REGION BUILDING

Ludger Kühnhardt, Center for European Integration Studies, Bonn University

"Although regional integration has been theorized and substantial empirical research has been done on individual cases of regional integration in different parts of the world, this book provides an excellent survey of these projects. Moreover, it does so in a conceptually sophisticated manner by using a common analytical framework and narrative structure for all case studies throughout the survey which allows the drawing of some major comparative conclusions in the last chapters."

Wolfram Kaiser, University of Portsmouth

The regional structures and integration schemes emerging in most regions of the world are deepening their ambitions, with Europe's integration experience often used as an experimental template or theoretical model. Volume I provides a political-analytical framework with strong empirical evidence, and the documents assembled in Volume II give the best available overview of the legal and political evolution of region-building based on official documents and stated objectives. Together, these volumes are important contributions for understanding the evolution of global affairs in an age when power shifts provide new challenges and opportunities for transatlantic partners and the world community.

Local Responses to Cosmopolitanism and Globalization

Edited by Dimitrios Theodossopoulos, University of Bristol and Elisabeth Kirtsoglou, University of Durham

"This is one of the best collections on the theme of globalization I have come across in a very long time. It does an excellent job of drawing out a number of important theoretical issues through a wide ranging examination of particular ethnographic cases."

Stephen Lyon, Durham University

In local contexts around the world the concepts globalization and cosmopolitanism are often discussed in a disapproving, almost disparaging manner. In everyday conversation, the imprecision of these two terms advances ideological and political resistance. Paradoxically, the emerging anti-globalization and counter-cosmopolitan movements benefit from the wider circulation of ideas fostered by global processes. This volume documents how communities at the peripheries of political power are inspired by or take advantage of the globalised media to reach out and present themselves to the world and seek out new, mutually sympathetic alliances.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONSNEW SERIES*CEDLA LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES

Published in Association with the Centre for Latin American Research and Documentation (CEDLA), Amsterdam

CEDLA is an inter-university centre for research and documentation on Latin America located in Amsterdam whose series represents the results of original research on Latin America in the field of the Social Sciences, understood in a broad sense to include History, Economics and Geography.

Volume 1*LATIN AMERICA FACING CHINA

South-South Relations beyond the Washington Consensus

Edited by Alex E. Fernández Jilberto, University of Amsterdam, and Barbara Hogenboom, Centre for Latin American Research and Documentation (CEDLA)

"[A] crucial contribution to Latin American Studies on a subject of ever increasing urgency. From a political economy perspective this sophisticated yet accessible volume covers the waterfront of major domestic and international relations issues raised by China's growing influence in the region."

Eduardo Silva, University of Missouri at St. Louis

Based on several case studies, this volume assesses how China's rise—one of the most important recent changes in the global economy—is affecting Latin America's national politics, political economy, and regional and international relations.

NEW SERIES*FOUNDATIONS IN ASIA PACIFIC STUDIES

Editors: Malcolm Cooper, Vice President, International Cooperation and Research, and Jerry Eades, Dean of Asia Pacific Studies, both at Ritsumeikan Asia Pacific University

The Asia Pacific Region is establishing itself as the new center of the world economy in the 21st Century. This series documents its rise and examines its structure through accessible accounts from leading social science experts and perspectives from inside and outside the region.

Volume 1*CHINA AND OCEANIA

Towards a New Regional Order

Edited by Terence Wesley-Smith, University of Hawai'i and Edgar A. Porter, Ritsumeikan Asia Pacific University, Japan

"[This volume] is not just timely, but it resides in a field where interest is growing strongly. For any University course teaching China's foreign relations, it would comprise a highly recommended source - in particular for any component dealing with China's relations with the developing world."

Roderic Alley, Victoria University of Wellington

It is important to see China's activities in the Pacific Islands, not just in terms of a specific set of interests, but in the context of Beijing's recent efforts to develop a comprehensive foreign policy that is global in scope. This groundbreaking study of China's "soft power" initiatives offers, for the first time, perspectives of scholars and diplomats who come from Oceania, North America, China and Japan.

THE POLITICS OF EUROPEAN CITIZENSHIP

Social Rights, Migration and Political Economy

Peo Hansen, Linköping University and Sandy Brian Hager, York University

"In contrast to most books on EU citizenship this book is a page-turner until the end. I found myself varyingly intrigued, annoyed, and challenged. This is what a book should be. It is provocative, almost polemical, and should get noticed."

Randall Hansen, University of Toronto

"This volume offers an intriguing, thought-provoking argument...The subfield of EU studies has become so over-specialized that we could really use more texts of this nature."

Joyce Mushaben, University of Missouri-St.Louis

As the European Union faces the ongoing challenges of legitimacy, identity, and social cohesion, an understanding of the social purpose and direction of EU citizenship becomes increasingly vital. This book is the first of its kind to map the development of EU citizenship and its relation to various localities of EU governance.

A EUROPEAN MEMORY?

Contested Histories and Politics of Remembrance

Edited by Małgorzata Pakier, European University Institute in Florence and Bo Stråth, Helsinki University

"As the most comprehensive scholarly venture to use the memory concept for a broad assessment of the dark legacies of Nazism, Communism, and World War II for a common European identity, the volume has no equal."

