the son becomes a penniless wanderer. When released, the daughter becomes the mysterious Deccan Queen, nemesis of evildoers. The plot gets complicated when a clerk in an insurance company, Vrinda (Aruna Devi again), turns out to be the wanted woman's double. Vrinda falls in love with Inspector Suresh (Surendra), but then later so does the Deccan Queen. The triangle takes unusual turns when the queen impersonates Vrinda and demands that Suresh marry her at once. Apart from the fast-paced stunt action, Aruna Devi's dual role is the film's major attraction. It is also the debut of Surendra, a well-known Mehboob singing star (e.g. Annol Gbadi, 1946).

DO DIWANE/BE KHARAB JAN

aka Gay Birds

1936 171 [H]/153 [G] b&w Hindi/Gujarati

d Chimanlal Luhar pc Sagar Film

s K.M. Munshi lyr Raghunath Brahmabhatt

c Keki Mistry m Pransukh Nayak

lp Shobhana Samarth, Motilal, Yakub, Rama Devi, Aruna Devi, Kamalabai, Kayamali, Pande, Temuras, Pesi Patel, Raza, Kantilal Nayak, Kamla, Sankatha

The noted Gujarati writer Munshi's acclaimed comedy, adapted from a popular play, contrasts contemporary culture with the values prevailing 50 years earlier. Dr Mohanlal (Motilal) and Miss Rambha (Shobhana) see themselves as revolutionaries handicapped by being born into conservative families. On the other hand, the millionaire Ramdas opposes his culture although experiencing some discomfort with the adoption of Western values. The film was the first featuring the celebrated star pair of Motilal and Shobhana.

DRAUPADI MANASAMRAKSHANAM

1936 159' b&w Telugu

co-d S. Jagannath, Ramanamurthy pc Lakshmi

Films m Papatla Kantaiah

lp Bellari Raghava, S. Rangaswamy, Sivarakrishna Rao, H.N. Choudhury, Daita Gopalani, Jandhyala Gaurinatha Sastry, Banda Kakalingeshwara Rao, Surabhi Kamalabai, Padmavati Devi, Shrihari, Leela

Lakshmi Films' owner Kavali Gupta signed noted stage actor Raghava to play Duryodhana. At Saraswati Talkies, H.V. Babu was making Draupadi Vastrapahanam at the same time, although on a smaller budget. Both films told the same Mababharata episode in which Draupadi is publicly humiliated by the Kauravas and rescued by Krishna. In spite of Raghava's star presence, the film was not as successful as its rival.

DRAUPADI VASTRAPAHANAM

1936 185' b&w Telugu

d/sc H.V. Babu pc Saraswati Talkies s Malladi

Achutha Ramana Sastry m B. Narasimha Rao

lp Yadavalli Suryanarayana, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu,

Dommeti Suryanarayana, Dommeti

Satyantarayana, Nelluri Nagaraja Rao, Arani

Satyantarayana, Nagabhushanam, Arani

Gaggaiah, Parabrahma Sastry, P. Kannamba,

Ramatilakam, Katari Shakuntala, Puvvula

Nagarajakumari, Puvvula Nagabhushanam

Made in competition with Draupadi

Manasamrakshanam (1936), this Mababharata mythological is the debut feature of Saraswati Talkies, a partnership between Parepalli Sheshaiah, K. Subba Rao and director

Ramabrahmam. The film was a hit, noted especially for Anjaneyulu's performance as Krishna, and for a new generation of Telugu stars, including Kannamba and Gaggaiah, who collectively overshadowed Bellari Raghava's star draw in the rival production.

Y. Suryanarayana plays Duryodhana and

D. Suryanarayana plays Bhima.

GRAMA KANYA

aka Village Girl

1936 167' b&w Hindi

d Sarvottam Badami pc Sagar Film st Jayant

Shyam dial Waqif c Fareedon Irani m Rao

lp Sabita Devi, Aruna, Surendra, Yakub, Jamoo

Patel, Kayamali, Gulzar, Sankatha, Baby Indira,

Pande

Well-known Sagar social with a coincidence-ridden plot structured around the studio's star Sabita Devi. Hero Kumar (Surendra) studies at university with money borrowed by his poor father from Dinanath (Kayamali) who in return expects Kumar to marry his daughter Bansari (Sabita). Although he makes a city girl, Vilas (Aruna), pregnant, Kumar is forced to wed Bansari, which leaves Vilas at the mercy of the villainous Vinod (Yakub). Then Kumar accidentally kills his father in a car crash and Vilas's father commits suicide after driving his pregnant daughter out of his house. Bansari, the staunchly faithful village girl, then goes to the city to recover her husband. The film claimed to modernise traditional Hindu ideals.

GRIHADAH/MANZIL

1936 144 [B]/151 [H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d P.C. Barua pc New Theatres st Saratchandra

Chattopadhyay dial/lyr Arzoo Lucknowi,

A.H. Shore [H] c Bimal Roy m Rai Chand

Boral, Pankaj Mullick

lp P.C. Barua, Prithviraj Kapoor, K.C. Dey,

Boken Chatto, Jamuna, Molina Devi, Ahi Sanyal

The poor but educated Mahim and his childhood friend, the rich but conservative Suresh, both fall in love with the same woman, the liberated Achala. Mahim marries her and they move to a village but she cannot forget Suresh. Her smouldering unhappiness takes the form of a resentment towards the orphaned Mrinal, raised by Mahim's father, and receives a dramatically visual embodiment when their house burns down. Mahim falls ill, is rescued by Suresh and nursed back to health by Achala. On a train (a metaphor for the irreversibly linear course of life) to a health-resort where Mahim is supposed to convalesce, Suresh on a rainswept night gives in to temptation and elopes with Achala. At the end of the film, there is a dubious reconciliation as Achala is shown following Mahim down a dark road. Much of the film contrasts Mahim's 'good' traditionalism with Saratchandra's barely concealed hostility towards Achala's liberated Brahma Samaj upbringing, which is eventually punished.

HAMARI BETIYAN

aka Our Darling Daughters

1936 154' b&w Hindi

d/s R.S. Choudhury pc Imperial Film

c Adi M. Irani m Annasaheb Mainkar lp Rose, Kumar, Jiloo, Pramila, Mubarak, Baby

Shri, Baba Vyas

An epic drama idealising Indian womanhood. Prince Madan (Kumar) loves university

P.C. Barua (left), Molina Devi (centre) and Jamuna (second from right) in Grihadah

colleague Radha (Rose). The villain Lalsingh (Mubarak) and his sister Vasanthi (Pramila) get him banned from the realm by the king (Vyas), but he marries his beloved anyway. Radha's estranged mother (Jiloo) becomes a priestess distributing free grain. When Radha goes blind, she is abandoned by her husband and unknowingly meets her mother. An earthquake restores Radha's sight and allows her to find a buried treasure. Masquerading as the wealthy Princess Chandni, Radha teaches a lesson to all her tormentors, including the king, the prince and the villain.

IRU SAHODARARGAL

aka Two Brothers

1936 144' b&w Tamil

d Ellis R. Duncan p Ramasamy pc Parameshwar Sound, Coimbatore sc S.D.S. Yogi

lp K.P. Kesavan, K.K. Perumal, T.S. Balaiah, S.N. Kannaman, M.M. Radhabai, M.G. Chakrapani, S.N. Vijayalakshmi,
M.G. Ramachandran

Shot in Bombay at Sagar Movietone by the American expatriate Duncan, who also edited it, this film was billed as only the 2nd social (cf. Balayogini, 1936) in a Tamil industry dominated by mythologicals. The plot addresses the joint family system: two brothers, Sabapathi and Pasupathi, and their wives fight over the family property. The happy resolution requires the introduction of an angel in the shape of a maid. The most interesting aspect of the film is its depiction of the world of commercial drama, the most popular form of urban mass entertainment in 30s Tamil Nadu. Duncan reduced the envisaged 30-5 songs to 13, tightened the editing and integrated the comedy into the narrative rather than leaving it as an autonomous sub-plot. He also endeavoured to get the actors to adopt the rhythms of everyday speech. The producer was a Congress Party sympathiser responsible for the nationalist flavouring of the songs. The film received the blessing of nationalist leaders like S. Satyamurthy and C. Rajagopalachari.

JAGRAN

aka The Awakening

1936 152' b&w Hindi

d/p Mohan Bhavnani s/lyr Narottam Vyas
m S.P. Mukherji, Walter Kaufmann lp Enakshi Rama Rao, Navin Yagnik, S.B. Nayampalli, Prabha, Narottam Vyas, S.L. Puri, N.N. Tuli, A.S. Gyani, Abu Baker, Shiv Rani Ghosh

Bhavnani's sequel to the Premchand-scripted Mazdoor (1934) is a melodrama about unemployment. Blackmailer Rasik (Nayampalli) is pitted against the good deeds of Prof. Ramanand, who opens an ashram for the unemployed. The struggles of hero Narayan (Yagnik) and heroine Kokila (Rama Rau) and their tales of sacrifice and starvation before they are united in the ashram, make up the bulk of the narrative. Written by Vyas, an admirer of Premchand, the title evokes the journal Jagran Premchand edited (1932-4).

Produced independently by Bhavnani, the film was made at the Wadia Movietone Studio.

JANMABHOOMI

1936 139' b&w Hindi

d Franz Osten pc Bombay Talkies
sc Niranjan Pal dial/lyr J.S. Casshyap c Joseph Wirsching m Saraswati Devi lp Devika Rani, Ashok Kumar, Pramila, Khosla, Chandraprabha, N.M. Joshi, Kamta Prasad, H.S. Naik, Jhaverbhai Kaiser, P.F. Pithawala

Following on from Jeevan Natya (1936) with the same starring duo, this was a nationalist rural drama by Osten who had just joined the Nazi Party in India. The plot has Ajay (Kumar) and his girlfriend Protima (Devika Rani) working on behalf of Indian villagers, incurring the enmity of the local zamindar (Kaiser) and the villainous Sanatan (Pithawala). Ajay's relentless goodness eventually persuades the zamindar to bequeath his property to the hero, and general well-being reigns as class conflict is transmuted into class collaboration. The film includes the nationalist song Jai jai janani janmabhoomi and other choruses with a similar thrust.

JEEVAN NAIYA

1936 140' b&w Hindi

d Franz Osten pc Bombay Talkies
s Niranjan Pal dial/lyr J.S. Casshyap c Josef Wirsching m Saraswati Devi lp Devika Rani, Ashok Kumar, Kamta Prasad, Anwari Begum, Kusum Kumari, K.J. Joshi, S.N. Tripathi

Lata (Devika Rani), daughter of a dancing girl, is brought up by social worker Mathuradas (Prasad) and is engaged to marry the rich Ranjit (Ashok Kumar) when the villain Chand (S.N. Tripathi) arrives to blackmail her with her undisclosed ancestry. Lata is forced to disclose the truth to Ranjit and the assembled wedding guests. Ranjit disowns her but they are reunited when Ranjit, blinded by an explosion, is nursed back to health by a devoted woman who turns out to be his wife. This was Ashok Kumar's screen debut.

LAGNA BANDHAN

aka Achhuta Daman aka Forbidden Bride

1936 157' b&w Hindi

d/s Kaliprasad Ghosh pc Sagar Film dial Munshi Ahsan c Fareedoon Irani m Pransukh Nayak lp Sabita Devi, Motilal, Aruna Devi, Leelavati, Azoorie, Gulzar, Sankatha, Ansari, Pesi Patel

A period adventure with Motilal in a famous dual role. Judhajit (Sankatha), the outlawed brother of the king of Udayanagar, wants revenge on the royal family. He had left the palace with one of the king's twin sons who grew up as Indrajit, the twin of the drunken and debauched Prince Shatruijit (both Motilal) due to marry Princess Chanda (Sabita Devi). Indrajit is sent to kidnap her as part of the vendetta but the two fall in love. Shatruijit is too drunk to go through the marriage procedure and the dewan (Ansari) asks Indrajit to impersonate his brother. Indrajit is now torn between his love for Chanda and his promise to the dewan, but the story ends happily.

MANMOHAN

1936 147' b&w Hindi

d Mehboob pc Sagar Film s/lyr Zia Sarhadi
c Fareedoon Irani m Ashok Ghosh lp Bibbo, Surendra, Yakub, Ashalata, Ramchandra, Bhudo Advani, Pande, Pesi Patel, Kayamali, Mehdi Raza, Zia Sarhadi

The first of Mehboob's socials at Sagar (e.g. Jagirdar, 1937) using Bibbo in an early example of his woman-centred films interrogating aspects of feudal patriarchy. The painter Ashok (Surendra) who loves the orphaned Vimala (Bibbo) is distressed to learn that she is due to marry Jagdish (Yakub). He paints Vimala's portraits with a frenzied obsession and becomes a famous artist. Jagdish tries to get Ashok killed. Paralleling this love story is the decline in Ashok's family fortunes, which eventually leaves him homeless and penniless with only the rich Shanti (Ashalata) who stands by him. Mehboob often liberates his characters from feudal ties by making them orphans (Deccan Queen, 1936; Ek Hi Raasta, 1939), later extending this into the format of structuring the guilt of the woman into a love triangle (Jagirdar, Hum Tum Aur Woh, 1938), transforming his melodramas into social parables (cf. also R.S. Choudhury's Hamari Betiyan, 1936).

MAYA

1936 122[B]/132[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d/sc P.C. Barua pc New Theatres st Sukumar Dasgupta lyr[H] A.H. Shore c Bimal Roy m Rai Chand Boral, Pankaj Mullick lp Pahadi Sanyal, Jamuna, K.C. Dey, Azoorie, Boken Chattop[B], Ahi Sanyal[B], Nawab[H], Nemo[H], Vaid[H], Jagdish Sethi[H]

Maya (Jamuna) is the poor cousin of rich socialite Shanta (Azoorie). Shanta is supposed to marry the equally rich Pratap (P. Sanyal), but he falls in love with Maya and fathers her child before going abroad. Shanta causes a separation by intercepting Pratap's letters to Maya. When he returns, a successful lawyer, he is unable to trace her, while her efforts to meet him are foiled. Later, Maya is accused of murder and is prosecuted in court by Pratap, before the dramatic reconciliation in the courtroom.

MISS FRONTIER MAIL

1936 161' b&w Hindi

d Homi Wadia pc Wadia Movietone
s J.B.H. Wadia c Vasant Jagtap m Master Mohammed lp Fearless Nadia, Gulshan, Sardar Mansoor, Master Mohammed, Sayani, John Cawas, Jal Khambatta, Jaidev, Minoo The Mystic

This follow-up of Hunterwali (1935) was Nadia's best-known 'train movie'. Savita (Nadia), aka Miss 1936, is an amateur hunter while her brother Jayant (Jaidev, later a noted composer) is an amateur film-maker. Their father, Maganlal (Mohammed), arrested for the murder of a station-master, is defended by their uncle Shyamal (Sayani), who is in fact the mysterious Signal X. Shyamal causes a major train smash-up (convincingly shot with miniatures) so as to promote his new airline. He then implicates hero Sundar (Mansoor), son of the railway president, in the crime. Savita overcomes the nasty Signal X, whose henchmen are caught on film by Jayant as they sabotage a bridge. Nadia indulges in extensive fist-fights, set to heavy sound effects, and a famous battle alongside Sundar atop a moving train. The film evokes Walter Forde's British hit The Ghost Train (1931), combined with Feuillade-type deserted houses and mysterious radio messages.

PRABHU KA PYARA

aka God's Beloved

1936 149' b&w Hindi

d Chandulal Shah pc Ranjit Movietone
dial/lyr Narayan Prasad Betaab

c G.G. Gogate, D.K. Ambre m Jhande Khan, Banne Khan

lp Gohar, Raja Sandow, E. Bilimoria, Khatun, Charubala, Kamala, Keki Bawa

A melodrama suggesting that atheism is not a desirable option. Heroine Kusum (Gohar), the daughter of atheist millionaire Gumanchand (Bawa), is forced on to the streets when her father is jailed for fraud. She eventually meets the rich Rasiklal (E. Bilimoria), joins the stage and encounters her father once more when he tries to save her from a fire. The atheist father invokes the Almighty to save his daughter, but although she is saved she loses her eyesight. Other characters include the God-fearing but crooked tutor Indulal (Sandow) who later turns into a nice man after all, and Padma (Khatun), who exploits Rasiklal's alcoholism to the benefit of her lover, Pyarelal.

PREMAVIJAYAM

1936 c.133' b&w Telugu

d/s Krithiventi Nageshwara Rao pc Indian Art Cinetone lyr Vedula Satyanarayana Sastry m Munuvanty Venkata Rao

lp P. Krishnamurthy, P.S. Sharma, P. Rama Rao, K. Ranga Rao, M. Ramchandramurthy, Bhanumathi, Nookaraju, Rajyam, B. Rajalakshma Bhagavathar

Based on the director's original stage play and regarded as the first non-mythological Telugu film, the melodrama tells of two lovers who have to overcome parental obstruction to their eventual union. The film is sometimes seen as an early ancestor of the Rohini and Vauhini Telugu melodramas.

PUJARIN

1936 137' b&w Hindi

d Prafulla Roy pc International Filmcraft, New Theatres st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay's novel Dena Paona c Yusuf Mulji m Timir Baran

lp K.L. Saigal, Chandra, Pahadi Sanyal, Rajkumari, Nawab, Babulal, Kailash, Jagdish, Kidar Sharma, Shyam Laha, K.C. Dey

The Hindi remake of Atorthy's Dena Paona (1931), New Theatres' first sound film. The wastrel Jibananda (Saigal) marries Alaknanda (Chandra) for her money, but ends up falling in love with her. Wanted by the police, he has to abandon her only to reappear years later a wealthy man. He soon turns into an oppressive landlord and comes into conflict with the pujarin (priestess) of the local temple who leads a popular revolt against him. She turns out to be his wife. Eventually Jibananda has a change of heart and the couple are reunited. Dey plays his usual role of a blind beggar.

RAJPUT RAMANI

1936 138' b&w Hindi

d Keshavrao Dhaiber pc Prabhat Film st Narayan Hari Apte dial/lyr Narottam Vyas c V. Avadhoot m Keshavrao Bhole
lp Nalini Tarkhad, Nanasahab Phatak, Shanta Apte, Kelkar, Sureshabu Mane, Budasaheb, Master Chhotu

Prabhat's adventure movie, set in a medieval Rajput court, mainly addresses Rajput notions of chivalry. The legendary warrior Mansingh (Phatak) is the nation's strong man but he is cordially hated even by his own people. Claiming to have been offended by Taramati (Tarkhad), he insists to her eminent father that only a marriage (on terms insulting to her) can placate him. He becomes a tyrant imprisoning large numbers of people, and eventually Taramati's father, also in prison, leads a popular revolt, threatening to kill his son-in-law. Only Taramati's decision to protect her husband resolves the conflict. The film has a rare appearance of the Marathi stage legend, Nanasahab Phatak. Apte played the heroine's sidekick, Kesar, repeating the two stars' earlier screen relationship in Amrimitanban (1934). This is ex-cameraman Dhaiber's best-known directorial effort.

ROMANTIC INDIA

aka Romance

1936 161' b&w Hindi

d Mohan Sinha pc Rajputana Films
m Badriprasad

lp Nurjehan, Radharani, Snehalata, Lily, O.K. Dhar (aka Jeevan), Prem, Shyamsundar, D.P. Bhargava, Badriprasad, Munshi Ratanlal Khanjar, S. Gulab

Exotic adventure drama juxtaposing feudal pleasures with a new world imagery represented by American modernity. Heroine Chandrakala (Nurjehan), daughter of the dewan of a native king, is educated in England and lives in America. She refuses to marry the prince of her ancestral state, an insult that causes her father to be dismissed. She makes amends by disguising herself as a man and becoming the prince's secretary. A noted sequence set in America features an Indian pilot, Premsingh, who loves Chandrakala and offers to fly her entourage back to India in a Zeppelin, but a mid-flight drama forces the passengers to parachute to safety.

SAMPOORNA RAMAYANAM

1936 c.200' b&w Telugu

co-d E. Nagabhushanam, S.B. Narayana pc Nidamarthy Bros, Durga Cinetone lp Pushpavalli, Kadaru Raju

Made locally in AP by a Rajahmundry-based producer, this mythological features tales from the Ramayana. The film later acquired curiosity value for its primitive technique: workers from the Godavari canals were recruited to play Rama's (Kadaru Raju) monkey brigade; a train comes into a shot of Rama, Seeta and Lakshmana during their exile in the forest. Kadaru Raju may be Kadaru Nagabhushanam in his days as a major theatre personality.

SANSARA NAUKA

1936 c.185' b&w Kannada

d/s H.L.N. Simha pc Devi Films c D.T. Telang, D.B. Chauhan m M. Madhava Rao lp B.R. Panthulu, M.V. Rajamma, Dikki Madhava Rao, S.K. Padmadevi, M.S. Madhava Rao

Simha's melodrama, adapted from his successful Chandrakala Natak Mandali play (1933), introduces the theatre group's emphasis on reformist realism into Kannada cinema. Hero Sundar (Panthulu) marries Sarala against the wishes of his grandfather and is disowned by his family. His troubles, which include harsh treatment by his in-laws and the loss of his job, climax when he is accused of having murdered Sushila, the woman his grandfather originally wanted him to marry. The actor Panthulu later became the most influential Kannada film director in the reformist tradition.

SANT TUKARAM

1936 131' b&w Marathi

d V. Damle, S. Fattelal pc Prabhat Film s Shivram Vashikar lyr Shantaram Athavale c V. Avadhoot m Keshavrao Bhole
lp Vishnupant Pagnis, Gauri, Bhagwat, B. Nandreakar, Shankar Kulkarni, Kusum Bhagwat, Shanta Majumdar, Master Chhotu, Pandit Damle

This classic film chronicles the life of Tukaram (17th C.), one of Maharashtra's most popular saint poets, activating the 20th-C. resonances of his turning away from courtly Sanskrit towards vernacular rhythms of religious poetry which constituted the first major emancipatory movement against brahminical caste domination. The episodic plot pits Tukaram (Pagnis) against the Brahmin Salomalo (Bhagwat), who pretends to be the true author of Tukaram's songs while calling for his'

ostracisation. In showing Tukaram's growing popularity and his willing acceptance of the suffering heaped on him and his family by his oppressors, the movie binds song, gesture, rhythm and camera together with character and crowd behaviour denoting the spiritual connection between the poet and the people while separating off the members of the brahminical caste. One of the studio's cheaper productions, it adheres to most of the conventions of the genre, including numerous 'miracle' scenes in which the poet's god intervenes to demonstrate the truth of Tukaram's teachings. However, it endows these conventions with an unusual degree of conviction, as in the song Adbi beej ekale, written for the scene in which Tukaram celebrates the fertility of nature and composed in the poet's own ovi form of 3-1/2 beats, paralleling the work rhythm of women churning a grindstone. Scholars mistook it for an original, hitherto unknown Tukaram composition. The film breaks new ground with Gauri's earthy portrayal of Tukaram's wife, Jijai, who energetically squeezes cow-dung cakes for fuel and refuses to ascend to heaven, preferring to stay on earth and look after the children. Other innovations include the extraordinary tracking shot introducing Rameshwar Shastri to the town, showing the people working to the cadence of a song. Gauri, a familiar figure in Prabhat films mainly in walk-on roles, had her first major break in the film and went on to several fine performances in e.g. Manoos Admi (1939) and Sant Sakhu (1941). Kumar Shahani (1981) pointed to erotic elements in the devotional fervour e.g. in the scenes of the prostitute who is converted by the saint and in Pagnis's own performance. Art historian Geeta Kapur wrote (1987): '[It] belongs [to] a sub-genre of special significance. The saints' lives are, as legends, quasi-biographical material [e]xpressly adaptable to historical ends' in the light of their manifest commitment to spiritual equality and their validation of demotic speech patterns.

SARALA

1936 157' b&w Hindi
d/sc Premankur Atorthy pc Imperial Film st I.A. Hafizji c Rustom Irani m H.C. Bali lp Rattan Bai, Kumar, I.A. Hafizji, Jiloo, Pramila, Anant Marathe, Chemist, Asooji, Ahindra Choudhury

Melodrama warning women to be dutifully subordinated wives and not to be tempted by modernising trends towards individual emancipation. The orphaned Sarala (Rattan Bai) is estranged from her loving husband Ramdas (Kumar) by the wiles of villain Avilash (Hafizji). She runs away and, following divine intervention in the form of an earthquake, escapes the villain's clutches. Living as a beggar, she finally dies in the arms of her husband begging forgiveness.

SIPAHI KI SAJNI/SIPAHINI SAJNI

aka Soldier's Sweetheart
 1936 134' b&w Hindi/Gujarati

d/s Chandulal Shah pc Ranjit Movietone
dial/lyr Narayan Prasad Betaab

c G.G. Gogate m Rewashankar Marwadi, Banne Khan
lp Gohar, E. Bilimoria, Ram Apte, Keki Bawa, Ishwarlal, Dixit, Charlie, Ghory, Kesari, Bhupatrai

Gohar-centred adventure movie. She is the ruthless Princess Hansa determined to acquire a treasure map from rival King Sujansingh (Bawa). She daringly steals the map but the king's misogynist son, Dilipsingh (Bilimoria), manages to get it back. Together they are caught by the outlaw Vijay (Ishwarlal) who also wants the treasure. The film was replete with sword fights, tribal magic and a horse battle at the end when Sujansingh attacks his former friend Vijay to find his imprisoned son.

SONAR SANSAR/SUNEHRA SANSAR

1936 156[B]/167[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/s Debaki Bose pc East India Film dial N.K. Mehra[H] lyr Vijay Kumar[H] c Sailen Bose m K.C. Dey lp Menaka Devi, Azoorie, Ahindra Choudhury[B], Dhiraj Bhattacharya[B], Chhaya Devi[B], Bhumen Roy[B], Jahar Ganguly[B], Rampiary[H], Kamala Jharia[H], Gul Hamid[H], Mazhar Khan[H], Vijay Kumar[H], Nandkishore[H], Vedit[H],
 K.N. Singh[H]

A parable about human suffering and capitalist enterprise. The village headman has bandits attack the house of Ramesh to settle a feud. They kidnap the man's wife Roma, and abandon their infant son in the forest. Years later, Roma works as the nurse of a kind millionaire while the boy Raghunath shares a neighbourhood house with other unemployed youths who collectively dream of starting a soap factory. The father is a beggar on the streets. None of them know of each other's existence until circumstances bring the family together and the millionaire eventually funds the soap factory.

ALIBABA

1937 133' b&w Bengali
d Modhu Bose pc Shri Bharatlaxmi Pics st Khirode Prasad Vidyavinode's play c Bibhuti Das, Geeta Ghosh m Franco Polo, Nagardas Nayak
lp Modhu Bose, Sadhona Bose, Suprava Mukherjee, Indira Roy, Bibhuti Ganguly, Preeti Majumdar

Dancer Sadhona Bose made her feature debut in Modhu Bose's acclaimed Arabian Nights musical. Vidyavinode's play, first staged in 1897 by the Classic Theatre with Nripen Basu and Kusum Kumari, remained one of the most popular pre-WW1 Bengali plays. It tells of the Baghdadi woodcutter Alibaba (M. Bose) and his magic 'Open Sesame' formula; of the hero's jealous brother Kasim and of the slave girl Marjina (S. Bose). The film adapts the Calcutta Art Players' orientalist stage version, giving it a Hollywood-derived exotic flavour. An improvised 'modern' dance is inserted, Sadhona Bose's trademark due to her theatrical work with composer Timir Baran. The slow, mannered acting and the frontally framed tableau shots are enlivened by the dance scenes, esp. the Marjina-Abdallah sequence which long set the standard for film musicals (cf. Lila Desai's dance in Bidyapati, 1937). The surviving copy is probably incomplete.

AMBIKAPATHY

1937 c.210' b&w Tamil
d/ed Ellis R. Duncan pc Salem Shankar Films st/dial Elangovan sc T.P.S. Mani c Paul Bricke, Krishna Gopal lyr/co-m Papanasam Sivan co-m K.C. Dey lp M.K. Thyagaraja Bhagavathar, Serukalathur Sama, P.B. Rangachari, T.S.
 Balaiah, N.S. Krishnan, M.S. Santhanalakshmi,
 T.A. Mathuram, P.G. Venkatesan, P.R. Mangalam

After Raja Desingu (1936), this is the 2nd major South Indian historical. Set in the year 1083 AD it tells of the poet Kambar (Sama) who wrote the Kambaramayana in Tamil at Karikala Chola's court and draws on George Cukor's Romeo and Juliet (1936), including the balcony scene, for the love story between the poet's son, Ambikapathy (Bhagavathar) and the Princess Amaravathy (Santhanalakshmi). However, class distinctions are maintained as the young lover fails the test of will imposed by the king as a precondition for the marriage. Shot at the East India Studio in Calcutta, the background music was by the blind singer-composer K.C. Dey, and the film was a landmark in the careers of Bhagavathar (esp. the song Bajanai seiway maname), Santhanalakshmi and Balaiah, who played the army commander Rudrasenan. Duncan was fond of 'return' scenes: this film opened with the victorious return of Kulothunga Chola to the city of Worur; in his Shakuntalai (1940) there was the Sage Kanwar's return from pilgrimage and in Manthiri Kumari (1950) he staged the return home of a marriage party. The scenarist Elangovan, making his debut here, initiated the trend of privileging dialogue over songs.

ANATH ASHRAM

1937 136' b&w Hindi
d/s Hemchandra Chunder pc New Theatres dial/lyr Kidar Sharma c Yusuf Mulji m Rai Chand Boral
lp Umasashi, Najmul Hussain, Jagdish Sethi, Prithviraj Kapoor, Nawab, Master Satu, Trilok Kapoor, Nemo, Manorama

New Theatres' reformist melodrama about widow-remarriage. Jai Narain (Sethi), owner of a colliery, forms a happy family with his wife (Manorama), his daughter Saroj (Umasashi), son-in-law Kailash (T. Kapoor), an engineer at the colliery, and their son Nannha (Satu). Kailash dies in a colliery accident caused by Jai Narain. Nannha is sent to an orphanage and Saroj marries Ramesh, who loves her but is unaware of her previous marriage or of being a stepfather, while Saroj misses her dead husband and longs for her absent son. A former suitor, Ranjit (P. Kapoor) appears, knowing her past history. Repeated scenes show Nannha pining for his mother. The problem is finally resolved when Ramesh, who discovers the truth, saves the lonely child's life in a train accident.

⊗ BIDIYAPATI/VIDYAPATI

1937 141[B]/152[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/co-s/dia[H] Debaki Bose pc New Theatres
co-s Kazi Nazrul Islam[H] lyr[H] Kidar Sharma c Yusuf Mulji m Rai Chand Boral lp Pahadi Sanyal, Chhaya Devi, Kanan Devi, K.C. Dey, Lila Desai, Durgadas
Bannerjee[B]/Prithviraj Kapoor[H], Amar
Mullick[B], Devbala[B], Ahi Sanyal[B], Sailen Pal[B], K.N. Singh[H], Nemo[H], Kidar
 Sharma[H], Rampiary[H], Mohammed Ishaq[H]

New Theatres' classic celebration of Mithila's King Shiva Singha's (Bannerjee/Kapoor) love for his wife while chronicling the influence of the pacifist court poet Bidyapati (Sanyal). Invited to the royal court by the king, Bidyapati arrives with his faithful follower Anuradha (Kanan Devi). Queen Laxmi (Chhaya Devi) falls in love with the poet, much to the distress of the king. The king falls ill and starts neglecting his royal duties until Anuradha persuades him that true love does not need reciprocation. The queen, equally distressed by her divided loyalties, contemplates suicide, encouraged by the prime minister who is worried by the nefarious impact of Bidyapati's poetry on the king. Both the king and queen sacrifice their lives before the statue of the god Vishnu who appears to weep at the tragedy. Kanan Devi's unusually intense performance dominates the film, aided by a fast-moving script that broke with the convention of the static, frontal camera style of Indian film-devotionals (cf. the move from the opening Dhol celebrations to the miracle scenes and the witches' dance, as well as the complicated climactic sequence). The sustained use of filmic close-ups allows Bidyapati's poetry to take on an autonomous motivational function in the plot, almost as though his art, rather than he himself, is the story's true protagonist.

⊗ DHARMAVEER

1937 156' b&w Marathi/Hindi
d Master Vinayak pc Huns Pics st/dia[M]/ lyr[M] P.K. Atre sc R.S. Junnarkar c Pandurang Naik m Annasaheb Mainkar lp Ratnaprabha, Master Vinayak, Baburao Pendharkar, Indira Wadkar, Javdekar, Datar

Atre's comedy launched a long collaboration with Master Vinayak (e.g. Brahmachari, 1938; Brandicbi Batti/Brandy Ki Botol, 1939). The hypocritically pious philanthropist Dinanath (Pendharkar) drinks alcohol claiming it to be holy water, womanises and swindles people in private. He is contrasted with common man Jagadish (Vinayak), abused by all for having failed his matriculation exam eight times and who is loved by the poor flower-girl Kasturi (Ratnaprabha). Jagadish eventually becomes the instrument for the public exposure of Dinanath which makes him a popular hero. He remains unaffected by this turn of events and remains Kasturi's faithful admirer.

(From left) Bikram Kapoor, Kamlesh Kumari and K.L. Saigal in President

⊗ DIDI/PRESIDENT

aka Badi Bahen
 1937 140[B]/153[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/s/c Nitin Bose pc New Theatres m Rai Chand Boral, Pankaj Mullick lp K.L. Saigal, Lila Desai, Devbala, Durgadas
Bannerjee[B]/Prithviraj Kapoor[H], Amar
Mullick[B], Bhanu Bannerjee[B], Indu Mukherjee[B], Chandrabati Devi[B]/Kamlesh Kumari[H], Prabha[B], Nawab[H], Jagdish
 Sethi[H], Bikram Kapoor[H], Shabbir Ali [H]

A famous Saigal musical narrating a strange love story set against 1930s industrialisation and worker-management relations. The 16-year-old Prabhavati (Chandrabati Devi/Kumari) inherits a mill and turns it into an extremely profitable enterprise. Prakash (Saigal) is a worker who designs a more efficient machine for the factory for which he first gets sacked and then is re-employed. He falls in love with Prabhavati's sister Sheila (Desai), who later makes way for Prabhavati who is also in love with Prakash. Her withdrawal distresses Prakash, causing her to bully the workers who then go on strike. Prabhavati realises the problem and presumably commits suicide (she disappears into an office and locks the door) for the good of her sister and of the business. The unmistakable thrust of the story is that the 'personal' (i.e. relations with women) should not be allowed to interfere in male pursuits like business or management, equated with social good. The film has Saigal's classic number Ek bangla bane nyara. The plot echoes the Guru Dutt script for the unfinished Babarain Pbir Bhi Ayengi.

⊗ DUNIYA KYA HAI

aka Resurrection
 1937 149' b&w Hindi
d/s G.P. Pawar pc Diamond Pics st Lev Tolstoy's

Resurrection lyr Munshi Aziz c Kukde, Ahmedullah m Annasaheb Mainkar, Kikubhai Yagnik
lp Lalita Pawar, Madhav Kale, Bulbule, Ghanshyam, Indira Wadkar, Fatma Begum, Mankame, Bipin Mehta

An independent production by Lalita Pawar starring herself as a mistreated orphan called Lalita in this rare example of a melodrama drawn from a non-Indian literary source. Madhav (Kale), the son of the family, impregnates Lalita and promises to marry her on his return from Bombay. Years later, Madhav returns married, and refuses to recognise her. To feed her son, Lalita becomes a prostitute and is accused of a murder that takes place in the brothel. The prosecutor turns out to be Madhav.

⊗ GANGAVATARAN

aka The Descent of Ganga
 1937 142'[M]/134'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d/s/dia/lyr D.G. Phalke co-d Madhukar Bavdekar pc Kolhapur Cinetone c Vasudev Karnataka m Vishwanathbua Jadhav lp Chitnis, Suresh Pardesi, Kusum Deshpande, Bhagwat, Shankarrao Bhosle, Pathan, Ibrahim, Gawli, Dongre, Barchi Bahadur, Mahananda, Leela Mishra, Ansuayabai

Nearly 70 years old and ailing, Phalke came out of retirement in 1934 to make this, his only sound film, at the invitation of Shahu Maharaj of Kolhapur. With a massive budget and two years' shooting, Phalke made the Pauranic tale which, by all accounts, was a grand mythological spectacle full of miracles and fantasy scenes with special effects credited to Phalke's son, Babaraya Phalke. Narayan Hari Apte, fresh from his success with Amritmantban (1934), was hired for the script but he is not credited on screen. The film failed at the box-office and took the studio down with it. Chitnis played the god Shankar, and Suresh played Narada.

HURRICANE HANSA

1937 145' b&w Hindi
*d*R.N. Vaidya pc Wadia Movietone
s J.B.H. Wadia dial Dunyan c R.A. Rehman
m Master Mohammed lp Fearless Nadia, Husn Banu, Sardar Mansoor, Sayani Atish, Master Mohammed, Minoo The Mystic, John Cawas, Master Chhotu

Hansa (Nadia), daughter of Veer Singh (Mohammed), escapes an attack on her family by the villain Zalim Singh (Sayani) in which her mother is killed, her father injured and her sister Padma (Husn Banu) abducted. Growing up as a Harijan (an untouchable) she transforms the word to 'Hurricane', dons a mask and overthrows Zalim. She falls in love with Zalim's good son Diler (Mansoor). The horse Punjab-Ka-Beta features in its usual key role, rescuing Hansa when she hangs from a cliff, leaping over a wall of fire and aiding the love angle by nudging Diler into the pond where Hansa is having a bath.

JAGIRDAR

aka Landlord
 1937 166' b&w Hindi
d Mehboob Khan pc Sagar Film st Babubhai A. Mehta dial/lyr Zia Sarhadi c Keki N. Mistry
m Anil Biswas
lp Surendra, Motilal, Yakub, Zia Sarhadi, Pesi Patel, Bhudo Advani, Bibbo, Maya, Pande

The follow-up to Manmohan (1936) again starred Surendra and Bibbo. She is Neela, he plays Jagirdar Surendra. They secretly marry and have a child. When Jagirdar is presumed dead in a shipwreck, the child is considered illegitimate. The poor peasant Shripat (Pande) helps Neela by marrying her and raising her son Ramesh (Motilal). The husband eventually returns and violently quarrels with Shripat about who 'owns' Neela. When the villain Banwarilal kills Shripat, the husband is framed for the killing. The real problem, however, is the son's rejection of his father, solved when together they face the gangsters in Narayanlal's (Yakub) den. The orphan motif, repeated from Manmohan, contrasts with the woman's apparent state of 'illegitimacy' and both are used to elaborate a narrative able to question feudal patriarchy (cf. also Hum Tum Aur Wob, 1938) in contrast with e.g. Shantaram's Kunku (1937), Manoos (1939) or the later Dabej (1950), all of which strongly affirm feudal patriarchy.

JEEVAN PRABHAT

1937 144' b&w Hindi
d Franz Osten pc Bombay Talkies
s Niranjan Pal dial/lyr J.S. Casshyap c Josef Wirsching m Saraswati Devi

lp Devika Rani, Mumtaz Ali, Kishore Sahu, Renuka Devi, Chandraprabha, Maya Devi, Vimala Devi, Aloka, Tarabai Solanki, Saroj Baokar, Kamta Prasad, P.F. Pithawala, M. Nazir, N.M. Joshi, G.S. Vaishampayan

Osten returns to the familiar terrain of rural caste divisions (Achhut Kanya, 1936), adding polygamy to the theme in this story of Uma (Devika Rani), born in an orthodox Brahmin family. To the despair of her parents she values her friendship with low-caste potters, esp. with Ramu (Sahu). When she marries Nandlal (Ali), a man from her own caste, her potter friends are happy for her - until they learn that Nandlal is taking a second wife, Padma, with Uma's consent. The problem is that Uma is thought to be infertile. Uma returns to her parents' home mainly because Nandlal is paying no attention to his new wife, and when she returns she meets Ramu again. Nandlal overhears a conversation between Ramu and Uma and, when Uma suddenly discovers that she is pregnant after all, he doubts her fidelity. The problem is only solved by Padma's generous withdrawal from the scene.

KANHOPATRA

1937 147' b&w Marathi
d/s/lyr Bhalji Pendharkar pc Shalini Cinetone
c K.V. Machwe, S.P. Shinde m Balaji Chougule lp Leela Chandragiri, Chintamanrao Kolhatkar, Indubala, Sunubai, Gangadharant Londhe, Jaishankar Danve, Raja Paranjpe, Dinkar Kamanna, Vidyadhar Joshi, Shanta Hublikar

Pendharkar's social deals with a prostitute who decides to rebel against tradition and the individuals who oppress her. Society, represented by encounters with a variety of males, makes it virtually impossible for her to maintain any dignity. The film was admired for its use of colloquial language.

KISAN KANYA

1937 130' col Hindi
d Moti B. Gidwani pc Imperial Film st M. Ziauddin sc/dial Sadat Hasan Manto
c Rustom M. Irani m Ram Gopal Pandey lp Padmadevi, Jiloo, Ghulam Mohammed, Nissar, Syed Ahmed, Gani

Rural crime drama featuring an exploitative landlord (Gani) and a good peasant Ramu (Nissar) who is accused of murdering the landlord. Remembered mainly for being one of India's first colour films, using the Cinecolour process imported by Imperial.

KUNKU/DUNIYA NA MANE

aka The Unexpected
 1937 162'[M]/166'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d V. Shantaram pc Prabhat Film s Narayan Hari Apte from his Marathi novel Na Patnari Goshta lyr[M] Shantaram Athavale dial/lyr[H] Munshi Aziz c V. Avadhoot m Keshavrao Bhole

lp Shanta Apte, Keshavrao Date, Raja Nene, Vimala Vasisth, Shakuntala Paranjpye, Vasanti, Gauri, Master Chhotu, Karmarkar

Neera[M]/Nirmala[H] (Apte) is trapped into marrying the old widower Kakasaheb (Date). He is a progressive lawyer with a son and a daughter of Neera's age. She refuses to consummate the union, claiming repeatedly that while suffering can be borne, injustice cannot. After facing many hurdles including an aunt (Vasishtha), her mother-in-law, and a lascivious stepson Pandit[M]/Jugal[H] (Nene), her husband has a change of heart and magnanimously commits suicide, enjoining Neera to marry someone more suitable. The change occurs mainly through his widowed daughter Chitra[M]/Sushila[H] (Paranjpye, a noted social worker off screen) who provides a forcefully feminist moment in a speech to the young bride. Apte sings the combative song In the world's broad field of battle...Be not like dumb, driven cattle written by Longfellow. The original novel was a landmark in Maharashtra's social reform movement denouncing arranged and venal marriages that ignore women's rights. Shantaram's version stresses melodramatic overtones while indulging in some bravura visual stylisations, e.g. in the editing (he edited his own films) of the brief marriage sequence or the shattered mirror scene returning multiple laughing faces to the distraught old man gazing into the mirror, the leitmotif of the ticking clock, etc., many of these stylised images referring obliquely to the old man's sexual impotence. Apte's performance in her first leading role displays a modern freshness ahead of its time which established her as India's foremost singing star of the 30s. The veterans Fattalal and Damle did the art direction and the sound respectively. The Hindi title translates literally as 'The world will not accept...' while the Marathi title refers to the vermilion mark adorning the forehead of a married woman.

MINNALKODI

aka Bolt of Lightning
 1937 158' b&w Tamil
d K. Amarnath pc Mohan Pics lp K.T. Rukmini, B. Srinivasa Rao, Coco, Gogia Pasha

The Tamil debut of Bombay-based producers making cheaper versions of Wadia Movietone stunt films such as C. Parekh's Jungle Ka Jawan (1938) or Amarnath's Chashmawali (1939). Left fatherless and swindled by a nasty uncle, young Mohini (Anglo-Indian actress Rukmini) and her servant (Coco, aka Pasubulti Ramulu Naidu, a circus artiste turned comedian) come across the injured dacoit Minnalkodi. When he dies, Mohini takes on his identity and becomes a feared Robin Hood-type figure pursued by Inspector Jayakumar (Srinivasa Rao) who falls in love with her, reforms and marries her. The accent is on Mohini imitating Fearless Nadia as a dacoit: fighting, riding horses and, unusually for the genre, motorcycles. Rukmini models herself on the Hindi cinema's Gohar, even draping her sari in the Gujarati style.

MOHINI RUGMANGADA

1937 c.165' b&w Telugu

d Ch. Narasimha Rao pc National Movietone
s/lyr Tapi Dharma Rao c Boman D. Irani
m B. Narasimha Rao
lp Vemuri Gaggaiah, T. Suryanarayana, Ramatilakam, Pulipati, Vemuri Parabrahma Sastry, Saraswathi, Pushpa, Hemavathi, Kumpatla Subba Rao, Krithiventi Subba Rao,
 T. Ramakrishna Sastry, Susarla Ramchandra
 Rao, C. Krishnaveni

Proselytising mythological advocating the ekadashi 'vrata' (a ritual fast on the 11th day of the lunar month). Strongly promoted, it claimed to bring a new variety to Telugu cinema, featuring scenes from heaven (Brahmalok) and hell (Yamalok), 'moulded strictly according to ancient traditions' (ad in the Andhra Patrika). T. Ramakrishna Sastry, playing Narada, sings his musical forte, Tarangini, with the numbers Ebi mudam debi and Veekshe kada devadevam in the traditional style.

MUKTI

aka The Liberation of the Soul, A Tale of a Broken Heart

1937 139'[B]/155'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d/sc P.C. Barua pc New Theatres st/dial/co-lyr[B] Sajanikanta Das co-lyr[b] Rabindranath Tagore, Ajoy Bhattacharya dial/co-lyr[H] A.H. Shore co-lyr[H] Arzoo c Bimal Roy
m Pankaj Mullick

lp P.C. Barua, Kanan Devi, Menaka, Nawab[H], Amar Mullick[B], Sailen Choudhury[B], Ahi Sanyal[B], Jagdish Sethi[H], Bikram Kapoor[H], Pankaj Mullick[B], Indu Mukherjee[B]

Barua's classic adultery story tells of an artist, Prasanta (Barua) presented in the stereotypically romantic image: dedicated to his vocation, paying no heed to his scandalous reputation (he paints nude models) and with a cavalier attitude to his conservative father-in-law's (Choudhury) demands for good social behaviour. He is married to the rich Chitra (Kanan Devi). The couple are in love but neither partner is prepared to compromise their ideals. The marriage falls apart. Prasanta concedes his wife's demand for a divorce and goes to the jungles of Assam, where for many years his closest associates are a wild elephant and Jharna (Menaka), the wife of an innkeeper named Pahari (P. Mullick). He also makes a sworn enemy of a local trader (Nawab/A. Mullick). Chitra marries the millionaire Bipul (Mukherjee) and they go on an elephant hunt. They kill Prasanta's pet elephant. Since Chitra believes Prasanta to be dead he avoids meeting her, but he is forced to rescue her from the villainous trader. Prasanta succeeds but dies at Chitra's feet. The film interprets his death as Chitra's final achievement of the freedom she had craved. Barua contrasts the regressive story presented as static and unresolved, both as narrative and as performance, with a hyperactive environment that overwhelms the trivial nature of the lead couple's desires. There are many sequence shots tracking through walls - including the justly celebrated

'psychological' opening shot as Prasanta walks through one door after another until he reaches his studio, and from interior to exterior, while nature is exemplified by mountains, trees, wind and charging elephants. This was one of the first elaborate filmic uses of Tagore's lyrics, with the poet's original tunes (Sabar range rang, Mesa te hobe, Tar biday belar malakbani), but one of the film's big hits, Diner sheshe ghumer deshe, was composed originally for the film by Mullick.

PRATIBHA

1937 124' b&w Marathi/Hindi

d Baburao Painter pc Shalini Cinetone st/co-dial[M] Narayan Hari Apte, from his novel Hridayachi Shrimanti co-dial/co-lyr[H] Pandit Anand Kumar m/co-lyr[M] Govindrao Tembe c K.V. Machwe lp Durga Khote, Keshavrao Date, Miss Heera, Hirabai Badodekar, Nanasaheb Phatak, Master Shyam, Vishnupant Aundhkar, S.D. Danve, V.S. Jog, Raja Paranjpe, V.B. Date

The poet Prasad (K. Date) lives far from the city in a forest, enjoying only the company of his wife Pratibha (Khote). The court poet Kaveeshwar (Phatak) of a neighbouring kingdom discovers Prasad's poetry and, more importantly, his beautiful wife, and invites them to his palace, promising fame and glory. Against Pratibha's advice, Prasad succumbs to temptation, only to see his work plagiarised and his wife harassed. One of Painter's biggest films at Shalini (and one of the few to have been preserved) shows his control over big sets, lighting and crowd scenes, cf. the princess's birthday scene with Prasad amid the crowd outside while his poetry is being recited inside, and the film's emotional highlight when a distressed Prasad and Pratibha leave the palace in a raging storm. The well-known classical singer Hirabai Badodekar sings three songs.

RAJAMOCHAN

1937 c.210' b&w Tamil

d Fram Sethna pc National Movietone
s V.M. Kothainayaki Ammal c Boman D. Irani m Yanai Vaidhyanatha Iyer, H.H. Sharma lp K.P. Kesavan, P.U. Chinnappa, A.K. Rajalakshmi, M.M. Radhabai, Kali
 N. Rathnam

Stagey musical reform melodrama adapting a well-known novel by the female novelist Kothainayaki Ammal. When his poor mother, a vegetable vendor, becomes too frail to work, the hero, Mohan (Kesavan), drops out of school and becomes a proofreader of a popular journal. Mohan falls in love with the proprietor's daughter, Rajam, and ends up as editor. When the proprietor is killed Mohan is accused, but he eventually clears himself. The noted actor-singer of stage mythologicals P.U. Chinnappa makes a rare appearance in a contemporary setting as Krishnan, the proprietor's villainous son. The music was mainly Carnatic and, following the stage convention, Kali N. Rathnam provided comedy relief. In keeping with convention, the film opens with a song in praise of the producers and asks Ganesh to make the venture a success.

SAVITRI

1937 136' b&w Hindi

d Franz Osten pc Bombay Talkies
s Niranjan Pal dial/lyr J.S. Casshyap c Josef Wirsching m Saraswati Devi lp Devika Rani, Ashok Kumar, Chandraprabha, Sunita Devi, Vimala Devi, Maya Devi, Sushila, Aloka, Madhurika Devi, Tarabai Solanki, Kamta Prasad, Mumtaz Ali,
 P.F. Pithawala, M. Nazir

Unusual mythological from the unit best known for ruralist reform dramas. The love story from the Mahabharata, already told as a silent film in the Italian co-production Savitri (1923), features Devika Rani as the heroine born through divine benediction to Ashwapati, and Ashok Kumar as Satyavan, son of an exiled and blinded hermit. Although Satyavan is scheduled to die soon, Savitri marries him and eventually propitiates Yama, the god of death, to return Satyavan's life and to restore her father-in-law's sight.

TALKIE OF TALKIESaka Dasturmoto Talkie

1937 139' b&w Bengali

d/co-s Sisir Bhaduri pc Kali Films co-s Jaladhar Chattopadhyay's play Reetimata Natak (1936)
c Suresh Das
lp Sisir Bhaduri, Ahindra Choudhury, Jahar Ganguly, Kankabati, Ranibala, Sailen Choudhury, Surabala

A film derived from a play about life imitating art. Prof. Digambar Majumdar's (Bhaduri) sister Shanta defies her brother's wishes and marries Biren, whom she nursed to health after knocking him down in her car. Shanta and Biren join the stage, to the consternation of her brother, and come to a tragic end when it is revealed that Biren already has a wife and son. Shanta dies trying to save Biren from committing suicide. Bhaduri's film version, which follows the old Taj Mahal film style, ignores all the developments in film technique and provides a straight stage adaptation using painted backdrops.

WAHANaka Beyond the Horizon

1937 130' b&w Hindi

d/s K. Narayan Kale pc Prabhat Cinetone dial/lyr Narottam Vyas c V. Avadhoot m Master Krishnarao lp Shanta Apte, Leela Chitnis, Prahlad, Aruna Devi, Chandramohan, Ulhas, Master Chhotu, Vasant Desai

Kale's debut direction mixes Prabhat's baroque period movie style (cf. Amritmanthan, 1934) with the primitivist iconography of Hollywood's biblical epics. The setting vaguely evokes an ancient Aryan society ruled by Kodandavarna (Chandramohan), a dictator committed to the ideals of Aryan justice. A stone statue of Justice collapses, threatening to crush many slaves. The situation is saved by the youthful Jeevan (Prahlaad), the king of an aboriginal tribe. Jeevan then falls in love with Princess Jayanti (Chitnis). Although mainly a romance, the film also addresses ideals of justice and morality. Its key characters include the villainous vice boss Madhuvrat (Chhotu) who plots against Kodandavarma and entraps Uttam (Ulhas), the designated heir to the throne, and the dancing girl Lata (Apte) who is forced to seduce Uttam so as to alleviate the slaves' suffering. The film was known even at the time of its release for Kale's innovative screenplay and esp. for the nonsense rhymes of the drinkers at Madhuvrat's bar.

ABHIGYAN/ABHAGIN

1938 143'[B]/151'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d Prafulla Roy pc New Theatres
st Upendranath Ganguly sc Phani Majumdar
dial[H] A.H. Shore lyr Ajoy Bhattacharya[B]/ Munshi Arzoo[H] c Bimal Roy m Rai Chand Boral
lp Molina Devi, Prithviraj Kapoor[H]/Jiban Ganguly[B], Vijay Kumar[H]/Sailen Choudhury[B], Nemo[H]/Manoranjan Bhattacharya[B], Bikram Kapoor[H]/Bhanu Bannerjee[B], Devbala, Manorama, Hashmat, Menaka, Rajalakshmi, Pankaj Mullick

A tenant attacks the villainous landlord Jawaharlal Choudhury (Nemo/Bhattacharya), injures his son Priyalal (Kumar/Choudhury) and abducts his daughter-in-law Sandhya (Molina Devi). Sandhya escapes unharmed to her relative, the engineer Prakash (B. Kapoor/Bannerjee), but her father-in-law refuses to take her back, believing her to be 'damaged goods'. Sheltered by the kindly Promode (P. Kapoor/Ganguly), her husband eventually accepts her back although she feels torn between affection for her saviour and her marital obligations. Based on a story by Bengali novelist Upendranath Ganguly (1881-1960), who was a follower of the best-known novelist of the reformist Bengali social, Saratchandra Chattopadhyay, Majumdar's script is the high point of the film, working with a literary authenticity often attempted but not always achieved by New Theatres.

ABHILASHA

aka Postman
 1938 134' b&w Hindi
co-d/s/lyr Zia Sarhadi co-d Mahendra Thakore pc Sagar Film c Rajnikant Pandya m Anil Biswas
lp Kumar, Bibbo, Maya, Yakub, Bhudo Advani, Sankatha

Sarhadi's directorial debut constituted a move towards a didactic cinema, following e.g. R.S. Choudhury's Hamari Betiyan (1936), later extended by Mehboob. Postman Shishir (Kumar) is obsessed by the desire to own a car. He meets the crook Vinod (Yakub) who promises him a car if he will become his accomplice. The film includes a character named Devdas (Advani) obsessed with violins, who provokes the failure of Vinod's plot to have Shishir framed for the murder of Sushila (Bibbo).

ADHIKAR

1938 133'[B]/132'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/s P.C. Barua pc New Theatres dial/lyr[B] Ajoy Bhattacharya lyr[H] Munshi Arzoo, Rashid
c Yusuf Mulji m Timir Baran lp P.C. Barua, Jamuna, Pahadi Sanyal, Pankaj Mullick, Rajalakshmi, Menaka Devi, Sailen Choudhury[B], Indu Mukherjee[B], Molina Devi[B], Chitralkha[B], Ushabati[B], Jagdish
 Sethi[H], Bikram Kapoor[H]

Melodrama about lineage and property questions. Nikhilesh (Barua) loves heiress Indira (Jamuna). A poor orphan girl, Radha (Menaka Devi), arrives claiming to be Indira's stepsister and therefore part inheritor of the family estate. Indira agrees to share her inheritance but then Radha makes a play for Nikhilesh. Ultimately, Radha turns out to be the real and sole heir. Love proves to be stronger than material possession as Indira and Nikhilesh get married and Radha finds happiness with Ratan, a man she had known and loved during her days of poverty. As each character returns to the class of his/her birth, the message hammered home is a warning to people never to transcend their social status. Barua continues his emphasis on the contrast between poverty and wealth, stylising the opulence of the wealthy interiors. Radha becomes 'unnatural' away from the realism of her slum while Indira's problem, threatened with the potential loss of her property, is seen mainly as one of alienation. The film also continues Barua's fascination with showing the urban-rural (read modern-traditional) split through the contrasting personalities of two women, a device inaugurated in Devdas (1935) and repeated even in his last major film Shesh Uttar/Jawab (1942), although Adhikar is probably the most confused and cynical of its many versions.

BAGHBAN

1938 159' b&w Hindi
d/sc/dial A.R. Kardar pc General Films st Begum Ansari lyr Mirza Musharrif c Kukde m Mushtaq Hussain lp Bimla Kumari, B. Nandrekar, Sitara Devi, Yasmin, Putlibai, Ashraf Khan, Nazir, Lala Yakub, K.N. Singh, R. Wasti, Mirza Musharrif

The naive Saroop (Nandrekar) romantically renounces earthly pleasures under the influence of a sadhu (Ashraf Khan). Arrested at a fairground and jailed, fellow convicts change his view of the world. Working in the prison's garden, he meets the superintendent Sohanlal's (Nazir) daughter Durga (Kumari), who was married as a child to a boy now believed dead. Ranjit (Singh) covets her and on her wedding day to the nasty Ranjit, it is discovered that Saroop was her child-husband. Kardar's fascination with sexually deviant behaviour and the violence just below the surface of reformism (cf. Pagal, Pooja, both 1940) is manifest in one of his first Bombay films.

BALAN

1938 180'(16,235 ft) b&w Malayalam
d S. Nottani p T.R. Sundaram pc Modern

Theatres st/co-dial A. Sundaram sc/co-dial/lyr Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai c Bado Gushwalkar
lp K.N. Laxmikutty, A.K. Kamalam, K.K. Aroor, Alleppey Vincent, A.B. Pious, Master Madan, Gopal, Miss Malathy, C.O.N. Nambiar,
 M.V. Sanku, Gopinathan Nair, Parukutty

Described as the first Malayalam sound film, made at the Modern Theatres, Salem. The story features the struggles of two orphaned children, Balan and his younger sister, oppressed and exploited by an evil stepmother until they are rescued by a kindly lawyer. The film ends with Balan sacrificing his happiness for that of his sister. Many of the stereotypes, esp. the wicked stepmother taking over the ancestral property of her spineless husband, and the helpless children, dominated the early Malayalam cinema for some time after they were introduced there. Apparently initiated by a Nagercoil resident, A. Sundaram, who got the Modern Theatres to back his project of filming his story Mrs Nair and Fate, was later eased out by the studio who recommissioned the script to playwright Pillai. Director Nottani also directed the next attempt in the campaign by Tamil producers to capture a Malayalam market, with Gnanambika (1940).

BHAKTA JAYADEVA

1938 c.155' b&w Telugu
d Hiren Bose pc Andhra Cinetone lp Rentachintala Sanyanarayana, Surabhi Kamalabai, Shantakumari,
 V. Venkateshwarulu

Big-budget but unsuccessful saint film about Jayadeva (12th C.), the author of the Geet Govind. The story shows the enmity between Jayadeva and Taranatha, who first burns down Jayadeva's house and then imprisons his wife. Help comes in the form of bandits who rob the villain's house and blind him.

BHUKAILASA

1938 189' b&w Tamil
d/p Sundarrao Nadkarni pc Sundaram Sound Studios st Ramayana dial Ayyulu Somayajulu lyr Yanai Vaidyanatha Iyer lp Hansa Damayanti, S. Santhanam, Mahadeva Iyer, Master Mani, Azoorie

The first film version of this celebrated Ramayana episode features Ravana (Santhanam) and his wife Mandodhari (Damayanti). Although a hit, it was eclipsed by Meiyappan's multilingual 1940 version of the same story. For the plot, cf. Bhukailasa, 1958.

BRAHMACHARI

1938 152'[M]/156'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d Master Vinayak pc Huns Pics
s/lyr[M] P.K. Atre dial/lyr[H] Pandit Indra
c Pandurang Naik m Dada Chandekar lp Master Vinayak, Meenakshi, V.G. Jog, Salvi, Damuanna Malvankar, Javdekar

Vinayak's Atre-scripted film initiated his best-known series of political satires (Brandichi Baili/Brandy Ki Botal, 1939; Sarkari Pabune, 1942). The title means 'The Celibate' and addresses the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), a Hindu organisation emphasising celibacy and discipline, which became the power base of the right-wing Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP). An ordinary young man Audumbar (Vinayak), inspired by a militant lecture on bachelorhood and nationalism by the Deshbhakta Jatashankar (Javdekar), renounces sexual desire, throws away his collection of movie star posters, starts exercising his muscles in the tradition of Hanuman's disciples and joins the Self-Help Institute of the Acharya Chandiram (Malvankar). All his discipline comes to nought in the face of Kishori (Meenakshi). The film was the first to feature actors most associated with Vinayak's brand of satire: V.G. Jog and Damuanna Malvankar (the duo in the film-maker's legendary Chimamrao series). Malvankar's tremendously popular role in the film was his first big success. Meenakshi also makes her first appearance in a Vinayak film and here she sings, dressed in a bathing costume in a pool, the sensational seduction number Yamuna jali kbelu kbelu.

DESHER MATI/DHARTI MATA

aka The Motherland

1938 163[B]/165[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/sc/c/co-st/co-dial Nitin Bose co-st/dia[B] Binoy Chatterjee, Sailajananda Mukherjee, Sudhir Sen lyr[H] Sudarshan m Pankaj Mullick
lp K.L. Saigal, K.C. Dey, Umasashi, Pankaj Mullick, Shyam Laha, Durgadas Bannerjee[B], Indu Mukherjee[B], Amar Mullick[B], Kanu Bannerjee[B], Chandrabati Devi[B], Ahi Sanyal[B], Kamlesh Kumari[H], Nemo[H], Nawab[H], Prithviraj Kapoor[H], Jagdish Sethi[H]

Inspired apparently by Dovzhenko's cinema, Nitin Bose's call for a technological revolution in the agrarian sector through collective farming is presented in the guise of a love story. Ashok (Saigal) goes to a village, mobilises the peasants, fights the oppression of the village headman and achieves bumper crops. Childhood friend Ajoy (Sethi) goes to England to study mining technology and is determined to make a success of a mining project in the rural area where Ashok is working. Each has radically different ideas about what is best for an independent nation. Ajoy's sister Protibha (Kumari), who loves Ashok, secretly finances Ajoy's rural modernisation endeavours. Ajoy, unaware of this, falls in love with Gauri (Umasashi), daughter of the social outcast Kunja (Dey). When Ajoy returns from England, he discovers that the best coalfields lie directly beneath Ashok's land. The crisis is manifested in a drought that threatens to destroy Ashok's work and prove Ajoy's contentions right. Ajoy starts buying up the land but the rains arrive just in time to resurrect Ashok's rural-socialist dreams. The music credit is shared by Pankaj Mullick, Umasashi and K.C. Dey, but Saigal dominates the film in spite of singing only two songs, Kisne yeh sab kbel rachaya and A main ka karun kiib jaon.

DOUBLE CROSS

1938 142' b&w Hindi

d/s/p Mohan Bhavnani dial Rai Mohan c F. Berko, Dara R. Mistry m Badriprasad lp Bimala Kumari, S.B. Nayampally, Fatty Prasad, Amina, David, Kishore, A.S. Gyani, R. Dilawar, Master Hussain, Rai Mohan

Bhavnani moved away from his reformist ambitions (Mazdoor, 1934; Jagran, 1936) when he turned independent producer with this film. This modernisation drama tells of Prof. Mukherjee (David), the inventor of a diamond manufacturing process. His uncle, the stockbroker Romesh Chandra (Gyani) who invests in diamond mines, faces bankruptcy because Sardar Mulkraj (Nayampally) plots to ruin the mine owner Rangnath (Mohan) and take power in the feudal state of Panipur. The invention can alter the power struggle if either of the factions gets hold of it. The conflict is eventually solved by a masked stranger who turns out to be a policeman.

DUSHMAN/JIBAN MARAN

aka The Enemy

1938 144' b&w Hindi/Bengali

d/sc/c Nitin Bose st/co-dia[B] Sailajananda Mukherjee, Binoy Chatterjee, co-dia[H] Sudarshan lyr Munshi Arzoo m Pankaj Mullick

lp K.L. Saigal, Lia Desai, Najam, Shiraz Farooque, Nemo, Devbala, Manorama, Elias Chowla, Jagdish Sethi, Dhumi Khan, Boken Chatto, Bhanu Bannerjee, Indu Mukherjee

Made at the invitation of the governmental Tuberculosis Fund in the context of Lady Linlithgow's immunisation programme. Mohan (Saigal), a radio singer, and Kedar (Najam), a doctor, both love Geeta (Desai). Mohan falls ill and makes way for Kedar, who eventually marries Geeta. After wandering in a delirium, Mohan is admitted to a sanatorium where he is cured of TB. He is then employed in the same institution. In a campaign to set up more sanatoria, Mohan agrees to sing on the radio (the film's song hit Pankhi aaj kon katha ko) to raise funds while Kedar persuades Geeta to give a dance recital. Geeta hears Mohan's broadcast and rushes to him followed by Kedar. To heighten the emotions for the climax of the story, Geeta has a bad accident and is admitted to the very sanatorium where Mohan works. The Hindi version was a major hit and led to a virtually identical Bengali remake. Seen today, however, it appears hopelessly dated, stringing together shots of carefully lit individual figures but indicating no control over its rambling narration.

GOPAL KRISHNA

1938 132' b&w Marathi/Hindi

d V. Damle, S. Fattelal pc Prabhat Film s/dial Shivram Vashikar lyr Shantaram Athavale c V. Avadhoot m Master Krishnarao

lp Ram Marathe, Shanta Apte, Parashuram, Shankar, Ganpatrao, Haribhau, Manajirao, Sophia

Damle and Fattelal followed up their hit Sant Tukaram (1936) with this remake of Shantaram's silent mythological Gopal Krishna (1929). It tells of the playful child Krishna (Marathe) and his battle against the evil King Kamsa (Ganpatrao) who rules the city of Gokul. The stories, mainly from the popular Bhagvat and Visnu Purana, also show Krishna vanquishing Keshi (Haribhau), Kamsa's general who arrives in disguise to capture him. Finally, when Kamsa unleashes rain and flood over the city (in a departure from the original legend where Indra caused the natural disaster), Krishna raises the mountain Govardhan over the people to protect them. From its opening sequences showing the cows and cowherds returning at sunset, the milking of the animals and the churning of the milk, the film develops a strongly materialist flavour, playing down 'miracle' scenes until the climactic storm and the raising of the mountain. The fast-paced dialogue and esp. the antics of Krishna's sidekick Pendya (Parashuram) help to make this a family favourite which made the child actor (and later noted classical musician) Ram Marathe famous.

GRAMOPHONE SINGER

1938 148' b&w Hindi

co-d/s Ramchandra Thakur co-d V.C. Desai pc Sagar Film st/co-lyr Sudarshan dial/co-lyr Zia Sarhadi c Keki Mistry m Anil Biswas

lp Surendra, Bibbo, Prabha, Bhudo Advani, Sankantha, Pande, Jamoo Patel, Pesi Patel, Kayamali, Sawant, Kanhaiyalal, Gulzar, Durga, Agashe, Master Devdas, Naval

Thakur's music-dominated debut tells of a love triangle involving the famous gramophone singer Sundardas (Surendra) who is happily married to Mohini (Prabha), and the even more popular singer Tiltotama (Bibbo), who falls in love with Sundardas's voice and wants them to sing a duet and have an affair. Ghosh Babu (Advani) is the manager of the record label.

GRIHALAKSHMI

1938 184' b&w Telugu

d H.M. Reddy pc Rohini Pics
s/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya
c K. Ramnoth

m Prabhala Satyanarayana lp Chittoor V. Nagaiah, Gauripathy Sastry, Ramanujachari, Govindrajulu Subbarao, P. Kannamba, Kanchanmala, Sarala, Mohini

Debut production of Vauhini's predecessor, Rohini Pics, launching a local, Madras-based Telugu film industry with the first Telugu reformist social made in the same year as the equally influential Raitu Bidda (1939). The film tells of a decadent dancer, Madhuri (Kanchanmala), who seduces the upright Dr Krishna Rao (Ramanujachari) into leaving his good wife Radha (Kannamba). The doctor becomes an alcoholic and is framed for the murder of Vishwasa Rao, the trustee of his father's estate. Krishna Rao's brother-in-law Gopinath (Nagaiah) helps the hero and later offers shelter to a destitute Radha. Radha has a scuffle with Madhuri, falls down the stairs and becomes mentally unbalanced, ending up walking the streets of Madras denouncing god, truth and justice. Nagaiah's sensational debut included the two hits Kallu manandoyi (Leave this drinking) and the upbeat nationalist Lendu bharata veerulara (Arise, soldiers of India). The film's narrative style became a key model for Vauhini's sprawling melodramas, among the best-known Indian films in the genre. The film was apparently adapted from the popular stage play Rangoon Rowdy.

⊗ HUM TUM AUR WO

aka We Three

1938 157' b&w Hindi-Urdu

d Mehboob Khan pc Sagar Movietone

s/co-lyr Wajahat Mirza co-lyr Zia Sarhadi

c Fareedoon Irani m Anil Biswas

lp Motilal, Maya, Rose, Yakub, Bhudg Advani, Harish, Sankantha, Pande, Sunalini Devi

Mehboob presents the autonomous passion of Leela (Rose) for Moti (Motilal) who is promised to another woman, Bina (Maya). Leela is portrayed as irresponsible and impulsive as she acknowledges her desire for Moti and has a child by him. Bina then releases Moti from his promise. Moti suffers when he is told by Bina's father (Sankantha) that she is dead, while Leela's father (Pande) enjoins his daughter to commit suicide if Moti does not marry her. In spite of the film's endorsement of 'traditional', lethally oppressive patriarchal mores, incarnated by the women's fathers, Mehboob's narrative at least dares to depict a woman who refuses to feel guilty about her desire.

⊗ JAILOR

1938 150' b&w Hindi-Urdu

d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone

st/lyr Ameer Haider Kamal [Kamal Amrohi]

sc J.K. Nanda c Y.D. Sarpotdar m Mir Sahib

lp Sohrab Modi, Leela Chitnis, Sadiq Ali, Eruch Tarapore, Abu Baker, Sheila, Sharifa, Kumari Kamala, Kusum Deshpande

Modi's first psychodramatic role as a liberal man becoming a tyrannical jailer (remade with Geeta Bali in 1958). He loses his wife to a lover who then goes blind. The jailer locks up his wife, Kanwal, in their own home, forbidding any contact with their child, Bali. Later the jailer himself falls in love with a blind woman, Chhaya, only to lose her as well.

⊗ JWALA

1938 161'[M]/165'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi

d Master Vinayak pc Huns Pics s/dial/lyr[M]

V.S. Khandekar dia[H] Pandit Indra

c Pandurang Naik m Dhamman Khan, Dada Chandekar

lp Chandramohan, Ratnaprabha, Ashalata, Master Vinayak, Chandrakant, Rajani, Dhvale, Bulbule

Vinayak changes from his usual melodramas to a period fantasy with this tale of a good general Angar (Chandramohan) who is corrupted by ambition. Echoing Macbeth, the loyal Angar is told by the witch Kuntala (Ashalata) that his king (Bulbule) shall die and that he shall be king instead. Angar then kills the king and seizes power. Departing from Macbeth, Angar's wife Mangala (Ratnaprabha) and his friend Tarang (Chandrakant) do not approve and they eventually join forces with the people against Angar. The dying Angar is seen crawling towards the throne which lies just beyond his reach. A rare Marathi film by the Hindi actor Chandramohan who seems ill at ease with the language. The big-budget film was a major flop from which Huns Pics never recovered, despite the success of their next production, Brahmachari (1938).

⊗ KAMBAR

1938 177' b&w Tamil

d C.S.U. Sankar pc Vel Pics, Madan Theatres

lp S.V. Subbaiah Bhagavathar, C.S. Swarnambal, Narayan Rao, R.P. Yagneshwaran, Devuluri,

Venkataraju

Vel Pics' Saint Film on the legend of Kamban, the 9th-C. Tamil poet who left the Chola court to become a wanderer and composed the Tamil classic Kambaramayana. The film's major attraction was the starring actor Bhagavathar's music.

⊗ MALAPILLA

aka The Outcast Girl

1938 c.175' b&w Telugu

d Gudavalli Ramabrahmam pc Sarathi Studio

co-s Gudipati Venkatachalam co-s/co-lyr Tapi

Dharma Rao co-lyr Basavaraju Apparao

c Sailen Bose m B. Narasimha Rao

lp Govindrajulu Subbarao, Kanchanmala, Sundaramma, Suribabu, Gali Venkateshwara

Rao, Venkatasubbaiah, M.C. Raghavan,

Hemalathamma Rao, Gangarathnam,

P. Laxmikantamma, Teku Ansuya, Puvvula

Ansuya, Bhanumathi

Radical director Ramabrahmam's debut feature tells of a Harijan woman (Kanchanmala) who falls in love with a Brahmin Nagaraju (Gali Venkateshwara Rao) in a direct critique of exploitative Brahmin rituals. The musical hit including songs like Nallavade golla pillavade and Aa mubbu ee mubbu established the poet Basavaraju Apparao as a film lyricist. Addressing the problem of caste, a major issue in South Indian politics, it was dedicated to the maharajah of Travancore who had passed a law allowing members of all castes to enter temples. On its release, the film caused a sensation, rejecting the stage-derived mythological genre dominating 1930s Telugu cinema.

⊗ MAZHA MULGA/MERA LADKA

aka My Son

1938 161' b&w Marathi/Hindi

d K. Narayan Kale pc Prabhat Film

s Y.G. Joshi lyr Shantaram Athavale[M], Sampatnal Srivastava 'Anuj'[H] c V. Avadhoot

m Keshavrao Bhole

lp Shanta Hublikar, Shahu Modak[M],

Ulhas[H], Mama Bhatt, Vasant Thengadi, Vatsalabai Joshi, Balakram, Master Chhotu,

Sundarabai

Radical journalist Diwakar (Modak) runs a printing press and edits a newspaper, much to the disapproval of his authoritarian middle-class father who believes that all respectable youths should get a job and settle down. Diwakar's scheming politician friend Vithalrao (Thengadi) incites a strike and acquires the press and the paper with the help of Diwakar's father, causing Diwakar to leave home in disgust. His rich girlfriend Nalini (Hublikar) also enters politics, first on the side of the corrupt Vithalrao, then campaigning for Diwakar who represents the slum-dwellers for the municipal elections. Although Diwakar's father campaigns on behalf of Nalini, she tells people not to vote for her but to elect Diwakar instead. Although Nalini wins, the film presents Diwakar's loss as a moral victory. Director

Vasant Thengadi in Mazha Mulga

Kale, himself a former radical journalist, made his first contemporary story as a critique of Maharashtrian middle-class materialism. He also published a long essay on the film, 'Mazha Mulgachya Nimitthane', (1939). Launching the star combination of Modak and Hublikar, repeated in Shantaram's hit Manoos (1939), the film essayed a realist idiom new to the Prabhat Studio (esp. in the scenes at the printing press). Hit songs included Pabu re kiti vaat (Hublikar) and Ya sagle jan laukar ya (Modak).

MOHINI BHASMASURA

1938 183' b&w Telugu

d C. Pullaiah pc Andhra Talkies

lyr D. Venkatavadham c G.V. Bhadsavale lp Pushpavalli, Dasari Kotiratnam, A.V. Subba Rao, Nagarajakumari, Tungala Chalapathi Rao

Pullaiah's widely advertised mythological about the demon Bhasmasura who comes to earth armed with a boon from Shiva and causes mayhem until Vishnu, in the guise of Mohini (Pushpavalli), brings about the demon's self-destruction. The film's main attraction was the star Pushpavalli, promoted as a divine beauty come down to earth. The advertising, by the London Film Exchange (which controlled distribution rights), also stressed the location scenes and their 'natural scenic beauty'.

NANDAKUMAR

1938 156' b&w Tamil

d Narayanrao D. Sarpotdar

p A.V. Meiyappan pc Pragati Pics

lyr A.T. Krishnaswamy c Pai m S.A. Venkatraman lp V.A. Chellappa, C.V.V. Panthulu, T.P. Rajalakshmi, T.R. Mahalingam, Krishnamurthy, G.S. Sandow, T.S. Rajalakshmi

The breakthrough for producer A.V. Meiyappan (see AVM Film) is also the Marathi director Sarpotdar's only venture into Tamil. The mythological features the birth, childhood and the early antics of Krishna (Mahalingam), culminating in the death of Kamsa. The mandatory miracle scenes gave ample scope for special effects in a narrative format that had by now congealed into a formula. The film was originally planned as a Prabhat trilingual, but Meiyappan dropped out when the Marathi and Hindi versions by Dhaiber failed. This was the famous Carnatic musician T.R. Mahalingam's film debut, aged 14, his powerful singing voice being among its star attractions. The sound was recorded by Y.S. Kothare and C.E. Biggs.

SARBAJANIN BIBAHOTSAB

1938 c.130' b&w Bengali

d Satu Sen pc Kali Films s Sachindranath

Sengupta c Suresh Das m Kamal Dasgupta lp Jiban Ganguly, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Jabar Ganguly, Nabadwip Halder, Haridhan Mukherjee, Santosh Sinha, Ranibala, Sabitri, Usha, Bina

Stage director and technician Satu Sen's best-known film is an elaborately plotted farce written by noted playwright Sengupta (1892-1961), better known for his historicals and reformist melodramas (Straj-ud-Dowla, 1938; Janana, 1933). The story features five couples: stage actor Bimal is loved by actress Chameli but prefers Kamala. When Kamala announces her marriage with Pranadhan, Chameli disguises herself and tries to implicate Pranadhan in a scandal. He escapes by disguising himself as an old man, but winds up in the clutches of Banalata. Departing from the conventions of the Bengali comedy of manners, this film about acting vertiginously multiplies the 'disguise' motif and culminates in a quintuple wedding. According to contemporary reviews, excessive plotting detracted from the film's success.

SEVA SADAN

1938 210' b&w Tamil

d K. Subramanyam pc Chandraprabha

Cinetone, Madras United Artists st Premchand's novel Bazaar-e-Husn (1919) c Sailen Bose.

lp M.S. Subbulakshmi, F.G. Natesa Iyer, Mrs Jayalakshmi, Varadachar, Rampiary, Pattu Iyer, Mani Bhagavathar, A.K. Kamalam, Jolly Kittu, Sitalakshmi, S. Varalakshmi

Written originally in Urdu, the novel's translation became Premchand's first Hindi work of fiction. The writer was distressed by Nanubhai Vakil's film version (1934) and Subramanyam's Tamil film put it back into its original reformist shape. The novel deals with prostitution and women's emancipation. While retaining its political thrust, Subramanyam made it a musical, casting the debuting Subbulakshmi in the lead as Suman. Both her performance and that of her co-star, Natesa Iyer as Gajadhar Pande, won acclaim. The music was very popular and served partly to blunt the anticipated conservative opposition to the plot's feminist overtones. Subbulakshmi's Shyammasundara madana mobana was a major hit. Sitalakshmi, a brahmin widow, played 'herself' as Gundamma, a widow who goes mad, and was especially popular. Actress Rampiary was imported from Bombay for the film.

