

From East Derry he went to school at Adm. Farragus Academy in Toms River, N.J., where he played football and other sports. The year - book comment on him then was "he speaks words of truth and soberness."

Shepard won an appointment to Annapolis. When he finished, in wartime, he went to duty on a destroyer in the Pacific. It was only after the war that he turned to the air and won his pilot's wings.

Shepard's specialty was fighters, and it was these he flew as a test pilot. When then the United States went looking for potential astronauts, it turned to the tough young men who put planes through their paces.

Since 1959 Shepard has been working night and day training for the Mercury blastoff. Asked once why he wanted to be the prime astronaut, he said: "I want to be first just because I want to be first."

Milk Strike In 5th Day; New Issue

A new controversy threatened to complicate negotiations today as a strike by 1,200 Niagara Frontier milk drivers and dairy employees entered its fifth day.

The first complaint of shortage was registered yesterday by Nicholas Mamula, president of Alumnus Farms dairy in West Seneca.

Mamula, who signed a contract with striking Local 39 of the Teamsters Milk, Ice Cream and Dairy Employees Union the day before the stoppage began, said he had been unable to get enough milk to fulfill increased demands brought on by the walkout.

Other dairies also reported they were unable to get as much milk as they ordered.

In North Tonawanda, some dairies, which were selling milk in their stores, have refused to sell milk to new customers until their regular customers are provided for.

Meanwhile, in Buffalo, representatives of the dairies and the union were continuing their meetings under the auspices of federal and state mediators.

Along with the shortage of milk, dairies are starting to experience a shortage of bottles. Tonawanda area dairies have issued an appeal to their customers to return bottles as soon as possible.

Area Stands Still as Interest Focuses on Astronaut's Feat

Activity in this area came to a near halt this morning while residents listened on radio or watched on TV as the United States sent a man to the fringes of space atop a rocket.

Most reactions to the feat were expressions of thrills and wonder. Schools used their public address systems to keep pupils informed and many had TV sets available for pupils to watch the shot.

At Tonawanda High School, three classes watched a TV set.

Gary Schmidt, a THS pupil, commented, "It was wonderful. I can imagine how Commander Shepard felt . . . I was really surprised at how well it went off."

Pamela Hedges, Tonawanda pupil said, "I felt nervous myself. I can imagine how he felt. We were all thrilled when the shot got off the ground successfully. I hope this shows the Russians we can do it too."

George Lowry, North Tonawanda High School principal, said he found himself getting excited as the countdown proceeded.

A secretary in the school said, "I got goose-bumps listening."

Mrs. Raymond G. Kick, 374 Oakdale Drive, North Tonawanda, missed the shot. "I've been ill," she said. The whole idea is "most alarming," she added.

Another North Tonawanda resident, Mrs. Harvey R. Newman, 32 Pine St., thought it was "wonderful." "I'm so glad he's safe, too," she said.

Mrs. Walter A. Innes, 401 Niagara Pkwy., North Tonawanda, said "I've been following it somewhat. I don't know why they want to go up there in the first place. And I wonder if they know what they're going to do when they get up there."

A Tonawanda resident, Mrs. Ewald L. Kaltenbach, 5 King St.: "I think it was thrilling. I watched it on TV and it gave me a good feeling to know that we're right up there now with the rest of them."

Mrs. Edward C. Christman, 253

Willowbend Road, added, "I think it's wonderful. I sure hope it will benefit us. If Russia can do it I'm glad that we've done it now."

Mrs. Richard W. Markovitz, 216 Rogers Ave., Tonawanda: "I think it's wonderful but I'd like to see them speed up the space program so we'd have a man in orbit. I'd like to see us take the lead."

Mrs. Stanley Smolinsky, 405 Oliver St., North Tonawanda said, "If Russia can do it we can, too. I think though that they should keep the taxpayers in mind. The money they spent on space could improve our schools and lower our taxes."

"At least we showed it on television, that's more than the Russians did," said Robert L. Ensminger, 1248 Ruie Road, North Tonawanda.

Mrs. Richard E. Smith, 190 Franklin St., Tonawanda, agreed that it was a wonderful thing. "If it has to be, it has to be," she added.

Driver-Lesson Mishap Takes Life of Woman

A Tonawanda woman, who was injured while learning to drive a car so she could take her daughter to a hospital for weekly treatments, died yesterday, just a month after the accident.

Mrs. Joan A. Liegl, 32, of 308 Hinds St., was admitted April 4 to St. Joseph Intercommunity Hospital, Cheektowaga, where she died yesterday. Her car had crashed into a house at Colton near William Streets, Cheektowaga, after she lost control.

She was accompanied by an unidentified licensed driver who also was hospitalized, police said.

Friends of Mrs. Liegl said she was learning to drive so she could take her 10-year-old daughter, Ann Marie, to Roswell Park Memorial Institute for weekly treatments. Ann Marie is an amputee.

Mrs. Liegl also is survived by her husband, William, and a son, William Jr. Services will be tomorrow, with burial in Mt. Calvary Cemetery, Cheektowaga.

In February, Miss Patricia Zuppelli of 174 Lincoln Blvd., Kenmore, was driving Mrs. Liegl's car when it skidded into Elliott Creek near Dexter Terrace. Miss Zuppelli, who was not injured, was alone in the car.

NT Youth Board Discusses Family Counseling Service

The method of setting up a family counseling service in North Tonawanda was discussed last night at a meeting of the North Tonawanda Youth Board in City Hall.