Frank Trommler, University of Pennsylvania

The citizens' rejection of the European constitution in 2005 demonstrates a lack of understanding of the historical complexity of Europe's past and so the authors argue that a critical European history is urgently needed, where Europe is seen not as a harmonious continent but as the outcome of violent and bloody conflicts, both within Europe as well as with its Others.

MARKETS AND CIVIL SOCIETY

The European Experience in Comparative Perspective

Edited by Victor Perez-Diaz, Complutense University of Madrid

"Markets and Civil Society examines the complex interactions between the economic institutions and the system of voluntary organizations in liberal democracies, as well as the political consequences of these interactions. Overall, this volume is a major addition to the literature on civil society."

Carlos Waisman, University of California

The contributors to this volume offer perspectives from various disciplines (the social sciences, conceptual history, law, economics) and from several European countries in order to explore the ways in which markets influence various forms of civil society, such as individual freedom, social cohesion, economic effectiveness and democratic governance, and influence the construction of a civil society in a broader sense.

THE RADICAL RIGHT IN SWITZERLAND

Continuity and Change, 1945-2000

Damir Skenderovic, University of Fribourg

"...Skenderovic's brilliantly written and persuasively argued book will have a deep impact on the historiography and the political analysis of Switzerland."

Dr. Jakob Tanner, Zurich University

"It is a 'must read' for those interested in both the radical right and the demise of Swiss political consensus."

Roger Eatwell, University of Bath

"This book is an intellectual tour de force, an important achievement, and a real breakthrough in the study of Swiss politics."

Martin A. Schain, NYU

There has been a tendency amongst scholars to view Switzerland as a unique case, and comparative scholarship on the radical right has therefore shown little interest in the country. Yet, as the author convincingly argues, there is little justification for maintaining the notion of Swiss exceptionalism, and excluding the Swiss radical right from cross-national research. His book presents the first comprehensive study of the development of the radical right in Switzerland since the end of the Second World War.

JOURNEYS THROUGH FASCISM

Italian Travel-Writing between the Wars

Charles Burdett, Bristol University

"...a fascinating book on Italian travel writing of the Fascist period."

Times Literary Supplement

"...this is a highly recommended book for those wishing to expand their knowledge of the cultural and political roles of travel writing, as well as...areas of ambiguity prevailing among Italian elites under Fascism."

Journal of Contemporary European Studies

"[a] smoothly written, thoughtful study"

H-Net

During the twenty years of Mussolini's rule a huge number of travel texts were written of journeys made during the interwar period to the sacred sites of Fascist Italy, Mussolini's newly conquered African empire, Spain during the Civil War, Nazi Germany, Communist Russia and the America of the New Deal. Examining these observations by writers and journalists, the author throws new light on the evolving ideology of Fascism, how it was experienced and propagated by prominent figures of the time; how the regime created a utopian vision of the Roman past and the imperial future; and how it interpreted the attractions and dangers of other totalitarian cultures.

POST-COMMUNIST NOSTALGIA

Edited by Maria Todorova and Zsuzsa Gille, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

"These lively essays make for the rare collection that is greater than the sum of its parts...they upend the standard 'diagnosis of nostalgia' found across the former Soviet bloc, refuting the popular conception that Eastern Europeans are somehow haunted by the past, and illustrating the repertoire of contemporary post-socialist cultural politics at its most sophisticated."

Bruce Grant, New York University

Although the end of the Cold War was greeted with great enthusiasm by people in the East and the West, the ensuing social and especially economic changes did not always result in the hoped-for improvements in people's lives. This led to widespread disillusionment that can be observed today all across Eastern Europe. In this volume scholars from multiple disciplines explore the various fascinating aspects of this nostalgic turn and argue persuasively that this nostalgia should not be seen as a wish to restore the past but should be recognized as part of a more complex healing process.

POSTSOCIALIST EUROPE

Anthropological Perspectives from Home

Edited by László Kürti, University of Miskolc and Peter Skalník, University of Pardubice

Now that nearly twenty years have passed since the collapse of the Soviet bloc there is a need to understand what has taken place since that historic date and where we are at the moment. Bringing together authors with different historical, cultural, regional and theoretical backgrounds, this volume engages in debates that address new questions arising from recent developments, such as whether there is a need to reject or uphold the notion of post-socialism as both a necessary and valid concept ignoring changes and differences across both time and space.

STATE COLLAPSE AND RECONSTRUCTION IN THE PERIPHERY

Political Economy, Ethnicity and Development in Yugoslavia, Serbia and Kosovo

Jens Stihoff Sørensen, Swedish Institute of International Affairs, Gothenburg University

In the 1990s, Yugoslavia, which had once been a role model for development, became a symbol for state collapse, external intervention and post-war reconstruction. Today the region has two international protectorates, contested states and borders, severe ethnic polarization and minority concerns. In this first in-depth critical analysis of international administration, aid and reconstruction policies in Kosovo, Jens Stihoff Sørensen argues that the region must be analyzed as a whole, and that the process of state collapse and recent changes in aid policy must be interpreted in connection to the wider transformation of the global political economy and world order.

ENDURING SOCIALISM

Explorations of Revolution and Transformation, Restoration and Continuation

Edited by Harry G. West and Parvathi Raman, both of the School of Oriental and African Studies

Against the historical backdrop of successive socialist and post-socialist claims to have completely remade society, the contributors to this volume explore the complex and often paradoxical continuities between diverse post-socialist presents and their corresponding socialist and pre-socialist pasts. The chapters focus on ways in which: pre-socialist economic, political, and cultural forms in fact endured an era of socialism and have found new life in the post-socialist present, notwithstanding revolutionary socialist claims; continuities with a pre-socialist past have been produced within the historical imaginary of post-socialism; and socialist economic, political, and cultural forms have in fact endured in a purportedly post-socialist era, despite the claims of neo-liberal reformers.

