VALUES OF TRUST-BASED POLICING

Trust Challenges

We must recognize that trust-gaps exist within some of the communities we serve. It is our responsibility to participate in a dialog that promotes collaborative relationship building to close those trust-gaps.

Ethical Behavior

We understand that public trust is the foundation of our profession. We further recognize that it is our responsibility to uphold the laws and ensure that justice is served. We are committed to being consistently fair in the execution of these duties, while maintaining the highest standards of integrity and honesty.

Problem Solving and Quality Focus

We must assure that our commitment to quality and continuous improvement shows through the service that we provide to the community. This will be accomplished through collaborative problem-solving models, and continuous evaluation of internal work systems.

Citizen Involvement

We believe all members of our community are responsible for public safety. We strive to educate our community about our capabilities and limitations, while empowering them to have a voice in public safety solutions. It is a community expectation that we hold people accountable for their criminal behavior.

Leadership

We believe in a situational leadership model that is flexible and responsive. The focus is on employee engagement, balancing task and relationship needs, that provides structured leadership behaviors that are supportive to employees. We view all our employees as leaders.

Employee

A MESSAGE FROM POLICE CHIEF NOBLE WRAY

The 2009 annual report is submitted for your reading pleasure. It entails a great deal of statistical information reflecting the productivity of the Madison Police Department during the year. Of statistical note, we experienced a decrease in overall violent crime by 3.9% and a 4.4% decrease in property crime.

We started the year 2009 experiencing an increase in gun violence on the streets of Madison which culminated in a tragic homicide of a teenager on the City's southwest side. The Madison Police Department, along with other City officials, implemented a comprehensive response that involved other service providers, community members and the faith community. The multifaceted response targeted gun violence directly, which included law enforcement suppression efforts focused on offenders, a grass roots southwest neighborhood response, and a number of community meetings on gun violence. We did see a reduction of gun violence on the streets the second half of 2009 due in large part to the City's response.

In 2009 we continued to improve on how our major events like Mifflin, Rhythm and Booms and Freakfeast were handled. We observed reductions in cost, staffing and arrests at these major events as a result of extensive planning and stellar execution of these events. The Madison Police Department was at the center of organizing a historic visit by President Obama at Wright Middle School on Madison's south side. The presidential visit took place without incident and put the City of Madison in the national spotlight.

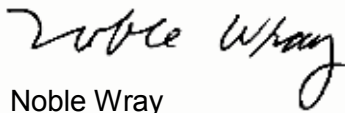

2009 ended with the planning for two major initiatives for 2010, The Crime Prevention Gang Unit and the acquisition of a Madison Police Department training facility. It is our hope in 2010 to develop a unit that will be able to respond citywide to gangs and crime in a comprehensive manner utilizing prevention, intervention, suppression and reentry strategies.

We are also planning to dramatically enhance our overall training capabilities by acquiring a training facility in 2010. Two of the Madison Police Department's historic and unique brands have been the quality of the people that we hire and our ability to provide state-of-the-art training. Our future facility will allow us to stabilize our training cost, tailor make our training to community priorities and values, and continue to be on the cutting edge by our training staff constantly improving training methods and approaches at the new facility.

Finally, the Madison Police Department continued to make tremendous progress toward the journey of Trust Based Policing. As a result of an employee-driven internal core values survey, we started to develop a set of organizational strategies created to improve internal trust. This endeavor started in the fall of 2009, and early indications show a great deal of promise at developing a supportive culture for organizational change. It is my plan to update you in the annual report of 2010 on the progress we have made after a year of implementing a number of strategies.