STATE EXPRESS

1938 171' b&w Hindi

d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics dial/lyr

Sampatnal Srivastava 'Anuj' m Lallubhai Nayak lp Jayant, Sardar Akhtar, Umakant, Shirin, Zaverbhai, M. Zahur, Lallubhai, Ismail, Jehangir, Chhotejaan, Vithaldas, Athavale

Successful stunt movie featuring a vivacious prince (Jayant), his evil uncle, and a masked girl (Akhtar). Its major attractions, apart from Akhtar who also sings all the songs, is a performing gorilla. Together with e.g. Leatherface (1939), this is the best known of mythological specialist Bhatt's early stunt work.

STREET SINGER/SAATHI

1938 135'[H]/144'[B] b&w Hindi/Bengali

d/s Phani Majumdar pc New Theatres

dial[H] A.H. Shore lyr Munshi Arzoo Lucknowi[H], Ajoy Bhattacharya[B] c Dilip Gupta, Sudhish Ghatak m Rai Chand Boral lp K.L. Saigal, Kanan Devi, Boken Chatto, Rekha, Jagdish[H], Bikram Kapoor[H], Shabbir[H], A.H. Shore[H], Chamanlal[H], Vaid[H], Abdul Rehman[H], Vrij Paul[H], Ramkumari[H], Rani[H], Amar Mullick[B], Sailen Choudhury[B], Bhanu Bannerjee[B], Ahi Sanyal[B], Khagen Pathak[B], Sukumar Pal[B], Shyam Laha[B], Benoy Goswami[B], Kamala Jharia[B], Poornima[B]

Majumdar's directorial debut is a classic musical and one of Saigal's most famous films. The story tells of two childhood friends, Bhulwa (Saigal) and Manju (Kanan Devi), who grow up to become street singers in Calcutta. Bhulwa dreams of becoming a stage star but it is Manju who succeeds. At the height of her fame Manju almost forgets Bhulwa until at the end - in an obviously symbolic landscape (literally showing a boat washed ashore in a storm) the two are united. The Hindi version, where this sequence illustrates Saigal's all-time hit Babul mora, is the better known one.

TALAAQ

aka Divorce

1938 127' b&w Hindi

d Sohrah Modi pc Minerva Movietone

co-st Gajanan Jagirdar dial/lyr/co-st Anand

Kumar c S.D. Patil m Mir Saheb

lp Naseem Banu, Gajanan Jagirdar, Navin Yagnik, Prem Adib, Khwaja Sabir, Sheela, Vimala Vasisth, Shanta Dutt, Abu Baker, Khan Mastana

An early Modi psychodrama condemning the divorce law as iniquitous to Hinduism. Roopa (Banu), wife of politician Niranjan (Yagnik), leaves her husband to fight for more progressive divorce laws. She is helped for exploitative reasons by Chhabilelal (Jagirdar), the editor of the radical journal Aandhi. Roopa gets her divorce but is disillusioned by her legal achievement when Amarnath (Adib), whom she marries, uses the same law against her. Niranjan rescues and falls in love with the married Shanta (Sheela); since he does not approve of the divorce law, they cannot marry. Modi's late 30s films focus on the issue of sexual infidelity (Jailor, 1938; Bharosa, 1940), chronicling with almost gleeful misogyny how the guilty women are made to suffer for their temerity.

THREE HUNDRED DAYS AND AFTER

aka Teen Sau Din Ke Baad

1938 158' b&w Hindi

d Sarvottam Badami pc Sagar Film

st Babubhai A. Mehta dial Wajahat Mirza, Waqif

lyr Zia Sarhadi c Faredoon Irani m Anil

Biswas

lp Sabita Devi, Motilal, Bibbo, Yakub, Sankatha, Pesi Patel, Pande, Gulzar, Yusuf, Wasker, Rukmini, Piroj Wadkar

Young, bored millionaire (Motilal) has a bet with his doctor that he will go out into the world without taking any money and survive for 300 days. The story of his adventures was a big hit, including two songs by Motilal himself: Ghar apna yeh kursi apni and Ik tum na hui to kya hua.

WATAN

1938 168' b&w Hindi
d/s/co-st Mehboob Khan pc Sagar Film co-st/dial/lyr Wajahat Mirza c Faredoon Irani
m Anil Biswas
lp Kumar, Bibbo, Maya Bannerjee, Yakub, Sitara Devi, Kayamali, Sankatha, H. Siddiqui, Pande, Mirza, Ramchandra, Agashe

Ostensibly a Central Asian war fantasy about a conflict between the Cossacks and the Tartars, Mehboob's film proposes a tale advocating national independence. The Cossacks are oppressed by the despotic Russian king (Siddiqui) and his minister Jabir (Kayamali), who has Tartar blood in him. General Murad (Kumar) covertly sides with the opposition, gets arrested for treason and escapes. He meets the wild Gulnar (Sitara Devi) and gets her to spy as a maid of Princess Nigar (Bibbo). Nigar falls for Murad and Gulnar withdraws from the scene for the sake of her nation. Eventually Nigar, at the head of an army of women, helps defeat the villains.

ADHURI KAHANI

aka The Unfinished Tale
 1939 148' b&w Hindi
d Chaturbhuj Doshi pc Ranjit Movietone st Gunwantrao Acharya sc/dial/lyr J.S. Casshyap c L.N. Verma m Gyan Dutt lp Durga Khote, Prithviraj Kapoor, Rose, Keshavrao Date, Ila Devi, Ishwarlal, Meera, Lala Yakub, Khatun, Mirza Musharraf, T. Zadi

Based on a story by the noted Gujarati novelist Acharya (author of Daryalal, Allabeli et al.), this modernisation fable is one of Chaturbhuj Doshi's best early films at Ranjit. The educated and liberal Harbala (Khote) is oppressed by her conservative husband Seth Gopaldas (Date). Determined that her children Somnath (Kapoor) and Neelam (Rose) shall lead freer lives, she is frustrated by Gopaldas's authoritarian traditionalism and commits suicide. Neelam and Somnath, haunted by guilt, join her in death. The film leaves open the possibility that in the future a less oppressive society will be achieved: literally translated, the title means 'The Unfinished Tale'.

BARDIDI/BADI DIDI

1939 128'[B] b&w Bengali/Hindi d Amar Mullick pc New Theatres st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay dial/lyr[H] Kidar
Sharma lyr Ajoy Bhattacharya, Pashupati Chatterjee, Jibanmoy Roy[B] c Bimal Roy
m Pankaj Mullick
lp[B]: Jogesh Choudhury, Nirmal Bannerjee, Sailen Choudhury, Bhanu Bannerjee, Indu Mukherjee, Keshto Das, Ahi Sanyal, Naresh Babu, Benoy Sanyal, Sailen Pal, Dhiren Das, Kali Ghosh, Paresh Chatterjee, Chhabi Roy,

Nibhanani Devi, Ranibala, Poornima; [H]: Molina Devi, Pahadi Sanyal, Chandrabati Devi, Jagdish Sethi, Zainab, Gulab, Bela, Nawab, Bikram Kapoor, Rajalakshmi, Menaka, Pannalal, Nemo, Chimanlal, Rani, Renuka Devi, Kidar Sharma

After Devdas (1935), this is one of New Theatres' best-known films based on Saratchandra's writing. Suren (P. Sanyal), prevented by his family from pursuing a university career, leaves home and becomes a tutor to Pramila (Zainab). He falls in love with her widowed elder sister Madhavi (Molina Devi) who, although returning his love, has him sacked to save the situation. Years later, Suren becomes a big zamindar and, unknown to him, Madhavi is one of his tenants suffering under the oppression of his staff, a plot device providing ample opportunities for emotional drama about how 'traditional' social conventions lay waste to people's lives. The end, as a terminally ill Suren makes up with Madhavi before dying on her lap, evokes Devdas.

BRANDICHI BATLI/BRANDY KI

BOTAL
 1939 147'[M]/146'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d Master Vinayak pc Huns Pics
s/lyr[M] P.K. Atre c Pandurang Naik m Dada Chandekar lp Damuanna Malvankar[M]/Master Vinayak[H], V.G. Jog, Salvi, Meenakshi, Javdekar

Vinayak and Atre's classic sequel to the hit Brahmachari (1938) addresses prohibition and Gandhian morality. The naively innocent bachelor Bagaram (Malvankar/Vinayak), a clerk in a municipal office, has to find some brandy to restore the ill son of his boss, who is also the brother of Malati (Meenakshi), whom he secretly loves. Not knowing what brandy is, Bagaram gets embroiled in adventures, including a famous scene in a crowded bar. He eventually procures a bottle but his beloved persists in regarding him merely as 'a brother'. Documentary footage of Vallabhbai Patel making a speech about abstinence (included with his permission) had to be removed because of censor objections, as was the ambiguous line by Bagaram who, surrounded by young women, implored the god Krishna to 'give me a break too'. The film was widely attacked for its irreverence towards Hindu tradition but went on to become a perennial commercial hit, establishing Atre's scripts as an independent stellar attraction.

DEVATA

1939 148' b&w Marathi
d Master Vinayak pc Huns Pics
s/co-lyr V.S. Khandekar co-lyr B.R. Tambe
c Pandurang Naik m Dada Chandekar lp Baburao Pendharkar, Indira Wadkar, Meenakshi, Salvi, Damuanna Malvankar, Miss Sardar, Vibhavati, Baby Vimal, Patankar

One of Marathi actress-singer Wadkar's most famous roles as Sushila, who marries an old widower, Dasopant (Salvi), in order to pay for her younger brother's education. Dasopant already has a son, the social worker and professor Ashok (Pendharkar), who is horrified at his father's decision and begs Sushila to reconsider, but she marries the old man anyway. Sushila later admits to Ashok (now her stepson) that it was a mistake, and when she has to take refuge in his room to escape from her husband she is accused of adultery with Ashok, who then becomes a social outcast to the distress of his girlfriend Pushpa (Meenakshi). Sushila leaves having written letters explaining all to Ashok and Pushpa. Years later she is heard singing on a radio station. The film repeats Khandekar's favourite themes of bravely borne suffering (inevitably that of an older sister on behalf of younger siblings) and the self-revealing act at the end: in Chhaya (1936) the hero publishes an autobiographical novel thus betraying himself to the police; here Sushila craves anonymity yet she sings an autobiographical song on the radio drawing the family's attention back to her.

DURGA

1939 135' b&w Hindi
d Franz Osten pc Bombay Talkies s Sardindu Bannerjee dial/co-lyr Narottam Vyas co-lyr Narendra Nath Tuli c Josef Wirsching m Saraswati Devi lp Devika Rani, Rama Shukul, Hansa Wadkar, Vishnupant Aundhkar, P.F. Pithawala, Saroj Borkar, Enver, Kiran Singh Shashi

Rural melodrama about Durga (Devika Rani), an adolescent child of nature, living with her aged mother Heera. Unable to get the medicine required to prevent her mother's death, one misfortune after another befalls the heroine in spite of the sympathies of the newly arrived village doctor, Jawahar (Shukul). In the absence of Niranjan Pal, the studio's main scenarist and author of its best-known rural dramas (Achhut Kanya, Jannabhoomi, both 1936), the tale reduces itself to a purely familial narrative. It is nevertheless a key production in Devika Rani's self-projection of urbane charm clothed in primal innocence. Osten followed it with Leela Chitnis's first big film, Kangan (1939). Wadkar was promoted to lead actress again opposite Shukul in her next big film, Naujvean (1939).

EK HI RAASTA

aka The Only Way
 1939 149' b&w Hindi
d Mehboob Khan pc Sagar Movietone
s Babubhai A. Mehta dial Wajahat Mirza lyr Pandit Indra c Faredoon Irani m Anil Biswas lp Arun, Sheikh Mukhtar, Anuradha, Jyoti, Harish, Kanhaiyalal, Mohan, A. Banbasi, Jagdish Rai, Devi, Wasker, Gani

Mehboob uses a didactic style to address contemporary topics, a concern extended in e.g. Roti (1942). The orphan and shipwreck survivor Raja (Arun) works as a coolie forming a trio of friends with Mangoo (Sheikh Mukhtar), a pickpocket, and Vithal (Mohan), a hansom cab driver. Mala (Anuradha) and her father (Gani) come to the city where she is kidnapped by Banke (Kanhaiyalal) and sold to a rich man while her father accuses Mangoo of theft. Mangoo kills the father. Mala escapes and finds shelter with Raja, with whom she falls in love. The problems of the trio increase when they enlist in the army for WW 2. The film opposes religious faith to atheistic fatalism (the latter exemplified by Mangoo whose mother dies in an accident and he becomes a killer) and dares to present a couple openly living together as Mala stubbornly rejects the pressures of her stepmother (Devi) and her villainous cousin Madan (A. Banbasi).

JAWANI KI REET/PARAJAY

1939 144[H]/136[B] b&w Hindi/Bengali
d/sc Hemchandra Chunder pc New Theatres st Ranajit Sen dial Binoy Chatterjee[B], Amjad Hussain, Kidar Sharma[H] lyr Ajoy Bhattacharya[B], Arzoo Lucknowi[H] c Yusuf Mulji m Rai Chand Boral lp Kanan Devi, Rajalakshmi, Chhabirani, A.H. Shore, Bhanu Bannerjee[B], Amar Mullick[B], Sailen Choudhury[B], Indu Mukherjee[B], Jiban Bose[B], Biren Das[B], Sailen Pal[B], Jiban Ganguly[B], Najmul Hussain[H], Jagdish Sethi[H], Nemo[H], Bikram Kapoor[H], Bipin Gupta[H], Kalavati[H], Nandkishore[H]

Seminal film on the inheritance theme (cf. Udayer Pathey, 1944, and Andaz, 1949). The lawyer Bholanath Roy adopts Anita (Kanan Devi) who grows up into a beautiful and fashionable teenager. She meets Dilip, the lawyer's estranged son, working on a flood-relief programme and they fall in love. Their lineage problems (she does not know hers, he keeps his a guilty secret) are solved when Bholanath dies, leaving his estate to Dilip and thus rehabilitating him as well as their relationship.

JAYAPRADHA

aka Pururava Chakravarti
 1939 c.190' b&w Telugu
d Ch. Narasimha Rao pc Sharada-Rayalseema Films dial/lyr Varanasi Seetarama Sastry, Ch. Hanumantha Rao m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao
lp C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, K. Pichhaiah, Narasimha Rao, Lalita, Sampurna, Sheshu, Chitti, Seeta, Yashoda, Rajkumari, Anjamma, Ramudu, Saluri Rajeshwara Rao

By way of an Ayodhyecha Raja (1932) type of story, the film offers an invented legend as a nationalist allegory aligned with the Gandhian opposition (including a scene showing Jayapradha using the spinning-wheel associated with Gandhi's campaign). Rather than resorting to violence to defend his country, the peace-loving Emperor Pururava leaves his palace with his wife Jayapradha and his two sons. The royal couple attempt manual labour, which is abhorrent to the wife, and face the evil machinations of the merchant Navakoti Narayana Shetty. When Shetty captures and tries to molest Jayapradha, his house is accidentally set on fire. Rajeshwara Rao's first full assignment as composer.

JEEVAN SAATHI

aka Comrades
 1939 157' b&w Hindi
d Nandlal Jaswantlal pc Sagar Film s Babubhai Mehta dial/co-lyr Zia Sarhadi co-lyr Kanhaiyalal c Fareedoon Irani m Anil Biswas
lp Surendra, Maya Bannerjee, Harish, Jyoti, Jilloo, Sankatha, Kayamali, Bhudo Advani, Jamoo Patel

A mildly socialist realist (esp. in the music) family drama exemplifying the spirit of camaraderie and sacrifice. Seth Madhavlal's household includes two sons, Jatin (Surendra) and Kiran (Harish), and the adopted orphan Rekha (Maya). When the trio grow up, both Jatin and Kiran love Rekha. To solve the dilemma Jatin becomes a social outlaw. The love duets of Surendra and Maya Bannerjee are emotionally contrasted with Surendra's political addresses, the solo Hame hua hai desh nikala and his duet with Jyoti, Aan base pardes sajanava, both being songs of exile.

KANGAN

1939 139' b&w Hindi
d Franz Osten pc Bombay Talkies
p S. Mukherjee st Gajendra Kumar Mitra's Rajanigandha sc Saradindu Bannerjee, S. Mukherjee dial/co-lyr Narottam Vyas co-lyr Pradeep c Josef Wirsching, R.D. Parineer m Saraswati Devi, Ramchandra Pal lp Leela Chitnis, Ashok Kumar, V.H. Desai, P.F. Pithawala, Mubarak, Saroj Borkar, Nana Paliskar, Pratima

Leela Chitnis' first big film at Bombay Talkies is a love story between the beautiful village belle Radha (Chitnis) and Kamal (Kumar), the son of the village zamindar who wants to be a great poet. The zamindar sends his son to the city where Kamal becomes a noted novelist and playwright while Radha is persecuted by the zamindar and his henchman Banwari. She feigns suicide but in fact goes to join her beloved in the city (on the same train as the now repentant father). When she eventually reaches Kamal's house, she hears him declaring his love to a woman. Unaware that he is merely reading lines from his latest play, Radha withdraws, but eventually the father brings about the happy end. Unlike the studio's Niranjan Pal melodramas written for Devika Rani, this production ignored the reformist dimensions of the story and opts for a conventional romance. Chitnis's acting style, continued in Bandhan (1940) and in Jboola (1941), both S. Mukherjee productions, heralded a new era for Bombay Talkies and culminated in Filmistan's seductive performance techniques.

LEATHERFACE

aka Farzande Watan
 1939 166' b&w Hindi
d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics s Batuk Bhatt dial/lyr Sampatlal Srivastava 'Anuj'

c G.N. Shirodkar m Shankarrao Vyas, Lallubhai Nayak lp Jairaj, Mehtab, Shirin, Jal Writer, M. Zahoor, Lallubhai Naik, Bholaram, Faizy

The remake of Royal Film's silent Badmasb Ka Beta (1933) is a typical example of Vijay Bhatt's stunt-film origins. Hero Samar (Jairaj) singlehandedly takes on the might of the oppressive state led by the warlord chief (M. Zahoor). He falls in love with the chief's sister Ila (Mehtab) and fights his revolution from the tavern of Dulari (Shirin) with little more than a band of adventurers, a leather face mask, his faithful dog Tiger, and horse Bahadur.

MALLI PELLI

1939 187' b&w Telugu
d/st Y.V. Rao pc Jagdish Films dial/lyr Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi m Ogirala Ramchandra Rao lp Y.V. Rao, Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi, Kanchanmala, Bezwada Rajarathnam, Rangaswamy, K. Satyanarayana, Natesa Iyer, Manikyamma

Reformist melodrama about widow remarriage made to upstage Vauhini's film on the same theme, Sumangali (1940). Villain Janardhanarao Panthulu has his 6-year-old daughter Lalitha married to an old man who dies shortly after. Lalitha (Kanchanmala) is brought up by her father under the strictures of widowhood. She meets the reformist Sundarrao (Y.V. Rao) who eventually defies tradition and marries her. Probably the first instance in Telugu cinema of the use of playback, according to music historian V.A.K. Ranga Rao, who also notes that it is the composer Ogirala who sings the duet with Kanchanmala, Na sundara suruchira roopa, although the record credits the male voice to hero Y.V. Rao.

MANOOSI/ADMI

aka Life is for the Living
 1939 160[M]/164[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d V. Shantaram pc Prabhat Film st A. Bhaskarrao sc/dial/lyr [M] Anant Kanekar dial/lyr Munshi Aziz[H] c V. Avadhoot m Master Krishnarao
lp Shahu Modak, Shanta Hublikar, Sundarabai, Budasaheb, Ram Marathe, Gauri, Manju, Narmada, Ganpatrao, Raja Paranjpe, Manajirao

Shantaram's classic adaptation of the Kammerspiel style is a love tragedy featuring a policeman, Ganpat[M]/Moti[H] (Modak) and a prostitute, Maina[M]/Kesar[H] (Hublikar). Ganpat saves Maina from a police raid on a brothel and they fall in love. Her reputation and sense of guilt resist his attempts to rehabilitate her. Ganpat's respectable middle-class mother (Sundarabai) symbolises all that Maina would like to be, but she is arrested for murdering her evil uncle and refuses Ganpat's offer to release her from prison. The film ends on a falsely positive tone set to the rhythm of marching policemen. The film is shot entirely on sets including street corners, alleys, corridors etc.,

Shanta Hublikar in Manoos

and consists mainly of night scenes often in heavy shadows. The only location sequence is the film's romantic duet (Hum premi premnagar mein jaayen) as the loving couple blunder on to a film set. Shantaram uses the occasion to include a surprising spoof on the Bombay Talkie style of cinema: hero and heroine sit by a tree in a posture similar to Ashok Kumar and Devika Rani in the Main ban ka panchhi song of Achhut Kanya (1936), after which the Anglo-Indian heroine, who speaks and sings with an English accent, throws off her sari to walk away in Western dress. Shantaram deploys the expressionist technique of making physical spaces represent mental states, perhaps because Modak and Hublikar use a fairly restrained gestural repertoire rare in Shantaram's work. The film's classic number Ab kis liye kal ki baat (Hublikar's seduction number) is also a kind of spoof set in five different languages (Tamil, Telugu, Bengali, Gujarati and Punjabi in addition to its Marathi/Hindi refrain) alluding to familiar stereotypes from the corresponding film centres. There were suggestions that the plot was borrowed from Robert Sherwood's Waterloo Bridge (James Whale, 1931).

⊗ MATHRU BHOOMI

aka Motherland
1939 c.200' b&w Tamil
d H.M. Reddy pc Vel Pics, Al. Rm. Company, Madras st Dwijendralal Roy's play Chandragupta (1911) sc/dial T.V. Chari c E.R. Cooper lyr Papanasam Sivan m K. Subba Rao lp S. Santhanam, P.U. Chinnappa, Kali N. Rathnam, C.S.D. Singh, K.K. Perumal, T.V. Kumudini, A.K. Rajalakshmi, P. Saradambal, M.S.J. Kamalam, Devulu Venkataraju

Reddy, the director of the first Tamil talkie (Kalidas, 1931), adapted Roy's important Bengali play for this nationalist allegory about an Indian king's resistance to Alexander the Great. It was briefly banned by the British. Greek general Seleucus Nicator, here called Minander (C.S.D. Singh), is left in charge by Alexander. He is opposed by Ugrasen (Santhanam), the king of Udaygiri and the founder (321BC) of the Maurya dynasty. Minander's daughter Helen (Rajalakshmi) falls in love with the king and eventually marries him after Minander has been defeated and returns to Greece. The real heroine is Kumudini, making her screen debut as a fiercely nationalist character of the same name who throws out her husband Jayapala (Santhanam again, in a dual role) when she learns that he is a Greek spy. Her brother Prathapan is played by the future star Chinnappa. Although the costumes bear scant relation to history, the battle scenes are shot at the actual forts of Gingee and Krishnagiri in Tamil Nadu. Two songs proved particularly popular: Bharatha desam ('The Country of Bharat') and Namadhu Janma bhoomi ('The Land of our Birth'), the latter becoming a marching song widely used in schools.

⊗ NAVJEEVAN

1939 134' b&w Hindi
d Franz Osten pc Bombay Talkies
s Saradindu Bannerjee dial/co-lyr J.S. Casshyap co-lyr L. Meghani, Narottam Vyas c Josef Wirsching m Saraswati Devi
lp Hansa Wadkar, Rama Shukul, V.H. Desai, Mumtaz Ali, Saroj Borkar, P.F. Pithawala, Rai Mohan, M. Nazir, Pratima, Lalita Devulkar

Osten followed Durga (1939) with this musical fantasy, giving Wadkar her first lead role in a big studio production. Although Mahendra (Shukul) belongs to a clan of proud warriors, he is a hypochondriac. This poses a problem when he woos Menaka (Wadkar) who is fixated on swashbuckling heroics and appears more impressed with Mahendra's rival Jeevan. The 'hero' overcomes his cowardice by taking a magic pill and dreaming that he is his own ancestor, overthrowing a band of robbers (led by Jeevan) and rescuing the damsel (Menaka). The enacted dream, which occupies most of the film's 2nd half, transforms the hero. Wadkar sings four songs in the film.

⊗ NETAJI PALKAR

1939 136' b&w Marathi
d/s/p/lyr Bhalji Pendharkar pc Arun Pics
c Saju Naik m C. Balaji lp Lalita Pawar, Bakulabai, Bhaurao Datar, Master Vithal, I.T. Nimbalkar, G.R. Sandow, Krishnarao Gote, Shahir Nanivadekar, Anandrao, Sheikh

The debut production of Pendharkar's Arun Pics is also the first of his major Marathi historicals focusing on Shivaji (cf. Thoratanchi Kamala, 1941; Cbbatrapati Shivaji, 1952). The villainous Subedar of Kalyan, in his effort to defeat 17th-C. Maratha emperor Shivaji, abducts a Maratha damsel (Pawar). However, Shivaji and his trusted lieutenant, the equally legendary Netaji Palkar, overcome this threat.

⊗ PUKAR

1939 151' b&w Urdu
d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone
s/lyr Kamal Amrohi c Y.D. Sarpotdar m Mir Saheb lp Sohrab Modi, Chandramohan, Naseem Banu, Sheela, Sardar Akhtar, Sadiq Ali

One of Kamal Amrohi's best-known scripts and the first of the megabudget epics characteristic of Modi and his Minerva Studio (Sikandar, 1941; Jhansi Ki Rani, 1953). Set at the court of the harsh Mughal Emperor Jehangir (Chandramohan), the film tells two separate love stories: the first of Mangal Singh (Ali) and Kanwar (Sheela) amid the violent feud raging between their families, and the second, the famous one of Jehangir and Nurjehan (Banu). Mangal kills the brother and father of his lover. His father, the loyal Rajput chieftain Sangram Singh (Modi), captures his son and Jehangir passes the death sentence. Jehangir's claim that the law knows no class distinction is put to the test when a washerwoman (Akhtar) accuses Queen Nurjehan of having inadvertently killed her husband during a hunt. Jehangir offers his own life but the washerwoman magnanimously forgives him. The queen and the emperor then in turn pardon Mangal Singh, thus proving that class position does count after all (or, since the film was made in 1939, suggesting that the death penalty should never be applied). The film was known mainly for some of the most spectacular scenes of palace grandeur in the Indian cinema.

⊗ RAITU BIDDIA

1939 c.175' b&w Telugu
d/s Gudavalli Ramabrahmam pc Sarathi Films dial T. Gopichand lyr Kosaraju, Taji Dharma Rao, Basavaraju Apparao, Nellore Venkatrama Naidu, Tummala Seetarama Murthy Choudhury c Sailen Bose m B. Narasimha Rao

lp Bellari Raghava, G.V. Sitapathy, B. Narasimha Rao, Suriyababu, Padmavati, T. Suryakumari, Nellore Nagaraja Rao, Sundaramma, S. Varalakshmi, M.C. Raghavan

Ramabrahmam's best-known work is a seminal reformist melodrama critiquing the zamindari system from the viewpoint of the Kisan Sabha agitations in rural AP. Small-time landowner Narsi Reddy (Raghavan) borrows money from a shavukar [money-lender (Raghavan)] who represents the major zamindar (Sitapathy) of the village. When Narsi Reddy votes for a peasant candidate (Kosaraju) rather than for the political party supported by the landlord, his son is attacked and he is publicly humiliated. Divine intervention in the form of a flood comes to the aid of the peasant. The film highlighted the ruling nexus of absentee landlords, the police and revenue authorities, and deployed several militant songs written by Kisan Sabha activist N. Venkatrama Naidu. Although it received a censor certificate, the film's release led to numerous protests by powerful zamindar groups; it was first banned in Nellore, then in Madras. The Bobbili and Venkatagiri royals threatened to sue the producer, who was also a member of the landed elite, while copies of the print were publicly burnt.

RAJAT JAYANTI

1939 141' b&w Bengali
d/s P.C. Barua pc New Theatres lyr Ajoy Bhattacharya c Sudhin Majumdar m Rai Chand Boral
lp P.C. Barua, Pahadi Sanyal, Bhanu Bannerjee, Sailen Choudhury, Dinesh Ranjan Das, Indu Mukherjee, Shore, Satya Mukherjee, Biren Das, Molina Devi, Menaka Devi

Barua's successful elaboration of a short comedy into a feature about intrigue and internecine warfare within families. The simple-minded Rajat (Barua) loves neighbour Jayanti (Menaka Devi). He is advised on how to court her by his streetsmart cousin Bishwanath (Sanyal) and Bishwanath's friend Samir (Bannerjee). Bishwanath and Samir try to get Rajat's miserly guardian Bagalcharan (Choudhury) to loan them money so that Samir can make a 'European-style art film'. The guardian is admitted to the clinic of a doctor Gajanan where he falls into the clutches of two professional crooks Natoraj (Indu Mukherjee) and Supta (Molina Devi). Supta wants Rajat and they try to kidnap her but they are outsmarted. One of the best-known comedies of pre-war Indian film, this one reveals Barua's flair for comedy, most notably in the way he sends up his own established screen persona, introducing himself via a glamorously back-lit close-up, evoking his romantic Devdas (1935) and Mukti (1937) roles, but then revealing his character to be ridiculously inept and nervous in what is often considered the star's most accomplished performance, ably supported by Sanyal, Molina Devi, Indu Mukherjee and Sailen Choudhury.

SACH HAI

aka It's True
1939 157' b&w Hindi
d/s R.S. Choudhury pc Saraswati Cinetone

dial Niranjan Sharma Ajit c M.M. Purohit, S.P. Shinde m Suresh Babu lp Motilal, Rose, Shakir, Sethi, Ramakrishna Choube, Chandani, Usha

A melodrama set in the holy city of Benares exploring issues of caste status. Chandan (Motilal) is the son of Kashipati, the head of an influential brahminical sect. His hedonistic brother Shripati (Sethi) wants to get his hands on the sect's assets while the evil Guru (Choube) - who publicly opposes Chandan's rebellions against traditional casteism - wants to abduct the poor Mangala (Chandani), daughter of a blind traveller. Chandan's declared love for Roopa (Rose), an Untouchable woman, causes major consternation. Adding to the drama is a scene of the flooding river, perceived as a kind of divine judgement for all the misdeeds in the name of religion. Remake of Choudhury's earlier silent Khuda Ki Shaan (1931).

SANT TULSIDAS

1939 154' b&w Hindi/Marathi
d Jayant Desai pc Ranjit Movietone
s/co-dial[M] Shivram Vashikar dial/lyr[H] Pandit Indra, P.L. Santoshi lyr[M] S.A. Shukla c Krishna Gopal m Vishnupant Pagnis, Gyan Dutt lp Vishnupant Pagnis, Leela Chitnis, Keshavrao Date, Vasanti, Ram Marathe, Bandopant Sohoni, Dixit, Kantilal

Ranjit Studio's big-budget miracle-laden saint film on Tulsidas (16th C.) who rewrote Valmiki's Ramayana in Hindi. To the despair of his teacher Narahari Guru (Sohoni), who hopes that Tulsidas (Pagnis) will make the classic text accessible to the people, the poet spends time with his beloved wife Ratnavali (Chitnis). The dramatic pivot of the story comes when Tulsidas discovers his life's vocation amid howling wind and a river in spate. He becomes an ascetic and settles down in Benares where his translation threatens the brahminical clergy, until then sole proprietors of the wisdom of the Sanskrit text. Their representative, Batteshwar Shastri (Date), persecutes Tulsidas who is rescued through divine intervention. Ranjit hired both the actor Pagnis and the writer Vashikar of Prabhat's classic Sant Tukaram (1936). Pagnis also scores the songs.

SAPUREY/SAPERA

aka The Snake-charmer
1939 123'[B]/128'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/sc Debaki Bose pc New Theatres st/co-lyr[B] Kazi Nazrul Islam dial[H] Lalchand Bismil co-lyr Ajoy Bhattacharya[B], Kidar Sharma[H] c Yusuf Mulji m Rai Chand Boral lp Pahadi Sanyal, Kanan Devi, K.C. Dey, Menaka Devi, Shyam Laha, Satya Mukherjee, Manoranjan Bhattacharya[B]/Nawab[H], Rathin Bannerjee[B], Ahi Sanyal[B], Prafulla Mukherjee[B], Prithviraj Kapoor[H], Bikram Kapoor[H]

Primitivist love story and popular musical set among the Shaivite clan of snake-charmers. Renowned snake-charmer Jahar (Bhattacharya/Nawab), the survivor of 99 snakebites thanks to rigorous self-discipline including sexual abstinence, rescues a young girl from snakebite and raises her as a boy called Chandan (Kanan Devi). As he starts feeling sexually attracted to 'him', the clan discovers that Jahar is sheltering a young woman and so they seek to depose him as chief. Meanwhile, the young Jhumro (Sanyal) elopes with Chandan and in a fit of fury Jahar sends a deadly snake in pursuit of the couple. The snake bites Jhumro and only Jahar's powers can save the boy, which poses a major dilemma for the patriarch.

SEVA SAMAJ

aka Service Limited
1939 145' b&w Hindi
d Chimanlal Luhar pc Sagar Film
co-dial P. Razdan co-dial/co-lyr Zia Sarhadi co-lyr Pandit Indra c Keki Mistry m Anupam Ghatak
lp Maya Bannerjee, Surendranath, Bibbo, Yakub, Bhudo Advani, Sankatha Prasad

Heiress Shobhana Devi (Bannerjee) starts a campaign, with the help of the three trustees of her fortune, to capture the crook Jagmohandas (Yakub). They start a detective agency, Service Ltd, and take clients who have all been victims of Jagmohandas' criminal endeavours. Eventually, when Jagmohandas gets hold of an international trade treaty, Shobhana Devi dons a disguise, infiltrates the gang and captures the villain.

SHRI VENKATESWARA MAHATYAM

aka Balaji
1939 171' b&w Telugu
d P. Pullaiah pc Famous Films
dial D. Ramireddy lyr Buchanna Sastry, Vishwanathan c K.V. Machwe m Akula Narasimha Rao, B. Kumaraswamy lp C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, Shantakumari, Rajeshwari Devi, Buchanna Sastry, T. Venkateswarulu, Sanjiva Kumari, Nagmani, Nagamma

Pullaiah's original version of N.T. Rama Rao's legendary 1960 film of the same title is a mythological about the life of the deity at Tirupati, notorious as India's richest temple shrine. Made at the Mahalakshmi Studio, Bombay, the film featured Pullaiah's wife and Telugu star Shantakumari as the consort of the 'Lord of the Seven Hills', Venkateshwara (Anjaneyulu).

SITARA

1939 169' b&w Hindi
d Ezra Mir pc Everest Pics dial/lyr Munshi Dil c P.G. Kukde m Rafiq Ghaznavi lp Rattan Bai, Khursheed, Nazir, Mubarak, Jamshedji, Ashok Hussain, K.N. Singh, Sunalini

Romantic drama set in a fantasy version of a gypsy camp telling of an amorous rivalry spanning two generations. Azurie (Rattan Bai) marries Zamorra (Jamshedji) rather than his rival Eureka (Mubarak). Later, Zamorra accuses his wife of adultery with his rival and she dies in the 'dance of death' inflicted on her as punishment. Her infant daughter Sitara (Khursheed), abandoned in the forest, grows up as the adopted daughter of Suresh but is unable to reconcile her gypsy habits with bourgeois society: she paints canvasses with titles like 'Gypsy Blood'. She unknowingly gets embroiled in the ancestral rivalry when Eureka's wild son Tanzi (Nazir) falls in love with her and kidnaps her. The brutal tactic works and she marries him, which also leads her to discover her own ancestry.

THOKAR

aka The Kick

1939 161' b&w Hindi

d/A.R. Kardar pc Ranjit Movietone s M. Sadiq lyr P.L. Santoshi c Gordhanbhai Patel m Gyan Dutt

lp Madhuri, Kumar, Charlie, Yakub, Ishwarlal, Wahidan, Dikshit, Ram Marathe, Suresh,
K.N. Singh, Wasti

A cautionary tale about wealth not bringing happiness. The blind Mohan (Kumar) lives in a village with his ward Radha (Madhuri). He wins a fortune with a sweepstake ticket sold to him by the tramp Ramesh (Charlie), who claims his due and begins to take over Mohan's life, making him move to the city and getting him married to Chinta, a prostitute. When Mohan's eyesight is restored, he finds that his wife is having an affair with Ramesh. Mohan takes revenge and eventually lands up in his old village, a poor man, but with Radha still unchanged, waiting for him.

THYAGABHOOMI

aka The Land of Sacrifice

1939 194' b&w Tamil

d/p/sc K. Subramanyam pc Madras United Artists st R. Krishnamurthy [Kalki] c Sailen

Bose m Papanasam Sivan, Moti Babu lp S.D. Subbulakshmi, Papanasam Sivan, Baby Saroja, A.K. Kamalam, K.J. Mahadevan

Subramanyam's best-known film and Tamil cinema's biggest 30s hit is a spirited contribution to the Independence movement, deploying Gandhian themes. Sambhu Sastry (Sivan) is portrayed as the Gandhi of Tamil Nadu, sitting on a dais spinning with a charkha. The film includes inserts from documentary footage of Gandhi. The story, published in the journal Ananda Vikatan and illustrated with stills from the film, tells of Sastry the Brahmin priest and his daughter Savithri (Subbulakshmi). It opens with Harijans waiting in front of a closed temple during a cyclone. Sastry is punished for sheltering them and he goes to Madras. The main plot focuses on daughter Savithri, married to the evil Sridharan (Mahadevan) who prefers to live in 'Western' luxury in Calcutta and mistreats his wife. Sastry, who sells his property to pay for the dowry, finds himself on the streets while his abandoned daughter, who returns to find her ancestral home gone, gives birth to a daughter Charu (Saroja) in a free hospital. She abandons her child at the feet of her father. He thereafter, together with the Harijan Nallan, embarks on Gandhian social uplift programmes including picketing liquor shops. Savithri becomes the wealthy Uma Rani, devoting herself to charity. In her new guise she rejects her husband who sues for the restoration of his 'marital rights'. She loses the case, but her husband sees the light and becomes a nationalist. In the end, Savithri and her husband are imprisoned for disregarding the court's verdict. In the slum, the Congress Party's flag is raised. Pioneering the integration of melodrama with a symbol-laden political idiom later adopted by the DMK film, it has many scenes that resonate with local political meanings: the shot of Harijans standing outside the temple relates to the Temple Entry movement in the state; and footage of the Congress volunteers' march (which briefly caused the film to be banned) is presented as the will of the goddess Ambikai, repeatedly invoked in the film by the religious Sastry. The precocious child Saroja, playing Sastry's granddaughter, had been launched in Balayogini (1936).

VANDE MATARAM

aka Mangalsutram

1939 222' b&w Telugu

d/st B.N. Reddi from his short story

Mangalsutram pc Vauhini Pics

sc/c K. Ramnoth dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya m Chittor V. Nagaiah

lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Kanchanmala, Lingamurthy, Kalyani, Sheshanamba, Usha, Rani

Vauhini's debut production is also that of the pioneering Telugu film-maker Reddi. The elaborate melodrama, based on Reddi's own unpublished short story, presented problems of uneven development in terms of an emotional conflict between an innocent feudal rural female and a worldly-wise capitalist urban male. Hero Raghu (Nagaiah), an unemployed graduate, insists on marrying the village girl Janaki (Kanchanmala) despite the opposition of his scheming mother who wants a dowry. Raghu's unemployment problems continue despite his migration to the city, leaving his wife in the clutches of her mother-in-law. When Raghu wins a lottery for Rs 5 lakhs and returns home, he finds his wife and infant son have left. Although his mother insists he marry again, Raghu goes to the city and dedicates himself to social work, including building factories in order to create employment opportunities. In this he is assisted by his rich female college friend, provoking gossip about their relationship. Raghu's wife, now a poor flower seller, sees her husband with his new friend and believes he has remarried. Eventually the misunderstanding is resolved. A major commercial hit, the film engages the agenda of the reform and nationalist movements: Raghu names a lottery-ticket seller Vande Mataram, meaning 'Hail to the mother' and one of India's national anthems, and tramples underfoot his 'foreign' degree in a scene that caused censorship problems. The film also introduces numerous stereotypes e.g. the suave urban crook and the stage-struck villager (who marries the hero's sister).

VARAVIKRAYAM

1939 194' b&w Telugu

d C. Pullaiah pc East India Film st Kallakuri

Narayana Rao's play dial/lyr Balijepalli

Lakshmikanta Kavi c Biren De m Durga Sen lp Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi, Daita

Gopalam, K. Satyanarayana,

M. Ramchandramurthy, T. Chalapathi Rao,

A.V. Subba Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Sriranjani Sr, Dasari Kotiratnam, Pushpavalli,

P. Bhanumathi, Subhadra

Pullaiah, making Telugu films in Calcutta, abandons his usual mythologicals for this reformist social about the iniquitous dowry system. Although opposed to the dowry system, the retired government official Purshottama Rao borrows money to get his eldest daughter Kalindi (Bhanumathi) married, against her wishes, to the thrice-married Lingaraju. Kalindi commits suicide before the marriage can take place and when Lingaraju refuses to return the dowry, Purshottama's second daughter Kamala (Pushpavalli) agrees to marry him. Eventually she takes her husband and father-in-law to court, winning her point and restoring family honour while avenging her sister's death. Remembered mainly as the 16-year-old Telugu star Bhanumathi's screen debut.

Papanasam Sivan (left), Baby Saroja (centre) and S.D. Subbulakshmi in Thyagabhoomi

VIMOCHANAM

1939 160' b&w Tamil

d A.N. Kalyanarayan pc Jaya Films, Hindustan Films c T. Marconi Tamil reformist melodrama probably directed as well as shot by the Italian cameraman T. Marconi. The film was made as a propaganda semi-documentary in support of C. Rajagopalachari's prohibition programme, drawing its title from his journal Vimochanam (Est. 1929) in which several of his essays on the subject were published. Those essays were illustrated with pictures of a fiction text staged by a girls' school from the Sangeetha Vidyalaya. The film mainly adapts that play. The plot has the male lead, Arumugham, sell his wife's jewellery to buy alcohol until prohibition in the Salem district offers much-needed relief. The hero goes to jail for trying to brew liquor illicitly. On his release, he finds the liquor shop has become a tea-stall and his wife destitute, leading to his reform.

ABHINETRI/HAAR JEET

1940 131' b&w Bengali/Hindi

d/sc Amar Mullick pc New Theatres

st Upendranath Ganguly dial Pashupati

Chatterjee[B], Parimal Ghosh, A.H. Shore[H]

lyr Munshi Arzoo, Kidar Sharma[H] c Bimal

Roy m Rai Chand Boral

lp Kanan Devi, Pahadi Sanyal, Meera Dutta, Chhaya Devi, Sailen Choudhury[B], Bhanu Roy[B], Indu Mukherjee[B], Santosh Sinha[B], Harimohan Bose[B], Biren Pal[B], Boken Chatto[B], Naresh Bose[B], Benoy Goswami[B], Nawab[H], Nemo[H], Pannalal[H], Madho Shukla[H], Arvind[H]

A vehicle for the vocal talents of Sanyal and Kanan Devi set in the early 20th-C. Calcutta Theatres industry. Kamala (Kanan Devi) is the star of the Ruby Theatre owned by her guardian Maheshbabu. Narendra (Sanyal) is the equally popular star in the rival Bina Theatre, which he abandons to join the Ruby repertory when he falls in love with Kamala. In a lyrical sequence in the countryside, they marry in a poor peasant setting. Narendra then shows his true colours and forbids Kamala to continue her acting career. She returns to the stage anyway while Narendra stays among the peasants. He later returns to the Bina Theatre and its success is intercut with the bankruptcy of the Ruby Theatre. Kamala's symbolic punishment for refusing to become a dutiful housewife ministering to her man's needs is worked through the conduit of establishing the moral superiority of a lyrical/utopian peasantry against the corrupt city.

ACHHUT

aka The Untouchable

1940 141' b&w Hindi/Gujarati

d/s Chandulal Shah pc National Studios

lyr P.L. Santoshi c K. S. Chatterjee pc Gyan Doot lp Gollari, Motilal, Vasanti, Charlie, Rajkumari, Sitara Devi, Mazhar Khan, Dikshit, T. Kapur,

Lala Yakub, Bhupatray, Ibrahim

Promoted as a nationalist film addressing Gandhi's anti-untouchability campaign, it was endorsed by Gandhi and Vallabhbhai Patel even before it was made. Denied access to a well reserved for the upper castes, Lakshmi's (Gohar) Harijan father turns Christian while his wife prefers to remain a Hindu. Lakshmi is adopted by a rich businessman, becomes friends with his daughter Savita, completes her education and finds social acceptance in the urban upper class. When both Lakshmi and Savita fall in love with the same man, Savita's father resolves the matter by sending Lakshmi back to her impoverished Harijan family where she meets her childhood friend Ramu (Motilal) and together they lead the Harijans' revolt. Lakshmi is jailed, her best friend falls ill and her boyfriend dies, but eventually the village temple is opened to all castes.

APNI NAGARIYA

aka Mud

1940 144' b&w Hindi

d/p Dada Gunjal pc Hindustan Cinetone,

Gunjal Prod. st Sadat Hasan Manto

dial S. Khalil lyr Safdar 'Aah', Pandit Indra

c S. Hardip m Rafiq Ghaznavi lp Shobhana Samarth, Nazir, Jayant, Singh, Madhavi, Shanta Dutt, Majid, Keki Bawa, Bibi,

Baby Sushila

Manto's reformist story tells of Sushila (Samarth), the daughter of the authoritarian factory owner Seth Ramdas who is in conflict with militant workers led by Keshav. Sushila is caught up in an angry confrontation and rescued by the worker Prithvi, who is victimised by the management for his action. In love with her, he nurses her during a plague epidemic when her own family deserts her, but she spurns his attentions and later becomes a tool in the exploitative hands of her fiancé Shambhu, who declares a factory lock-out. The disillusioned Prithvi becomes a dangerous hoodlum. To solve her own problems, Sushila must first acknowledge the injustice of the class divide.

ARDHANGI/GHAR KI RANI

aka The Better Half

1940 152'[M]/161'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi

d Master Vinayak pc Huns Pics s/dial/lyr[M]

P.K. Atre dial/lyr[H] Pandit Indra c Pandurang

Naik m Dada Chandekar lp Master Vinayak, Meenakshi, Baburao

Pendharkar, Damuanna Malvankar, Leela

Chitnis

Huns Pics' last film transferred the Mahabharata Savitri tale about marital devotion to a modern Maharashtrian middle-class setting exploiting anti-Western feelings to advocate a traditionalist misogynist ideology. Satyavan (Vinayak), a university professor, admires the beautiful, English-speaking and smoking Arundhati (Chitnis), wife of a colleague. He hires a tutor to train his own wife Savitri (Meenakshi) in Western manners. When Satyavan succeeds in having an affair with Arundhati, she humiliates him by making him do domestic chores and then abandons him for the rich Z. Marutao (Pendharkar). Satyavan finally comes to his senses and asks the gods to intervene, which reunites him with the faithful Savitri.

AURAT

aka Woman

1940 154' b&w Hindi

d Mehboob Khan pc National Studios st

Babubhai A. Mehta dial Wajahat Mirza lyr

Safdar 'Aah' c Faredoon Irani m Anil Biswas lp Sardar Akhtar, Surendra, Yakub, Jyoti,

Harish, Arun, Vatsala Kumthekar, Brij Rani

Started at Sagar but completed at the National studio, this is the original version of Mehboob's classic Mother India (1957). The heroine Radha (Akhtar) works her fingers to the bone to pay off the villainous moneylender Sukhilala. She and husband Shamu (Arun) have three sons, and when she gets pregnant yet again Shamu removes himself from the scene and leaves her to battle against starvation and the advances of the villain. The two eldest sons die, leaving Radha with the diligent Ramu (Surendra) and her favourite, temperamental Birju (Yakub) who goes astray and becomes a bandit chieftain, which causes the family to be ostracised by the village. Birju murders Sukhilala and attempts to abduct his childhood sweetheart, Tulsi (Brij Rani). Radha then kills her son. The film lacks the psychoanalytic dimension and the overtones of socialist realism present in its famous remake, but Akhtar's extraordinary performance endows it with an earthiness rooted in North Indian agrarian feudalism that was later replaced by Mother India's attempt at nationalist allegory.

AZAD

1940 140' b&w Hindi

d N.R. Acharya pc Bombay Talkies

st Saradindu Bannerjee dial/lyr J.S. Casshyap

c R.D. Preenja m Saraswati Devi,

Ramchandra Pal

lp Leela Chitnis, Ashok Kumar, Hansa

Wadkar, Rama Shukul, Mumtaz Ali, Nazir

Bedi, Arun, Ramchandra Pal, D.V. Surve

For his directorial debut, scripted by Osten's regular collaborator Casshyap, Acharya orchestrates an allegory of contemporary political attitudes presented in terms of differing approaches to the institutionalisation of sexuality: marriage. There are three college friends: the liberal Vijay, the conservative Loknath and Jagdish, a careerist. Vijay rescues a damsel in distress and marries her. Later, his son Anand repeats his father's history by rescuing Jagdish's daughter from a bandit and marrying her, resolving the differences between the three friends. The film was overshadowed by the spectacular success of Acharya's Bandhan that same year, but its commentative approach to contemporary politics was further elaborated in his Naya Sansar (1941).

BANDHAN

1940 154' b&w Hindi

d N.R. Acharya pc Bombay Talkies
p S. Mukherjee sc Gyan Mukherjee, Amiya Chakravarty dial J.S. Casshyap lyr Pradeep c R.D. Parineer m Saraswati Devi, Ramchandra Pal
lp Leela Chitnis, Ashok Kumar, Suresh, P.F. Pithawala, V.H. Desai, Shah Nawaz, Purnima Desai, Jagannath, Arun Kumar

Acharya followed Azad (1940) with this tale about Beena (Chitnis), the daughter of the zamindar (Pithawala). Beena is to marry Suresh (Shah Nawaz) but loves Nirmal (Ashok Kumar), the head of a village school funded by the zamindar. Suresh and his father Gokul try to blackmail Nirmal and eventually accuse him of murdering Gauri (P. Desai), daughter of schoolteacher Bholanath (V.H. Desai), who is actually killed by Suresh. Producer S. Mukherjee adapted the by-now standard Bombay Talkies type of orientalist fiction about Indian feudalism into simplified, single-location melodramas, a virtually infallible formula both there and at Filmistan. This commercial hit is enlivened mainly by the songs performed by the actors themselves, esp. Ashok Kumar's full-throated Chal chal re naujawan, Arun Kumar's Chana jor garam and several Leela Chitnis numbers (e.g. Manabhavan, lo sawan aya re, Apne bhaiya ko naach nachaongi).

BHAROSA

1940 147' b&w Hindi

d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone
s/lyr Lalchand Bismil c Y.D. Sarpotdar
m G.P. Kapoor
lp Chandramohan, Sardar Akhtar, Mazhar Khan, Sheela, Maya Devi, Naval, Eruch Tarapore, Gulab, Menaka, Abu Baker

Modi's tale of incest starts when Gyan (Khan) goes to Africa and entrusts his wife Shobha (Akhtar) to his bosom pal Rasik (Chandramohan). The two have an affair resulting in the child Indira (Sheela). On his return, Gyan assumes the child to be his and he is delighted when later she falls in love with Rasik's son Madan (Naval), much to Rasik and Shobha's consternation. As in his other social melodramas (e.g. Jailor, 1938 and 1958), Modi deploys a pathological sexuality to present feudal values as laws of nature.

BHUKAILASA

1940 c.185' b&w Telugu

d Sundarrao Nadkarni pc Saraswati Cine Films st R. Nagendra Rao's play Bhukailasa
dial Balijepalli Lakshmi Kantam Kavi
m R. Sudarshanam
lp R. Nagendra Rao, M.V. Subbaiah Naidu, Lakshmi Bai, Kamalabai, Master Vishwam

Second and, to some, best-known film version of the Ramayana episode staged earlier by

R. Nagendra Rao. Sundarrao Nadkarni's adaptation of his earlier Tamil film was one of the hits produced by A.V. Meiyappan before setting up the AVM Film Studio. The film, which Randor Guy describes as a unique collaboration between a Tamil producer, Marathi director, Telugu scenarist and Kannada actors, was initially a failure when released at Bezwada, but then went on to become one of the biggest commercial successes of the year. AVM remade it as a high-profile trilingual in 1958. For the plot, cf. Bhukailasa, 1958.

CHANDIKA

1940 184' b&w Telugu

d R.S. Prakash pc Bhawani Pics st Muttaneni Venkata Chennakesavulu c Kamal Ghosh lyr/m Koppurapu Subba Rao lp P. Kannamba, Vemuri Gaggaiah, Bellari Raghava, Lalitha Devi, Peddapuram Raju, Arani Satyanarayana, Puvvula Ratnamala

The forthright Chandika (Kannamba) plans to kill villainous womaniser Giriraju (Gaggaiah). Although she decides to do so on principle, she attempts the deed only when he tries to molest her. He is rescued by Veeramallu (Raghava) who has him jailed. Unusual melodrama loosely derived from Dumas's The Three Musketeers and set in an undefined feudal era where royalty survives amid democratic state institutions. Although rehearsing the usual pieties about Hindu women, the film is remembered for its unorthodox heroine.

DHARMAPATNI

aka Pativrata

1940 170' b&w Telugu/Tamil

d P. Pullaiah pc Famous Films
st V.S. Khandekar's story dial Chakrapani lyr Daita Gopalam c S.K. Pai m Annasaheb Mainkar, Timir Baran lp Shantakumari, P. Bhanumathi, Peddapuram Raju, Lakshminarasimha, Hemalatha, Hanumantha Rao, A. Nageshwara Rao, Adinarayanaiah, Achari, Himam

Elaborate melodrama with several typical Khandekar characters: the good prostitute, the irredeemably evil man, the vacillating youth. The prostitute Sridevi, charged with looking after the orphaned Radha, arranges for Radha's marriage to Mohan. The evil Ananda Rao, who covets Radha, reveals Sridevi's past to Mohan's father and the wedding is called off. Mohan marries the independent-minded Uma, and when he is framed for murder by Ananda Rao it is Uma who eventually brings the original couple together. Shot in Kolhapur for a Bombay-based film company, the film derives from e.g. Marathi cinema's Huns Pics, adapted into Telugu by scenarist Chakrapani (making his film debut). It is also remembered as Telugu superstar A. Nageshwara Rao's first film, as a teenage actor.

DIAMOND QUEEN

1940 155' b&w Hindi

d Homi Wadia pc Wadia Movietone s J.B.H. Wadia dial/lyr Munshi Sham c R.P. Master

m Madhavlal D. Master

lp Fearless Nadia, John Cawas, Radha Rani, Sayani, Nazira, Fatma, Sardar Mansoor, Dalpat Kunjru, Boman Shroff, Minoo the Mystic

Nadia is Madhurika who, flanked by her horse Punjab-ka-Beta, her sidekick the reformed brigand Diler (Cawas), and her magic car Rolls-Royce-ki-Beti, cleans up Diamond Town. Like Hunterwali (1935), Miss Frontier Mail (1936) and Carnival Queen (1955), this is a stunt film featuring all Nadia's Zorro-like swashbuckling skills, including the obligatory fight atop a speeding carriage. Its expressionist beginning, showing distorted facial close-ups, leads on to several theatrical devices e.g. the extensive use of back-projection when the house burns down, or later when Nadia and Cawas are saved by her horse from a waterfall in spate. Several indigenous symbols, like the glorified Bajrang, the Swastika (a tantric symbol) and physical exercises resembling those of Hanuman devotees are intended to contrast the obvious Western origins of the Wadias' stunt idiom. Nadia performed her own stunts in this film combining elements from westerns, serials and sword-fighting pictures. Her difficulties with Hindi required her dialogues to be kept to a minimum.

GEETA

1940 163[M]/164[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi

d/sc P.Y. Altekar pc CIRCO st Minoo Katrak dial/lyr Mama Warekar[M], S.K. Kalla[H]
c Gordhanbhai Patel m Datta Koregaonkar [K. Dutta] lp Chandramohan, Durga Khote, Anant Marathe, S. Prahlad, Keki Bawa, Ashalata, Vatsala Kumthekar, Trilok Kapoor

The Marathi stage personality and film-maker Altekar's moral fable about the law. The naive, saintly Durga (Khote) uses the Bhagavad Gita as an ethical guidebook while her husband Shankar and later her son Mohan (Chandramohan in both roles) become professional villains. When her second son Kumar (Kapoor), an English-trained lawyer, returns he becomes a public prosecutor. He finds he must prosecute his own brother. Subplots include Sundari (Kumthekar), Mohan's prostitute girlfriend whose pimp Keshavlal (Prahlad) killed Mohan's father and whose sister Lata (Ashalata) is Durga's disciple. The dialogues and songs of the Marathi version were written by major Marathi playwright Warekar.

GNANAMBIKA

aka Jnanambika aka Raga Leela

1940 c.190' b&w Malayalam

d S. Nottani pc Shyamala Pics s C. Madhavan Pillai from his novel lyr Puthankavu Mathan Tharakan lp Sebastian Kunju Kunju Bhagavathar, C.K. Rajam, Aleppey Vincent, M.V. Shankar, K.K. Aroor, C. Madhavan Pillai, Chellappan Pillai, A.B. Pious, P.K. Kamalakshi, T.A. Rose, L. Ponnamma, C.A. Seetalakshmi, K. Aminini, C. Lakshmi Kutty, C.P. Devaki

Made at the Newtone Studio, Madras, this was after Balan (1938) the director's 2nd effort to capture the Malayalam market on behalf of his Tamil backers. The plot is similar to its predecessor with an unscrupulous second wife of a mild-mannered husband, who exploits his daughter by his first marriage. The wife and her lover want to appropriate the husband's property. Eventually the wife is brought to justice and Gnanambika, the daughter, marries in traditional style. The film, using extensive outdoor locations from the Trivandrum zoo and museum complex, was successful. The lyrics by Puthankavu Mathan Tharakan were the first instance of a noted Malayalam poet writing verse for the cinema. Prabhadan (1941) was the third in the venture of Tamil producers entering the Malayalam market.

HINDUSTAN HAMARA

aka Our India

1940 136' b&w Hindi

d Ram Daryani pc Film Corp of India lyr Arzoo m Bhishmadev Chatterjee lp Jamuna, Padmadevi, Nandreakar, Gope, Hari Shivdasani, Badriprasad, Ram Dulari, Rajendra, Dewaskar

Feudal melodrama: Veena (Jamuna), daughter of an exploitative landlord and wife of the drunkard Chunilal (Shivdasani), defies her family and fights for the exploited peasantry. In the process she falls in love with the poor Madhu (Nandreakar). When her evil husband cannot undermine the peasants' unity he commits suicide. The heroine is disinherited by her father, but remains committed to nationalism. The film prominently deploys Gandhian symbols (e.g. the spinning-wheel), and contrasts an idyllic notion of erstwhile India to the penury of its people today.

HOLI

1940 137' b&w Hindi

d A.R. Kardar pc Ranjit Movietone s/dial M. Sadiq lyr D.N. Madhok c Krishna Gopal m Khemchand Prakash

lp Motilal, Khurshheed, Ishwarlal, Sitara Devi, Keshavrao Date, Dikshit, Ghory, Lala Yakub, Tarabai, Manohar Kapoor

A Motilal star vehicle featuring him as a villain turning into a good guy. The evil Chand (Motilal) and his rich father Mangaldas (Date) persecute the nice Sunder (Ishwarlal): he kidnaps Sunder's sister Kokila (Khurshheed) and frames him for theft. Sunder is jailed. The abducted Kokila succumbs to the villain's charms and her love reforms him. When released, Sunder, unaware of the fact that his enemy has reformed, seeks revenge on the very day that Chand and Kokila are to marry.

KUMKUM/KUMKUM THE DANCER

1940 150'[B]/142'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d Modhu Bose pc Sagar Film st Manmatha Ray dial[H] W.Z. Ahmed lyr[H] Sudarshan c Jaigopal Pillai m Timir Baran lp Sadhona Bose, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Preeti Majumdar, Padmadevi, Moni Chatterjee,

Shashadhar Chatterjee, Lalit Roy, Binita Gupta, Labanya Palit, Abani Mitra, Rabi Ray[B], Bhujanga Ray[B], Kira Devi[B], Jasobant Agashi[B], Shanta Majumdar[B], Bechu Singhal[B], M. Ishaq[H], Kamta Prasad[H], Bhudo Advani[H], Kayamali[H], Jamoo Patel[H], Kamal[H], Agashe[H]

Dance film idealising poverty made mainly to showcase Bose's talents. Labour leader Suryashankar is jailed for trade union activities and, when released, finds that his friend Jagdish has stolen his property and plagiarised his play Bhookh (Hunger). To take revenge on behalf of the poor, Suryashankar's daughter Kumkum (Bose) marries Jagdish's son Chandan (Bhattacharya). Later she collaborates in staging a play meant to expose Jagdish's evil past. The film's publicity slogan was 'She robbed her husband to feed the poor!'

LAGNA PAHAVE KARUN

1940 150' b&w Marathi

d Master Vinayak pc Navyug Chitrapat

st C.V. Joshi's short story

sc/dial/co-lyr V.S. Khandekar co-lyr B.R.

Tambe c Pandurang Naik m Dada Chandekar lp Damuanna Malvankar, V. Jog, Shakuntala Bhome, Vasant Eric, Vatsala Kumthekar, Damayanti Joshi

Navyug Chitrapat started with Vinayak's first adaptation of C.V. Joshi's popular satires featuring the bumbling duo Chimanrao (Malvankar's best-known film role) and Gundyabhau (Jog). In order to marry off his sister Chimni, Chimanrao must first get married himself but he is tricked by his prospective father-in-law. He then arranges a marriage between Chimni and a post office clerk who soon turns into a routinely selfish male. Shot mainly as a comedy about arranged marriages in early 20th-C. feudal Maharashtra, the film has a loose, episodic narrative with Gundyabhau addressing the viewer directly in the beginning and at the end. Much of it concerns 'traditional' attitudes evoked through e.g. technological novelties like still photography (the girl's photograph to show to her prospective groom is taken in flat tones and a characteristic Ravi Varma-like posture), through caricatures of other communities (e.g. the Gujarati businessman from Kathiawar, the Englishman) and sometimes through the music (the sister knows one devotional song to show off her voice to elderly people and one love song if her audience is young).

LAPANDAV

1940 133' b&w Marathi

d K. Narayan Kale pc Navyug Chitrapat

s/lyr P.K. Atre c Pandurang Naik m Dada Chandekar lp Baburao Pendharkar, Master Vinayak, Dada Salvi, Bapurao Pawar, Vanamala, Meenakshi

Comedy representing the best years of the Atre-Vinayak-Pendharkar combination at Navyug and addressing cultural modernisation problems in feudal Maharashtra. The crusty patriarch Raobahadur has two beautiful daughters. Both fall in love with men beneath their father's social standing: one wants to marry an instructor at a driving school, the other falls for a building contractor.

NARSI BHAGAT

1940 179' b&w Hindi

d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics st Mohanlal G.

Dave sc Vishnupant Aundhkar lyr Sampatlal Srivastava 'Anuj', Balam c G.N. Shirodkar m Shankarrao Vyas

lp Vishnupant Pagnis, Durga Khote, Pande, V. Adikhar, Vimala Vasisth, Amirbai Karnataki, Ram Marathe, Baby Indira

Vijay Bhatt's Saint film was built around Pagnis who had defined the genre through his performance in Sant Tukaram (1936). Narasinh Mehta (1408-75), a major Gujarati poet (Pagnis), is excluded from the community and, with his wife Manekbai, lives in extreme deprivation in Junagadh and Mangrol. His poems praising Krishna, often in the erotic and devotional Ras Lila form, also address the condition of Untouchables. Much of the film is based on his autobiographical statements which have now become part of popular legend. Key figures including his wife Manekbai (Khote), his evil sister-in-law, and her brother Sarangadhar (Pande), who persecute him. The film also features the Dewan of Warnagar, who chooses Narasinh's son as the groom for his daughter. The plot requires Narasinh to sacrifice his son to save the prince as well as defend himself against accusations of sorcery. Bhatt's largely descriptive camera emphasises physical movement while the elaborate set design contrasts with the sophisticated use of frontal shooting in Sant Tukaram. Apart from several Pagnis solos, other songs are by Amirbai Karnataki (esp. Jhulna jhulave nandalal) and one is by the young Ram Marathe (Ghanshyam rang ran javoon).

NARTAKI

1940 133'[B]/150'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d/s Debaki Bose pc New Theatres dial[H]

A.H. Shore lyr Ajoy Bhattacharya[B], Munshi Arzoo[H] c Yusuf Mulji m Pankaj Mullick

lp Lila Desai, Bhanu Bannerjee[B], Sailen Choudhury[B], Chhabi Biswas[B], Utpal Sen[B], Pankaj Mullick[B], Indu Mukherjee[B], Jyoti[B], Naresh Bose[B], Najam[H], Jagdish Sethi[H], R. Wasti[H], R.P. Kapoor[H], Nandkishore[H], Dhruva Kumar[H], Rajani Rani[H], Kalabati[H]

Period movie apparently set in the 16th C. The story pits the famous dancer Roopkumari (Desai), backed by the court, against a temple monastery ruled by the authoritarian ascetic priest Gyananandji. The temple forbids the entry of women and Roopkumari is determined to avenge such an insult. She seduces the priest's son Satyasunder but she also falls in love with him. The film suggests that love transcends both political and religious authoritarianism. The Bengali version uses extensive songs by the 15th-C. Bengali saint poet Chandidas the very fabric of the film. Kardar's Pooja (also 1940) offers a more considered treatment of the ravages wrought by feudal sexual codes.

does Bina realise her real mother was her aunt's servant. Kardar's film set the tone for Mehboob's later and better-known depictions of crumbling family relations and thwarted sexualities. It is more ambitious than Mehboob's work of the time, with a fairly sparing use of melodramatic effects. The theme evoked radical Urdu literature's critiques of feudal sexual mores, placed on the official literary agenda after the 1936 PWA conference whence writers like Ismat Chughtai drew their initial inspiration.

PAGAL

1940 142' b&w Hindi

d/s A.R. Kardar pc Ranjit Movietone

lyr D.N. Madhok, P.L. Santoshi c Krishna Gopal

m Khemchand Prakash

lp Madhuri, Prithviraj Kapoor, Charlie, Khatun, Sitara Devi, Lala Yakub

Kardar went against the studio's usual brand of family melodrama with this story about a psychotic doctor in an asylum. Tricked into marrying Chhaya (Khatun), believing he is to marry her more beautiful sister Parvati (Madhuri), Dr Vasant (Kapoor) becomes a sexually obsessed maniac who injects Parvati with a drug that renders her insane. He then keeps her in his asylum where he continues to brutalise her. Intended as a critique of resurgent neo-traditionalism among the educated younger generation, the grotesque depiction of masculinity associated with modern medicine severely undercuts the implied critique of the methods used to arrange marriages, while women simply remain victims. In fact, the victimisation of women is portrayed with such gusto that the film ends up raising more disturbing questions about the way grotesque masculine sexuality pervades

POOJA

1940 191' b&w Hindi-Urdu

d A.R. Kardar pc National Studios

st/dial M. Sadiq lyr Khan Shahir Ghaznavi

c P.G. Kukde m Anil Biswas

lp Sardar Akhtar, Sitara Devi, Zahur Raja, Jyoti, Sankatha, Saush, Sunalini Devi, Bhudo Advani

In contrast to his lurid depiction of women's suffering under feudal patriarchy in Pagal (1940), Kardar achieves a more complex treatment of sexual oppression in rural North India via Sadiq's script. It was made the same year and by the same studio as Mehboob's Aurat, also starring Akhtar. Pooja tells of two lonely sisters, Rama (Akhtar) and Lachhi (Sitara Devi), giving vent to their frustrations by persecuting each other. When Rama's wedding to Darpan (Raja) falls through and she marries another, Darpan rapes Lachhi in revenge, although the rape is presented ambiguously, suggesting she might be complicit in wanting to take something from her sister. Lachhi has a child, Bina (Jyoti), and ends up living with her sister, the now widowed Rama. Bina is led to believe that Rama is her mother. Only later

SANT DNYANESHWAR

1940 139' b&w Marathi Hindi

d/V Damle. S. Fattelal pc Prabhat Film

s Shivram Vashikar dia/HH Pandit Anand Kumar

lyr Shantaram Athavale[M], P.L. Santoshi, Mukhran Sharma 'Ashant'[H] c/V. Avadhoot

m Keshavrao Bhole

lp Shahu Modak, Datta Dharmadhikari, Pandit, Malati, Tambankar, Shanta Majumdar, Sumati Gupte, Bhagwat

An effort to repeat the success of Sant Tukaram (1936) with a bigger budget and enlarged canvas, Dnyaneshwar (1275-96) was the first of the Marathi saint poets and wrote the Dnyaneshwari as a commentary of the Bhagavad Gita in the rhythm of the ovi form, using popular language for the first time in

Durgadas Bannerjee in Thikadar

Marathi literature, the culmination of the regional literary works that emerged throughout India after the 7th C. More closely associated with the performance of miracles than Tukaram or Eknath, Dnyaneshwar's exploits are narrated in the keertan form of religious storytelling. Crowd scenes, elaborate sets and complicated miracle scenes (shot by Pralhad Dutt and Harbans) signal the film's spectacular ambitions. Like the directors' last saint film, Sant Sakbu (1941), this effort at times finds an effective mise en scene using frontally shot imagery while allowing the action to expand around the fixed point of the god's position (in this case represented by the Bhagavad Geeta) which, as the film progresses, Dnyaneshwar (Modak) gradually comes to occupy.

SUMANGALI

1940 194' b&w Telugu
d/st B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini Pics
sc/c K. Ramnoth dial/lyr Samudrala
Raghavacharya m Chittor V. Nagaiah
lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Giri, Kumari, Malathi, Lingamurthy, Sheshamamba, Doraiswamy

This typical Vauhini melodrama is made by the unit responsible for Rohini's Gribalaksbmi (1938): writer/cameraman Ramnoth, designer A.K. Sekhar, scenarist Raghavacharya and composer/lead star Nagaiah. Mobilising one of reformism's main motifs, widow remarriage, the film tells of the progressive Sathyam (Giri) who is loved by two women: his rustic cousin Parvati (Malathi) and the educated, fashionable and rich Saraswathi (Kumari). When Saraswathi discovers that she had been married and widowed as a child, preventing her from marrying again, all three protagonists are plunged into emotional turmoil. Eventually Parvati sacrifices her life so that Sathyam and Saraswathi can marry after all. Making plentiful use of symbols (e.g. the crucifix when Saraswathi is the victim of attempted rape), the film apparently drew inspiration from the Telugu reformist writer Kandakuri Veeresalingam Panthulu (1848-1919) (Nagaiah plays a white-haired character called Panthulu). Despite innovative camerawork and several musical hits by Nagaiah (e.g. Ada brathuke madhuram, Pasupukunkuma), the film flopped when first released, almost sinking the Vauhini Studio.

THIKADAR

1940 c.145' b&w Bengali
d Prafulla Roy pc Shri Bharatlxmi Pics s/m Tulsi Lahiri c Bibhuti Das lp Tulsi Lahiri, Durgadas Bannerjee, Jiban Ganguly, Satya Mukherjee, Renuka Roy, Chitra Devi, Kamala Jharia, Santosh Sinha, Rabi Ray, Sudhir Mitra, Girin Chakraborty

Melodrama featuring a thikadar (forest contractor), a somewhat remote figure like the landscape in which he operates. The villain is the plantation-owner named Abani Haldar, with a beautiful daughter, Latika. The thikadar saves Haldar in an accident, while later it is revealed that Haldar killed the thikadar's father and left his wife and children for dead. Latika, who loves the thikadar, succeeds in preventing the forester from taking revenge for those crimes. The playwright Tulsi Lahiri, an influential figure who helped introduce realism to the post-WW2 Bengali theatre with plays like Chhenra Tar, Pathik and Dukbir Iman (the latter two were also filmed, in 1939/1953 and 1954 respectively), wrote, scored and acted in this film noted for its extensive location shooting and crowd scenes showing the lives of plantation workers.

VISHWAMOHINI

1940 195' b&w Telugu
d/st Y.V. Rao pc Jagdish Pics dial/lyr Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi m Ogirala Ramchandra Rao lp Y.V. Rao, Chittor V. Nagaiah, Lalitha Devi, Bezawada Rajarathnam, Rangaswamy, Kakinada Rajarathnam, Doraiswamy, Gangarathnam, Sampurna, Suryanarayana

A love triangle satirising the film industry. Purshottam (Y.V. Rao) embezzles money from a firm of brokers owned by Padmanabham in order to get his son Mohan Rao married to Hemalatha, daughter of the millionaire Vishalakshamma (B. Rajarathnam). The now impoverished Padmanabham partially gets his own revenge when his daughter Sushila (Lalitha Devi) becomes the film star Vishwamohini, introduced by the film producer Pashupati, brother of Vishalakshamma. The star Vishwamohini falls in love with Mohan Rao and her father agrees to their marriage provided Mohan can find a job. He pretends to have done so and the two get married. Hemalatha offers Vishwamohini money to go away and free Mohan, which, in an emotional scene, she refuses to do. The hit film continued director/star Y.V. Rao's trailblazing work at Jagdish (his earlier film for them, Malli Pelli, 1939, was also a hit) and includes long comedy sequences such as the satirical depiction of a film director (Nagaiah).

ZINDAGI

1940 120' b&w Hindi
d/c P.C. Barua pc New Theatres co-dial/co-lyr Kidar Sharma co-dial Javed Hussain co-lyr Arzoo Lucknowi m Pankaj Mullick lp K.L. Saigal, Pahadi Sanyal, Ashalata, Jamuna, Shyam Laha, Nemo, Sitara Devi, Bikram Kapoor, Rajni Rani

Following on from Mehboob's Ek Hi Raasta (1939), Barua also shows an unmarried couple living together, one of the most sacrosanct taboos of the Indian cinema. In a park, the vagabond gambler Ratan (Saigal) encounters Shrimati (Jamuna) who has escaped from her brutal husband. They team up and collect numerous donations pretending to belong to a charitable religious trust. They buy a flat and live together until Shrimati's father dies and she inherits his wealth. Renouncing her earlier life, she devotes herself to good works and employs Ratan to tutor an adopted orphan, Lakhia, but he discovers that he cannot live without her, while she, feeling she must pay for her guilty life, rejects him. He returns to being a tramp and she gives her fortune to Lakhia and withdraws to a lonely dwelling awaiting death. To ensure a happy ending, the two meet again as though on the threshold of a new afterlife. The film had several Sharma songs performed by Saigal, including the famous So jaa rajkumari.

AMRIT

1941 153[M]/162[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d Master Vinayak pc Navyug Chitrapat
s/lyr[M] V.S. Khandekar lyr[H] Pandit Indra c Pandurang Naik m Dada Chandekar lp Dada Salvi, Baburao Pendharkar, Lalita Pawar, Master Vithal, Damuanna Malvankar, Javdekar, Meenakshi, V. Jog, Master Vinayak

A complicated plot about class differences in a coastal Konkan village. It introduces a typical Khandekar character, the idealistic but dogmatic patriarch who becomes a victim of his beliefs. Here it is Bappa (Salvi) who monopolises the village's palm trees from which toddy is made. He believes in fairness, not in mercy. The story of his urban son Vilas (Vithal), his daughter Lata and her friend Sadanand is intercut with that of a drunken shoemaker Krishna (Pendharkar) and his wife Seeta (Pawar). Vilas, who covets the shoemaker's wife, procures a new hut for them. The son then starts having problems with his father and all the parallel storylines converge when Vilas accidentally kills Seeta's daughter. Bappa, using his political influence, gets her innocent husband arrested instead and Seeta, exploiting Vilas's desire for her, retaliates by making him her virtual slave. Bappa eventually faces up to his moral responsibility in a tale that also warns against the demon drink.

ANJANA

1941 144' b&w Hindi d/s Amiya Chakravarty pc Bombay Talkies dial J.S. Casshyap, Shaheed Latif lyr Pradeep, P.L. Santoshi c R.D.
 Mathur m Pannalal Ghosh lp Devika Rani, Ashok Kumar, V.H. Desai, Girish, Suresh, P.F. Pithawala, Gulab, Fatty Prasad, Yusuf Sulehman, Syed Mukhtar, David

Bombay Talkies' formula melodrama: villain is hero's rival in love, frames hero with crime, hero vindicates himself (cf. Janmabhooni, 1936; Bandhan, 1940). Dowager Ranima runs the feudal household helped by the family doctor, guardian Ajit (Kumar) and villainous manager Ramnath (Pithawala). Indira (Devika Rani), the children's governess, is wooed by both Ramnath and Ajit. Ranima dies, Ramnath accuses Ajit of having killed her but Ajit vindicates himself after a long courtroom battle. Remembered mainly as Bombay Talkies' star director Amiya Chakravarty's directorial debut and for the celebrated classical flautist Pannalal Ghosh's score.

ASHOK KUMAR

1941 211' b&w Tamil
d Raja Chandrasekhar pc Murugan Talkie Films s Elangovan lyr Papanasam Sivan, Papanasam Rajagopal Iyer, Yanai Vaidyanatha Iyer c Jiten Bannerjee m Alattur V.
 Sivasubramanyam
lp M.K. Thyagaraja Bhagavathar, Chittor V. Nagaiah, P. Kannamba, T.V. Kumudini, N.S. Krishnan, T.A. Mathuram,
 M.G. Ramachandran, Ranjan

Hit Tamil historical retelling of the famous and often filmed (cf. Veer Kunal, 1925) legend of the 3rd-C. BC Mauryan King Ashoka (Nagaiah). His second wife Tishyarakshithai (Kannamba) tries to seduce his son Gunalan (Bhagavathar) but he prefers Pramila (Kumudini). The queen then accuses him of having tried to seduce her and Ashoka exiles his son and has him blinded. Later the emperor repents and the Buddha (Ranjan) appears to restore the prince's sight. The film takes many liberties with the legend as it appears in the original Ashokavadana (cf. Romila Thapar's Asoka and the Decline of the Mauryas, 1961), while addressing notions of non-violence and vegetarianism. It is remembered mainly as Bhagavathar's film, at the zenith of his career, singing songs that have become part of Tamil Nadu's social history (e.g. Boomiyl manida genman, also sung by the Sri Lankan plantation workers in Dieterle's Elephant Walk, 1953). Other hits included songs by Nagaiah making his Tamil debut. Besides recycling the tune of Pankaj Mullick's Hindi song Piya milan from the film Kapal Kundala (1939), a growing practice at the time, the film also shows the influence of Busby Berkeley in the staging of a dance at court. The action sequences feature an early appearance of MGR in a minor role (as the General Mahendran). It is also an early film of stunt actor Ranjan (who became famous with Chandralekha, 1948). The known Tamil comic duo of Krishnan and Mathuram have a subplot of their own.

BAHEN

aka Sister, aka My Sister
 1941 156' b&w Hindi
d Mehboob pc National Studios st Zia Sarhadi, Babubhai A. Mehta sc/dial Wajahat Mirza lyr Safdar 'Aali' c Fareedoon Irani m Anil Biswas
lp Sheikh Mukhtar, Nalini Jaywant, Harish, Kanhaiyalal, Husn Bano, Swaroop Rani, Shahzadi, R. Choube, Baby Meena (aka Meena Kumari), Bhudo Advani, Agashe, Iqbal Begum

Classic Mehboob incest film. Elder brother Amar (Mukhtar) saves the life of his infant sister Bina and raises her, becoming very possessive about her. When Bina grows up (Jaywant), the progressive social activist Rajendra (Harish) wants to marry her. Amar then plots to get a thief, Moti (Kanhaiyalal), to marry and immediately abandon her so that she will forever remain dependent on Amar. Eventually she does get married and the brother's grief is alleviated only when his sister delivers a child (in a remarkable sequence featuring the nurses at the hospital). The incest motif was widely used to represent the complexities of an 'Aryan' agrarian-feudal patriarchy (e.g. the New Theatres' Meri Bahen, 1944, and, classically, in Ghatak's Subarnarekha, 1962), but Mehboob was distinctive in making it a central focus.