CONTESTED NATIONALISM

Serb Elite Rivalry in Croatia and Bosnia in the 1990s

Nina Caspersen, Lancaster University

"Empirically, the book makes a major contribution to the study of intra-Serb relations and rivalries during the wars in Croatia and Bosnia...It constructs a new theoretical framework that will allow for more nuanced and accurate explanations of intra-ethnic competition and inter-ethnic conflicts."

Peter Viggo Jakobsen, University of Copenhagen

'Only unity saves the Serbs' is the famous call for unity in the Serb nationalist doctrine. But even though most of the Serb leaders in Croatia and Bosnia ideologically adhered to this doctrine, disunity characterised Serb politics during the Yugoslav disintegration and war. Nationalism was contested and nationalist claims to homogeneity did not reflect the reality of Serb politics. This book provides a comprehensive analysis of Serb politics and challenges widespread assumptions regarding the Yugoslav conflict and war. It finds that although Slobodan Milošević played a highly significant role, he was not always able to control the local Serb leaders.

THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF GERMANY UNDER CHANCELLORS KOHL AND SCHRÖDER

Decline of the German Model?

Jeremy Leaman, Loughborough University

"makes an important addition to the scholarly literature."

Ray Stokes, Glasgow University

While unification has undoubtedly had major effects on Germany's political economy, the pattern of current policy-making preferences was established at an earlier stage, in particular, at the beginning of the 'Kohl-era' in 1982. This essentially neo-liberal pattern can be seen to have dominated the modalities chosen to guide Germany through the process of unification and was mirrored in developments in other OECD countries and in particular within the EU. This book demonstrates that the three policy imperatives (neo-liberal structural reform, European monetary integration, and unification) produced a policy-mix which, together with other structural economic and demographic factors, has had disappointing results in all three areas and hampered Germany's overall economic development.

THE PLANS THAT FAILED

An Economic History of East Germany, 1945-1989

André Steiner, University of Potsdam

Translated from the German by Ewald Osers

"So far there has been a dearth of studies on the economic history of the GDR, unlike the recent surge of general historical accounts. Based on an exceptional knowledge of the literature and well supported by a number of key, so far unpublished, documents, this book fills the gap. André Steiner fully succeeds in his attempt, managing to produce from highly complex material a very accessible text for a wide readership without sacrificing analytical quality."

H-Soz-u-Kult

The establishment of the Communist social model in one part of Germany was a result of international postwar developments, of the Cold War waged by East and West, and of the resultant partition of Germany. As the author argues, the GDR's "new" society was deliberately conceived as a counter-model to the liberal and market-regulated system. Although the hopes connected with this alternative system turned out to be misplaced and the planned economy may be thoroughly discredited today, it is important to understand the context in which it developed and failed. This study offers an in-depth exploration of the GDR economy's starting conditions and the obstacles to growth it confronted during the consolidation phase.

GERMANY

THE ECONOMICS OF OSTPOLITIK

Origins of NATO's Energy Dilemma

Werner Lippert, Indiana University of Pennsylvania

"The book addresses an important subject ('détente') and one in which there is considerable interest...It does a good job of balancing politics, economics, and the personalities/mindsets of the principal figures (Brandt, Nixon, and Kissinger)."

Robert Mark Spaulding, University of North Carolina

Despite everyone's agreement that economic diplomacy played a crucial role in ending the Cold War, very little research has been done on the economic diplomacy surrounding the crucial decades of the 1970s and 1980s. This book explores the complex interweaving of East/West political and economic diplomacies in the pursuit of détente. The focus is German chancellor Willy Brandt's Ostpolitik and how its success was rooted in the usage of energy trade and high tech exchanges with the Soviet Union. His policies and visions are being contrasted with those of U.S. President Richard Nixon and the Realpolitik of Henry Kissinger. The ultimate failure to coordinate these rivaling détente policies and the resulting divide on how to deal with the Soviet Union left NATO with an energy dilemma between American and European partners that has resurfaced in the 21st century with Russia's politicization of energy trade. This book is a "must" for anyone interested in exploring the interface of international diplomacy, economic interest, and alliance cohesion.

POWER AND SOCIETY IN THE GDR, 1961-1979

The 'Normalisation of Rule'?

Edited by Mary Fulbrook, University College London

The communist German Democratic Republic, founded in 1949 in the Soviet-occupied zone of post-war Germany is, for many people, epitomized by the Berlin Wall; Soviet tanks and surveillance by the secret security police, the Stasi, appear to be central. But is this really all there is to the GDR's history? A fragile stability emerged in a period characterized by 'consumer socialism', international recognition and détente. By exploring the ways in which people at the grass roots contributed to the formation and transformation of the GDR –the contributors collectively develop a more complex approach to the history of East Germany.