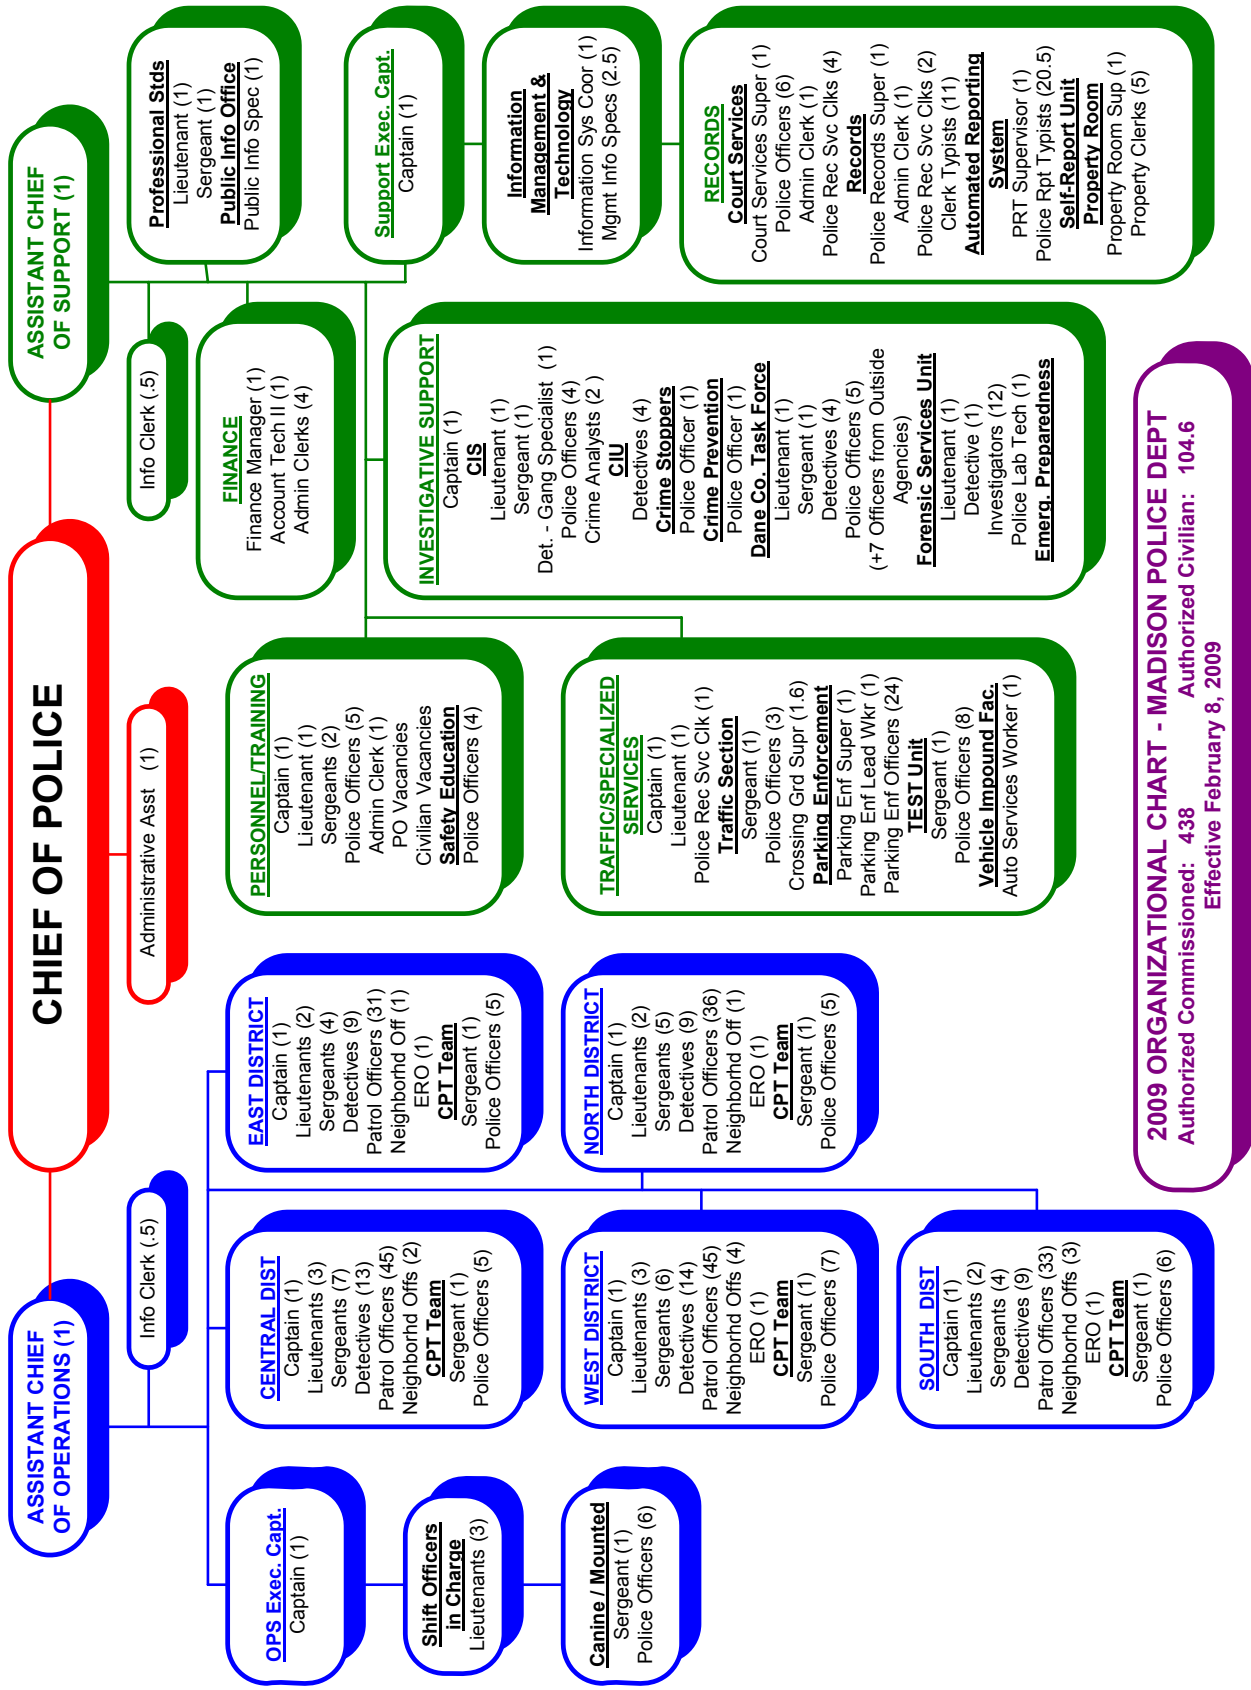

I hope you enjoy the 2009 Annual Report.

Noble Wray
Chief of Police

* One murder for 2008 was cleared in 2009.

** The burglary clearance rate is believed to be higher than actually reported above. Burglaries often occur in trends or multiples, and are often committed by small groups or single individuals targeting specific geographic locations, businesses or residences. Once suspects are identified and arrested, we continue to work on our internal systems for clearing burglary cases by arrest, or "exceptionally clearing" these cases when the suspect's identity is known but no formal charges are forthcoming.

* The Dane County 911 Public Safety Communications Center has historically attempted to provide MPD with information on “dropped calls (e.g., calls for service not dispatched to an officer due to insufficient resources at the time and disposed in the CAD with a dropped call code). It has come to our attention, however, that 911 Center staff have not consistently applied this “dropped call” definition. Due to these inconsistencies, MPD and the 911 Center are working to improve the reliability of future “dropped call” related dispositions and information.

CITY ORDINANCE CITATION ARRESTS

The Court Services Section of the Madison Police Department processes all city ordinance citations issued to those found in violation of Madison General Ordinances. In addition to those citations issued by Madison police officers, the Court Services Section also processes and prepares for Madison Municipal Court city ordinance citations issued by enforcement officers in the Madison Fire Department, Building Inspection Unit, and City-County Public Health Agency. The below graph illustrates the breakdown in citations issued by department/agency.