Of primary concern to the board is the fact that a one - day-a-week service already has been established in Tonawanda through the Family Service Society of Buffalo and Erie County and with the cooperation of the Tonawanda Board of Education. The service has been functioning several weeks, the board learned.

This disclosure came when North Tonawanda and Tonawanda Youth Boards met to discuss a cooperative sponsoring of a family service for the community. Tonawanda board members told the N.T. board committee that arrangements for the one - day service were made available to Tonawanda because the Tonawanda United Appeal contributes $3,500 to the Buffalo and Erie County United Fund for various services.

The North Tonawanda board then contacted Archie Swanson, Family Service Society director, to request a similar service for North Tonawanda because of North Tonawanda's contributions to the local United Appeal. Mr. Swanson gave no definite answer, Richard Majka, NT Youth Board executive director, said.

"The North Tonawanda board expresses concern at this time over entering into any contractual agreement with any other agencies already established, or to set up its own independent part-time service, until this situation can be clarified," Mr. Majka said.

The board directed Mr. Majka and the committee to contact Mr. Swanson again and also to seek information from the Tonawandas United Appeal office regarding availability of this service.

Mr. Majka also said he had been told that an area committee has been set up to study the family-counseling needs for a wide area including Tonawanda, North Tonawanda and Grand Island. A report from this committee, working under the auspices of the Buffalo and Erie County Community Welfare Council, will be available in the fall, Mr. Majka said.

The board last night recommended that Miss Margaret M. Robillard's application for clerkship be accepted and that she begin her part-time service Saturday. She is a graduate of North Tonawanda High School and a student at Bryant and Stratton Institute, Buffalo. Also acknowledged was an application for the position of case worker in the proposed family counseling service.

Albert Krueger, chairman, said Mayor Joyce had requested recommendations from the board for the North Tonawanda city charter revision. The board will recommend that:

The Youth Board, now not recognized in the charter, be included in the revised charter as a department of the city government, following the council's resolution of February 1958; that due recognition be given the Juvenile Aid Bureau as a department of the North Tonawanda Police Department; that the juvenile aid officer be officially identified with the department and that official recognition be given to the Youth Board executive director.

The board also recommended that Edward Belbas, juvenile aid officer, and Mr. Krueger be authorized to attend the St. Lawrence Institute on Crime and Delinquency July 16 - 21.

Board members lauded the Tonawanda NEWS sponsorship of its annual Youth Week as a service to youth of the community.

Astronaut's Wife Was Confident

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (UPI)—A note tacked to the door of Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr.'s home today expressed his complete confidence in America's man-in-space program.

The note, posted by the astronaut's beautiful wife, Louise, also expressed the confidence of Mrs. Shepard in her husband's ability to become this country's first man in space.

Sitting out the ordeal in her red brick Virginia Beach home, Mrs. Shepard promised to make a short statement as soon as she has been informed of the results of the flight.

In the meantime, she posted this note:

"Alan and I understand and appreciate your continued interest in Project Mercury and in us. Alan has complete confidence in the world of all of the hundreds of people who have made this venture possible. In turn, I have complete confidence in Alan's ability to perform his job. I have nothing further to add at this time. After I have been informed of the result of the flight I will have a short statement to make. I have no way of forecasting just when that will be. In the meantime, if you want or need information about the flight itself, I would suggest that you call NASA (The National Aeronautics and Space Administration) at Langley Field or Cocoa Beach, Fla.

(Signed) Louise B. Shepard."

Model rockets are poised on the plane and sometimes tears well up in Mrs. Shepard's big blue eyes.

Otherwise it would be hard to guess that she faces a countdown with fate today along with her husband.

The tears that sometimes fill her eyes are never allowed to fall.

Thursday, the eternal female, she went to the hairdresser so she could look her best today.

She talked to a United Press International reporter on her return from the grocery Thursday.

She said she has received "so many" letters and wires from friends and strangers, offering encouragement to her and prayers for her husband.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brewer of Kennett Square, Pa., have been here since Saturday. In addition to her 10-year-old daughter, Julianna, one other child, Alice Williams, a niece, is at the house. Today is Alice's 10th birthday.

Another daughter, Laura, 13, is attending a boarding school in St. Louis.

She said she has prepared Laura for two years for today, but the smaller children tell strangers its just "one of daddy's test pilot jobs."

She said she had always backed her husband's desire to be the man in the capsule, because "that is what he wants."

SCAD Office Load to Be Cut

The Buffalo regional office of the State Commission Against Discrimination will have jurisdiction only over Erie, Niagara, Chautauque and Cattaraugus Counties, starting this fall.

Currently the office handles cases from 11 Western New York counties. Opening of a new SCAD office in Rochester will cause a reduction in the area served by the Buffalo office, Victor Einach, regional director, said.

About 90 per cent of the Buffalo office's work load involves cases from Niagara and Erie Counties.

Mild Weather On Tap; Rain Due Tomorrow

We have a "choice" in our weather picture today.

We can get either mild, Pacific air or moist Gulf air, the weatherman said, but either system will mean warm, springlike weather. The outcome depends on the controlling upper wind circulation which can steer either system into our area.

A pleasant high of 60 is expected today, with mostly fair weather continuing through tonight. The low tonight will be in the mid-40s.

Tomorrow we'll have more warm weather with the high in the mid-60s. Showers may develop later in the day.

The five-day outlook includes a warming trend through the weekend with showers likely late tomorrow through Wednesday. About a half inch of rain is expected during the period.