FRIENDLY ENEMIES

Britain and the GDR, 1949-1990

Stefan Berger, University of Manchester and Norman LaPorte, University of Glamorgan

During the Cold War, Britain had an astonishing number of contacts and connections with one of the Soviet Bloc's most hard-line regimes: the German Democratic Republic. The left wing of the British Labour Party and the Trade Unions often had closer ties with communist East Germany than the Communist Party of Great Britain (CPGB). Based on their extensive knowledge of the documentary sources, the authors provide the first comprehensive study of Anglo-East German relations in this surprisingly under-researched field of study. They examine the complex motivations underlying different political groups' engagement with the GDR.

ECONOMIC PERSUASIONSEdited by Stephen Gudeman, University of Minnesota

As the transition from socialism to a market economy gathered speed in the early 1990s, many people proclaimed the final success of capitalism as a practice and neoliberal economics as its accompanying science. But with the uneven achievements of the "transition"—the deepening problems of "development," persistent unemployment, the widening of the wealth gap, and expressions of resistance—the discipline of economics is no longer seen as a mirror of reality or as a unified science. In this book, international scholars adopt a rhetorical perspective in order to make sense of material life and the theories about it.

ECONOMY'S TENSION*The Dialectics of Community and MarketEdited by Stephen Gudeman, University of Minnesota

"Few other anthropologists have such a grasp of [economic] theory, and in the present work he illuminates not only the tension between community and market, but also that between anthropology and economics." JRAI

"This book is must reading for social scientists, particularly for economists." Stephen Marglin, Harvard University, and author of The Dismal Science: How Thinking Like an Economist Undermines Community

Why are we obsessed with calculating our selections? The author argues that competitive trade nurtures calculative reason, which provides the ground for most discourses on economy. But market descriptions of economy are incomplete. Drawing on a range of materials from small ethnographic contexts to global financial markets, the author shows that economy is dialectically made up of two value realms, termed mutuality and impersonal trade.

NEW IN PAPERBACK!*REPRODUCING CLASS*Education, Neoliberalism, and the Rise of the New Middle Class in IstanbulEdited by Henry J. Rutz and Erol M. Balkan, Hamilton College

"...a fresh and an important contribution ...this book presents an ethnographically rich and conceptually strong account of recent transformations in the educational field and their implications for class relations in Turkey." Middle East Journal

Middle classes are by definition ambiguous, raising all sorts of paradoxical questions, perceived and real, about their power and place relative to those above and below them in a class-structured society. Focusing on families of the new middle class in Istanbul, the authors of this study address questions about the social construction of middle-class reality in the context of the rapid changes that have come about through recent economic growth in global markets and the global diffusion of information technology.

POLITICAL
ECONOMYMADE IN SHEFFIELD*An Ethnography of Industrial Work and PoliticsEdited by Massimiliano Mollona, Goldsmiths College

In 1900, Sheffield was the tenth largest city in the world. Cutlery "made in Sheffield" was used across the globe, and the city built armored plate for the navy in the run-up to the First World War. Today, however, Sheffield's derelict Victorian shop floors and industrial buildings are hidden behind new leisure developments and shopping centers. Based on an extended period of research in two local steel factories, this book combines a lively, descriptive account with a wide-ranging critique of post-industrial capitalism.

NEW IN PAPERBACK!*CHANGING PROPERTIES OF PROPERTYEdited by Keebet von Benda-Beckmann, Max Planck Institute, Franz von Benda-Beckmann, Max Planck Institute and Melanie Wiber, University of New Brunswick

"...great number of contributions...complement each other well, with many cross references..." Verfassung und Recht in Übersee

"The volume represents an excellent model for what may be considered a constant duty of the researcher...something that the contributors to this volume accomplished with success, thus opening new paths in property analysis." Social Anthropology

As an important contribution to debates on property theory and the role of law in creating, disputing, defining and refining property rights, this volume provides new theoretical material on property systems, as well as new empirically grounded case studies of the dynamics of property transformations. The property claimants discussed in these papers represent a diverse range of actors, including post-socialist states and their citizens, those receiving restitution for past property losses in Africa, Southeast Asia and in eastern Europe, collectives, corporate, and individual actors. The volume thus provides a comprehensive anthropological analysis not only of property structures and ideologies, but also of property (and its politics) in action.

DIAMONDS AND WAR*State, Capital, and Labor in British-Ruled PalestineEdited by David De Vries, Tel Aviv University

Based on previously unexamined historical documents, this book is the first in English to tell the story of the formation of one of the world's main strongholds of diamond production and trade in Palestine during the 1930s and 1940s. The history of the diamond-cutting industry is discussed as a social history embedded in the international political economy of its times; the genesis of the industry in Palestine is placed on a broad continuum within the geographic and economic dislocations of Dutch, Belgian, and German diamond-cutting centers. This book unravels the Middle-eastern pattern of state intervention in private capital and recasts this craft culture's inseparability from international politics during a period of war and transformation of empire.

INDIA'S ECONOMIC FUTURE*Education, Energy and Environment

Edited by Manmohan Agarwal, Jawaharlal Nehru University

This book analyses the prospects for maintaining a high rate of growth in the Indian economy. Constraints to achieving this goal are the poor state of the infrastructure and the need to accelerate the rate of productivity growth. Macro stability is necessary to maintain high rates of investment a pre-requisite for rapid growth. A desire for equity is a strong feature of policy making in India and in recent years, this has taken the shape of reservations in jobs and institutions of higher education.