M.K. Thyagaraja Bhagavathar and P. Kannamba in Ashok Kumar

BHAKTIMALA

1941 186' b&w Telugu
d/s Haribhai Desai pc Bhaskar Pics
c M.A. Rehman m Koppurapu Subba Rao lp B.R. Panthulu, P. Bhanumathi, M. Lingamurthy, Coconada Rajarathnam, Shanta, Venkatagiri, Kutumba Sastry, Annapurna, Kondala Rao, G.V. Sitapathy

Story paying tribute to the Varkari tradition of Marathi saint poets. Radha (Bhanumathi), a devadasi (South Indian form of ritualised prostitution, in which the woman is wedded to god), converts herself into a worshipper of the saints. She is persecuted by the pimp Timmaya Sastry (Kondala Rao) and the villainous Brahmin Ramanujachari (Sitapathy). The hero Mohan (Panthulu) joins her struggle for social reform. When Ramanujachari has her framed for Mohan's murder, she is saved through divine intervention. One of the best-known films of Haribhai Desai, a Gujarati graduate of the New York Institute of Cinematography as well as manager of Laxmi Pics and the Suvarna Studio in Poona, and the founder of the influential Bangalore-based Surya Film. This studio became a conduit for other Bombay-based directors (e.g. Sundarrao Nadkarni) to work in Tamil, Telugu and Kannada cinemas, bringing their influences of Marathi, Hindi and Gujarati cinema to the South.

CHITRALEKHA

1941 156' b&w Hindi
d/sc/lyr Kidar Sharma pc Film Corp. of India st Bhagwati Charan Verma's novel
c G.K. Mehta m Jhande Khan, A.S. Gyani lp Mehtab, Nandrekar, A.S. Gyani, Rajendar, Monica Desai, Ram Dulari, Leela Mishra, Ganpatrai Premi

Sharma's first major musical hit contains what is probably the first erotic bathing sequence in Indian cinema after Brabmachari (1938). Chित्रलेखा (Mehtab), a dancer at the court of Chandragupta (founder of the 3rd-C. BC Mauryan dynasty, cf. Asbok Kumar, 1941), seduces Bijagupta (Nandrekar), a libertarian known as the 'ultimate sinner'. Mrityunjay (Premi), a nobleman who wants his daughter Yashodhara (Desai) to marry Bijagupta, gets his guru, the mystic Kumaragiri (Gyani) to undo Chित्रलेखा's seductive charms but she triumphs over him, causing the guru to commit suicide. Chित्रलेखा then leaves the palace and the lonely Bijagupta goes to the holy city of Gaya to purify himself. However, there he meets and falls in love with Yashodhara. When he loses her as well, he concludes that all women are an illusion (Maya) and becomes a saint. The reformed Chित्रलेखा becomes his disciple. Most of the famous songs are by actress/singer Rani Dulari. Sharma remade it in garish colour with Meena Kumari (1964).

CHOODAMANI

1941 211' b&w Telugu
d P.K. Raja Sandow pc Janaki Pics s Sadasiva Brahmam c Mania Shinde m S. Venkataraman lp Pushpavalli, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu,

Narayanrao, Sundaramma, Satyavati, Pulipati

Sandow's elaborately scripted melodrama introduced the complicated Tamil entertainment formula into Telugu cinema. Madhusudhan (Anjaneyulu) is an Oxford graduate and a Madras-based businessman. Choodamani (Pushpavalli) is a beautiful rural orphan who turns down villain Raghava Rao's offer of marriage. The villain is joined by Madhuri, a cranky woman seduced and abandoned by the hero, and they make trouble at Madhusudhan and Choodamani's wedding. Madhuri bears the hero's child but strangles the baby and abandons it in a garbage can but she is caught by Raghava Rao who blackmails the hero into bankruptcy and even causes the hero to suspect his own wife of adultery. In a fit of rage he murders his own child but the infant is magically revived by a holy man. The film has a clown, Girisani, who leaves his wife to adopt a Western lifestyle, ending up as a barber.

DAKSHAYAGNAM

1941 184' b&w Telugu
d Ch. Narayanamurthy pc Shobhanachala Pics s/lyr B.T. Narasimhacharyulu c Bhavan m Moti Babu lp Vemuri Gaggaiyah, C. Krishnaveni, Bezwada Rajarathnam, G. Varalakshmi, Kamaladevi, Gopika Devi, Samrajyam, Ramakrishna Shetty, Kumpatla, Sadasiva Rao, Ramana Rao, Kanchi Narasimham

Telugu mythological telling the story of the enmity between Shiva and Daksha, the father of Shiva's consort Uma. When Daksha announces a yagna (ritual sacrifice), Shiva is the only god in the pantheon who is not invited, and Uma arrives alone. This crisis threatens to terminate the yagna before it can start, as Uma gives up her life and is resurrected as Parvati.

DEVATHA

aka Divinity
 1941 186' b&w Telugu
d B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini Pics s/c K. Ramnoth
dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya
m Chittor V. Nagaiah
lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Lingamurthy, Bezwada Rajarathnam, Ch. Narayana Rao,
T. Suryakumari, Subba Rao, Master Ashwathama, Kumari

A big success in spite of its controversial subject-matter and its unusually mobile camerawork breaking with the prevailing theatrical conventions adopted in South Indian cinema. The plot tells of the young Venu (Nagaiah) who returns to his family in the village after studying law in England. He has an affair with Lakshmi (Kumari), the maid, and she becomes pregnant. Due to marry the well-off and 'modern' Vimala (Rajarathnam), Venu tries to get rid of Lakshmi by offering her money but she refuses and leaves. As for Vimala, she lets Venu off the hook by eloping with a phony poet, Sukumar (Narayana Rao), so that Venu, who confessed his pre-marital affair to his mother, can try to make amends by marrying the lower-class Lakshmi. Mother and son, accompanied by the daughter Seeta (Suryakumari), set out in search of Lakshmi and locate her in Madras where she became a prostitute and then was jailed for assaulting the madam. All are reconciled. The film questions both the established class divisions and the sexual mores of its depicted social milieu. As with all of Nagaiah's early films, this is a musical hit with perennial songs like Adigo andiyala ravani, Radbe chali and Evaru makinka saati (by Rajarathnam), and Vendikanchalalo and Kroorakarmammulu (by T. Suryakumari). The melodrama re-established Vauhini after the financial disaster of Sumangali (1940), although diluting the reformist commitment of earlier films by the

Chittor V. Nagaiah (right) in Devatha

Reddi/Ramnoth/Raghavacharya/A.K. Sekhar combination. A review in Ananda Vikatan (20.7.1941) welcomed the film, exclaiming: 'Oh gods and goddesses! We wanted to portray you as heroes and heroines in our films. That's what we said when we produced talkies. No god/goddess objected to that. [T]hen we came down to Puranic characters - on to bhaktas, maharajahs, zamindars, millionaires and thence to the common man. But none had thought to make the servant maid the heroine of a film.' Realism in this context meant deploying a new symbolic lexicon (cf. the seduction scene juxtaposed with a montage of sexy covers of glossy foreign magazines, erotic sculpture and calendar art).

DOCTOR

1941 144' b&w Hindi
d Subodh Mitra pc New Theatres
st Sailajananda Mukherjee
dial/co-lyr A.H. Shore co-lyr Munshi Arzoo c Yusuf Mulji m Pankaj Mullick
lp Pankaj Mullick, Ahindra Choudhury, Jyoti Prakash, Master Meenu, Nemo, Amar Mullick, Buddhadeb, Indu Mukherjee, Miss Panna, Bharati

Amar Nath (P. Mullick), progressive son of an aristocratic family, becomes a doctor to address the cholera epidemic ravaging his ancestral village. He marries village girl Maya (Panna) against the wishes of his father Seeta Nath (Choudhury), causing a break with his family. Maya dies in childbirth and Amar Nath agrees to let Dayal (A. Mullick), his father's secretary, adopt the infant son on condition that the boy's antecedents are kept secret. The boy Somnath (Prakash) becomes a doctor and, fired by the idealist zeal of Amar Nath but unaware that he is his father, decides to start a drugs factory in the village. The son falls in love with Shibani (Bharati) but this pits him against Seeta Nath, unaware he is his grandfather. The Mukherjee story invokes the standard reformist moral conflict between ancestry and vocation often used to subordinate ideals of progress and modernity (e.g. medicine) to 'tradition'.

GUMASTAVIN PENN

aka Clerk's Daughter
1941 183' b&w Tamil
d K.V. Srinivasan pc TKS Brothers, Gemini Pics. Circuit st TKS Brothers' play sc V.S. Vyas dial T.K. Muthuswamy c Rustom Irani m Narayanan, Padmanabhan Party lp M.V. Rajamma, P. Subbaiah Pillai, T.S. Rajalakshmi, M.S. Draupadi, T.K. Shanmugham, T. Seetalakshmi, T.K. Bhavagavathi, Friend Ramaswamy, Shakuntala Natarajan

A melodrama based on a famous play by TKS Bros, itself derived from Nirupama Devi's Bengali novel Annapurnika Mandir. Poor but upright Brahmin clerk Ramaswamy Iyer (Pillai), employed by a wealthy zamindar, has two unmarried daughters, Sarasa (Draupadi) and Seeta (Rajamma). Seeta loves the rich Ramu (Shanmugham), a match approved by Ramu's widowed mother (Seetalakshmi) but opposed by Ramu who arranges for Seeta to marry someone else. She refuses. Because of the ensuing scandal Seeta finds herself obliged to marry an old widower who fortunately dies directly after the wedding. Then the clerk's evil employer Mani (Bhagavathi) goes after her. He sacks her reluctant father, causing him to die of shock. Ramu later repents and tries to help Seeta's family but she commits suicide leaving him the responsibility of taking care of her sister. Ramu then tries to marry off the younger sister Sarasa, later marrying her himself. This was regarded as an early attempt at realism in Tamil cinema. Following its success Annadurai novelised a sequel. Gumastavin Penn or Kolaigariyin Kurripugal.

JHOOLA

1941 176' b&w Hindi
d/co-sc Gyan Mukherjee pc Bombay Talkies p S. Mukherjee co-sc/co-dial P.L. Santoshi co-dial Shaheed Latif lyr Pradeep
c R.D. Parineeya m Saraswati Devi lp Leela Chitnis, Ashok Kumar, Shah Nawaz, Karuna Devi, V.H. Desai, Mumtaz Ali, Shahzadi, Rajkumari Shukla, Minoo Cooper, M.A. Aziz

The third consecutive S. Mukherjee-produced hit by Bombay Talkies starring Leela Chitnis and Ashok Kumar (Kangan, 1939, Bandhan, 1940). Two half-brothers, Ramesh (Kumar) and Mahesh (Shah Nawaz), love the same woman, Geeta (Chitnis). Mahesh inherits his father's estate (half of which belongs to Ramesh) while Ramesh works as a postman. Complicating the situation is the presence of Kamala (Karuna Devi), Mahesh's former beloved who eventually wrecks his matrimonial designs on Geeta. The film adheres to the Bombay Talkies tradition of the ruralist melodrama, with a simplified Hindustani dialect and the studio's familiar clutch of supporting characters, such as the benevolent patriarchal Zamindar, the postmaster (Desai), the dancing courtier and postal employee (Mumtaz Ali). Gyan Mukherjee's debut also announces the shortly to be formed Filmistan studio's signature style of taut, dramatic editing in its complicated climax when Mahesh's henchmen chase Geeta, who is rescued by Ramesh and by a popular revolt among the villagers. Ashok Kumar sings his best known film song Chali re meri nao. Mukherjee's next film was the crime movie Kismet (1943).

KHAZANCHI

aka The Cashier
1941 171' b&w Hindi
d Moti B. Gidwani pc Pancholi Art Pics
st Dalsukh M. Pancholi lyr Walli c Badri Dass
m Ghulam Haider
lp M. Ismail, Ramola, S.D. Narang, Manorama, Durga Mota, Jankidas, Ajmal

Musical megahit from Lahore often cited as the precursor of the commercial Hindi cinema's editing and sound-mixing style and trend-setter of Hindi-Urdu film music, mainly through its adaptations of Punjabi folk music. Shadilal (Ismail), the trusted cashier of a bank, has to transport gold jewellery to Bombay. His son Kanwal (Narang) falls in love with the millionaire Durgadas's (Mota) daughter Madhuri (Ramola). Kanwal finds himself pitted against the villainous Ramesh (Ajmal), Durgadas's secretary and the nephew of Madhuri's stepmother as well as being a rival suitor for Madhuri. The marriage is cancelled when news flashes from Bombay that Shadilal has murdered an actress and absconded with the jewellery.

NAYA SANSAR

1941 158' b&w Hindi
d N.R. Acharya pc Bombay Talkies
p S. Mukherjee st/co-sc K.A. Abbas co-sc Gyan Mukherjee dial J.S. Casshyap, Shaheed Latif lyr Pradeep c R.D. Parineeya m Saraswati Devi, Ramchandra Pal lp Renuka Devi, Ashok Kumar, Mubarak, Shah Nawaz, V.H. Desai, Jagannath, David, Suresh, Sushil Kumar, P.F. Pithawala, Azoorie

Although S. Mukherjee's production team (e.g. Gyan Mukherjee, Shaheed Latif) were involved, authorship for this film is usually credited to Abbas. It was his first major film work, in which he used his experiences as a journalist to create the character of the reporter Puran (A. Kumar). Premchand (Mubarak), fearless editor of the radical newspaper Sansar, loves Asha (Renuka Devi), an orphan raised by his family. She joins the paper and falls for its ace reporter, the cynical Puran, yet she feels bound to accept her benefactor's marriage proposal. When the editor dilutes his radicalism and starts negotiating with the corrupt Dhaniram, Puran leaves and produces a broadsheet called Naya Sansar (New World). The editor recognises his mistake, gives his blessing to the couple and even re-employs Puran, promising to stick to his radical stance. There are numerous dances composed and performed by Azoorie promoting solidarity and against Untouchability. Abbas later named his film production unit Naya Sansar Films and made all his films under that banner.

PARICHAY/LAGAN

1941 141' [B]/150' [H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/sc/c Nitin Bose pc New Theatres st Binoy Chatterjee lyr [H] Arzoo m Rai Chand Boral
lp K.L. Saigal, Kanan Devi, Naresh Bose, Rathin Bannerjee [B], Mihir Bhattacharya [B], Shyam Laha [B]/Nawab [H], Nandita Devi [B], Harimohan Bose [B], Jagdish [H], Girdharilal Vaid [H], Nemo [H], Rehmat Bibi [H]

Student Kusum Kumari (Kanan Devi) is a hit at a college concert while her tutor, the composer and poet (Saigal), is ignored. After marrying the rich Deendayal (Laha/Nawab), she realises she loves the poet. Her husband tries to please her by publishing the poet's work, making him famous, which leads to further complications. The film made an important contribution to Saigal's image, helping to define the Indian version of the romantic stereotype of the artist, a figure later mobilised by e.g. Guru Dutt in Pyaasa (1957).

⊗ PAYACHI DASI/CHARNON KI DASI

1941 126[M]/129[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d Gajanan Jagirdar p/s/lyr[M] P.K. Atre pc Atre Pics dial/lyr[H] Anand Kumar
c S. Hardip m Annasaheb Mainkar lp Durga Khote, Vanamala, Gajanan Jagirdar, Avinash, Kusum Deshpande, Kelkar

Typical Marathi reform social written and produced by Atre. Evil mother-in-law (Khote) cruelly exploits the young bride Vidya (Vanamala). Husband Murari (Avinash) protests only feebly until finally he decides to revolt and stand by his wife. The film ends with Vidya, now in charge of the house, declaring her commitment to the very tradition that victimised her. The widowed and equally vindictive sister-in-law Champa (Deshpande) and the village flirt Nokheram (played by the director) are the other major characters of this commercial hit.

⊗ PRAHLADAN

aka Bhaktia Prahlada
 1941 183' b&w Malayalam
d K. Subramanyam pc Madras United Artists Corp s N.P. Chellappan Nair lyr Kilimannoor Madhavaryar c Kamal Ghosh lp Gopinath, Thangamani, Kumari Lakshmi, Master Sadasivam, N.P. Chellappan Nair, P.R. Rajagopala Iyer, K.R.N. Swamy, Sharada, Master Gopi, N. Krishna Pillai

Shot at the Gemini Studio by the leading Tamil director of the time, the mythological retells the familiar tale of the demon Hiranyakashapu and his devout son Prahlada who worships the god Vishnu. The film was noted mainly for its spectacular dances, featuring the famed duo of Gopinath (as Hiranyakashapu) and Thangamani (as his wife Kayadhu). The dance of Yama, god of death, was the film's major highlight. Some of the choreography was set to classical Carnatic music. Master Sadasivam provided the mandatory comedy relief.

⊗ RAJ NARTAKI/COURT DANCER

1941 144[B]/126[H]/86[E] b&w Bengali/Hindi/English
d/sc Modhu Bose pc Wadia Movietone st Manmatha Ray dial[H] W.Z. Ahmed lyr Pandit Indra[H] c Jatin Das, Probodh Das m Timir Baran
lp Sadhona Bose, Jyoti Prakash[B]/Prithviraj Kapoor[H], Ahindra Choudhury, Protima Dasgupta, Binita Gupta, Preeti Majumdar

Best-known film by the Bose husband and wife team. Set in feudal Manipur, presumably to display Bose's abilities in the famous classical dance form of the region. The story pivots around Prince Chandrakriti's (Prakash/Kapoor) responsibilities to his kingdom requiring him to marry the princess of Tripur although he loves the court dancer Madhuchanda (Bose). The mystical head of a temple sect persuades Madhuchanda to give up her hold on the prince. She does so at the cost of her reputation and becomes a public outcast. One of the few Indian films made also in English and released in the USA.

⊗ RISHYASHRINGAR

1941 172' b&w Tamil
d Acharya pc Tamil Nadu Talkies p S. Soundararajan lyr Papanasam Rajagopal Iyer c Jiten Bannerjee m Sharma Bros lp Ranjan, Vasundhara Devi, S. Balachander, G. Pattu Iyer, A.K. Kamalam, K.N. Rajalakshmi, M.S. Murugesan, Kumari Rukmini, Ramani, Kumar Murali

A rare mythological celebrating the triumph of desire over religious asceticism. The celibate sage Vibhandaka (Iyer) finds an abandoned child and names him Rishyashringar (Ranjan). He teaches the child all the scriptures but keeps him isolated from all human contact. In a nearby kingdom that faces drought following the curse of a sage, the king is told that only Rishyashringar can bring rain. The king sends the seductive Maya (Vasundhara Devi) to entice him into the kingdom, which she does. Rishya arrives, brings the rain and marries the princess, much to the dismay of Vibhandaka.

⊗ SANT SAKHU

1941 128' b&w Marathi/Hindi
d V. Damle, S. Fattelal, Raja Nene pc Prabhat Film s Shivram Vashikar dial/co-lyr[H] P.L. Santoshi co-lyr[H] Mukham Sharma lyr[M] Shantaram Athavale c V. Avadhoot, E. Mohammed m Keshavrao Bhole
lp Hansa Wadkar, Gauri, Shankar Kulkarni, Shanta Majumdar, Sumitra

The only woman-centred Saint film at Prabhat with Wadkar in the classic role of Sakhu, a Marathi Saint poet whose existence is mainly legendary as opposed to the better-documented male ones. She is depicted as a devoutly religious woman married to a weak husband (Kulkarni) and oppressed by her cruel mother-in-law Mhalsakaku (Gauri) and sister-in-law Durga (Majumdar). Recognition comes at the end of the film through a series of miracles (including the classic scene where she is tied to a pillar, her disembodied death and reincarnation). Unlike the directors' earlier and better-known films in the genre, this was mainly a family melodrama. The celebratory power of the genre only appears sporadically, e.g. the pilgrims walking to Pandharpur. Unusually, the mandatory miracle scenes were integrated into the plot (instead of merely illustrating saintly power), esp. at the end when the 'real' Sakhu confronts her divine stand-in to confuse everyone in the village and to attract charges of being a ghost. The bizarre publicity included stills showing convoys of military vehicles captioned 'What leads an army - Faith'.

⊗ SHEJARI/PADOSI

1941 134[M]/135[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d V. Shantaram pc Prabhat Film s Vishram Bedekar dial/lyr[H] Sudarshan lyr[M] Shantaram Athavale c V. Avadhoot m Master Krishnarao lp Gajanan Jagirdar, Balakram, Sumitra, Gopal, Keshavrao Date[M]/Mazhar Khan[H], Chandrakant[M], Jayashree[M], Gauri[M], Manajirao[M], Master Chhotu[M], Vatsala[M], Anees Khatun[H], Balwant Singh[H], Muliya[H], Casshyap[H], Radha Krishna[H], Vasant Thengadi[H], Lajwanti[H], Sarala Devi[H]

Melodrama addressing communal harmony. Mirza (Jagirdar) and Patil (Date/Khan) are close friends and the senior guardians of their village. The industrialist Omkar wants to build a bigger dam but is opposed by the duo. He has Patil sacked and his son excommunicated for allegedly burning a house. This causes a rift between the two old friends, who eventually make up as the giant dam bursts and they die in each other's arms. Shantaram continued his relentlessly emotional and symbolic use of nature, as the stormy scene that accompanies Omkar's decision to split the friendship between Mirza and Patil. This use of nature culminates logically in the film's highlight: the dam bursting with a series of impressive nature-on-the-rampage shots. The Marathi version has some classic hits, including Radhika chatur bole and the nicely picturised community number Lakhlakh chanderi tejachi nyari duniya shot in torchlight with remarkably controlled deep-focus shots.

Gauri and Hansa Wadkar in Sant Sakhu

SIKANDAR

1941 146' b&w Urdu

d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone

s/lyr Sudarshan c Y.D. Sarpotdar m Mir Saheb, Rafiq Ghaznavi

lp Sohrab Modi, Prithviraj Kapoor, Vanamala, Meena, Sheela, Sadiq Ali, Zahur Raja, Shakir, K.N. Singh, Jiloo

Modi's military epic is set in 326BC when Alexander the Great aka Sikandar (Kapoor), having conquered Persia and the Kabul valley, descends to the Indian border at Jhelum with his Macedonian army and encounters King Porus (Modi) of the Punjab who stops the advance with his troops. The plot has Sikandar ignoring his teacher Aristotle's (Shakir) advice and he falls for a Persian woman, Rukhsana (Vanamala). Fearing for Sikandar's life, she goes to Porus's court and extracts a promise that he shall not harm Sikandar. In the battle with the Macedonian army, Porus loses his son Amar (Raja) and meets Sikandar face to face. An elaborate verbal duel follows, then the two kings become friends and Sikandar withdraws. The stilted, declamatory dialogue was pure Parsee Theatre as Modi and Kapoor, well-known Shakespearean actors, give free reign to their histrionic proclivities. Highlights including the scenes of battle on horses and elephants. The film was later dubbed in Persian.

SWAMI

1941 152' b&w Hindi

d A.R. Kardar pc CIRCO st Munshi

Premchand's Triya Charitra sc/dial Imtiaz Ali Taj lyr Shahir Ghaznavi, Pandit Indra, Tanveer Naqvi c Jatin Das m Rafiq Ghaznavi lp Sitara Devi, Jairaj, Yakub, Majid, Badriprasad, Gulam Rasool

Kardar's ultra-conservative ode to patriarchy tells of Binod (Jairaj) and Indira (Sitara Devi) who were married as children and never meet as adults. Indira grows into a 'modern' young woman while Binod, disinherited when his stepfather has a son, works in a distant village. Indira haughtily refuses a relationship with a pauper but she eventually realises her duties to her husband and goes to meet him disguised as Shanta, a beggar woman. Binod then falls in love with her, not realising she is in fact his wife.

TALLIPREMA

1941 211' b&w Telugu

d Jyotish Sinha pc Rajarajeshwari Pics

st Lakshmi Narasimha Rao dial K.L. Narasimha Rao lyr Daita Gopalam c Kamal Ghosh m N.V. Venkatraman, N.B. Dinkar Rao lp P. Kannamba, Hemalatha Devi,

Sheshamamba, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, Kalyanam Raghuramaiah

Marital melodrama promoting the image of the ideal woman as a long-suffering and self-sacrificing wife. Santha (Kannamba) is the exemplary but still childless wife of Krishna Rao (Anjaneyulu). When all rituals fail, she accepts her evil sister-in-law Durgabai's (Sheshamba) suggestion that her husband take a second bride, Kamala (Hemalatha). Durgabai and Kamala then combine to eject Santha from the house in spite of her sudden pregnancy. She gives birth to a son but gets separated from the child, which is raised by a local zamindar. Kamala turns out to be the real villain and sends an assassin to kill the child. Eventually the husband has a change of heart and rescues the child himself. Kamala obligingly commits suicide, thus restoring the original happy couple.

TENALI RAMAKRISHNA

1941 198' b&w Telugu

d H.M. Reddy pc Rohini Pics s/lyr Sadasiva

Brahmam c P. Sridhar m Gundopant Walavalkar lp Master Raju, S.P. Lakshmanaswamy, P. Subba Rao, K.V. Subba Rao, L.V. Prasad, T. Hanumantha Rao, P. Koteswara Rao, Baby Rohini, Kumari Sarala, Thilakam, Ansuya, Gangarathnam, Subbulu

Tenali Ramakrishna (aka Tenali Raman, the hero of many popular morality tales) was a jester in the court of Krishnadeva Raya, who ruled over the Vijayanagara empire at its pinnacle (1509-30). The rather wordy film opens with the child Ramakrishna (Master Raju) being admonished for telling unpalatable truths exposing the duplicity of the elders: when the old and twice-married widower Karanam wants to marry 9-year-old Saubhagyam, Ramakrishna masquerades as the child bride and prevents the marriage. His reputation as a principled prankster grows and as an adult (Lakshmanaswamy) he wins a seat in Krishnadeva Raya's court as a poet by dressing up as a folk entertainer. In the court he comes up against the scheming Brahmin Tatacharya, who interprets divine signs to enhance his own wealth. When the king's aged mother dies leaving an uneaten mango, Tatacharya foretells that her soul will never find peace unless all the Brahmins are given mangoes made of gold. Ramakrishna replies that his own mother died with an unfulfilled desire to be branded with a hot iron, and he arranges to have all the Brahmins branded instead. Ramakrishna's ready wit also saves the king from losing his empire. L.V. Prasad played two roles in the film: the minister Timmarasu and the corrupt matchmaker who arranges the marriage of the 9-year-old girl with the aged Brahmin. Tenali Ramakrishna stories were extensively filmed (e.g. B.S. Ranga's Telugu/Tamil/Kannada trilingual, Tenali Ramakrishna/Tenali Raman, 1956).

THORATANCHI KAMALA

1941 138' b&w Marathi

d/s/lyr Bhalji Pendharkar pc Famous-Arun

Pics c Saju Naik m Kashalkar-Pyarsaheb lp Sumati Gupte, Chandrakant, Nanasaheb Phatak, Nimbalkar, Jaishankar Danve, Kamalabai, Shanta, Chitnis, Bapurao Pawar

Famous Marathi historical made originally by Sarpotdar (1927), probably with a story credit for Pendharkar, and remade by Madhav Shinde based on Pendharkar's script in 1963. A fictional story set in the 17th-C. Maratha empire of Shivaji (Phatak) extolling the greatness of a Maratha past teeming with beautiful maidens and men of valour. Wounded during a tiger hunt, Shivaji's son Sambhaji (Chandrakant) is looked after by Kamala (Gupte), falls in love and eventually abducts her. When Kamala returns home, her father refuses to accept her and kills himself out of shame. Shivaji has a public trial of his own son and puts him in prison. When Kamala is abducted again, by Yeshwantrao, the man she was supposed to marry, Sambhaji escapes from prison to rescue her but she is killed in the ensuing violence. The musical hit established Chandrakant as a major Marathi star. Pendharkar made a companion work: Mohityanchi Manjula (1963).

VENUGANAM

1941 167' b&w Tamil

d Murugadasa pc Jewel Pics-Coimbatore

st Manjeri S. Ishwaran sc K. Ramnath dial Ki. Rajagopal lyr Kambadasan c Sudhish C. Ghatak m Govindarajulu Naidu lp N.C. Vasanthakokilam, A. Shakuntala, V.V. Sadagopan, M.V. Mani, T.V. Krishnaswamy, Sandow Chinnappa Devar, K. Sarangapani

Regarded as a light mythological comedy, it is a rare example of a totally invented mythological. Prince Vindhan (M.V. Mani) hates the god Krishna adored by his sister Mithra (Vasanthakokilam). When Vindhan runs over a child in his chariot, he is tried and sent to prison by his own father but he escapes and stages a coup. He becomes a tyrant with the help of the villainous King Duryodhan. Duryodhan wants Mithra to marry his imbecile brother-in-law Parvatheshwara but Krishna steps in, rescues Mithra and arranges to have his friend disguised as the bride. Krishna and his accomplice are arrested but just then Vindhan's father, the old king, reappears after having escaped from prison, and puts matters right. Vasanthakokilam's songs in praise of Krishna were hits.

APNA GHAR/APLE GHAR

1942 167'[H]/156'[M] b&w Hindi/Marathi

d/s Debaki Bose pc CIRCO lyr Narottam Vyas[H], Shantaram Athavale, Shivram Vashikar[M] c Gordhanbhai Patel m Harishchandra Bali

lp Shanta Apte, Chandramohan, Maya Bannerjee[H], Kusum Deshpande[M], Jagdish Sethi[H], Nayampalli[M], Jeevan[H], Madhukar Gupte[M], Nimbalkar, Vimala Vasisth, Marutirao, Vimal Sardesai, Mahesh Kaul, P.R. Joshi, Bibi, Mishra[H], Angre[M]

A melodrama examining the family within nationalism. Forest contractor Narendra (Chandramohan) has an arranged marriage with social reformer Meera (Apte) mainly to keep Meera's ailing father happy. Since her work with the tribal peoples and her attempts to unionise them interferes with his business interests, Narendra demands that she devote herself solely to his comforts. An unwanted relative, Mami (Vasishtha), encourages the couple's gradual alienation. Meera leaves home forever never to return and is believed to have drowned in a river, which prompts a change of heart for Narendra, both towards Meera and to the jungle-folk who have in fact rescued her.

New Theatres' Debaki Bose ventured into classic Prabhat territory with his only Marathi film using Prabhat's stars (Apte and Chandramohan) and writers (Vyasa, Athavale and Vashikar).

ARMAAN

1942 127' b&w Hindi

d/s/lyr Kidar Sharma pc Ranjit Movietone
c D.K. Ambre m Gyan Dutt

lp Motilal, Shamim, Nagendra, Rajendra Singh, Meera, Rajkumari, Bhagwandas, A. Shah, Bhupatrai, Nazir Bedi

Sharma's first film at Ranjit is a science fiction romance using nature as a metaphor for inner turmoil and as the model for social morality. Set in 1910, its modern hero, Kanwal (Motilal), invents a ray that records pain and pleasure photographically. His experiments render him blind. Country lass Meera (Shamim) tends to him and they fall in love. Later Meera meets a sage (Shah) who has an expensive magic potion that cures blindness. Unable to afford it, Meera kills the sage, grabs the medicine and goes to Kanwal's house while all nature protests her actions. There the evil Diwan (Bhagwandas) and his accomplices steal the medicine, cure Kanwal and take the credit. Kanwal, who can now see but does not recognise Meera, accuses her of murder but eventually realises the truth.

BALANAGAMMA

1942 c.220' b&w Telugu

d C. Pullaiah p S.S. Vasana pc Gemini
s/lyr Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi c Sailen Bose m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao, M.D. Parthasarathy

lp Kanchanmala, Pushpavalli, G.V. Subba Rao, Banda, Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi, Bellari Lalitha, Kamaladevi, Lanka Sathyam, Relangi Venkatramaiah

Gemini's megahit launched a very popular and uniquely Telugu genre of fantasy films derived from folk theatre (e.g. K.V. Reddy's films, esp. Patala Bhairavi, 1951). The film adapts the Telugu folk Burra Katha to a reformist idiom to tell the story of a woman, Balanagamma (Pushpavalli), who is abducted by an evil magician, Mayala Marathi (Subba Rao). She keeps his amorous advances at bay for twelve years, claiming to be engaged in a ritual act of penance, after which her son rescues her.

Known for its spectacular costumes and sets, its music and elaborate special effects.

Kanchanmala played the role of the wicked stepmother. A lawsuit with Vasana following on from the film halted her career for almost a decade.

BASANT

1942 146' b&w Hindi

d/s/c Amiya Chakravarty pc Bombay Talkies
dial J.S. Casshyap lyr P.L. Santoshi
c R.D. Mathur m Pannalal Ghosh lp Mumtaz Shanti, Ulhas, Mumtaz Ali, P.F. Pithawala, Suresh, Jagannath, Kamala, Kanu Roy, Pramila

Establishing both Chakravarty as director and Mumtaz Shanti (she went on to star with Ashok Kumar in Kismet, 1943), the film tells of Uma (Shanti) and her brother Babul, two downtrodden servants who dream of becoming singing and dancing stars on the stage. They attract the attention of the impresario Janaki Prasad and Uma marries his spoilt and envious younger brother, Nirmal (Ulhas) who sets out to make his own fortune leaving Uma and their baby to starve. When he returns to find his wife is working on the stage, he abducts the baby and disappears again. After a further 10 years of unhappy stage stardom for Uma, the family is reunited and the happy ending sees her return to being a housewife in accordance with her husband's wishes. The film belonged to the studio's more orthodox production wing run by Devika Rani who tried to continue the Osten tradition. However, the cameraman R.D. Mathur (who later shot K. Asif's historicals) hadn't mastered Wirsching's use of spotlights: shadows and source reflections interfere constantly with the action. Mumtaz Shanti's dancing and Mumtaz Ali's minimal gestures belongs to a different actorial generation from the 30s Bombay Talkies, as did the songs, esp. the leitmotif Aya basant ritu. Although celebrated flautist Pannalal Ghosh is credited as composer, the music was scored uncredited by Anil Biswas while Ghosh played in the orchestra recording.

BHAKTA POTANA

1942 186' b&w Telugu

d K.V. Reddy pc Vauhini Pics dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya sc/c K. Ramnoth
m Chittor V. Nagaiah
lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Malati, C. Hemlatha, Vanaja, Samrajyam, Gaurinatha Sastry, Lingamurthy

Nagaiah's debut in the saint film genre sees him as Bammara Potanamaty, aka Bhakta Potana, a farmer who, allegedly on orders from Rama, adapted the Sanskrit Bhagvata into Telugu. The king insists that Potana should dedicate his translations from Sanskrit to him. The king's efforts to appropriate Potana's text are foiled by divine intervention, once when Hanuman protects him and his family from the king's soldiers, and in the film's finale when the soldiers, trying to demolish Potana's home, find the king's palace being magically destroyed instead. The film was a major hit and including songs like Sarvamangalanama, Nannu vidichi kadalakura and Pavanaguna nama, encouraging Nagaiah to direct a sequel, Thyagayya (1946). The former actress Bezawada Rajarathnam sang playback for the dancer Samrajyam.

BHARAT MILAP/BHARAT BHET

1942 170' b&w Hindi/Marathi

d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics s Vishnupant Aundhkar dial/co-lyr[H] Anuj Visharad co-lyr[H] Pandit Indra, Balam co-lyr[M] Shantaram Athavale c P.G. Kukde m Shankarrao Vyas cboreo Lachchu Maharaj lp Shahu Modak, Shobhana Samarth, Durga Khot, Prem Adib[H], Chandrakant[M], Vimala Vasisth, Umakant[H], Vinay Kale[M], Nimbalkar, P. Ratnamala, Amirbai Karnataki

Bhatt's first of many films based on the Ramayana tried to be the biggest and the most faithful adaptation of the epic to date. Credits include dozens of literary sources and the expertise of several historians and curators. This plot tells of Bharat, the third of Dasharath's four sons, and his unstinting devotion to Rama, his eldest brother. Kaikeyi, incited by her maid Manthara, takes advantage of a royal boon to force Dasharath to exile Rama on the eve of his coronation and to have her own son Bharat made king of Ayodhya. Bharat refuses the throne and goes to the forest to recall Rama. When Rama insists on honouring his father's promise, Bharat spends 14 years waiting for the heir to return and assume his rightful place as king. The film omits most of the mandatory miracle sequences and looks more like a period romance with expensive sets and battle scenes, e.g. when Bharat is attacked by Nishadraj's army. Notwithstanding the film's textual claims to authenticity, its general effect is that of contemporary calendar art with its vaguely neo-classical decor.

DAHA WAJTA/DAS BAJE

aka 10 o'clock

1942 144' b&w Marathi/Hindi

d Raja Nene pc Prabhat Film co-s D.D. Casshyap co-s/dial[M] G.K. Pawar dial/lyr[H] Mukhran Sharma lyr[M] Shantaram Athavale c E. Mohammed m Keshavrao Bhole lp Urmila[H]/P. Ratnamala[M], Paresh Bannerjee[H]/Shankar Kulkarni[M], Manajirao, Vasant Thengadi, Baby Shakuntala

Top university student Dilip (Bannerjee/Kulkarni) falls in love with rich classmate Asha (Urmila/Ratnamala) but her father forces her to marry Dr Ramesh (Thengadi). Dilip falls ill and only Dr Ramesh's surgical skills can save him. 10 o'clock is when the lovers first promise to remember each other and the symbol recurs at various points in the melodrama. A commercially successful film and an important rallying point at Prabhat Studio for the Nene/

Daba Wajta

Dharmadhikari/Mane/Bhole unit which went independent shortly thereafter.

GARIB

1942 152' b&w Hindi
d/st Ramchandra Thakur pc National Studios p Mehboob Khan sc Zia Sarhadi lyr Safdar
 'Aah' c Keki Mistry m Ashok Ghosh lp Surendranath, Rose, Veena Kumari, Sankatha, Ansari, Kayamali, Pesi Patel, Keshav, Wasker

Produced by Mehboob and scripted by Sarhadi, this melodrama about poverty is one of the Sagar and National Studio films later acknowledged by Abbas as a precursor to his own political cinema. The unemployed graduate Sharad (Surendranath) finds work accompanying a blind beggar. He meets the heiress Sudha (Rose) on the street and later finds that the place where the destitutes find shelter belongs to Sudha's industrialist father Biharilal (Sankatha). He uses his friendship with Sudha to get her father to forego the rent and to start a factory that may employ them all. The factory does well, to the chagrin of Sudha's fiancé (and the film's villain) Satish (Ansari). Satish, who simultaneously pursues the beautiful Lata (Veena Kumari), has the factory closed and accuses Sharad of having an affair with Lata. The threat of renewed destitution is avoided only when Sudha and Lata meet and the truth comes out.

GARMIL

1942 141' b&w Bengali
d Niren Lahiri pc Chitrabani dial Nripendra Krishna Chatterjee, Jogesh Choudhury c Ajoy Kar m Kamal Dasgupta lp Chhabi Biswas, Jogesh Choudhury, Sheila Haldar, Srilekha, Jahar Ganguly, Robin Majumdar, Nripati Chatterjee, Kanu Bannerjee, Tulsi Chakraborty, Santosh
 Sinha, Prabhadevi, Shyam Laha

Melodrama confronting the traditionalist Hindu Madhab Thakur (Choudhury) and his Westernised neighbour Mukherjee (Biswas). Mukherjee's son Robi (Majumdar) and Thakur's daughter Malati (Haldar) run a school of traditional disciplines which they hope to develop into a nationwide institution. Their plans to marry receive a setback when Malati's elder sister is forced to marry a Brahmin, triggering a revolt by the younger generation of both households. Then Malati's marriage to a wealthy zamindar is arranged but eventually a happy ending and the triumph of a kind of syncretic modernity, reconciling Brahminism with Westernisation are achieved.

GHARANA DONGA

aka Satyame Jayam aka Honest Rogue
 1942? b&w Telugu
d H.M. Reddy pc Rohini Pics s/lyr Sadasiva Brahman
lp L.V. Prasad, Thilakani, Gangarathnam

Folk-tale about a thief (L.V. Prasad) who is scapegoated to divert attention from the real enemy, the decadent minister of a kingdom. The king eventually realises the truth when he goes out in disguise and finds himself assisting the thief in robbing the royal safe, an adventure which shows the thief to be a decent fellow. The film apparently claimed to promote Gandhian ideals.

JAWANI KI PUKAR

aka Call of Youth
 1942 140' b&w Hindi
d/co-s D. Bilimoria pc Artists Combine co-s Harbanslal dial/lyr A.K. Sindi c R.M. Rele, V.G. Sawant m Vasant Kumar Naidu lp D. Bilimoria, Harish, W.M. Khan, Afghan Sandow, Benjamin, Samson, Kalyani, Urmila, Alaknanda, Abdul Ghani, S. Gulab

Adventure film directed by silent star
 D. Bilimoria about two friends, Balu (Bilimoria) and Harish (Harish), and their faithful servant who set out to seek their fortune in Bombay. The film includes episodes in a film studio that were used to comment on the gangsterism present among the extras and their suppliers, using characters with names like Al Capone (Samson). Much of the action takes place on a ship where they try to rescue the heroine Kanwal (Kalyani) from the clutches of villain lagat (W.M. Khan).

JEEVANA NATAKA

1942 160' b&w Kannada
d Wahab Kashmiri p Gubbi Veeranna pc Gubbi Films s A.N. Krishnarao from his play m Rama Iyer, Harmonium Sheshgiri Rao lp Gubbi Veeranna, Kemparaj Urs, Shanta Hublikar, B. Jayamma, D. Jaya Rao, Mohan Kumari

Melodrama in which Anand (Veeranna), proprietor of a theatre group, offers shelter to the orphan Padma (Jayamma) who eventually displaces the star of the company Kamala (Hublikar). When she falls in love with Mohan (Urs), who also lives under Anand's patronage, the proprietor throws both of them out. Driven to alcoholism by his infatuation with Kamala, Mohan almost drives his wife Padma to suicide. She is rescued by Anand, who eventually brings everyone together again. One of the few films scripted by noted Kannada author A.N. Krishnarao, it introduced the noted South Indian actor-director Kemparaj Urs to film and imported the former Prabhat star Shanta Hublikar for her only Kannada movie.

KANNAGI

1942 c.220' b&w Tamil
d R.S. Mani pc Jupiter Pics s Elangovan
lyr Udumalai Narayana Kavi c Marcus Bartley, W.R. Subba Rao m S.V. Venkatraman lp P. Kannamba, P.U. Chinnappa, N.S. Krishnan, T.A. Mathuram,
 R. Balasubramanyam, S.V. Sahasranamam,
 T.R. Ramachandran, N.S. Saroja,
 U.R. Jeevarathnam

Classic Kannamba role as Kannagi, a character from the major Tamil Jain epic and morality tale Chilapatbhikaram (1st C. AD), written by Elango Adigal. Hero Kovalan (Chinnappa) marries Kannagi (Kannamba), both being subjects of the Chola kingdom. But Kovalan then falls in love with the dancer Madhavi (Saroja) who causes his ruin. He is rescued by his dutiful wife, who offers to sell her golden anklet to help him restart his business. The anklet, which the king of the neighbouring Pandya kingdom suspects to be stolen, leads to the hero being beheaded by royal command. Kannagi avenges herself by proving the king was mistaken, causing him and his queen to die on the spot. Then in the spectacular finale, she sets the entire Pandyan capital town of Madurai on fire with a curse. Eventually Kannagi ascends to heaven. The film followed an earlier film of an important Tamil legend, Mani Mekalai (1940), scripted by A.A. Somayajulu, exploiting the revivalist interest in Tamil literature's Sangam period (1-5 C. AD) promoted by major political/literary figures like Ramalingaswamy (1823-74) who prefigure Periyar E.V. Ramaswamy Naicker's Self-Respect Movement in the state. Kannagi extended this trend via Elangovan's strident dialogues. Although Kannagi also figured in popular legends in Tamil Nadu and in Sri Lanka and was subjected to various mutations down the centuries in poetry and theatre, as an icon she came to be identified with Kannamba's image after this successful film. Jeevarathnam played the Jain Saint poetess Gaundi Adigal. The film was also known for its hit Chandrodayam idile (sung by Chinnappa), and for its numerous special effects. Four earlier versions entitled Kovalan were made in the period 1928-34.

⊗ KHANDAAN

1942 171' b&w Hindi

d/co-s Shaukat Hussain Rizvi pc Pancholi Art Prod. st/dial Imtiaz Ali Taj co-sc Khadeem Mohiyuddin c M.N. Malhotra m Ghulam Haider

lp Nurjehan. Ghulam Mohammed, Manorama, Ajmal, Durga Mota, Baby Akhtar

Written by Anarkali author Imtiaz Ali Taj and made in Pancholi's Lahore studio, this was mainly a Nurjehan musical about a man seduced by a gold-digging woman, who then kills her and her lover and is jailed. When he is released, he finds employment as a gardener and becomes a father-figure to his employer's son Anwar and to Anwar's fiancée Zeenat (Nurjehan). This allows him to prevent Anwar from perpetuating precisely the same crime for which he had been jailed as history repeats itself because, so the film alleges, men are constantly threatened by women and only paternal wisdom can save them from the untoward desires of women. Future directors Ramesh Saigal and S.K. Ojha assisted on this film.

⊗ KUNWARA BAAP

aka Bachelor Father

1942 134' b&w Hindi

d/co-s Kishore Sahu pc Acharya Art Prod. st D.N. Naik co-sc Saradindu Bannerjee dial/co-lyr Amritlal Nagar co-lyr Balam, Satyakam, Sharma c Rajnikant Pandya m Ramchandra Pal lp Kishore Sahu, Protima Dasgupta, Baby Lal, Anjali Devi, Dhulia, Manohar Ghatwani, Moni Chatterjee, Jamoo Patel, Hadi, Amritlal Nagar

One of Kishore Sahu's better-known films. The comedy concerns a bachelor who is about to marry a pretty girl when he discovers an infant child abandoned in his car. A rare screen contribution by the eminent Hindi novelist and playwright Amritlal Nagar (author of novels such as Boond Aur Samudra, 1956; Sbatranj Ke Mohre, 1959, etc.) who wrote the dialogues and the lyrics as well as acting in the film.

⊗ MEENAKSHI

1942 155'[B]/146'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d Modhu Bose pc New Theatres st Manmatha Ray dial[H] Amjad Hussain lyr[H] Bhushan

c Bimal Roy m Pankaj Mullick

lp Sadhona Bose, Ahindra Choudhury, Jyoti Prakash(B)/Najmul Hussain[H], K.C. Dey, Naresh Mitra, Devbala, Preeti Majumdar, Panna Devi, Rajalakshmi

This Sadhona Bose star vehicle sees her as Meenakshi, who blunders into the flat of rich playboy Amitabh (Prakash/Hussain) while escaping from a venal marriage arranged by her tyrannical uncle. Amitabh protects her and falls in love. Later, when her presence in his flat is used to blackmail him, he suspects that he has been set up and throws Meenakshi out. They meet again when, coincidentally, she finds shelter with Amitabh's mother. But then Meenakshi starts going blind and runs away again. An operation is performed by the very man to whom she was first betrothed and from whom she had run away. He cures her and ensures the happy ending.

⊗ MUQBALA

1942 133' b&w Hindi

d/co-s Nanabhai Bhatt co-d Babubhai Mistri pc Wadia Movietone co-s J.B.H. Wadia lyr A. Karim c Anant Kadam m Khan Mastana lp Fearless Nadia, Yakub, Agha, Baby Madhuri, Dalpat

Nadia departed from her Zorro-like persona to make her last film for Wadia Movietone (before it became Basant Pics), a double role of twin sisters: the good Madhuri and the bad Rita. The villain, rebuffed by the infant twins' mother, kidnaps Rita, whom he raises to be a nightclub singer and gangster's moll. Madhuri is brought up by the good Rai Bahadur. Madhuri impersonates her sister, after holding her up with her own gun-shaped cigarette lighter, and unmask the villain. The climax has Madhuri's planned assassination at the hands of the villain as part of a magic show, raising tension when Madhuri exchanges places with Rita. Nadia's stilted Hindi and orthodox (by the 40s) performance contrasts sharply with the mobile presence of comedian Agha, playing Yakub's sidekick. The film claims to be the first in India to use a split-screen for a double role, and included some bravura special effects by Mistri, e.g. one sister walking across the other even though the camera establishes both to be Nadia. Other highlights including the spectacular nightclub set that can be transformed into a respectable residence within minutes, using complicated pulleys, whenever cops raid the place.

⊗ NANDANAR

1942 ? b&w Tamil

d Murugadasa pc Gemini Pics st/dial Ki Ra lyr Papanasam Sivan, Kothamangalam Subbu c Sailen Bose, B.S. Ranga m M.D. Parthasarathy, Saluri Rajeshwara Rao lp Dandapani Desigar, Serukalathur Sama, Narayana Rao, Rajam Iyengar, Angamuthu, Sundaribai, Kothamangalam Subbu

Nandanar (Desikar), an overseer in his landlord's (Sama) fields, yearns to visit the Chidambaram temple (banned to 'lower castes') and worship the icon of Shiva. As he grows into a local saint, this desire on his part discomforts both his master and his fellow slum-dwellers. The few low-caste villagers who agree to follow him are forced, much to their displeasure, to chant the god's name and to abstain from alcohol. Eventually the landlord sets an impossible task of singlehandedly reaping all his fields within a given time before Nandanar, promising to fulfil his desire if he can perform that task. This, characteristically in the genre, Nandanar achieves with divine assistance. Later, in Chidambaram, Nandanar performs a second miracle when he 'purifies' himself by entering a fire. In many ways a classic saint film boasting an extraordinary performance by its lead, the major actor-singer Desikar, the film's overtly stated brahminisation of the saint's desires - to enter a notoriously caste-conscious temple and purify himself there - offended many Dalit viewers, forcing the film to be banned in the Kolar Gold Fields until, according to some versions, Desikar came personally and apologised to the workers for having participated in the film's controversial climax.

⊗ PAHILA PALNA

1942 144' b&w Marathi

d/s Vishram Bedekar pc New Huns Pics lyr G.D. Madgulkar, Bobde c Pandurang Naik m C. Balaji lp Shanta Hublikar, Indu Natu, Balabhai, Kusum Deshpande, Baburao Pendharkar, Dinkar Kamanna, G.D. Madgulkar, Vishnupant Aundhkar

A prime example of the growing popularity in the 40s of a formulaic comedy genre satirising Maharashtrian middle-class aspirations towards modernity. Inspired by the Vinayak-Atre style of comedy, Bedekar's film tells the story of Dhananjay (Pendharkar), who belongs to a conventional family, and his modern wife Chitra (Hublikar, in a screen image continued from Mazba Mulga, 1938). Chitra's sister Banu (Natu) and her husband are birth-control zealots. When Chitra and Dhananjay settle down in his ancestral home in the village, a series of vignettes on the theme of married life show Chitra's efforts to change things greatly resisted by the family. This reaches crisis point when she presides over a public meeting on birth control. She leaves to become a schoolteacher. Dhananjay joins her and she gets pregnant, in spite of her sister's admonitions. When the child is born, the proud Dhananjay goes to show it to his dying father. In the end, Chitra is shown accepting the traditionalist strictures imposed on her modernity by Dhananjay's parents. The noted scenarist Madgulkar debuted here as a lyricist (e.g. Lagle mitaya dole).

⊗ PAHIL MANGALAGAU

1942 122' b&w Marathi

d R.S. Junnarkar pc Navyug Chitrapat st/dial V.V. Bokil sc Achyut Govind Ranade lyr Baburao Gokhale c Pandurang Naik m Dada Chandekar

lp Snehprabha Pradhan, Sudha Apte, Lata Mangeshkar, Shobha Kumari, Shahu Modak, Dada Salvi, Vishnupant Jog, Damuanna Malvankar, Gopinath Sawkar

This comedy about arranged marriages started as a Vinayak production, completed by Junnarkar when Vinayak left Navyug. When the handsome doctor Sadashiv (Modak) sets up a new clinic in Pune, he finds himself with no patients but is besieged with marriage offers. Chintu (Jog), son of the crusty patriarch, tricks him into coming home to examine his supposedly ill sister Sarala (Pradhan). One of the major scenes in the film is a cross-talk as Sadashiv asks medical questions while her father examines him as a prospective son-in-law. Sarala and Sadashiv get married, when suddenly Lily, Sadashiv's old girlfriend who is related to the local village gossip, surfaces. As with all of Huns-Navyug films, the snappy dialogue was crucial to the film, which includes kissing scenes. It is also remembered for Lata Mangeshkar's film debut as actress and singer.

PATNI

1942 194' b&w Telugu
d Gudavalli Ramabrahmam pc Sarathi Films s/lyr Tapi Dharma Rao c Sudhish Ghatak m Koppurapu Subba Rao lp K.S. Prakash Rao, Surabhi Kamalabai, Rushyendramani, Hemavathi, Vangara, Kocheerlakota Satyanarayana

Ramabrahmam (Malapilla, 1938; Rattu Bidda, 1939) departs radically from his earlier style, adapting the Kannagi legend (cf. Kannagi, 1942) of Silapathikaram with Rushyendramani in the title role and future director Prakash Rao as her husband Kovalan. Given Ramabrahmam's political inclinations, this version may have addressed the colonial present more directly than Jupiter Pics' version.

RAJA RANI

1942 136' b&w Hindi
d Najam Naqvi pc Atre Pics p/s P.K. Atre dial Anand Kumar c Surendra Pai m Khan Mastana
lp Vanamala, Trilok Kapoor, Sunalini Devi, Maya Devi, Baby Vimal, Mazhar Khan, Navin
Yagnik

Atre produced and scripted this melodrama about the fragmentation of a joint family. Raja (Kapoor) and Rani (Vanamala) marry and are welcomed with much ceremony by the family. Gradually dissensions caused mainly through envy lead the couple to set up their own separate home. Their ambition to live beyond their means brings creditors and a financial crisis. An early instance of a predominantly Marathi film unit branching into Hindi cinema.

ROT

1942 153' b&w Hindi
d Mehboob Khan pc National Studio s R.S. Choudhury sc/co-lyr Wajahat Mirza lyr Safdar 'Aah', Munshi Arzoo Lucknowi, Wajahad Lucknowi c Fareedon Irani m Atre
Biswas

lp Chandramohan, Sheikh Mukhtar, Sitara Devi, Akhtari Faizabadi, Ashraf Khan, Kayamali, Jamshedji, Mirza, Wasker, Choubeji, Nawab, Agha

Mehboob's classic, didactic film counterposing capitalism and primitive tribal communism. The film's crooked commentator (A. Khan) persuades the starving hero (Chandramohan), to impersonate Seth Laxmidas, the long-lost heir of a rich family. In the process, the hero reveals himself as a ruthless entrepreneur and acquires the Laxmidas business empire. He and his girlfriend Darling (Faizabadi, a legendary ghazal singer) happen to crash their private plane and wind up in a tribal, sexually liberated community which ignores notions of private property and believes in the basic goodness of all humankind. The tribals Balam (Mukhtar) and Kinari (Sitara Devi) look after the injured capitalist and help him get back to the city by lending him a pair of buffaloes, Changu and Mangu, who are friends rather than beasts of burden. When the animals are not returned, the tribals go to the city to retrieve them. They are astounded by the way capitalism functions; they have no concept of money and get arrested for eating food they cannot pay for. Their gradual descent into bonded labour is intercut with the machinations of Laxmidas, who has his future father-in-law murdered. Eventually, with the help of Darling (who falls in love with Balam), the tribal couple manages to leave, even as Laxmidas, facing disaster, escapes from his outraged shareholders in a car full of gold bricks. He encounters the tribals again in the desert where his car has broken down. In an echo of Strohheim's Greed (1925), he refuses their offer of water, preferring to die of thirst. The film's dominant character is the fat, cynical commentator (echoing a Brechtian device) who manipulates the story, laughs every time disaster strikes and ridicules compassion (Garibon ki daya karke bada abhsaan karte ho) in a kind of prose chant. Begum Akhtar aka Akhtari Faizabadi gives a fine performance as Darling, the woman who accepts her role as a sex object and the property of the capitalist while hating him inwardly for the murder of her father.

SARKARI PAHUNE

aka State Guests
1942 164' b&w Marathi
d Master Vinayak pc Navyug Chitrapat
st C.V. Joshi's short story s V.S. Khandekar lyr Rajkavi Yeshwant c Vasudev Karnataka
m Datta Davjekar
lp Damuanna Malvankar, Vishnupant Jog, Nandu Khote, Saroj Borkar, Vatsala Kumthekar, Shakuntala Bhome

Vinayak claimed this, his best-known of the Gundiabhau-Chimanrao films and the first one without Atre, to be his only truly political film. His earlier satires (Brahmachari, 1938; Brandichi Batli Brandy Ki Botal, 1939) primarily reflected Atre's literary and political attitudes. Sarkari Pahune was an influential feudal nobility in pre-WW2 Maharashtra. Kautai (Bhome), recently married to Chimanrao (Malvankar) (cf. Lagna Pabave Karun, 1940), claims to be a distant relative of the king of a small state and takes her husband and his bachelor-cousin Gundiabhau (Jog) for a family visit to the 'palace'. The fancy Ford sent to collect them from the railway station is pulled by two oxen (the origin of the classic joke about the 'Ox-Ford'). They find their lodgings have no electricity and the servants are less than honest. Gundiabhau, the convinced misogynist, experiences a crisis when faced by a seductive dancer (Kumthekar). Like its prequel, Lagna Pabave Karun, the film has an episodic narrative, deploys dialogues with a strong period flavour and has extended comic set pieces like the musical contest between Gundiabhau and the dancer.

SATYABHAMA

1942 183' b&w Telugu
d Y.V. Rao pc Jagdish Films dial Sivasankara Sastry, S.G. Acharya lyr Daita Gopalam m Gotu Narayana Iyer
lp Y.V. Rao, Addanki, Pushpavalli, Sthanam, Purnima, Kasturi

Y.V. Rao also plays the lead, Krishna, in this mythological derived from the Mahabharata. Krishna restores the Syamantak gem from the bear-king Jambavanta to Shatrujit, receiving in return the hand of Shatrujit's daughter in marriage. The film is sometimes presented as an early example of the introduction of low Tamil comedy into Telugu cinema.

SHESH UTTAR/JAWAB

1942 144'[B]/157'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d P.C. Barua pc MP Prod. st Shashadhar Dutt lyr Buddhichandra Agarwal 'Madhur', Bekal[H] m Kamal Dasgupta
lp Kanan Devi, Jamuna, P.C. Barua, Ahindra Choudhury, Devbala, Jahar Ganguly, Tulsi Chakraborty

Barua's last major film continues his concern with the fortunes of an aimless feudal upper class (Devdas, 1935; Mukti, 1937). The rich, self-absorbed and, to his family, deranged Manoj (Barua) is sent to his future father-in-law for a rest cure. However, he loses his way and is offered shelter by a railway station-master with whose daughter he falls in love. The poor, earthy and worldly-wise Meena (Kanan Devi) is contrasted with the hero's rich fiancée and strident feminist Reba (Jamuna) and the eventual confrontation between the two women provides the justification for Manoj's decision to marry the former. The original story was written as a rejoinder to Saratchandra's Shesh Prashna, attacking his alleged feminism. The film established Murlidhar Chatterjee's new company as one of the foremost producers of socials in Bengali cinema. The Hindi version included classic Kanan Devi numbers such as Toofan mail and Kuch yaad rabe to sun kar jaa. The famous song in Bengali was Ami bonophool go.

STATION MASTER

1942 157' b&w Hindi

d Chimanlal Luhar pc Prakash Pics co-s/co-dial/co-lyr P.L. Santoshi co-s Vishnupant Aundhkar co-dial/co-lyr Chaturvedi co-lyr Pandit Indra, V.R. Sharma c G.N.
 Shirodkar m Naushad
lp Jagdish Sethi, Prem Adib, P. Ratnamala, Jeevan, Umakant, Kaushalya, Shakir, Amirbai Kamataki, Suraiya, Gulab, Pratima Devi

Melodrama by a stunt-film director. The story features various characters employed in a small railway station. Arun, a new guard, loves Uma, daughter of the old station-master. Through the machinations of a clerk to the district traffic superintendent, their marriage cannot take place. The clerk wants his own daughter to marry Arun and he persuades the superintendent, a widower, to marry Uma. Uma's tragic life is woven into a railway accident for which the station-master is held responsible until an investigation acquits him. Arun's injury sustained in the event brings all the subterranean intrigues into the open.

VASANTSENA

1942 167'[M]/166'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi

d Gajanan Jagirdar pc Atre Pics ps/lyr[M] P.K. Atre lyr Neelkanth Tiwari, D.N. Madhok, P.L. Santoshi c S. Haridas
m Master Krishnarao lp Vanamala, Chintamanrao Kolhatkar[M]/ Gajanan Jagirdar[H], Shahu Modak, Baby Devi, Sunalini Devi, Vimala Tripathi, Rajvishwas, Vijaya, Sudhir Gore, Raja Pandit, Gokhale, Balwant Parchure[M], Vinay Kale[M], Dange[M], Eruch Tarapore[H], Navin Yagnik[H], Nazir Bedi[H]

Based on Shudraka's classic 3rd-C. Sanskrit play Mrichakatika, the main plot of the Brahmin Charudatta's (Modak) love for the courtesan Vasantsena (Vanamala) is interwoven with a parallel plot concerning the popular revolt in Ujjain against the despotic King Palaka, whose state is effectively run by his tyrannical brother-in-law Shakar (Jagirdar/Kolhatkar). The rebels want to replace him with the Gopalaputra Aryaka. The film belongs mainly to Atre and is one of his occasional departures from comedy to update a classic text into a contemporary idiom.

ZAMINDAR

1942 166' b&w Hindi

d Moti B. Gidwani pc Pancholi Art Pics
s Imtiaz Ali Taj lyr Qamar Jalalabadi, Behzad Lucknowi, Nazim Panipatti, D.N. Madhok
c M.N. Malhotra m Ghulam Haider lp Shanta Apte, Manorama, Ghulam Mohammed, M. Ismail, S.D. Narang, M. Ajmal, Baby Akhtar, Durga Mota, Khairati, M.
 Manzoor, G.N. Butt

Pancholi's sequel to their big hit Khazanchi (1941) is a murder mystery indicting feudal patriarchy. The tyrannical village zamindar Ganesh (Mohammed) sacks his trusty manager Raghbir (Ismail) with whose daughter Rupa (Apte) the zamindar's son Karan (Narang) is in love. Karan is disinherited when he sides with the tenants. Unable to live with the tyranny, the tenants draw lots to kill Ganesh just when he is starting to repent his actions. Ganesh is killed with Karan's gun and the son is arrested. Rupa then finds a clue identifying the real killer but cannot reveal it to the police inspector (Butt). Only Rambha (Akhtar), a blind woman, knows the ancestral truth that will solve the mystery.

BHAGYA LAKSHMI

1943 192' b&w Telugu

d P. Pullaiah pc Renuka Films p/s Chittoor V. Nagaiah dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya c M.A. Rehman
m B. Narasimha Rao
lp Chittoor V. Nagaiah, Doraiswamy, Umamaheshwara Rao, Giri, Raghavan, Gauripathy Sastry, N.S. Krishnan,
 T.A. Mathuram, Malathi, T. Suryakumari, Kamala Kotnis

Melodrama about unrequited love. The music teacher Srinivasa Rao (Nagaiah) loves Bhagya Lakshmi (Malati) but her parents arrange for her to marry another man, Vishwanatha Rao (Giri). When the lovesick hero spurns the vamp Kaniakshi, she starts a rumour suggesting Srinivasa Rao is having a sexual affair with Bhagya Lakshmi, causing the heroine to be thrown out of her home. Eventually the hero patches up the marriage between Bhagya Lakshmi and Vishwanatha Rao. Nagaiah hired Pullaiah to direct his first independent production designed to refurbish the star's heroic screen image after playing second leads and Saint films at Vauhini. The film had one classic Nagaiah song hit, Asha nrasba. According to V.A.K. Ranga Rao, this was the first time in Telugu cinema that a playback singer, R. Balasaraswathi, received an explicit credit for her Kamala Kotnis songs, acknowledging that actors did not always sing their songs.

CHENCHULAKSHMI

1943 ?' b&w Telugu

d S. Soundararajan pc Tamil Nadu Talkies s/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya c Jiten Bannerjee m C.R. Subburaman, R.N. Chinnaiiah
lp Kamala Kotnis, Chittoor V. Nagaiah, Narayana Rao, Rushyendramani, Lanka
 Sathyam

Mythological continuing the often-filmed Vishnu Purana legend of Prahlada and Hiranyakashapu. After the demon Hiranyakashapu is destroyed, Vishnu's (Narayana Rao) consort Lakshmi (Kotnis) takes the earthly form of a chenchu (tribal) to soothe and entice Vishnu out of his rage. Her success, marriage and eventual recognition as the goddess forms the major part of the film. Mainly known for Subburaman's innovative score. For his debut film, he drew on Latin American music for the credit sequence and to accompany a tribal dance. Nagaiah plays the tribal woman's father. A 1958 remake starring A. Nageshwara Rao and Anjali Devi was a major hit (made by B.A. Subba Rao).

DUHA

1943 120' b&w Hindi

d/s V.M. Vyas pc Sunrise Pics s Mohanlal G.
Dave dial Zia Sarhadi lyr Bharat Vyas
c Dwarka Divecha m Rafiq Ghaznavi, Pannalal Ghosh, Shanti Kumar lp Shanta Apte, Nurjehan, Kumar, Zarina, Mirza Musharraf, Ansari, Butt Kaser, Kesarbai

Vyas's romantic thriller pivots mainly around the unusual co-presence of the singing stars Apte and Nurjehan. Rural beauty Neela (Apte) loves the urbane Rajendra (Kumar) and they decide to get married against the wishes of her father Jugal Babu (Ansari). Jugal, it turns out, knows the family secret: Rajendra's father had years ago tried to seduce Neela's mother and had been killed by Neela's brother Basant (Kaser), who has been in hiding ever since. The plot gets more complicated when the singer and dancer Urvashi (Nurjehan) falls for Rajendra and, one evening in a nightclub, unable to perform in front of him, is replaced on stage by Neela. The dramatic highlight is when Jugal Babu, telling Neela the terrible past history of her brother, gets her to promise never to reveal the truth to her husband.

GARUDA GARVABHANGAM

1943 178' b&w Telugu

d Ghantasala Balaramaiah pc Pratibha Pics
s/lyr Balijepalli Lakshminikanta Kavi c P. Sridhara Rao m Ogirala Ramachandra Rao lp Vemuri Gaggaiah, P. Bhanumathi, Ramakrishna Sastry, Mandavalli Sandow, Vedantam Raghavaiah

Mythological featuring a contest between Garuda (the eagle) and Hanuman (the monkey god), regarded as Vishnu's two most trusted followers. Although Garuda can see the original Vishnu avatar underneath Vishnu's current incarnation as Rama, Hanuman has greater access to Rama, his temporal master. The film, adapted from a stage play, was noted mainly for Bhanumathi's singing, re-released in HMV's series Alanati Andaalu.

JOGAJOG/HOSPITAL

1943 120' b&w Bengali/Hindi

d/co-s Sushil Majumdar pc MP Prod. st Manmatha Ray co-sc Premendra Mitra
dial/co-lyr[H] Bhushan co-lyr Buddhichandra Agarwal 'Madhur' c Ajit Sen m Kamal Dasgupta
lp Kanan Devi, Ahindra Choudhury, Robin Majumdar, Tulsi Chakraborty, Jahar
Ganguly[B], Bhanu Bannerjee[B], Kanu Bannerjee[B], Jawahar[H], Krishna[H], Promode[H]

Pratima (Kanan Devi), a nurse, is persuaded by Jayant (Ganguly) to pretend to be his wife for a day, in order to convince his father Dr Dindayal (Choudhury) of his need for money. Dr Dindayal likes his new daughter-in-law very much and wants her to accompany him to the country where he runs a charitable hospital in the name of his late wife. There Dr Bhatt, Dindayal's rival, finds out by hiring detectives, that Pratima and Jayant are not married. He uses the information to try to out Dindayal from the hospital. The solution eventually links with Pratima's growing sense of responsibility towards Dr Dindayal's medical endeavours.

KISMET

1943 143' b&w Hindi

d/sc Gyan Mukherjee pc Bombay Talkies
p S. Mukherjee st/dial P.L. Santoshi, Shaheed Latif lyr Pradeep c R.D. Pareenja m Anil Biswas lp Ashok Kumar, Mumtaz Shanti, Shah Nawaz, Moti, P.F. Pithawala, Chandraprabha, V.H. Desai, Kanu Roy, Jagannath Aurora, Prahlad, Harun. Mubarak, David, Kumari
Kamala

The supreme hit, the fifth success in a row for producer Mukherjee (Kangan, 1939, Bandhan, 1940; Jhoola and Naya Sansar, 1941), made by the people who were to launch the Filmistan Studio. Pickpocket Shekhar (A. Kumar) befriends an old man (Pithawala) who once owned a theatre and is the father of its star singer, Rani (Shanti). In a fit of greed he made his daughter dance to exhaustion, making her a cripple. Now she is employed by, and indebted to, the theatre's new owner, the villain Indrajit. Shekhar steals Indrajit's wife's valuable necklace and Rani rescues him from the cops. Shekhar and Rani fall in love and he wants to raise the money to cure her disability. The crisis is precipitated when Rani unwittingly wears the stolen necklace and is caught by the police. Shekhar owns up, is arrested, escapes from the police and raids Indrajit's house to pay for Rani's operation. Caught again, Shekhar is saved from a long jail sentence by the revelation that he is Indrajit's long-lost son. Shekhar's newly found brother Mohan is permitted to marry Rani's sister Lila (whom he had made pregnant) and the happy ending sees all protagonists united in the family of the patriarch Indrajit. Known for its musical hits, Kumar's ebullient performance and Shanti's voice, the film assimilates the Warner Bros. realist style with 'expressionist' overtones, esp. in some of its classic, often anthologised sequences, e.g. Shekhar's escape from the cops in a puff of cigarette smoke or the final robbery scene. A contemporary review in Filmindia (Feb. 1943) condemned the film for imitating John Cromwell's Algiers (1938) while glorifying crime, making it a bad influence on the younger generation. It includes the patriotic song Aaj himalay ki choti se phir humne lalkara hai. The film, which ran for 3 consecutive years in the same cinema in Calcutta, is an early example of a pre-Partition 'lost and found' movie rehearsing the familiar pre-capitalist fairy-tale motif of members of a family who are separated by fate or villainy and eventually are 'recognised' and reunited.

KRISHNA PREMA

1943 184' b&w Telugu

d H.V. Babu pc Famous/Star Combines s/lyr Tapi Dharma Rao c P.S. Selvaraj, Jiten Bannerjee m Galipenchala Narasimha Rao lp Shantakumari, P. Bhanumathi, T. Suryakumari, Jayagauri, Hemavathi, Parvathibai, Gali Venkateshwara Rao, Addanki, Hirannaya, Sangeetha Rao

This major musical hit, made at the Vel Pics Studio in their characteristic mythological genre, tells of Radha's (Shantakumari) devotion for Krishna (Venkateshwara Rao), which is supposed to exemplify divine love. Her love is scorned both by Radha's sister Chandravali (Bhanumathi) and by Krishna's wife Satyabhama (Himavathi). Krishna wins over Chandravali by impersonating her husband Chandragopa (Addanki). He then impersonates Radha herself to prove that divine love transcends sexual difference. The film united the three best-known Telugu actress-singers: Shantakumari, Bhanumathi and T. Suryakumari (as the trouble-making Narada). Between them they had several numbers including Godumu krishna, Chiluka palkuladana Repe vastadanta gopaludu and Oogave uyjala that have become cultural legends. Addanki and Bhanumathi together sang Ekkadunnave pilla.

MAHATMA VIDUR

1943 155' b&w Marathi/Hindi

d P.Y. Altekar pc CIRCO st Mohanlal G. Dave dial/lyr Narottam Vyas, Mahesh Kaul[H], Raja Badhe[M] c Dwarkadas Divecha, Purshottam Divecha m Harishchandra Bali lp Vishnupant Pagnis, Durga Khote.
S. Prahlad, Manohar Ghatwani, Yashodhara Katju[H], Seeta Jhaveri[M], Kalyani, Nayampalli, Baby Madhuri[H], Sudha Amonkar[M]

Pagnis's last film is a miracle-laden Saint film chronicling a familiar episode from the Mahabharata. Vidur (Pagnis) takes a vow of non-violence and renounces his royal position, causing displeasure to the Kaurava kings. The art direction is by the prestigious Baburao Painter and V.H. Palmittkar.

MAZHE BAL

1943 122' b&w Marathi

d Master Vinayak pc Prafulla Pics
s/co-lyr V.S. Khandekar co-lyr Madhav Julien
c Madhav Bulbule m Datta Davjekar lp Master Vinayak, Dada Salvi, Sumati Gupte, Meenakshi, Lata Mangeshkar, Damuanna Malvankar, Bhaurao Datar, Damuanna Joshi, Saroj Borkar, Baby Nalini, Shripad Joshi, Baburao Athane, Ingavle, Renuka

Khandekar's didactic script for Vinayak continues his preoccupation with the character of a moral man whose principles conflict with practical reality. Manohar (Salvi, who plays this character's earlier version: Bappa in Vinayak's Amrit, 1941) is an alcoholic but idealistic public prosecutor and calls for the death sentence for the nationalist anarchist Ravindra (Vinayak). Ravindra's girlfriend Shashi (Meenakshi) is pregnant and gives birth in an orphanage. She then becomes a nurse and has to look after Manohar who falls for her. She agrees to marry him but keeps her child a secret. When a child is found dead in the orphanage, Manohar prosecutes its humanitarian manager for infanticide. Shashi, who appears as a witness, reveals the truth of her life in court, causing a dramatic change in her husband's world-view.

MOHABBAT

1943 122' b&w Hindi

d/sc Phani Majumdar pc Laxmi Prod.
st Bipradas Tagore c Jatin Das m Hariprasanna Das

Chandraprabha (left) in Kismet

lp Shanta Apte, Pahadi Sanyal, Jagdish Sethi, Sunalini Devi, Yashodhara Katju, K.C. Dey, S. Nazir

A musical advocacy of arranged marriages. Heroine Sujata (Apte) loves hero Jiban (Sanyal) and their parents are for their marrying, except that the villain Madanlal (Nazir) discovers some juicy facts about Sujata's father's past and tries blackmail. The problem is what Jiban's mother (Sunalini Devi), who repudiates her eldest son for marrying outside his caste, will say. This is the only joint appearance of the singing stars Apte and Sanyal. Apte's music included a memorable Meera bhajan, Main Giridhar ke ghar jaoon.

§ NADAAN

1943 118' b&w Hindi
d/s/co-lyr Zia Sarhadi pc A.B. Prod., Jyoti Studio co-lyr Tanveer Naqvi c R.M. Rele m K. Datta (aka Datta Koregaonkar)
lp Nurjehan, Maya Devi, Jiloo, Alaknanda, Mumtaz, Masood, Aman

A romantic adventure story about Anil (Masood) and Roopa (Nurjehan) who were promised to each other as children but start off their adult acquaintance on the wrong foot when Anil hands Roopa over to the police for resembling a face on a 'wanted' poster. They meet again when both become journalists on the same newspaper owned by Mukesh (Aman), who also fancies Roopa. The film boasts six Nurjehan numbers, including the famous Ab to nabin duniya mein apna thikana.

§ NAJMA

1943 121' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod. s Aga Jani Kashmiri lyr Anjum Pilibhuti c Fareedoon Irani m Rafiq Ghaznavi
lp Ashok Kumar, Veena, Sitara Devi, Kumar, Yakub, Majid, Shantaran, Rajkumari Shukla, Murad

Muslim melodrama set in early 20th-C. Lucknow. The young doctor Yusuf (A. Kumar) loves Najma (Veena), daughter of a nawab. As Yusuf's family is not aristocratic, they cannot marry. Their respective marriages within their own class do not solve the problem. Mukarram (Kumar), Najma's husband, meets with an accident and is injured on his way to killing Yusuf, and Yusuf performs a miraculous operation saving Mukarram's life. Thus peace is restored between the two families. This was Mehboob's debut as independent producer under his own banner.

§ NAUKAR

1943 121' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/sc Shaukat Hussain Rizvi pc Sunrise Pics st/dial Sadat Hasan Manto lyr Akhtar Sherani, Munshi Shamas, Nazim Panipatti c S. Srivastav m Rafiq Ghaznavi, Shanti Kumar
lp Shobhana Samarth, Chandramohan, Nurjehan, Balwant Singh, Yakub, Miss Moti, Mirza Musharraf

A realist tragedy based on a story by the Urdu novelist Manto about Fazlu (Chandramohan), the lifelong servant of the Khwaja Islamuddin. Blamed for the death of Islamuddin's infant son Salim in a railway accident, Fazlu is jailed. Escaping from prison, he finds his wife has given birth to a son whom he believes to be Salim's reincarnation. The film chronicles Fazlu in his old age, when his son, also named Salim (Singh), befriends Nargis (Samarth), Mirza (Musharraf) and Sadiq (Yakub). When Fazlu moves to the city, he helplessly watches the destruction of his family by economic circumstances. Nargis dies in his arms, Mirza is arrested, Sadiq commits suicide and Fazlu ends up once again in prison. Much of the film works through symbols like the whistle of the railway engine evoking traumatic memories.

§ PAISA BOLTO AAHE/NAGAD NARAYAN

1943 122' b&w Marathi/Hindi
d/s Vishram Bedekar pc Navhans Chitra dial[H] Munshi Dil lyr G.D. Madgulkar[M], S.A. Shukla[M], Bekal[H], Shamim[H] c Pandurang Naik m Shridhar Parsekar
lp Baburao Pendharkar, Kusum Deshpande, Nalini Dhere[M]/Lila Desai[H], Nayampalli, Samant, Sudha Apte[M], Kanekar[M], P.R. Joshi[M], Bapurao Pawar[M], Dhupal[M], Masood[H], Bose[H], Pratima Devi[H], Shakir[H]

Allegory about the South Asian economy during WW2. Bapuji is an agent for the Rangoon Oil Co. Although he has made his money mainly through the black market, his daughter Vidya (Dhere/Desai) believes in his honesty. She meets a young man whom she scorns as he does not seem to be from her own social class, but then he turns out to be Lalnath, a director of Rangoon Oil. When the Japanese attack Pearl Harbor, Bapuji seizes the opportunity to make money but Lalnath orders an investigation into Bapuji's accounts. However, the rest of the company's Rangoon-based directors, chased out of the country by the Japanese, oppose Lalnath's honesty and throw him out. Eventually Vidya falls in love with Lalnath and sees the truth for herself.

§ PRITHVI VALLABH

1943 121' b&w Hindi
d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone st K.M. Munshi s/lyr Sudarshan c Y.D. Sarpotdar m Rafiq Ghaznavi, Saraswati Devi lp Sohrab Modi, Durga Khoté, Sankatha Prasad, Jehanara Kajjan, Meena, Sadiq Ali, K.N. Singh, Al Nasir, Navin Yagnik

Big-budget costume drama based on K.M. Munshi's 1920 novel of the same name. Prithvi Vallabh is the good Munja, king of Avantipur (Modi), whom the evil Tailap (Prasad), rival king of Tailangan, had failed to defeat in repeated battles. Tailap finally succeeds through the machinations of his hard-headed sister Mrinalvati (Khoté). The film's major highlights are the confrontations between Munja and the haughty Mrinalvati who tries to humiliate him publicly but then falls in love with him. When Munja has a chance to escape from his prison, he holds back so that Mrinalvati may accompany him but she, apprehensive of losing him, betrays Munja, who is then condemned to be trampled to death by an elephant. Unlike Modi's earlier ventures into big-budget territory (Pukar, 1939; Sikandar, 1941), this was not a major success.

