British
TELECOM

Why the London code is changing

On 6 May, the London 01 code will be replaced by two new codes: 071 for inner London and 081 for outer London.

This change is needed because of an increased demand for telephone numbers. By dividing the code, we can double the quantity of numbers available and anticipate our customers' needs in the future.

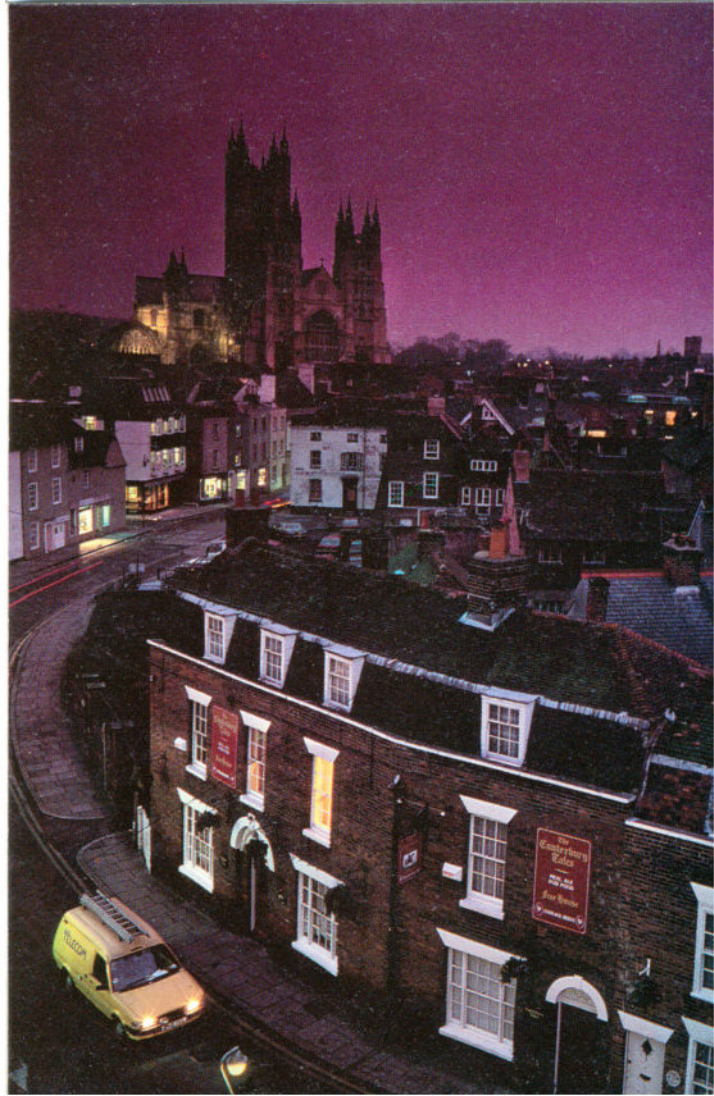

This guide includes a table which converts current 01 numbers to the appropriate new code. Keep it by your phone for easy reference.

Preparing for the change

Why not go through your address book and change any current 01 codes?

If you live in the London 01 area, tell people your new code as soon as possible. And have your headed notepaper revised if it includes your phone number.

Finally, if your phone (or fax) has a memory function, don't forget to alter the codes of any London 01 numbers from 6 May.

How to use the new codes

From 6 May, if you call London from somewhere else in the UK, instead of dialling 01 as you do now, you'll need to dial 071 before an inner London number, and 081 before an outer London number.

For calls within London, you'll only need to dial 071 or 081 if you're calling across the 071/081 boundary.

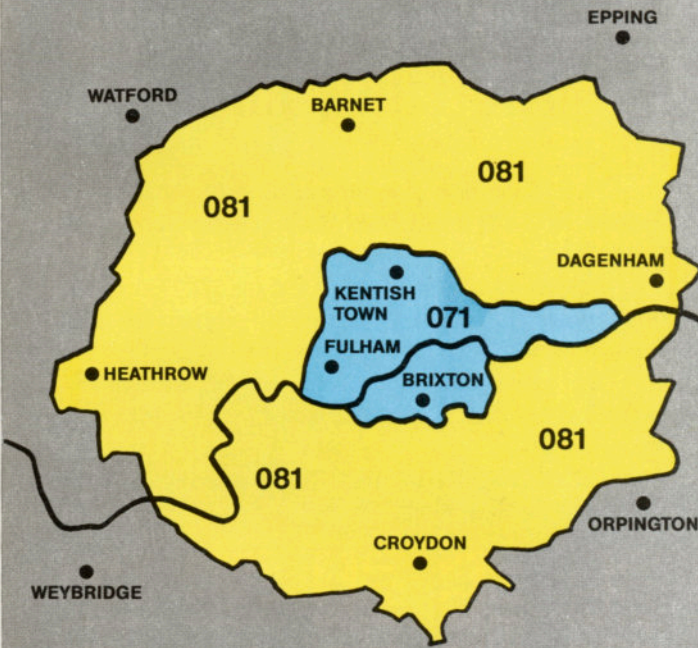

If you call London from overseas, instead of +44 1, the international code will be +44 71 for numbers in the 071 area and +44 81 for 081 numbers.

For calls to London dialled in the Irish Republic, the codes will be 030 71 and 030 81 respectively.

For a period after the change, there'll be free recorded announcements to help if the incorrect code is dialled.

If you have any queries, call us free on our Helpline, between 9am and 7pm, seven days a week.

CALL FREE 0800 800 873

Will change to 071.

Will change to 081.

Check this list to find the right code

To find the new code for a London 01 phone or fax number (eg 01-434 0000), simply look up its first three digits in this list.

Against 434, for example, you'll see 071. That means 01-434 0000 will become 071-434 0000. Similarly, the table shows 01-666 0000 will change to 081-666 0000.

Your calls to and from the 071 and 081 areas will be charged at the same rate as calls to and from the current 01 area.

Calls between the 071 and 081 areas will continue to be charged at the local rate.

How we can help your business prepare for the change

Wherever you are in the UK, if you have telecommunications or computer equipment that stores 01 numbers or dials them automatically, it will need to be checked and reprogrammed.

If your equipment is maintained by British Telecom, we'll contact you about any necessary reprogramming you're unable to do yourself†.

If you have an 01 business phone number, you can help your customers – and make sure they keep in contact with you – by giving them advance notice of your new code.

And don't forget, you'll need to revise your stationery and literature, signage, packaging and vehicle livery to include your new code.

If you'd like advice on preparing for the change, we'd be pleased to help you. Just call us free on our Helpline, between 9am and 7pm, seven days a week.

CALL FREE 0800 800 873

†If your equipment is maintained by someone else, you should contact them direct.