India and Australia

Edited by Hans Löfgren, Deakin University and Prakash Sarangi, University of Hyderabad

"An important contribution to the critical discourse on globalization...a unique Indo-Australian intellectual endeavour grappling incisively with deeper issues of philosophy and policy in the contemporary world."

Manoranjan Mohanty, Council for Social Development, New Delhi

"... a valuable addition to critical readings on globalisation..."

Subrata K Mitra, University of Heidelberg

"It will be a very useful volume for all the graduate students who are trying to understand [the] complex and multi faceted nature of the phenomenon of globalisation."

Rajen Harshe, Vice Chancellor, University of Allahabad

India and Australia are linked historically through British colonialism and today grapple with both similar and starkly different challenges flowing from changes in the global environment. This edited book presents analyses and empirical studies of the present wave of neo-liberal globalization, ranging across philosophical, political and cultural themes. It brings together Australian and Indian experts in the fields of political science, international relations, philosophy, cultural theory and political economy.

Geert De Neve, University of Sussex

"With this book, de Neve has established himself as a skilled analyst, able to relate the fine detail of workers' daily lives to the big debates about development and progress." JRAI

Following increased integration in global economic networks, some of India's informal sectors have expanded drastically in recent decades and are employing an increasing number of the country's working population. This book presents a powerful critique of the simplified representations that portray workers' politics in this informal sector as marked by low levels of class consciousness, limited abilities for resistance, and ruled by 'primordial' relations of caste, kinship and patronage. This study will be of interest to students of economy, politics, sociology and social anthropology as well as scholars of development studies.

GLOBALIZATION AND THE MILLENNIUM
DEVELOPMENT*Goals: Negotiating the Challenge

Edited by Manmohan Agarwal and Amit Shovon Ray,
Jawaharlal Nehru University

Globalization is a controversial subject. While some argue that it promotes economic growth that translates into social progress, others believe that it is detrimental to social advancement. There is a broad consensus in the international community that all states should be urged to improve their social conditions, a position most strongly articulated in the Millennium Development Goals (MDG) declaration of the United Nations. This volume brings together conceptual and empirical insights into the interaction of globalization and the social sectors, focusing especially on the MDGs.

*OF RELATED INTERESTTHE MIRAGE OF CHINA*Anti-Humanism, Narcissism, and Corporeality of the Contemporary World

Xin Liu, University of California at Berkeley

Today's world is one marked by the signs of digital capitalism and global capitalist expansion, and China is increasingly being integrated into this global system of production and consumption. As a result, China's immediate material impact is now felt almost everywhere in the world; however, the significance and process of this integration is far from understood. This study shows how the a priori categories of statistical reasoning came to be reborn and relived in the People's Republic—as essential conditions for the possibility of a new mode of knowledge and governance.

CLASS, CONTENTION AND A WORLD IN MOTION

Edited by Winnie Lem, Trent University and Pauline Gardiner Barber, Dalhousie University

"This book represents a superb edited collection...make[s] a major contribution to the literatures on migration and industrial/service work under contemporary capitalist conditions of labor and neoliberal globalization."

Donald M. Nonini, University of North Carolina

"The authors challenge currently dominant approaches to migration, and offer important ways to move between the individual experience and the structure of the world system."

Alan Smart, University of Calgary

Prevailing scholarship on migration tends to present migrants as the objects of history, subjected to abstract global forces or to concrete forms of regulation imposed by state and supra state organizations. This volume, by contrast, focuses on migrants as subjects of history who not only react but also act to engage with and transform their worlds.

CRISIS OF THE STATE*War and Social Upheaval

Edited by Bruce Kapferer and Bjørn Enge Bertelsen, University of Bergen

Analyzing both historical contexts and geographical locations, this volume explores the continuous reformation of state power and its potential in situations of violent conflict. The state, otherwise understood as an abstract and transcendent concept in many works on globalization in political philosophy, is instead located and analyzed here as an embedded part of lived reality. Through the examination of these particular empirical settings of war or war-like situations, the book further argues for the continued importance of the state in shifting social and political circumstances.

Paul Antze, York University, Toronto

"[A] timely and important collection that brings together a number of current literatures in anthropology and memory studies."

Stuart McLean, University of Minnesota

Comparatively little research has been done on the transgenerational effects of trauma and the means by which experiences are transmitted from person to person across time to become intrinsic parts of the social fabric. This volume sheds new light on the role of memory in constructing popular histories – or historiographies – of violence in the absence of, or in contradistinction to, authoritative written histories.

MIGRATION

CONFLICT
STUDIESTRANSNATIONAL FAMILIES, MIGRATION AND GENDER*Moroccan and Filipino Women in Bologna and Barcelona

Elisabetta Zontini, Oxford University & South Bank University

"The book is an excellent and well constructed contribution to the literature on migration, families and gender. It has got some really superb empirical material in it, based on the case studies in Bologna and Barcelona, and it weaves that material together with the broader scholarship and research in this field."

John Solomos, City University of London

"It makes a welcome addition to the growing debates on gender, migration and transnational families. The main strength lies in its data-rich, descriptive accounts of the women's experiences. The excerpts based on interview transcripts with the women are lengthy and rich in detail providing the reader with a vivid insight into the women's own understanding of their lives following migration."