§ RAMRAJYA

aka Lav Kush
 1943 144' b&w Hindi/Marathi
d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics s/dial[M] Vishnupant Aundhkar dial[H] Sampatlal Srivastava 'Anuj' lyr Ramesh Gupta[H], Raja Badhe[M] c P.G. Kukde m Shankarrao Vyas lp Shobhana Samarth, Yeshwant, Madhusudhan, V.D. Pandit, Amirbai Karnataki, Shantakumari, Ranjana, Leela Pawar, Baby Tara, Prem Adib[H]/Chandrakant[M], Umakant[H], G. Badriprasad[H], Pande[H], Bahadur[H], Vinay Kale[M], Bandopant Sohoni[M], Kelkar[M], Kumari Kamala[M]

Bhatt's best-known and most successful Ramayana musical. Rama (Adib/Chandrakant) triumphantly returns from exile having conquered Lanka and rescued Seeta (Samarth), but a washerwoman queries whether Seeta remained chaste during her captivity. To allay suspicions, Rama sends Seeta into the forest where, under the care of Valmiki, she gives birth to twin boys. Later, Rama launches the Ashwamedha Yagna ritual: a horse is let loose as an open challenge for anyone to stop it and do battle with the king. The two adolescent boys, thanks to Valmiki's teachings, succeed in the challenge. The big-budget art direction was a classic contribution by neo-classical kitsch artist Kanu Desai. The final battle with fire spewing magical arrows was the film's highlight. The Marathi version contains the hit song Ladakya ranila lagale dohale.

§ SAMADHAN

1943 c.120' b&w Bengali
d/s Premendra Mitra pc S.D. Prod. c Ajoy Kar m Robin Chatterjee
lp Chhabi Biswas, Rabin Majumdar, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Sandhyarani, Purnima, Krishnadhan Mukherjee, Indu Mukherjee, Shyam Laha, Chhaya Devi

Mitra tells a story familiar from late feudal romances and 19th-C. dime novels. A working-class leader confronts a villainous factory owner, falls in love with the boss's daughter unaware of her family origins and, after many adventures and setbacks, it is revealed that the hero is in fact the official heir to the property the villain had usurped. An influential Bengali novelist acknowledging allegiance to socialism, Mitra's studio-bound film concentrates on showing the milieu of the rich while the dialogues make numerous references to the workers and the poor. Nitin Bose's Didi/President (1937) and Bimal Roy's Udayer Pathay/Hamrabi (1944) tell similar stories.

lp Shanta Apte, Pahadi Sanyal, Jagdish Sethi, Sunalini Devi, Yashodhara Katju, K.C. Dey, S. Nazir

A musical advocacy of arranged marriages. Heroine Sujata (Apte) loves hero Jiban (Sanyal) and their parents are for their marrying, except that the villain Madanlal (Nazir) discovers some juicy facts about Sujata's father's past and tries blackmail. The problem is what Jiban's mother (Sunalini Devi), who repudiates her eldest son for marrying outside his caste, will say. This is the only joint appearance of the singing stars Apte and Sanyal. Apte's music included a memorable Meera bhajan, Main Giridhar ke ghar jaon.

◉ NADAAN

1943 118' b&w Hindi
d/s/co-lyr Zia Sarhadi pc A.B. Prod., Jyoti Studio co-lyr Tanweer Naqvi c R.M. Rele
m K. Datta (aka Datta Koregaonkar)
lp Nurjehan, Maya Devi, Jiloo, Alaknanda, Mumtaz, Masood, Aman

A romantic adventure story about Anil (Masood) and Roopa (Nurjehan) who were promised to each other as children but start off their adult acquaintance on the wrong foot when Anil hands Roopa over to the police for resembling a face on a 'wanted' poster. They meet again when both become journalists on the same newspaper owned by Mukesh (Aman), who also fancies Roopa. The film boasts six Nurjehan numbers, including the famous Ab to nahin duniya mein apna thikana.

◉ NAJMA

1943 121' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod. s Aga Jani Kashmiri lyr Anjum Pilibhiti c Fareedoon Irani m Rafiq Ghaznavi
lp Ashok Kumar, Veena, Sitara Devi, Kumar, Yakub, Majid, Shantaran, Rajkumari Shukla, Murad

Muslim melodrama set in early 20th-C. Lucknow. The young doctor Yusuf (A. Kumar) loves Najma (Veena), daughter of a nawab. As Yusuf's family is not aristocratic, they cannot marry. Their respective marriages within their own class do not solve the problem. Mukarram (Kumar), Najma's husband, meets with an accident and is injured on his way to killing Yusuf, and Yusuf performs a miraculous operation saving Mukarram's life. Thus peace is restored between the two families. This was Mehboob's debut as independent producer under his own banner.

◉ NAKAR

1943 121' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/sc Shaukat Hussain Rizvi pc Sunrise Pics st/dial Sadat Hasan Manto lyr Akhtar Sherani, Munshi Shamas, Nazim Panipatti c S. Srivastav
m Rafiq Ghaznavi, Shanti Kumar
lp Shobhana Samarth, Chandramohan, Nurjehan, Balwant Singh, Yakub, Miss Moti, Mirza Musharraf

A realist tragedy based on a story by the Urdu novelist Manto about Fazlu (Chandramohan), the lifelong servant of the Khwaja Islamuddin. Blamed for the death of Islamuddin's infant son Salim in a railway accident, Fazlu is jailed. Escaping from prison, he finds his wife has given birth to a son whom he believes to be Salim's reincarnation. The film chronicles Fazlu in his old age, when his son, also named Salim (Singh), befriends Nargis (Samarth), Mirza (Musharraf) and Sadiq (Yakub). When Fazlu moves to the city, he helplessly watches the destruction of his family by economic circumstances. Nargis dies in his arms, Mirza is arrested, Sadiq commits suicide and Fazlu ends up once again in prison. Much of the film works through symbols like the whistle of the railway engine evoking traumatic memories.

◉ PAISA BOLTO AAHE/NAGAD NARAYAN

1943 122' b&w Marathi/Hindi
d/s Vishram Bedekar pc Navhans Chitra dial[H] Munshi Dil lyr G.D. Madgulkar[M], S.A. Shukla[M], Bekal[H], Shamim[H]
c Pandurang Naik m Shridhar Parsekar
lp Baburao Pendharkar, Kusum Deshpande, Nalini Dhere[M]/Lila Desai[H], Nayampalli, Samant, Sudha Apte[M], Kanekar[M], P.R. Joshi[M], Bapurao Pawar[M], Dhuma[M], Masood[H], Bose[H], Pratima Devi[H], Shakir[H]

Allegory about the South Asian economy during WW2. Bapuji is an agent for the Rangoon Oil Co. Although he has made his money mainly through the black market, his daughter Vidya (Dhere/Desai) believes in his honesty. She meets a young man whom she scorns as he does not seem to be from her own social class, but then he turns out to be Lalnath, a director of Rangoon Oil. When the Japanese attack Pearl Harbor, Bapuji seizes the opportunity to make money but Lalnath orders an investigation into Bapuji's accounts. However, the rest of the company's Rangoon-based directors, chased out of the country by the Japanese, oppose Lalnath's honesty and throw him out. Eventually Vidya falls in love with Lalnath and sees the truth for herself.

◉ PRITHVI VALLABH

1943 121' b&w Hindi
d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone
st K.M. Munshi s/lyr Sudarshan
c Y.D. Sarpotdar m Rafiq Ghaznavi, Saraswati Devi
lp Sohrab Modi, Durga Khote, Sankatha Prasad, Jehanara Kajjan, Meena, Sadiq Ali, K.N. Singh, Al Nasir, Navin Yagnik

Big-budget costume drama based on K.M. Munshi's 1920 novel of the same name. Prithvi Vallabh is the good Munja, king of Avantipur (Modi), whom the evil Tailap (Prasad), rival king of Tailangan, had failed to defeat in repeated battles. Tailap finally succeeds through the machinations of his hard-headed sister Mrinalvati (Khote). The film's major highlights are the confrontations between Munja and the haughty Mrinalvati who tries to humiliate him publicly but then falls in love with him. When Munja has a chance to escape from his prison, he holds back so that Mrinalvati may accompany him but she, apprehensive of losing him, betrays Munja, who is then condemned to be trampled to death by an elephant. Unlike Modi's earlier ventures into big-budget territory (Pukar, 1939; Sikandar, 1941), this was not a major success.

◉ RAMRAJYA

aka Lav Kush
 1943 144' b&w Hindi/Marathi
d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics
s/dial[M] Vishnupant Aundhkar dial[H] Sampatlal Srivastava 'Anuj' lyr Ramesh Gupta[H], Raja Badhe[M] c P.G. Kukde
m Shankarrao Vyas
lp Shobhana Samarth, Yeshwant, Madhusudhan, V.D. Pandit, Amirbai Karnatak, Shantakumari, Ranjana, Leela Pawar, Baby Tara, Prem Adib[H]/Chandrakant[M], Umakant[H], G. Badripasad[H], Pande[H], Bahadur[H], Vinay Kale[M], Bandopant Sohoni[M], Kelkar[M], Kumari Kamala[M]

Bhatt's best-known and most successful Ramayana musical. Rama (Adib/Chandrakant) triumphantly returns from exile having conquered Lanka and rescued Seeta (Samarth), but a washerwoman queries whether Seeta remained chaste during her captivity. To allay suspicions, Rama sends Seeta into the forest where, under the care of Valmiki, she gives birth to twin boys. Later, Rama launches the Ashwamedha Yagna ritual: a horse is let loose as an open challenge for anyone to stop it and do battle with the king. The two adolescent boys, thanks to Valmiki's teachings, succeed in the challenge. The big-budget art direction was a classic contribution by neo-classical kitsch artist Kanu Desai. The final battle with fire spewing magical arrows was the film's highlight. The Marathi version contains the hit song Ladakya ranila lagale dohale.

◉ SAMADHAN

1943 c.120' b&w Bengali
d/s Premendra Mitra pc S.D. Prod. c Ajoy Kar m Robin Chatterjee
lp Chhabi Biswas, Rabin Majumdar, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Sandhyarani, Purnima, Krishnadhan Mukherjee, Indu Mukherjee, Shyam Laha, Chhaya Devi

Mitra tells a story familiar from late feudal romances and 19th-C. dime novels. A working-class leader confronts a villainous factory owner, falls in love with the boss's daughter unaware of her family origins and, after many adventures and setbacks, it is revealed that the hero is in fact the official heir to the property the villain had usurped. An influential Bengali novelist acknowledging allegiance to socialism, Mitra's studio-bound film concentrates on showing the milieu of the rich while the dialogues make numerous references to the workers and the poor. Nitin Bose's Didi/President (1937) and Bimal Roy's Udayer Patbey/Hamrabi (1944) tell similar stories.

⊗ SANJOG

1943 122' b&w Hindi
d/p A.R. Kardar pc Kardar Prod. s/co-lyr Waqif co-lyr D.N. Madhok c Dwarka Divecha
m Naushad
lp Mehtab, Charlie, Wasti, Ulhas, Anwar Hussain, A. Shah

A romantic musical comedy of mistaken identity. Deepak Raj (Charlie) arrives at the magnificent house of the maharaja of Pahadganj (Shah) and is mistaken for Surendra (Hussain), the maharaja's future son-in-law. Deepak's crooked sidekick Jugal Kishore (Wasti) urges Deepak to continue the masquerade and the Princess Bina Kumari (Mehtab) falls in love with him, believing him to be her fiance. The film has many comic references to military-style discipline, including Surendra's father who is obsessed with holding court-martials. The actress-singer Suraiya performs several songs in playback, including Mori gali more raja, Oh oh, ai ai and Kaun gali ka chhora pukare.

⊗ SHAHAR THEKE DOORAY

1943 121' b&w Bengali
d/s Sailajananda Mukherjee pc Eastern Talkies c Ajoy Kar m Subal Dasgupta lp Jahar Ganguly, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Renuka Roy, Naresh Mitra, Molina Devi, Pashupti Chatterjee, Kanu Bannerjee, Phani
 Roy, Prabhadevi

Hit rural melodrama confirming the novelist Sailajananda Mukherjee as a film-maker. Ratan (zestfully played by Ganguly), the carefree hero of the village youth, is under pressure from his mother to remarry since his current marriage is childless. The mother chooses Jaya, although Jaya loves the doctor temporarily working in the village. The drama's main villain (Mitra) is the evil president of the union board, and its emotional high points include a savage suicide bid by Ratan's wife before events come to a happy ending. The wordy film (characteristic of Mukherjee's cinema) rehearsed the familiar tensions between country/tradition and city/modernity in the form of a morality tale set in an idyllic rural landscape that becomes the value-laden terrain of the conflict. The film was remade by Tarun Majumdar in 1981, one of the main inheritors of the rural melodrama genre.

⊗ SHAKUNTALA

1943 122' b&w Hindi
d/p V. Shantaram pc Rajkamal Kalamandir
s/co-lyr Dewan Sharar st Kalidasa's play co-lyr Ratanpriya c V. Avadhoot m Vasant Desai
lp Jayashree, Chandramohan, Nimbalkar, Zohra, Shantaran, Vidya, Kumar Ganesh, Raja
 Pandit, Vilas, Amina, Nana Paliskar

Having quit the Prabhat Studio, Shantaram inaugurated his new company with this costumed adaptation of Kalidasa's 3rd-C. play. The beautiful Shakuntala (Jayashree) gets pregnant following a romance with King Dushyanta (Chandramohan), but she is rejected when she arrives at his royal court. Abandoned, she bears a son, Bharat (Ganesh), in the forest. When a repentant Dushyanta comes to take her back she refuses, using the same language with which she had been evicted, but the two are eventually reconciled. Shantaram writes that the venture was a major gamble, made during WW2 and in a changed film-industry context. Both the future of his new studio as well as his reputation depended on its success, established when the film became a major hit running for 104 consecutive weeks. Shantaram intended the birth of Bharat to symbolise the newly independent India. The film remains one of the best-known adaptations of the literary classic, and has a quaint period flavour as an early instance of the director's highly decorative use of neo-classical design, which later degenerated into garish calendar art. A 76' version was released in the USA, where Life magazine saw it as having a 'touch of William Tell'.

⊗ SHANKAR PARVATI

1943 122' b&w Hindi
d/s Chaturbhuj Doshi pc Ranjit Movietone
dial/lyr Pandit Indra c D.K. Ambre m Gyan Dutt lp Sadhona Bose, Arun, Kamala Chattopadhyay, Brijmala, Bhagwandas, Rajendra, Rewashankar Marwadi, Mahipal

A dance-based mythological featuring Shankar (Arun), the triad in the Hindu pantheon (sometimes equated with Dionysus), who dances the Tandava, the dance of destruction, when his wife Sati kills herself after she is humiliated by her father. He then retires into meditation from which he has to be awoken to rid the world of the demon Tarakasura. The seductive powers of Sati, reborn as Parvati (Bose), live up Shankar but she has to pay for this by doing extensive penance, after which she can be accepted again by her husband as a real wife, partly through the divine intervention of Vishnu. The film highlights Bose's dancing talents but its real interest for contemporary viewers is in the tale's overtly Oedipal overtones together with its status as a blatant allegory about female sexuality as both a life-restoring force and a potential threat to be brought under control by and for men (including highlighting the function of religion in this process of repression).

⊗ TANSEN

1943 122' b&w Hindi
d/s Jayant Desai co-dial/co-lyr D.N. Madhok co-dial Munshi Dil co-lyr Pandit Indra c Gordhanbhai Patel m Khemchand Prakash lp K.L. Saigal, Khursheed, Mubarak, Nagendra, Kamaladevi Chattopadhyay, Bhagwandas

One of Saigal's best-known later films features him as Tansen, a legendary classical musician at the 16th-C. court of Mughal Emperor Akbar who composed some of the best-known ragas, including the Darbari and the Malhar. Director Desai, who appears after the credits surrounded by camera equipment, presents the story as a love fantasy between Tansen and a shepherdess, Tani (Khursheed), and rehearses several legends about Indian music, including its ability to calm animals, cause trees to flower and cure gravely ill people. Having joined Akbar's (Mubarak) court, which separates him from his lover, Tansen has to sing the raga Deepak to cure Akbar's daughter. Since the raga is supposed to have the power to create fire, it almost consumes the singer and he is saved by Tani's singing of the rainmaking raga Megh Malhar. Both songs, Diya jalao and Baraso re, were big hits. One of the film's 13 songs, Madhok's Ho dukhia jiyara rote naina was composed, uncredited, by Bulo C. Rani. This is Khursheed's best-known performance, holding her own as a singer alongside the legendary Saigal.

⊗ TAQDEER

aka Destiny
 1943 113' b&w Hindi
d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.
st Ghulam Mohammed sc/dial Aga Jani Kashmiri lyr Mehrul Kadri c Faredoon Irani m Rafiq Ghaznavi lp Motilal, Chandramohan, Nargis, Charlie, Jiloo, Kayamali, Ansari

In between his more ambitious Najma (1943) and Humayun (1945), Mehboob made this lightweight comedy about Justice Gangaprasad (Chandramohan) and theatre-owner Seth Badriprasad (Charlie) who lose their daughter and son respectively in the Kumbh Mela. The children are exchanged and Gangaprasad brings up Babu (Motilal) as a rich playboy while Badriprasad raises Salma (Nargis) as a dancer in his theatre. Later, the two fall in love, which is a problem in view of the class difference between them. This is resolved when their true parentage is discovered. An interesting though unexplored aspect of the story is that Gangaprasad's wife (played by the silent film star Jiloo), brings up Babu believing him to be a girl. The peasant song Meri mata bharat mata, with Nargis holding a sickle and a cloth bundle, intercut with shots of waving fields, foreshadows glimpses of her role in Mother India (1957).

⊗ TASVEER

1943 122' b&w Hindi
d/dial Najmul Hussain (aka Najam) Naqvi pc Excelsior Film Exchange sc P.K. Atre
lyr Munshi Arzoo m Ramchandra Pal lp Durga Khote, Motilal, Swarnalata, David, Azoorie, Navin Yagnik

Romantic comedy about a philandering Dr Ambadas (David), his childless wife Vidya Devi (Khote), the beautiful Kishori (Swarnalata) who meets the couple when her dog chases Ambadas into the river, and the photographer Jayant (Motilal) who loves Kishori. After some standard plot clichés (e.g. Jayant overhears Kishori rehearsing a play but mistakes the lines for an actual conversation), Jayant, Ambadas and Vidya Devi all decide to commit suicide but Jayant's sister Tara (Azoorie) sets things right.

Dhiraj Bhattacharya (right) in Wapas

WAPAS

1943 122' b&w Hindi

d Hemchandra Chunder pc New Theatres
s Binoy Chatterjee dial Natwar lyr Bhushan, Zakir Hussain, Akhtar Chughtai c Sudhin Majumdar m Rai Chand Boral lp Asit Baran, Bharati Devi, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Latika Bannerjee, Nawab, Maya Bose, Indu Mukherjee

A city-country melodrama telling of the village boy Shyam (Baran) who loves the city girl Shobha (Bharati Devi) who arrives in the village with her retired father (Mukherjee). Their wedding plans are resisted by both families, esp. after Shyam's miserly father (Nawab) insults Shobha's father. Her family returns to the city where she is to marry Rajendra (Bhattacharya), the nephew of her father's employer. Shyam follows her to the city and finds work as Rajendra's coach-driver. The happy ending is achieved by Rajendra agreeing that Shyam should replace him as the groom while he then becomes their chauffeur.

BURMA RANI

aka Escape

1944 115' b&w/col Tamil

d T.R. Sundaram pc Modern Theatres
s Elangovan, T.V. Chari, Ki. Rajagopal lp K.L.V. Vasantha, Honnappa Bhagavathar, N.S. Krishnan, T.A. Mathuram, T.R. Sundaram,
 T.S. Balaiah

Along with K. Subramanyam's Manasamraksbanam (also 1944), one of the better-known Tamil war-effort films. Three Indian airmen are forced to land in Burma and eventually free the country from Japanese occupation with the help of an Indian resistance movement in the state. The plot revolves around Rani, an Indian girl in Burma who helps the airmen. T.R. Sundaram played the part of a Japanese commander made-up to look like Hitler. The director of War Publicity in Madras, G.T.B. Havey, presided over the film's premiere.

CHAL CHAL RE NAUJAWAN

1944 122' b&w Hindi

d/s Gyan Mukherjee pc Filmistan dial Sadat Hasan Manto lyr Pradeep c Hardip
m Ghulam Haider
lp Ashok Kumar, Naseem Banu, Jagdish Sethi, V.H. Desai, Motibai, Rafiq Ghaznavi, Navin
 Yagnik

Filmistan's much-awaited debut film from the makers of the hit film Kismet (1943). The title of this story of friendship and betrayal over two generations evokes Ashok Kumar's hit song from Bandhan (1940). The friends Thakur Jaipal Singh (Sethi) and Jamuna Prasad (Ghaznavi) fall out when Jaipal Singh's wife Savitri (Motibai) finds she shares a common musical interest with Jamuna Prasad. Her husband accuses her of infidelity and throws her out. The framing story has Jaipal Singh's horse-riding daughter Sumitra (Banu) meet Jamuna Prasad's son Arjun (A. Kumar). They briefly work together combating an epidemic and Sumitra meets her mother without recognising her. At the end, when the thakur himself arrives, his wife recognises him. Jamuna Prasad sings a song (Aya toofan) amid storm and thunder, and when it settles down Savitri is found dead beneath an uprooted tree. The earlier history, starting the flashback, is told with a strident voice-over narrator following the example of Citizen Kane (1941), according to Filmindia. The film makes some political allusions equating the thakur's authoritarianism with Nazi rule and includes several nationalist numbers, e.g. Jai bharat desh and the communal harmony Bolo bar bar mahadev allah-o-akbar (both Ashok Kumar). Although a minor hit, the film is considered a disappointment compared with Kismet.

GAALI

1944 122' b&w Hindi

d/s R.S. Choudhury pc N.R. Desai Prod. co-lyr Ram Murti Chaturvedi, Pandit Indra,

Sugunapiya, D.N. Madhok m/co-lyr Hanuman Prasad m Sajjad Hussain c B.S. Jagirdar lp Nirmala, Karan Dewan, Yakub, Kanhaiyalal, Anand Prasad, Manju, Sunalini Devi, Jilloobai, Kanta Prasad, Chandabai, Gulab, Mehdi Raza, Bibubai, Ram Murti, Khanjar, Mohan, Tuklu, Sachin Ghosh

A successful film by Mehboob's scenarist and ex-Imperial director R.S. Choudhury. A quasi-expressionist drama about a blind young widow, Mangala (Nirmala), who lives with her father-in-law Jaggu Chakravarty and her young sister-in-law Lali (Manju). Chakravarty wants Lali to marry Tilak (Dewan), the educated modern landlord, but instead Tilak falls for the widow. The crisis is triggered by the local gossip Baldev (Yakub) and leads to Chakravarty's death at the hands of the villagers. When Tilak and Mangala make love in a temple, her eyesight is magically restored and she is astounded that Tilak is not her dead husband. Eventually Tilak marries Lali while Mangala resigns herself to a life of solitude.

JWAR BHATA

1944 120' b&w Hindi

d/s Amiya Chakravarty pc Bombay Talkies
dial B.C. Verma lyr Narendra Sharma c R.D. Mathur m Anil Biswas lp Mridula, Shamim, Aga Jaan, Dilip Kumar, P.F. Pithawala, K.N. Singh, Arun Kumar, Bikram Kapoor, Jagannath Arora, Naseem Lodhi,
 C.J. Pande, Khalil, Mumtaz Ali

A musical romance remembered mainly for Dilip Kumar's debut. An old patriarch has two unmarried daughters Rama (Shamim) and Renu (Mridula). Narendra (Aga Jaan), the modern son of an urban millionaire, is to marry Rama. Visiting the family in disguise to sneak a look at his future bride, he mistakes Rama for Renu and they fall in love. The mix-up comes to light only after the wedding. Renu blames god and is thrown out of the house for blasphemy. On a train, she joins some travelling performers led by Jagdish (D. Kumar), and to escape getting caught she pretends to live with him. When Renu goes home again, her sister Rama is pregnant and ill and a choice must be made between the foetus and the mother. Renu makes up with god and through divine intervention Rama's and her child's lives are saved. The film's ten songs include several by singer Parul Ghosh.

MAHAMAYA

1944 ? b&w Tamil

co-d/co-dial T.R. Raghunath co-d/co-dial/vst Elangovan co-d R.S. Mani pc Jupiter Pics c Marcus Bartley m Venkatramaiyer lp P. Kannamba, N.S. Krishnan, N.S. Saroja, P.U. Chinnappa, T.R. Mathuram, Meena
 Lochani, R. Balasubramanyam, M.G. Chakrapani

Period tragedy in Rajput costume featuring Mahamaya, princess of Gandhara (Kannamba) and Vikram (P.U. Chinnappa), prince of a neighbouring kingdom, both students of the same teacher. Mahamaya innocently garlands Vikram's sword unaware of the sexual/political significance of the act. Both get married to other partners, but when they meet again Vikram reminds her of the garland, insists that she give herself to him and abducts her. Although she escapes, she is disowned by her husband, whereupon she kills her child and then herself to prove her chastity. The film is dominated by Kannamba and by its large sets. The Krishnan-Mathuram comedy duo provides light relief.

⊗ MERI BAHEN

aka My Sister

1944 122' b&w Hindi

d Hemchandra Chunder pc New Theatres
s Binoy Chatterjee lyr Bhushan c Sudhin Majumdar m Pankaj Mullick lp K.L. Saigal, Sumitra Devi, Nawab, Akhtar Jehan, Chandrabati Devi, Hiralal, Tulsi Chakraborty, Tandon, A.H. Shore, Rajalakshmi

Poor but upright schoolteacher Ramesh (Saigal) adores his adolescent sister Bimala (Akhtar Jehan). He falls in love with Krishna (Sumitra Devi), the village zamindar's daughter, but he declines to marry her when the zamindar insists that they live in the village. Ramesh moves to Calcutta which is under attack by the Japanese (the time is WW2). There he becomes a singer in the Great Metropolitan Theatre company and its female star Miss Rekha (Chandrabati Devi) falls for him. This is one of Saigal's more technically sophisticated movies at New Theatres and includes some quasi-documentary scenes (e.g. about a blood donation programme) showing life under the bombardment, and the shots showing the theatre devastated by an air raid. Ramesh is injured during the attack and is hospitalised. His beloved sister leaves him. The film intercuts his angst-ridden condition while Rekha dies in the same hospital, unbeknown to Ramesh. The film passes an unusually harsh judgement on Rekha, notwithstanding the convention of damning 'liberated' women in the Indian cinema of the time. Like all Saigal films, it relies heavily on his songs, e.g. Do naina matware, Chupo na, o pyari sajanिया (when Saigal serenades Krishna's father, thinking him to be Krishna) and Ai qatib-e-taqdeer mujhe itna bata de. Composer Mullick later re-recorded these songs in his own voice for an independent album.

⊗ PARAKH

1944 122' b&w Hindi

d Sohrab Modi pc Central Studios
s/co-lyr Sudarshan co-lyr Munshi Arzoo Lucknowi, Ghafil Harnalvi c Y.D. Sarpotdar, Keki Mistry m Khurshid Anwar, Saraswati Devi lp Mehtab, Kaushalya, Balwant Singh, Shah Nawaz, Yakub, Sadiq Ali, Pratima Devi, Latika

A class division melodrama centred on Mehtab's histrionics. Kiran (Mehtab) is the daughter of a courtesan. Her lowly origins first destroy her marriage and then threaten to jeopardise her son Prakash's (Singh) ambitions.

She is blackmailed for keeping her son's parentage a secret from him, forcing her to return to her ancestral profession. The film was a commercial success.

⊗ PHOOL

1944 122' b&w Hindi-Urdu

d K. Asif pc Famous Films s Kamal Amrohi c Kumar Jaywant m Ghulam Haider lp Veena, Sitara Devi, Suraiya, Prithviraj Kapoor, Durga Khote, Yakub, Wasti, Mazhar Khan

The directorial debut of K. Asif, best known for his Mughal-e-Azam (1960), is a big-budget Amrohi drama set in a Muslim joint family. Safdar loses his inheritance through his sister-in-law's machinations but he still has to honour his promise to complete the building of a mosque started by his father. His future son-in-law Salim goes to Turkey to fight in the Balkan wars, where a dancer corrupts him, so the responsibility of building the mosque falls on Safdar's orphaned daughter who has to choose between that responsibility and her freedom.

⊗ RAMSHASTRI

1944 122'[H]/108'[M] b&w Marathi/Hindi

co-d Gajanan Jagirdar, Raja Nene co-d/sc Vishram Bedekar pc Prabhat st V.S. Sukhtankar lyr S.A. Shukla[M], Shantaram Athavale[M], Qamar Jalalabadi[H]
c Pandurang Naik, E. Mohammed
m Keshavrao Bhole, G. Damle lp Gajanan Jagirdar, Anant Marathe, Baby Shakuntala, Meenakshi, Lalita Pawar, Sudha Apte, Hansa Wadkar, Bhagwat, Manajirao, Balkoba Gokhale, Madhu Apte, Ganpatrao Tambat[M], Master Vithal[M], Master Chhotu[M], Manjrekar[H], Ram Singh[H]

Prabhat's expensively mounted historical set at a contentious period of the Maratha empire is a biographical of Ramshastri Prabhune (1720-89), chief justice at the court of Madhavrao and later of Nana Phadnavis, and a major figure in the development of an indigenous legal code. The period of the Peshwai (i.e. the council of ministers established by Shivaji, which was by the 18th C. the real power behind the ceremonial throne occupied by his descendents) follows the death of the Peshwa (Prime Minister) Madhavrao in 1772 when Raghoba seized power by killing Narayanrao, the official heir and his own nephew. The film adheres to the legendary version of this episode elaborated in K.P. Khadilkar's Marathi play Bhaubandhaki (1902), blaming Raghoba's ambitious and calculating wife Anandibai (Pawar) for the murder. The idealised figure of Ramshastri (Jagirdar) is presented as truth incarnate. Struggling for an education, he eventually becomes the popular chief justice at Madhavrao's court and is the only influential figure in the realm willing to stand up to Raghoba and to denounce his usurpation of the throne. After an intricate palace intrigue, he resigns his judicial post. The studio's last big film in its celebrated 30s style, it was to have been directed by Shantaram but others were drafted in to save the film when he left the Prabhat Studio. It carries no director credit and the Marathi version has no credits at all.

⊗ RATTAN

1944 118' b&w Hindi

d M. Sadiq pc Jamuna Prod. co-st R.S. Choudhury co-st/dial/lyr D.N. Madhok
c Dwarka Divecha m Naushad
lp Swarnalata, Karan Dewan, Wasti, Manju, Gulab, Rajkumari Shukla, Badriprasad, Azoorie, Chandabai, Amirbano

Extremely successful love story establishing the careers of both its director and its composer. Two country youths Govind (Dewan) and Gauri (Swarnalata) are in love. Gauri is forcibly married to another but their love does not fade. The film was bought by the Kapurchands for distribution and cheaply resold locally because it was deemed uncommercial. Classic musical score includes the Zohrabai number Akhiyan mila ke jiya bharna ke chale nabin jaana and established Naushad's reputation among the leading music directors from the 40s onwards.

⊗ TEHSILDAR

1944 ? b&w Telugu

d/st Y.V. Rao pc Shri Jagadish Films dial/lyr Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi
c Purshottam m H.R. Padmanabha Sastry lp Y.V. Rao, Ch. Narayana Rao, Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi, Rangaswamy, Krishnayya, Natesayya, B.V.K. Acharya, M.S. Rama Rao, B.R. Panthulu, Kamala Kotnis, P. Bhanumathi, Hemalatha, Bezwada Rajarathnam, Krishnakumari, Tripurasundari, Soudamini

Y.V. Rao's best-known film as actor is a satire on the mania for Westernisation among India's lower-level bureaucrats. A minor tehsildar (revenue collector) (Y.V. Rao) marries the naive, rural Kamala (Bhanumathi) and instantly wants her to adopt Western fashions, learn English and walk in high-heeled shoes. This leads to ludicrous situations and at a tea party hosted by the collector she feels publicly humiliated. The tehsildar rejects Kamala in favour of Rajani (Kotnis), a 'modern' lady who first has Kamala evicted from the house and then goes on to ruin the Tehsildar financially, causing him to be arrested for embezzlement. With, e.g. Grihapravesham (1946), L.V. Prasad later continued the satires on blind Westernisation.

⊗ UDAYER PATHEY/HAMRAHI

1944 122'[B]/121'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d/c/co-sc Bimal Roy pc New Theatres st/dial Jyotirmoy Roy co-sc Nirmal Dey lyr Zakir Hussain[H] lyr Rabindranath Tagore[B] m Rai Chand Boral lp Radhamohan Bhattacharya, Binata Basu, Rekha Mitra, Devi Mukherjee, Tulsi Chakraborty, Devbala, Meera Dutta, Boken Chatterjee, Maya Bose, Rajalakshmi, Parul Kar, Manorama, Bishwanath Bhaduri[B], Hiren Basu[B], Tarapada Choudhury[B], Smritirekha Biswas[B], Leena Bose[B], Aditya Ghosh[B],

Binata Basu (second from right) and Radhamohan Bhattacharya (right) in Udayar Pathay

Bhupendra Kapoor[H], Hiralal[H], Dindayal Luthra[H], Ramesh Sinha[H]

Bimal Roy's directorial debut tells of an impoverished novelist Anup (Bhattacharya) who works as a speechwriter for the millionaire Rajendranath (Bhaduri), but leaves when his sister Sumitra is falsely accused of theft. Increasingly committed to the working class, Anup writes a novel, but Rajendranath's corrupt and evil son (D. Mukherjee) plagiarises the book. Although Rajendranath's daughter Gopa (B. Basu) falls in love with Anup, his commitment to the workers' union starts threatening the family's business interests. The evil son has Anup beaten up during a labour rally. The famous socialist-realist ending frames Rajendranath on his balcony as he sees Anup and Gopa leave the house and walk towards the rising sun. (In contrast, Pramod Chakravarty's remake, Naya Zamana, 1971, had Dharmendra and Hema Malini exit in millionaire-father Ashok Kumar's limousine, while S. Ray ended Mahanagar, 1963, with an ironic inversion of the scene as hero and heroine stride into the streets and merge with the masses'). The title was taken from a Tagore poem, addressing Swadeshi indigenism in a changed political context, and appears on the wall of Anup's room. It inaugurated the venerable practice of using Tagore poems for Bengali film titles. Known mainly for Radhamohan Bhattacharya's remarkable debut as the incorruptible bhadralok hero, an image he repeated in several films (e.g. the little girl's father in Kabuliwala, 1956) and which was quoted in Mrinal Sen's Akaler Sandhaney (1980) in which Bhattacharya played the village teacher. The film's enduring reputation as a popularised version of IPTA theatre was enhanced by IPTA writer Jyotirmoy Roy's lively story and dialogue. The film is a fine example of the type of melodrama that addresses indigenous capitalism as a contradiction between inherited and earned wealth.

❖ BADI MAA

1945 122' b&w Hindi
d Master Vinayak pc Prafulla Pics
st V. S. Khandekar lyr Zia Sarhadi, Anjum Pilibhiti, Raja Badhe, Dinkar D. Patil
c Madhav Bulbule m K. Datta lp Nurjehan, Meenakshi, Ishwarlal, Yakub, Alka, Lata Mangeshkar, Leela Mishra, Sitara Devi, Dada Salvi, Damuanna Malvankar, V. Jog, Girish, Bhaurao Datar

Vinayak was forced to make this war-effort movie to keep his company alive during WW2. Durgadas (Salvi) worries about his son Dinesh (Ishwarlal) who is in London during the Blitz. Moneylender Ghanshyam (Girish) agrees to write off a debt provided Durgadas's daughter Usha (Meenakshi) marries his son Rajendra (Yakub), but Rajendra and the dancer Mona (Sitara Devi) are spies for the Japanese. When the Japanese attack the village of Dinapur, Rajendra becomes a patriot and fights for the Allied cause along with Dinesh.

❖ HEMAREDDY MALLAMMA

1945 ?' b&w Kannada
d S. Soundararajan, G.R. Rao p Gubbi Veeranna pc Gubbi Films dial Bellave Narahari Sastry based on his play m Chittor V. Nagaiah lp Gubbi Veeranna, Honnappa Bhagavathar, C.B. Mallappa, K.R. Seetarama Sastry, B. Jayamma

Veeranna's hit sequel to his Jeevana Nataka

(1942) is based on the Sastry play he had staged with his own theatre group. Told in the Saint film idiom, the story shows how the devout Mallamma (Jayamma), burdened by a mentally retarded husband and a tyrannical mother-in-law, eventually transforms everyone around her. Nagaiah made his Kannada debut as composer with several popular songs which, along with the film's elaborate special effects, contributed to its success.

❖ HUMAYUN

1945 118' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.
st Waqif sc Aga Jani Kashmiri lyr Shams Lucknowi, Munshi Arzoo, Anjum Pilibhiti, Buddhichandra Agarwal 'Madhur', Vikaar Ambalvi c Faredoon Irani m Ghulam Haider
lp Ashok Kumar, Veena Kumari, Nargis, Shah Nawaz, Chandramohan, K.N. Singh, Himalaywala, Yusuf Effendi, Abdul Rashid, Abdul Kader, Afghan Sandow, Wasker

Classic spectacular featuring the 16th-C. Mughal emperor Humayun (Kumar). Advocating communal harmony, a policy prompted by contemporary developments, the film stresses the friendship between the victorious Babar (Nawaz) and the defeated Rajputs: he asks the Rajkumari (Veena), daughter of the slain Rajput king, to assume her father's throne and to regard Babar as a father. In the latter part of the story, Humayun sacrifices his kingdom to save the Rajkumari. Hamida Bano (Nargis) is a commoner with whom Humayun falls in love, but who turns down his offer of marriage claiming that women, for all kings, are mere playthings. The major highlights of the film are the elaborate Mughal sets and the spectacular battle scenes with elephants and horses. Cecil B. DeMille described the film, in a letter to the film-maker, as a 'masterpiece of lighting and composition'.

❖ LAKHRANI

1945 122' b&w Hindi
d/s Vishram Bedekar pc Prabhat Film
dial Sudarshan lyr Qamar Jalalabadi
c Pandurang Naik m Master Krishnarao lp Durga Khote, Monica Desai, Azoorie, Sapru, Butt Kaiser, Ganpatrao, Gauri, Karadkar, Guru Dutt, Baby Malan, Ramsingh, Urmila

Bichwa (Khote) is the queen of a devout Untouchable community not permitted to enter the temple. Her daughter Lakha, the best dancer in the community, marries the prince of a rival community of atheists and is excommunicated by her own people. The devout group has their devotion tested by economic setbacks and a major conflict erupts between them and the atheists but god materialises on earth, thus solving the problems of belief and its attendant conflicts. Untouchability is abolished and they can all join together to worship in the temple. This transparent piece of religious propaganda saw Guru Dutt's acting debut in the minor role of Lachman, Lakha's brother.

MANE NA MANA

1945 121' b&w Bengali

d/s Sailajananda Mukherjee pc New Century Prod. c Sudhir Basu m Sailen Dasgupta lp Ahindra Choudhury, Jahar Ganguly, Phani Roy, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Tuli Chakraborty, Santosh Sinha, Renuka Roy, Molina Devi, Sandhyarani, Prabhadevi, Nibhanani Devi

Mukherjee followed his Shabar Theke Dooray (1943) with this rural joint family melodrama about a woolly-headed but saintly Debnath (a stereotype in Saratchandra's novels) who loves his stepbrother the idle hedonist Bhoothnath, and his stepsister. Debnath's wife would like her sister to marry the step-brother. Debnath finds a job for Bhoothnath with a miserly zamindar but this leads to Bhoothnath becoming implicated in a theft and he is jailed. The problems threaten the cohesion of the joint family but the happy end reasserts the permanence of blood ties. A major hit, the film produced fashion spin-offs including Mane Na Mana saris. The fashion trend had earlier been introduced into Bengali film mainly around the figure of Kanan Devi (e.g. 'Kanbala' earrings), followed by 'Anuradha bindis' (forehead dots) after Bidyapati (1937).

MEERA

1945 136'[T]/120'[H] b&w Tamil/Hindi
d Ellis R. Duncan pc Chandraprabha Cinetone p T. Sadasivam dial/lyr[T] Kalki sc/dial[H] Amritlal Nagar lyr Narendra Sharma[H]
m S.V. Venkatraman, Ramnath, Naresh Bhattacharya lp M.S. Subbulakshmi, T.V. Rajasundaribai, S. Santhanam, Chittoor V. Nagaiah, Radha, Kumari Kamala, T.S. Balaiah,
M.G. Ramachandran

A Saint film about the life of Meera aka Meerabai (1498-1565). In the film, she is forced to marry the King of Mewar (Nagaiah), and is persecuted by her brother-in-law Jayaman (Baliah). The king accedes to her request to have a Krishna temple to be built in Chittoor. When she refuses to accompany the king at a court durbar, and places the necklace gifted to her by Akbar's envoy Tansen on the Krishna idol, the king orders the temple demolished. She eventually moves to Dwarka where she becomes an itinerant singer before her soul merges into that of Krishna. One of India's most famous saint poets, her 1400 or so poems, handed down completely in the oral tradition, often address a demystified ideal of Krishna (played in the film by Kumari Kamala). The film features the famous classical singer M.S. Subbulakshmi known for her Carnatic-style music but also for several other, including North Indian styles (her daughter Radha played the young Meera). Her rendition of 18 Meera bhajans in Hindi remained for several years the definitive musical version of the lyrics. They have remained an important part of her live concerts ever since. Originally a Tamil hit, the film's very successful Hindi version had the poetess-politician Sarojini Naidu introduce Subbulakshmi to a North Indian audience. The Tamil version has novelist Kalki's best-known work as a lyric writer, esp. Katrinile varum geetham.

SAMRAT CHANDRAGUPTA

1945 122' b&w Hindi

d/p Jayant Desai pc Jayant Desai Prod.
st Mohanlal G. Dave dial Shaheed Latif, Sagar Hussain lyr Buddhichandra Agarwal 'Madhur' c Dronacharya m C. Ramchandra lp Renuka Devi, Ishwarlal, Nayampalli, Suraiya, Anil Kumar, Ibrahim, Sulochana Chatterjee, Rewashankar Marwadi, Kantilal, Bhagwandas

Big-budget historical about the founder of the Maurya empire in 321BC. The film uses the legend about the Indian emperor who was close to Alexander's Macedonian army but fell out with the Greek and eventually defeated him in battle, establishing his own empire and capital at Pataliputra. The film shows Chandragupta's friendship with the Greek general Seleucus Nicator, whose daughter the Mauryan king is believed to have married. He saves Nicator's life and also his daughter Helen from the evil Antigonos, in return for which he marries Helen. The subsequent political history, e.g. Chandragupta's conquest of the Nandas, is presented as a consequence of the love story. Happiness reigns only after several attempts to overthrow the king are foiled. A key figure is the wily politician Chanakya. The film also had the nationalist number Mata ki jai, janani ki jai ho.

SWARGASEEMA

1945 114' b&w Telugu

d/sc B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini st Chakrapani dial/co-lyr S.V.R. Acharya co-lyr Nalinkantha c Marcus Bartley m Chittoor V. Nagaiah lp P. Bhanumathi, Chittoor V. Nagaiah, B. Jayamma, Lingamurthy, K. Siva Rao, Ch. Narayana Rao

Reddi's best-known film is a remarkable melodrama chronicling the metamorphosis of rural street entertainer Subbi (Bhanumathi) into the urban seductress Sujata Devi. Murthi (Nagaiah), a married man, helps her to become a stage star while the heroine breaks up Murthi's marriage to the affectionate Kalyani (B. Jayamma). The film can be read as a comment on the star-manufacturing process in Telugu cinema, with Bhanumathi, supported by Bartley's constantly moving camera, expertly modulating the gradual shifts in gesture, speech accent and make-up as the village beauty is transformed into a 'sexy' star. Allegedly inspired by Mamoulian's Blood and Sand (1941) starring Rita Hayworth. The film's generic innovativeness is sometimes ascribed to the new unit assembled by the studio after designer A.K. Sekhar and writer/cameraman K. Ramnoth left to join Gemini. Major new presences include writer Chakrapani (later co-producer with B.N. Reddi at Vauhini), lyricist-composer B. Rajanikanta Rao and singer Chittoor V. Nagaiah who makes his singing debut here with the number Gazulapilla. According to V.A.K. Ranga Rao, lyricist Rajanikanta Rao, introduces Arabic music and Bhanumathi adopts Hayworth's humming from Blood and Sand for the classic hit song Oob pavurama (the seduction number) as a contrast to the Carnatic number Manchidinamu nede.

TADBIR

1945 121' b&w Hindi

d/p Jayant Desai pc Jayant Desai Prod.
st Mohanlal G. Dave dial Munshi Sagar Hussain lyr Swami Ramanand c Dronacharya
m Lal Mahomed
lp K.L. Saigal, Suraiya, Mubarak, Jiloo, Rehana, Rewashankar Marwadi, Raja Rani, Shashi Kapoor, Amina, Shalini, Gharpure, Raja Joshi

When Kanhaiyalal (Saigal) is born, an astrologer predicts that upon growing up he shall follow a prostitute, learn to wield a knife and be sentenced to the gallows. The predictions come true but not in the imagined forms: he and his mother find shelter in the house of Saguna (Suraiya), a prostitute who eventually sacrifices her life to save the hero's. The knife-wielding prediction comes true when he becomes a surgeon. Kanhaiyalal and his mother fight poverty and crime, and his evil stepbrother Jwala Prasad. A well-known Saigal and Suraiya musical that claimed to address the phenomenon of destiny.

ANMOL GHADI

aka Precious Time

1946 122' b&w Hindi

d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.
st Anwar Batalvi sc/dial Aga Jani Kashmiri lyr Tanveer Naqvi, Anjum Pilibhiti c Fareedon Irani m Naushad lp Nurjehan, Surendra, Suraiya, Zahur Raja, Leela Mishra, Anwari Begum, Bhudo Advani, Murad, Bibubai, Amirbano, Noor Mahal, Wasker

A love-triangle romance with reformist overtones set partly in Bombay. Impoverished hero Chander (Surendra) and rich heroine Lata (Nurjehan) are childhood sweethearts separated when Lata's parents move to Bombay. Later, Chander moves there when his rich friend Prakash (Zahur Raja) finds him work in a musical instruments shop. By then, Lata has become a famous poetess going by the name of Renu and is engaged to Prakash. Lata's friend Basanti (Suraiya) falls in love with Chander but he remains true to his childhood girl and walks away into the sunset (with Basanti running after him). Although Mehboob made other triangular romances (Hum Tum Aur Wob, 1938; Najma, 1943 etc.), this film started his investigation of patriarchy, shown as masquerading under 'eternal' values (cf. Anokhi Ada, 1948; Andaz, 1949). The film deploys a strident rhetoric about class divisions, opposing poverty to eternal human(ist) values such as friendship and love. Languorous gesture and a romantically lit neo-classical decor are used to suggest femininity.

Suraiya in Anmol Ghadi

Musical hits including Nurjehan's best-known songs, e.g. Auwaaz de kaban bai (with Surendra) and the solos Mere bachpan ke saatbi, Jawan bai mobabbat.

⊗ DHARTI KE LAL

aka Children of the Earth

1946 125' b&w Hindi

d/sc co-p K.A. Abbas co-p V.P. Sathe pc IPTA st Bijon Bhattacharya's plays Nabanna and Jabanbandi; Krishen Chander's short story Annadata lyr Ali Sardar Jafri, Nemichand Jain, Wamiq, Prem Dhawan c Jamnadas Kapadia m Ravi Shaukar

lp Sombhu Mitra, Balraj Sahni, Usha Dutta, Damayanti Sahni, Anwar Mirza, Tripti Bhaduri, Hamid Butt, Pratap Ojha, Rashid Ahmed, Raudhir, Zohra Saigal, Mahendranath, Snehaprabha, David, K.N. Singli

Abbas's directorial debut launched a major trend of 'realist' cinema. The film is set during WW2 and the 1943 Bengal famine (a traumatic event often used as source material by left cultural movements) and a growing 'nation-building' ideology. Made during the war, the novice cast and crew were accorded a special licence for a war-effort contribution. The only film actually produced by the IPTA (although it later informally supported several other films), the film is based partly on Sombhu Mitra's landmark production of Bhattacharya's play Nabanna for the IPTA. It narrates the story of a family of sharecroppers in Bengal: the patriarch Samaddar, his elder son Niranjana and his wife Binodini, and the younger son Ramu with his wife Radhika. Despite a good harvest and rising grain prices during the war, Samaddar loses his property to a crooked grain-dealing zamindar. Ramu, his wife and their newborn baby go to Calcutta followed soon after by the rest of the family along with thousands of similarly dispossessed peasants. The film intercuts Ramu's frantic search for work with his wife's descent into prostitution. Before dying, the patriarch enjoins his family to return to their native soil where the farmers get together and, in a stridently celebratory socialist-realist ending, opt for Soviet-style collective farming. Ramu is excluded from their world. The film's highly stylised and symbol-laden realism proved extremely influential. It appears to have found a way of narrativising the 1943 famine which set the pattern for many films moving from depictions of deprivation in the country to suffering in the city, e.g. Nemai Ghosh's Chinnamul (1950) and Bimal Roy's Do Bigha Zameen (1953). It also initiated a new type of melodrama able to marry actuality to psychoanalytic and political anxieties and desires, as in Abbas's scripts for Raj Kapoor.

⊗ DR KOTNIS KI AMAR KAHANI

aka The Journey of Dr Kotnis aka Immortal

Journey of Dr Kotnis aka And One

Did Not Come Back

1946 127'[H]/100'[E] b&w Hindi

d/p V. Shantaram pc Rajkamal Kalamandir

st/co-s K.A. Abbas from his story And One Did Not Come Back co-s V.P. Sathe lyr Dewan

Sharan c V. Avadhoot m Vasant Desai

lp V. Shantaram, Jayashree, Dewan Sharan, Baburao Pendharkar, Master Vinayak, Ulhas, Keshavrao Date, Rajashree, Pratima Devi, Salvi, Jankidass, Hublikar

A chronicle of the real-life story of Dwarkanath Kotnis (V. Shantaram), a member of a medical team sent by India during WW2, an intensely nationalist period, to fight alongside the Chinese during the Japanese invasion. Kotnis goes to China, works almost singlehandedly to provide medical relief to the wounded, meets and marries a Chinese girl, Ching Lan (Jayashree), is captured by the Japanese and eventually dies in battle while developing a cure against an epidemic. Ching Lan and their infant son return to India, symbolising the solidarity of their nationalist struggles. Made along with the IPTA-backed Dharti Ke Lal and Neecha Nagar (both 1946) under a special WW2 licence as a war-effort film, Dr Kotnis is remarkable for its absolute abandonment of any pretence at cinematic realism and its powerful nationalist rhetoric, culminating in the hero's dying speech describing what his wife will see when she goes 'home'. This is intercut with documentary footage of Nehru at a mass meeting. The film succeeded in simultaneously pleasing the Communists, the Congress and the colonial occupation force. Shantaram re-edited a shorter version in English in 1948 in which, according to S. Bannerjee and A. Srivastava (1988), the 'clothing of the Indian characters' was made 'more ethnic to please a Western audience'.

⊗ EIGHT DAYS

aka Aath Din

1946 141' b&w Hindi

d Dattaram Pai pc Filmistan s Sadat Hasan

Manto lyr Gopal Singh Nepali c S. Hardip

m S.D. Burman

lp Ashok Kumar, Veera, S.L. Puri, Rama

Shukul, Mohsin, Sadat Hasan Manto, Upendranath Ashok, Mehdi Ali Khan,

B.M. Dikshit, Ram Nath, Aga Jan, Master

Bhagwan, Victor Pinto, Leela Mishra, H. Desai

Manto wrote in Meenu Bazar (1962) that his script was specifically designed as an Ashok Kumar comedy. Effectively directed by the star himself, this early Filmistan production tells of Shamsher Singh (Kumar), a discharged military officer who wants to settle down as a farmer. His marriage is arranged with the educated Neela (Veera) who ditches him at the last minute and goes to the city where she learns that she stands to inherit a fortune if she gets married within 8 days. After rejecting several suitors, she finally falls in love with Shamsher Singh, whom she meets in the city unaware that he is the person to whom she was earlier betrothed. Singh treats her badly and she sues him but in the end the two realise that they love each other. Manto acts in the film as an air force officer.

⊗ GRIHAPRAVESHAM

1946 122' b&w Telugu

d L.V. Prasad pc Sarathi Films s Tripuraneni

Gopichand c Jiten Bannerjee lyr/m Nalinikanta Rao (aka Balantrapu Rajanikanta Rao) lp P. Bhanumathi, Hemalatha, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, L.V. Prasad, Rangaswamy, K. Siva Rao, Sriranjani Jr.

The studio associated with Ramabrahmam's work commissioned the new director Prasad to film a reformist story simultaneously critiquing Westernisation and the feudal practice of arranged marriages (representing the views of scenarist Gopichand). Prasad turned it into a satire of the reformist social itself. The film was supposed to contrast the misogynist bachelor Somalingam (Prasad) with the 'modern' Janaki (Bhanumathi) who insists on her equal rights. Instead, it opens with the culturally loaded scene of Janaki playing badminton and her feminism is presented as strident and disruptive. Janaki's stepmother (Hemalatha) tries to force a marriage between her brother the anglophile Ramana Rao (Anjaneyulu) and Janaki, even though Ramana Rao has a girlfriend, Lalita (Sriranjani). Eventually Janaki and Somalingam devise a plot, embroiling them in many hypocrisies, to get Lalita and Ramana Rao married. Middle-class anglophilia is also ridiculed through Anjaneyulu's character, dressed in a three-piece suit and singing a couple of English songs. Bhanumathi's sentimental Amma nee nayanammulla ashajyothula ninduga velugenamma was a hit song.

Hum Ek Hain

1946 121' b&w Hindi
d/co-sc/lyr P.L. Santoshi pc Prabhat Film st Saleh Mohammed Qureshi co-sc Tony Lazarus c Surendra Pai m Husnlal-Bhagatram lp Durga Khote, Kamala Kotnis, Dev Anand, Alka Achrekar, Rehana, Rehman, Ranjit Kumari, Rane, Ram Singh, Gokhale, Ganpatrao, Manajirao Karadkar, Bhagwat, Baby Usha

A national unity parable choreographed by Guru Dutt but more significant as Dev Anand's debut. The old landlady of a village supports its people during a famine and raises three orphaned children of differing religions. The children, although encouraged to practice their separate religions, are taught to remain united at all times. The villain Chhote Babu, who wants to marry the girl who is engaged to the eldest of the three boys, sows discord and hatred, causing great enmity between the trio until reason prevails and they reunite.

Jeevan Yatra

1946 134' b&w Hindi
d Master Vinayak pc Rajkamal Kalamandir
p V. Shantaram st N.S. Phadke's novel sc/lyr Dewan Sharar c Madhav Bulbule
m Vasant Desai
lp Nayantara, Pratima Devi, Lata Mangeshkar, Shantaran, Sunalini Devi, Meher Sultana, Sundarabai, Vijaya, Yakub, Baburoo Pendharkar, Dikshit, Chandrakant, Damuanna Malvankar

Shantaram, who had given him his first break, also produced Vinayak's last film. It features a large number of characters travelling on a bus to Benares. A storm forces the passengers to take shelter in an abandoned temple where a prostitute tries to seduce Raja (Yakub) and he is left behind. The bus later breaks down and when Raja rejoins the group a local bandit, Vishwas (Pendharkar), attacks it. Eventually the bandit turns out to be Raja's father and the husband of an old woman, Kalindi (Protima Devi), another passenger on the bus. Vinayak's only film in the mainstream Hindi cinema, it included the collective number Ao azadi ke geet gate chalein and Lata Mangeshkar's Chidiya bole choo choo. Mangeshkar plays a village girl.

Nauka Dubi/Mil an

1946 147'[B]/144'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d Nitin Bose pc Bombay Talkies p Hiten Choudhury st Rabindranath Tagore's novel Nauka Dubi (1916) sc Sajanikanta Das lyr Arzoo, P.L. Santoshi[H] c Radhu Karmakar
m Anil Biswas
lp Dilip Kumar[H]/Abhi Bhattacharya[B], Ranjana[H]/Meera Sarkar[B], Meera Mishra, Pahadi Sanyal, Moni Chatterjee, Shyam Laha

The hero Ramesh (Kumar/Bhattacharya) agrees to marry a woman he's never met, unknown to his real lover Hemnalini (Ranjana/Sarkar). The wedding party is hit by a storm when travelling across a river; the hero's father and the bride are drowned while the hero survives. He later meets Kamala (Meera Mishra), whose husband (like Ramesh's wife) had died shortly after their marriage. Their respective bereavements bring the two closer until Kamala's husband is discovered to be still alive. Eventually Ramesh marries Hemnalini. The famous Tagore novel was Nitin Bose's debut at Bombay Talkies, and his most ambitious Hindi film to date. Reviews attacked it for its slow pace, but generally commended its extensive night shooting.

Neecha Nagar

1946 122' b&w Hindi
d Chetan Anand pc India Pics s Hyatullah Ansari st M. Gorky's The Lower Depths
lyr Vishwamitter Adil, Manmohan Anand
c Bidyapati Ghosh m Ravi Shankar lp Rafiq Anwar, Uma Anand, Rafi Peer, Kamini Kaushal, Hamid Butt, S.P. Bhatia, Mohan Segal, Zohra Segal, Prem Kumar

Chetan Anand's IPTA-supported film loosely adapted from Gorky's classic forms a trio with Abbas's Dharti Ke Lal and Shantaram's Dr Kotnis Ki Amar Kahani (both 1946). Class division is signified by a rich landowner (Rafi Peer) who lives on a mountain while the poor starve in the 'Neecha Nagar', a village in the valley below. The landowner's sewage flows around the poor people's huts, spreading disease. Eventually the rich man dies in a long-drawn-out heart attack. Anand's debut featured several judgemental high- and low-angled shots, sacrificing realism for quasi-expressionist emotional intensity. This film and Dharti Ke Lal mark Ravi Shankar's debut as film composer.

Ranakdevi

1946 123' b&w Gujarati
d/sc V.M. Vyas pc Sunrise Pics st Mohanlal G. Dave dial Karsandas Manek lyr Manasvai Prantijwalla c R.M. Rele m Chanalal Thakur lp Anjana, Motibai, Dulari, Nirupa Roy, Lilavati, Lila Jayawant, Mallika, Damayanti, Chandrabala, Amubai, Sumati, Daksha, Kavita, Bhagwandas, Pande, Chanalal Thakur, Natwarlal Chohan, Master Dhulia, Shyam, Gangaram, Gautam

Nirupa Roy's first film. The Solanki King Siddharaj Jaisinh (12th C.) wants to marry Ranak, a daughter of the Parmar king of Sind but raised by a potter. However, she marries King Ra'Khengar of Junagadh, triggering a war as Ranak, confined for 12 years, bears two children while refusing to succumb to Siddharaj. When he kills her husband, she commits sati (ritual suicide on her husband's funeral pyre). Based on historical events, the story had become a folk legend. It was the only Gujarat film made that year, but launched a tradition of film adaptations of quasi-historical legends, many of them dealing with Rajput royalty (cf. Raskapur's films Mulu Manek, 1955; Kadu Makrani, 1960).

Shahjehan

1946 121' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/p A.R. Kardar pc Kardar Prod. lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri, Kumar Barabankavi m Naushad lp K.L. Saigal, Kanwar, Ragini, Nasreen, Jairaj, Himalaywala, Nazir Bedi, Azoorie, Kesarbai, Anwari, Munir Sultana, Rehman, Peerjaan

Kardar's costume drama set in Mughal Emperor Shah Jehan's court is Saigal's last film and the debut of new-generation set designer M.R. Achrekar (later associated mainly with Raj Kapoor) and lyricist Sultanpuri. The melodrama stresses the two motifs usually associated with Shah Jehan: his commitment to justice and the Taj Mahal, which he built as a monument of love for his wife Mumtaz. The poet Sohail (Saigal) writes a love song (Mere sapnon ki rani) in praise of the beautiful Ruhi, daughter of Rajput general Jwala Singh. The song becomes so popular that it seriously inconveniences its subject: some lovelorn youths disrupt her wedding procession and five of her brothers are killed. Shah Jehan adopts Ruhi into the royal court and offers her in marriage to the one who can create a work of art that 'replicates heaven on earth'. Sohail wins the contest with the song Kar lijiye chal kar meri jannat ke nazare but she is in love with the Persian sculptor Shiraz (Jairaj). The dilemma causes a split between Shah Jehan and his wife, only resolved when Mumtaz, on her deathbed, asks the emperor to build a monument reflecting their love. Shiraz is to build the monument, but he must first experience a loss analogous to Shah Jehan's loss of Mumtaz. And so, Ruhi's father kills Ruhi: the distraught Shiraz then builds the Taj Mahal. Later, it is revealed that Ruhi is still alive as Sohail sacrificed his life to save her. Although Mughal historicals generally fetishise legends about royal masculinity (Tansen, 1943; Anarkali, 1928, 1935, 1953) this one goes further, gendering the segregation between personal and political spaces while contrasting declamatory dialogues and large-scale sets with a staccato, documentary narrative. The film includes Saigal's famous song Jab dil hi tut gaya.

Subhadra

1946 122' b&w Hindi
d Master Vinayak pc Prafulla Pics
s V.S. Khandekar lyr Pandit Indra, Moti B.A. c Madhav Bulbule m Vasant Desai lp Shanta Apte, Ishwarlal, Yakub, Prem Adib, Dada Salvi, V. Jog, Lata Mangeshkar

Vinayak's only full-scale mythological tells of the argument between Krishna (Prem Adib) and his stepbrother Balaram (Salvi) as to who their sister Subhadra (Apte) should marry. Eventually Krishna has his way and Arjun (Ishwarlal) marries her. Shanta Apte sings a rare duet with Lata Mangeshkar (Main khili khili pulwari) for this film.

Thyagayya

1946 186' b&w Telugu
d/p/s/m Chittor V. Nagaiah pc Sri Renuka Films dial/co-lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya
c Mohammad A. Rehman lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Lingamurthy, B. Jayamma, Hemalatha Devi, Saritha Devi, Nyapathi Narayana Murthy, Rayapralu Subramanyam, K. Doraiswamy, M.C. Raghavan, Natesan, Soundaralakshmi

The actor, singer and composer Nagaiah's directorial debut is a classic Saint film about the Telugu saint poet Thyagaraja (1767-1847), author of c.2400 kritis (verses) and the founder of the Carnatic system of classical music. Thyagaraja (Nagaiah) is shown as a villager composing devotional music to Rama while rejecting the court of Serfoji, maharaj of Tanjore (Narayana Murthy), the dominant cultural centre of the region. Turning down invitations and gifts from the maharaj, Thyagaraja provokes the jealous wrath of his brother Japesen (Lingamurthy). The film's climax comes when Japesen destroys Rama's idols, Thyagaraja resurrects them and eventually sacrifices his life to his god. Nagaiah's performance in the title role dominated the hit film together with the music, including 28 of Thyagaraja's kritis culminating in the number Nidhi chala sukham, sung when he rejects the royal gifts. The director-composer also introduced lyrics from Kannada (the Purandaradasa devara nama in the film's opening), Tamil (by Papanasam Sivan and sung by D.K. Pattamal) and Hindi (sung by J.A. Rehman). Among the main female roles, Jayamma played Dharmamba, Saritha Devi played Chapala while Hemalatha Devi played Kamalamba.

El aan

1947 133' b&w Urdu
d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.
s/lyr Zia Sarhadi c Faredoon Irani m Naushad lp Surendra, Munawar Sultana, Himalaywala,

Rehana, Leela Mishra, Zebunissa, Wazir Mohammed Khan, Reeta, Shahida, Shabnam, Gazi

Story of two half-brothers, the evil Sajjad (Himalaywala) and the good Javed (Surendra). Exploited since his childhood by the richer and crueller branch of the family, represented by Sajjad and his mother (Zebunissa), Javed loses his beloved (Munawar Sultana), bought by Sajjad's family wealth. The fortunes of the two brothers change: Sajjad gambles away his wealth while Javed becomes a noted lawyer. In a fit of desperation, Sajjad wants to kill his son but is himself killed by his mother. His widow turns down Javed's offer of marriage and instead starts a school in her family palace, partly to make amends for the family's vile behaviour. This was Mehboob's most stylised Muslim social with quasi-expressionist acting enhanced by an ornate decor and Irani's heavily shaded camerawork. The final song, Insaan ki tarkeeb, carried the film's anti-feudal message, addressed to the camera by a purdah-clad Munawar Sultana.

Kanjan

aka Miser
 1947 170' b&w Tamil
co-d/s/lyr Kovai Ayyamuthu co-d T.R. Gopu pc Jupiter Pics c P. Ramaswamy m S.M. Subbaiah Naidu lp T.G. Kamaladevi, S.V. Subbaiah, M.N. Nambiar, P.V. Narasimhabharati,
 M.S.S. Bhagyam, T.R. Malathi, C.K. Saraswati, K.S. Angamuthu, M.K. Mustafa

A Tamil chauvinist/revivalist contribution to social reform and the Independence struggle. The womanising widower Kandasamy (Subbaiah) is the miserly zamindar of Amaravathipudur with his crock of gold buried in the house. He covets the actress Maragatham (Kamaladevi), who is his son Kumarasamy's girlfriend, as a 2nd wife and plans to sell his daughter Amaravathi to a rich old man. The sale of women, miserliness and black marketeering having been duly criticised, the film has a happy ending. The playwright Ayyamuthu (his Inbasagam had been staged by the Nawab Rajamanikkam Co) was a pro-Congress nationalist associated with the controversial chief minister C.Rajagopalachari. He wrote the film's popular Tamil hit Tamilar natile tamilar atchiye ('Of all the people on this earth, the Tamils are the best'), released as a record and broadcast only by Tiruchi, Madras and Colombo radio stations. All the songs are based on classical Hindustani or Carnatic music. The film's release in the year of India's independence was accompanied by a two-reeler showing Gandhi visiting Palani and the Independence Day celebrations in Coimbatore.

Lokshahir Ramjoshi/Matwal a Shayar Ramjoshi

1947 123' [M]/132' [H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d Baburao Painter, V. Shantaram pc Rajkamal Kalamandir
s/co-lyr G.D. Madgulkar co-lyr Shahir Ramjoshi c G. Balkrishna m Vasant Desai

lp Jayaram Shiledar, Hansa Wadkar, Shakuntala, Parashuram, G.D. Madgulkar, Sudha Apte, Samant, Gundopant Walavalkar, Jayaram Desai, Kanase, Sawalram, Vaidya, Abhyankar

Classic Marathi Tamasha musical telling the life story of Ramjoshi (1758-1812) (Shiledar), a poet, keertan and lavani performer who later became extraordinarily popular notably with the lavani and the militant powada forms. The film narrates the poet's history, his descent into alcoholism and his eventual rise to greatness. The main dramatic pivot is his love for the Tamasha dancer Baya (Wadkar). Several scenes extensively illustrate Shantaram's symbol-laden expressionism, e.g. the scene where he drops the liquor jug to the floor, it hooks on to his clothing and thus does not 'let go of him'. These are combined with the scenes for which the film is famous, e.g. the sawal-jawab (musical question and answer contest) sequence, and numerous other lavani song-picturisations featuring Madgulkar's lyrics in his script debut. Shantaram had originally commissioned his mentor, Painter, to direct the film, but later sacked him and completed it himself. The film went on to become the biggest post-war success in the Marathi cinema, inaugurating the Tamasha genre in Marathi (followed by D.S. Ambapkar's Jai Malhar the same year, and Mane's Sangtye Aika, 1959). All three films, and indeed the genre itself, remained indelibly linked to Madgulkar's songwriting. A sequence from the movie is reconstructed in the opening of Benegal's Wadkar biographical Bhumika (1976).

Nam Iruvar

aka We Two
 1947 153' b&w Tamil
d/p A.V. Meiyappan Chettiar pc AVM
s P. Neelakantan from his play lyr Subramanya Bharati c T. Muthusamy m R. Sundarshanam lp T.R. Mahalingam, B.R. Panthulu, T.R. Ramchandran, V.K. Ramaswamy, K. Sarangapani, T.A. Jayalakshmi, V.R. Chellam, Kumari Kamala, P. Kannamba

Political melodrama establishing the famed AVM Prod. and the debut of Neelakantan, its scenarist and assistant director. The original play had been a stage success produced by S.V. Sahasranamam for the comedian N.S. Krishnan's theatre troupe. The film is replete with nationalist symbols, which proliferated in Tamil films following the installation of a popular government (1945) and the lifting of WW2 censorship. It begins with a Subramanya Bharati anniversary and ends with Gandhi's 77th-birthday celebrations, characters greeting each other with the 'Jai Hind' salute. The story, adapted from the earlier film Iru Sahodarargal (1936), features a blackmarketeer and his two sons Jayakumar (Panthulu, who also played two other roles in the film) and Sukumar (Mahalingam). The latter is a wastrel who loves Kannamma (Jayalakshmi), the daughter of his father's partner. The partner is a rapacious movie producer. The stagey, studio-bound film spoken in chaste (literary) Tamil used Bharati's nationalist songs and love poems. The younger sister of the heroine (Kumari Kamala) dances on a decorated drum with national flags draped behind her to Bharati's famous Kottu murase ('Let the drum sound'), prefiguring the climactic scenes of Chandralekha (1948). Other famous songs incl. Aaduvome pallu aaduvome, Mahaan Gandhi mahaan.

Neel Kamal

1947 116' b&w Hindi

d/s/lyr Kidar Sharma pc Oriental Pics
c Gordhanbhai Patel m B. Vasudev

lp Madhubala, Raj Kapoor, Begum Para, Rajinder, Shanta Kumar, Nifis Khilili, Nazira, Pesi Patel, Subhashini, Inquilab, Radha, Karan Singh, Baby Indira, Kumar Sahu, Dilip Kumar

Seminal melodrama, although a commercial flop, introducing Raj Kapoor and Madhubala. The love triangle and drama about atheism is set in the Rajput court of Janakgarh. The king and queen are killed when the king's evil brother-in-law Mangal Singh seizes power. Both their daughters escape. The younger princess, Kamala (Madhubala), is rescued and adopted by a family of Untouchables. She meets and nurses to health a young atheist sculptor, Madhusudhan (Kapoor), who falls in love with both Kamala and her sister (Begum Para), forcing Kamala to commit suicide. In Sharma's classic romantic idiom, a lotus flower grows where she died.

Pal nati Yuddham

1947 168' b&w Telugu

d Gudavalli Ramabrahmam, L.V. Prasad

pc Sharada Prod. s/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya c Jiten Bannerjee
m Galipenchala Narasimha Rao

lp G.V. Subba Rao, P. Kannamba, Srivastava Venkateshwara Rao, Lingamurthy, G.V. Sitapati, D.S. Sadasivarao, A. Nageshwara Rao, Vangara, S. Varalakshmi, Chandra, Narimani, Rajabala, Annapurna, Gangarathnam, P. Vishweshwaramma

Ramabrahmam died before he could complete his dream project, a historical foreshadowing India's independence, and L.V. Prasad finished it. The film tells of warfare and rivalries within the kingdom of Palnadu, causing the kingdom to split and numerous bloody caste and religious conflicts. The minister Brahmanayudu (G.V. Subba Rao), a wily political visionary, opens the doors of the Chenna Keshava temple to people of all castes, leading to a revolt from the military instigated by the royal matriarch Nagamma. The kingdom splits and early contests for dominance give way to full-scale battle among the second generation of the warring clans. The opening title directly alludes to Partition, referring to the fate of a nation 'whose soil has been converted into a rudrabhoomi [a cremation ground] by the vengeful attitudes of warring brothers'.

Ramer Sumati/Chhota Bhai

1947 131'[B]/144'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi

d Kartick Chattopadhyay pc New Theatres

st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay sc Sudhiranjan Mukherjee dial [H] Mohanlal Bajpai lyr [H] Romesh Panday c Sudhin Majumdar m Pankaj Mullick
lp Molina Devi, Master Shakoor[H]/Master Swagat[B], Rajalakshmi, Paul Mohinder[H], Sisir Batabyal[B], Asit Sen, Khursheed, Phani Roy[B], Chhabi Roy, Jahar Ganguly, Tulsi Chakraborty

Kartick Chattopadhyay's debut adapts a Saratchandra story about a typically affectionate sister-in-law. Narayani (Molina Devi) raises her husband's (Ganguly) young stepbrother Ramlal (Shakoor/Swagat), and is the only person who can control him when he becomes a notorious prankster. Problems develop between Ramlal and Narayani's visiting mother, and Narayani eats the two pet fish in Ramlal's pond. Ramlal attempts to run away before he is reconciled with Narayani.

Ratnamala

1947 165' b&w Telugu

d P.S. Ramakrishna Rao pc Bharani Pics
s/co-lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya

co-lyr Rajanikanta Rao c Jiten Bannerjee, P.S. Selvaraj m C.R. Subburaman lp P. Bhanumathi, G.V. Subba Rao, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, A. Nageshwara Rao, Hemalatha, Arani Satyanarayana, Suryanarayana, Seetaram, Ramanatha Sastry, Venkumamba, Koteswara Rao, Narayana, Baby Sumitra

The first film from Bhanumathi's independent production concern, set up with her husband, director Ramakrishna. Cast in a folk-tale idiom, the story tells of Ratnamala (Bhanumathi) who is tricked into marrying the infant Prince Chandrakantha. She raises her 'husband' in a forest but when he is 7 years old he is kidnapped by bandits for a ritual sacrifice. Ratnamala follows him and the robber chieftain tries to molest her. The couple are eventually rescued by the king, Ratnamala's father. When he refuses to believe that the boy is indeed her husband, the gods Shiva and Parvathi descend to earth to sort out the confusion. The film is famous composer C.R. Subburaman's first independent assignment and includes several hit songs: Anandadayini and, when Ratnamala goes in search of her husband, Niluva needa leka. The film also featured compositions by Saluri Rajeshwara Rao, Ghantasala and Rajanikanta Rao, all uncredited.

Samaj Ko Badal Dal o

1947 133' b&w Hindi

d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics s Girish lyr Roodpas, Pandit Indra, Qamar Jalalabadi c Yusuf Mulji m Khemchand Prakash
lp Aroon, Mridula, Yakub, Shantarin, Umakant, Leela Pawar, Ramesh Sinha, Bikram Kapoor, Prem Dhawan, Shabnam

Bhatt's unusually strident marital melodrama made with the informal help of the IPTA (choreographers Santi Bardhan, Sachin Shankar, Narendra Sharma et al.), mounting an IPTA-style attack on social conventions in the context of the Independence movement's promises of liberation. Heroine Manorama (Mridula), daughter of a clerk, cannot marry hero Kishore (Aroon) because her father can't afford the dowry. Manorama marries the evil widower Jayant (Yakub) who tortures her. Kishore marries the rich Champa (Lila Pawar), but then magnanimously allows her to remarry the man she really loves, Naresh. Kishore's goodness eventually clashes with Jayant's villainy and in a frenzied sequence he kills both Jayant and Manorama. He is pronounced insane and arrested.

Shehnai

1947 133' b&w Hindi

d/s/lyr P.L. Santoshi pc Filmistan

c K.H. Kapadia m C. Ramchandra
lp Rehana, Indumati, Naseer Khan, Dulari, Mumtaz Ali, Niranjan Sharma, Leela Mishra, Kumkum, Rekha, S.L. Puri, Kishore Kumar, Shobha Thakur, Radha Kishen, Srinath, V.H. Desai

Hit musical by the famous duo of lyricist Santoshi and composer Ramchandra. Marital drama featuring the four daughters of a comedian (V.H. Desai), their rival, the arrogant daughter of the zamindar (Indumati), and the various men in their lives: the zamindar's secretary (Radha Kishen), the police inspector (Kishore Kumar) etc. The film had Ramchandra's all-time hit Aana meri jaan Sunday ke Sunday (sung by Meena Kapur and Shamshad Begum with the composer) and several other songs, including the bhajan Jai Krishna hare Krishna (sung by Veenapani Mukherjee) and the railway number Jawani ki rail chale jai re (sung by Geeta Dutt, Lata Mangeshkar and the composer).

Yogi Vemana

1947 174' b&w Telugu

d/p/co-sc K.V. Reddy pc Vauhini

co-sc K. Kameshwara Rao
dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya c Marcus Bartley m Chittor V. Nagaiah, Ogirala Ramchandra Rao lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, M.V. Rajamma, Parvathibai, M. Lingamurthy, Kantamani, Baby Krishnaveni, Rami Reddy, Seeta, K. Doraiswamy

Nagaiah's third Saint film made by the same unit that produced his first one, the hit Bhakta Potana (1942). Vemana, a 17th-C. poet born in the Reddy community, attacked social inequality although adhering to the conventional Hindu views on women. The film attempts to inject realism into the Telugu version of the genre, showing e.g. the relationship between Vemana (Nagaiah) and a courtesan, Mohanangi (Rajamma). Vemana, the younger brother of a local chieftain, steals his sister-in-law's diamond necklace for Mohanangi. He next steals the money meant for the king's tribute, causing his brother to be imprisoned. He and his friend Abhiram (Lingamurthy) successfully manufacture gold by using alchemy. His moment of revelation comes when he brings this gold home to find his niece Jyoti (Baby Krishnaveni), his only real friend, dead. The film dissolves her face on to a skeleton, adding shots of people in their daily work routine, set to the song Idena inthena ('Is this all that life is?'). Vemana then becomes a mendicant, advocating an ideology earlier demonstrated when he takes the silk cloak covering an idol in a temple and drapes it over an old woman shivering in the cold. The film is often compared with Shantaram's Prabhat biographical of Eknath, Dharmatma (1935).

✂ Ajit

aka Rangeen Zamana
1948 133' col Hindi
d/p Mohan Bhavnani pc Bhavnani Prod.
st Snilloc's novel Asir of Asirgarh lyr Phani
m Govind Ram
lp Monica Desai, Premnath, Yashodhara Katju, Gope, Nayampalli, Badri Prasad, Ram Kamlani

Bhavnani's last feature is described in a Times of India review (18.12.1949) as a 'Rajput story fraught with great drama and tender romance'. It is India's first colour film using Kodachrome 16mm blown up to 35mm in the USA.

as the real culprit behind the popular unrest. Subodh Ghosh's powerful story Fossil is a savagely ironic account of a fictional kingdom allegorically representing the socio-economic rise of the native colonial state. The big-budget film includes the key characters of the novel (e.g. the bourgeois liberal Mukherjee who dreams of a future land when the bones of the dead workers will, with the quartz and granite, yield mineral deposits a million years from now; the peasant leader Dulal Mahato), while placing in greater prominence the love story between the peasant leader Shubha and Mukherjee. It also has a 'Vivek', a singing minstrel used as a narrative chorus, a device borrowed from the traditional Jatra form.

✂ Aag

aka Fire
1948 138' b&w Hindi
d/p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films s Inder Raj Anand lyr Behzad Lucknowi, Saraswati Kumar Deepak, Majrooh Sultanpuri c V.N. Reddy m Ram Ganguly lp Raj Kapoor, Nargis, Premnath, Kamini Kaushal, Nigar Sultana, Kamal Kapoor, B.M. Vyas, Vishwa Mekra, Shashi Kapoor, Indumati

Raj Kapoor said he would never forget this film, his directorial debut, 'because it was the story of youth consumed by the desire for a brighter and more intense life. And all those who flitted like shadows through my own life, giving something, taking something, were in that film.' The hero is Kewal (Kapoor), a country boy disfigured by a self-inflicted scar on his face who dreams of running a theatre. He is cast out by his father and eventually builds his own theatre where Nimmi (Nargis) becomes a star. Shashi Kapoor plays the part of Raj Kapoor as a young boy. Announcing the baroque imagery of Barsaat (1949) and Awara (1951), Kapoor fills his film with shadows evoking the influence of the Osten/Wirsching brand of chiaroscuro.