The tables on the following page reflect the total number of city ordinance citations issued by all of the above agencies. The breakdown by category is consistent with how the Madison Police Department has presented this information on an annual basis in the past. Upon request, the Information Management Section can provide breakdowns by specific city ordinance violations or other groupings.

Certain intersections continue to experience a significant number of crashes each year (listed above). A number of agencies track intersection crashes. The number of crashes and intersections identified by each agency vary. This is a result of each agency having a separate role and focus in tracking intersection crashes. Traffic Engineering reports the most serious crashes to WisDOT in accordance with that agency's criteria. In contrast, data monitored by the Police Department reflect all calls for service related to intersection crashes and typically capture a greater number of incidences.*

Although Overtime is considered a variable expense, in the past three years overtime costs determined by contract (such as briefing time, holiday day in future, etc.) on average accounted for 41% of regular overtime costs for the year.

Explanation of categories:

Wages & Benefits: Permanent and hourly wages and all benefits

Other Agency Costs: CCB Use, Workers Comp, Insurance, Motor Equipment, City Attorney, etc.

Purchased Services: Utilities for district stations, phone costs, service agreements on equipment, training, the pre-service academy, prisoner costs for use of the Dane County Jail, costs for the sexual assault nurse, etc. In addition, Towing costs, which previously had been significant enough to result in a specific category, have now decreased to the point that they are included with Purchased Services.