Tracey Reynolds, London South Bank University

By linking the experiences of immigrant families with the increased reliance on cheap and flexible workers for care and domestic work in Southern Europe, this study documents the lived experiences of neglected actors of globalization – migrant women – as well as the transformations of Western families more generally. However, while describing in detail the structural and cultural contexts within which these women have to operate, the book questions dominant paradigms about women as passive victims of patriarchal structures and brings out instead their agency and the creative ways in which they take control of their lives in often difficult circumstances.

Richard Antoun†, Binghamton University

"This book provides very rich material on long-term experiences of Arab migrants abroad and contributes to the literature on migration and Arab diasporas."

JRAI

Most studies on transnational migration either stress assimilation, circulatory migration, or the negative impact of migration. This remarkable study, which covers migrants from one Jordanian village to 17 different countries in Europe, Asia, and North America, emphasizes the resiliency of transnational migrants after long periods of absence, social encapsulation, and stress, and their ability to construct social networks and reinterpret traditions in such a way as to mix the old and the new in a scenario that incorporates both worlds. Focusing on the humanistic aspects of the migration experience, this book examines questions such as birth control, women's work, retention of tribal law, and the changing attitudes of migrants towards themselves, their families, their home communities, and their nation.

THE TRANSNATIONAL CONDITION

Protest Dynamics in an Entangled Europe

Edited by Simon Teune, Social Science Research Center, Berlin

"The volume makes a substantial contribution to the study of social movements and of the many social processes related to globalization. It addresses deficits and limitations in the existing literature on transnational movements in ways that should help movement scholars to frame the issues in new and more complex ways."

Joe Bandy, Bowdoin College

During the last two decades Europe has experienced a rise in transnational contention. Citizens are crossing borders to advance alternative visions of Europe. They spread protest concepts and tactics and explore new ways of organizing dissent. Far from being a recent phenomenon, transnational protest is obviously more salient in a world of international corporations and global political interaction, compounded by electronic communication and cheap travel. The transnational condition permeates all aspects of protest organization and dynamics—from individual biographies to activist networks to cycles of contention. The contributors offer insight into this multi-faceted condition by combining rich empirical evidence with reflections on the problems of transnational research.

REFUGEES FROM NAZI GERMANY AND THE LIBERAL EUROPEAN STATES

Edited by Frank Caestecker, University of Ghent, and Bob Moore, University of Sheffield

"The present volume is the first one to attempt to place the history of refugee policies squarely in the general context of immigration policies for a particular group of states: those with a liberal political system (and a history of liberal immigration policies before the First World War) close to Germany, usually sharing a land border with Germany which was difficult to protect against unauthorized immigration...Without doubt, the volume brings together important work by internationally recognized specialists in their field"

Andreas Fahrmeir, Frankfurt University

Based on a comparative analysis of national case studies, this volume deals with the challenges that the pre-1939 movement of refugees from Germany and Austria posed to the immigration controls in the countries of interwar Europe. Although Europe takes center-stage, this volume also looks beyond, to the Middle East, Asia and America. This global perspective outlines the constraints under which European policy makers (and the refugees) had to make decisions. By also considering the social implications of policies that became increasingly protectionist and nationalistic, and bringing into focus the similarities and differences between European liberal states in admitting the refugees, it offers an important contribution to the wider field of research on political and administrative practices.

IMMIGRATION POLICY IN THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY

Negotiating Membership and Remaking the Nation

Douglas B. Klusmeyer, American University and Demetrios G. Papademetriou, Migration Policy Institute

"The authors are two of the most innovative and refreshing thinkers on migration and integration policy worldwide."

Rita Süßmuth, Chair of the EU High Level Group

"...[T]he most authoritative and comprehensive study ever written on German immigration, citizenship and asylum policies."

Rainer Münz, Hamburg Institute of International Economics

"...masterful, comprehensive, and incisive book...the definitive analysis of this vexing policy arena in Germany."

John Mollenkopf, Director, Center for Urban Research, CUNY

"...a very timely and important book..."

Terri E. Givens, University of Texas at Austin

German migration policy now stands at a major crossroad, caught between a fifty-year history of missed opportunities and serious new challenges. Focusing on these new challenges that German policy makers face, the authors, both internationally recognized in this field, use historical argument, theoretical analysis, and empirical evaluation to advance a more nuanced understanding of recent initiatives and the implications of these initiatives. This important volume offers a comprehensive and critical examination of the history of German migration law and policy from the Federal Republic's inception in 1949 to the present.

MUSEUMS, THE MEDIA AND REFUGEES

Stories of Crisis, Control and Compassion

Katherine Goodnow, University of Bergen, Jack Lohman, Bergen National Academy of the Arts, and Philip Marfleet, University of East London

This volume reflects on museum practice and the contexts, stories, and images of asylum seekers and refugees prevalent in our mass media. Based on case studies from Australia, New Zealand, and the United Kingdom, the overall findings are illustrative of narratives and images common to museums and the media throughout the world. They aim to challenge political rhetoric and populist media imagery and consider what forms of dissent are likely to be sustained and what narratives ultimately break through and can lead to empathy and positive political change.

BIOPOLITICS, MILITARISM, AND DEVELOPMENT*Eritrea in the Twenty-First Century

Edited by David O'Kane, University of Auckland, and Tricia Redeker Hepner, University of Tennessee

"This book is overwhelmingly positive. The six core chapters are frankly wonderful, and tell us an enormous amount, on the basis of poignant personal observation linked to a sophisticated awareness of broader global trends and its associated literature, that desperately needs to be brought to a wider audience."