✂ Anjanganrh

1948 126'[B]/139'[H] b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/s Bimal Roy pc New Theatres st Subodh Ghosh's Fossil dia[H] Mohanlal Bajpai lyr[H] Bhushan, Romesh Panday c Kamal Bose m Rai Chand Boral
lp Sunanda Bannerjee, Tulsi Chakraborty, Parul Kar, Manorama Jr., Chhabi Roy, Bipin Gupta, Asit Sen, Purnendu Mukherjee, Jahar Roy, Sunil Dasgupta, Prafulla Mukherjee, Ramakrishna Chatterjee, Devi Mukherjee[B], Amita Basu[B], Phalguni Roy[B], Shankar Sen[B], Raja Ganguly[B], Kalipada Sarkar[B], Bhanu Bannerjee[B], Manoranjan Bhattacharya[B], Rama Nehru[H], Hirabai[H], Hiralal[H], Ajay Kumar[H], Raimohan[H], Bhupendra Kapoor[H]

Roy's New Theatres sequel to his remarkable debut Udayer Pathay/Hamrahi (1944), this is a political allegory about collusion in colonial times between the aristocracy and a rising indigenous bourgeoisie. The despotic ruler of the small Anjanganrh kingdom comes into conflict with a mining syndicate which pays its workers a decent wage and allows the unionisation of the workforce. This bodes ill for the ruler. Eventually the syndicate joins with the despot in naming an innocent reformist collective set up for the welfare of the workers

✂ Anokhi Ada

1948 141' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod. st Zia Sarhadi sc Aga Jani Kashmiri lyr Shakeel Badayuni, Anjum Pilibhiti c Faredoon Irani m Naushad
lp Naseem Banu, Surendra, Prem Adib, Zeb Kureshi, Cuckoo, Nawab, Pratima Devi, Murad, Bhudo Advani

An updating of the Anmol Ghadi (1946) love triangle, this time featuring mainly the heroine's amnesia. The rivals for her love are an adventurer (Adib) who calls himself Laatsaheb (i.e. Lord Sahib) and a professor (Surendra). Each is associated with her life on either side of her memory divide, giving each a particular stake in whether she be allowed to recall her past or not. Remarkably shot in heavy chiaroscuro, esp. in the backdrops at the professor's house where the heroine battles with her amnesia.

✂ Bhul i Naai

1948 157' b&w Bengali
d Hemen Gupta pc National Progressive Pics st Manoj Bose c Ajoy Kar m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Radhamohan Bhattacharya, Pradeep Kumar, Nibedita Das, Tulsi Chakraborty, Sudipta Roy

Ex-terrorist Gupta's first film in his best-known style (cf. '42, 1949) celebrates the patriotic terrorist movements in pre-Independence Bengal. Markedly different from the film biographies of political personalities, Gupta's angry tone conveys opposition to the nationalist leadership coming into power at the time. Faithfully following Manoj Bose's original story, it opens with the 1905 Swadeshi upsurge: the burning of imported garments, the anti-Partition rallies etc. Mahananda, Ajit and Anandakishore are in a procession which is attacked by the police. Their leader Masterda (borrowed from the chronologically later Surya Sen) absconds with Anupama when Mahananda betrays the group of insurgents. The young Anandakishore is killed and Ajit is arrested. He escapes from jail, kills the informer and is sentenced to death, reaffirming his faith in nationalism shortly before he is hanged. The episode, evoking the real-life incident of a terrorist vendetta against Naren Gosain, is followed by documentary shots of Gandhi and

Raj Kapoor and Premanath in Aag

Subhash Chandra Bose (apparently added following censor strictures) that remain somewhat out of place in the main drama.

⊗ Bipl abi

aka The Revolutionary

1948 c.140' b&w Assamese

d/c Asit Sen pc Shri Krishna Films co-lyr/m Shiba Bhattacharya co-lyr Malin Bora, Bhupen Bhattacharya

lp Anupama Bhattacharya, Chandra Phukan, Rani Nath, Jagat Bezbaruah

In his debut film, the noted Bengali and Hindi director Asit Sen tells of a young radical who sacrifices his life for the nation. Several Assamese films, often featuring former IPTA members, broached the theme of radical martyrdom and nationalism, but this is technically very accomplished and remained for some years a standard work in the genre.

⊗ Chandral ekha

1948 207' b&w Tamil/Hindi

d/p S.S. Vasan pc Gemini s Gemini Story Dept. dial K.J. Mahadevan, Kothamangalam Subbu, Sangu, Kittu, Naina[T], Pandit Indra, Aga Jani Kashmiri[H] lyr Papanasam Sivan, Kothamangalam Subbu[T], Pandit Indra, Bharat Vyas[H] c Kamal Ghosh m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao, Balkrishna Kalla

lp T.R. Rajkumari, M.K. Radha, Ranjan, Sundaribai, L. Narayan Rao, P. Subbaiah Pillai, V.N. Janaki, Surabhi Kamalabai, N.S. Krishnan[T], T.A. Mathuram[T], T.E. Krishnamachariar[T], N. Seetaraman[T], Pottai Krishnamurthy[T], Yashodhara Katju[H], H.K. Chopra[H]

One of India's most famous films, started in 1943 and costing a massive Rs 3m this was the first major effort of a Tamil studio to attempt an all-India distribution. The film's nationwide success encouraged many others, e.g. AVM and Prasad, to follow suit. It is a period adventure film sometimes compared with The Prisoner of Zenda (1922, 1937). The basic plot is one of sibling rivalry between two princes, the good Veer Singh (Radha) and the bad Shashank (Ranjan). The object of desire and bone of contention between them is state power equated with the possession of the village maiden Chandralekha (Rajkumari). In the process, the hero and the heroine become circus artistes. The villain grabs the girl and enforces a wedding. She agrees provided there be an elaborate drum dance: the enormous drums, in the Indian cinema's most anthologised sequence, contain the hero's soldiers who burst out of the drums after the dance overwhelming the baddies followed by the longest sword duel in Indian cinema. Although the genre itself was not new to the Tamil cinema, its aggressive redefinition of entertainment mobilised Hollywood-style orientalism for an indigenist mass culture and became a landmark in the codification of an Indian mass entertainment ideology after Independence. Many of the spectacular dance sequences can be seen as continuations of the choreography in Uday Shankar's Kalpana

(1948), shot earlier that year at Gemini by many of the same technicians. The choreography was arranged by Jaya Shankar, Mrs Rainbird, Natanam Nataraj and Niranjala Devi. T.G. Raghavacharya started directing the film and probably shot most of it. Vasan took over direction later. According to Randor Guy, the initial plot stems from G.M.W. Reynolds's novel Robert Macaire, or The French Bandit in England (1848). V.A.K. Ranga Rao notes that the film's music shows influences from Carnatic, Hindustani, Bharatnatyam, Latin American and Portuguese folk music as well as a Strauss waltz. The chorus by the circus members apparently adapts the Donkey Serenade from R.Z. Leonard's film The Firefly (1937).

⊗ Drohi

1948 179' b&w Telugu

d L.V. Prasad pc Swatantra Pics s/lyr Tapi Dharma Rao c P. Sridhar m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao

lp G. Varalakshmi, Lakshmirajyam, K.S. Prakash Rao, L.V. Prasad, Rallabandi, Prabhakar Rao, K. Siva Rao, Venkumamba, Surabhi Balasaraswathi

Melodrama deploying the later New Theatres idiom of addressing the rise of a corrupt class of usurers in plots revolving around disease. The villain in the village is the wealthy and corrupt Gangadhara Rao (Rallabandi). His Westernised daughter Saroja (Varalakshmi) loves the crook Raja (Prabhakar). Driving her car, Saroja knocks down an old man who later dies of his injuries. The old man's granddaughter Seeta (Lakshmirajyam) is adopted by Prakash (K.S. Prakash Rao), a local doctor, who marries Saroja. When Saroja finds out Seeta's relationship with the accident victim, she has her thrown out on charges of theft. At this point an epidemic spreads through the village and the doctor has to work for long hours with the people. He also starts representing their interests to the political authorities. This threatens the villains Gangadhara Rao and Raja, who set fire to the village. The angry villagers are restrained by Seeta, but in the ensuing confrontation Seeta dies, accidentally killed by Gangadhara Rao. Saroja now turns over a new leaf and has her father and her ex-lover arrested, and she offers charity in the name of the dead Seeta. This is the first production of actor (and later director) K.S. Prakash Rao, and the debut of composer Pendyala. The other major director in the Prasad tradition, T. Prakash Rao, joined films here as assistant to Prasad, directing the scenes in which Prasad acted.

⊗ Ghar Ki Izzat

1948 136' b&w Hindi

d Ram Daryani pc Murli Movietone st K.S. Daryani dial/lyr I.C. Kapoor c Kumar Jaywant m Pandit Govind Ram lp Mumtaz Shanti, Dilip Kumar, Manorama, Jeevan, Dikshit, Suleman, Gulab, Gope

Daryani's domestic drama features two couples, each cutting across the urban-rural divide. Radhika, daughter of Seth Chunilal, and her husband Chaman leave her father's house to start an insurance business in the countryside. They meet Roopa (Shanti), poor but happy and living with her two brothers. Chanda (Kumar), Radhika's brother, falls in love with Roopa; they get married and move to the city where Roopa lives an unhappy life, taunted by her parents-in-law about her former poverty. The weak Chanda, concerned about his wife's unhappiness, leaves home and becomes a drunk and a gambler until, on a full-moon night, all differences are resolved.

⊗ Gopinath

1948 155' b&w Hindi

d/s Mahesh Kaul pc Shanti Lokchitra lyr poems by the saint-poets Surdas and Meerabai, Ram Murthy c Chandu m Ninu Majumdar

lp Raj Kapoor, Tripti Mitra, Latika, Nand Kishore, Sachin Ghosh, Randhir, Anwaribai, Feroze, Mahesh Kaul, Baby Zubeida, Niranjana Tiwari

Tragic tale of Gopi (Mitra), a village woman virtually abandoned by her brother in the home of Mohan (Kapoor) and his ageing mother. The lower-caste Gopi secretly loves Mohan but he pines for the movie star Neela Devi. Eventually the frustrated Gopi goes mad just when Mohan, fed up with his star's whims, returns to Gopi. The film belongs to the Bengali tradition of literary melodramas, an association enhanced by Tripti Mitra's remarkable performance. In shifting the tragedy from a Devdas-type male anxiety to the woman's condition, the film chronicles the behavioural and moral restrictions besetting a woman caught in a 'traditional' environment. Mitra's performative idiom rises above the story's vindication of tradition as superior to the liberated but hollow freedoms of the film star.

⊗ Gunsundari

1948 153' b&w Gujarati

d Ratibhai Punatar pc Ranjit Movietone lyr/m Avinash Vyas c H.S. Kwatra lp Baburaje, Manhar Desai, Nirupa Roy, Dulari, Saraswati, Chhagan Romeo, Master Pransukh

Second remake of Ranjit studio's infallible Gunsundari melodramas, following Chandulal Shah's previous versions in 1927 and 1934, proving as successful as its predecessors. Although the familiar central story retains the same dramatic pivot, of a married woman discovering a world beyond the home and holding the family together from external threat, this Gujarati version features several variations in its 'punchlines'. Gopaldas Seth's joint family here consists of three grown up children: the elder son Chandrakant (Desai), married to the virtuous Guniyal (Roy), a seven year-old younger son Vinu (Pransukh) who believes Guniyal to be his mother, and a daughter Kusum, who lives a miserable life as the wife of an eccentric poet, Chaman. Chandrakant is introduced to the courtesan Neelmani (Saraswati) by his friend Sudhakar (Baburaje), who brings about his ruin and turns him into an alcoholic. The patriarch bequeaths his personal wealth to his virtuous daughter-in-law Guniyal, who tries to provide for Neelmani's insatiable demand for money. The husband, caught in between a demanding lover and a sacrificing wife, is eventually reformed when he encounters his father's funeral procession. Rejected by Neelmani, he returns to his wife. Along with Ranakdevi (1946), this film effectively founded a Gujarati cinema industry, establishing Vyas as the best known lyricist/composer in that language e.g. with the success of songs like Bhabhi tame thoda thoda thao varnagi, and was also a major personal success for its female lead Roy.

⊗ Jogidas Khuman

1948 121' b&w Gujarati
d Manhar Raskapur pc Rupchhaya Chitra st/dial Kavi 'Jaman' sc T.K. Dave lyr Avinash Vyas, Venibhai Purohit, Prahlad Parekh, Kailas Pandya c Manek Mehta m Ramesh Desai, Indukumar Parekh lp Arvind Pandya, Master Dalpat, Champsibhai Nagda, Ratikumar Vyas, Narmada Shankar, Vimal Ghaisas

The first screen version of the anti-feudal Saurashtra legend of the bandit-saint Jogidas (Pandya). When the prince Vajesinh (Dalpat) seeks to annex lands gifted by the king to the Kathis of the Khuman clan of Bhavnagar, a rebellion is led by Hada Khuman, his two brothers Bhan (Nagda) and Ghela, and his son Jogidas. Jogidas eventually raises an army and kills the prince. He is forgiven by the king and becomes a saintly figure. The popular story was remade twice more by Raskapur himself (in 1962 and 1975: he was believed to be preparing yet another remake when he died) and featured a number of well known actors. In this version composer Laxmikant (cf. Laxmikant-Pyarelal) played Jogidas' son Lakho, in what was probably his sole screen appearance.

⊗ Kal pana

aka Imagination
 1948 164' b&w Hindi
d/s/choreo Uday Shankar pc Stage & Screen Presentations dial Amritlal Nagar lyr Sumitranandan Pant c K. Ramnoth m Vishnudas Shirali lp Uday Shankar, Amala Shankar, Lakshmi Kanta, G.V. Subba Rao, Birendra Bannerjee, Swaraj Mitter Gupta, Anil Kumar Chopra, Padmini, Lalitha

A dance spectacular, four years in the making, orchestrated by India's most famous modern dancer (and brother of Ravi Shankar). The narrative of the surreal fantasy is embedded within a framing story of a writer telling a story to a film producer, who eventually declines to make the movie. The writer tells of Udayan (Shankar) and Kamini (Kanta) and the young man's dream of establishing an art centre, Kalakendra (a fictional equivalent of Shankar's India Cultural Centre at Almora) in the Himalayas. Shot in the Gemini Studios in Madras, this ode to creative imagination mobilises the vocabulary of traditional dancing, which doubles as a metaphor for the dreams invested in the newly independent India. The choreography was specifically designed for the camera, with semi-expressionist angles and chiaroscuro effects, and became a model for later dance spectaculars like Chandralekha (also made at Gemini and shot by Ramnoth, 1948) and the dream sequence in Raj Kapoor's Awara (1951). For many years, the unusual film was seen as exemplifying a successful fusion of Indian modernism and the cinema. Shankar, who had danced with Pavlova, was lauded by James Joyce in a letter to his daughter: 'He moves on the stage like a semi-divine being. Believe me, there are still some beautiful things left in this poor old world.' A 122' version was shown in the US although one reviewer noted that the Indian government seemed reluctant to let it be seen abroad.

⊗ Kar iyavar

1948 138' b&w Gujarati
d/sc/dial Chaturbhuj Doshi pc Sagar Movietone p Chimanlal Desai st based on Shaida's novel Vanzari Vaav lyr Chaitanya, Nandkumar Pathak c Adi Irani, Jayant Dadawala m Ajit Merchant lp Dina Sanghvi, Dhulia, Shobha, Mulchand Khichdi

Ruralist mythological and complicated love story featuring numerous symbolic references with evident sexual overtones. The village girl Raju (Sanghvi) accepts the challenge of putting her hand inside a pot containing a poisonous cobra which would win her the right to install an idol into a temple. The snake falls for the girl and promises to withdraw to a banyan tree from where it can protect her. Raju loves the gypsy Madhav to the envy of her neighbour, the evil Veera. The snake duly bites Madhav, but then sucks back its poison on the condition that a well would be dug in the village. The well however turns out to be dry, and the village, in the grip of drought, is urged by Veera to demand that Raju and Madhav sacrifice themselves in an exorcism that would solve the villagers' problems. The story then introduces another woman, Champa, who volunteers to marry Veera and then further offers to commit suicide. As Champa and Veera are beheaded, the well waters rise. Remembered mainly as the screen debut of noted stage actress Dina Sanghvi, better known as Dina Pathak.

⊗ Shaheed

1948 164' b&w Hindi
d/st/co-dial Ramesh Saigal pc Filmistan co-dial/co-lyr Qamar Jalalabadi co-lyr Raja Mehdi Ali Khan c Marshall Braganza m Ghulam Haider lp Kamini Kaushal, Dilip Kumar, Chandramohan, Leela Chitnis, V.H. Desai, Shashi Kapoor, S.L. Puri, N. Kabir, Ram Singh, Madan, Prabhu Dayal

Nationalist melodrama set in the context of the Quit India movement and the ensuing wave of terrorist actions in the mid-40s. Ram (D. Kumar), the nationalist son of the colonial police chief Raibahadur Dwarkadas (Chandramohan), leaves home to join a terrorist group. His childhood sweetheart Sheela (Kaushal), who repeatedly protects him from being caught, is forced to marry the evil policeman Vinod, who in return lets her brother Gopal free and then promises to save Ram's life. In the end, accused of terrorist crimes, Ram is defended in court by his now-repentant father, but eventually hanged. Sheela, presented as the true martyr in this tragic drama, dies as well and is united with her lover in death.

⊗ Siraj

1948 ? b&w Assamese
d Bishnu Rabha, Phani Sarma st Lakhidhar Sarma lyr Shiba Bhattacharya, Bhupen Hazarika c Sudhish Ghatak m Bishnu Rabha lp Phani Sarma, Bishnu Rabha, Chandradhar Goswami, Bhupen Hazarika, Anupama Bhattacharya, Nirupama, Ambika Patwari, Bhabha Hazarika

National integration movie made by former associates of the Assamese IPTA, calling for communal harmony through its central character Siraj (Sarma), a kind-hearted Muslim who raises an orphaned Hindu child. Composer and actor Bhupen Hazarika, making his debut here, remade the film in 1988, but four decades later the plot, lacking its initial conviction and performative authenticity, seemed maudlin.

⊗ Suhaag Raat

1948 143' b&w Hindi
d/sc/lyr Kidar Sharma pc Oriental Pics st F.A. Mirza, V. Sharma c D.C. Mehta, D.K. Ambre, Machwe m Snehal lp Begum Para, Bharat Bhushan, Geeta Bali, Pesi Patel, S. Nazir, Rajinder, Nazira, Shanta Kumar, D. Kumar

Geeta Bali's debut is a classic love triangle. The child Bali is placed under the guardianship of the evil and greedy stepbrother Rahu: he pushes Bali over a cliff in order to get the entire family inheritance. Bali (Bhushan) survives, protected by an old murderer, Jaggu, whose beautiful daughter Kammo (Geeta Bali) falls in love with him although he prefers Paro (Begum Para), daughter of a zamindar with whom he has found employment. The villainous stepbrother re-enters the scene and lays claim to Paro; the lovely Kammo sacrifices her own life to get the lovers, Bali and Paro, together. All the well-known Sharma trademarks are present, including the use of nature as an emotional equivalent for the characters' state of mind, e.g. the scene where Kammo rows the boat through the dark night to enable the lovers to elope. The film has several Geeta Dutt numbers, including Rum jhum matwale badal chha gaye and Balo more payal.

Vadil ona Vanke

1948 132' b&w Gujarati

d Ramchandra Thakur pc Saras Pics s/lyr Prabhulal Dwivedi c Gordhanbhai Patel
m Mohan Jr

lp Motibai, Vasant Nayak, Pratima Devi, Latabai, Ramesh Vyas, Anant Vin, Amrit, Anjana, Neelam, Chunilal Nayak, Master Pransukh, Baby Saroj, Vijaya, Keshav Purohit, Jayshankar, Chhagan Romeo

Melodrama about social modernisation featuring the retired diwan of Kathiawar and his two daughters who have both separated from their husbands. The elder sister, illiterate and a traditionalist, is married to the sophisticated political prisoner Pushkar. The younger sister is married to the aimlessly 'modern' Kirtikumar. The drama of conflicting rights and ambitions is played out by an unusually large number of characters including Pushkar's widowed mother, her younger son, other members of the joint family, a criminal, and the accountants employed by Kirtikumar and the diwan. The film ends with Pushkar's death, leading to the cessation of hostilities. The film is based on a successful play by the Desh Nataka Samaj.

Andaz

aka A Matter of Style aka Beau Monde
1949 148' (142') b&w Hindi

d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.
st Shams Lucknowi sc/dial S. Ali Raza lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Faredoon Irani
m Naushad

lp Dilip Kumar, Nargis, Raj Kapoor, Cuckoo, V.H. Desai, Sapru, Murad, Anwaribai, Amirbano, Jamshedji

Melodrama using the pivotal figure of a woman to dramatise the contradictory proposition that the new, independent India should value capitalist modernisation while retaining feudal family and moral values. Neeta (Nargis), a modern young woman who dresses in Western style, inherits the business empire of Sir Badriprasad (Sapru). She entrusts its management to her dashing young friend Dilip (Kumar), who had saved her life and now misreads her gratitude and assumes that she reciprocates his love. When the man she is engaged to, the spoilt playboy Rajan (Kapoor), returns, she marries him. Dilip's managerial efficiency disintegrates under the pressure of his frustrated desire while the infantile Rajan begins to suspect his wife's fidelity. Eventually the tensions erupt into a violent clash between the two men as Rajan threatens to beat Dilip to death with a tennis racket. When Dilip recovers and advances on Neeta, she shoots him and is jailed for murder. The ensuing trial underlines the moral of the story: all the mayhem is Neeta's fault for not having listened to her father when he warned her to avoid 'modern' ways. A major musical hit with Naushad classics like Hum aaj kahin dil kho baithe, Tu kahe agar, Jhoom jhoom ke nacho aaj (all sung by Mukesh).

Apoorva Sahodar argal /Apoorva Sahodar ul u/Nishan

aka Strange Brothers

1949 151' b&w Tamil/Telugu/Hindi
d T.G. Raghavacharya[Ta], C. Pullaiah[Te], S.S. Vasani[H] pc Gemini st Alexandre Dumas's The Corsican Brothers dial Gemini Story Dept. [Ta], co-dial/lyr Pandit Indra[H] co-dial J.S. Casshyap lyr Kothamangalam Subbu[Ta]
c Kamal Ghosh[H], P. Ellappa
m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao, M.D. Parthasarathy, Balkrishna Kalla, R. Vaidyanath lp P. Bhanumathi, M.K. Radha[Ta], R. Nagendra Rao, G. Pattu Iyer[Ta], L. Narayana Rao[Ta], B.S. Saroja, D. Balasubramanyam[Ta], V.P.S. Mani, Ranjan[H], J.S. Casshyap[H], Maya Bannerjee[H], Balkrishna Kalla[H], Suryaprabha[H], S.S. Kashyap[H], Stunt Sona.

Vasani's sequel to the smash hit Chandralekha (1948) adapted the Douglas Fairbanks Jr version of the Dumas novel, directed by Edward Small (1942). Made as a trilingual, its nearly identical Tamil (Apoorva Sahodarargal) and Telugu (Apoorva Sahodarulu) versions were nevertheless credited to different directors, while M.K. Radha, who plays the double role of the separated twins in Tamil is replaced by his Chandralekha co-star Ranjan for the Hindi film. The villain Zoravar Singh (Nagendra Rao) defeats the rival kingdom of Bhawanigarh and the good doctor Shankar (Casshyap) manages to rescue the twins Vijay and Vikram (Radha/Ranjan), heirs to the throne. Vijay is raised in the city and Vikram in the forest. They grow up to take revenge on Zoravar. Both brothers love the same girl, Ranjana (Bhanumathi), causing a rivalry that generates further intrigues: Zoravar kidnaps the girl as bait to get the two heroes to reveal themselves. The Hindi version was less successful than the Tamil one, which broke several records.

Barsaat

aka Rain

1949 171' (163') b&w Hindi
d/p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films s Ramanand Sagar lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Shailendra, Ramesh Shastri, Jalal Malihabadi c Jal Mistry
m Shankar-Jaikishen
lp Raj Kapoor, Nargis, Premnath, K.N. Singh, Cuckoo, Nimmi, V.M. Vyas, Ratan Gaurang, Vishwa Mehra, Dolly Baldev, Pushpa Bimla, Prakash Arora, Sushila Devi, B.N. Khera, Master Sandow

Kapoor's sombre musical classic contrasts different notions of love. The rich and 'sensitive' Pran (Kapoor) passionately loves the poor country girl Reshma (Nargis). Defying her father's objections, who repudiates her, she runs to Pran but apparently drowns on the way. Pran and his philandering friend Gopal (Premnath), who callously jilted the village girl Neela (Nimmi), are driving through the country and happen upon Reshma's wedding to the obsessive fisherman (Singh) who saved her and believes he owns her. Pran crashes his car,

Nargis in Barsaat

stops the wedding and gets Reshma while the repentant Gopal finds that Neela has killed herself. Kapoor's 2nd independent production starring himself and Nargis was the R.K. Studio's first major hit. Its unusually innovative chiaroscuro cinematography (e.g. for Lata Mangeshkar and Mukesh's song Chhod gaye balam) created deep rather than laterally elaborated spaces and relied heavily on metaphor, as in the shot where the angled rope cut off by Reshma's father aligns with the angle of the violin bow with which Pran nightly serenades Reshma (playing the Anniversary Song from The Jolson Story, 1946). The dominant metaphor for the flow of desire, evoked by the title, is that of water, cf. the love sequence after the song Mujhe kisise pyar ho gaya (Lata Mangeshkar) with the waterfall, or the last shot when the smoke from Neela's funeral pyre merges with the rain clouds. The film is remembered above all for Shankar-Jaikishen's music, with numerous all-time hits, including the opening number Hawa mein udta jaye mera lal dupatta and Jiya bekarar hai, Barsaat mein humse mile, Meri aankhon mein bas gaya koi re, Ab mera kaun sahara (all sung by Lata Mangeshkar). The specially charged Kapoor-Nargis love duets (cf. the Pyar hua ikraar hua song in Shri 420, 1955) were often singled out as exemplifying the acme of the Indian cinema's romances.

Ek Thi Ladki

1949 164' b&w Hindi
d Roop K. Shorey pc Shorey Films s I.S. Johar lyr Aziz Kashmiri c Anwar Pabani m Vinod lp Meena Shorey, Motilal, Kuldeep, I.S. Johar, Majnu, Shakuntala, Batra, Shamlal, Gogia Pasha, Agha Miraz

This suspense drama was Shorey's first major Hindi success after his migration from Lahore. Poor and orphaned Meena (Shorey) accidentally witnesses the murder of a businessman in his office. Fleeing the scene, she is caught by the cops but rescued by the two killers who smart-talk their way out of the crisis. The trio check into a fancy hotel where Meena is required to play a princess. Spotting a policeman, she escapes once again and blunders into the office of hero Ranjit (Motilal), who employs her as his stenographer and then falls in love with her, to the annoyance of his boss's daughter Vimala. Geeta Dutt (then Geeta Roy) sang one of her early numbers Chandani raat hai, but the major hit of the movie is Lata Mangeshkar's La-ra-lappa lai rakhada: throughout the rest of her career Meena Shorey was known as the La-ra-lappa-girl.

42

aka Byalis

1949 156' b&w Bengali

d/s Hemen Gupta pc Film Trust of India

lyr Tarit Kumar Ghosh c G.K. Mehta

m Hemanta Mukherjee

lp Bikash Roy, Manju Dey, Sombhu Mitra, Suruchi Sengupta, Pradeep Kumar

Gupta's best-known political film addresses the violent agitations against the colonial police in the Midnapore district of Bengal in late 1942. Set against the violent Quit India agitations of the 40s in Midnapore, much of the drama stems from the ambivalence of the local leadership towards Gandhian non-violence. An aged woman activist (a reference to Matangini Hazra of Midnapore) explains that Gandhi advocated non-violence but asked every woman to carry a knife as well, just in case. Ajoy, his wife Bina (Dey) and aged grandmother are fired with the 'Kareng'e ya mareng'e' (Do or die) zeal. Violence erupts when the village blacksmith's daughter is killed. The blacksmith is tortured and killed by the evil army officer Major Trivedi (Bikash Roy, providing one of Bengali cinema's most enduring images of untrammelled villainy). Bina, who becomes a courier for the terrorists, is gang-raped by the army and goes insane, whereupon the entire village rises in anger. The grandmother is shot while leading an unarmed procession. Ajoy is shot too. Finally, in a sequence evoking Eisenstein's Bronenosets Potemkin (1925) the army refuses further orders to fire and eventually tramples over the major to join the marchers in raising the Indian tricolour. The tensely constructed and well-acted film, despite occasional hiccups in the dialogue (e.g. the major's line in English, 'You will be killed, killed to death'), encountered censorship problems for its potential to 'excite passion and encourage disorder'. Banned in Bengal, MP, Assam, Bihar and Madras (although cleared in Bombay), it was eventually released, with changes, in 1951.

Girls' School

1949 154' b&w Hindi

d/s Amiya Chakravarty pc Lokmanya Prod.

dial J.S. Casshyap lyr Pradeep c V. Babasaheb

m C. Ramchandra, Anil Biswas

lp Geeta Bali, Sohan, Shashikala, Sajjan, Mangala, Ramsingh, Vimala Vasisth, Krishna, Harun, Jagannath, Arjun, Gangu, Kesarbai

Rural drama about Meena (Bali) who leaves home rather than submit to an arranged marriage and starts a girls' school in a village, although opposed by the local zamindar. The zamindar's brother-in-law Bipin (Sajjan), who lusts after Meena, is the villain. The hero (Sohan) appears in answer to an advertisement for a schoolteacher and is appointed only because Meena mistakes his name - Shanti Kumar Majumdar - for that of a woman. The zamindar's widowed sister Sumitradevi, a supporter of the school, objects because he is not married. Meena and Shanti Kumar fall in love but he realises the damage he may cause to her school and leaves. Bipin then spreads rumours about Shanti Kumar's morals, which cause a further difficulty that has to be resolved before both the future of the school and of the loving couple may be assured. Guru Dutt assisted Chakravarty on this film shot at Bombay Talkies.

Gunsundari Katha

1949 172' b&w Telugu

d/co-sc K.V. Reddy pc Vauhini co-sc K. Kameshwara Rao st Shakespeare's

King Lear dial/lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao

c Marcus Bartley m Ogirala Ramchandra Rao lp Govindrajulu Subba Rao, Shantakumari,

K. Siva Rao, Malathi, Relangi Venkatramaiah,

Sriranjani Jr., T.G. Kamala, Hemalatha,

Lakshmirajyam Jr., Seeta, Balijepalli

Lakshmikanta Kavi

Freewheeling adaptation of Lear by fantasist K.V. Reddy. The royal patriarch (Subba Rao) is offended by his youngest daughter Gunsundari (Sriranjani) when she pledges unconditional loyalty to her future husband. He has her married to a deaf and dumb cripple (Siva Rao) who is in fact a perfectly healthy youth living under a curse. The king is stricken with a mysterious illness and his three sons-in-law set out to discover the Mahendramani jewel which will cure him. When the youngest son-in-law finds it, the other two steal it and magically change the third into a bear. Gunsundari eventually succeeds in lifting the curse upon her husband. The music of the big-budget Vauhini film is particularly successful, with V.A.K. Ranga Rao claiming Ogirala's composition Eevanilo to be the most unusual song in the history of Telugu cinema. The scenarist K. Kameshwara Rao later remade it in Tamil (Gunsundari, 1955) starring Gemini Ganesh and Savitri.

Kaneez

1949 140' b&w Hindi-Urdu

d/Krishna Kumar pc Caravan Pics

s/co-lyr Hasrat Lucknowi co-dial/co-lyr Shahir

Ghaznavi co-lyr Sarshar Saloni, Harishchandra

Akhtar c S. Srivastava m Ghulam Haider,

Hansraj Behl, O.P. Nayyar

lp Munawar Sultana, Shyam, Urmila, Kuldeep

Kaur, Khwaja Sabir, Tiwari, Nazir Kashmiri,

Jiloo, Cuckoo, Sinha

This Muslim social became one of 40s star Munawar Sultana's best-known films. She plays Sabira, the daughter of the millionaire Seth Akbar (Sinha) who is swindled and put into an asylum by his villainous manager Hamid (Sabir). Sabira marries Hamid's son Akhtar (Shyam), but it is an unhappy marriage ruined by a sexy urban socialite, Darling (Kaur). Sabira is forced to become a servant in her own home but eventually recovers her rightful place as the household's mistress. Numerous songs by Shamshad Begum and Zeenat Begum also includes early songs by Geeta Dutt.

Kavi

1949 151' b&w Bengali

d/sc Debaki Bose pc Chitramaya st/dial/lyr Tarashankar Bannerjee from his novel (1942) c Dhiren Dey m Anil Bagchi lp Nilima Das, Anubha Gupta, Robin Majumdar,

Tulsi Chakraborty, Nitish Mukherjee, Reba

Devi, Satya Bandyopadhyay

Noted novelist Tarashankar Bannerjee's book addressed the desire for immortality through art. In his own screen adaptation, the railway porter Nitai (Robin Majumdar) develops a reputation as a poet through participating in the kabigan (musical debate between poets who improvise in a question-answer contest).

Gunsundari Katha

The married Thakurjee (Anubha Gupta) falls in love with him. To avert a scandal he leaves his village and travels with a nomadic Jhumur troupe of dancers and musicians. The prostitute Basan (Nilima Das), whose advances the hero initially rejects, eventually comes to embody the unity of art and desire. Her death forces him to return home, where he finds Thakurjee also dead. The performances of the two women, the mute suffering of the mundane Thakurjee, counterposed by Basan's delicate frame crippled by venereal disease, and seen as the two sensuous opposites evoked by the hero's poetry, allow for some graceful moments in the film. The film was known for its music, esp. Tarashankar's lyrics Kalo jodi manda tobe, Ei khed mor mone mone, jiban eito chhoto kane, sung by male lead Majumdar, one of the last actors in the Saigal mould. Bose's ecstatic soft close-ups, his signature, are available in profusion. He remade the film in Hindi (1954) with Geeta Bali, Nalini Jaywant and Bharat Bhushan.

and unites with her lover in the desert. Remembered mainly for the two stars' performances and for Bhanumathi's songs Ninu basipovudana and Preme neramauna, both of which she later claimed to have composed herself. The film is also Malayalam star Padmini's Telugu debut with her sister Lalitha.

☞ Mahal

1949 162' b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/s Kamal Amrohi pc Bombay Talkies lyr Nakshab c Josef Wirsching m Khemchand Prakash lp Ashok Kumar, Madhubala, Kumar, Vijayalakshmi, Kanu Roy

Amrohi's debut is now considered a Hindi classic. It is a complicated ghost story psychodrama choreographed by Lachhu Maharaj and featuring hero Shankar (A. Kumar), who moves into an abandoned mansion that has a tragic history. He notices his resemblance to a portrait of the mansion's former owner and sees the ghost of the man's mistress Kamini (Madhubala) who tells him he must either die if they are to be united or that he must marry her reincarnation, the gardener's daughter, Asha. His friend Shrinath (Roy) tries to break the obsession by arranging Shankar's marriage to Ranjana (Vijayalakshmi). However, Shankar's obsession continues to the distress of his new bride who is expected, among other things, to live in a snake- and bat-infested hut. Ranjana commits suicide, accusing Shankar of the deed, but the truth comes out in the courtroom drama when the gardener's daughter admits to having masqueraded as the ghost. Shankar is nevertheless condemned to death for Ranjana's murder but in a strange reversal of fortunes, transfers his obsession to Asha: instead of being fascinated by a dead woman, he is now the near-ghost fascinated by the living Asha. The deep-focus photography is perhaps German cameraman Wirsching's best work in his career at Bombay Talkies. It is complemented by a remarkably advanced soundtrack. The film includes the song hit, Ayega aanewala (sung by Lata Mangeshkar and regarded as a turning-point in her career), used as a leitmotif for the ghost.

☞ Mana Desam

1949 172' b&w Telugu
d L.V. Prasad pc M.R.A. Prod. sc/dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya
c M.A. Rehman m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Narayana Rao, N.T. Rama Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Vangara, Ramanatha Sastry, C. Krishnaveni, Kanchana, Surabhi Balasaraswathi, Hemalatha, Lakshmikantam, S.V. Ranga Rao

Produced by the actress Krishnaveni, this is a political melodrama about India's freedom struggle. Shobha (Krishnaveni), a critic of the Congress Party, argues with Madhu (Narayana Rao), a supporter, and they fall in love. Both get caught up in repressive police violence and are arrested. When independence is achieved, Madhu develops amnesia as a result of torture by the police, but his memory returns and eventually he marries Shobha. The film included several symbolic scenes including a prostitute and a bottle of liquor in front of a Gandhi portrait while a Nagaiah song bemoans the speed at which India forgot Gandhi's teachings. Remembered mainly as Telugu megastar N.T. Rama Rao's debut as a police inspector, and as singer Ghantasala's first composing assignment. The film relies heavily on Burrakatha and Oggukatha folk forms, introduced here via songwriter Raghavacharya and widely used in the propagandist theatre of the Praja Natya Mandali (see IPTA).

☞ Mangal fera

1949 139' b&w Gujarati
d Ratibhai Punatar pc Ajit Pics st Vaju Kotak sc Ramchandra Thakur c H.S. Kwatra lyr/m Avinash Vyas
lp Nirupa Roy, Dulari, Sarita Devi, Shanti Madhok, Manhar Desai, Babu Raje, Chhagan Romeo, Bhagwandas, Ibrahim, Maruti, Kamlakant, Barkat Virani, Haridas, Popat

Ajit's remake of the Ranjit Studio's Shadi (1941). The physically handicapped Mangal (Desai) is seduced away from his loving wife Shobha (Roy) by Mena (Madhok). Shobha tries to commit suicide. When the well-meaning Chandrika (Dulari) tries to seduce the hero again, Mangal begins to believe that he was trapped into marrying a disabled woman and he returns to Shobha. The film was considered a reform social rather than a melodrama and was seen as a worthy successor of Punatar's previous Gujarati hit, Gunsundari (1948), confirming him as the leading Gujarati director.

☞ Meeth Bhakar

1949 125' b&w Marathi
d/s/lyr Bhalji Pendharkar pc Prabhakar Pics c Ganpat Shinde m Kashalkar lp P. Ratnamala, Jayaram Shiledar, Baburao Pendharkar, Chintamanrao Kolhatkar, Jayaram Desai, R.V. Rane, Chittaranjan Kolhatkar, Omkar Devaskar, Usha Kiron

Pendharkar's ruralist melodrama and murder mystery. Amrit, the son of proud patriarch Tatyaba, who lives with three sons and a daughter-in-law, is accused of a murder in a gambling den. In return for hushing up the matter, the evil owner of the den enslaves the entire family, forcing them to do menial labour. The happiness of the past is contrasted with the family's downfall, for which fate is blamed, until salvation arrives when the murder victim turns out to be still alive. Pendharkar's lyrics intensified the film's sentimentality, e.g. Bhar divasa amhi ek swapna pahila.

☞ Nagakannika

1949 172' b&w Kannada
d G. Vishwanathan p D. Shankar Singh, B. Vittalacharya pc Mahatma Pics dial/lyr Hunsur Krishnamurthy c G. Dorai m Palavangudi Shyama Iyer ☞ Keel ugur ram/Maya Kudhirai aka The Magic Horse

1949 220' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d/p Rajah of Mirzapur pc Vijayalakshmi Movies sc Ch. Narayanamurthy s/dial/lyr Tapi Dharma Rao c D.L. Narayana m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao lp Anjali Devi, A. Nageshwara Rao, T. Kanakam, Suryashree, Lakshmirajyam Jr., Surabhi Kamalabai, Gangarathnam, M. Subbulu, A.V. Subba Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, P. Koteswara Rao, D. Satyanarayana

Folk-tale in which the king, out on a hunt, falls in love with a beautiful woman (Anjali Devi) who turns out to be a rakshasi (demoness). The king insists on marrying her, inviting retribution from his son (Nageshwara Rao) by his first queen. The demoness, who is able to devour elephants and horses, sends the hero, her stepson, on a dangerous journey to fetch a rare herb, hoping he will die in the process. He survives with the aid of a magic flying horse and eventually defeats his stepmother in a savage battle. This is one of noted singer Ghantasala's first films as composer. The Rajah of Mirzapur, proprietor of the Shobhanachala Studio, took directorial credit.

☞ Laila Majnu

1949 171' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d/sc P.S. Ramakrishna Rao pc Bharani Pics
dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya
c B.S. Ranga m C.R. Subburaman
lp P. Bhanumathi, A. Nageshwara Rao, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, K. Siva Rao, Mukkamala Krishnamurthy, Arani Satyanarayana, Lalitha, Padmini, Sriranjani Jr.

The first Telugu version of the classic Sufi legend filmed extensively in Hindi. The rich Laila (Bhanumathi) loves the poor Qais (A. Nageshwara Rao) who is accused of insanity by her family. She is sent to Iraq but, in a reversal of the usually tragic ending, meets lp M. Jayashree, Bellari Ratnamala, B. Raghavendra Rao, U. Mahabala Rao, S.M. Veerabhadrappa, G.R. Sandow, Pratima Devi, Eswarappa

D. Shankar Singh's Mahatma Pics' best-known film is a 'folklore' movie modelled on the Telugu fantasy genre (cf. Patala Bhairavi, 1951). An evil magician indulging in human sacrifices changes his protesting daughter into a parrot. He then changes a yogi's daughter into a snake and wants to sacrifice the king of Mahendrapuri but the hero manages to save the king. Co-producer B. Vittalacharya continued the genre in his Kannada and Telugu films.

Nal I athambi

1949 199' b&w Tamil
d Krishnan-Panju pc Eneskay Pics, Jayanti Ents s C.N. Annadurai lyr Udumalai Narayana Kavi, K.P. Kamakshi
c V. Kumaradevan mus C.R. Subburaman lp N.S. Krishnan, T.A. Mathuram, S.V. Sahasranamam, P. Bhanumathi, Alwar Kuppuswamy, T.K. Kanta, S.R. Janaki, D.V. Narayanswamy, M.N. Rajam

Together with Velaikkari (1949), this key DMK film initiates Annadurai's film career. The zamindar of Swapnapuri bequeaths his property to his daughter Pushpa (Bhanumathi) and his sister's son, the idealist rebel Nallathambi (Krishnan). The villain Bhoopati (Sahasranamam), who planned to marry Pushpa to acquire her land, sows discord between Pushpa and Nallathambi while the latter propagates Annadurai's political programme (e.g. advocating prohibition) and defends the people who are oppressed by the zamindari system. In many ways the most Gandhian of the DMK Films (e.g. on issues like prohibition), the attacks on the zamindari system also indicate the DMK's moves away from the Justice Party. While promoting Krishnan as a star, the film's highlight is a fantasy insert in which Bhanumathi becomes Cleopatra.

Navaj eevanam

1949 172' b&w Tamil
d Kadaru Nagabhushanam pc Shri Rajarajeshwari Prod. s/co-lyr Nagamani co-lyr Kambadasan dia[Ta] Udayakumar c P. Ellappa m S.V. Venkatraman lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Mahadevan, P. Kannamba, Annapurna, Sriram, S. Varalakshmi, Kamala, T.A. Jayalakshmi, Vanaja

Nationalist film contemporaneous with the DMK political film idiom and deploying many Gandhian symbols. It contrasts the benevolent Gandhian playwright Mahadevan (Nagaiah) with his arrogant younger brother Prabhakar (Sriram). When Prabhakar marries the rich Kamala (Kamala) and is entrusted with the estate of his industrialist father-in-law, he becomes an oppressive employer and rejects his brother when Mahadevan argues on the workers' behalf. Kamala surrounds herself with upper-class social engagements, throwing her husband together with his old flame Vanaja. Eventually Kamala and Prabhakar have a change of heart and restore the joint family's feudal collective identity.

Paribar tan

1949 c.130' b&w Bengali
d/sc Satyen Bose pc National Progressive Pics st/dial Manoranjan Ghosh lyr Bimal Ghosh c Ajoy Kar m Salil Choudhury lp Ajit Bose, Shyamal Bose, Dilip Chatterjee, Sova Sen, Satyabrata, Sandhyarani, Satyen Bose

Satyen Bose and (probably) composer Salil Choudhury's debut is a didactic reformist children's film elaborating two enduring themes of Bengali boyhood novels: life at a boarding school and the semi-tragic experience of growing up. Prankster Ajoy is sent away from his widowed mother to school where he learns to respect people from a different class and becomes bosom pals with the handicapped Shakti. The boys' triumphant encounter with the corrupt school superintendent involves the good teacher Sisirbabu (played by director Bose), a nationalist who is popular with all the students except Ajoy. Their feud is eventually called off when Shakti dies in an accident, leaving Ajoy bereft twice over when Sisirbabu also has to leave the school. The producers were known for their nationalist dramas, including Hemen Gupta's Bhuli Naai (1948).

Ponmudi

aka Ethirparatha Mutham
 1949 ? b&w Tamil
d Ellis R. Duncan p Modern Theatres sc/lyr Bharatidasan from his narrative poem Ethirparatha Mutham [Unexpected Kiss]
c J.G. Vijayan m G. Ramanathan lp Narasimhabharati, R. Balasubramanyam, Azhumalai, A. Karunanidhi, Kali N. Rathnam, M.G. Chakrapani, Madhuri Devi, Rajamani, Padmini, Saraswathi, Azhvar Kuppusami, Dhanalakshmi

The story focusses on two Siva Mudaliar families in the business milieu of Kaveripoompattinam. They are landowners and pearl merchants whose families have intermarried. Mananayagan (Kuppusami) and Annam (Saraswathi) have one son, Ponmudi (Bharati), while Chokkalingam (Balasubramanyam) and Vanji (Dhanalakshmi) have a daughter, Poonkothai (Madhuri). The two children have always been promised to each other in marriage, but the arrangement falls through when the two families fall out over a land deal, forcing the young lovers to meet in secret. When they are discovered, Ponmudi is sent to North India on business and Poonkothai runs away from home. The distraught parents make up and send messages to tell their kids that all is well. However, Ponmudi has been captured by tribals and is being prepared as a human sacrifice. The messengers and Poonkothai arrive in time to rescue him. The film's dialogues are in the distinctly Tamil idiom, representing a specific subcultural world.

Raksharekha

1949 168' b&w Telugu
d/p/sc R. Padmanabhan pc R. Padmanabhan Prod. s/lyr Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi
c T. Marconi m Ogirala Ramchandra Rao lp P. Bhanumathi, Anjali Devi, Lakshmirajyam Jr., T. Kankam, Vijayalakshmi, R. Subbamma, Lakshmidevi, Gangarathnam, A. Nageshwara Rao, Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi, K. Siva Rao, Ramnatha Sastry, D. Satyanarayana, Vangara

Costumed fantasy, and a rare joint appearance of Telugu cinema's two best-known female stars, Bhanumathi and Anjali Devi. Kalavathi (Bhanumathi), talented and versatile daughter of the king of Simhala, refuses to marry, as does Sudhakar (A. Nageshwara Rao), prince of the neighbouring kingdom of Avanti. While he is asleep, fairies come and transport him in his bed to Kalavathi's chamber and they fall in love. The celestial damsel Chitra (Anjali Devi), envious of Kalavathi, whisks Sudhakar up to heaven, allowing him to return to earth once a week but threatening that his head will explode into a 1000 pieces if he reveals her existence. When Kalavathi gets pregnant, her husband's disappearances lead to rumours accusing her of infidelity and she is forced to leave the palace. Kidnapped by tribals, she escapes dressed as a man. Another princess, Chandrika, believing Kalavathi to be a man, falls in love with her and marries her. In the end, Chitra throws Sudhakar out of heaven and he lands on earth, petrified into a stone statue. A holy man makes him human again and changes Chitra into a witch. Pattered on an earlier hit, Pullaiah's Gollabhama (1947), the film became a pioneering example of a genre Telugu film critics call 'folklore films'.

Rimj him

1949 144' b&w Hindi
d Ramesh Gupta, Sushil Sahu pc Hindustan Chitra s Kishore Sahu lyr Bharat Vyas, Moti, K. Tripathi c P. Isaac m Khemchand Prakash
lp Kishore Sahu, Ramola, Mubarak, Mohna, Jankidass, Jugnu, Mumtaz Ali

Musical comedy romance about Rammo (Ramola) who, scheduled to marry a fat man she hates, runs away on her wedding day dressed as a man. She meets Kamal who falls in love with her. Later they get married, but the niece of their common employer then declares her love for Kamal, creating a triangle. The film includes several classic Shamshad Begum songs.

Shabnam

1949 154' b&w Hindi
d/sc Bibhuti Mitra pc Filmistan st Helen Devi dial/lyr Qamar Jalalabadi c Marshall Braganza m S.D. Burman lp Dilip Kumar, Kamini Kaushal, Jeevan, Paro, Mubarak, Rajendar Singh, Harun, Shyama, Cuckoo

Filmistan's musical hit also established the reputation of composer S.D. Burman. Heroine Shanti (Kaushal), her aged father and a young man, Manoj (Kumar), are refugees from the 1942 bombing of Rangoon on their way to Bengal. Shanti initially dresses as a man to avoid being molested. When Manoj discovers that she is a woman they fall in love, although he is ensnared by the charms of a gypsy girl (Paro). Shanti accepts shelter from a rich zamindar (Jeevan) who falls in love with her. She next encounters Manoj when the zamindar hosts a gypsy dance: he is part of the troupe but misunderstands her presence in the palace as a betrayal. The film includes the classic Shamshad Begum Yeh duniya roop ki chor, bachale mere babu.

Vel aikkarai

1949 186' (128') b&w Tamil
d/sc A.S.A. Sami p S.K. Moiyuddin, K. Somasundaram pc Jupiter Pics st/dial C.N. Annadurai from his play lyr Udumalai Narayana Kavi c M. Masthan
m C.R. Subburaman, S.M. Subbaiah Naidu lp K.R. Ramaswamy, M.N. Nambiar, T.S. Balaiah, V.N. Janaki, M.V. Rajamma, Ponnuswamy Pillai, Natarajan, Sivanandan, Mustafa, Krishnan, K. Saraswati, Bhagyam, Angamuthu, Radhabai, Lalitha, Padmini,
 D. Balasubramanyam

Taking off from the play by the future chief minister of Tamil Nadu, the film's release coincided with the founding of the party he led, the DMK, and set out its programme in dramatic form. Inspired partially by the actual Bhowal Sanyasi case, the plot tells of Anandan (Ramaswamy) who returns from a tea plantation in Sri Lanka to find his father hanging from a tree, hounded to suicide by a rapacious landlord (Balasubramanyam). He takes revenge with a DMK character called Mani (Baliah). A subplot has the landlord's son (Nambiar) fall in love with the maid Amrita (Rajamma), providing the title as well as opportunities to castigate elitism. The film expounds the DMK's anti-caste and anti-clerical populist ideology with long monologues, flowery language and by showing e.g. a criminal, Harihara Das (Nambiar again) masquerading as a pious leader of an ashram. Sivathamby (1981) commented: 'The rhetoric of Anandan at the temple (of Mariamman) and in the court of law exposed the manner in which the landowners manipulated the entire system to keep themselves in power and authority. The arguments were so radical and heretical that they posed a threat to the very foundations of Tamil rural society.' However, the producers, religious people who only made the film because the play had been a hit, attenuated the atheist thrust and ended the film with a title card affirming 'only one god and only one community'. For his first feature, playwright/scenarist Sami relies heavily on theatrical conventions such as speech to camera, mid-shots and studio settings. The Travancore sisters, Lalitha and Padmini, perform the famous dance number Oridam thanile. Janaki, MGR's wife, who plays the landlord's daughter Sarasa, briefly became chief minister of Tamil Nadu in 1987 and led one of the two AIADMK factions after her husband died.

Afsar

1950 121' b&w Hindi
d/s Chetan Anand pc Navketan st N. Gogol's The Inspector General lyr Vishwamitter Adil, Narendra Sharma c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Suraiya, Ruma Devi, Kanhaiyalal, Rashid, Mohan Segal, Krishna Dhawan, Anand Pal, Zohra Segal, Manmohan Krishna

Chetan Anand's 2nd film (after Neecha Nagar, 1946), launching Navketan, continues his engagement with classic Soviet literature, although a Filmindia review suggested the film was based on the Henry Koster-Danny Kaye version (1949) of Gogol's play. The journalist Kapur (Dev Anand) comes to a village run by corrupt politicians led by the village tehsildar (Kanhaiyalal). They mistake him for a government inspector and treat him like a VIP. The expose of rural politics is intercut with a love story between Kapur and the tehsildar's sister Bimala (Suraiya). The film substantially determined the style, and the key unit, characteristic of Navketan's 50s productions.

Apoorva Sahodarulu see Apoorva Sahodarargal

Babul

1950 142' b&w Hindi
d/p S.U. Sunny pc Sunny Art Prod. s Azm Bazidpuri lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Fali Mistry
m/p Naushad
lp Nargis, Dilip Kumar, Munawar Sultana, Amar, A. Shah, Jankidass, H. Pahadi, Vinod Ismail, Jugnu, Chandrabala, Seema, Meher, Rajbala, Khursheed

Major commercial hit recounting a love triangle in a feudal household between the handsome new postman Ashok (Kumar), Bela (Nargis), the old postman's vivacious daughter and Usha (Sultana), the haughty daughter of the zamindar. Ashok teaches Usha music until Bela warns her to keep away from her man. Usha withdraws and promises to marry a man of her father's choice. One of the most formally elaborate romance dramas of 50s Hindi film, Babul's tragic end forms part of the unusual plot departure of the hero falling in love with a woman who is not the heroine and who, indeed, remains out of sympathy with the audience for the better part of the film. When it turns out that both women have been betrayed by the hero and by their fathers, the film shifts into a completely subjective style, locating the man and two women in three distinct spaces, even separated in one shot by a gigantic wall. In the end, Usha's wedding procession escalates into a whole sequence of tragedies: Bela, in a deranged fit, falls from a tree and is fatally injured, though she insists that Ashok marry her, which he does, minutes before she dies. Her death is shown by a medieval horseman descending from the skies to receive her, as the smoke from her cremation merges with the clouds.

Banwre Nain

1950 138' b&w Hindi
d/sc/co-lyr Kidar Sharma pc Ambitious Pics st Akhtar Mirza c Pandurang K. Shinde m Roshan co-lyr Sharada [Himmat Roy], Vrajendranath Gaud
lp Raj Kapoor, Geeta Bali, Vijayalakshmi, Pesi Patel, Nazira, Cuckoo, Sharada, Banke, Siraj, Prakash, Darpan, Kanta

Extraordinary melodrama distinguished by Geeta Bali's innovative acting. Disinherited Chand (Kapoor) falls in love with village girl Tara (Bali). He leaves for the city promising to return and marry her. Her sister Gangu dies as does her blind mother. She goes to the city to join Chand but Rajani, the woman who was supposed to marry Chand, manages to discredit her and she is mercilessly ejected. Chand marries Rajani while Tara is relegated to join the brass band at the wedding. Rajani dies a horrible death shortly afterwards, confessing to her deceitful action. Chand then goes in search of Tara but he is too late: she is dead. The elaborate plot is perfunctorily wrapped up in the last 15' but the film remains notable for its remarkable camerawork, e.g. in the song Sun bairi balam, Sharma and Shinde extend the use of filters pioneered in Barua's *Devdas (1935) to create black skies over a white earth. There is an unrestrained use of the pathetic fallacy with repeated rain and fire motifs, esp. in the song Teri duniya mein dil lagta nahin, allowing Sharma to merge a romanticised socialist realism with a mawkish presentation of patriarchy at times slipping into cosmic fantasy (e.g. the dead Tara comes alive to help Chand to enter her world). All the registers are ably sustained in Bali's skilful performance. Sharma later claimed to have written all the lyrics himself.

Munawar Sultana in Babul

Chinnamul

aka The Uprooted
1950 117' b&w Bengali
d/c Nemai Ghosh pc Desha Pics
s/lyr Swarnakamal Bhattacharya m Kalabaran Das lp Prematosh Roy, Gangapada Basu, Sovo Sen, Shanta Devi, Shanti Mitra, Sushil Sen, Jalad Chatterjee, Bijon Bhattacharya, Ritwik Ghatak

This seminal film in the evolution of Bengali cinematic realism tells of a large group of farmers from East Bengal who, on Partition, have to migrate to Calcutta. Made with IPTA support, the film used several people from refugee camps to represent their fictional equivalents. Its two legendary highlights are the scene of the old woman clinging to the doorpost of her ancestral house, refusing to leave, and the arrival of the peasants at Sealdah station amid thousands of real refugees living on the pavement. Other remarkable scenes include the long train journey, cut to the rocking movement of the passengers as they try to sleep or stand in the crowd. Despite its strong documentary overtones with people enacting their actual experiences (including the old woman), it is the folk-derived IPTA acting style that sets the tone, punctuated by tight close-ups, usually of the hero (Roy), the only politically aware member of the group, who looks for his community on Calcutta's streets. The film came to exemplify realism as consisting, in Ghosh's words, six different principles: no professional actors, no make-up (except whiskers), no out-takes, no songs, concealed camera on all occasions, and dialogue with a strongly regional dialect. Early commentators (including Mrinal Sen, writing in Parichay) criticised the film for its narrative and stylistic incoherence, although it is much closer to the spirit of IPTA's famed stage production of Nabanna than IPTA's own film version of that play, Dharti Ke Lal (1946). Gangapada Basu, who plays the leader of the group, had acted in the original play, and went on to do notable roles in Jalsaghar (1958) and Kanchan Ranga (1964). The film was made under trying conditions, including police harassment (e.g. the script was seized following a court order). Post-production censorship imposed some compromises and the film was released only following the intervention of New Theatres' B.N. Sircar. It was a commercial failure but recovered its costs when the USSR bought it on Pudovkin's recommendation (cf. his long essay in Pravda, 6.12.1951), where it was dubbed and retitled Obejdolni. This was Ghatak's first extended encounter with cinema, functioning as actor and assistant director. According to Ghosh, Satyajit Ray, then an art director with an advertising agency, informally contributed to the initial screenplay.

Dahej

1950 149' b&w Hindi
d V. Shantaram pc Rajkamal Kalamandir
s/lyr Shams Lucknowi c V. Avadhoot m Vasant Desai lp Jayashree, Prithviraj Kapoor, Karan Dewan, Lalita Pawar, Ulhas, Keshavrao Date

Melodrama about the oppressive consequences of the dowry custom. Chanda (Jayashree), the daughter of the thakur (Kapoor), is to marry Suraj (Dewan) but his greedy mother (Pawar) demands more money than the thakur can afford. Chanda is tormented and eventually expelled from the house while Suraj is forced into a second and more lucrative alliance. In a comic and expressionist end, Chanda and Suraj die in each other's arms, even as the dowry - which the thakur has raised after selling all his property - arrives at the doorstep.

Dastaan

1950 122' b&w Hindi
d A.R. Kardar pc Musical Pics st S.N. Bannerjee dial Prem Bannerjee, Jagdish Kanwal lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Dwarka Divecha m Naushad lp Raj Kapoor, Suraiya, Suresh, Al Nasir, S.N. Bannerjee, Pratima Devi, Murad, Lakshman, Surinder, Shakila, Baby Anwari, Veena, Sapru

Melodrama told in flashback about the sexually repressed Rani (Veena) whose life is caught between two historical moments and ends up causing grief to all who knew her. The orphaned Indira (Suraiya) is adopted by the wealthy colonial (Sapru) and becomes a companion to his sons Raj (Kapoor) and Kundan (Nasir) but she is hated by Rani, the household's eldest daughter. Both Raj and Kundan fall in love with Indira, but Rani gets her married to the foreign-returned Ramesh (Suresh) and later causes a rift between the two brothers, resulting in Raj suffering a major accident and indirectly leading to Indira's death. The film starts with Rani's own death, after 25 years of isolation. Her character is placed historically between colonial domination (represented by the father) and independent capitalism's rule with its continuation of traditional patriarchy. She is represented as surrounded by infantile men and logically negative about marriage. Suraiya sang all the nine songs in the film, including the very popular duet Tara ri yara ri (with Mohammed Rafi).

Divadandi

aka The Lighthouse
1950 123' b&w Gujarati

d Balwant Bhatt pc Neelam Films st/co-lyr Chandravadan Mehta sc Ramnik Vaid dial/co-lyr 'Befaaam' co-lyr Venibhai Purohit, Balmukund Dave c Haren Batt m Ajit Merchant, Dilip Kumar lp Nandini, Arvind Pandya, Baburaje, Charubala, Kamalakant, Lohana

The film's lead Kano (Pandya) is raised by his foster-father, the sailor Lakhu Malam (Kamalakant), who also teaches him sailing, to the envy of Lakhu's biological son Kavli (Baburaje). When Kano falls for the girl Motan (Nandini), Kavli forces Kano into becoming an opium addict. Kavli kidnaps Motan, but he is challenged and eventually killed by his father. The father, in the film's contemplative end, is condemned, as part of his penal service, to looking after an old lighthouse. The film was noted mainly for its music, and for introducing the well known lyricist Purohit, who wrote the song hit Taro aankhno Aafini. It was shot entirely at the Bet Dwarka harbour in Saurashtra, an important pilgrimage place for Vaishnavas, and uses the locally assembled traditional wooden sailing ships in its action sequences.

Ezhai Padum Padu/Beedal a Patlu

aka The Plight of the Poor aka Les Miserables 1950 197'[Ta]/194'[Te] b&w Tamil/Telugu
d K. Ramnoth pc Pakshiraja Studios sc Sadananda Bharathi, Jawar Seetaraman st Victor Hugo's Les Miserables dial[Ta] Elangovan lyr V.A. Gopalakrishnan[Ta], Arudra[Te] c N. Prakash m S.M. Subbaiah Naidu lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Serukalathur Sama, Jawar Seetaraman, T.S. Balaiah, T.S. Dorairaj, Lalitha, Padmini, M.N. Rajam, V. Gopi

Extraordinary melodrama held together by Nagaiah's best-known film performance. This version of Sadanand Bharathi's Tamil translation of Hugo's novel (remade, unacknowledged, as Gnana Oli, 1972), opens with the petty thief Kandan (Nagaiah) in jail. He escapes and is rearrested by Inspector Javert (Seetaraman). Kandan's niece (N. Rajam) is abandoned by her husband (Balaiah) while pregnant, and joins a travelling circus after leaving her child with her wicked foster parents. When released, Kandan is reformed by the kind action of a Christian priest, Sadhu Uthaman, becomes a successful glass manufacturer and, after changing his name, is elected the town's mayor. Kandan's past catches up with him when Inspector Javert is posted to the town and intends exposing him. During an Independence struggle incident, Kandan rescues Javert and the inspector commits suicide, caught in the dilemma of having to work for an imperialist police force but being indebted to a former criminal. The film is dominated by Nagaiah, inviting comparisons with Paul Muni, and by the stage actor and co-scenarist Seetaraman, who became known as Javert (aka Jawar) Seetaraman for the rest of his career. Much of it is shot with heavy expressionist lighting, esp. the jail sequences as the inspector's presence is announced by the sound of stomping boots. The visual effect was extended by Elangovan's dialogue.

✿ Gadano Bel

1950 123' b&w Gujarati

d Ratibhai Punatar pc Ajit Pics st Prabhulal Dwivedi's play sc Ramchandra Thakur
c M.G. Jadhav lyr/m Avinash Vyas lp Nirupa Roy, Dulari, Charubala, Lila Kurle, Hirabai, Maya Devi, Manhar Desai, Baburaje, Chhagan Romeo, Ramlal, Banke Bihari, Champak Lala, Bhogilal, Ramesh, Girish, Nityananda Ghosh

Realist Gujarati reform social adapting a noted play first staged by the nationalist Desh Natak Samaj. When the head of a family, who is also the main breadwinner, dies of overwork, the joint family disintegrates as the in-laws leave with whatever they can appropriate. Eventually, after the house has been auctioned, the three family members left behind are supposed to put their faith in god.

✿ Har Har Mahadev

1950 137' b&w Hindi

d/p Jayant Desai st Bachubhai Shukla dial Pandit Anuj lyr Ramesh Sastry, Saraswati Kumar Deepak c Saju Naik m Avinash Vyas
lp Nirupa Roy, Trilok Kapoor, Shanta Kumar, Jeevan, Kanta Kumari, Mishra, Meenakshi, Niranjan Sharma

Major mythological hit and Nirupa Roy's best-known film in the genre. King of demons Tarakasur invades the land of the gods to avenge the insult meted out to his mother by Indra. His victory leads to a declaration that he is now king of the cosmos, an imbalance that may only be righted by Shiva (Kapoor). Kama, god of love, is sent to awaken Shiva from his eternal meditation, but gets burnt to ashes. Shiva can only be propitiated by Uma (Roy), daughter of the Himalayas, through an act of penance that leads to Shiva accepting her as his consort.

✿ Jogan

1950 116' b&w Hindi

d Kidar Sharma pc Ranjit co-lyr Mirabai, Pandit Indra, Butaram Sharma, Himmatrai Sharma c D.C. Mehta m Bulo C. Rani lp Nargis, Dilip Kumar, Pratima Devi, Pesi Patel, Purnima, Baby Tabassum, Anwari, Ramesh Thakur, Durpan, Rajendra Kumar

The title refers to religious female mendicants, whose best-known example continues to be the 16th-C. saint poet Meerabai. One of Sharma's most emotionally charged melodramas, it features Surabhi (Nargis), a mendicant whose song by Meerabai Ghunghat ke pat khole re (sung by Geeta Dutt) attracts the atheist Vijay (D. Kumar). Despite her protestations, he keeps following her and she eventually tells him how she escaped her debt-ridden father and alcoholic brother who wanted her to marry an old man; she ran away to die and renounced her earlier life. When she leaves, she tells Vijay not to follow her beyond a particular tree. Later, another jogan arrives, meets Vijay by the tree and gives him a book, saying that Surabhi had entrusted her, before she died, with the task of giving it to a man who would be waiting by a tree. The film has several other Meera bhajans sung by Geeta Dutt which became some of her early hit songs. Bulo C. Rani's most famous film score, assisting an innovative soundtrack incl. voiceovers and monologues, with the songs often set to twilight effects, chiaroscuro and flickering lights.

✿ Manthiri Kumari

aka The Minister's Daughter

1950 173' (167') b&w Tamil

d Ellis R. Duncan, T.R. Sundaram
pc Modern Theatres s M. Karunanidhi based on Kundalakesi lyr A. Marudakasi, K.M. Sharif c J.G. Vijayan m G. Ramanathan

lp M.G. Ramachandran, S.A. Natarajan, M.N. Nambiar, A. Karunanidhi, Madhuri Devi, G. Shakuntala, T.P. Muthulakshmi, Lalitha, Padmini, Ragini, C.V. Nayakan, K.V. Srinivasan

One of the most popular Tamil films of the decade, continuing the post-Velaikkari (1949) engagement of top DMK personnel with cinema, scenarist Karunanidhi and star MGR. Shot near Salem in the hill resort of Yercaud, the film is based on an 8th-C. Tamil literary epic, a Buddhist text that, according to Mu. Varadarajan (1988), was a Buddhist propaganda work reflecting the rivalry between Buddhists and Jains in the 1st millennium AD. The original story, of which only 28 verses still exist, tells of a woman from the vaisya caste, a Jain by birth, who kills her husband when he tries to murder her, and is eventually converted to Buddhism. While using its historical and literary references mainly as an authenticating force, the film replaces the Jain context with the Brahmin caste in line with DMK policy. Parthiban (Natarajan), the son of an imbecilic king's royal priest (Nambiar), is committed to the art of banditry while wearing a Batman-type mask to discredit Veeramohan (MGR), a loyal general and lover of Princess Jeeva (Shakuntala). The minister's daughter is Amudavalli (Madhuri) who tries to reform the treacherous son, marries but ends up killing him in self-defence. The nasty priest then kills her at the durbar. The songs proved enduring, esp. Vaarai...vaarai sung by Trichy Loganathan for Parthiban as he leads Amudavalli to a hilltop to kill her. It is also a landmark in playback singer T.M. Soundararajan's long career. Master Subbaiah, the teenage prodigy who died young, sings a song and appears briefly as a cowherd. The film also launched the enduring image of the famous screen villain Nambiar. Madhuri Devi provides the best performance as a sword-wielding, independently minded heroine who kills her own husband.

✿ Mashaal/Samar

1950 136' b&w Hindi/Bengali

d Nitin Bose pc Bombay Talkies st Bankimchandra Chattopadhyay sc Sajanikanta Das dial[H] Sudarshan lyr[H] Pradeep c Radhu Karmakar m S.D. Burman, Manna Dey lp Ashok Kumar, Sumitra Devi, Ruma Ganguly, Kanu Roy, Moni Chatterjee, Krishnakant

Based on Bankimchandra's novel Rajani (1877), this romance addresses property rights. Samar (Kumar) and Tarangini (Sumitra Devi) are childhood lovers. Samar feels betrayed when she obeys her father's decision and marries a wealthy zamindar. When Samar becomes a successful lawyer, he tries to take revenge on Tarangini and marries a blind flower-girl who, he discovers, owns the property on which the zamindar has built his fortune. The plot is complicated by the fact that the blind girl loves Jatin, the zamindar's son.

✿ Michael Madhusudhan

1950 c.145' b&w Bengali

d/s Modhu Bose pc I.N.A. Pics lyr Pranab Roy c G.K. Mehta m Chitta Roy

Nargis and Dilip Kumar in Jogan

lp Utpal Dutt, Molina Devi, Ahindra Choudhury, Debjani, Miss Grace

Biopic of Michael Madhusudhan Dutt (1824-73), a major and colourful Bengali poet. Regarded as the founder of the modern Bengali theatre with his plays Sarmistha (1858), staged by the Belgachia Theatre, followed by Krishna Kumari, the farce Ekey Ki Bole Sabhyata etc. A student at the Hindu College, he wrote his first poems in English (e.g. the narrative poem Captive Ladie, 1849). He later wrote the epic Meghnadbad Kavya (1861), the Homeric epic in blank verse Tilottama Sambhab Kavya (1860), the Radha and Krishna love story, Brajangana (1861) and Birangana (1862). Two stage biographicals precede the film: one by Netai Bhattacharya (1943) with the great Sisir Bhaduri playing the poet, the other by Mahendra Gupta (1942) featuring Ahindra Choudhury in the lead. Following Banaphool's popular play, the film depicts the poet as a romantic rebel and chronicles the high points of his adventure-laden career: his baptism, his romance and marriage to the Frenchwoman Emilia Henrietta, and his tragic death. Most notable for Utpal Dutt's remarkable screen debut as the poet, including several recitations of poetry. Dutt, often credited with having renovated acting in Bengali theatre and film, went on to identify himself with Michael Madhusudhan (cf. his play Danrao Pathikbar, 1980, harking back to the film's iconography). The popular genre of screen biographicals was continued by Bose in Bireswar Vivekananda (1964), Bijoy Basu's Raja Rammohun (1965) and Piyush Bose's Subhashchandra (1966).

Venkatramaiah, Nalla Ramamurthy, Kanakam, D. Hemalatha, Girija

Comedy portraying two bumbling disciples of the eccentric philosopher Paramanandayya (Anjaneyulu). Into this standard folk narrative, scenarist Tapi Dharma Rao weaves a Shakespearean court intrigue while conveying his political concerns in lines like 'It is better to starve than to rob others' and in satirical attacks on political opportunism. Nageshwara Rao and Lakshmirajyam played the romantic leads.

Pathe Bapurao

1950 143' b&w Marathi
d Raja Nene pc Raja Nene Prod.
p R.C. Jobanputra s/lyr D.K. Kane c Dolly Daruwala m Vasant Pawar lp Ranjana, Raja Nene, Shashikala, Jawdekar, Manjrekar, Chandu Gokhale, Govindaswamy Aphale, Vatsalabai, Indirabai

Former Prabhat Studio director/actor Nene's best-known film is a biopic of Pathe Bapurao (Nene), Maharashtra's famous composer and author of the folk-classical lavani musical form. He is shown as an upper-caste schoolteacher, absorbed in a musical genre practised by lower-caste people. He partners the dancer Pavala (Ranjana) and together, after many hardships, they popularise the dance-music form throughout the region. Beginning with the typical Tamasha invocation to Ganesh (Shubhamangali charana gana nachala), the musical has several hit numbers from the lavani tradition as well as Kane's originals.

the Western genre. This melodrama, more intimate than some of Patil's later work, features good elder brother Shripati who sends younger brother Jaisingh to his uncle to study English. The wily uncle encourages Jaisingh's affair with his daughter, and she becomes pregnant. Shripati arranges for the two to marry, but the uncle causes a rift between the brothers, causing Shripati and his wife to be evicted from their own home. Jaisingh falls prey to several vices while his uncle takes over the family property, but eventually he makes up with his brother. Lata Mangeshkar, making her debut as composer, scored some melodious tunes, esp. Bara gava majhya sathi jhurati.

Samadhi

1950 165' b&w Hindi
d/s Ramesh Saigal pc Filmistan lyr Rajinder Krishen c K.H. Kapadia m C. Ramchandra lp Ashok Kumar, Nalini Jaywant, Shyam, Kuldeep Kaur, Mubarak, Shashi Kapoor

Patriotic drama addressing Subhash Chandra Bose and the Indian National Army. Following Bose's call on Indian youth to join in the anti-imperialist front, Shekhar (Kumar) abandons his wealth to join the INA. In Singapore his elder brother Suresh (Shyam), who is a captain in the British army, has to collaborate with a British spy ring headed by Boss (Mubarak) and the dancer Dolly (Kaur). Shekhar falls in love with Lily (Jaywant), Dolly's sister. Boss uses this to infiltrate the INA's intelligence. In the war, the two brothers face each other and Shekhar is left for dead. He nevertheless makes it back alive and rounds up the British spies. Shekhar eventually dies in an operation to blow up a bridge on the India-Burma border. The film, which Filmindia (May, 1950) described as politically obsolete since India had already achieved independence, included the C. Ramchandra hit Gore gore o banke chhore (sung by Lata Mangeshkar and Amirbai Karnataki) praising Bose, Subhash Chandra ke naam se Hindustan ka naam, as well as the socialist-realist marching song Kadam kadam badhaye ja (both sung by the composer).

Nal Iathanka

aka The Good Sister
 1950 c.165' b&w Malayalam
d P.V. Krishna Iyer p K.V. Koshy, Kunchako
pc K&K Prod. s Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai
c A. Shanmugham, P.K. Madhavan Nair
m V. Dakshinamurthy, Rama Rao lp Augustine Joseph, Vaikkom Moni, Miss Kumari, Omana, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, S.P. Pillai, Matheppan, Joseph Mulawana, Jagadamma, Thankamma, Joy Poonnuran, Balakrishna Pillai, Pallam Joseph, Baby Girija

Melodrama adapting the legend of Nallathanka (aka Nallathangal in Tamil), a pivotal reference in Parasakthi (1952). The king's sister marries the king of another land and bears him seven children. When drought strikes, she has to appeal to her brother and face the humiliation of an envious sister-in-law. The high point in this melodrama comes when the sister tries to kill herself and all her children by throwing them into a well. The film was a major K&K hit, encouraging Malayalam distributors to give more time to films from their own state.

Pudhcha Paool

1950 135' b&w Marathi
d Raja Paranjpe pc Manik Studio st Venkatesh Madgulkar s/lyr G.D. Madgulkar
c I. Mohammed m Sudhir Phadke
lp Hansa Wadkar, P.L. Deshpande, G.D. Madgulkar, Kusum Deshpande, Vivek, Mohammed Hussain, D.S. Ambapkar, Bal Chitale, Raja Paranjpe, Shakuntala Jadhav, Suman, Ravindra, Baby Neela

Raja Paranjpe's directorial breakthrough features the famous Marathi humourist, playwright and stage star P.L. Deshpande. Krishna (Deshpande) goes to the city looking for work and promptly falls for the folk Tamasha dancer Mogri (Wadkar). She is presented as a gold-digger, as the hero eventually realises after he is beaten up. Paranjpe, writer Madgulkar and composer Phadke became an established team.

Samsaram

1950 219' b&w Telugu
d L.V. Prasad pc Sadhana Pics st/dial/co-lyr Sadasiva Brahmam co-lyr K.G. Sharma c M.A. Rehman, B. Subba Rao m S. Dakshinamurthy lp N.T. Rama Rao, A. Nageshwara Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Nalla Ramamurthy, Doraiswamy, Lakshmirajyam, Surabhi Balasaraswathi, Suryakantam, Bezwada Kantamma, Pushpalatha, Savitri

A major melodrama hit about the fragmentation of a joint family made in the same year as Prasad's seminal Shavukaru. After their joint appearance in Palletoori Pilla, also 1950, Telugu cinema's two best-known stars, N.T. Rama Rao and A. Nageshwara Rao, again teamed up for this story about a middle-class government clerk Raghu (NTR), living happily with his wife Manjula (Lakshmirajyam), until his scheming mother Venkamma, his sister Kamakshi (Balasaraswathi) and her cowardly

Paramanandayya Shishyul a Katha

1950 c.200' b&w Telugu
d/s K. Siva Rao pc Allied Prod. lyr Tapi Dharma Rao c B. Subba Rao m Ogirala Ramchandra Rao, S. Dakshinamurthy lp C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, A. Nageshwara Rao, Lakshmirajyam, K. Siva Rao, Relangi

Ram Ram Pahuna

1950 122' b&w Marathi
d/s Dinkar D. Patil pc Uday Kala Chitra lyr P. Sawalram, Shanta Shelke c Shankar Savekar m Lata Mangeshkar lp Damuanna Malvankar, Chandrakant, Baburao Athane, Ratnamala, Kusum Deshpande, Madhu Bhosle, Shakuntala Bhome, Susheela Devi, Kusum Sukhtankar

The first solo film by Maharashtra's best-known exponent of the 'gramin chitrapat' genre set in a Maharashtrian village frontier area evoking husband (Venkatramaiah) move into his house. Venkamma appropriates all of Raghu's earnings and Kamakshi plots to have Manjula blamed for all that goes wrong in the household. Raghu, unable to pay his pregnant wife's medical fees, loses his job and abandons his family. His brother Venu (Nageshwara Rao), a flirt who lives off his girlfriend Kamala (Pushpalata) and her rich father, eventually traces Raghu and finds him a job as a porter in a mill. Venu also manages to reunite the family. The film borrows the popular Tamil cinema convention of introducing a comic duo (here Venkatramaiah and Suryakantam) into the melodrama.

Telugu melodrama in which e.g. Ghantasala's 'rooted' music (the song Palukaradate chiluka) and Chakrapani's script marked a 'realist' departure from the pre-WW2 reform sagas. More importantly, this is the debut production of Vijaya Studios, demarcating itself from the earlier Vauhini style. Chakrapani's script was later serialised in the journal Vijayachitra owned by the studio. Actress 'Sowcar' Janaki makes her film debut here. She appended the film's title to her name from then on.

(Anjali Devi) falls in love with an earthly prince (Nageshwara Rao) and keeps entering his dreams. He stays awake one night in order to capture her, but she is entrapped by a magician (Mukkamala). The hero goes in search of her and rescues her after another woman (from earth, Varalakshmi) sacrifices her life. Both Anjali Devi and Varalakshmi, in the prime of their careers, give highly entertaining performances, which, with the dance compositions of Vedantam Raghavaiah and R. Balasaraswathi's songs (as playback for Anjali Devi), comprise this hit's major attractions. Varalakshmi's Nee sari neevene number was, in the words of V.A.K. Ranga Rao, a 'sexy delight'.

Sangram

1950 139' b&w Hindi
d/s Gyan Mukherjee pc Bombay Talkies, Sargam Pics Unit dial/co-lyr Vrajendra Gaud co-lyr P.L. Santoshi, Raza Mehdi c Josef Wirsching m C. Ramchandra lp Ashok Kumar, Nalini Jaywant, Nawab, Tiwari, Sajjan, Ramsingh, Kumud, Bina Paul, Indumati, Baby Tabassum, Shashi Raj

A cop father against criminal son crime drama made in the Indian variant of the film noir style launched by Mukherjee's megahit Kismet (1943). Kunwar (Ashok Kumar) takes to gambling and gets involved in bad company in spite of his father (Nawab) being a policeman. Although Kunwar is reformed by his gentle betrothed (Jaywant), his past catches up with him in the form of his former crooked sidekick. In the end, Kunwar escapes from jail to avenge the betrayal of a man who was supposedly on the right side of the law, and his father faces him with a gun, torn between his responsibilities as a parent and as a cop. An unusually violent crime film for its time with the hero playing the villain.