Christopher Clapham, University of Cambridge

Bringing together original, contemporary ethnographic research on the Northeast African state of Eritrea, this book shows how biopolitics - the state-led deployment of disciplinary technologies on individuals and population groups - is assuming particular forms in the twenty-first century. The contributions to this volume reveal and interpret the links between development and developmentalist ideologies, intensifying militarism, and the controlling and disciplining of human lives and bodies by state institutions, policies, and discourses.

'THE LAND IS DYING'*Contingency, Creativity and Conflict in Western Kenya

Edited by Paul Wenzel Geissler, University of Oslo and Ruth Jane Prince, Cambridge University

Based on several years of ethnographic fieldwork, the book explores life in and around a Luo-speaking village in western Kenya during a time of death: the epidemic of HIV/AIDS, which by the turn of the century had affected every aspect of sociality and pervaded villagers' debates about the past, the future and the ethics of everyday life. Central to such debates is a concern with touch in the broad sense of concrete, material contact between persons. Under the pressure of illness and death, economic hardship and land scarcity, as well as bitter struggles about the relevance and application of Christianity and "Luo tradition" in daily life, people found it difficult to agree about the role of touch in engendering growth, or indeed about the aims of growth itself.

THE HADRAMI DIASPORA*Community-Building on the Indian Ocean Rim

Edited by Leif Manger, University of Bergen

"A fascinating subject, based on extensive fieldwork and excellent case studies of diaspora communities."

Christopher Davidson, Centre for Middle Eastern and Islamic Studies, Durham

The Hadramis of South Yemen and the emergence of their diasporic communities throughout the Indian Ocean region are a fascinating subject within the history of migration. The author expertly elucidates the complexity of the diasporic process, showing how it contrasts with the conventional understanding of the Hadrami diaspora as an unchanging society with predefined cultural characteristics originating in the homeland.

Zimbabwe's crisis since 2000 has produced a dramatic global scattering of people. This volume investigates this enforced dispersal, and the processes shaping the emergence of a new 'diaspora' of Zimbabweans abroad, focusing on the most important concentrations in South Africa and in Britain. Not only is this the first book on the diasporic connections created through Zimbabwe's multifaceted crisis, but it also offers an innovative combination of research on the political, economic, cultural and legal dimensions of movement across borders and survival thereafter with a discussion of shifting identities and cultural change.

Hutu Identity, Conflict and Camp Life

Simon Turner, Danish Institute for International Studies

Pieter Geschiere, University of Amsterdam

"This work represents a major contribution to the understanding of camp life in refugee contexts. Given the limited number of texts in English on the Burundi conflict and refugee contexts, this work will be of considerable significance."

Patricia Daley, Oxford University

Based on thorough ethnographic fieldwork in a refugee camp in Tanzania this book provides a rich account of the benevolent "disciplining mechanisms" of humanitarian agencies, led by the UNHCR, and of the situated, dynamic, indeterminate, and fluid nature of identity (re)construction in the camp. While the refugees are expected to behave as innocent, helpless victims, the question of victimhood among Burundian Hutu is increasingly challenged, following the 1993 massacres in Burundi and the Rwandan genocide. The book explores how different groups within the camp apply different strategies to cope with these issues and how the question of innocence and victimhood is itself imbued with ambiguity, as young men struggle to recuperate their masculinity and their political subjectivity.

DETERRITORIALIZED YOUTH

Sahrawi and Afghan Refugees at the Margins of the Middle East

Edited by Dawn Chatty, Oxford University

This book compares and contrasts both the stereotypes and Western-based models of humanitarian assistance among Sahrawi youth with the lack of programming and near total self-sufficiency of Afghan refugee youth in Iran. Both extremes offer an important opportunity to further explore the impact which forced migration and prolonged conflict have had, and continue to have, on the lives of these refugee youth and their families. This study examines refugee communities closely linked with the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) and a host of other UN agencies in the case of the Sahrawi and near total lack of humanitarian aid in the case of Afghan refugees in Iran.

Somali Refugees' Remittances

Anna Lindley, University of London

"This is an interesting, humane, thoughtful and well-written account of Somali remittances... Lindley's data on remittances in conflict-affected areas is remarkably detailed and rich, while her multi-sited fieldwork approach provides an excellent insight into the complexities of engaging in transnational livelihoods for all those involved."

Cindy Horst, Senior Researcher, International Peace Research Institute Oslo

This book explores the dynamics, infrastructure, and far-reaching effects of remittances from the perspectives of people in the Somali regions and the diaspora. With conflict driving mass displacement, Somali society has become progressively transnational, its vigorous remittance economy reaching from the heart of the global North into wrecked cities, refugee camps, and remote rural areas. By 'following the money' the author opens a window on the everyday lives of people caught up in processes of conflict, migration, and development.

Focusing on the highly diverse Karenni refugee population living in camps on the Thai-Burma border, this innovative book explores materiality, embodiment, memory, imagination, and identity among refugees, providing new and important ways of understanding how refugees make sense of experience, self, and other. It examines how and to what ends refugees perceive, represent, manipulate, use as metaphor, and otherwise engage with material objects and spaces, and includes a focus on the real and metaphorical journeys that bring about and perpetuate exile.