Shavukaru

1950 177' b&w Telugu
d/sc L.V. Prasad pc Vijaya co-p B. Nagi Reddy co-p/st/dial Chakrapani lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya c Marcus Bartley m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao lp Sowcar Janaki, N.T. Rama Rao, Govindrajulu Subba Rao, S.V. Ranga Rao, Srivastava, Shantakumari, T. Kanakam, Seeta, Baby Bhanu, V. Sivaram, Vangara, Joga Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah

Successful ruralist melodrama and a drawn out version of the Bombay Talkies dramas of Ashok Kumar and Leela Chitnis. Satyam (NTR), the son of the moneylender Chengaiah (Subba Rao), is supposed to marry the daughter, Subbulu (Janaki), of his neighbour, the farmer and village elder Ramaiah (Srivastava). Problems arise and villainies are perpetrated until both men's sons find themselves together in jail. Chengaiah then has a change of heart, the main villain, his helper Rangadu (Ranga Rao), is caught and the village is united again. The film, later remade as Enga Veetu Penn (1965), begins with a folk Harikatha performance, making a lyrical comment on the theme of miserliness as a social evil. NTR's debut as leading man is often seen as launching a second generation of

Sheesh Mahal

1950 144' b&w Hindi
d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone
st Hakim Ahmed Shuja co-sc Munshi Abdul Baqui co-sc/co-lyr Shams Lucknowi co-lyr Hakim Panipatti c M. Malhotra m Vasant Desai lp Sohrab Modi, Naseem Banu, Pushpa Hans, Nigar Sultana, Mubarak, Pran

Modi's big-budget commentary on decaying feudal aristocracy. Old patriarch Jaspal Singh (Modi) lives in the Sheesh Mahal (Palace of Mirrors) and believes only in aristocratic lineage, scorning capitalist enterprise. His contempt for money makes him an easy victim for a moneylender and he eventually has to sell his palace to a labourer turned millionaire, Durgaprasad (Mubarak) while himself turning into a worker to survive. The film contrasts Jaspal Singh's feudal ambitions for his daughters, against what he sees as treacherous bourgeois values, but which are also the only values that come to his aid in the form of Durgaprasad.

Swapna Sundari

1950 173' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d/s Ghantasala Balaramaiah pc Pratibha Pics dial/lyr[Te] Samudrala Raghavacharya dia/[Ta] Sakshi lyr[Ta] Ramaiah Doss c P. Sridhar m C.R. Subburaman lp G. Varalakshmi, Anjali Devi, A. Nageshwara Rao, K. Siva Rao, K. Mukkamala, Surabhi Balasaraswathi

'Folklore' fantasy in which a heavenly damsel

Tathapi

1950 122' b&w Bengali
d Manoj Bhattacharya pc Chhabi-o-Bani st Swarnakamal Bhattacharya sc Bimal Roy lyr Rabindranath Tagore, Atul Sen, Shyamal Gupta c Jayantilal Jani m Rabin Roy lp Pronoti Ghosh, Sunil Dasgupta, Sova Sen, Bijon Bhattacharya, Manoranjan Bhattacharya, Prabhadevi, Sudipta Roy, Ritwik Ghatak

A film remembered mainly for introducing several key Bengal IPTA figures to the cinema, including Ghatak. Although scripted by Bimal Roy from a story by noted leftist writer Swarnakamal Bhattacharya, the film stands at a tangent from the radical realist initiative launched by Roy's Udayer Pathay (1944) and which culminated in Nemai Ghosh's Chinnamul (1950). The plot has a mute heroine (a novelty at the time) named Kalyani (Ghosh, in her debut). Hero Pranabesh (Dasgupta) is tricked into marrying her and insists on continuing to meet his lover Sujata. A rather ugly encounter leads to Kalyani being injured and returning to her village. The hero, having a change of heart, saves Kalyani from committing suicide and brings her back home. Contemporary reviews in Chitrabani and Rupamancha commend the film's sensitive portrayal of psychological changes and its refreshingly untheatrical observation of life. Bimal Roy apparently supervised the direction of this film.

Pronoti Ghosh (right) in Tathapi

Afsana

1951 168' b&w Hindi

d B.R. Chopra pc Shri Gopal Pics s I.S. Johar lyr Asad Bhopali, Chander c Rajendra Malone
m Husnlal-Bhagatram
lp Ashok Kumar, Veena Kumari, Kuldeep Kaur, Pran, Jeevan, Cuckoo, Baby Tabassum, Ratan Kumar, Madan Jamoora, Chaman Puri, Narmada Shankar, Wajid Khan, Uma Dutt, Prem Kohli

Chopra's debut is a story about identical twin brothers, Ratan and Chaman (A. Kumar), separated in childhood. Ratan, raised in an orphanage, grows up to become a noted magistrate. Chaman inherits the family wealth and becomes an arrogant playboy. The two meet as adults when Chaman is on the run, falsely accused of murder. Chaman gets away by impersonating Ratan and when he dies in a car crash everybody believes it is Ratan who is dead. Ratan, whose wife (Kaur) has an affair with his friend Mohan (Pran), wakes up from a drugged sleep to find himself regarded as Chaman. Eventually his memory returns through the help of childhood sweetheart Meera (Veena) and happiness follows upon his fickle wife's suicide and her lover's financial ruin. Continuing Ashok Kumar's association with the crime movie genre, newcomer Chopra's direction was extensively commended.

in love. The love story is intercut with tragedy in his home, the death of his mother (Pratima Devi), estrangement from his father (Badri Prasad) and the villainy of his brother-in-law (Nihal). The film's highlights are the dances and C. Ramchandra's hit songs Shola jo bhadke (set to flickering light and Hawaiian dance choreography), Bholi surat and Shyam dhale, all sung by the composer with Lata Mangeshkar. Bhagwan apparently sold the film's rights cheaply after its initial run and its successful 90s re-release did nothing to benefit its impecunious maker.

Amar Bhoopali

aka Kavi Honaji Bala

1951 136' b&w Marathi

d/p V. Shantaram pc Rajkamal Kalamandir
st/dial C.Y. Marathe sc Vishram Bedekar lyr Honaji Bala, Shahir Amar Sheikh c G. Balkrishna m Vasant Desai lp Panditrao Nagarkar, Sandhya, Lalita Pawar, Bhalchandra Pendharkar, Vishwas, Gulab, Jayarampant, Nimbalkar, Amina, Bandopant Sohoni

Shantaram's hit musical biopic of Honaji Bala (played by Marathi stage star Nagarkar), a legendary Marathi poet from the Gawali caste in the last years of the Pune Peshwai. Known mainly for having popularised the musical dance form of the lavani in Maharashtra and esp. for his classic composition Ghanashyam sundara shirdhara, addressing a new dawn in the morning raga Bhoop. The piece later acquired revolutionary associations alluded to in the film's anti-British discourse. Set in the Pune-based Maratha empire just before it succumbed to the British, the story shows the poet's involvement with lavani music, which the film associates with prostitutes, winning recognition when the peshwa's wife at the Pune court gives him an award for his Bhoop composition. His love life with Tamasha dancer (Sandhya in her debut) is intercut with the Maratha wars against the British, his music spurring on the soldiers. Shantaram contrasts Honaji's erotic and militant poetry with the prevailing 'decadent' brahminical effusions. Replete with Shantaram-type calendar art compositions (when pigeons descend around Sandhya's body in the forest) the film ends like a mythological, showing the infant Krishna and Yashoda, when his Ghanashyam composition is immortalised. Additional songs were written by the radical poet and performer Amar Sheikh, associated with the militant powada form and with the IPTA's left wing in Maharashtra.

Andolan

aka Our Struggle

1951 146' b&w Hindi

d Phani Majumdar pc Motwane co-st/sc Krishan Chander co-st Sudhir Sen lyr Indivar, Niaz Haidar c Roque M. Layton
m Pannalal Ghosh lp Shivraj, Kishore Kumar, Manju, Pushpa, Sushama, Parashuram, Tiwari Jr., Shekhar, Bhojwani, Sharad, Malhotra, Krishnakant

Agni Pareeksha

1951 181' b&w Telugu

d P. Manikyam pc Sarathi Films s Tapi Dharma Rao lyr K.G. Sharma c B. Subba Rao
m Galipenchala Narasimha Rao
lp Kalyanam Raghuramaiah, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, K. Siva Rao, Lakshmirajyam, Malathi, Lakshmikantam, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Kanakam, Gangarathnam, Suryakantam

Melodrama suggesting a slight modernisation of the devoted wife stereotype in order to refurbish feudal patriarchal values. Heroine Sushila (Lakshmirajyam) loses her husband Kumaravarma (Anjaneyulu) to the charms of the prostitute Kalavati (Lakshmikantam) and fails in her attempt to commit suicide. Sushila then sets out to seduce her husband back. In doing so, it is she rather than he who faces accusations of sexual infidelity and has to undergo a trial by fire to prove her chastity.

Agradoot made a version of the story in 1954.

Al bel a

1951 158' b&w Hindi

d/p/s Master Bhagwan pc Bhagwan Art Prod. dial Ehsan Rizvi lyr Rajinder Krishen c Shankar A. Palav m C. Ramchandra lp Geeta Bali, Master Bhagwan, Badri Prasad, Pratima Devi, Bimala, Nihal, Dulari, Sunder, Usha Shukla

A musical hit and Bhagwan's most successful film as producer and director. A dispatch clerk (Bhagwan) dreams of becoming a stage star. His success as singer and dancer is aided by the reigning star Asha (Bali) with whom he falls

A stridently nationalistic story of India's freedom struggle, presented through the experiences of a Bengali family from 1885, when the Indian National Congress was established, to 1947. Important events incorporated into the plot were Gandhi's satyagraha (1920), the Simon Commission (1928), Vallabhbhai Patel's Bardoli satyagraha (1928) and the 1942 Quit India agitations. Krishan Chander's script, Sachin Shankar's choreography and the acting styles owed much to the IPTA theatre of the 40s. The film, made at Bombay Talkies, was produced by the distributors of the Chicago Radio PA systems label. Kishore Kumar plays the militant hero of this quasi-documentary. Motwane included old documentary footage purchased from Kohinoor and Krishna Film, as well as a shot of Rabindranath Tagore singing his Jana Gana Mana composition, one of India's national anthems (Arunkumar Roy's Of Tagore and Cinema, 1994, traces this footage to Ufa, shot when Tagore visited Munich).

Awar a

aka The Tramp aka The Vagabond

1951 193' (170') (82') b&w Hindi

d/p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films co-st/sc/dial K.A. Abbas co-st V.P. Sathe lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Shailendra c Radhu Karmakar m Shankar-Jaikishen lp Raj Kapoor, Nargis, Prithviraj Kapoor, Leela Chitnis, K.N. Singh, Shashi Kapoor, Cuckoo, Leela Mishra, Baby Zubeida, Honey O'Brien

Having built his own studio at Chembur in Bombay with the profits of Barsaat (1949), Kapoor launched his most famous film, collaborating with the unit most closely associated with his work: scenarists Abbas and Sathe, song-writers Shailendra and Hasrat, art director Achrekar, cameraman Karmakar and composers Shankar-Jaikishen. Set in Bombay, the plot concerns Raju (Kapoor), the estranged son of Judge Raghunath (P. Kapoor), who finds a surrogate father in the criminal Jagga (Singh), the dacoit who caused Raju's mother (Chitnis) to be thrown out of her home. Raju eventually kills Jagga and tries to kill Raghunath, before he redeems himself in the eyes of the judge and wins the love of his childhood sweetheart, Rita (Nargis), who is now the lawyer defending him in court. The very intensity of the oedipal melodrama, enacted by the Kapoor family itself, spills over into a kind of hallucinatory pictorialism (the dream sequence, the prison sequence at the end, the design of the judge's mansion) and underpinned some of the most remembered songs of the 50s (Awaara hoon, Ghar aya mera pardesi and Dum bharke udhar mooh phere, o chanda). The spectacular 9' dream sequence which took three months to shoot was apparently added on at the end, to hike up its market value. This was also Kapoor's first fairy-tale treatment of class division in India, whose nexus of authority (power, patriarchy and law) explicitly excludes the hero. Its main tenet, presented through Raghunath, is the feudal notion of status: 'the son of a thief will always be a thief', a view that villain Jagga sets out to disprove by making

Prithviraj Kapoor and Nargis in Awara

Raju a thief. Raju's patricide (he kills Jagga and is arrested for attempting to murder Raghunath) tries to break out of the contradiction set against an alternative, post-colonial, reinvention of an infantile Utopia in which everyone can fully 'belong', a condition symbolised by Nargis who is both the hero's conscience and reward. Kapoor's later treatments of the same contradictions increasingly took on the 'frog prince' fairy-tale structure (Shri 420, 1955; Mera Naam Joker, 1970), mapped on to the middle/working-class divide. The film launched Kapoor and Nargis as major stars in parts of the USSR, the Arab world and Africa, while the US briefly released an 82' version. Nargis' appearance in a bathing costume is widely but wrongly believed to be the first erotic swimsuit scene. That cliché had earlier been deployed by Master Vinayak in Brahmachari (1938). Gayatri Chatterjee (1992) published a book-length commentary on the film.

lays a trap to catch the villain. Dutt demonstrates a confident assimilation of the Warner Bros. film noir style, esp. in the lighting, the camera placements and the editing. Even though it was his directorial debut, the film already shows a remarkable talent for song picturisation, something Dutt became famous for. One of the film-makers who apparently fascinated him at this time was John Huston, an inspiration he also used in his second film, Jaal (1952). Includes Geeta Dutt's famous song Tadbir se bigdi huyi.

⊗ Baazi

aka A Game of Chance
1951 143' b&w Hindi
d/co-st Guru Dutt pc Navketan co-st/sc/dial Balraj Sahni lyr Sahir Ludhianvi
c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Geeta Bali, Kalpana Kartik, Roopa Varma, K.N. Singh, K. Dhawan, Srinath, Rashid Ahmed, Abu Baker, Nirmal Kumar, Habib

Guru Dutt's directorial debut was a follow-up of Afsar (1950), the film with which the brothers Anand launched Navketan and which signalled a transition in Dev Anand's screen persona. Madan (Anand) is a small-time gambler forced into joining the owner of the Star Hotel, a mysterious and shadowy criminal (Singh), to pay for his sister's medical expenses. Other characters are Rajani (Kartik), a doctor, her fiance, the cop Ramesh (Dhawan), and later Leena (Bali), a cabaret dancer who is killed and for whose murder Madan is framed. The elusive villain eventually turns out to be Rajani's father. Madan, condemned to death, is saved by Ramesh who

⊗ Babla

1951 ? b&w Bengali/Hindi
d/s Agradoot pc MP Prod. st Sourin Mukherjee lyr[H] Sahir Ludhianvi lyr[B] Sainen Roy c Bibhuti Laha, Sushanta Moitra m Robin Chatterjee lp Niren Bhattacharya, Sova Sen, Jahar Ganguly, Paresh Bannerjee, Pahadi Sanyal, Dhiraj Das, Prova Devi

Typical instance of the commercially successful realist Bengali melodrama of this period, as a pop variation of what the later New Theatres directors were doing after the war. A compositor in a printing press (Bannerjee) brings his wife (Sen) and son Babla (Bhattacharya) to Calcutta. He has an accident and his overworked wife succumbs to tuberculosis. Babla leaves school to work as a newspaper hawker. When he finds a purse full of money, he dutifully returns it to its owner and refuses to be helped. Returning home, he finds his mother dead. Widely advertised in the Hindi market, the film was accurately described in Filmfare (16.10.1953) as failing 'from sheer excess'. The film's Malayalam remake, Newspaper Boy (1955), was much more of a critical success.

⊗ Badal

1951 146' b&w Hindi
d/st Amiya Chakravarty pc Varma Films sc Rajendra Shankar dial Hari Pratap,

C.L. Kavish lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri
c V. Babasaheb m Shankar-Jaikishen
lp Premnath, Madhubala, Purnima, Hiralal, Randhir, S. Nazir, Agha

Commercially successful adventure movie adapting the Robin Hood legend in the character of Badal (Premnath). The hero loses his faith in God and king when Jaisingh, right-hand man of the jagirdar, takes away his property. He forms a band of outlaws, falls in love with the daughter of the jagirdar, Ratna (Madhubala), who is unaware of his identity but who later joins his side. Eventually the conflict between Badal and Jaisingh is resolved when the king ventures out in disguise and sees for himself the tyranny of his ministers.

⊗ Bahar

1951 170' b&w Hindi
d M.V. Raman pc AVM s/lyr Rajinder Krishen c T. Muthuswamy m S.D. Burman lp Vyjayanthimala, Pandharibai, Karan Dewan, Pran, Om Prakash, Sundar, Shyamal, Leela Mishra, Indira Acharya, Baby Tabassum

Heroine Lata (Vyjayanthimala) is a modern girl, pursued by villain Shekhar (Pran) but in love with novelist Ashok (Dewan) who turns out to be her neighbour called Kumar. Shekhar fathers a child to the country girl Malati (Padmini) who, unable to trace the perfidious Shekhar, abandons the child in Kumar's house. Seeing Kumar playing parent to a mysterious child, Lata misunderstands the situation until the truth is revealed in the end. Pran, playing his usual villain role, undergoes an uncharacteristic change of heart to allow a happy ending for all. Intended mainly to showcase Vyjayanthimala in her Hindi debut, the film features her numerous dances as well as Kishore Kumar's hit song Kusoor aap ka. This major hit, adapting Raman's earlier hit Vazhkai/Jeevitham (1949), was the Madras-based AVM Studio's first foray into Hindi cinema.

⊗ Barjatri

1951 ? b&w Bengali
d Satyen Bose pc National Progressive Pics st Bibhutibhushan Mukhopadhyay co-lyr Bimal Chandra Ghosh co-lyr/m Salil Choudhury
c Bimal Mukherjee
lp Kali Bannerjee, Anup Kumar, Arun Choudhury, Satya Bannerjee, Haradhan Bannerjee, Bhabhen Pal, Sandhya Devi, Jharana Chakraborty

Successful ensemble-play comedy featuring the stammerer Ganesha (K. Bannerjee) and three efforts to find him a bride. In the first, Ganesha goes with his friends to a village to attend a wedding, but they are mistaken for thieves when trying to peek into the bridal chamber. They create another scandal when they arrive at the bride's house 'for negotiations', impersonating their guardians. Ganesha later becomes tutor to the cousin of the girl he loves, but this fails as well, and he gets punished by his despotic uncle. This perennial hit, admired by Ray for its authenticity, launched a genre of the ensemble 'slice of life' comedy, esp. Pasher Bari (1952) and Sharey Chuattar (1953).

Deedar

1951 130' b&w Hindi
d Nitin Bose pc Filmkar s Azim Bazidpuri lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Dilip Gupta m Naushad.

lp Dilip Kumar, Nargis, Ashok Kumar, Nimmi, Baby Tabassum, Murad, Jal Merchant, Parikshit, Baby Anwari, Niharika Devi, Umasashi, Surrender, Agha Miraz, Yakub, Sapru

Adapting much of the Saigal type of melodrama (Street Singer, 1938), the tale opens with adolescents Shamu (D. Kumar) and childhood sweetheart Mala (Nargis). Mala's rich father (Sapru) disapproves and when the children have an accident while horse-riding (a portent of the tragedy to come), he has Shamu and his mother evicted. The trauma kills the mother and turns Shamu blind. He is rescued and brought up by Champa (Nimmi) and her canny guardian, Choudhury (Yakub). Champa loves Shamu but he cannot forget Mala. Dr Kishore (A. Kumar), an eye surgeon moved by the music Shamu sings on the streets, restores the hero's eyesight. Shamu then sees that Mala, to whom he has dedicated his life, is engaged to his benefactor, Dr Kishore, and he puts his eyes out again. Dilip Kumar's best-known tragic performance clearly evokes the Oedipus legend with blindness signifying an escape from the unbearable present and mourning for a lost innocence. The film, however, splits its lead protagonists, e.g. through turn-wipes repeatedly juxtaposing Dilip against Ashok Kumar and Nargis against Nimmi, a technique that evokes the Bengali literary melodrama (as does the cliché of the eye operation). In spite of the many unimaginative and maudlin sequences, some attempts at realism resemble aspects of Satyajit Ray's approach, e.g. the long track along the kitchen floor in Champa's hovel or the changing light patterns on the ceiling behind Shamu when he sings Naseeb dar pe tere azmaane aya hoon. Bimal Roy edited the film.

Humlog

1951 144' b&w Hindi
d/s Zia Sarhadi pc Ranjit lyr Vishwamitter Adil, Uddhav Kumar c H.S. Kwatra m Roshan lp Nutan, Shyama, Balraj Sahni, Durga Khote, Anwar Hussain, Sajjan, Kanhaiyalal, Manmohan Krishna, Durrani, Rashid Khan, Master Rattan, Cuckoo

Sarhadi's realist film forms a trilogy with Footpath (1953) and Awaaz (1956). It tells of the bank clerk Lala Haricharan Das, who supports a wife and three children on a meagre salary. His son Raj (Sahni) grows up disaffected; daughter Paro gets tuberculosis leading to big medical bills, and youngest son Chhotu drops out of school with no money to pay for his education. Raj steals money belonging to his father's employer and causes the father's imprisonment. Raj now has to look after the family, suffers from overwork and heart disease and ignores his girlfriend Shefali. Paro, kept apart from her boyfriend Anand by her disease, writes the play Humlog (We, The People). Later, Raj's friend Kundan (Hussain) is killed and Raj is arrested for the murder and dies of a heart attack in court. Paro and Anand, at the end, stage Paro's play as a self-reflexive comment on the film itself.

Jeevitha Nauka/Jeevan Nauka

aka Pichaikari, aka Life is a Boat 1951 170' b&w Malayalam/Tamil/Hindi d K. Vembu p K.V. Koshy, Kunchako
pc K&K Prod. s Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai
lyr Abhayadev c Balasubramanyam, P.B. Mani
m V. Dakshinamurthy
lp Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Sebastian Kunju Kunju Bhagavathar, P. Adimoolam, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, B.S. Saroja, Pankajavalli, S.P. Pillai, Mathappan, Nanukuttan, Jagadamma, Janamma

Soman (Nair) is married to Laxmi (Saroja), a poor village performer. His brother, employed by the local capitalist, and wicked sister-in-law resent this and break up the joint family. Soman goes to the city while Laxmi, with her infant son, faces local harassment. She follows her husband to the city, but when she sees him in the company of rich women, she misunderstands and keeps away. Soman then searches for his wife and son and the nuclear family is reconstituted, although the sister-in-law is punished when she is forced to become a beggar. The second big production of the famed duo Koshy and Kunchako (after Nallathanka, 1950) and the first Malayalam megahit, the film combined the talents of Sebastian Bhagavathar who, with Augustine Joseph, was one of the last great actor-singers from the stage, alongside future stars Nair, Pankajavalli and composer Dakshinamurthy. Both the title and the character of Saroja evoke Osten's Jeevan Naiya (1936), but the major dramatic influence was probably Vauhini Studio's 1940s cinema, which Koshy in his autobiography maintained as his ideal. Tamil and Hindi versions were also made, probably dubbed.

Malleeshwari

1951 194' b&w Telugu
d B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini st From Rayalvari Karunakritiyamu, a play by Buchi Babu s/lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry
c Adi M. Irani, B.N. Konda Reddy m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao, Addepalli Rama Rao
lp P. Bhanumathi, N.T. Rama Rao, Kumari, T.G. Kamaladevi, Srivastava, Rushyendramani, Baby Mallika, Doraiswamy, Master Venkatramana

Reddi's big-budget fantasy set in the reign of Krishnadeva Raya, king of the Vijayanagara Empire with its capital at Hampi. The beautiful Malleeshwari (Bhanumathi) loves the sculptor Nagaraja (NTR) but class differences keep them apart. The king (Srivastava) secretly observes her dancing in the rain for her lover. When Nagaraja leaves to seek his fortune so that he may claim Malleeshwari's hand, the king summons her to become a court entertainer. The lovers meet again when the hero is hired to build a dancing hall for the queen (Kamaladevi) but they infringe the queen's rule forbidding companions to fall in love and they are sentenced to death. At the last minute, the king forgives them. Apparently one of Reddi's favourite films, it benefits from A.K. Sekhar's sets. The songs by Bhanumathi and Ghantasala (singing the playback for NTR) were hits.

Mangala

1951 182' b&w Telugu
d Chandru p S.S. Vasam pc Gemini st Gemini Story Dept. dial/lyr Tapi Dharma Rao
m M.D. Parthasarathy
lp P. Bhanumathi, Ranjan, Suryaprabha, T.R. Ramchandran, Narayana Rao, Doraiswamy, Kolatthu Mani, Surabhi Kamalabai, Vijayarao

A remake of Gemini's hit Mangamma Sapatham (1943), to follow their successful trilingual Apoorva Sahodarargal/Nishan (1949) starring Bhanumathi and Ranjan. Vasam again claimed directorial credit for the Hindi version. Mangala (Bhanumathi), the daughter of a rich farmer, chases her pet pigeon into a strange land whose prince (Ranjan) instantly falls in love with her. When she resists his advances, he threatens to marry and imprison her for the rest of her life. She responds by threatening that, should they marry, their son would grow up to whip his father. Dressed as a Carmen Miranda gypsy dancer she seduces him, gets pregnant and bears a son who eventually fulfils her prophecy.

Mar mayogi/Ek Tha Raja

aka The Mysterious Sage
 1951 175' b&w Tamil/Hindi
d K. Ramnoth pc Jupiter Pics, Ratna Films p M. Somasundaram sc/dial A.S.A. Sami st Robin Hood legend, Marie Corelli's Vendetta (1886) lyr Kannadasan, K.D. Santhanam c M. Masthan m C.R. Subburaman, S.M. Subbaiah Naidu lp M.G. Ramachandran, Serukalathur Sama, Jawar Seetaraman, S.A. Natarajan, M.N. Nambiar, Madhuri Devi, Anjali Devi, S.V. Sahasranamam, Pandharibai, M.S.S. Bhagyam

A royal fairy tale set in an unspecified place and time (although there is medieval jousting tournament) granting set and costume designers full freedom. The evil courtesan Urvashi (Anjali Devi) tries to kill the King Marmayogi (Sama) and assumes power, but he survives and returns disguised as a ghostly sage while his son Karikalan (MGR) becomes a Robin Hood figure in the forest. After many adventures the king exposes the courtesan, who dies of shock, and the prince becomes a benign ruler after marrying the general's daughter (Madhuri). Sami tailored the script, Flynn/Fairbanks references and all, for his friend MGR, giving him a character named after a legendary Chola king, fitting in with the current wave of Tamil revivalism. The credit sequence freely uses Ivan the Terrible imagery.

The narration is whimsically misogynist but seems to delight in the unfettered cinematic play with popular imagery and stories.

Naval okam

aka New World

1951 169' b&w Malayalam

d V. Krishnan pc Kottayam Popular Prod.

s Poonkunnam Varkey lyr P. Bhaskaran
c P.K. Madhavan Nair m V. Dakshinamurthy lp Kumari, Sethulakshmi, Lalitha, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Sebastian Kunju Kunju Bhagavathar, Venniyoor Madhavan Nair, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai

A ruthless estate owner, Kuruppu (Nair), sparks off a revolt among his labourers over his callous seduction and discarding of Devaki (Kumari). The woman, who has an independent reputation for her social work, allows her husband to be arrested on charges of assault, but eventually comes to his rescue, and also reconciles differences between the employer and his workers. The film combined the stage and film talents introduced by Koshy-Kunchako productions into Malayalam (cf. Jeevitha Nauka the same year) with major figures from the radical literary movements in Kerala, writer Varkey and lyricist Bhaskaran. Despite its stagey effects, including crammed studio interiors, emphasis on dialogue and on entries and exits, the film is seen as the first in Malayalam to shift away from mythologicals and into politically informed realism. Its extension of traditional melodramatic forms, adapted from Tamil and Telugu cinema, to address e.g. industrialisation and class conflict, was to prove an important generic precedent for Kariat's films.

Nir doshi/Nirapar adhi

1951 186'[Te]/182'[Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil

d H.M. Reddy pc Rohini Pics

co-st/co-lyr/dial[Ta] K.G. Sharma co-st/co-lyr[Te]

Sri Sri, Acharya Athreya, Sadasiva Brahmam

dial/co-lyr[Te] M.S. Subramanyam c P.L. Rai

m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao,

H.R. Padmanabha Sastry

lp Anjali Devi, K. Mukkamala,

G. Varalakshmi, Lakshmikantam,

Doraiswamy, Chandrasekhar, Madhu, Pandit

Rao, K. Prabhakar Rao

Inaugurating a fresher idiom for 50s Telugu melodrama, this is a love quartet: the rich lawyer Vijay (Mukkamala) marries village girl Nirmala (Anjali Devi), but Tara (Varalakshmi), who wanted to marry Vijay, tries to disrupt the marriage, and Chandrayya, who loved Nirmala, also features in the intrigue. Telugu megastar Anjali Devi's first major lead role and pioneering Telugu director Reddy's last film. Sivaji Ganesan dubbed Mukkamala in the Tamil version.

Patal a Bhairavi/Pataal Bhairavi

1951 195'[Te]/192'[Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil/Hindi

d/co-sc K.V. Reddy pc Vijaya co-sc K. Kameshwara Rao st/dial/lyr[Te]

Pingali Nagendra Rao lyr[Ta] Thanjai

NTR (centre) in Patala Bhairavi

Ramaiyadas lyr[H] Pandit Indra c Marcus Bartley m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Malathi, S.V. Ranga Rao, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, Balakrishnan, Padmanabham, Lakshmikantam, Hemalathamma, Relangi Venkatramaiah,
T.G. Kamaladevi, Surabhi Kamalabai, Girija, Chitti, Savitri

Breaking all box-office records in AP, Vijaya quickly made a Tamil version and Gemini Studios followed with a Hindi version, all starring Rama Rao who soon after started his own production house. The poor gardener's son Thota Ramudu (NTR) has to become rich to gain the hand of the Princess Indumati (Malati). The villain is a sorcerer (Ranga Rao) who wants to make the hero, as a fine example of manhood, into a human sacrifice to the underworld Goddess Patala Bhairavi. He entraps the hero with a magic bowl able to generate gold and Thota has to overcome numerous trials (e.g. fighting a crocodile which turns out to be a godly being living under a curse) before he tricks the sorcerer and is able to decapitate him. He thus satisfies Patala Bhairavi's lust for a human sacrifice and receives all the riches he craves from her as a reward. To lengthen the film, the sorcerer is revived and again pursues the hero and is again defeated. The kitschy imagery and studio sets provide an appropriate style for this emphatically Orientalist fairy tale. Ghantasala's music is a key contribution to the film's success. The Hindi version, dubbed by Gemini from Telugu, included a specially shot colour sequence with a dance by Lakshmikantam. The Telugu film consolidated a local version of the 'folklore' film, a swashbuckling Orientalist fantasy evoking both Alexandre Dumas and Hollywood's Douglas Fairbanks films. Created by the Tamil cinema (cf. Apoorva Sahodarargal, 1949; later associated mainly with MGR), the genre was successfully transferred into Telugu where established directors like B.N. Reddi (formerly associated with reform themes) had to acknowledge its commercial infallibility (Raja Makutam, 1959). The real success of the genre is due to its colourful invention of local pseudo-legends often adapting idioms from the folk theatre, e.g. Burrakatha. Earlier Telugu films in this idiom included Balanagamma (1942), Ratnamala (1947) and Raksharekha (1949). Savitri performed a dance in the film.

Ratnadeep/Ratnadeepam

1951 ?' b&w Hindi/Bengali/Tamil

d Debaki Bose pc Chitramaya st Prabhat

Kumar Mukherjee's novel dial Narottam Vyas, Shekhar Roy[H] lyr Mahendra Pran,

Buddhichandra Agarwal 'Madhur'[H]

c Deojibhai m Robin Chatterjee lp A. Gupta, Manju Dey, Molina Devi, Chhaya

Devi, Pahadi Sanyal, Tulsi Chakraborty,

Kamal Mitra, Rajkumar Soni, Sudhir

Chakravarty, Gokul Mukherjee, Gaurishankar,

Abhi Bhattacharya

Bengali-Hindi costume movie (the Tamil version was probably dubbed). The kingdom of Basuligram is in mourning on the 14th anniversary of the disappearance of Prince Bhuvan (after 14 years, a missing person may be pronounced dead). That night, at a nearby railway station, a dismissed station-master Gopal finds the corpse of a Sanyasi (ascetic) bearing a remarkable resemblance to himself. When he realises that this is the missing prince, he impersonates him. Amid joy and celebration in the palace, he meets the young queen whose innocence makes him realise the folly of his deception. The businessman Ghulam, who wanted to marry the queen himself, intends exposing the impostor. The Hindi version had several Geeta Dutt, Jutika Roy and Talat Mahmood numbers. Based apparently on the famous Bhowal-Sanyasi case in Bengal.

Aan

aka Savage Princess

1952 161' col Hindi

d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.

st R.S. Choudhury dial S. Ali Raza lyr Shakeel

Badayuni c Faredoon Irani m Naushad

lp Dilip Kumar, Nimmi, Premnath, Nadira, Sheela Nayak, Mukri, Murad, Nilambi, Cuckoo, Maya, Abdul, Aga Miraz, Amirbano

Mehboob's shift from b&w to colour led to a sweeping narrative style, with a brown and green countryside, neo-classical decor, expansive gestures and valiant horsemen thundering under fiery golden-orange skies, announcing his Mother India (1957) socialist realism. Hero Jai Tilak (Kumar) belongs to a Rajput clan loyal to the benevolent maharaja (Murad). The villain is the Cadillac-driving Prince Shamsher Singh (Premnath) who tries to usurp power by killing his father, the ruler. Much to the distress of Mangala (Nimmi), who loves him, Jai resolves to tame the proud rajkumari (Nadira) as he tamed her wild stallion in a contest. Shamsher kidnaps Mangala and tries to rape her, causing her to fall to her death. Jai retaliates by capturing the rajkumari, forcing her to take Mangala's place. Eventually it turns out that the maharaja is still alive and Mangala appears in the rajkumari's dream, making the princess realise she loves Jai. Jai and the loyalist forces defeat Shamsher and reassume power. One of Mehboob's first films to receive wide distribution in the West, where it was compared, incongruously, to both LeRoy's Quo Vadis (1951) and Powell's The Red Shoes (1948), while Dilip Kumar was seen as close to Tarzan. The desert, a set created by art director Achrekar, in which the rajkumari is gunning for Jai quotes the climactic scenes of King Vidor's Duel in the Sun (1946). Full of elaborately stylised action (esp. Nimmi's performance), the most spectacular action takes place in a Ben Hur-type arena, including the sword-fight between Jai and Shamsher in front of the funeral pyre intended to burn the rajkumari at the stake. Shot in 16mm Gevacolour and blown up in Technicolor, the film's epic style merges remarkably well with Technicolor's tendency to create colour patches, a problem that e.g. Nitin Bose failed to solve in his Ganga Jumna (1961), making Aan one of India's first successful experiments with colour cinematography. Released in a 105' dubbed French version as Mangala Fille des Indes in 1954 and the first Hindi film to be dubbed in Tamil.

⊗ Aandhiyan

1952 136' b&w Hindi
d/co-st/sc/dial Chetan Anand pc Navketan Films co-st Hamid Butt lyr Narendra Sharma c Jal Mistry m Ali Akbar Khan lp Dev Anand, Nimmi, Kalpana Kartik, Durga Khote, K.N. Singh, Leela Mishra, Pratima Devi, M.A. Latif, Johnny Walker

Chetan Anand's 2nd film at Navketan, made between the more famous Afsar (1950) and Taxi Driver (1954), argues for a humane form of capitalism. The honest lawyer Ram Mohan (Anand) wants to marry Janaki (Kartik), daughter of the businessman Din Dayal. The villain is a rival businessman, Kuber Das (Singh), who blackmails Din Dayal into letting him marry Janaki. The entire community comes to the aid of the honest capitalist but to no avail and it remains up to the star, Anand, to ensure the happy ending.

⊗ Anandmath

1952 176' b&w Hindi
d/sc Hemen Gupta pc Filmistan st Bankimchandra Chattopadhyay's novel (1884) dial Krishna Prabhakara lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c Dronacharya m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Prithviraj Kapoor, Geeta Bali, Ranjana, Pradeep, Ajit, Bharat Bhushan

Militant Bengali film-maker Gupta made his Hindi debut at Filmistan with this stridently nationalist biographical of the 18th C. sage Satyanand who led the sanyasi uprising against the British and the subject of Bankimchandra's best-known novel. Alongside Satyanand's heroism, the film, choreographed by Sachin Shankar, develops a murkier tale around the sexual troubles of Satyanand's two lieutenants, Jeevanand and Bhavanand. Jeevanand renounces his wife Shanti when he joins the Math (clan), but finds himself so frustrated that he has to recover her, while Bhavanand covets Kalyani, the refugee queen of Padachinha. Both men die in the uprising, their deaths being presented as a kind of retribution for their sexual weakness.

⊗ Andaman Kaithi

aka The Prisoner of the Andamans
1952 190' b&w Tamil
d V. Krishnan pc Radhakrishna Films s Ku. Sa. Krishnamurthy from his play lp K. Sarangapani, T.S. Balaiah, M.G. Ramachandran, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, P.K. Saraswathi, Santhanalakshmi, M.S. Draupadi, T.V. Sivadhanu

A story about Independence and Partition (shown via newsreel footage) adapted from Krishnamurthy's reformist play as staged by the popular 40s company, TKS Brothers. The young trade union activist Nataraj (an early MGR role) tells, in flashback, his cellmate how his villainous uncle, Ponnambalam (Sarangapani), a collaborator with the British, swindled Nataraj's mother, killed his father and married his sister, Leela (Saraswathi). The family having escaped by train from Karachi to Madras, the villain has Nataraj imprisoned but the hero manages to kill him, earning a further prison term. Set at the time when the labour movement was gaining ground (scenes of food shortage, unemployment, strike calls), the play's reformism was skewed towards a nationalist politics and sexual conservatism, in the name of naturalism: the hero marries a rape victim (Draupadi) but the child conveniently dies; his sister Leela is a widow but also a virgin, a difficult condition achieved by feigning madness during marriage. The song Anju ruba notai (A Five Rupee Note) was a hit and the poet Subramanya Bharati's Kani nilam vendum (I Want a Piece of Land) featured as part of a love duet. A long dance sequence interrupts the narrative momentum. Some accounts suggest K. Subramanyam supervised the making of the film.

⊗ Baiju Bawra

1952 168' b&w Hindi
d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics st Ramchandra Thakur sc R.S. Choudhury dial Zia Sarhadi
lyr Shakeel Badayuni c V.N. Reddy m Naushad lp Bharat Bhushan, Meena Kumari, Surendra, Kuldeep Kaur, Bipin Gupta, Manmohan Krishna, B.M. Vyas, Mishra, Radhakrishan, Kesari, Ratan Kumar, Bhagwanji, Baby Tabassum, Rai Mohan, Nadir

Bhatt took considerable liberties with the history of India's classical music for this megahit focusing on an encounter between Tansen (Surendra), court musician in Akbar's (Gupta) Mughal court, and the itinerant Baiju (Bhushan). When Tansen's guards kill Baiju's father (Bhagwanji), he avenges himself by defeating Tansen in a musical contest. Naushad used leading classical singers D.V. Paluskar and Amir Khan as playback voices for the highlight of the movie, the contest itself. This was Meena Kumari's first important role, playing Baiju's self-sacrificing sweetheart, Gauri. Remembered mostly for its music.

⊗ Basu Parivar

1952 ?' b&w Bengali
d Nirmal Dey pc MP Prod.
lp Uttam Kumar, Pahadi Sanyal, Nepal Nag, Bani Ganguly, Bhanu Bannerjee, Sabitri Chatterjee, Supriya Choudhury, Jahar Roy

Dey's first film with Bengali superstar Uttam Kumar adapts the Bengali cinema's 1940s realist tendency (e.g. Chinnamul, 1950) to the commercial entertainer's requirements. It tells of a family's economic difficulties during WW2. The father (Sanyal) is an excitable figure mourning the passing of pre-war plenitude; there is a kindly mother (Ganguly) and two sons, Sukhen (Kumar) exercising a restraining influence on his impulsive younger brother Satyen (Nag). The crisis comes when Satyen is arrested for theft. Believing Sukhen did it, Satyen takes the blame. The family suffers severe disruption until the real thief is caught in an implausible ending. Incredibly, given their later screen relationship, Supriya Choudhury plays Uttam Kumar's sister. The film was remade in Hindi as Hum Hindustani (1960).

⊗ Chhatrapati Shivaji

1952 156'[M]/170'[H] b&w Marathi/Hindi
d/s/co-lyr Bhalji Pendharkar pc Prabhakar Chitra co-lyr P. Sawalram, Shailendra
c G. Shinde m C. Ramchandra lp Chandrakant, P.Y. Altekar[M], Prithviraj Kapoor[H], Gajanan Jagirdar, Leela Chandragiri, Lalita Pawar, Ranjana, Ratnamala, Vanamala, Baburao Pendharkar, Master Vithal, Krishnarao Chonkar, Jaishankar Danve, Sureshnath, Vasantrao Pahlwan, Lata Mangeshkar

Pendharkar's biopic of his idol, 17th-C. Maratha emperor Shivaji (Chandrakant), presented as the founder of India's first Hindu kingdom. The film chronicles Shivaji's birth at Shivneri, the evolution of his Dev-Desh-Dharam (God, Country and Religion) ethic, his unification of the Maratha people and his celebrated encounters with the Adil Shahi king of Bijapur and with Shahista Khan, the uncle of Mughal King Aurangzeb (Jagirdar). Shivaji's capture by the Mughals and his escape from Agra are also shown. The film establishes the definitive version of the popular iconography clustering around Shivaji's heroic persona (cf. the Marathi historical novels of Ranjit Desai or Vasant Kanetkar's stage historicals). Marathi stage actor and film-maker Altekar played Raja Jaisingh, with Kapoor taking the role in Hindi.

K. Siva Rao, Srivatsava, Doraiswamy, Shantakumari, Kanakam, Vasanthi

Telugu melodrama unusually derived from the Bengali literary idiom. A childless zamindar (Ranga Rao) wants to marry again but his wife (Shantakumari) then feigns pregnancy and adopts her maid's (Lakshmirajyam) child. The film deals with the problems of the maid, and then those of the child (Vasanthi) who discovers her real mother.

comedians such as Gosavi and Talwalkar. Gosavi, a former bank clerk, made his debut here and went on to become a major Marathi stage and screen comedian, associated with deadpan dialogue.

Chimni Pakhare/Nannhe Munne

1952 134' b&w Marathi/Hindi
d Datta Dharmadhikari pc Alhaad Chitra s/co-lyr G.D. Madgulkar co-lyr Phani c Bal Bapat m Vasant Pawar, Ramchandra Wadhavkar lp Baby Shakuntala, Raja Nene, Sulochana, Indira Chitnis, Indu Kulkarni, Rambhau Gramopadhye, Dada Mirasi, Raja Gosavi

Typical Dharmadhikari melodrama about a 12 year-old girl (Shakuntala) who raises her three younger brothers when their father runs away after committing a crime and their mother dies of shock. Several songs intensify the sentimental approach, e.g. Aai meli baap gela aata sambhali vithala (Mother is dead, father is gone, now we're in God's hands). The film's stark realism, adapted from e.g. Bimal Roy, demonstrates its compatibility with tragic melodrama, as the film sets up a basic conflict between goodness and evil (the latter represented by a neighbour who wants the children evicted from their house), and eventually evokes the saint film in a contemporary setting (cf. the formal similarities with Sant Dnyaneshwar, 1940).

Daag

1952 149' b&w Hindi
d/co-s Amiya Chakravarty pc Mars & Movies co-s Rajendra Shankar dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri
c V. Babasaheb m Shankar-Jaikishen
lp Dilip Kumar, Nimmi, Usha Kiron, Lalita Pawar, Kanhaiyalal, Jawahar Kaul, Leela Mishra, Chandrasekhar, Krishnakant

In Chakravarty's melodrama about class division and the evils of alcohol, Shankar (Kumar), a nice village youth who makes clay statues, is parted from his sweetheart Parvati (Nimmi) when her family inherits a fortune. In addition, he is an alcoholic who devotes all his wealth, property and even the money for his ailing mother's medicines on drink. The maudlin plot comes alive only through Nimmi's uncanny knack for larger-than-life gestures. The film's remembered song is Talat Mahmood's Ai mere dil kahin aur chal.

Daasi

1952 181' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d C.V. Ranganatha Das pc Rajyam Pics
c M. Rehman m S. Dakshinamurthy, C.R. Subburaman
lp N.T. Rama Rao, Lakshmirajyam, S.V. Ranga Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah,

Jaal

aka The Net
 1952 165' b&w Hindi
d/s Guru Dutt pc Filmarts dial M.A. Latif lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c V.K. Murthy
m S.D. Burman
lp Dev Anand, Geeta Bali, Ram Singh, Purnima, K.N. Singh, Krishna Kumari, Johnny Walker, Rashid Khan, Raj Khosla, Raj Matwala

Dutt's classic follow-up to Baazi (1951) with the same stars. Set in a small Indian enclave still under foreign control (presumably Portuguese Goa), Tony (Anand) is an unscrupulous gold smuggler who seduces the local belle Maria (Bali) and makes her his accomplice. Lisa (Purnima), who was Tony's companion until the police got on her track, tries to warn him. In the end, when Tony is hunted down by the police, Maria stops the shootout and persuades him to go to jail, promising to wait for him. Maria's blind brother Carlo (K.N. Singh) and her fiance Simon (R. Singh) are the other important characters in the story. The film's most remarkable scenes, apart from its wonderfully suspenseful opening on the waterfront, include a very stylish seduction scene as Tony lures Maria to the beach with his song Yeh raat yeh chandni phir kahan (sung by Hemanta Mukherjee), and she ends up caught, literally, in his net. The rural Goan fishing community is transformed into a kind of frontier town to provide the setting for the morality tale of sex and religion, summarised in a strangely comic scene with masked dancers at a village fete. Dutt uses the sound of waves as a leitmotif and his renowned crane shots (cf. Pyaasa, 1957; Kaagaz Ke Phool, 1959) are already in evidence.

Lakhachi Goshta

1952 133' b&w Marathi
d Raja Paranjpe pc Gajaraj Chitra co-s/lyr G.D. Madgulkar co-s G.R. Kamat c Bal Bapat m Sudhir Phadke lp Chitra, Rekha, Raja Gosavi, Indira Chitnis, Ravindra, Sharad Talwalkar, G.D. Madgulkar, Raja Paranjpe, Madan Mohan

A poet (Gosavi) loves a kindly radio singer while his painter friend loves the daughter of a millionaire. The millionaire agrees to his daughter's marriage provided the painter can demonstrate his ability to live in luxury by spending Rs 1 lakh (Rs 100,000) within a month. However, the money he spends keeps making profits. The comedy depends mainly on Madgulkar's incisive dialogue and a cast including several well-known Marathi

Mahaprasthaner Pathey/Yatrik

1952 137' b&w Bengali/Hindi
d Kartick Chattopadhyay pc New Theatres
st Probodh Kumar Sanyal's novel dial Mohanlal Bajpai[H] c Amulya Mukherjee m Pankaj Mullick lp Basanta Choudhury, Arundhati Devi, Maya Mukherjee, Tulsi Chakraborty[B], Abhi Bhattacharya[H], Kamal Mitra

Film based on Probodh Kumar Sanyal's travelogue about his visit, presented as a search for Truth, to the Himalayas and the religious shrines at Kedarnath and Badrinath. Choudhury plays the author in both versions. Arundhati Devi in her film debut plays Rani, the widow on a pilgrimage, while Bhattacharya plays the Brahmachari in the Hindi version. A strongly mystical aura pervades the film, notably in the nature shots. It initiated a trend of pilgrim travel movies (Marutirtha Hinglaj, 1959) revived in the 70s (Bighalita Karuna Janhabhi Jamuna, 1972; Amrita Kumbher Sandhaney, 1982).

Mr Sampat

1952 165' b&w Hindi
d S.S. Vasan pc Gemini st R.K. Narayan's novel (1949) lyr Pandit Indra, Kashyap m E.
 Shankar Sastry, Balkrishna Kalla lp Motilal Padmini, Kanhaiyalal, Swaraj, Vanaja, Agha

The famous R.K. Narayan literary character of the gentleman crook became a classic Motilal role. The suave and fast-talking Mr Sampat hits Bombay as the manager of Seth Makhanlal Jhaverimull Gheewala's (Kanhaiyalal) municipal election campaign. He opens a bank with assistance from a former prince and the Kalamandir Theatre company to impress the woman he wants to win, Malini Devi (Padmini).

Nagarik

aka The Citizen
 1952 127' b&w Bengali
d/s Ritwik Ghatak pc Film Guild c Ramananda Sengupta m Hariprasanna Das lp Satindra Bhattacharya, Prabhadevi, Sova Sen, Ketaki Devi, Geeta Shome, Ajit Bannerjee, Kali Bannerjee, Keshto Mukherjee, Gangapada Basu, Shriman Pintoo, Parijat Bose, Mumtaz Ahmed Khan, Anil Chatterjee

Ghatak's directorial debut was part of a co-operative effort. The film is an ensemble piece featuring a family from North Calcutta (the original residents of the city) faced by the War and Partition. Ramu (S. Bhattacharya) the eldest son, hopes to get a job to support the family but spends his time gazing wistfully at a flowering tree and dreaming of settling with his girlfriend Uma (K. Devi) in a house resembling one he saw in a calendar painting. His aged father (K. Bannerjee) is an idealist who clings to fantasies of the past while his mother (Prabhadevi) passionately regrets the loss of their old mansion; his sister Seeta (Sen) internalises the family's suffering and tries to escape the situation via the lodger, Sagar (A. Bannerjee), they have taken in and who becomes the figure through whom the family articulates its future. Eventually they move into a proletarian slum and abandon their individual aspirations as they become progressively politicised. The film came in the wake of the IPTA-derived political cinema in Bengal (e.g. Chinnamul, 1950) and remains Ghatak's most direct call to political action, including his only explicit propaganda scene: the insertion of the Internationale on the sound-track as the family leaves the house while another group 'just like them' comes in presumably to live through similar experiences. Acknowledging for the first time in Indian cinema the melodramatic origins of an apparently realist plot, Ghatak uses wide-angle lenses to make the histories and the social relations crystallised in the urban environment resonate with the fate of the characters, starting with the presentation of the city itself, Calcutta, through a series of pan-dissolves at the film's opening. The development of the relationship between the central characters of the melodramatic plot and the city is gradually inflected by the encounter with peripheral characters: Jatin Babu (K. Mukherjee) who lives under the staircase and whose wife dies; Shefali (G. Shome), Uma's sister, who becomes a prostitute; Sagar, who changes from a rent-payer to an escape route for Seeta. These inflections begin to clarify the relations between broader social processes and the lives of individual characters, opening up the melodrama towards a directly political consciousness of the need for radical change. The film was never released and believed lost, but a restored print, unfortunately showing the extensive decay of the recovered positive, was eventually released in 1977.

village is hit by famine, he starts hoarding food. The hero opposes him, for which he is arrested and tried in court. The long court scene confronts the peasantry that supports Chandram with the rich landlords who persecute him. The film used verite footage of the Sankranti festival shot in the Krishna district and included progressive poet Sri Sri's noted lyric Polalananni halaladunni. Other ruralist films followed in its wake: e.g. Pedaraitu (1952).

Parasakthi

aka The Goddess
1952 188' b&w Tamil
d Krishnan-Panju pc AVM Prod, National Pics
p M.S. Perumal st M.S. Balasundaram sc/dial/co-lyr M. Karunanidhi co-lyr Subramanyam Bharati, Bharatidasan, K.N. Anualthango, K.P. Kamakshisundaram, Udumalai Narayana Kavi c Maruthi Rao
m R. Sudarshanam
lp Sivaji Ganesan, S.S. Rajendran, S.V. Sahasranamam, Sriranjani Jr, Pandharibai, Kannamma, V.K. Ramaswamy, Kumari Kamala

Ganesan's debut in a classic DMK Film scripted in line with party policies by the future chief minister of Tamil Nadu. Three brothers, based in Rangoon, go home to Madurai when their youngest sister is to be married. WW2 is declared and the brothers are separated, the eldest, Chandrasekharan (Sahasranamam) becoming a judge, the second, Gnanasekharan (Rajendran), a representative of the beggars' community. Gunasekharan (Ganesan) arrives home to find their father dead and his newly married sister Kalyani (Sriranjani) widowed and homeless. Concealing his identity, he looks after her like a guardian. In the film's dramatic as well as political highlight, he wounds a villainous priest who tries to rape Kalyani in the deity Parasakthi's temple. Significantly, for the DMK's anti-religious stance, the hero first pretends to be the temple deity and then reveals it to be just a piece of stone. Gunasekharan's girlfriend Vimala (Pandharibai) represents, with her politically activist brother, the voice of the DMK, esp. that of its chief, Annadurai. When she isn't lecturing Gunasekharan on Annadurai's works, she goes boating in the river, thus finding herself well placed to rescue Kalyani's child thrown into the

Sivaji Ganesan in Parasakthi

Pal Ietooru

1952 171' b&w Telugu
d/co-sc T. Prakash Rao pc Peoples' Art Prod.
p P. Sivaramaiah co-sc M.S. Choudhury co-s/co-lyr Vasireddy co-s/co-lyr Sunkara co-lyr Sri Sri, V. Shrikrishna c Ajoy Kar
m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao
lp N.T. Rama Rao, Savitri, S.V. Ranga Rao, T.G. Kamaladevi, Nagabhushanam, Suryakantam, Sheshamamba, Padmavati, Baby Krishnaveni

Prakash Rao's debut, shot by noted Bengali cameraman-director Kar, is a commercial hit introducing a new phase of the Telugu ruralist melodrama. Contrasting scientific enlightenment with backward superstition, the film also pits the progressive hero Chandram (NTR) against the villainous moneylender Ganapati (Ranga Rao). A second plot strand features Kondaiah (Nagabhushanam) who wants to marry heroine Suguna (Savitri). The moneylender tries to close down Chandram's Vishal Andhra (Greater Andhra) library in order to construct a temple in its place. When the river by its mother (recalling the legend of Nallathangal who threw her seven children into a well). Kalyani, accused of infanticide, comes to trial, in a classic DMK formula, before her eldest brother, the judge. When she tells her story, the brother recognises her and has a heart attack. Gunasekharan, accused of the priest's murder, gets his turn in court to make a speech. This is probably one of the most elaborately plotted melodramas in the Indian cinema and glorifies the Dravidian heritage, contrasted with the 'pitiable' state of contemporary Tamil Nadu. The film advocates (e.g. when Gunasekharan is robbed by a vamp with elitist views on the cinema played by Kannamma) traditional kinship relations while castigating caste discrimination, the Brahmin class, superstition and WW2 black marketeering. The soundtrack, released on record and cassette, was, like the book, extremely popular, as was the music. Almost banned, heavily censored for the temple scene, it was a spectacular commercial hit. Ganesan became the dominant icon of the DMK, replacing K.R. Ramaswamy who had achieved that status through Annadurai's film Velaikkari (1949). The film, its numerous political references, the controversies surrounding its release and the circumstances of its making and showing, have been researched by M.S.S. Pandian: 'Parasakthi: Life and Times of a DMK Film' (1991).

⊗ Pedaraitu

1952 172' b&w Telugu
d Kadaru Nagabhushanam pc Rajarajeshwari Films s/co-lyr Kopparapu Subba Rao co-lyr Sambasiva Rao, Babji c P. Ellappa m H.R. Padmanabha Sastry lp P. Kannamba, Anjali Devi, M. Sriramamurthy, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Doraiswamy, Lingamurthy, D. Sadasivarao, Tulasi, Muthulakshmi

Rural drama in the tradition of Palletooru (1952). The evil son of the zamindar loves the same girl as the hero (Sriramamurthy) and has the hero expelled from the village. The hero manages to return and all zamindar land is eventually redistributed to the poor peasants. There is a parallel comedy story including a prostitute, a manager, the manager's assistant and the assistant's lover.

⊗ Pedgaonche Shahane

1952 131' b&w Marathi
d/p Raja Paranjpe pc Makarand Films, Raja Paranjpe Prod. s/co-lyr G.D. Madgulkar dial G.R. Kamat co-lyr Mukhram Sharma
c Bal Bapat m Datta Davjekar lp Raja Paranjpe, G.D. Madgulkar, Chittaranjan Kolhatkar, Dhupal, Master Dwarkanath, Vasant Shinde, Nalini Nagpurkar, Nayana, Prasad Sawkar, Sadashiv Thakar, Ganpatrao Kelkar, Daldaseth

In his best-known film as director and as actor, Paranjpe plays the bearded Kaka Shahane, a once-famous surgeon who went insane when he performed an unsuccessful operation on his girlfriend. Escaping from the mental asylum, he finds shelter with a family, pretending to be their long-lost uncle back from Zanzibar. The family, corrupted by 'modernity' (mother is a singer, daughter a dancer, one son obsessed by racing) tries to get the presumably rich uncle's money. The madman eventually reforms the family and denounces rationalist notions of sanity.

⊗ Pelli Chesu Choodu/

Kalyanam Panni Paar

1952 191' [Te]/193' [Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil
d L.V. Prasad pc Vijaya co-p B. Nagi Reddy co-p/s Chakrapani lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao, Utukuri Satyanarayana[Te], Sadasiva Brahmam[Te] c Marcus Bartley m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao
lp N.T. Rama Rao[Te], G. Varalakshmi, Savitri, S.V. Ranga Rao, Suryakantam, Joga Rao, Meenakshi, Doraiswamy, Pushpalatha

L. V. Prasad's ensemble comedy abounds in intrigues and disguises geared to the making and breaking of marriage alliances. The film pits three pairs of lovers, backed by a kind-hearted aristocrat, against traditional parents committed to viewing marriage as a commercial transaction. Govindaiah, a lawyer, wants Raja to marry Chitti. She, however, loves an endearing bodybuilder to whom, by traditional obligations, she rightfully belongs. Govindaiah makes Raja's marriage to Chitti the precondition for helping to find a husband for Raja's sister Ammudu (Varalakshmi). Raja rejects the deal and, with his younger brother, sets out to find a groom for Ammudu. In a distant village he meets the Zamindar Veeyanna (Ranga Rao), a complex character of declining fortunes and generous spirit who, as Panchayat President, also serves as a representative of the State. Raju and Veeyanna's daughter Savitri (Savitri) fall in love and their wedding is quickly arranged. Veeyanna also finds a groom, Ramana (NTR), for Ammudu, but Ramana's father Venkatapathy is a purana-reciting scrooge who demands a large dowry which Veeyanna promises to pay. Private Govindaiah, meanwhile, plots his own revenge on the wedding day, inciting Venkatapathy to insist on the dowry being paid before the marriage. The narrative that follows is 'staged' by the new couple with the help of Raja, Savitri and others. Ramana pretends to give in to his father's demand to call the wedding off, but starts living with Ammudu and, when his father arrives, feigns mental illness while Ammudu and Raja disguise themselves as nurse and doctor. Ammudu endears herself to Venkatapathy by showing interest in his purana recitals. The groom 'recovers' from his madness while Ammudu gives birth to their son, causing a fresh round of gossip in the village and providing the original villain Govindaiah with yet another opportunity to make trouble. The crisis is resolved following a relapse of insanity on the part of Ramana, as well as the discovery of Ammudu's baby, before the uncaring parents relent and the various couples are reunited. In addition to the extensive use of popular theatre techniques, especially when various characters 'enact' scenarios in order to teach other characters a lesson, the narrative is punctuated by two inserted stage performances by schoolchildren. It featured several popular songs, esp. Amma noppule and Pelli chesukoni.

⊗ Prema/Kathal

1952 171' [Te]/169' [Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil
d P.S. Ramakrishna Rao pc Bharani Pics
st P. Bhanumathi dial/lyr K.G. Sharma c Kamal Ghosh m C.R. Subburaman lp P. Bhanumathi, A. Nageshwara Rao, K. Mukkamala, Sriranjani Jr., Relangi Venkatramaiah, Surabhi Kamalabai, K. Siva Rao, Doraiswamy, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu

Rich boy-poor girl romance following on from the successful Nageshwara Rao-Bhanumathi hit Laila Majnu (1949) made by the same production team. The naive village girl Moti (Bhanumathi) meets the rich city youth Raja (Nageshwara Rao) in a rural resort. Moti's father insists that she marry the villain Parashuram (Mukkamala), but she escapes and goes to Raja. When she sees Raja walking with another woman, Lata (Sriranjani), she becomes a beggar, eventually finding a job with a theatre group. The reconciliation takes place when Raja and Lata happen to see the play, and Moti, recognising Raja, swoons on stage. Remembered mainly for Subburaman's music (e.g. the song Agavoyi maa raja, sung by Bhanumathi).

⊗ Rahi/Two Leaves And A Bud

1952 139' b&w Hindi/English d/dial/co-sc K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar st Mulk Raj Anand's novel Two Leaves and a Bud (1937) co-sc Mohan Abdullah, V.P. Sathe lyr Prem Dhawan c Ramchandra m Anil Biswas
lp Dev Anand, Balraj Sahni, Nalini Jaywant, David, Manmohan Krishna, Achala Sachdev, S. Michael, Rashid Khan, Habib Tanvir, Shaikat Hashmi

A rather confused attempt to equate a nationalist politics (well after Independence) with class politics. Set in pre-Independence Assam, it tells of oppressed, mostly women, tea plantation workers. The villainous English manager (Michael) employs the hero, a former army officer (Anand), to run the plantation with brutal discipline. He is eventually humanised by one of the workers, Ganga (Jaywant), and when the workers rise in revolt the hero joins them. However, Ganga has to pay for the film's simplifications with her life. It was made simultaneously in English and a dubbed Russian version called Ganga was released in the USSR.

⊗ Sankranti

1952 198' b&w Telugu
d C. Pullaiah pc East India Film s/lyr Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi
c N.C. Balakrishnan, Prabhakar, G. Chandran
m Ashwathama lp Shantakumari, Sriranjani Jr, Savitri, K. Siva Rao, Ashalata, Vishwam, Ramana Rao, Chandrasekhar, Rajanala Nageshwara Rao

Uncharacteristic middle-class melodrama by mythological director Pullaiah, showing the ascendancy of melodrama in 50s Telugu cinema. Matriarch Annapurnamma's (Shantakumari) joint family crumbles when her two sons do not stop their respective wives from quarrelling: one son is henpecked, the other 'too busy' to bother with matters domestic. The preachy film bemoans the loss of 'traditional' male authority required to control women in the family.

Shin Shinaki Boobla Boo

1952 ? b&w Hindi
d/p/dial/lyr P.L. Santoshi pc Santoshi Prod.
st Ramanand Sagar sc Deben Mukherjee c L.N. Verma, P.C. Sinha m C. Ramchandra lp Sadhona Bose, Rehana, Ranjan, Veera, Baby Tabassum, Radhakrishnan, Mumtaz Ali, Tiwari, Samson, Indu Paul, Shama Gulnar

Santoshi based this orientalist fantasy on the modern dance ballets Sadhona Bose had been associated with on stage, using the experiments with jazz and Latin American rhythms of Santoshi's regular composer, Ramchandra. Shin Shinaki (Rehana) dreams of killing the man, Taishi, who killed her parents. When the villain dies, she transfers her vengeful energies on to the man's son. The story involves a fortune-teller, Chiang, who only surfaces publicly one day per year. The other key figure is her lover, the bandit Boobla Boo (Ranjan), who eventually falls in with her plans. Classic songs include Sumayati's Han dai taka lai han dai kali aie in a kind of question-answer mode using a fast-paced chorus, Shin's number Aare baba and her duet with Boobla, Kuch chahelen ho, kuch charchein ho. This film was the unlikely first victim of the central government's authority to overrule the censor board, an action enabled by the Indian Cinematograph Act passed that year. Given a Universal certificate by the censors, the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting banned the film because of its 'low moral tone' and because it 'throws the glamour of romance and heroism over criminal characters, treats sacred subjects irreverently and is, in consequence, opposed to the interests of public decency and morality'. The ban was later revoked but ruined the film's commercial chances.

Val ayapathi

1952 191' b&w Tamil
d T.R. Sundaram/Mashtan p Modern Theatres dial Bharatidasan
m S. Dakshinamurthy
lp G. Muthukrishnan, K.K. Perumal, A. Karunanidhi, T.A. Rajalakshmi, T.P. Muthulakshmi, M.S.S. Bhagyam, Ramakrishnan, Sowcar Janaki

A film adaptation of a well-known legend which inflects the story of the tribulations of a bigamous husband towards a dramatisation of caste status and its associated codes of honour. In Kaveripoopattinam, the rich but childless merchant Vallayapathi (Muthukrishnan) is married to Sundari (Rajalakshmi), which prompts him to take a second wife, Sathyavathy (Janaki) from a Vannaya family, to the distress of his first wife. When the shy Sathyavathy becomes pregnant, Sundari openly feigns pregnancy and manages to arrange matters so that her husband thinks Sathyavathy's child is not his. Rejected by all, Sathyavathy seeks refuge with an old man and bears Uttaman (Ramakrishnan), who turns out to be an intelligent and brave youth. As for Sundari, she passes off her brother's lover's brattish son Azhgan as hers. The two sons are rival students until a tattoo is found on Azhgan's body, betraying his low-caste origins, but Sundari manages to hide the mark from Vallayapathi, who persecutes Uttaman. The latter eventually learns of his parentage and sues his father. The lengthy court case which follows unravels the various subterfuges and Sundari commits suicide while the nuclear family of father, mother and son is happily reinstated.

Aah/Avan/Premal ekhal u

1953 150' b&w Hindi/Tamil/Telugu
d Raja Nawathe pc R.K. Studio s Inder Raj Anand lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Shailendra
c Jaywant Pathare m Shankar-Jaikishen lp Nargis, Raj Kapoor, Vijayalakshmi, Pran, Ramesh Sinha, Bhupendra Kapoor, Leela Mishra, Sohanlal, Mukesh

Raj (Kapoor), a poet at heart, is the chief engineer in charge of building the Saraswati dam. Raj's father wants him to marry the glamorous Chandra (Vijayalakshmi), but he loves Chandra's sister Neelu (Nargis) who shares his poetic inclinations. Raj discovers that he has tuberculosis. He then pretends never to have loved Neelu and persuades a doctor friend (Pran) to marry her. Raj also pretends to love Chandra to prove to Neelu that he is an untrustworthy man. All his lies create far greater emotional problems than the disease itself but Raj and Neelu do eventually unite. Although one of Kapoor's less memorable films, it remains important as one of the first movies to deploy the very popular melodramatic device of the hero suffering nobly from a terminal disease. Masochistically wallowing in his suffering while arrogantly spreading misery all around, the infantile yet paternalistic hero, presented as a 'realist', denies the heroine, presented as an incurable romantic, the chance to make up her own mind by telling her lies. This device allows for a great variety of twists in the plot and countless displays of emotion. Here, an extra opposition is woven into the plot: the city/country dichotomy, with good tribals and workers being faced with urban profiteers. The ending sees good (country and love) triumph over evil (money and disease). In Bobby (1973), a tribute Kapoor paid to his own early work, some shots of Aah are reprised. He also incorporates a reference to the popular Devdas (1935) by having the dying hero make his way to his beloved's village in a cart, as Devdas did. Telugu and Tamil versions of the film were also released.

Ammal akkal u/Mar umagal

1953 187'[Te]/177'[Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil
d D. Yoganand pc Krishna Pics s Sadasiva Brahman lyr Samudrala Jr c Boman D. Irani
m C.R. Subburaman, Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy lp Lalitha, Padmini, N.T. Rama Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, B.R. Panthulu, Sivaramakrishnaiah, Rushyendramani, Surabhi Kamalabai

Yoganand's successful debut. The educated Usha (Lalitha), a 50s Telugu stereotype, marries the hero (NTR) despite the protests of her family. She then takes on, and vanquishes, the oppressive feudal practices of her husband's family. The film concentrates on its female lead, featuring the Ammalakkalu (neighbourhood women) indulging in dances, bicycle picnics and pranks before getting down to the story.

Ammal dar

1953 118' b&w Marathi
d K. Narayan Kale, Madhukar Kulkarni pc Mangal Pics st N. Gogol's The Government Inspector co-sc/lyr G.D. Madgulkar co-sc/m P.L. Deshpande c Bal Bapat lp P.L. Deshpande, G.D. Madgulkar, K. Narayan Kale, Sheila Naik, Leela Ogale, Vinay Kale

With Gulacha Ganapati and Devbappa (both 1953), this is one of the popular Marathi satirist, playwright and stage actor P.L. Deshpande's best-known films. His adaptation of Gogol's play is better anchored in the Indian situation than Afsar (1950). Various local stereotypes are incisively cast in this tale of Sarjerao (Deshpande), mistaken for a government official in a corrupt post-Independence village.

Anarkali

1953 175' b&w Hindi
d Nandlal Jaswantal pc Filmistan st Nasir Hussain sc Ramesh Saigal lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri, Rajinder Krishen, Ali Sardar Jafri
c Marshall Braganza m C. Ramchandra lp Bina Rai, Pradeep Kumar, Mubarak, S.L. Puri, Sulochana, Kuldeep Kaur

Frequently filmed Mughal romance in which Prince Salim (P. Kumar) falls in love with the common Anarkali (Rai). In Imtiaz Ali Taj's play of 1922 she was a slave girl (cf. Loves of a Mughal Prince, 1928); in Mughal-e-Azam, 1960, she is a court attendant. Director Jaswantal alludes to his precursors by casting Sulochana, who played Anarkali in R.S. Choudhury's famous 1928 version, as the hero's mother. The Filmistan production does not acknowledge the play and claims to be a direct, unmediated treatment of the Mughal legend with story and script credited to the directors Hussain (Tumsa Nahin Dekha, 1957) and R. Saigal (Railway Platform, 1955). Constructed as a fantasy flashback, Jaswantal opens the film with a big close-up of Rai's lips before going on to the customary establishing shots that set the scene. Sustaining his emphatic use of close-ups throughout, the film intercuts emotional episodes with elaborate war scenes used like fillers in between dramatic sequences. On occasion, the visual flair detected by reviewers of Jaswantlal's work for the Imperial Studio emerges in this Filmistan product: the slow crane movement when Akbar (Mubarak) is told of his son's secession threat and the abrupt dimming of the lights when he is confronted by his brother-in-law, the Rajput Raja Man Singh (Puri). The music, which by convention dominates this genre, includes hits like Mangeshkar's Yeh zindagi usi ki hai.

Pradeep Kumar and Bina Raj in Anarkali

Avvaiyyar

aka Avaiyar

1953 173' b&w Tamil

d/s Kothamangalam Subbu pc Gemini

p S.S.Vasan dial K. Rajagopal lyr Avvaiyyar, Papanasam Sivan c Thambu

m M.D. Parthasarathy

lp K.B. Sundarambal, Kushala Kumari, G. Pattu

Iyer, M.K. Radha, Gemini Ganesh,

Kothamangalam Subbu, Sundaribai, K. Balaji

A hagiography of the legendary Tamil saint poetess of the Sangam period (100BC-250AD), countering the anti-religious DMK movies. Of her 59 surviving lyrics, 33 are in the Puram mode, addressing worldly matters, wars and politics, and 26 in the Akam mode, addressing the 'inner world', often of female desire. Kumari plays her as a young girl, Sundarambal as an adult, while Iyer takes the part of Tiruvalluvar. Starting with the story of her birth to a low-caste woman and being found, like Moses (the film often evokes The Ten Commandments, 1923), in a basket adrift in a river, the film chronicles her devotion to her god, Vigneshwara and her wide-ranging travels. She sings her message to all while effectively filmed miracles confirm her sainthood, first revealed when she resists an imposed marriage. There are spectacular scenes, including an army of several hundred stampeding elephants storming a fortress and Avvaiyyar alone facing a massed enemy when a chasm opens creating a barrier they cannot cross. With this 'purposeful' picture, the studio's boss Vasan and his close collaborator, the poet Subbu, tried to extend Gemini's reputation for spectacles after Chandralekha (1948). It is the culmination of the 40s Tamil films portraying major folk legend figures (cf. Kannagi, 1942) in the context of Tamil Nadu's political/cultural revivalism: a prologue dedicates the film to 'Mother Tamil', while the heroine symbolises Tamil virtues. Remembered mainly for Sundarambal's classic musical performance. The actress and singer, a Gandhian, made her debut playing a sensational male role in Nandanar (1935). Avvaiyyar remains her best-known screen performance, putting her among Vishnupant Pagnis (Marathi) and Chittor V. Nagaiah (Telugu) as actors indelibly linked with the saint film genre.

Bhagyavaan

1953 ?' b&w Hindi

d Datta Dharmadhikari pc Rup Kamal Chitra st Dada Mirasi sc Mukhram Sharma

lyr Neelkanth Tiwari, Saraswati Kumar Deepak

c E. Mahmood m Avinash Vyas

lp Master Alhaad, Raja Nene, Radhakrishen, Nirupa Roy, Balraj, Rattan Kumar, Yashodhara Katju, Shakuntala, Baby Mala

The first Hindi film and an uninhibited weepie by the master of the Marathi melodrama, Dharmadhikari. The orphan Chanda (Alhaad) has to survive on the charity of an uncle and an aunt. He has an elder brother Suraj (Nene) who does not like the attention his wife bestows on the boy. After innumerable hardships, Chanda runs on to the railway track to commit suicide but he suddenly notices the oncoming train is hurtling towards a major accident. He manages to stop the train and saves the lives of his tormentors who, coincidentally, happen to be on the train. The excessively melodramatic style, though common in Marathi, was new to the Hindi cinema. It was later practised by Shantaram and by the ex-Prabhat film-makers involved in this production: Dharmadhikari, Nene and Anant Mane, the latter the assistant director on this movie.

Chandirani

1953 165'[Ta]/164'[Te] b&w Tamil/Telugu/Hindi

d/s/co-m P. Bhanumathi pc Bharani Pics

dial[Ta] Uday Kumar dial/lyr[Te] Samudrala

Raghavacharya c P.S. Selvaraj

co-m C.R. Subburaman, Vishwanathan

lp P. Bhanumathi, N.T. Rama Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, S.V. Ranga Rao, Amarnath, Vidyavati, R. Nagendra Rao, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu

Adventure movie on the pattern of Apoorva Sahodarargal (1949) replacing the male twins with female twins (Bhanumathi in a double role), daughters of an imprisoned king. One grows up in the forest, learning fencing and unarmed combat (including vanquishing a lion), while the other leads a sheltered life in the palace. Both love the same hero (NTR). The forest girl gets the hero after she defeats the king's evil commander-in-chief. Bhanumathi's debut as director was made as a trilingual but was not a success in Hindi. The duet O taraka was, however, a hit in all three languages.

Chandrarham

1953 174'[Te]/175'[Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil

d K. Kameshwara Rao pc Vijaya st

Chakrapani dial/lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao

c Marcus Bartley m Ghantasala

Venkateshwara Rao

lp N.T. Rama Rao, Savitri, Sriranjani Jr.,

S.V. Ranga Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah,

Joga Rao

Kameshwara Rao's debut is an elaborate costume drama merging Gemini's adventure film genre (Chandralekha, 1948) with Vijaya's own type of folk fantasy (cf. Patala Bhairavi, 1951). Villain Dhoomketu wants to become the crown prince of Chandanadesam, but his ambition is thwarted by the birth of Chandan (NTR). However, Chandan's life depends on his wearing a magic necklace. He dreams of his unknown beloved, Gauri (Sriranjani), and paints her portrait to show his teacher Mali (Ranga Rao), who then finds the woman. Unfortunately, the search brings the celestial nymph Chanchala (Savitri) into the story. Chanchala promises to lift Chandan's curse of death if he marries her; when he refuses, she removes the necklace and Chandan dies. Dhoomketu's ambitions are thus revived but then Chanchala returns Chandan to life for a brief period. Eventually another goddess, taking pity on the hero, unites Chandan and Gauri. There are many opulent court scenes, dance sequences featuring Apsaras in heaven, scenes of gods and goddesses who lift the hero's curse, and comedy interludes featuring the luckless Dhoomketu and his politician teacher Niksheparayudu.

Daera

1953 139' b&w Hindi
d/s Kamal Amrohi pc Kamal Pics lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri, Kaif Bhopali c M.W. Mukadam
m Jamal Sen lp Meena Kumari, Nasir Khan, Kumar, Roopmala, Nana Palsikar, Pratima Devi, Kammo, Jankidass

Amrohi's least-known but most elegiac film. Sheetal (Kumari) is married to an old, ailing man repeatedly mistaken for her father. She has an affair with Sharan Kumar (Nasir Khan) and eventually commits suicide. From the outset, when the mismatched couple arrives at the dark, windswept scene where they will face their destiny, the symbol-laden film deploys a baroque style of lighting with sparse dialogue and obsessive characters in the grip of their desires. As in Amrohi's Mahal (1949), the soundtrack is exceptional, from the opening Mukhtar Begum bhajan introducing Sharan to Sheetal, to the hush marking Sharan's fall from the balcony as the camera cranes over the crowded chaos below into Meena Kumari on a distant terrace.

Devadasu/Devadas

1953 191' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d Vendantam Ragavaiah pc Vinoda Pics st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay dial/lyr[Te] Samudrala Raghavacharya lyr[Ta] Udumalai Narayana Kavi
c B.S. Ranga m C.R. Subburaman
lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Savitri, Lalitha, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, Doraiswamy, S.V. Ranga Rao

After P.V. Rao's 1937 film, this is the 2nd Tamil and the first Telugu version of Saratchandra's oft-filmed novel about unrequited love. Nageshwara Rao is the weak hero Devadas and Savitri is his tragic beloved Paro while Lalitha takes the role of the golden-hearted prostitute Chandramukhi. The hit film was shot mostly at the Narasu Studios in Madras. The 11 songs (in both languages) of Subburaman's last film are regarded as among his best and most popular works, while Narayana Kavi's lyrics enhanced the popularity of the Tamil songs, one of them later providing the title for a Kamalhasan film, Vazhve Mayam (1982), an update of the Devdas plot.

Do Bigha Zameen

aka Two Acres of Land
 1953 142'(134') b&w Hindi
d/p Bimal Roy pc Bimal Roy Prod. st/m Salil Choudhury sc Hrishikesh Mukherjee dial Paul Mahendra lyr Shailendra c Kamal Bose lp Balraj Sahni, Nirupa Roy, Rattan Kumar, Murad, Jagdeep, Nana Palsikar, Nasir Hussain, Mishra, Dilip Jr., Nandkishore, Rajlakshmi, Tiwari, Noor, Kusum, Hiralal, Sapru, Meena Kumari, Mehmood

Realist drama about a small landowner, Shambhu (Sahni) which opens with a song celebrating the rains that put an end to two seasons of drought, Hariyala sawan dhol bajata aaya. Shambhu and his son Kanhaiya (R. Kumar) have to go and work in Calcutta to repay their debt to the merciless local zamindar (Sapru) in order to retain their ancestral two acres of land. The sentimentally portrayed peasants bid farewell to the departing Shambhu and his son with the song Bhai re, ganga aur jamuna ki dharti kahe pukar ke. In Calcutta, Shambhu becomes a rickshaw-puller, facing numerous hardships that lead to his near-fatal accident, the death of his wife (N. Roy) who joins him in the city and, inevitably, the loss of his land to speculators who build a factory on it. Although promoted as the epitome of Indian neo-realism, the film is even more melodramatic than e.g. De Sica's work (sometimes claimed to have influenced Roy's work). The script and the humanist acting styles include a hard but kind landlady in the Calcutta slum and the happy-go-lucky shoeshine boy (Jagdeep) who takes Kanhaiya under his wing, all enhanced by IPTA overtones in Choudhury's music. The film's neo-realist reputation is almost solely based on Balraj Sahni's extraordinary performance in his best-known film role.

En Veedu/Naa Il I u

1953 191'[Ta]/214'[Te] b&w Tamil/Telugu
d/sc/co-m Chittor V. Nagaiah pc Our India Films co-dial/co-lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry co-dial Y. Lakshminarayana co-lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya, G.S. Casshyap, Mohan c M.A. Rehman co-m A. Rama Rao
lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Mudigonda Lingamurthy, Ramasarma, Gopalakrishnan, A.V. Subba Rao, K. Doraiswamy, T.R. Rajkumari, Girija, Vidyavati, Chhaya Devi, Master Krishna, Lakshmi

Nagaiah's Tamil directing debut follows his celebrated performance in the epic melodrama Ezhai Padum Padu (1950), repeating the theme of the honest hero trapped in circumstances beyond his comprehension. The story is adapted from Samuel Butler's autobiographical novel The Way of All Flesh (1903) and Louis King's film version (1940). Bank clerk Shivram (Nagaiah giving a ponderously melodramatic performance) and his wife hope to see their two children grow up into classical Carnatic musicians. Trapped in a theft by the banker's corrupt brother-in-law, Shivram is believed to have been killed and his family lives in extreme poverty for decades until Shivram turns up again, arrested for theft while watching his daughter's birthday celebrations from the street. Eventually Shivram manages to unmask the real villains, Dhanraj and the dancer Leela (Vidyavati). Remembered for its extensive use of music, including a classical concert, the playback singing of M.L. Vasanthakumari and the extensive reference to radio via the public-interest broadcasts sponsored by the charitable Balananda Sangham. The Sangham also supports Shivram's starving family, an initiative apparently adopted from this film by All-India Radio. Extending Nagaiah's recourse to cross-cultural musical references, the film's highlights are the two Hindi songs Pushpon ki rani and Main hasti gaati aayi (both sung by Meena Kapur) which accompany the Bombay-based courtesan Leela's dances. Nagaiah's own hit song is Adigadigo gaganaseema sung along with the children.

Footpath

1953 148' b&w Hindi
d/s Zia Sarhadi pc Ranjit lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri, Ali Sardar Jafri c M. Rajaram
m Khayyam
lp Dilip Kumar, Meena Kumari, Achala Sachdev, Anwar, Kuldip Akhtar, Ramesh Thakur, Jankidass, P. Kailash, Kamalesh Thakkar, Master Romi, Sumati, Maruti, Romesh Thapar

Along with Awaaz (1956), this is Sarhadi's best-known film as director. Set during WW2, it features the honest but poor writer Noshu (D. Kumar) who falls among black marketeers hoarding medicines in a famine-stricken area. Now that money comes easily, Noshu abandons his brother, his lover Mala (Meena Kumari) and his erstwhile principles. In the end, he comes to his senses and abandons his dream of becoming a millionaire. This morality tale extends the genre practised by Sarhadi's colleague Mehboob in e.g. Roti (1942). The film was an influential contribution to Dilip Kumar's reputation for naturalism.

Gulacha Ganapati

1953 137' b&w Marathi
d/s/m P.L. Deshpande pc Swati Chitra p Vinayak Rajguru lyr G.D. Madgulkar c A.D. Dev lp P.L. Deshpande, Vinay Kale, Lele Mama, Vasant Shinde, Chitra

Sentimental melodrama featuring noted Marathi author, playwright and actor Deshpande in his best known film. He plays the gullible fool Narya, in love with the poor Leela (Chitra). He spends most of his time enacting fantasies drawn from popular romance fiction (shown in several sequences in the film's first half that recreate well known Indian film and stage genres). Hired by a stage troupe to play a working class hero, he is later forced under duress, by the villain Sudarshan (Kale), to actually play that role in real life, so that he becomes a political leader. In the end Leela saves him from the bad guys. A classic 50s Marathi hit marrying the genres of realism, melodrama and comedy, the film is also known for its several song hits, notably Bhimsen Joshi's bhajan Indrayani kathi, which later became a regular part of that noted classical singer's stage repertoire.

⊗ Gumasta

1953 187'[Te]/184'[Ta] b&w Tamil/Telugu d/c R.M. Krishnaswamy pc Aruna Pics s/lyr Acharya Athreya from his play NGO
m C.N. Pandurangam, Chittor V. Nagaiah, G. Ramanathan
lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Ramasarma, Sivaram, Pandharibai, B. Jayamma

Influential realist effort in Telugu and Tamil cinemas based on a major Telugu play (1949) which introduced, along with Vasireddy's Mundadugu, a new generation in Telugu theatre. Nagaiah plays a clerk in a government office who looks after a sick father (Ramasarma), an unmarried sister and an unemployed brother (Sivaram) who sells tooth powder on the street. The clerk accepts a bribe, is found out and arrested. The father dies and the younger brother delivers the play's morality lecture on honesty. Athreya added scenes for the film such as the sister's marriage to a man who promptly dies after the wedding.

⊗ Gunasagari/Sathya Shodhanai

1953 199'[K]/159'[Ta] b&w Kannada/Tamil
d H.L.N. Simha pc Gubbi-Karnataka Films
m R. Sudarshanam
lp Honnappa Bhagavathar, Pandharibai, Gubbi Veeranna, B. Jayamma

Melodrama about a traditional heroine who marries the husband (Bhagavathar) selected by her parents. When the husband is away, the heroine has to escape from her vicious in-laws and give birth to her child in the forest. The husband returns, clears up misunderstandings and reintegrates the heroine into the family. The debut production of Veeranna's Gubbi-Karnataka Films, started in collaboration with AVM Film.

⊗ Jhansi Ki Rani

aka The Tiger and the Flame
1953 148' col Hindi
d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone
st S.R. Dubey sc Geza Herczeg, Sudarshan, Adi F. Keeka dial/Munshi Abdul Baqui, Shams Lucknowi lyr Radheshyam Kathavachak
c Ernest Haller m Vasant Desai lp Mehtab, Sohrab Modi, Mubarak, Ulhas, Ramsingh, Sapru, Anil Kishore, Baby Shikha

One of the best-known Indian historicals, it is a spectacular account of Rani Laxmibai's (Mehtab) life, the 19th C. queen of Jhansi known as Manu to her friends and who led her armies into battle against the British East India Company during the 1857 rising (known in Britain as 'the Mutiny'). The film chronicles Lord Dalhousie's annexation policies which had forced a treaty upon the aged and childless King Gangadhar Rao (Mubarak). The high priest (Modi), who controls the throne and who had opposed the signing of the treaty, searches for someone capable of leading a revolt and finds the defiant Manu. He persuades the king to marry her, making her the rightful successor to the king instead of the scheming Sadashiv Rao (Ramsingh) who is on the side of the British. Much of the film, shot by Hollywood import Haller, consists of battle scenes, courtesy of the Ministry of Defence and horses, elephants and subjects of the maharajahs of Bikaner and Jaipur.

⊗ Kanna Tal i/Petrathai

1953 193'[Te]/194'[Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil
d K.S. Prakash Rao pc Prakash Prod.
dial [Te] Sri Sri, Arudra, Sunkara, Vasireddy dial [Ta] M.S. Subramanyam lyr Tapi Dharma Rao, Acharya Athreya c Jagirdar m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp G. Varalakshmi, A. Nageshwara Rao, Rajanala Nageshwara Rao, M.N. Nambiar, Vasantha, Mikkilineni, K. Siva Rao

Melodrama about a middle-class mother (Varalakshmi) who raises her two children when her husband, unable to repay mounting debts, abandons his family. While the daughter (Vasantha) becomes a good soul, like her mother, the son (Nambiar) goes astray and eventually commits murder. Mother takes the blame for the crime and goes to jail, thus reforming her errant son. At this time in Telugu cinema, 'the struggling mother' is a nationalist as well as a melodramatic stereotype (cf. L.V. Prasad's Pempudu Koduku, also 1953).

⊗ Natun Yahudi

1953 ? b&w Bengali
d/s/co-lyr Lalit Sen from his play pc Eastern Artists co-lyr Krittivas Ojha, Suresh Choudhury, Dwija Kanai c Ramananda Sengupta m Chitta Roy lp Kanu Bannerjee, Bhanu Bannerjee, Bani Ganguly, Sabitri Chatterjee, Nepal Roy

Sen adapted his own play, first staged by the Uttar Sarathi group (1948) to raise funds for refugees from East Bengal (cf. Bhanu Bannerjee), and part of a genre of 40s 'realist' theatre addressing the 1942-3 Bengal famine and Partition (cf. plays like Digin Bandyopadhyay's Bastubhita, Tulsi Lahiri's Banglar Meye). School-teacher Manmohan Pandit arrives in Calcutta as a refugee from what had become East Pakistan. His eldest son was killed in the freedom struggle and the family is determined to live up to the dead son's idealism: second son Mohan refuses a job out of solidarity for striking workers and becomes a coolie while the father finds employment as a cook. The other son, Duikhya, is rejected by the family when he turns to crime, but he is the only one with money when the father falls ill. Eventually the criminal son and the father die, shortly before the latter's delayed pension arrives from Pakistan. Although a straight adaptation of the play, the film followed Chinnamu's (1950) example and used Bangladeshi dialect.

⊗ Pakkinti Ammayi

1953 164' b&w Telugu
d C. Pullaiah pc East India Films p Sushil Kumar Haldar st Arun Choudhury's Pasher Bari
dial/lyr: Muddukrishna c Biren De m Ashwathama lp Anjali Devi, V. Kamaladevi, Mohanakrishna, Shakuntala, Gangarathnam, Relangi Venkatramaiah, C.S. Rao, V.V. Tatachari, R.K. Rao, A.M. Raja, Addala Narayana Rao, Srinivasa Rao

Early Telugu version of a comic Bengali short story first filmed by Sudhir Mukherjee (1952) in Bengali though best known in its Hindi version, Padosan (1968). Anjali Devi plays the sexy neighbour of Venkatramaiah. The music helped assure its success with a rare on-screen performance by the singer A.M. Raja. It was also remade in 1981 with singer S.P. Balasubramanyam and composer Chakravarty playing the two rivals for the heroine's affections.

⊗ Parineeta

1953 151' b&w Hindi
d/sc Bimal Roy pc Ashok Kumar Prod.
st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay dial/Vrajendra Gaud lyr Bharat Vyasa c Kamal Bose m Arun Kumar Mukherjee
lp Ashok Kumar, Meena Kumari, Asit Baran, Nasir Hussain, Badri Prasad, Pratima Devi, Manorama, S. Bannerjee, Tiwari, Baby Sheela, Manju, Naina, Bhupen Kapoor, Bikram Kapoor, Sailen Bose, Colin Pal

In Calcutta, at the turn of the century, Shekhar (A. Kumar), the son of rich businessman Nabin Rai (Prasad), loves and secretly marries his poor neighbour Lalita (Kumari), the niece of Gurcharan Babu (Hussain). Despite the long friendship between the two families, things deteriorate fast when Nabin Rai insists on Gurcharan Babu repaying an old loan. Gurcharan Babu wants to raise the money by marrying off Lalita. Shekhar misunderstands Lalita's silence as meaning she acquiesces in this scheme. However, she turns down an old benefactor of the family, Girin Babu (Baran). She admits to being already married and, even though she refuses to reveal her husband's name, vows to remain faithful to him all her life. Shekhar recognises her sacrifice just in time to cancel a wedding he had arranged out of resentment and he publicly acknowledges his relationship with Lalita. The film rehearses some of the period effects through costume, architecture and lighting of turn-of-the-century

Meena Kumari (above) in Parineeta

Calcutta, later associated with Ray's Charulata (1964).

Pathik

1953 ? b&w Bengali
d Debaki Bose pc Chitramaya s Tulsi Lahiri from his play c Bibhuti Chakraborty m Dakshina Mohan Thakur lp Sombhu Mitra, Tripti Mitra, Monica Ganguly, Manoranjan Bhattacharya, Tulsi Lahiri, Gangapada Basu, Kali Sarkar, Sabitabrata Datta

Lahiri's seminal Bengali play, with which Sombhu Mitra launched his Bohurupee theatre group, was first staged when the CPI's 'left-wing deviation' was causing many key IPTA figures, including Mitra and Bijon Bhattacharya, to leave the organisation. The play continued the IPTA's experiments with realism and was set in a colliery's teashop over two days. The events are mainly seen through the eyes of a failed and disillusioned writer, Ashim Roy (Mitra), who ends up fighting for an injured worker's compensation rights and eventually becomes a heroic figure for the miners. The film version deploys a voice-over quoting from Ashim's diary and features characters speaking in several languages and accents. It deviates from the play in adding an encounter between Ashim and a criminal, Atmaram, and it has an upbeat ending with the workers pushing the wounded Ashim in a broken-down motor car towards the hospital. Bose's tightly edited film orchestrates indoor space via intricate tracking shots and an extensive use of different focal depths, although the studio scenes are not always well integrated into the many outdoor scenes.

Pempudu Koduku

1953 163' b&w Telugu
d/p L.V. Prasad pc Prasad Art Pics

st Varadarajan dial/co-lyr Sadasiva Brahmam co-lyr Sri Sri, Anisetty c Adi M. Irani m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao

lp L.V. Prasad, Pushpavalli, Sivaji Ganesan, S.V. Ranga Rao, Kumari, Ramamurthy, Savitri

The debut of Prasad Art Pics, later run by T. Prakash Rao and Pratyagatma, is a melodrama about a woman and her two sons. To make ends meet, Mangamma (Pushpavalli) has her younger son Mohan (Ganesan) adopted, raising her first son Muthu while working as a domestic servant. She witnesses a murder in the house, is arrested for the crime and jailed. When released, she finds the decent Muthu has become the enemy of the bad Mohan. Filmistan's Munimji (1955) rehearsed similar motifs.

Poongothai/Paradesi

1953 171'[Ta]/190'[Te] b&w Tamil/Telugu
d L.V. Prasad pc Anjali Pictures dial/lyr Sadasiva Brahmam[Ta], Malladi Krishna Sharma[Te] c Kamal Ghosh m Adi Narayana Rao
lp Anjali Devi, Sivaji Ganesan, S.V. Ranga Rao, A. Nageshwara Rao, Pandharibai, K.A. Thangavelu[Ta], Relangi Venkatramaiah[Te], Mohan

The Anjali Pictures debut is an incest melodrama. Chandram (Nageshwara Rao) becomes a pauper on the death of his father. To support the widow and son of a childhood friend, he finds a job and meets the beautiful flower-girl Lakshmi (Anjali Devi) at a hill resort. Defying her conservative father, they marry. When Chandram has to leave for the city in a hurry, Lakshmi believes that he has deserted her. She is persecuted by a suitor who burns down her house, and when Chandram returns he believes his wife is dead. Years later Lakshmi's daughter and Chandram's adopted son fall in love. In addition, rumour has it that Chandram's adopted son is in fact his illegitimate child by the widow he supported, making the incest motif yet more explicit.

Puttilu

1953 176' b&w Telugu
d/st Rajarao pc Raja Prod. dial Sankara, Vasireddy c V.N. Reddy, Ajit Kumar
m Mohandas, T. Chalapathi Rao lp Jamuna, Rajarao, Perumallu, Mikkilineni, Ramana Reddy, Chadalavada, Suryashree

The noted playwright Vasireddy, the composer Chalapathi Rao, future Telugu star Jamuna and the director all emerged from the IPTA's Andhra Unit, the Praja Natya Mandali. A father insists on having his daughter educated but forbids her to continue studying when she reaches marriageable age. She later leaves her unsuitable husband and the plot also addresses the woman's problematic relationship with her mother-in-law. The makers of this unsuccessful film were sometimes criticised for having sold out to commercialism, although other histories, notably those of the impact of the IPTA on Telugu cinema, continue to ascribe to it a historically significant role.

Sharey Chuattar

1953 ? b&w Bengali
d/sc Nirmal Dey pc MP Prod. st/dial Bijon Bhattacharya lyr Sainen Roy m Kalipada Sen lp Uttam Kumar, Suchitra Sen, Tulsi Chakraborty, Molina Devi, Bhanu Bannerjee, Jahar Roy, Nabadwip Haldar

A big hit, this effervescent comedy launches Bengali cinema's most successful star duo ever, Uttam Kumar and Suchitra Sen. Rajanibabu (Chakraborty) runs the Annapurna Boarding House. Into this raucous all-male world of mainly unemployed tenants arrives the beautiful Romola (Sen) with her parents. The hero Rampriti (Kumar) in the end triumphs over his main rival (Bannerjee) and gets the girl. Dey's breakthrough film after Basu Parivar (1952) expertly orchestrates a large number of characters while sustaining a fast pace.

Shyamchi Aai

1953 152' b&w Marathi
d/p/sc/co-lyr P.K. Atre pc Atre Pics st Sane Guruji's novel co-lyr Vasant Bapat, Rajkavi Yeshwant c R.M. Rele m Vasant Desai
lp Vanamala, Madhav Vaze, Umesh, Baburao Pendharkar, Sumati Gupte, Saraswati Bodas, Vasant Bapat, Prabodhankar Thakre, Damuanna Joshi, Nagesh Joshi, Bapurao Mane, Pandurang Joshi, Vimal Ghaisas

Major Marathi melodrama based on one of the most influential 20th C. Marathi novels (1935), a fictionalised account of the childhood years of Sane Guruji (1899-1950). A nationalist influenced by Vinoba Bhave and esp. Gandhi, he was imprisoned repeatedly for his work among the peasantry and participation in the Quit India agitations. His book Shyamchi Aai, written in jail, has 45 episodes in which Shyam, a youth living in poverty in Konkan, recalls the teachings of his mother. The film incorporates the heavy nationalist symbolism associated with the mother (Vanamala), a devoutly religious person with an earthy philosophy, as well as the sentimental depiction of her relationship with her son (Vaze). Despite its emphasis on a ruralist realism, the characters remain exemplary and (surprisingly for Atre) humourless stereotypes. The film, like the book, relies on flashbacks as Sane Guruji (D. Joshi) tells the stories in homage to a person to whom he owes everything. Episodes showing the young Shyam's maturation culminate in the mother's death. The hit film has remained a generic landmark in Marathi melodrama, esp. for Vanamala's maternal prototype. The book has been analysed by Shanta Gokhale (1990).

Thir amal a aka Waves

1953 172' b&w Malayalam

co-d/p P.R.S. Pillai co-d/m Vimal Kumar pc Kalasagar Films s T.N. Gopinathan Nair

lyr P. Bhaskaran c V. Ramamurthy

lp Kumari Thangam, Miss Chandni, Kumari

Kalyani, M.L. Rajam, P.D. Janaki, Kumari

Prabha, T.N. Gopinathan Nair, P. Bhaskaran,

Baby Vatsala, Sathyan, Thomas Birly,

T.S. Muthaiah, Sasikumar, Govinda Pillai,

Adoor Bhasi

Melodrama about separated lovers: Laxmi, the village landlord's daughter, and Venu, the son of the ferryman. Laxmi is married off to a city wastrel and Venu, who followed her to the city and became a waiter at the hotel where Laxmi stays, witnesses her marriage breaking up. The penniless Laxmi also loses her daughter. Laxmi and Venu each having returned to their village, they meet again in a storm as Venu comes to her rescue with his boat to take her to the opposite shore. However, the boat capsizes and, as the storm subsides, the film shows Venu's corpse being washed up on the shore. The Merryland Studio production is choreographed by Chandrasekhar to art direction by M.V. Kochhappu.

Aar Paar

aka From One Side to the Other

1954 146' b&w Hindi

d/p Guru Dutt pc Guru Dutt Prod. sc Nabendu

Ghosh dial Abrar Alvi lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri

c V.K. Murthy m O.P. Nayyar

lp Guru Dutt, Shyama, Shakila, Johnny

Walker, Jagdish Sethi, Noor, Beer Sakhuja,

Rashid Khan, Jagdeep

With this innovative and, for the period, daring film Guru Dutt enters the happiest phase of his career. He plays Kalu, a taxi driver and mechanic who has served a jail sentence for rash driving and is in love with Nicky (Shyama), the daughter of his boss at the garage. Several subplots are woven into their romance: a gang of safe busters led by Captain, kidnappers employed by Nicky's father and lovable ruffians like Elaichi Sandow (Jagdeep). Considered until recently a relatively minor Guru Dutt film, its bravura song picturisations such as the 'tragic' version of the song Ja ja ja ja bewafa (inverting the earlier number Sun sun sun sun zaalima), where the camera pans over a series of black pillars hiding heroine Shyama from the viewer, announce Pyasa (1957) and the melodramas that followed. Dutt experiments with novel ways of cutting songs into the story, e.g. omitting introductory music. The opening song sequence introduces the Western musical ploy of interposing incidental characters into the narrative choreography as the street urchins energetically dance in the streets of Bombay. As in all Dutt's films, the Geeta Dutt songs are perennial hits, including Babuji dheere chalna, Yeh lo main haari piya, Mohabbat kar lo, ji bhar lo (the last a duet with Mohammed Rafi). The film exudes a lighthearted cheekiness which, coupled with the elaboration of new generic conventions, divided the contemporary audience, offending the stiffer traditionalists and delighting the others.

Amar

1954 149' b&w Hindi

d/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.

st/co-sc S. Ali Raza co-st Mehrish, S.K. Kalla,

B.S. Ramaiah co-sc Agha Jani Kashmiri

lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Faredoon Irani

m Naushad

lp Madhubala, Dilip Kumar, Nimmi, Jayant, Ulhas, Mukri, Amar, Husnbano, Murad, Shakeel Nomani

Apparently Mehboob's favourite film in which the cowardly hero Amar (D. Kumar), a lawyer, seduces a milkmaid, Sonia (Nimmi), while engaged to Anju (Madhubala). The hero watches silently as Sonia suffers the consequences of their passionate moment while the villain, Sankat (Jayant), offers her help and comfort. Sankat causes havoc in the village before getting killed in a fight with Amar. Sonia is arrested and defended in court by Amar who eventually marries her. The film continues Mehboob's fascination with a kind of cultural primitivism (cf. Roti, 1942) shown here in the harvest number and in the temple sequences with both Anju and Sonia. The melodramatic subject combined with some unusually surreal imagery made the film an oddity in the genre. It was not a commercial success, possibly because the audience refused to accept Dilip Kumar in a negative role.

Anta Manaval i e

1954 185' b&w Telugu

d Tapi Chanakya pc Sarathi Pics s Kondepudi

Lakshminarayana lyr Tapi Dharma Rao,

Kopparapu Subba Rao, Konakalla

Venkatrathnam m Master Venu

lp C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, S.V. Ranga Rao, Narasimharao, Ramana Reddy, Krishnakumari,

Jamuna, Hemalatha, Rajasulochana,

Suryakantam, Perumallu

'Realist' corruption melodrama about a politician and village headman, Jagannatham (Ranga Rao), the man behind a gang of extortionists including Chidambaram (Anjaneyulu), Vaikuntam and Purniah. Chidambaram dupes the widowed Rathamma, forcing her family into destitution while he builds his bungalow. The fearless editor of the local newspaper (Perumallu) and his daughter (Krishnakumari), who loves the widowed Rathamma's son Sathyam, try to expose the corruption. A review in Andhra Patrika compared the film to Ladri di bicicletta (1948). Chanakya's debut, evoking the earlier radical-reformist cinema of Sarathi Pics, and Master Venu's debut as an independent composer relies heavily on folk-derived music.

Baadbaan

1954 ? b&w Hindi

d/st Phani Majumdar pc Bombay Talkies

Workers Industrial Coop. Society

sc/dial Nabendu Ghosh, Shakti Samanta

lyr Indivar, Uddhav Kumar c Roque M. Layton

m Timir Baran, S.K. Pal lp Ashok Kumar, Dev Anand, Usha Kiron,

Meena Kumari, Jairaj, Sheikh Mukhtar, Bipin

Gupta, Leela Chitnis, Gope, Shivraj,

Krishnakant, Mehmood

Billed as a 'Workers' Own Enterprise', the film was produced as a last-ditch attempt by its employees to keep Bombay Talkies alive. Lalan, the village headman, leaves to warn fishermen about an impending storm but he disappears followed by his wife Leela. Their child, adopted by the judge Mr Choudhury, grows up to become Naren (Anand). Educated abroad, he is to wed Bina, the daughter of a family friend. Shankar, Naren's friend and Bina's music teacher, also in love with Bina, keeps his feelings to himself. The marriage is called off when Mr Choudhury admits that Naren is not his son. The setting then shifts to the village where Naren decides to dedicate his life to the people, starting e.g. an ice factory and a workers' co-operative society. He falls in love with the village girl Mohna. Naren and Bina get married anyway, but she is unhappy about his rural activism.

Bangaru Papa

1954 183' b&w Telugu

d/co-sc B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini

st/co-sc Palagummi Padmaraju from George

Eliot's Silas Marner lyr Devulapalli Krishna

Sastry c B.N. Konda Reddy m A. Rama Rao lp S.V. Ranga Rao, K. Jaggaiiah, Jamuna, Krishnakumari, Ramasarma, Vidyavati, Ramana

Reddy, Jayalakshmi, Hemalatha

The rich Manohar (Jaggaiiah) marries the poor Shanta (Jamuna), neglecting to inform his conservative and tyrannical father. The father forces him to marry a girl of his choice, even as Shanta dies in a storm leaving an infant daughter behind. The daughter is rescued by the criminal Kotaiah (Ranga Rao) who, while raising her, becomes a reformed character. Manohar suffers, unable to declare the woman to be his daughter. The melodrama is remembered for Ranga Rao's performance. A commercial flop though a success among the urban upper class.

☞ Bedara Kannappa

1954 155' b&w Kannada
d H.L.N. Simha pc Gubbi Karnataka Films
s G.V. Iyer from his play m R. Sudarshanam lp Rajkumar, G.V. Iyer, Pandharibai, Narasimhraj

The screen debut of Kannada superstar Rajkumar in this quasi-mythological melodrama, derived from the Telugu 'folklore' genre (cf. Patala Bhairavi, 1951), effectively establishes this specifically Kannada genre in which human beings often turn out to be gods and earthly existence comes to function mainly as a metaphor for exclusion rather than as an engagement with reality. The theme appeared originally in the ragales (metrical compositions in couplets) of Harihara, a 13th C. Saint poet. The genre, inevitably featuring Rajkumar as the questing hero while the earthier sidekicks Narasimhraj and Balkrishna provide the comic interludes, is continued in e.g. Hunsur Krishnamurthy's Shri Kannika Parameshwari Kathe (1966). Here, Dinna (Rajkumar) and Neela (Pandharibai) are gods banished to earth where they are born to a tribe of hunters. They grow up and become involved with a corrupt temple priest who accuses Dinna of theft. Dinna weathers all the tests, including torture, the gods impose on him. Based on his original play for the Gubbi company, this is G.V. Iyer's film debut.

Rattan Kumar and Baby Naaz in Boot Polish

☞ Biraj Bahu

1954 145' b&w Hindi
d Bimal Roy pc Hiten Choudhury Prod.
st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay sc Nabendu Ghosh dial Nasir Hussain lyr Prem Dhawan c Dilip Gupta m Salil Choudhury lp Kamini Kaushal, Abhi Bhattacharya, Shakuntala, Pran, Randhir, Bikram Kapoor, Manorama, Kammo, Baby Chand, Iftikhar, Moni Chatterjee, Ravikant

Hindi remake of Amar Mullick's Bengali film for New Theatres' Biraj Bou (1946). Based on a story by Bengali novelist Saratchandra, the film's narrative pivot is the beautiful Biraj who is committed to the happiness of her husband Nilambar. Left in poverty by the callousness of Nilambar's brother Pitambar and to meet the cost of his sister Punnu's marriage, Biraj slaves away earning money making and selling dolls until an amorous young zamindar starts paying attention to her. Then, her commitment to her family yields to cynicism about the attitudes of all men towards women, including those of her husband. Edited by Hrishikesh Mukherjee and with Asit Sen as assistant director, this film continued Parineeta's (1953) effort to transplant themes from Bengali reform literature into the Hindi cinema, influencing the later films of Mukherjee and Sen.

☞ Boot Polish

1954 149' (99') b&w Hindi
d Prakash Arora pc R.K. Films p Raj Kapoor
s Bhanu Pratap lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri, Saraswati Kumar Deepak c Tara Dutt
m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Baby Naaz, Rattan Kumar, David, Chand Burque, Veera, Bhupendra Kapoor, Bhudo Advani, Shailendra, Prabhu Arora, Raj Kapoor

Following his collaboration with Abbas on Awara (1951), Kapoor presided over and allegedly directed most of this social melodrama credited to his assistant. It is a story about two orphan children, Bhola (R. Kumar) and Belu (Naaz), who are forced to become beggars in Bombay by their wicked aunt Kamala Chachi. They are shown the straight and narrow path by the one-legged bootlegger, Uncle John (David), who encourages them to take up the honest trade of polishing shoes. The film established a realist precedent for e.g. Salaam Bombay (1988), which replaced its sentimental optimism with an unrelenting miserabilism. Kapoor's film can be seen as an allegorical representation of the newly independent 'infant' Indian nation. As the upbeat marching song Nannhe munne bachche suggests, children can control their own destiny. Kapoor makes a guest appearance asleep on a train seat, being mistaken by Bhola as 'Raj Kapoor the film star' and silenced by the girl who sensibly remarks: 'Everybody pretends to be Raj Kapoor.' A shortened version was released in the USA in 1958.

☞ Chakrapani

1954 171' b&w Telugu
d P.S. Ramakrishna Rao p/m P. Bhanumathi pc Bharani Pics s/lyr Ravoori c P.S. Selvaraj lp P. Bhanumathi, T.G. Kamaladevi,

Leelakumari, Chhaya Devi, Suryakantam, A. Nageshwara Rao, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, Vangara, Sivaramakrishnaiah, Ramana Reddy, Amarnath

When Vijaya Studio refused to cast her in their hit comedy Missamma (1955), Bhanumathi apparently produced this film as a rejoinder. For a star best known for musical melodramas, this is an unusual comedy about an ageing miser named after the scenarist and proprietor of the Vijaya Studio, Chakrapani (Anjaneyulu), who promises his wealth to whichever of his two granddaughters (Bhanumathi, Kamaladevi) first bears him a great-grandson. The first is disqualified when she has a daughter while the second attempts to pass off someone else's child as her own, which leads to the arrest of her husband. Eventually a previously unknown grandson appears on the scene, inherits and distributes the property to all. Bhanumathi's first independent work as a composer had six songs, including the hit Ananda dayini.

☞ Champadangar Bou

1954 111' b&w Bengali
d/p/sc/c Nirmal Dey pc Nirmal Dey Prod.
st/lyr Tarashankar Bandyopadhyay
m Manabendra Mukhopadhyay lp Anubha Gupta, Uttam Kumar, Sabitri Chatterjee, Kanu Bannerjee, Premangshu Bose, Tulsi Chakraborty, Kobita Sarkar

Hit joint family melodrama in a sentimentalised rural setting, scripted by a noted Bengali novelist. The crusty head of the family, Setap Moral (Bannerjee), is contrasted with his irresponsible younger brother Mahatap (Kumar). Their conflicts are usually resolved by the elder brother's efficient and matronly wife Kadambini (Gupta), who is so fond of Mahatap that it causes a scandal. When the showdown between the brothers comes, Setap blames his wife for everything and wants to kill her. However, he relents when he realises Kadambini's commitment is really to the maintenance of the family's unity. A later Hindi version, Aanchal (1980), with Rajesh Khanna and Amol Palekar, emphasised the plot's association with the Ramayana legend. The boudi or elder sister-in-law's sexual attraction for a younger brother-in-law is a familiar theme in Bengali literature (cf. Saratchandra's Niskriti) and film (cf. Ray's Charulata, 1964).

herself by hiring Parashar as her teacher, thus introducing him into the decadent world of the urban rich. Eventually, a chastened Parashar returns to the village, realising he should never have departed from his ancestral vocation of playing the dhol. As Pather Panchali (1955) was still in production at the time, this is the film which established the Bengali village as a dominant icon in post-Independence romanticism. Placed outside the histories of famine and Partition, the village becomes a poignantly nostalgic repository of the values threatened by modernity. In the process, the country/city divide gets mapped on to the conflicts of tradition versus modernity, erotica versus surrender, innocence versus evil, good art versus bad art, and finally, the good woman versus the bad. Importantly, in this form, virtue triumphs only in defeat and in death.

Surabhi Balasaraswathi, Ezhumalai, Balasubramanyam, Sandhya, E.R. Sahadevan, Santha, Sriram

Classic MGR movie about an outlaw, Kumaraveeran, who robs the rich to feed the poor while maintaining a double identity as the Muslim merchant Abdul Rahim. He falls in love with Poonkothai (Bhanumathi) who is later used by the police to entrap the hero. Eventually, the police officer turns out to be the bandit's brother. According to M.S.S. Pandian (1992), in this film MGR established his political persona as a 'superman' imposing his own version of justice. The Karunanidhi script, replete with the customary DMK propaganda, inaugurated the crucial device of hinging its political message in a song: Pandian translates its lines as follows: 'How long will they fool us/ in this land of ours?/We'll open schools in every street/and see that none is unlettered/ We'll teach many vocations/and banish starvation/Because they don't even get a glimpse/of the hoarded money/Why do they keep yelling/There is no god?/Because He has not shown Himself/for far too long'. Written by Bharatidasan and sung by T.M. Soundararajan, the song was very popular. Malaikallan was remade in Hindi by the same studio as Azad (1955) starring Dilip Kumar.

Chandni Chowk

1954 ? b&w Hindi
d B.R. Chopra pc Hira Films st D.P. Berry sc I.S. Johar dial Kamil Rashid lyr Saif, Majrooh Sultanpuri, Raza Mehdi, Shailendra c Keki Mistry m Roshan lp Meena Kumari, Shekhar, Kumar, Jeevan, Achala Sachdev, Smriti Biswas, Yashodhara
Katju, Agha

Chopra's first hit is a costumed musical melodrama addressing Muslim feudal orthodoxy. The nawab Safdar Jung (Kumar), anxious about preserving his aristocratic lineage, turns down a proposal by the scheming Ibrahim Baig (Jeevan) that the nawab's daughter Zarina (Kumari) marry Yusuf (Agha), the rich son of a former vegetable vendor. Baig then tricks the nawab into letting Zarina marry Akbar (Shekhar), a gardener's son. Later, when Safdar Jung realises he was tricked, Akbar is forced to leave home and goes to Cairo where he meets a dancer, Noorie (Biswas), who later dies. The film is best remembered for Meena Kumari's performance, esp. the scene where she writes to her missing husband singing Aa jaye jane wale (sung by Lata Mangeshkar).

Dhul i

1954 163' b&w Bengali
d Pinaki Mukherjee pc Aaj Prod. dial Narayan Gangopadhyay m Rajen Sarkar lp Prashanta Kumar, Pahadi Sanyal, Nitish Mukherjee, Suchitra Sen, Mala Sinha, Anil Chatterjee, Chhabi Biswas, Jahar Roy

Parashar's (P. Kumar) grandfather Kunja is the celebrated village performer on the dhol (folk instrument), but his grandson chooses the more respected life of a singer and moves to Calcutta to pursue his profession, where he falls in love with Minati (Sen), his music teacher's daughter. Minati defeats the rich Ratri (Sinha) in a musical contest, the film's high point presented in terms of Krishna choosing between two Radhas, as Ratri sings the erotic and physical Nigodia neel sari, while Minati sings a Meera bhajan which has her surrendering to her lord (both songs were sung by Pratima Bandyopadhyay). Ratri avenges

Ethirparadathu

aka Unexpected
1954 182' b&w Tamil
d/sc Ch. Narayanamurthy p Saravanabava Unity s C.V. Sridhar c P. Ramaswamy
m C.N. Pandurangam
lp Sivaji Ganesan, Chittor V. Nagaiah, S.V. Sahasranamam, Padmini,
S. Varalakshmi, Friend Ramasamy, Baby Saraswathi

Sunder (Sivaji), the only son of Dayaparar (Nagaiah), a rich man in Madurai, is a student in Madras, living in a house with Sumathi (Padmini) and her father. The latter is depressed because his elder son, Doctor Gopu (Sahasranamam) has left home with his wife Nalini (Varalakshmi) to lead a modern life in Bangalore. Sunder interrupts his studies to visit the USA while, heavily indebted, Gopu and Nalini return home. To settle her brother's debts, Sumathi offers to marry Dayaparar, not knowing that he is her boyfriend's father. Besides, she believes Sunder died in a plane crash anyway, and she does not know that he survived, although blinded, rescued by tribals. Dayaparar eventually finds out that his wife was his son's lover, and he leaves home without a word, in search of his son, whom he finds and brings back to visit Sumathi, who promises to be a faithful friend to him. Dayaparar then tries sending her a message that he has died. She believes herself to be a widow, but still refuses to marry her boyfriend who is now also her stepson, an awkward situation that also troubles Sunder, who has by now regained his sight. In the end, Dayaparar drops dead of a heart attack as he reveals all, leaving Sunder at the feet of his lover. The film was remade in Hindi as Sharada (1957).

Mal aikal I an

1954 186' b&w Tamil
d/sc S.M. Sreeramulu Naidu pc Pakshiraja Studio st/co-lyr Namakkal Kavingar dial M. Karunanidhi co-lyr Balasubramanyam, Bharatidasan, Thanjai Ramaiyadas, Makkalanban
m S.M. Subbaiah Naidu c Sailen Bose lp M.G. Ramachandran, P. Bhanumathi, M.G. Chakrapani, P.S. Gnanam, T.S. Dorairaj,

Manohar a/Manohar

1954 199'[Ta]/184'[Te] b&w Tamil/Telugu/Hindi
d L.V. Prasad pc Manohar Pics st P. Sambandam Mudaliar s/lyr[Ta] M. Karunanidhi dial/co-lyr[Te] Acharya Athreya co-lyr[Te] Balijepalli Lakshmikanta Kavi, Sri Sri lyr[H] Vishwamitter Adil c P. Ramasami m S.V. Venkatraman lp P. Kannamba, T.R. Rajkumari, Pandharibai, Girija, Sivaji Ganesan,
S.A. Natarajan, S.S. Rajendran,
K.A. Thangavelu, Sadasivarao, Kaka
Radhakrishnan

Costume fantasy allegedly set in the 11th C. at the time of the Chola dynasty. The king (Sadasivarao), seduced by Vasantasena (T.R. Rajakumari), abandons his wife (Kannamba) and his son Manohara (Ganesan). Vasantasena wants Manohara arrested and her own son (Radhakrishnan) made heir. She has the king and queen imprisoned while she attempts to seize power. Manohara escapes from prison and leads a popular revolt against Vasantasena and her general Ugrasen (Natarajan). The hit, scripted by Karunanidhi and featuring a major star cast, is sometimes seen as the most chauvinist of all the DMK films with its anti-North India rhetoric climaxing in Ganesan's monologue at the end characterising all 'Aryans' as intruders and jackals who entered through the Khyber Pass.

Mayur pankh

1954 ? col Hindi
d/s/p Kishore Sahu pc Sahu Films lyr Hasrat Jaipuri c Andre Thomas m Shankar-Jaikishan lp Kishore Sahu, Sumitra Devi, Odette Ferguson, Jankidass, Reginald Jackson, Seema, Asha Mathur, Helen, Ramesh Gupta, Cuckoo, Moni Chatterjee

A love story addressing racial division and contrasting European and Indian values. Joan Davis (Ferguson) and William Griffith (Jackson), who loves Joan, arrive in India as tourists. One night, stranded in a dense forest, they meet Ranjit (Sahu), an aristocrat from Jaipur. Ranjit and Joan fall in love to the silent distress of Ranjit's wife Shanti (Sumitra Devi) as well as that of Griffith but, predictably, ethnic loyalties prevail in the end.

(Bhushan) rejection and final acceptance by the royal court is mainly a love story between the poet and a courtesan he calls Chaudhvin (Suraiya). The ever-popular Ghalib poetry is sung here by Suraiya, Talat Mahmood and Mohammed Rafi.

☼ Munna

1954 139' b&w Hindi
d/s/p K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar c Ramchandra m Anil Biswas
lp Romi, Sulochana Chatterjee, Shammi, Tripti Mitra, Achala Sachdev, David, Manju, Naaz, Jairaj, Om Prakash, Manmohan Krishna, Johnny Walker, Rashid Khan, Nana Palsikar, Jagdeep, Madan Puri, Bhudo Advani

After Wadia Movietone's Naujawan (1937), this was the 2nd songless film in the Hindi cinema. The absence of songs has remained one of its main claims to realism. It is a sequel of sorts to Abbas's debut film Dharti Ke Lal (1946), evoked in the opening sequence. Tripti Mitra is the widowed mother of Munna (Romi), a six-year-old boy. Unable to feed her child in the city, the mother eventually commits suicide, leaving Munna in an orphanage. The child escapes and encounters several characters whom he reforms with his innocence: the pickpocket Bhikudada (David), the crooked Seth Laxmidas, a clerk, a magician, a boy who makes a living pasting posters while nursing an ambition to become the prime minister of India, and a couple who want to adopt him. The film intercuts Munna's adventures with the travails of his mother, the two often narrowly missing each other in various city locations before she kills herself. Later Chetan Anand reworked the plot with an even younger child in Aakhri Khat (1966).

☼ Mirza Ghalib

1954 145' b&w Urdu
d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone
st Sadat Hasan Manto sc J.K. Nanda dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Shakeel Badayuni
c V. Avadhoot m Ghulam Mohammed lp Suraiya, Bharat Bhushan, Ulhas, Nigar Sultana, Durga Khote, Mukri, Murad, Baij Sharma

Costume period movie about the life of the best-known poet in the Urdu language, Mirza Asadullah Khan Ghalib (1797-1869) who was also for a while the court poet appointed by the last Mughal King Bahadur Shah Zafar. The film, chronicling Ghalib's

☼ Nagin

1954 139' col Hindi
d Nandlal Jaswantlal pc Filmistan st Bijon Bhattacharya sc Hamid Butt dial/lyr Rajinder Krishen c Fali Mistry m Hemanta Mukherjee
lp Vyjayanthimala, Pradeep Kumar, Mubarak, Jeevan, S.L. Puri, I.S. Johar, Ram Avtar, Krishnakumari, Kamal, Sulochana

A primitivist love fantasy and a big hit for Vyjayanthimala. She and Pradeep Kumar play professional snake catchers for different tribal groups. When they fall in love (encouraged by the hero's villainous rival, played by Jeevan) their respective clans go to war. A snake sent to kill the hero bites the heroine instead, but he then rescues her by sucking the poison out of her body. This skeletal plot holds together the dances choreographed by Sachin Shankar, Yogendra Desai and Hiralal and executed by the sinuous Vyjayanthimala. Major hit songs include Man dole mera tan dole sung by Lata Mangeskar and introducing Hemanta Mukherjee as a front-line Hindi composer as well as Kalyanji's clavoline which simulates the snake-charmer's flute. The number was adapted from Bijon Bhattacharya's play Jiyankanya which is also a distant source for the plot.

☼ Natashekhar a

1954 185' b&w Kannada
d C.V. Raju pc Jairaj Films m P. Kalingrao lp Kalyana Kumar, Sandhya, Vidya, H.R. Sastry, Jayashree, Comedian Guggu

Melodrama about Raja (Kumar) who wants to act in plays and films while his conservative father wants him to study. Raja runs away from home and eventually makes it as a star when he saves the actress Nalini. A big hit and the debut of Kannada star Kalyana Kumar who, like the character he plays, apparently also ran away from home to pursue an acting career.

☼ Naukri

1954 ?' b&w Hindi
d/p Bimal Roy pc Bimal Roy Prod. st Subodh Basu sc Nabendu Ghosh dial Paul Mahendra lyr Shailendra c Kamal Bose m Salil Choudhury lp Kishore Kumar, Sheila Ramani, Kanhaiyalal, Noor, Achala Sachdev, Tulsi Chakraborty, Jagdeep, Bikram Kapoor, Krishnakant

This Kishore Kumar musical features him as Ratan, an incurable optimist who believes that

Manju in Munna

on his graduation he will get a good job and achieve a rosy future for his poverty-stricken family. The film chronicles his gradual disillusionment turning to cynicism and eventually his coming to political awareness. It had one musical hit, Chhotasa ghar hoga (sung by K. Kumar with Usha Mangeshkar).

Neel akuyil

aka The Blue Koel

1954 182' b&w Malayalam

co-d/lyr P. Bhaskaran co-d Ramu Kariat

p K.M. Raja, T.K. Pareekutty pc Chandrathara

Pics s Uroob (aka P.C. Kuttikrishnan)

c A. Vincent m K. Raghavan

lp Kumari, Prema, Kodangallur Ammini Amma,

Sathyan, P. Bhaskaran, Master Vipin, Manavalan Joseph, Balakrishna Menon, Kochappan, Balaraman, J.A.R. Anand, Johnson, V. Abdulla, V. Kamalakshi, Thangamani

The Harijan girl Neeli (Kumari) is found dead with her illegitimate child which is adopted by the postman, a high-caste Hindu (Bhaskaran) to the consternation of the village. The child's real father, a high-caste teacher (Sathyan) with a barren wife (Prema), eventually acknowledges paternity, thus breaking the caste barrier. Kariat's direction debut is often presented as the first major breakthrough in the Malayalam cinema. The reformist literature of novelist Uroob was extended into a performance idiom, using new-generation actors like Sathyan alongside Vincent's crisp camerawork to manufacture for the first time a culturally valid and economically successful indigenous melodrama in Kerala. The film was a musical success, representing the best work of singer Kozhikode Abdul Qadir. The trend of realist melodrama inaugurated by this film was to continue for over 20 years, in Kariat's own work and e.g. in Vincent's M.T. Vasudevan Nair films.

Nir upedal u

1954 163' b&w Telugu

d T. Prakash Rao pc Gokul Pics

st K. Pratyagatma dial/lyr Anisetty

c B.S. Ranga m T.V. Raju

lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Jamuna, Ramana Reddy, Chadalavada, Surabhi Balasaraswathi, Sudhakar, Rajanala Nageshwara Rao

This reworking of the Ezhai Padum Padu (1950) story also had censorship trouble. Apparently the censors, apprehensive of leftist propaganda in a post-Telangana milieu, objected to, among other things, a 'Keep Left' traffic sign.

Oon Paos

1954 127' b&w Marathi

d Raja Paranjpe pc Navachitra

s/lyr G.D. Madgulkar c Bal Bapat m Sudhir Phadke

lp Raja Paranjpe, Sumati Gupte, Ranjana, Shanta Modak, Vasant Thengdi, Rajan, Baby Kala, Jayanti, Sanjeev, Gajanan Jagirdar, Dhupal, Vasudev Palande, Prabhakar Salvi, Anand Hardikar

Whimsical comedy about Babu Master (Paranjpe), an old schoolteacher, and his wife Kashibai (Gupte). After the graduation of their two sons and the marriage of their daughter, the much-loved teacher and his wife retire. However, fate intervenes: their house is auctioned and the couple are forced to seek shelter with their children, which forces the aged couple to separate. Eventually a grateful student rather than one of their children helps out and offers them shelter together. With Pedgaonche Shahane (1952) this is Paranjpe's best-known performance as actor-director and is sometimes seen as a predecessor to Panthulu's School Master (1958).

Pedda Manushul u

1954 191' b&w Telugu

d K.V. Reddy pc Vauhini st Ibsen's Pillars of Society sc D.V. Narasaraju lyr Kosaraju,

Veetukari, N. Raghavaiah c B.N. Konda Reddy m Ogirala Ramchandra Rao, Addepalli Rama Rao

lp Gaurinatha Sastry, Lingamurthy, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Sriranjani Jr., Vangara, Sheshamamba, Swarajyalakshmi, Ramchandra Kashyap, A.V. Subba Rao, Chadalavada

With this Ibsen adaptation by the Telugu playwright Narasaraju in his screen debut, the fantasist K.V. Reddy (Patala Bhairavi, 1951; Maya Bazaar, 1957) shifted to the realist melodrama which dominated Telugu cinema in the 50s. The central characters are chairman Dharma Rao (Sastry) and a widow who has an affair with a chauffeur (the film's most popular scenes). Other characters include Tikka Shankaraiah (Venkatramaiah) and a newspaper editor (Lingamurthy). The film reintroduced some popular Telugu folk songs, e.g. Nandamaya guruda nandamaya.

Pehli Tareekh

1954 ?' b&w Hindi

d Raja Nene pc Kamal Chitra st/co-sc Dada

Mirasi co-sc/dial/lyr Qamar Jalalabadi co-sc Madhusudan Kalelkar, G.R. Kamat

c Bal Bapat, M.N. Kulkarni m Sudhir Phadke

lp Nirupa Roy, Raja Nene, Agha, Yashodhara Katju, Sudha, Ramesh Kapoor, Vasant Rao Pahelwan, Javdekar

A realist inversion of Capra's It's A Wonderful Life (1947), this is an unusual story about the poor Shamlal (Nene) who, faced with starvation, commits suicide. His soul is not admitted into heaven and he is condemned to return to earth as a disembodied spirit. He has to watch his family face starvation and imprisonment and, in the film's climax, is unable to prevent his wife and daughter from committing suicide as well. The film helped establish Nirupa Roy's realist image. It was made by an ex-Prabhat director and actor (Daha Wajta/Das Baje, 1942) and contains Kishore Kumar's classic number Din ho suhana aaj paheli tareekh hai. It was remade in Kannada and Tamil (Modalatedi/Mudhal Thedi, 1955) by P. Neelakantan.

Ratha Pasam

1954 179' b&w Tamil

d R.S. Mani p Avai Prod. sc C.V. Sridhar c Magi

m Athmanathan, A.V. Natarajan lp T.K. Shanmugham, T.K. Bhagavathi,

T.S. Baliah, Anjali Devi, Vidyapathi,

M.S. Draupadi

Originally a successful play of the T.K.S. Brothers, the brothers repeated their roles in the film version. The Bombay pickpocket Raja (Shanmugham), who ran away from Madras as a boy, loves the street dancer Rani (Anjali Devi) and lives in a hut with her and her grandfather. Raja's elder brother Raghu (Bhagavathi) is a Madras businessman and lives with his wife Sarala (Draupadi) and their son Mohan. In Bombay on business, Raghu is cheated by his company's branch manager, Manorama (Vidyapathi), and her lover Madhu (Baliah) and he cannot face going home. Sarala arrives in search of her disappeared husband. She is sheltered by Raja and is employed by the thieves Manorama and Madhu as a maid. The villains escape with all the loot and Raja, who tried to detain them, finds Raghu trying to rape Rani. Raja and Raghu are at each other's throats when Sarala emerges to solve matters as blood proves to be thicker than water.

Snehaseema

aka Love's Limits

1954 165' b&w Malayalam

d S.S. Rajan pc Associated Prod.

s Poonkunnam Varkey c H.S. Venu lyr Abhayadev m V. Dakshinamurthy,

A. Rama Rao

lp Padmini, Sathyan, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, P.J. Cherian, G.K. Pillai, Ramankutty, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, S.P. Pillai

Johnny (Sathyan), raised by a priest, marries Omana (Padmini) against her father's wishes. To escape unpleasantness, he quits his teaching job and joins the army and is reported killed at the front. Omana is forced by her father to marry Baby (Nair), a doctor. When Johnny returns and finds her remarried he commits suicide, and she follows suit. Writer Varkey, noted in his writings for his attacks on the Church and the orthodoxy it represents in Kerala, loosely adapted Tennyson's Enoch Arden for this love tragedy set amid the Christian community in Kerala. Made at the Vauhini Studios and at Star Combines, the film developed a reputation and enduring appeal mainly for its claim to secular credentials.

Sorgavasal

Gateway to Heaven

1954 211' b&w Tamil

d A. Kasilingam p Parimala Films

s C.N. Annadurai m C.R. Subbaraman

lp S.S. Rajendran, K.R. Ramaswamy, P.S.

Veerappa, R. Balasubramanyam, Padmini, Anjali Devi

Costume drama about a poor but revered revolutionary poet, Madivannan (Ramaswamy), who has a sister, Thilagavathy (Anjali), who loves his wealthy friend Muthu Manikam (Rajendran). However, Muthu's father demands the girl's weight in gold as a dowry. Madivannan then takes his family to Vezha Nadu where he becomes a court poet and is sent to perform at a festival in Cholai Nadu. Having been charged to ask the local queen Kumara Devi (Padmini) to marry King Vetrivelan of Vezha Nadu (Veerappa), the poet falls in love with her himself. Obviously, Vetrivelan is annoyed and seeks revenge on the poet. When the court priest (Balasubramanyam) decides to build a massive temple at the people's expense, he asks Madivannan to sing at fundraising events, but the poet refuses to become part of such a confidence trick. This causes him to be accused of atheism and he is officially repudiated after an extended trial sequence, the highlight of which is the poet's lengthy monologue arguing the DMK's position that a revolutionary is not to be mistaken for an atheist. Vetrivelan then takes the opportunity to jail the poet's mother and to rape and jail his sister, which makes her go insane. In exile, Madivannan sings his revolutionary songs to incite the people to rise against Vetrivelan, who eventually sees the error of his ways and proclaims the state to be a democracy. Kumaradevi follows suit, renouncing her throne to marry the poet.

Taxi Driver

1954 138' (133') b&w Hindi
d/sc Chetan Anand pc Navketan co-st Uma Anand co-st/dial Vijay Anand lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Kalpana Kartik, Sheila Ramani, Johnny Walker, Ratan Gaurang, Rashid Khan, M.A. Latif, Bhagwan Sinha, Krishna Dhawan, Parveen Paul, Hamid Sayani, Vernon Corke

Dev Anand's best-known 'proletarian' performance as a taxi driver in a story inspired by film noir. Mangal, alias Hero (Anand), rescues Mala (Kartik) from some hoodlums. This act of chivalry leads to a series of encounters with a violent criminal gang who, later in the film, steal Mangal's cab to commit a bank robbery. Mala, who has ambitions of becoming a singer in the movies, finds shelter in Mangal's room, which also forces her, in the most dramatic part of the film involving a mysterious sister-in-law who appears and equally suddenly exits from the story, to cut her hair and to masquerade as a man. Mangal teaches her the foul-mouthed habits of the city's proletariat, their swaggering gait and their way of lighting a cigarette. Much of the film's action takes place in a nightclub where an Anglo-Indian cabaret dancer, Sylvie (Ramani), works and who is in love with Mangal. The film climaxes with a shoot-out in the club between the gang, aided by a bunch of film-industry types, and Mangal's friends. The film's explicit invocation of Hollywood is particularly well realised in the character of the flaxen-haired Anglo-Indian drummer in Sylvia's band, Tony (Corke). He also washes cabs, helps to save Mangal's life and, in a remarkable shot, lies resplendent on the roof of Mangal's taxi in the background during a drunken chat between Mangal and his comic sidekick (Walker). Most of the songs were Ramani's cabaret numbers with a few additions: the upbeat 'socialist-realist' taxi drivers' number Chahe koi khush ho chahe galiyan hazaar de sung by Kishore Kumar and the tragic Jaye to jaye kahan sung by Talat Mahmood.

Todu Dongal u

1954 142' b&w Telugu
d Yoganand p N.T. Rama Rao pc National Art Theatres s/lyr Samudrala Ramanujam c M.A. Rehman m T.V. Raju lp N.T. Rama Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, T.G. Kamaladevi, Hemalatha, Chalam, Rita, A. Pundarikakshayya, Sivaramakrishnaiah

Realist drama which helped define the image of Telugu megastar and politician NTR. He plays Paramesam, the corrupt manager of the Annapurna Rice Mills, in league with the owner Lokanatham (Gummadi). As a result of the brutal working conditions, the starving and unpaid worker Ramudu dies. The nasty duo get rid of Ramudu's body and claim he committed suicide. However, Paramesam feels guilty and, when another worker helps him when he is ill, joins the workers demanding that the factory pay compensation to Ramudu's family. Eventually Paramesam becomes the owner of the mill and the workers share in its prosperity. NTR's first production flopped but is sometimes presented as a predecessor of the realist 70s New Indian Cinema in Telugu.

Viduthal ai

1954 170' b&w Tamil
d K. Ramnoth pc New Era Prod. dial/co-lyr Velavan co-lyr Kothamangalam Subbu, Arumagam m Lakshman Raghunath lp Chittor V. Nagaiah, Manohar, Peer Mohammed, Ganapati Bhatt, Krishnakumari, Vimala

Nagaiah's last major film repeats his role in Ezhai Padum Padu (1950) for the same director. He plays a crooked lawyer, Periaswamy, who tries to get his brother Chellaiah (Manohar) off a murder charge by framing the poor Murugan (Mohammed), the driver of a horse carriage. Chellaiah, overcome with guilt, donates money he wins in a lottery to Murugan and confesses to his crime in a letter before committing suicide. Periaswamy tries to suppress the letter but he ends up in jail. In this melodrama Nagaiah tried to redefine his screen image but his career went into a long decline. The film included musical hits such as Nagaiah's Iraivane.

Vipranarayana

1954 183' b&w Telugu
d P.S. Ramakrishna Rao pc Bharani Pics s/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya
c M.A. Rehman m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao lp P. Bhanumathi, A. Nageshwara Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Allu Ramalingaiah, Vimala, Rushyendramani, Sandhya, K.V. Subba Rao

Bhanumathi's only major Telugu hit of the period continues the Bharani Studios' love stories with her and Nageshwara Rao. A Brahmin maker of flower garlands (Nageshwara Rao) devotes his life to the god Ranganatha but he is seduced by a woman (Bhanumathi) determined to make him break his vow. The musical hit sees the Vijaya composer Rajeshwara Rao making his debut at Bharani replacing their usual composer Subburaman. One of the hits, Ooh tapovana, recalls the classic Ooh pavuram number from Swargaseema (1945) and was apparently composed, uncredited, by Rajanikanta Rao. A.M. Raja's playback singing for the hero contributes to the film's success, notably his duets with Bhanumathi including the adaptation of 12th C. poet Jayadeva's composition Savirahe tava deena.

Waris

1954 ? b&w Hindi
d/c Nitin Bose pc Minerva Movietone
st Hakim Ahmed Shuja sc Arjun Dev Rashk lyr Qamar Jalalabadi, Majrooh Sultanpuri
m Anil Biswas
lp Suraiya, Nadira, Talat Mahmood, Jagdish Sethi, Yakub, Sadat Ali, Achala Sachdev

An inheritance melodrama about Kunwar (Mahmood), the son of zamindar Rana Himmat Singh (Sethi). Kunwar marries Shobha (Suraiya) and is disinherited, forcing him to join the army during WW2. When he is reported lost and presumed dead, a repentant Rana invites Shobha to stay with him. However, it is Kanta (Nadira), a young woman betrayed by Rana's villainous secretary Kailash (Yakub), who arrives at the house and is mistaken for Shobha. Masquerading as Shobha, who lives nearby in absolute poverty, Kanta moves in, causing a moral dilemma and generating suspense since she could be caught out any moment. Starring singing stars Talat Mahmood and Suraiya, the film includes several solos by each of them as well as some duets: Rahi matwale, Ghar tera apna ghar laage.

Alibabavum Narpatha

Thirudar gal um aka Alibaba and the Forty Thieves
 1955 160' (155') col Tamil
d T.R. Sundaram pc Modern Theatres
s Modern Theatres Story Dept. dial Murasoli Maran lyr A. Marudakasi c W.R. Subba Rao
m S. Dakshimanurthy lp M.G. Ramachandran, P. Bhanumathi, K. Sarangapani, P.S. Veerappa, K.A. Thangavelu, M.G. Chakrapani, M.N. Rajam, P. Susheela, Waheeda Rehman, Vidyavati, Bhupati Nandram, O.A.K. Thevar, K.K. Soundar

The 2nd major adaptation of the popular orientalist fantasy (the 1941 version starred N.S. Krishnan) and one of Modern Theatres' best-known films, featuring MGR and his elder brother M.G. Chakrapani. When the soldier Sher Khan abducts the dancer Marjina (Bhanumathi) to Amir Kasim's palace, Alibaba (MGR) rescues her. The woodcutter Alibaba, who is Amir Kasim's brother, has been disinherited but is quickly reinstated after discovering the magical cave full of jewels. When Amir Kasim goes after the jewels, he is apprehended and killed by Abu Hussain (Veerappa), chief of the thieves. Alibaba and Marjina eventually get the thieves and the gold. The first South Indian Gevacolor feature is remembered mainly for MGR's swashbuckling stunts (it is one of the star's most characteristic 50s genre films), the elaborate group dances and Bhanumathi's very popular song-and-dance routines (e.g. Unnai vidamatten, and Azhagana ponnutham before she tells the bandits to get into the barrels). Although the tale and costumes are pseudo-Arabic, Alibaba's wife incongruously refers to Yama, the Hindu god of death. Irises and wipes in the film add to its sense of anachronism. This is probably the Hindi star Waheeda Rehman's screen debut as a dancer.

mainly for Dilip Kumar's change of image and for Ramchandra's songs (including Kitna haseen hai mausam, sung by the composer with Lata Mangeshkar, Radha na bole re and Aplam chaplam). The film also relies on the staccato editing prevalent in 50s Madras cinema.

Dilip Kumar and Motilal, the latter in the role of the corrupting sidekick, Chunni Babu. Paro is played by the Bengali star S. Sen, and Vyjayanthimala is the prostitute Chandramukhi, each bringing with them the connotations accumulated in their respective generic star images. The new approach provides a more resonant historical background to a story usually focused almost exclusively on Devdas's psychological obsessions. In the famous train sequences when Devdas runs away from himself, eventually to die at Paro's doorstep, Roy's version conveys the sense of a savagely tragic journey through an Indian nation determined to rule out the possibility of the hero finding happiness.

⊗ Ardhangi/Pennin Perumai

1955 186' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d P. Pullaiah pc Ragini Films s Manilal Gangopadhyay's Bengali novel Swayamsiddha s/lyr Acharya Athreya c Madhav Bulbule m B. Narasimha Rao lp A. Nageshwara Rao[Te]/Gemini Ganesh[Ta], K. Jaggaiah[Te], Sivaji Ganesan[Ta], Savitri, Surabhi Balasaraswathi, Shantakumari, S.V. Ranga Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Chittor V. Nagaiah

A hit Telugu and Tamil ruralist melodrama (the Tamil is technically a remake). The heroine (Savitri, in the film that established her reputation as an actress) is forced to marry a mentally retarded man (Nageshwara Rao/Ganesh) whom she eventually nurses back to health while teaching a lesson to her scheming mother-in-law (Shantakumari) and brother-in-law (Jaggaiah/Ganesan).

⊗ Bandish

1955 129' b&w Hindi
d Satyen Bose pc Basu Chitra Mandir s Jyotirmoy Roy's novel Chheley Kar? lyr Jan Nissar Akhtar c Madan Sinha m Hemanta Mukherjee
lp Ashok Kumar, Meena Kumari, Daisy Irani, Roop Kumar, Bhanu Bannerjee, Bipin Gupta, Pratima Devi, Nasir Hussain, Sajjan, Shammi, Indira Bansal, Mehmood, Narmada Shankar

S. Bose's directorial debut in Hindi is a sentimental comedy about an orphan called Tomato (Irani). Looking for a more congenial guardian in a park, Tomato selects Kamal (A. Kumar) and turns him into her father. Kamal is a blackmail victim and is burdened by many other problems but he and his girlfriend Usha (Kumari) find themselves having to look after the child. In the end, the child helps resolve all the problems. The precocious performance by Daisy Irani, Hindi cinema's best-known child actress, was the film's main highlight.

⊗ Donga Ramudu

1955 197' b&w Telugu
d/co-st K.V. Reddy p A. Nageshwara Rao pc Annapurna Pics co-st D. Madhusudhana Rao co-st/dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya c Adi M. Irani m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Savitri, Jamuna, Rajanala Nageshwara Rao, S.V. Ranga Rao, Surabhi Balasaraswathi, Relangi Venkatramaiah, K. Jaggaiah, Vangara, Suryakantam

The debut production of Nageshwara Rao's company is a melodrama about a good-hearted thief who steals to support his sister. Jailed, and often accused of crimes he did not commit, he is blamed for a murder but eventually succeeds in unmasking the real criminal. One of composer Pendyala's better-known films.

⊗ Azad

1955 163' b&w Hindi
d S.M. Sreeramulu Naidu pc Pakshiraja Studios st Namakkal dial/lyr Rajinder Krishen c Sailen Bose m C. Ramchandra lp Dilip Kumar, Meena Kumari, Shammi, Achala Sachdev, Pran, Om Prakash, Raj Mehra, Badri Prasad, Randhir, S. Nazir, Murad

Hindi remake of Pakshiraja Studio's major M.G. Ramchandran hit, Malaikallan (1954). D. Kumar takes on the twin roles of Khan Saheb who is an urbane businessman by day but becomes the urban vigilante Azad by night. (It is instructive to note that at this time not even US comics had the temerity to cast businessmen as vigilante superheroes). Heroine Shobha (Kumari) is kidnapped by villains Sunder (Pran), Jagirdar (Murad) and Chunder (Nazir). Azad rescues her and she falls in love with him. Various efforts by the baddies to kidnap her again are foiled by Azad, as are other crimes, while Khan Saheb gives the cops (Prakash and Mehra) the runaround before explaining everything to them. Rather than serving MGR's particular political agenda, the Hindi version portrays capitalist entrepreneurs as the guardians of society. Remembered

⊗ Carnival Queen

1955 ? b&w Hindi
d Noshir Engineer pc Jewel Pics s Adi Marzban dial/lyr Pritam Dehlvi c Aga Hasham, Jehangir Mistry m Shafi M. Nagri lp Fearless Nadia, John Cawas, Shanti Madhok, Habib, Sheikh, Prakash, M.S. Khan, Shafi, Aftab, Pritam Dehlvi, Aga Miraz

This late Nadia-Cawas stunt movie sees her as Asha, a champion with the six-shooter displaying her marksmanship in her father's Great Jewel Carnival. To boost income and to pay off the Carnival's debt to the villain Prasad, she hires the motor-bike stunt rider Ashok (Cawas). Prasad tries sabotaging the bike and various other villainies but Asha eventually catches him after a long chase sequence. Scripted by noted Parsee Theatre director Adi Marzban.

⊗ Era Bator Sur

1955 ? b&w Assamese
d/s/lyr/m Bhupen Hazarika c Anil Gupta lp Phani Sarma, Bishnu Rabha, Bijoy Shankar, Tasadduf Yusuf, Anil Das, Preetidhara, Chhaya Devi, Eva Achaw, Rebecca Achaw, Balraj Sahni

Hazarika's debut as director tells of Jayanta (Shankar), a researcher into folk art and music who meets a young flautist (Das) in an Assamese tea garden. They fall in love with the same woman (Preetidhara), but the researcher withdraws, saying that he is expendable whereas the 'young man's flute must not be silenced'. Eva Achaw played the owner of the tea garden. Most of the film features the cultural traditions of the labourers in Assam's famous tea gardens and their celebrated folk music.

⊗ Devdas

1955 159' b&w Hindi
d/p Bimal Roy pc Bimal Roy Prod. st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay's novel sc Nabendu Ghosh dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Kamal Bose m S.D. Burman lp Dilip Kumar, Suchitra Sen, Vyjayanthimala, Motilal, Kanhaiyalal, Nasir Hussain

This remake of Barua's Devdas which Roy had shot in 1935 is dedicated to Barua and to K.L. Saigal. Roy's version is presented as a formal/technical modernisation of the famous legend, allowing for an extensive use of deep focus and the naturalist underacting of both

⊗ Garam Coat

aka The Clerk and the Coat
 1955 129' (80') b&w Hindi
d Amar Kumar p/s Rajinder Singh Bedi pc Cine Co-op st N. Gogol's The Overcoat lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Vaikunth Kunkalekar m Amarnath lp Balraj Sahni, Nirupa Roy, Vijayalakshmi, Jayant, Rashid Khan, Baj Sharma, Baby Chand

Seminal realist melodrama written, produced and effectively directed by Rajinder Singh Bedi. The postal clerk Giridhari (Sahni) does not have a proper winter coat and cannot afford the tweed jacket displayed in the window of tailor Mirazuddin's shop. During the day, he loses a Rs 100 note, recovers it from an erring customer and loses it again. Desperate and paranoid, he starts imagining that his wife Geeta (Roy), who tries to earn extra money doing odd jobs, has become a prostitute. He is about to throw himself under a train when he finds the money in the lining of his old coat. The film relocates Gogol's story in a post-Partition North India in economic crisis, human goodness crumbling in the face of a growing cynicism about state institutions. Depending mainly on Sahni's performance, the film has a notable soundtrack (e.g. the sound of trains merged into the voice of a woman singing). Jayant played the major role of the hero's Pathan friend Sher Khan. An 80' version entitled The Clerk and the Coat was made for international release.

☞ Kal vanin Kadhal i

1955 190' b&w Tamil
d V.S. Raghavan p Revathi Prod. sc Kalki from his novel dial S.D. Sundaram m Govindrajulu Naidu, Ghantasala lp Sivaji Ganesan, K. Sarangapani, T.R. Ramachandran, T.S. Dorairaj, P. Bhanumathi, Kushala Kumari, K.R. Selvan

Muthayyan (Sivaji) is torn between his love for two women: he is determined not to marry before his beloved sister Abirami (Kuchalakumari), but unless he agrees to elope with his lover Kalyani (Bhanumati), she is due to marry an old man. The hero's devotion to his sister wins out and the two leave town, Muthayyan going to work for Karwar Sangapillai (Dorairaj) who begins to lust after Abirami. As for Kalyani, she has no option but to marry the old man, which she does with a marked lack of enthusiasm for her marital obligations, causing her aged husband to become very suspicious. The old man nevertheless agrees to dissolve the marriage in exchange for a father-daughter relationship and Abirami gratefully nurses the old man until he dies. When Sangapillai is caught by the hero trying to rape Abirami, he defends himself by accusing Muthayyan of theft and having him jailed. A gypsy helps him to escape and he turns into a burglar. When Kalyani catches the hero in the exercise of his new profession, the former lovers seek to rekindle their affair, but then Muthayyan is shot dead by the police, after which Kalyani shoots herself so that her body falls on the corpse of her lover.

☞ Mangayar Thil akam

1955 194' b&w Tamil
d L.V. Prasad p Vaidya Films st C.V. Sridhar dial Valampuri Somanathan
m S. Dakshinamurthy
lp S.V. Subbaiah, Sivaji Ganesan, Thangavelu, K. Sarangapani, Padmini, M.N. Rajam, Ragini

Vasu (Sivaji), married to the haughty Prabha (Rajan), selects Sulochana (Padmini) as a suitably maternal figure to marry his beloved brother Karunakaran (Subbaiah). She reciprocates by accepting Vasu as her 'son' and she treasures his gifts, to the annoyance of Vasu's wife. Even Vasu and Prabha's son Ravi seems more attached to aunt Sulochana than to his own mother, and it is his aunt who rushes him to the temple when Ravi falls ill. However, though Ravi is saved, the rush to the temple causes Sulochana to drop dead. When her body is cremated on the funeral pyre, the bangles Vasu had given her remain uncharred by the fire.

☞ Missamma/Missiamma

1955 181' [Te]/179' [Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil
d L.V. Prasad pc Vijaya co-p B. Nagi Reddy co-p/s Chakrapani lyr [Te] Pingali Nagendra Rao
dial/lyr [Ta] Thanjai Ramaiyadas c Marcus Bartley m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao lp Savitri, Jamuna, Rushyendramani, S.V. Ranga Rao, Doraiswamy, N.T. Rama Rao [Te], A. Nageshwara Rao [Te], Relangi

Venkatramaiah [Te], Balkrishna [Te], Ramana Reddy [Te], Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao [Te], Gemini Ganesh [Ta], K.A. Thangavelu [Ta], K. Sarangapani [Ta], M.N. Nambiar [Ta], A. Karunanidhi [Ta], V.M. Ezhumalai [Ta], Santhanam [Ta], Meenakshi [Ta]

Hit comedy about a village zamindar (Ranga Rao) who advertises for a married couple to run a school set up in memory of his long-lost daughter. The unemployed Rao (NTR/Ganesh) and Mary (Savitri) pretend to be married to get the job. Annoyed by Rao's interest in the zamindar's other daughter (Jamuna in her debut), Mary starts teaching music to an amateur detective and the zamindar's future son-in-law (Nageshwara Rao/Thangavelu). Mary feigns pregnancy while the zamindar tries to convert her to Hinduism. Eventually Mary turns out to be the zamindar's lost daughter and she marries Rao. The Ghantasala/P. Susheela duet Varaya vennilave was especially popular. The film, which established Gemini Ganesh and Savitri as a lead pair, adapts Jyotish Bannerjee's classic Bengali comedy Manmoyee Girls' School (1935). Prasad remade his own version at the AVM Studio in Hindi as Miss Mary (1957) starring Meena Kumari. Anant Mane also did a Marathi version of the story, Jhakli Mooth (1957).

☞ Mr And Mrs '55

1955 157' b&w Hindi
d/p Guru Dutt pc Guru Dutt Films dial Abrar Alvi lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c V.K. Murthy
m O.P. Nayyar
lp Guru Dutt, Madhubala, Lalita Pawar, Johnny Walker, Kumkum, Cuckoo, Agha, Yasmin, Uma Devi, Radhika, Anwari, Harun, Moni Chatterjee, Roop Lakshmi, Beer Sakhuja, Al Nasir

Guru Dutt's 5th film as director is a classic social comedy relying on a familiar plot: the heroine must fulfil the terms of her father's will to inherit his wealth. Dutt uses this plot to satirise the reformism of India's urban upper class. Anita (Madhubala) must marry quickly to inherit her father's estate. Her aunt, the authoritarian champion of women's rights, Seeta Devi (Pawar), plots to find a needy bachelor who will marry Anita for money and divorce her immediately afterwards. A poor but lovable scrounger and cartoonist, Preetam Kumar (Dutt), agrees to the plan but he and Anita then fall in love. Pressured by Seeta Devi, Preetam eventually goes through with the divorce and even furnishes faked photographs compromising himself. When Anita discovers the truth, she and Preetam decide to stay together. Dutt's inventiveness is given free rein, esp. in the song picturisations. As the British critic Geoff Brown pointed out: 'Dutt realises the cinematic advantages of India's playback system. The camera never stands still. The first, in which Preetam tells his friend about meeting the heroine, starts in a bar, proceeds to a bus stop and continues on the bus, from which the couple are eventually thrown off. Another song - an argumentative duet between hero and heroine - is imaginatively performed among

☞ House Number 44

aka Ghar Number 44
 1955 ? b&w Hindi
d M.K. Burman pc Navketan s Vishwamitter Adil lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c V. Ratra
m S.D. Burman
lp Dev Anand, Kalpana Kartik, K.N. Singh, Rashid Khan, Anand Pal, Bhagwan Sinha, Kumkum, Sheila Vaz, Zamboora

Continuing in the vein of his Taxi Driver (1954) image, Anand plays the part of Ashok, a pavement-dweller and pickpocket who falls in with a gang whose hideout is house no. 44. The gang's pretty stooge Nimmo (Kartik) becomes his beloved and, to escape their life of crime, Ashok turns informer. Chased by the gang boss's henchmen and a mysterious figure called Captain, Ashok has to face a kangaroo court at the house but he eventually fights his way to freedom.

☞ Insaniyat

1955 185' b&w Hindi
d S.S. Vasan pc Gemini s Gemini Studio story dept dial Ramanand Sagar, T. Mukherjee lyr Rajinder Krishen c P. Ellappa m C. Ramchandra lp Dilip Kumar, Dev Anand, Bina Rai, Vijayalakshmi, Jayant, Jairaj, Shobhana Samarth, Badri Prasad, Kumar, Agha, Mohana

A rural adventure drama with Western overtones and the only time the two leading stars of the 50s, D. Kumar and D. Anand, appeared together. Mangal (D. Kumar) is the hero opposing the bandit chief Zangoora (Jayant) and his right-hand man Bhanu (Anand). When Bhanu raids a village, Mangal persuades Bhanu to renounce banditry and Bhanu becomes a leader of the villagers. Zangoora captures Bhanu and, in trying to rescue him and his child, Mangal is killed.

women drying and shaking out saris. But the most exhilarating number is the heroine's swimming pool song, performed with a smiling chorus line of girls twirling umbrellas, parading around the pool in delightfully tilted shots.' The film included hits such as Udhar tum haseen ho, Jaane kahan mera jigar gaya ji (both sung by Geeta Dutt and Mohammed Rafi) and Thandi hawa kali ghata (sung by Geeta Dutt).

Modal atedi/Mudhal Thedi aka The First Day of the Month

1955 165'[K]/145'[Ta] b&w Kannada/Tamil d/s P. Neelakantan pc Padmini Pics st Raja Nene's Pehli Tareekh (1954) c V.

Ramamurthy m T.G. Lingappa lp Sivaji Ganesan[Ta], B.R. Panthulu[K], M.V. Rajamma[K], M. Madhava Rao[K], Revathi[K], H.R. Sastry[K], Master Hiranayya[K], N.S. Krishnan[Ta], R. Balasubramanyam[Ta], Anjali Devi[Ta], T.A. Mathuram[Ta]

Kannada hit and debut production of Panthulu's Padmini Pics. A stoic reply to Capra's sentimental optimism, showing that a petty-bourgeois life is far from wonderful. Shivram (Panthulu)/Sivagnanam (Ganesan) is a lowly teller in a bank that goes bust and, unable to find work, he commits suicide so that his wife and children may get the insurance money. In heaven, at the court of Yama, the lord of death, he is punished for his irresponsibility: he is sent back as a disembodied spirit to witness what happens to the family. His son is imprisoned for stealing food, his daughter is molested and his wife, having murdered the molester, drowns herself in a well. Sivagnanam then wakes up screaming, realises it was all a dream and vows to face life's difficulties with courage. The film's style is conventional with elementary studio sets and painted backdrops, often using irises for shot transitions. The novel introduction of mythological elements into the realist tale is handled with much more aplomb in the South Indian version than in the original Hindi (Pehli Tareekh, 1954) which was mostly a Nirupa Roy melodrama. Here Brahma, lord of creation, becomes the mouthpiece to state the conditions of an unjust world. In the Tamil version the legendary comedy duo Krishnan (playing a carefree government clerk) and Mathuram assume the kattiyankaran role of traditional drama, providing comedy relief while offering social comment. Carnatic musician Dandapani Desigar sang two songs in the Tamil. One especially, Onnil iruthu irupathu varaikum, was especially successful. Ganesan, the lead in the Tamil version appears in a minor role in the Kannada version.

Mul u Manek

1955 137' b&w Gujarati
d/sc Manhar Raskapur pc Vikram Chitra st/dial Gunwantra Acharya from his play Allabeli lyr Karsandas Manek c Manek Mehta m Indukumar
lp Shanta Apte, Arvind Pandya, Champsibhai Nagda, Shalini, Champak Lala, Ulhas

This film of Acharya's anti-imperialist play, first staged by the IPTA, opens Raskapur's series of tales about valorous Rajput clans resisting the British conquest (cf. Kadu Makrani, 1960). Set in Okha, Kathiawar, a region taken by the British and controlled by the Gaekwad royalty, in the period preceding and during the 1857 mutiny. In his fight against the British and the Gaekwad family, the courageous Mulu Manek becomes a bandit. The antagonism is exacerbated when the hero's childhood friend Devba joins the enemy after being rejected by Mulu's sister. This is Marathi and Hindi singing star Apte's only Gujarati film. It was remade by Manibhai Vyas in 1977.