REMAKING HOME*Reconstructing Life, Place and Identity in Rome and Amsterdam*Maja Korac, University of East London

Rather than emphasising boundaries and territories by examining the 'integration' and 'acculturation' of the immigrant or the refugee, this book offers insights into the ideas and practices of individuals settling into new societies and cultures. It analyses their ideas of connecting and belonging; their accounts of the past, the present and the future; the interaction and networks of relations; practical strategies; and the different meanings of 'home' and belonging that are constructed in new sociocultural settings. The author uses empirical research to explore the experiences of refugees from the successor states of Yugoslavia, who are struggling to make a home for themselves in Amsterdam and Rome.

Recent years have witnessed a significant growth of interest in the consequences of political violence and displacement for the young. However, when speaking of "children" commentators have often taken the situation of those in early and middle childhood as representative of all young people under eighteen years of age. As a consequence, the specific situation of adolescents negotiating the processes of transition towards social adulthood amidst conditions of violence and displacement is commonly overlooked. Years of Conflict provides a much-needed corrective. Drawing upon perspectives from anthropology, psychology, and media studies as well as the insights of those involved in programmatic interventions, it describes and analyses the experiences of older children facing the challenges of daily life in settings of conflict, post-conflict and refuge. Several authors also reflect upon methodological issues in pursuing research with young people in such settings. The accounts span the globe, taking in Liberia, Afghanistan, South Africa, Peru, Jordan, UK/Western Europe, Eastern Africa, Iran, USA, and Colombia.

It challenges and rethinks current identity concepts, policies, and practices in the context of a globalizing environment, and in the increasingly racialized post-September 11th context, from the perspective of refugee women. Through the analysis of local examples and international case studies, the authors critically examine gendered and interrelated factors such as location, humanitarian aid, race, cultural norms, and current psycho-social research that affect the identity and well being of refugee women.

Muslim Arab Sudanese in Cairo have played a fundamental role in Egyptian history and society during many centuries of close relations between Egypt and Sudan. Although the government and official press describes them as 'brothers' in a united Nile Valley, recent political developments in Egypt have underscored the precarious legal status of Sudanese in Cairo. Neither citizens nor foreigners, they are in an uncertain position, created in part through an unusual ethnic discourse which does not draw principally on obvious characteristics of difference. This rich ethnographic study shows instead that Sudanese ethnic identity is created from deeply held social values, especially those concerning gender and propriety, shared by Sudanese and Egyptian communities. The resulting ethnic identity is ambiguous and flexible, allowing Sudanese to voice their frustrations and make claims for their own uniqueness while acknowledging the identity that they share with the dominant Egyptian community.

Regions and Cohesion provides a needed platform for academics and practitioners alike to disseminate both empirical research and normative analysis of topics related to human security and social cohesion. It covers themes, such as the management of strategic resources, environment and society, social risk and marginalization, disasters and policy responses, violence, war and urban security, the quality of democracy, development, public health, immigration, human rights, organized crime, and cross-border human security.

Interdisciplinary in nature and multi-lingual in character (English, French, Spanish), the journal promotes the comparative examination of the human and environmental impacts of various aspects of regional integration across geographic areas, time periods, and policy arenas

ANTHROPOLOGICAL JOURNAL OF EUROPEAN CULTURES

Editor: Ullrich Kockel

Published since 1990, AJEC engages with current debates and innovative research agendas addressing the social and cultural transformations of contemporary European societies. The journal serves as an important forum for ethnographic research in and on Europe, which in this context is not defined narrowly as a geopolitical entity but rather as a meaningful cultural construction in people's lives, which both legitimates political power and calls forth practices of resistance and subversion. By presenting both new field studies and theoretical reflections on the history and politics of studying culture in Europe anthropologically, AJEC encompasses different academic traditions of engaging with its subject, from social and cultural anthropology to European ethnology.

FOCAAL

Journal of Global and Historical Anthropology

Editors: Don Kalb, Oscar Salemink, and Gavin Smith

Focaal advocates an approach that rests in the simultaneity of ethnography, processual analysis, local insights, and global vision. The journal is rooted in debates on the ongoing conjunction of anthropology and history and the incorporation of local research settings in wider spatial networks of coercion, imagination, and exchange.

THEORIA

A Journal of Social and Political Theory

Editor-in-Chief: Lawrence Hamilton

Published in association with the Faculty of Humanities, Development and Social Sciences, University of KwaZulu-Natal

Theoria is an engaged, multidisciplinary and peer-reviewed journal of social and political theory. Its purpose is to address, through scholarly debate, the many challenges posed to intellectual life by the major social, political and economic forces that shape the contemporary world. Thus it is principally concerned with questions such as how modern systems of power, processes of globalization and capitalist economic organization bear on matters such as justice, democracy and truth.

FRENCH POLITICS, CULTURE & SOCIETY

Editor: Herrick Chapman

FPC&S is jointly sponsored by the Institute of French Studies at New York University and the Minda de Gunzburg Center for European Studies at Harvard University

FPC&S explores modern and contemporary France from the perspectives of the social sciences, history, and cultural analysis. It also examines the relationship of France to the larger world, especially Europe, the United States, and the former French Empire. The editors also welcome pieces on recent debates and events, as well as articles that explore the connections between French society and cultural expression of all sorts (such as art, film, literature, and popular culture). Issues devoted to a single theme appear from time to time. With refereed research articles, timely essays, and reviews of books in many disciplines, FPC&S provides a forum for learned opinion and the latest scholarship on France.