Munimji

1955 163' b&w Hindi
d/co-sc Subodh Mukherjee pc Filmistan st Ranjan co-sc/co-dial Nasir Hussain co-dial Qamar Jalalabadi lyr Shailendra, Sahir Ludhianvi c Marshall Braganza
m S.D. Burman
lp Dev Anand, Nalini Jaywant, Nirupa Roy, Pran, Amita, S.L. Puri, Prabhu Dayal, Kanu Roy, Samar Chatterjee

Whereas most Western melodramas would represent good and evil as conflicting forces within one character, this movie distributes the moral conflict across two half-brothers, Ratan (Pran) and Amar (Anand). The film then goes on to multiply this splitting device to the point of vertigo, making it a text eminently suitable for psychoanalytic interpretation. The process starts with Ram fathering a second son with his second wife. He then repudiates his first wife Malati (N. Roy), but she switches the two infants so that her son Ratan grows up as the heir while Malati and the second son, Amar, become servants in Ram's household. When the two boys grow up, each begins to lead a double life: Amar is a clerk who wears a disguise to hide his good looks, revealing them only when courting the haughty Roopa (Jaywant); Ratan, who is betrothed to Roopa, is also the notorious bandit and blackmailer Kala Ghoda whose schemes are often foiled by Amar. In the end, when Ratan tries to blackmail his own family, Malati denounces him as her real son. The film included the hit Jeevan ke safar mein rahi sung by Kishore Kumar.

Newspaper Boy

1955 120' b&w Malayalam
d/sc P. Ramadas p N. Subramanyam pc Adarsha Kala Mandir dial Nagavalli R.S. Kurup lyr K.L. Pukundam c P.K. Madhavan Nair
m A. Vijayan, A. Ramachandran lyr K.L. Poonkunnam m A. Vijayan, A. Ramchandran
lp Master Moni, Narendran, Venkateswaran, Mohan, Baby Usha, Nagavalli R.S. Kurup, Veeran

A highly acclaimed neo-realist experiment telling of Appu (Moni), the son of an industrial worker and a maid. When the father has an accident, is sacked and later dies of tuberculosis, Appu has to leave school and become the breadwinner, looking after his two even younger siblings when his mother dies as well. He works as a domestic servant in a rich household and eventually becomes a newspaper vendor. The film adapted the commercially successful 'realist' Bengali-Hindi tearjerker Babla (1951), esp. in modelling Master Moni's tragic and incorruptible determination to succeed and vindicate his family's good name in the style of Niren Bhattacharya. The director and production unit had no previous film-making experience.

Nimil a Anka

1955 ? b&w Assamese
d/s Lakhyadhar Choudhury pc Nilachal Chitrapeeth c Nalin Duara m Purshottam Das lp Anupama Bhattacharya, Girija Das, Begum, Kamal Narayan Choudhury, Lakhyadhar

(From left) Dev Anand, Ameeta and Nalini Jaywant in Munimji

Choudhury, Sarat Das, Muazzin Ali, Jibeshwar Chakraborty

Theatrical melodrama featuring the anxieties of a retired clerk who faces the degrading consequences of poverty. The director and most of the cast were well known Assamese stage personalities.

Chunibala Devi (left) and Uma Dasgupta in Pather Panchali

inaugurated a trend in Indian cinema which has been increasingly critiqued. A 115' version was prepared for circulation outside Bengal.

⊗ Pioli Phukan

1955 ? b&w Assamese
d/s Phani Sarma pc Rupjyoti Prod., Tezpur c Subodh Bannerjee lyr/m Bhupen Hazarika lp Phani Sarma, Chandradhar Goswami, Hiren Choudhury, Eva Achaw, Jnanada Kakoti, Rebecca Achaw, Bina Das

Nationalist Assamese film providing a fictional account of a legendary Assamese anti-imperialist figure. Pioli Phukan (Sarma), a somewhat wayward 'prince', is transformed into a radical nationalist eventually hanged by the British. The noose turns into a halo as he accepts his fate.

⊗ Rail way Platform

1955 162' b&w Hindi
d/s Ramesh Saigal pc Saigal Prod. lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Dronacharya m Madan Mohan lp Nalini Jaywant, Sunil Dutt, Sheila Ramani, Johnny Walker, Manmohan Krishna, Leela Mishra, Nisha, Nana Palsikar, Jagdeep

Melodramatic parable in a social-realist idiom. A flood forces a train to stop for 24 hours at a remote railway station in the Andher Nagari (land of darkness) kingdom ruled by an authoritarian king whose daughter Princess Indira (Ramani) is among the passengers. Other passengers include the unemployed Ramu (Dutt), his sister and aged mother; Kavi, a long-haired and cynical poet; a laundryman and his formidable wife; and an avaricious Marwari businessman, Nasibchand. When the food runs out, Nasibchand buys the local grocery shop and starts a black market. A Westernised clique, keeping their distance from the others, starts dancing and drinking while a Brahmin priest charges money to perform mandatory religious rituals. Indira falls in love with Ramu and wants to marry him right away, although the grocer's poor daughter Naina (Jaywant) also loves him. The marriage is interrupted by the arrival of Indira's royal father. Eventually Ramu and Naina get married. The film included the hit Basti basti parbat parbat (sung by Mohammed Rafi) and several catchy numbers by Lata Mangeshkar and Asha Bhosle.

⊗ Roj ul u Marayi/Kal am Mar ipochu

1955 190'[Te]/211'[Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil
d/co-st Tapi Chanakya pc Sarathi Pics co-st K.L. Narayana, C.V.R. Prasad dial/co-lyr[Te] Tapi Dharma Rao co-lyr[Te] Kosaraju
dial/lyr[Ta] M. Rajamanikam c Kamal Ghosh
m Master Venu
lp A. Nageshwara Rao[Te], Gemini Ganesh[Ta], Sowcar Janaki, Perumalu, Hemalatha, Relangi Venkatramaiah, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu[Te], T.S. Balaiah[Ta], Waheeda Rehman

Major Telugu/Tamil hit musical and reformist rural melodrama often cited as the film which redefined the formula for commercial success in 50s Telugu cinema. The peasant hero Venu (Nageshwara Rao/Ganesh) takes on the oppressive might of the zamindar (Anjaneyulu/Baliah) and succeeds, helped by a sympathetic police force, in redistributing the land to the peasants. The hero also marries a low-caste woman (Janaki) rejected by his parents. The film was apparently inspired by the Avadi Congress (1955) where Nehru called for a 'socialist pattern of society in which the principle means of production are under social ownership', a view replicated in the film's

⊗ Pather Panchali

aka Song of the Little Road aka Song of the Road

1955 122'(115') b&w Bengali
d/sc Satyajit Ray pc West Bengal Govt st Bibhutibhushan Bannerjee's novel (1929)
c Subrata Mitra m Ravi Shankar
lp Kanu Bannerjee, Karuna Bannerjee, Chunibala Devi, Uma Dasgupta, Subir Bannerjee, Tulsi Chakraborty, Runki Bannerjee, Aparna Devi, Binoy Mukherjee, Haren Bannerjee, Harimohan Nag, Nibhanani Devi, Ksirodh Roy, Ruma Ganguly

Ray's classic, internationally successful debut initiated the Apu trilogy (Aparajito, 1956; Apur Sansar, 1959) featuring young Apu (S. Bannerjee) and his impoverished family in the Bengali village of Nischintpur in the early 20th C. The Brahmin priest Harihar Rai (Kanu Bannerjee) goes to the city in search of employment, leaving behind his two children Apu and Durga (Uma Dasgupta), his wife (Karuna Bannerjee) and an ancient aunt, Indira Thakurain (Chunibala Devi). At the end of the film, Durga dies and the family leaves the village, moving to Benares. Ray used this meagre plot to elaborate a strikingly innovative narrative, evoking the classic symbols of a newly independent nation, the aftermath of the war and the shift towards Nehruite industrialism. The major scenes in the film, including the children's romp in the fields where they first encounter a telegraph pole and a train belching clouds of smoke, and the death of the old aunt followed by that of Durga after her rain dance, were spectacularly filmed by the debuting Mitra. The final scene of the family leaving in a cart shows the three faces of father, mother and son, virtually summing up the film's achievement: the father's contorted self-pity evokes a long tradition of the pitiable protagonist in Bengali melodrama, while the mother's expression signals 'fortitude', hiding a tragedy too grim for words. Apu, in sharp contrast, cut off at the neck by the frameline in the lower left-hand corner, stares without expression into the distance, suggesting curiosity as well as apprehension at what the future may bring. Ray claimed the influence of Italian neo-realism in what was, despite the presence of several well-known names from Bengali theatre and film, a revolutionary use of performance, and in his shooting style. Within India, the film signals one of the artistic pinnacles of a specifically modernist art enterprise inaugurated by post-war Nehruite nationalism. In the context of later historical developments and the work of the Subaltern Studies group, the film's deployment of a secular, Enlightenment liberalism institutionalised by Nehru combined with a fantasy of pre-industrial village innocence dialogues and lyrics. The song Eruvaka sagaloi, picturised on Waheeda Rehman who thus became a star, was a megahit in Telugu and is regarded as signalling the advent of a new generation. According to V.A.K. Ranga Rao, the song's tune had been used by C.R. Subburaman in Shri Lakshamma Katha (1950), where the folk-singers Seeta and Ansuya claimed authorship, although it was probably adapted from a 20s HMV recording by their teacher Valluri Jagannatha Rao. When the M.G. Ramachandran hit Madurai Veeran (1956) used a similar tune, the producer was sued for plagiarism. The tune was later used for other South Indian lyrics and by S.D. Burman in Bambai Ka Babu (1960) for Asha Bhosle's rendition of Dekhne mein bhola hai, dil ka salona.

Santhanam

1955 187' b&w Telugu
d C.V. Ranganatha Das pc Sadhana Prod. co-dial/lyr Anisetty, Pinisetty
m S. Dakshinamurthy c Rehman, Prasad, Rajamani lp A. Nageshwara Rao, S.V. Ranga Rao, Amarnath, Chalam, Ramana Reddy, Savitri, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Sriranjani Jr., Mikkilineni

Melodrama about a sister and two brothers who believe themselves to be orphans. They grow up doing odd jobs and the elder brother becomes the manager of a touring theatre group, the younger a wrestler and the sister a maid in a rich household. They eventually trace their father and the family is reunited. Lata Mangeshkar sang her first Telugu film song, Nidura pora thammuda. L.V. Prasad is credited with 'direction supervision'.

Shap Mochan

1955 ? b&w Bengali
d/p Sudhir Mukherjee pc Production Syndicate st Phalguni Mukherjee sc Nripendra lyr Bimala c Deojibhai m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Uttam Kumar, Pahadi Sanyal, Suchitra Sen, Kamal Mitra, Bikash Roy, Gangapada Basu, Suprobha Devi, Jiben, Amar, Deepak, Tapati, Banani, Nitish

An early example of a Kumar-Sen romance of star-crossed lovers. Mahendra (Kumar) belongs to a family of musicians cursed because an ancestor once humiliated his guru (shown in the film's opening sequence). Mahendra's elder brother Debendra (Sanyal) became blind and to avoid the same fate, Mahendra promises to abandon the family vocation and moves to Calcutta to live with the rich Umeshchandra (Mitra), whose daughter Madhuri (Sen) tries to make a bourgeois gentleman out of him. However, the impecunious Mahendra sees himself forced to return to music and he vents his anger at urban values with the film's hit song Suno bandhu suno (sung by Hemanta Mukherjee). The curse strikes and he falls dangerously ill, but is rescued by a now-chastened Madhuri. The hit followed on the success of Pinaki Mukherjee's Dhuli (1954) and continued the famous theme of musicians who physically suffer the clash between traditional values and urbanisation (cf. Anjan Choudhury's Guru Dakshina, 1987).

Shri 420

aka Mr 420
 1955 177' b&w Hindi
d/p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films st/co-sc K.A. Abbas co-sc V.P. Sathe lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c Radhu Karmakar m Shankar-Jaikishen lp Raj Kapoor, Nargis, Nadira, Nemo, Lalita Pawar, M. Kumar, Hari Shivdasani, Nana Palsikar, Bhudo Advani, Iftikhar, Sheila Vaz, Ramesh Sinha, Rashid Khan, Pesi Patel

Having played a tramp in Awara (1951), Kapoor elaborates his vagabond image further with this sentimental story about Raju (Kapoor), a country boy carrying the archetypal bundle on the end of a stick over his shoulder, who tries to make his fortune in Bombay. The city is presented in terms of Abbas's familiar stereotypical contrast between the corruption of the urban rich and the warm-hearted poor (e.g. Pawar as the fruit-seller). Raju falls in love with Vidya (Nargis), a poor schoolteacher who has a paralysed father. Maya (Nadira) is the femme fatale who embroils Raju in a decadent life. Raju is seen gambling, playing the trumpet in a club, surrounded by dancing-girls (the number Mudmud ke na dekh), and he becomes a conman in the employ of Maya's friend Seth Dharmanand, a ruthless capitalist. When he is used to swindle the homeless, Raju rebels and a lively chase involving a bag of money provides the bridge to the happy ending. Opening with the Chaplin number Mera Joota hai japani (sung by Mukesh), the film includes some of the star's most famous star songs: the carnivalesque Dil ka haal sune dilwala (sung by Manna Dey) and the best-known Kapoor-Nargis duet, performed in the rain as they fall in love, Pyar hua ikraar hua (sung by Manna Dey and Lata Mangeshkar).

Udan Khatola

1955 151' b&w Hindi
d S.U. Sunny pc Sunny Art Prod. s Azmi Bazidpuri lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Jal Mistry
m/p Naushad
lp Dilip Kumar, Nimmi, Jeevan, T. Suryakumari, Agha, Nawab, Roopmala, Tuntun

Musical hit adapting Capra's Lost Horizon (1937). An aeroplane crashes in the lost island of Shanga. Only Kashi (D. Kumar) is saved by Soni (Nimmi), the daughter of the peshwa, i.e. the minister. The two fall in love causing problems for her fiance Shangu (Jeevan). Kashi needs the queen's (Suryakumari) permission to settle in the village but complications arise when the queen falls in love with him too. The queen manipulates a situation in which Soni is sacrificed (set to the song hit O door ke musafir), which is followed by the death of the hero as well. Produced by Naushad for the director's company, it includes some of the composer's famous songs: Mera salaam le ja and the two numbers sung by Lata Mangeshkar, Hamare dil se na jana and Duba tara ummeedonse chhut gaya. Dubbed in Tamil and released successfully as Vanaratham (1956) with new lyrics by Kambadasan.

Amar a Deepam

aka The Eternal Lamp
 1956 162' b&w Tamil
d T. Prakash Rao pc Venus Pics p Venus Krishnamurthy s C.V. Sridhar lyr K.P. Kamakshi, A. Marudakasi, K.S. Gopalakrishnan c A. Vincent
m T. Chalapathi Rao lp Sivaji Ganesan, M.N. Nambiar, K.A. Thangavelu, Savitri, Padmini, Chittor V. Nagaiah, E.V. Saroja

While rescuing Aruna (Savitri) from kidnappers, Ashok (Ganesan) is hit by a car and loses his memory. Having joined a group of nomads, the gypsy singer Rupa (Padmini) falls for him and her love eventually helps cure his amnesia. He returns to Aruna and Rupa, who turns out to be Aruna's sister, kidnapped as a child, is shot trying to save him from the villains. Scenarist Sridhar later wrote and directed several triangular love stories. The Carnatic music maestro G.N. Balasubramanyam and G. Ramanathan each contributed one composition. One of the songs refers to the landowner-peasant conflict at Thanjavur and the hero, employed for a while in a factory there, is allowed to express some dissatisfaction with the capitalist ethos. An adaptation of Mervyn LeRoy's Random Harvest (1942), which was much more faithfully translated into Bengali the following year (Harano Sur, 1957). The director remade this Tamil hit into Hindi, Amar Deep (1958) with Dev Anand and Vyjayanthimala, produced by the Tamil version's star Ganesan.

Aparajito

aka The Unvanquished
 1956 127'(113') b&w Bengali
d/sc Satyajit Ray pc Epic Films st Bibhutibhushan Bannerjee's novels Pather Panchali and Aparajito c Subrata Mitra m Ravi Shankar lp Kanu Bannerjee, Karuna Bannerjee, Pinaki Sen Gupta, Smaran Ghoshal, Santi Gupta, Ramani Sengupta, Ranibala, Sudipta Roy, Ajay Mitra, Charuprakash Ghosh, Subodh Ganguly, Mani Srimani, Hemanta Chatterjee, Kali Bannerjee, Kalicharan Roy, Kamala Adhikari, Lalchand Bannerjee, K.S. Pandey, Meenakshi Devi, Anil Mukherjee, Harendrakumar Chakravarty, Bhaganu Palwan

Following on from Pather Panchali (1955), Apu (Pinaki Sen Gupta/Smarn Ghoshal) comes of age. His father, the Brahmin Harihar Rai (Kanu Bannerjee), dies in the family's new home near Benares and his mother, Sarbajaya (Karuna Bannerjee), is forced to accept the charity of a rich uncle (R. Sengupta) in another village in order to educate her son. Apu's insistence on going to school rather than taking up his family's priestly vocation sows the seeds of further tragedy. His departure for a Calcutta college is followed, inevitably, by the death of his mother. The film is more extensively plotted than its predecessor and more melodramatic, e.g. making Apu's refusal to stay with his mother a personal rather than a historical conflict. His life in Calcutta, studying by day and working in a printing press by night, is juxtaposed with his mother's wasting illness. Ray also uses with greater freedom a directly romantic brand of symbolism, such as the mother festooning the house with lights for the Diwali festival shortly before her husband dies, the latter being accompanied by a shot of rising pigeons at dawn. Ray noted that several problems prevented a full realisation of the script, including a defective Arriflex, the need to rush through the editing and difficulties with composer Ravi Shankar which created 'blank moments, [s]lowing down the film'. However, his contemporary Ghatak admired precisely this musical sparseness: 'Sarbjaya and Apu are returning to the village from Benares; the train leaves the village behind; soon through the windows one can see the landscape of Bengal. [J]ust then on the soundtrack you hear that [Pather Panchali] theme tune. Just once for the whole length of the film, but once is enough. A [c]orrelative between the past and present floods your mind with memories of Nischintpur and Durga and the white cotton fields' ('Sound In Film', in Ghatak, 1987). With the help of Ray's regular art director Bansi Chandragupta, Mitra pioneered the use of bounce lighting to suggest the ambience of Benares houses on studio sets. The film flopped but was re-evaluated after its critical success in Europe.

⊗ Awaaz

1956 146' b&w Hindi
d/s/co-lyr Zia Sarhadi pc Mehboob Prod.
lyr Shailendra, Vishwamitter Adil, Prem Dhawan m Salil Choudhury lp Nalini Jaywant, Usha Kiron, Zul Velani, Rajendra Kumar, Nasir Hussain, Anwar Hussain, Sapru

Sarhadi's best-known melodrama drew on Pudovkin and Donskoi-style Soviet realism to tell of an oppressive industrialist (Sapru), his trusted foreman, Bhatnagar (N. Hussain) and the lives of Bhatnagar's family. The foreman obsessed with his daughter Bela's (Kiron) marriage, pretends to have a large sum set aside to secure her future. When the father of her fiance, Ashok (R. Kumar), claims a large dowry, Bhatnagar is distraught. He loses his job and dies of the shock. His son Kishen (Velani), who resented that money had allegedly been saved for his sister, now discovers that there is no money and, in a drunken moment, accuses his own wife Jamuna (Jaywant) of having stolen the cash. Desperate to raise the dowry, Jamuna does odd jobs and falls into the clutches of the old industrialist who had sacked her father. The man promises to give her the money in exchange for sex. She takes the money and then commits suicide. The film contains many references to Soviet film styles, including the heavy-handed use of low and high angles, e.g. the shots of the overcoat-wearing Banke (A. Hussain), a figure representing the organised proletariat (esp. in the militant workers' song Araram tararam duniya ke kaise kaise gam) and the family's self-appointed protector. The only print currently available has been reconstructed from fragments of original prints.

⊗ Ayodhyapati

1956 ? b&w Hindi
d S. Fattelal pc Pushpa Pics s Pushpa Pics Story Dept lyr Saraswati Kumar Deepak c P. Isaac m Ravi lp Raaj Kumar, Anant Kumar, Balraj Mehta, Ratnamala, Kanchanmala, Rajan Haksar, Gadadhar Sharma, Dar Kashmiri, Amrit Rana, Heera, Nalini, Bhalerao, Dabboo, Roshan Kumari, Kiran, Asha

Fattelal made this mythological after he left the Prabhat Studio. The film shows the decay of a genre in which Fattelal used to excel. The story, featuring early episodes from the Ramayana, tells how Kaikeyi saves the life of King Dasharatha in a celestial battle between gods and demons and wins two boons. The rest of the story narrates the early life and adventures of Rama.

⊗ Chintamani

1956 158' b&w Telugu
d P.S. Ramakrishna Rao pc Bharani Pics s/lyr Ravoor Venkata Satyanarayana Rao c Sridhar m P. Bhanumathi, Addepalli Rama Rao lp P. Bhanumathi, N.T. Rama Rao, Jamuna, S.V. Ranga Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Kalyanam Raghuramaiah, Rushyendramani, Lakshmikantam

Bharani Studios' remake of Y.V. Rao's Tamil mythological, Chintamani (1937). Chintamani (Bhanumathi), forced into prostitution by her mother, falls in love with the merchant Bilwamangal (NTR). The latter reciprocates her feelings, which leads to much tragedy, revealed in mystical imagery: his wife's corpse and a python help Bilwamangal cross a river to be with his beloved. Chintamani is disillusioned, prompting the gods Krishna and Rukmini to descend to earth to show her the right path. The legend was filmed repeatedly, some versions presenting it as a biography of the saint poet Surdas (Homi Master's silent Bilwamangal, 1929; Madan Theatres' Bilwamangal, 1932). Most Hindi and Bengali versions tell the story from the male perspective, following Girish Ghosh's famous play Bilwamangal (1886), but the South Indian films narrate Chintamani's tale. Although at times accused of plagiarising C. Ramchandra's Hindi compositions from Azad (1955), Bhanumathi's score is successful (e.g. Ravoyi ravoyi, Punnami chakorinoyi). Kannada actress B. Saroja Devi repeated the title role the following year.

⊗ Chori Chori

1956 158' b&w Hindi
d Anant Thakur pc AVM s Aga Jani Kashmiri lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Shailendra c V.N. Reddy

m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Nargis, Raj Kapoor, Gope, Master Bhagwan, Johnny Walker, David, Mukri, Raj Mehra, Pran, Indira Bansal, Amir Bano, Rajasulochana, Kumari Kamala, Sayee, Subbulakshmi

A lively comedy derived from Capra's It Happened One Night (1934). A millionaire's daughter affectionately nicknamed Baby (Nargis) wants to marry a man her father knows to be a gold-digger. Annoyed by her father, she runs away and meets the impoverished journalist Suman (Kapoor). Together they journey through South India and they fall in love. This is the last of the romantic duos between Nargis and Kapoor. Nargis only appeared once more in his films: Jagte Raho (1956) as a final tribute to her collaboration with RK Films.

⊗ CID

1956 146' b&w Hindi
d Raj Khosla pc Guru Dutt Films s Inder Raj Anand lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri, Jan Nissar Akhtar c V.K. Murthy m O.P. Nayyar
lp Dev Anand, Shakila, Waheeda Rehman, Johnny Walker, Kumkum, K.N. Singh, Bir Sakhuja, Jagdish, Prabhuji, Uma Devi, Rajesh Sharma, Paul Sharma

Khosla's first successful film, made in the crime movie tradition of Navketan inflected by Guru Dutt's influence. Police Inspector Shekhar (Anand) investigates the death of a newspaper editor when he meets Rekha (Shakila), the daughter of the commissioner (K.N. Singh). Shekhar keeps running into a mysterious woman (Rehman) who, in a cloak-and-dagger encounter, tries to bribe him to release a crook. He meets her again at Rekha's birthday party. The crook she wants released is mysteriously killed in jail and Shekhar is blamed for police torture. He goes into hiding, pursued by the murderer he was investigating as well as by the police. He eventually solves the case in hospital. The film is dominated by Rehman's luminous presence in her first Hindi role, the camera enhancing her mystery with soft-focus over-the-shoulder shots. Her sensuality is particularly well rendered in the scenes where she tries to seduce the crime boss (with the song Kahin pe nigahen) in order to facilitate the hero's escape.

⊗ Hatimtai

1956 ? col Hindi
d Homi Wadia pc Basant Pics s J.B.H. Wadia, Hakim Lala lyr Raza Mehdi, Akhtar Roomani, B.D. Mishra, Chand Pandit c Anant Wadadekar m S.N. Tripathi lp Jairaj, Shakila, B.M. Vyas, Naina, Meenakshi, Krishna Kumari, Sheikh, S.N. Tripathi

An Arabian Nights tale first filmed by Prafulla Ghosh as a silent 4-part serial in 1929. It tells, in Gevacolor, the story of Hatim who travels in the poverty-stricken Mufdisganj, giving clothes and alms to the needy. He meets the Munir Shami, the impoverished prince of Kharzaman. The prince tells Hatim his story: the prince was to marry the daughter of Shah Saudagar Barzikh, but when the shah had cast his 'evil eye' on the fairy Gulnar the fairy turned to stone, promising that the shah's own daughter will also turn to stone on the day of her marriage unless someone solves the Seven Riddles that will free both Gulnar and the princess. Hatim, after many adventures in enchanted woods meeting fairies and giants, solves riddles like 'What I experience once I want to experience again' or 'Do good deeds and throw them in the water'.

this expressionist effort that became successful only after a 115' version of the film received the main prize at the Karlovy Vary festival in 1957. Kapoor plays a 'thirsty peasant' wandering through Calcutta looking for a drink of water. He breaks into an apartment block but is discovered and has to dodge the residents, an ingenious narrative device to move the hero from one flat and one milieu to another, allowing for a comic yet critical survey of middle-class Bengali life. The film ends with the hero's searing denunciation of a class that places no value on honesty and a fantasy sequence in which Nargis finally offers him water to the tune of a song heralding the dawn, Jago ujjara chhaye. The British critic Geoff Brown noted: 'Kapoor's character is cut from Chaplin's cloth. He starts out sharing food with a dog, squatting on the pavement, and spends most of the film acting in pantomime, darting in and out of rooms, hiding in a drum, shinnying down a drainpipe, periodically pursued by a lively crowd of residents wielding anything from sticks to stringless tennis racquets. The result is one of Kapoor's most diverting films.'

lp Chhabi Biswas, Tinku Thakur, Radhamohan Bhattacharya, Manju Dey

Sinha's version of the Tagore short story (pub. 1918) about an Afghan tribesman, Rehmat (Biswas), who sells spices in Calcutta and befriends a little girl (Thakur, sister of Sharmila Tagore in her only film role, in an uninhibited performance) who reminds him of the daughter he left behind. Having killed a man who tried to cheat him, the Kabuliwala is jailed for many years and on his release he finds that the little girl has grown up, prompting the realisation that his own daughter has probably forgotten him. Radhamohan Bhattacharya (cf. Udayer Pathy, 1944) played the girl's father and Manju Dey her mother, both evoking a sentimentalised history of Calcutta's bhadralok. The story was remade in Hindi by Hemen Gupta (1961) starring Balraj Sahni in a Bimal Roy production.

Jagte Raho/Ek Din Raatre

aka Stay Awake aka Under Cover of Night aka A Night in the City 1956 149'[H]/153'[B] b&w Hindi/Bengali
d/s Sombhu Mitra, Amit Moitra p Raj Kapoor
pc R.K. Films dia K.A. Abbas[H] lyr Shailendra, Prem Dhawan[H] c Radhu Karmakar m Salil Choudhury lp Raj Kapoor, Pradeep Kumar, Sumitra Devi, Smriti Biswas, Pahadi Sanyal, Nemo, Iftikhar, Sulochana Chatterjee, Daisy Irani, Nana Palsikar, Motilal[H]/Chhabi Biswas[B], Moni Chatterjee, Bikram Kapoor, Bhupendra Kapoor, Bhudo Advani, Krishnakant, Pran, Ratan Gaurang, Rashid Khan, Nargis

Two major figures from the Bengali IPTA, actor-director Sombhu Mitra and composer Salil Choudhury, collaborated with Raj Kapoor on

Kabul iwal a

1956 116' b&w Bengali
d/sc Tapan Sinha pc Charuchitra st Rabindranath Tagore c Subodh Ray m Ravi Shankar

Kul adaivam

1956 ? b&w Tamil
d Krishnan-Panju p S.K. Pics. s Murasoli Maran m Sudarshanam lp T. Balasubramaniam, S.V. Sahasranamam, Rajagopal, S.S. Rajendran, Mustafa, T.R. Natarajan, Pandharibai, M.N. Rajam, Mainavadi, Vijayakumari

The educated, middle-class Shantha (Pandharibai), the pride of her family, marries the lower middle-class owner of a textile shop, Muthaiyya (Sahasranamam) and starts to run her new family, consisting of an aged aunt, three brothers-in-law, one of which has a little stepson called Kanmani, and a widowed young cousin, Latha (Mainavadi). The family comes under stress with the wedding of two brothers-in-law, prompting the elder one to move to a village taking his wife, son and aunt. When he is on his deathbed, Shantha strives successfully to reunite the family.

Madurai Veeran

aka The Soldier of Madurai
1956 199'(165') b&w Tamil
d Yoganand pc Krishna Pics. p Lena Chettiar s/co-lyr Kannadasan co-lyr Udumalai Narayana Kavi, Thanjai Ramaiyadas
c M.A. Rehman m S. Dakshinamurthy lp M.G. Ramachandran, N.S. Krishnan, P. Bhanumathi, Padmini, E.V. Saroja, T.A. Mathuram

A megahit version of the legend of Madurai Veeran (played by actor-politician MGR), a popular Tamil Nadu village deity and the subject of numerous ballads and plays. Set in the 17th C. court of the Poligars, the story starts with Veeran, rather like Oedipus, being abandoned in a forest as an infant because of a bad omen, but he is protected by the wild animals and later adopted, amid much celebration, by a cobbler and his wife (Krishnan and Mathuram). He rescues and falls in love with Princess Bommi (Bhanumathi), who is promised, by convention, to her maternal uncle. Just before her forced marriage, he abducts her, while she, in turn, rescues him from atop an elephant when he is sentenced to death. The happy end is in sight when, in tune with the MGR narrative showing two women vying for the unreachable hero, he also falls for Velaialammal (Padmini), causing a love triangle which ends when the hero's body is mutilated, and he becomes - with his two consorts - the icon of Tamil Nadu. The film belongs to the type of action spectacular made popular by the Gemini and Vijaya studios, but extends into a rampant animism as all of (studio-bound) nature participates in and applauds the hero performing death-defying feats shot in ways that often recall the late silent era (cf. Hamir's acrobatics in Diler Jigar, 1931). Extending the resemblance is the film's use of framing devices, presented frontally before an unusually submissive, imagined audience, and underlined by its final image: the prone, foreshortened body of the hero flanked by two mourning women, flowers raining down on the trio from the heavens as metallic statuettes of the threesome emerge. The narrative, however, takes on a new dimension by equating the hero's physical mobility with the character's movement from underdog to tragic lover to nobleman and eventually to divine status. It was written by the noted DMK rationalist poet Kannadasan, and is an early example of the political appropriation of Tamil folk ballads praising heroes like Chinnadan, Chinnathambi, Jambulingam and others. Most of these heroes, according to Vanamamalai (1981) quoted by Pandian (1992), are 'low-caste men who protect crops, protect the cattle, protect the rights of lower-caste women, challenge sexual norms, challenge the privilege of higher-caste groups and demand equal rights for the lower-caste men with talent and skill'.

Raj Kapoor in Jagte Raho

Mal el a Jiv

1956 141' b&w Gujarati
d/sc Manhar Raskapur pc Sadhana Chitra st/dial/co-lyr Pannalal Patel c Bipin Gajjar, Manek Mehta co-lyr/m Avinash Vyas lp Dina Gandhi, Mahesh, Champsibhai Nagda, Vishnukumar Vyas, Babu Raje, Pratap Ojha, Chandrika Thakore, Champak Lala, Tarla
 Mehta, Leela Jariwala, Vijay Bhatt, Kamlesh Thakkar, Manjula, Shobha Joshi, Narmadashankar, Naran Rajgor, Chandrakant Sangani, Baby Purnima

Love story scripted by the prominent Gujarati novelist Patel. The hero Kanji, separated from his lower-caste girlfriend Jivi, tries to persuade her into a pro-forma wedding which, he hopes, will allow the couple to continue their relationship. Things take a tragic turn as Kanji is forced to leave the village and Jivi commits suicide. The earthy realism of Patel's descriptions and language is substantially retained.

New Del hi

1956 176' b&w Hindi
d Mohan Segal pc Deluxe Films s Inder Raj Anand, Radhakishen lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c K.H. Kapadia m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Vyjayanthimala, Kishore Kumar, Jabeen, Radhakishen, Nasir Hussain, Dhoomal

Segal's remarkable satire, continuing his work with Kishore Kumar, advocates national unity. The North Indian Daulatram Khanna (N. Hussain) opposes the marriage of his son Anand (K. Kumar) with Janaki (Vyjayanthimala), the daughter of the South Indian Mr Subramanyam. He throws out the Bengali painter Ashok who loves Khanna's other daughter, Nikki (Jabeen). The musical highlight of the deliberate cultural pot-pourri is Kishore Kumar dressed as Fred Astaire with a cane and a top hat singing Nakhrewali to an indigenous dance number by Vyjayanthimala. The film included several topical references to contemporary politics.

Rangoon Radha

1956 192' b&w Tamil
d A. Kasilingam pc Mekala Pics st C.N. Annadurai
sc/dial/co-lyr M. Karunanidhi
co-lyr Athmanathan, Pattukotai Kalyanasundaram, Subramanya Bharati c G. Durai m T.R. Papa
lp Sivaji Ganesan, S.S. Rajendran, P. Bhanumathi, M.N. Rajam, Rajasulochana,
N.S. Krishnan

Complicated adventure and murder mystery attacking feudal superstition. A flashback reveals the evil designs of Dharmalinga Mudaliar (Ganesan): though married to Rangam (Bhanumathi), he now wants to marry her sister Thangam (Rajam) as well in order to get their ancestral property. Mudaliar's wife, locked in a room and declared insane, gives birth to a son before she escapes in disguise. She witnesses her husband murdering a tantric conman who promised to reinvigorate Mudaliar's sex drive. In Rangoon, she is protected by Naidu (Krishnan) and gives birth to a daughter named Radha (Rajasulochana). When the film moves to the present, Nagasundaram (Rajendran), the man who falls in love with the grown-up Radha, is revealed to be the son of Mudaliar. Eventually the two unmask the villain and avenge their mother. Apparently inspired by Gaslight (1940), the film offers a rare example of Tamil star Ganesan in a negative role.

Rarichan Enna Pauran

aka Citizen Rarichan
 1956 166' b&w Malayalam
d/lyr P. Bhaskaran p T.K. Pareekutty pc Chandrathara Prod., Vauhini s Uroob
c B.J. Reddy m K. Raghavan lp Vilasini, Prema, Miss K.P. Raman Nair, Master Latif, K.P. Oomer, J.A.R. Anand, P. Kunjava, Ramu Kariat, Kochappan, Kalamandalam Kalyanikutty Amma, Padmanabhan, Manavalan Joseph

Rarichan (Latif) is an orphan employed by a kindly widow and her daughter in their teashop. When he saves the day by producing the daughter's dowry enabling her to get married, it turns out he stole it and is arrested.

Lyricist Bhaskaran's first solo as director in many ways continues the Newspaper Boy (1955) type of realism, but in more melodramatic form using more songs (including some lilting Mappila folk music from North Malabar). The other film that probably inaugurated this trend of 'heartwarming' realist films featuring children performing adult tasks was Boot Polish (1954).

Sagarika

1956 152' b&w Bengali
d/sc Agragami pc S.C. Prod. p Sukumar Kumar st/dial/co-lyr Nitai Bhattacharya co-lyr Pranab Roy, Gouriprasanna Majumdar c Bijoy Ghosh
m Robin Chattopadhyay lp Suchitra Sen, Uttam Kumar, Jamuna Singha, Namita Sinha, Tapati Ghosh, Kamal Mitra, Jahar Ganguly, Pahadi Sanyal, Anup Kumar, Sabita Bhattacharya, Manjushree Ghatak, Jiban Bose, Nitish Mukhopadhyay, Santosh Sinha, Salil Dutta

Classic Sen/Kumar melodrama evoking e.g. Nitin Bose's love tragedies with Dilip Kumar. Impoverished and orphaned medical student Arun (U. Kumar) falls in love with colleague Sagarika (Sen). Following an act of perfidy by Arun's cousin Sipra (Sinha), who is also in love with him, Arun loses a scholarship to go to England and has to borrow money on condition that he marry Basanti (Singha) on his return. The suffering Sagarika has to look after the illiterate Basanti, which means writing Basanti's love-letters to Arun. Arun goes blind after an accident, and on his return Sagarika nurses him back to health, pretending to be Basanti. In the end, the lead couple unite. As in the Kapoor/Nargis love stories of the same period, this film is famous for the ecstatic, soft-focus close-ups of the lead pair and esp. of Suchitra Sen, which became classic icons in Bengali popular culture, transcending the characters and suggesting a fantasy of romance in which love can, by its own internal strength, develop an independent destiny. The monologues, esp. of Uttam Kumar as a voice on the soundtrack, contribute to the lyrical scene transitions, a style which evolved further with e.g. Ajoy Kar (cf. Saptapadi, 1961), Salil Dutta and Asit Sen generating the finest examples of popular film's absorption of the Bengali romantic literary tradition. These films, and others such as Saat Pake Bandha (1963), are further enhanced by their contrast to the resurgence of traditional values in 80s Bengali cinema, partly through assimilating the 'social' contemporary Jatra, and partly as a means of keeping a distance from the influence of Hindi film.

Taksaal

aka The Mint
 1956 ?' b&w Hindi
d/p/s Hemen Gupta pc Hemen Gupta Prod. lyr Prem Dhawan c V.N. Reddy m Roshan lp Balraj Sahni, Nirupa Roy, Smriti Biswas, Radhakrishen, Master Jayant

A 'realist' melodrama, independently produced by Gupta in Bombay, bemoaning the power of money. The lawyer Jatin Mukherjee (Sahni) is beset by disasters because of his lack of money: his son dies, his unmarried sister is raped by her employer and commits suicide. These events lead him to believe that only wealth can secure happiness and he proceeds to acquire it through crime.

troublesome Padma, which he does without losing his humility.

people adopt and incorporate change into their networks of social relations.

Tenali Ramakrishna/

Tenali Raman

1956 204 [Te]/195 [Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil/Kannada d/p/c B.S. Ranga pc Vikram Prod. st Based on C.K. Venkataramaiah's play sc/dia[Te]/lyr[Te] Samudrala Raghavacharya dia[Ta] Kannadasan, Murugadasa
m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy
lp P. Bhanumathi, Jamuna, N.T. Rama Rao, A. Nageshwara Rao[Te], Chittor V. Nagaiah[Te], Surabhi Balasaraswathi[Te], Sivaji Ganesan[Ta], T.S. Dorairaj[Ta], Rajkumar[K], Balkrishna[K], Sandhya, K. Mukkamala

Megabudget trilingual featuring the legendary folk hero and jester in the government of Krishnadeva Raya, king of the Vijayanagara Empire 1509-30. The Bahamani Kingdom, in a protracted war with Vijayanagara, sends the dancer and courtesan Krishnasani (Bhanumathi) to seduce the king (NTR) and to spy on him. The king falls in love with her and only an elaborate ruse by Tenali Ramakrishna (Nageshwara Rao/Ganesan/Rajkumar) and Chief Minister Timmarasu (Nagaiah/Dorairaj/Balkrishna), another legendary figure (and the subject of an independent film biography by K. Kameshwara Rao in 1962), in which they disguise themselves as a holy man and his disciple, enables the king to realise the truth. Bhanumathi's musical presence was again the film's star attraction. The story had been filmed by H.M. Reddy in 1941.

Adarsha Hindu Hotel

1957 141' b&w Bengali
d Ardhendu Sen pc Sreelekha Pics st Bibhutibhusan Bandyopadhyay's novel (1940) sc Jyotirmoy Roy lyr Manabendra Mukherjee m Ali Akbar Khan lp Chhabi Biswas, Dhiraj Bhattacharya, Jahar Ganguly, Tulsi Chakraborty, Jahar Roy, Anup Kumar, Sandhyarani, Sabitri Chatterjee, Sikha Bag, Sova Sen

Based on a minor novel by Bibhutibhusan Bandyopadhyay, the author of Pather Panchali (1929), Hotel had already been successfully adapted to the stage for the Rangmahal theatre in Calcutta (1953). The plot revolves around two rival hotels at the Ranaghat railway station. The establishment run by Bechu Chakraborty (Ganguly) is winning because of its excellent cook, Hajari Thakur (Bhattacharya). The maidservant Padma (Sandhyarani), envious of the cook's reputation, steals some utensils from the kitchen and frames the cook, who is arrested. On his release, he starts the Adarsha Hindu Hotel. It becomes popular and he wins the contract to start a restaurant at the railway station itself. In the end, he has the satisfaction of employing his former boss as well as the

Ajantrik

aka Pathetic Fallacy aka The Unmechanical
 1957 120' (102') b&w Bengali
d/sc Ritwik Ghatak pc L.B. Films st Subodh Ghosh c Dinen Gupta m Ali Akbar Khan lp Kali Bannerjee, Kajal Gupta, Shriman Deepak, Gyanesh Mukherjee, Keshito Mukherjee, Gangapada Basu, Satindra Bhattacharya, Tulsi Chakraborty, Jhurni, Anil Chatterjee, Seeta Mukherjee

Ghatak's 2nd major film explores the romantic trope of the pathetic fallacy (making nature into a metaphor for human emotions), a figure often used in Indian literature and cinema (cf. the films of Shantaram or Kidar Sharma). However, Ghatak modifies the trope, endowing it with complex historical resonances as tribal culture (here the Oraon culture) and a motor car are put on the side of nature while the 'human emotion' side of the trope is represented by greed in the form of rampant capitalism and industrialisation in the shape of bulldozers and the mining town of Ranchi. The plot revolves around Bimal (K. Bannerjee) and his battered taxi, an old Chevrolet he calls Jagaddal. Because he takes his car to be a living being, many believe Bimal to be mad. In a long sequence, Bimal plies his trade, his world intersecting at various points with that of the Oraon tribals. Industrialisation proceeds relentlessly, sowing discord among the tribals, and Jagaddal breaks down irretrievably. It has to be dismantled and sold for scrap. In the end, a child finds the car horn on the street and plays with it, making it emit the call of the 'Oraon' horn. Many parallel storylines are interwoven into the basic plot, along with extensive sequences and repeated images of both tribal cultures and landscapes. These strands come together in a scene where Bimal first shares in an Oraon feast and then literally burdens his car with objects of nature after which the car breaks down. The other side of the complex trope is represented by imagery evoking the speed of technologically driven change: electric telegraph wires, a train, the village madman's (K. Mukherjee) metal basin which is replaced by a gleaming new one at the end. Ghatak commented in 1958: 'The idea of the machine has always had an association of monstrosity for us. It devours all that is good, all that is contemplative and spiritual. It is something that is alien. [T]his apathy may be due to the fact that all change and the very introduction of the machine age was the handiwork of foreign overlords. It may have more comprehensive causes, encompassing all the pangs of Western civilisation. But the end-product of all these causes seems to be an ideological streak which is doing immense harm in all practical spheres of life' ('Some Thoughts on Ajantrik', in Ghatak, 1987). The film itself suggests a more complex position on the question of industrialisation: not that machines are monstrous (Jagaddal is Bimal's love object) but that the forces driving the speed of change disregard and thus destroy the slower, more human tempo at which

Aasha

1957 171' b&w/col Hindi
d M.V. Raman pc Raman Studios s Jawar Seetaraman dial/lyr Rajinder Krishen
c S. Hardip, Fali Mistry m C. Ramchandra lp Vyjayanthimala, Kishore Kumar, Pran, Raj Mehra, Minoo Mumtaz, Randhir, Naina, Shivraj, Patanjali, Lalita Pawar, Om Prakash

Partly made in colour, this love story and crime drama is a comedy variation of the Hamlet theme. The story revolves around an old landowner, Hasmukhlal (Prakash), his son Kishore (K. Kumar) who is accused of murder, and the villain Raj (Pran) who is Kishore's cousin. The love object is Nirmala (Vyjayanthimala), the niece of a millionaire coveted by Raj. Kishore, masquerading as an Arab, launches a theatre company and resolves the conflicts by performing a play in front of the 'real-life' characters to whom the fiction is addressed. Director Raman, star Vyjayanthimala and writer Jawar Seetaraman enlivened a standard AVM plot, with Ramchandra's fast-paced music and Kishore Kumar's mainly slapstick acting and relying on his pioneering singing style culminating in the foot-stomping and ever popular number Ina Mina Dika (sung in two versions, one by Kishore Kumar and the female version by Asha Bhosle).

Ambikapathy

1957 187' b&w/col Tamil
d/dial P. Neelakantan pc A.L.S. Prod.
p V. Arunachalam sc Sakthi Krishnaswamy, Chinna Annamalai, M. Lakshmanan lyr Thanjai Ramaiyadas, Kannadasan, K.D. Santhanam, K.M. Balasubramanyam, Pattukotai Kalyanasundaram, Adimoolam Gopalakrishnan, K.S. Krishnamurthy
c V. Ramamurthy m G. Ramanathan lp P. Bhanumathi, Sivaji Ganesan, M.K. Radha, M.N. Nambiar, Rajasulochana, N.S. Krishnan, T.A. Mathuram, Chittor V. Nagaiah, K.A. Thangavelu, A. Karunanidhi, Santhanam, Kannan, Natarajan

Legendary tale about the 11th C. court poet Kambar, a plot used earlier by Duncan (1937). The love story between the lower-caste poet Ambikapathy (Ganesan) and Princess Amaravati (Bhanumathi) is mapped on to a disagreement between Kambar, who is translating the Ramayana into Tamil, and his son and 'modern' disciple, Ambikapathy, who critiques the translation for its acceptance of caste divisions. The spectacular end has the king challenging Ambikapathy to improvise 108 songs in praise of chaste love. The poet miscalculates and his last song is a passionate love song addressed to the princess, for which he is sentenced to death.

Bandi

1957 ?' b&w Hindi
d Satyen Bose pc Shri Pics dial Mahendra Pran lyr Rajinder Krishen c Madan Sinha

m Hemanta Mukherjee

lp Ashok Kumar, Bina Rai, Kishore Kumar, Anoop Kumar, Nanda, Shyama, Kanhaiyalal, Kammo, Mishra, Banerjee, Krishnakant

Satyen Bose's melodrama, based on Sailajananda Mukherjee's Bengali film Bondi (1942), features the Kumar brothers (Ashok, Kishore and Anup). Madhav (Kishore Kumar) is the innocent and illiterate brother of the educated and married Shankar (Ashok Kumar) who works for an eccentric zamindar, becoming the object of the affections of the zamindar's daughter Mala (Rai). The villain of the piece, Choubaji (Mishra), causes Shankar to be jailed for 15 years. Shankar's wife (Shyama) dies and his younger brother Madhav, now the guardian of Shankar's daughter (Nanda), arranges her marriage to a boy who happens to be the villain's son. When Shankar is released, he marries Mala and sets out to avenge himself on Choubaji, causing violent conflicts in which he nearly kills his own brother. There are several Kishore Kumar solos in this film remembered as one of the comic star's few 'serious' roles. Director Bose immediately went on to cast the three Kumar brothers in the farce Chalti Ka Naam Gaadi (1958).

Bhagya Rekha

1957 176' b&w Telugu

d B.N. Reddi pc Ponnaluri Bros s Palagummi Padmaraju lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry, Kosaraju, Adishesha Reddy c B.N. Konda Reddy m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Jamuna, D. Hemalatha, Govindrajulu Subba Rao, Sowcar Janaki, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Lakshmikantam, E.V. Saroja

Reddi's hit film (one of the few films he did not produce himself) tells of the orphan Lakshmi (Jamuna) who is raised by her kindly uncle Nayarana Rao and her evil aunt Jagadamba. Narayana Rao and Jagadamba already have two children: the boy Kotaiah who runs away to join the army and the spoiled daughter Kalyani who wants to marry the manager of a cinema theatre. When Kalyani's fiance falls in love with Lakshmi, Lakshmi leaves and finds a second home when she restores a lost child to its mother. While Lakshmi works as a tutor to a rich girl whose brother Ravi (NTR) falls in love with her, aunt Jagadamba starts spreading malicious rumours, preventing the lovers from marrying and driving Lakshmi away again. Ravi falls ill with frustration but eventually things are set right when the son Kotaiah returns home and discovers the injustice his mother inflicted on the heroine.

Chakravarthi Thirumagal

1957 ? b&w Tamil

d P. Neelakantan p A.L.S. Prod, Lena Pics. st P.A. Kumar dial Elangovan m G. Ramanathan lp M.G. Ramachandran, P.S. Veerappa, Anjali Devi, S. Varalakshmi

In a tough swayamvar (contest to win the bride), Prince Udayan Suriyan (MGR) of Kaveripattinam wins Princess Kalamalini (Anjali Devi) of Maruda Nadu by defeating the Maruda general Bhairavan (Veerappa). The latter plots with Durga (Varalakshmi), the princess's best friend who also loves Udayan, to abduct Kalamalini on her wedding night while Durga takes her place in the marital bed. However, Udayan notices the difference. When Kalamalini escapes from captivity and returns to the palace disguised as a dancer, she discovers the truth and together with Udayan she regains her rightful position.

Chintamani

1957 187' col/b&w Kannada

d/s M.N. Basavarajaiah pc Lokeshwari Pics ph Kotnis lp B. Saroja Devi, Ashwath, Narasimhraj, Lakshmidevi, Balkrishna, M.S.S. Pandit, Master Hirannayya, Sampath, Rajakumari

Kannada remake of the Bhanumathi hit (1956), emphasising the melodramatic rather than the mythological aspects of the legend. The prostitute Chintamani (Saroja Devi) entices the saintly Bilwamangal (Ashwath) away from his wife. He is, however, returned to his true purpose in life following a series of calamities including his father's death and wife's suicide. He blinds himself in remorse before reuniting with his lover. The film was also an early experiment in colour in Kannada.

Dekh Kabira Roya

1957 141' b&w Hindi

d Amiya Chakravarty pc Shrirangam st Manoranjan Ghosh sc Chandrakant lyr Rajinder Krishen c Ajit Kumar m R.L. Suri lp Anita Guha, Amita, Anoop Kumar, Daljit, Jawahar Kaul, Shubha Khote, Sundar

A romance masquerading as a debate on art. A painter, a writer and a singer meet three women, each of whom loves one of the art forms they practise. Unfortunately, they are mismatched. The ensuing misunderstandings are resolved only after their respective soul mates have been discovered and their marriages arranged. This is one of the last independent films by A. Chakravarty, formerly of Bombay Talkies and the man who discovered Dilip Kumar in his first film, Jwar Bhata (1944).

Dil er Daku

1957 ? b&w Hindi

d Noshir Engineer pc Basant Pics s Boman Shroff co-dial/lyr Chand Pandit co-dial Pritam Dehlvi c Anant Wadadkar m Shafi M. Nagri lp Fearless Nadia, John Cawas, Samar Roy, Chanda, Boy Prithvi, Julian Gaikwad, Hira Sawant, Sheikh, Kallu Ustad, Rajni, Sardar Mansoor, Boy Sikandar, S. Advani, Vijaya Choudhury, Baby Mangala, Abdulla, Yadav

Remake of the Wadia Bros' 1931 debut feature which launched the stunt genre most closely associated with Wadia Movietone and its fearless female star. When the king is overthrown by his commander-in-chief and his minister, Princess Farida (Nadia) is rescued and raised by the old Chacha. Farida becomes an expert swordfighter and horsewoman. With the help of Kamran (Cawas), the minister's good son, she retakes the palace and punishes the villains in hand-to-hand combat.

Do Aankhen Barah Haath

aka Two Eyes Twelve Hands

1957 155'(124') b&w Hindi

d V. Shantaram pc Rajkamal Kalamandir s G.D. Madgulkar lyr Bharat Vyas c G. Balakrishna m Vasant Desai lp V. Shantaram, Sandhya, Uhlal, B.M. Vyas, Baburao Pendharkar, Paul Sharma, S.K. Singh, Gajendra, G. Invagle, Keshavrao Date, Chandorkar, Thyagaraj, S. Bhosle, Asha Devi, Samar, Suneel

Stylised parable about human virtue. An idealistic cop, Adinath (Shantaram), believing people to be fundamentally good, takes six simple-minded murderers to a desolate area and sets up a farming commune. In spite of the threats of violence, they produce a decent farm and come into conflict with the 'virtuous' citizens in a nearby village who see their economic interests threatened and reveal themselves to be the real nasties. Shantaram's characteristic neo-expressionist imagery is much in evidence, e.g. juxtaposing eyes and palm prints with prison bars, patches of light on parts of the hero's mouth and eyes. In one of the more successful sequences, armed men are depicted in looming shadows against the threatened hero shown in extreme long shot. Sandhya plays Champa, an itinerant seller of children's toys who befriends all the prisoners and the only female in this oppressively male world. About her, Godard reported in a telegram from the Berlin Film Festival (1958): 'Sandhya charming in story Indian jailer.' A 124' version was shown at the San Francisco Festival that same year.

Harano Sur

1957 162' b&w Bengali

d/c Ajoy Kar pc Alochhaya Prod. p Uttam Kumar sc Nripendra Krishna Chattopadhyay lyr Gouriprasanna Majumdar m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Suchitra Sen, Uttam Kumar, Pahadi Sanyal, Dipak Mukherjee, Utpal Dutt, Sisir Batabyal, Dhiraj Das, Preeti Majumdar, Sailen Mukherjee, Chandrabati Devi

The amnesiac Alope (Kumar) is rescued from the asylum by doctor Roma (Sen) who takes him to her father's (Sanyal) Edenic country house. They marry, but a second accident, and a new bout of amnesia, makes him forget her and recall instead his earlier life as a rich businessman in Calcutta. When Roma follows him there, he does not remember her, but he hires her as governess to his niece, causing her considerable anguish. Moinak Biswas characterised the film as a domestic melodrama of 'a subordinate woman winning over her boss's heart', in the genre of English novels such as Richardson's Pamela (Biswas), 'The Couple and Their Spaces: Harano Sur as Melodrama', 1995). Roma keeps trying to stimulate the hero's memory, using e.g. the refrain of their wedding song (and the film's musical hit) Tumi je amar, but is unable to reply when Alope, haunted by her presence, asks 'Who are you?'. The plot provides a schematic version of the classic Kumar-Sen romance with a medical angle (cf. Sagarika, 1956; Deep Jeweiy Jai, 1959), many lavishly mounted scenes of windswept expanses, fluttering curtains, incense and mnemonic objects such as a bunch of tube-roses, countered by two abrupt eruptions of realist outdoor locations (when Alope first recovers his memory, and when Roma follows him into his Calcutta office). The film was adapted from Mervyn LeRoy's Random Harvest (1942).

☞ Karpurakarasi

1957 ? b&w Tamil
d/co-sc A.S.A. Sami p Jupiter Films co-sc Aroor Ramanathan m G. Ramanathan lp Gemini Ganesan, M.R. Radha, M.N. Nambiar, Thangavelu, G. Varalakshmi, Savithri, E.V. Saroja, Mohana

A fairy tale in which a wizard tries to gain power over the heavens in order to obtain possession of a beautiful devathai (fairy). He gives Mohana (Mohana) the appearance of her cousin Queen Chandrika (Varalakshmi), substitutes his creature on the throne and drowns the Queen in a river. However, the Queen is saved by a 'rishi'. While the King (Radha) remains blissfully unaware of the switch, Mohana, the false Queen, bears a nasty son, Jegaveeran (Nambiar), while the real Queen bears the fine son Veerapradapan (Ganesan). When the latter learns of the family history, he journeys across the seas to fetch a magical fruit that will restore everyone to their rightful position. The wizard's plans also include disposing of the King, but Veerapradapan arrives in time, together with his mother, to eliminate the evil wizard along with the nasty Jegaveeran, obtaining his reward: Manjula (Savithri), the daughter of the Chief Minister of the realm.

☞ Kathputli

1957 160' (152') b&w Hindi
co-d/s Amiya Chakravarty co-d Nitin Bose pc Shrirangam dial Chandrakant lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c V. Babasaheb
m Shankar-Jaikishen
lp Vyjayanthimala, Kumari Kamala, Balraj Sahni, Jawahar Kaul, Agha, Sheila Kashmiri, Poonam

Chakravarty's last film was completed after his death by Bose. It is a melodrama about Pushpa (Vyjayanthimala) who loves and marries a small-time puppeteer (Kaul). She becomes a famous dancer in the theatre of the benevolent Loknath (Sahni) and gets embroiled in the man's tragic life, estranging her from her husband. A Vyjayanthimala vehicle, the film consists of expensively staged dance sequences loosely strung together, including the hit number Bagad bam baaje damaroo.

☞ Lal Batti

1957 ? b&w Hindi
co-d/s Balraj Sahni co-d Krishen Chopra pc Cine Co-op p Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c K. Vaikunth m Salil Choudhury lp Balraj Sahni, Mala Sinha, Jawahar Kaul, Shashikala, Kamal, Rashid Khan, Sulochana

Sahni's only film as director is a suspense movie. It is set in a train and on a lonely railway platform where passengers are forced to spend a night at the time of India's Independence.

☞ Makkal ai Petra Maharasi

1957 ? b&w Tamil
d K. Somu p Sri Lakshmi Pics.
sc A.P. Nagarajan m K.V. Mahadevan lp Sivaji Ganesan, M.N. Nambiar, P. Kannamba, P. Bhanumathi,
V.K. Ramaswamy, M.N. Rajam

Angamma (Kannamba) hates her brother the zamindar for driving her husband out of the village. Her son Chengodayyan (Ganesan) sweats in the fields to enable his sister Thangam (Rajam) to come home, which she does in the company of her boyfriend, the zamindar's educated son Kannan (Nambiar). To persuade their divided family to reunite and give their blessing to the marriage, the young couple feign suicide. The stratagem succeeds. The dramatic climax comes when a rival suitor of Thangam, Mayandi, throws a knife at Chengodayyan but kills Angamma when she shields her son.

☞ Maya Bazaar

1957 192' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d K.V. Reddy pc Vijaya s Chakrapani lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao c Marcus Bartley
m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao
lp N.T. Rama Rao, S.V. Ranga Rao, A. Nageshwara Rao[Te]/Gemini Ganesh[Ta], Relangi Venkatramaiah, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, K. Mukkamala, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu[Te]/M.N. Nambiar[Ta], Rajanala Nageshwara Rao, Vangara, Balakrishna, Savithri, Rushyendramani, Suryakantam, Chhaya Devi, Sandhya

Major Vijaya mythological following on from Reddy's hit fantasy, Patala Bhairavi (1951). Taken from the Mahabharata, it tells the legend of Abhimanyu's (Nageshwara Rao/Gemini Ganesh) marriage to Sasirekha (Vatsala in the Tamil version) (Savithri), assisted by Bhima's son Ghatotkacha (Ranga Rao) and opposed by the wily Shakuni (Anjaneyulu/Nambiar) who wants Sasirekha to marry one of the Kauravas. The film featured NTR in his first role as the Hindu god Krishna and includes an early version of one of Indian cinema's favourite special effects: magic arrows spewing fire and water. One of the musical highlights is the wedding feast number Vivaha bhojanam. The Tamil version was credited to Chakrapani's direction, which had a slightly different cast, and some compositions by Saluri Rajeshwara Rao.

☞ Minnaminung

aka The Fire Fly
1957 ? b&w Malayalam
d/co-p/co-sc Ramu Kariat co-p Sreenivasan pc Chitra Keralam co-sc Rafi dial K.S.K. Thalikulam lyr
P. Bhaskaran c B.J. Reddy m Baburaj lp Damayanthi, Seeta, Padmam, Menon, Santha Devi, Mary Eddy, Maggie, Vasudev, Vipin, Lateef, Vakkachhan, Balakrishna Menon, Premji

Mysore's Premier Studio's melodrama about a young woman, Ammini, orphaned because of a greedy doctor's negligence. She becomes a maid and surrogate mother in the new doctor's household but the man's wife feels threatened and has Ammini sacked. However, misunderstandings are cleared up, and in the end Ammini is happily absorbed into the doctor's family and the villagers bid a tearful farewell to the group when the doctor is transferred. The virtually unknown cast is handled competently by the young Kariat who was to develop into one of Kerala's main filmmakers. The film was not successful.

☞ Mother India

aka Bharat Mata
1957 168' (152') (120') col Hindi
d/s/p Mehboob Khan pc Mehboob Prod.
dial Wajahat Mirza, S. Ali Raza lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Fareedoon Irani m Naushad lp Nargis, Sunil Dutt, Raaj Kumar, Rajendra Kumar, Kanhaiyalal, Jiloo, Kumkum, Master Sajid, Sitara Devi

This film has acquired the status of an Indian Gone with the Wind (1939), massively successful and seen as a national epic, although formally the film's rhythms and lyrical ruralism seem closer to Dovzhenko's later work finished by Yulia Solntseva. Radha (Nargis), now an old woman, remembers her past: her married life with two sons in a village. The family have to work extremely hard to pay off the avaricious moneylender, Sukhilala (Kanhaiyalal) and her husband (Raaj Kumar), having lost both arms in an accident, leaves her. Alone, she has to raise the children while fending off the financial as well as sexual pressures from Sukhilala. One son dies in a flood and in later years her son Birju (Dutt, Nargis's later husband) becomes a rebel committed to direct, violent action, while the other one, Ramu (Rajendra Kumar), remains a dutiful son. In the end, the long-suffering Mother India can only put an end to her rebellious son's activities by killing him, as his blood fertilises the soil. The film is a remake in colour and with drastically different imagery of Mehboob's own Aurat (1940), notably in the heavy use of psychoanalytic and other kinds of symbolism (the peasants forming a chorus outlining a map of India). Its spectacular commercial success was ironically noted in Vijay Anand's Kala Bazaar (1960) when Dev Anand is shown selling tickets on the black market for Mother India's premiere. Mother India's plot and characters became the models for many subsequent films, including Ganga Jumna (1961) and Deewar (1975).

Musafir

aka Traveller

1957 151' b&w Hindi

d/s/co-sc Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc Film Group co-sc Ritwik Ghatak dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Shailendra c Kamal Bose m Salil Choudhury

lp Suchitra Sen, Shekhar, Bipin Gupta, Durga Khote, Kishore Kumar, Nirupa Roy, Nasir Hussain, Keshto Mukherjee, Hira Sawant, Daisy Irani, Dilip Kumar, Usha Kiron, Paul Mahendra, Mohan Choti, David, Rajlakshmi, Baby Naaz, Rashid Khan

The experienced editor Mukherjee's directorial debut constituted an important attempt to carve out a viable independent production sector in the Hindi cinema at the time. The film was made by a loose collective of mainly Bengali film people, including Ghatak and composer Choudhury who shared a background in radical theatre and were in Bombay mainly through Bimal Roy's patronage. Many of them worked together again on Madhumati (1958). Set in an old suburban house, presumably in Calcutta, the film narrates three tenuously related Chekhovian stories about three sets of the house's occupants. The first has the Bengali star S. Sen as an orphaned young woman, Shakuntala, who desperately wants her husband Ajay (Shekhar) to make up with his estranged parents so that she may belong to a family once more. The second story has a wayward young man, Bhanu (K. Kumar), desperate to find a job to support his aged father (Hussain) and his widowed sister-in-law (N. Roy). The third and longest story focuses on the shadowy figure of a neighbourhood 'madman' (D. Kumar) who crops up in the previous stories as well. He was in love with Uma (Kiron) who lived in the house but disappeared just before their wedding day. In the end, the madman's death and the miraculous recovery of Uma's paralysed son coincide. The stories invoke a cyclical sequence of marriage, birth, death and rebirth, enhanced by Choudhury's score and some remarkable camerawork.

Nau Do Gyarah

1957 170' b&w Hindi

d/s Vijay Anand p Dev Anand pc Navketan lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c V. Ratna m S.D. Burman

lp Dev Anand, Kalpana Kartik, Shashikala, Jeevan, Krishna Dhawan, Madan Puri, Rashid Khan, Lalita Pawar, Helen, M.A. Latif

Raksha (Kartik) runs away from an arranged marriage to Surjit and meets Madan (Anand) on the road. Madan is on his way to collect an inheritance but he finds that his foster-aunt and cousin Kuldeep (Jeevan) have stolen it. In order to locate the original will, Madan and Raksha disguise themselves and pretend to be married. Madan is later arrested, charged with abducting Raksha but she continues the search for the will and to learn the truth about the death of Madan's uncle. Songs included Hum hain rahi pyar ke (sung by Kishore Kumar) and Ankhon mein kya ji (sung by Asha Bhosle and Kishore Kumar). Like Chori Chori (1956), this film seems to have borrowed plot elements from Capra's It Happened One Night (1934).

Nausherwan-E-Adil

aka Farz Aur Mohabbat

1957 137' b&w Urdu/Persian

d/p Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone st/dial Shams Lucknowi lyr Parvez Shamshi c Lateef, Bhandare m C. Ramchandra lp Sohrab Modi, Naseem Banu, Mala Sinha, Raaj Kumar, Bipin Gupta, Murad, Agha, Shammi, Niranjan Sharma, Amirbano, Sheelabano, Hira Sawant, Ranjana Shukla, Niloufer, Pali

Persian King Nausherwan-e-Adil (Modi) passes judgement sentencing all males who seduce maidens to death. His son and heir Naushazad (Kumar) rescues and courts Marcia (Sinha), the daughter of a Christian doctor, David (Gupta), and transgresses the law. The dramatic pivot is provided by the Malka-e-Iran, the Queen (Banu), herself a Christian, when she forbids her son to convert to Christianity. In the end, Naushazad and Marcia die in each other's arms while the Queen is imprisoned by her husband. The plot rehearses many of Modi's favourite motifs (cf. Pukar, 1939) as the patriarch victimised by his own law, but the film comes alive mainly in its delirious song picturisations, esp. the hit Taron ki jawan par hai mohabbat ki kahani (sung by Lata Mangeshkar and Mohammad Rafi), picturised on a boat on a moonlit studio river.

Naya Daur

1957 173' b&w Hindi

d/p B.R. Chopra pc B.R. Films s Akhtar Mirza

dial Kamil Rashid lyr Sahir Ludhianvi

c M.N. Malhotra m O.P. Nayyar

lp Dilip Kumar, Vyjayanthimala, Ajit, Chand Usmani, Jeevan, Manmohan Krishna, Nasir Hussain, Leela Chitnis, Pratima Devi, Johnny Walker, Daisy Irani, Radhakrishen, Kumkum, Minoo Mumtaz

A melodrama about the perils of progress: villain Kundan (Jeevan) introduces an electric saw and cars into an isolated, sylvan village while economic, caste and religious divisions between the rurals are woven into the main story of the rivalry between Shankar (D. Kumar) and Krishna (Ajit) over the heroine Rajani (Vyjayanthimala). The dramatic high point sees everyone joining forces to build a road to prove (via a race between a bus and a horsedrawn carriage) that traditional technology is just as good as the new machinery. Ironically, the nationalist modernisation argument is advanced by the villain while the benevolent father-figure Seth Maganlal (Hussain) hopes that a humanist attitude will abolish all class divisions. The hero Shankar argues for collectivisation as the proletarian way of managing new technology. Classic Nayyar numbers included Reshmi salwar kurta jaali ka (sung by Asha Bhosle and Shamshad Begum), Saathi haath badhana (sung by Mohammed Rafi and Asha Bhosle) and the Rafi solo Main bambai ka babu.

Padatha Paingil i aka The Parrot That Never Sings

1957 182' b&w Malayalam

d/p P. Subramanyam pc Neela Prod. s Mutatthu Varkey lyr Thirunayanar Kurichi, Madhavan Nair c N.S. Mani m Brother Lakshmanan

Ajit and Dilip Kumar in Naya Daur

lp Prem Nazir, Kumari, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, S.P. Pillai, Vanakutty, Pankajavalli, K.V. Shanti, Muthaiah, Shanta, Aranmulla Ponnamma, Adoor Pankajam, Bahadur

Marriage melodrama around dowry problems. Thankachan (Nazir) wants to marry the poor Chinnamma (Kumari) but his rich father wants a big dowry for the eligible young man. Thankachan's marriage is arranged with Lucy, daughter of a millionaire, on the same day on which Chinnamma is scheduled to marry a poor worker from a beedi factory. Lucy, however, resolves the matter by becoming a nun, leaving the lovers free to marry. One of the first major films featuring the scripts of Mutattu Varkey, in the paingili brand of popular fiction in Malayalam that later also influenced star Prem Nazir's screen persona.

Parash Pathar

aka The Philosopher's Stone

1957 111' b&w Bengali

d/sc Satyajit Ray p Prmod Lahiri pc L.B. Films st Rajasekhar Bose [aka Parashuram] c Subrata Mitra m Ravi Shankar

lp Tulsi Chakraborty, Ranibala Devi, Kali Bannerjee, Gangapada Basu, Haridhan, Jahar Roy, Bireswar Sen, Mani Srimani, Chhabi Biswas, Jahar Ganguly, Pahadi Sanyal, Kamal Mitra, Tulsi Lahiri, Amar Mullick, Nitish Mukherjee, Subodh Ganguly

Ray's first comedy is a low-budget quickie because of the delay on his more ambitious Jalsaghar (1958). Bank clerk Paresh Dutta (Chakraborty) finds a magic stone that can turn things into gold and becomes a rich man. When Dutta drunkenly reveals his secret at a cocktail party, his downfall follows as he is arrested for gold smuggling. Eventually the stone is swallowed and digested by his lovelorn secretary Priyatosh Henry Biswas (Bannerjee), turning all Dutta's gold back into iron to the delight of his wife. Relying at times on silent film comedy techniques (stop motion, speeded-up movement), the film adapts the short story of Rajasekhar Bose, a famous Bengali humorist, evoking, (mainly via Chakraborty's spectacular performance) a tradition of popular satire featuring the colonial bhadralok (upper middle class): e.g. when the clerk imagines his own heavily garlanded statue amid those of British politicians in Calcutta. Ray later also adapted Parashuram's Birinchi Baba in Mahapurush (1964).

Par desi

aka Khozheniye Za Tri Morya aka The Foreigner

1957 110' (76') col Hindi/Russian co-d/co-sc K.A. Abbas co-d Vassily M. Pronin pc Naya Sansar, Mosfilm co-sc Maria Smirnova lyr Prem Dhawan, Ali Sardar Jafri c E. Andrikaniz, V. Nikolaev, Ramchandra Singh m Anil Biswas

lp Nargis, Oleg Strizhenov, Balraj Sahni, Prithviraj Kapoor, Jairaj, David, Achala Sachdev, Manmohan Krishna, Padmini, V. Obuchova, V. Beliachov, S. Kayukov, N. Zhivago

A Nehruite Indo-Soviet co-production made in the wake of the Khrushchov 'thaw' about the first Russian to set up a trading mission in India in the 15th C. The Muscovite Afanasi (Oleg) travels to India down the Volga, across Iran's deserts and the Arabian sea. In India he meets the fair maiden Champa (Nargis) through whom he discovers Indian civilisation. The film was shot on numerous tourist locations in India. The Russian version ran for 76' only. Pronin is known mainly for making an early Tadzhiik feature in 1947 (Son of Tadzhikistan) and the first Kirghiz feature, Saltanat (1955).

Paying Guest

1957 157' b&w Hindi

d/s Subodh Mukherjee pc Filmistan dial Nasir Hussain lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri

c Dronacharya m S.D. Burman

lp Dev Anand, Nutan, Gajanan Jagirdar, Sajjan, Shubha Khote, Gyani, Dulari, Rajinder, Chaman Puri, Sailen Bose, Yakub

A mixture of romance and crime with Nutan giving an uninhibited performance in one of her best roles outside Bimal Roy's socials. Hero Ramesh (Anand) masquerades as an old man to be near his beloved Shanti (Nutan). The crime plot in the latter half of the film concerns the faithless Chanchal (Khote) who is disinherited by her husband Dayal and teams up with Shanti's brother-in-law, the villainous Prakash. Shanti is later accused of having murdered Prakash but her innocence is finally established. Dev Anand's antics include an elaborately staged fight between his two guises: as the old man Mirza and as the frisky Ramesh. Kishore Kumar sings some of his best-known Dev Anand playback numbers including Mana janab ne pukara nahin, Chhod do aanchal zamana kya kahega (with Asha Bhosle) and O nigahen mastana. Chand phir nikla was sung by Lata Mangeshkar.

Pyasa

aka Eternal Thirst aka The Thirsty One

1957 153' (139') b&w Hindi

d/p Guru Dutt pc Guru Dutt Films dial Abrar Alvi lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c V.K. Murthy

m S.D. Burman

lp Guru Dutt, Waheeda Rehman, Mala Sinha, Johnny Walker, Rehman, Kumkum, Shyam, Leela Mishra, Rajinder, Mayadass, Mehmood, Radheshyam, Ashita, Moni Chatterjee

Dutt's classic melodrama inspired by Saratchandra's novel Srikanta was the first in a series addressing the state of the nation and the displaced romantic artist (cf. Kaagaz Ke Phool, 1959). Vijay (Dutt) is an unsuccessful poet whose work is sold by his brothers as waste paper. Unable to bear the reigning philistinism, he elects to live on the streets where a young prostitute, Gulab (W. Rehman), falls in love with him and his poetry while Vijay's former girlfriend Meena (Sinha) marries an arrogant publisher, Mr Ghosh (Rehman), for comfort and security. When a dead beggar to whom Vijay gave his coat is mistaken for Vijay, Gulab has his poetry published in a book which becomes a best seller. Everyone who previously rejected Vijay now gathers to pay tribute to the dead poet. Vijay disrupts the celebration with a passionate song denouncing hypocrisy and calling for the violent destruction of a corrupt world (Jala do ise phook dalo yeh duniya). According to Dutt the inspiration for this film came from a lyric referring to Homer: 'Seven cities claimed Homer dead/ While the living Homer begged his bread' (cf. his essay 'Classics And Cash', in Rangoonwala, 1973). The comic relief scenes with Johnny Walker as Abdul Sattar, an eccentric masseur, do not always fit smoothly into the rest of the film, but Dutt's exploration of the tragic idiom is unprecedented in Hindi cinema and can be compared to some of Ritwik Ghatak's work in the powerful use of a musical chorus and the presentation of characters as archetypes (Vijay repeatedly evokes Christ imagery, e.g. in the song Jaane woh kaise and his appearance at the memorial celebration). The film, shot mostly on sets, makes no specific reference to its location but audiences would be able to note the significance of Vijay as an Urdu poet belonging to a Bengali family or the figure of Mr Ghosh evoking a Calcutta or Delhi businessman. Several sequences testify to an astonishing cinematic mastery: the crane movements during Gulab's tender and hesitant move towards a Vijay absorbed in his own thoughts (set to the song Aaj sajan mohe ang lagalo) or when Vijay staggers through the red-light district protesting (in the song Jinhe naaz hai hind par woh kahan hain) against the existence of such exploitation in a newly independent India.

Suvar na Sundari/Manal ane Mangayin Bhagyam

1957 209' [Te]/211' [Ta] b&w Telugu/Hindi/Tamil

d/sc Vedantam Raghavaiah pc Anjali Pictures

p Adi Narayana Rao st/dial/co-lyr [Te]

Samudrala Raghavacharya co-lyr [Te]

Samudrala Jr., Kosaraju lyr [H] Bharat Vyas

c M.A. Rehman m Adi Narayana Rao lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Anjali Devi, Relangi Venkatramaiah [Te], Mahankali Venkayya [Te], Rajasulochana [Te], C.S.R. Anjaneyulu [Te],

Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao [Te], Ramana

Reddy [Te], Balakrishna [Te], Peketi [Te],

Shyama [H], Kumkum [H], Daisy Irani [H],

Mohana [H], Suryakala [H], Agha [H], Mukri [H],

Dhumal [H], Randhir [H], Bipin Gupta [H],

Niranjan Sharma [H], Gemini Ganesh [Ta],

M.V. Rajamma [Ta], B. Saroja Devi [Ta]

Anjali Devi repeated her role from Balaramaiah's Swapna Sundari (1950) in this megabudget trilingual fantasy produced by her studio. A celestial fairy descends to earth and is captivated by the charms of a young man. The god Indra puts a curse on the fairy and converts her earthly lover into a stone statue. This is one of the major 50s productions in the uniquely Telugu fantasy-legend genre (cf. K.V. Reddy's work or Bhanumathi's hit Raksharekha, 1949). However, when Anjali Pic repeated the formula again with Raghavaiah's Swarnamanjari/Mangayir Ullam Mangada Selvam (1962), starring NTR, it flopped.

⊗ Tumsa Nahin Dekha

1957 156' b&w/col Hindi
d/s Nasir Hussain pc Filmistan lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Marshall Braganza m O.P. Nayyar lp Shammi Kapoor, Amita, Pran, B.M. Vyas, Raj Mehra, Sheela Vaz, S.K. Singh, Kanu Roy, Ram Avtar, Anjali Devi, Rajinder, Shetty, S.L. Puri

Hussain's directorial debut, a musical partly shot in colour, transformed Shammi Kapoor into a loose-limbed, hip-swinging hero (esp. in the song Chupne wale samne aa). The sympathetic criminal Gopal kills his nasty partner and has to go on the run, abandoning his wife and baby son. Twenty years later, safely hidden as a reclusive landlord in Assam, Gopal betrays his whereabouts to his wife via a job advertisement. His grown-up son Shankar (Kapoor), who hates his father for having abandoned his family, applies for the job carrying a letter of introduction from his mother. However, the villainous Sohan (Pran) who covets Gopal's property intercepts and copies the letter so that two young men recommended by his wife turn up on Gopal's doorstep. The old man doesn't know which is his son and which the impostor. Sohan's intrigues are intercut with numerous musical interludes as Shankar woos Meena (Ameeta), Gopal's adopted daughter. The final conflict between the good guys and the bad guys includes several hill tribesmen led by fight-director Shetty. The title number, Yun to humne lakh haseen dekhe hain, tumsa nahin dekha, was one of Mohammed Rafi's biggest hits ever. Hussain remade the story as Dil Deke Dekho (1959).

educated son with Manjiri (Savitri), the daughter of Diwan Bahadur Mukunda Rao (Ranga Rao). The unsuspecting Diwan Bahadur supports the marriage, but Manjiri knows the truth. Leela's brother Raja Rao (NTR), an imprisoned freedom fighter, is Manjiri's lover. On the day of his release from prison, Manjiri explains the situation to him and emphasises the need to reform the family before reforming the nation. With the help of Bhajagovindam, revealed as a schizophrenic character who doubles as friend of the goodies as well as the sutradhara (chorus), they stage a drama in order to reform the families and restore order and justice. Bhajagovindam then takes charge of the plot. Leela refuses to leave her husband's home and the Rao Bahadur allows her to remain as a mute maid servant. The England-returned Raghu, a modern figure who, although opposed to his father's machinations and aware of the mute maid's real identity, nevertheless continues to play his assigned role by wooing Manjiri, occasioning a few 'safely' erotic scenes as Manjiri is courted by two men. As the narrative progresses, Raja Rao and Bhajagovindam adopt different disguises and enact several didactic-comic episodes intended to expose greed: Raghu produces a demanding foreign wife who forces the Rao Bahadur to devise various methods of raising money until his creditors eventually catch up with him. As in the earlier Pelli Chesu Choodu (1952), three couples are formed or reunited at the end. The film's most remarkable sections focus mainly on the multiple roles of Bhajagovindam, extending to the staging of a play within the plot, which is itself 'staged' by his presence as the commentator/chorus. The barely coherent plot is given a semblance of unity by Relangi's initial declaration that a didactic plot is to be staged, which in turn allows various characters to indulge in actions that would be considered 'unbecoming' in a more realist idiom.

Communist cinema, briefly sustained by Ghosh.

⊗ Bhakta Prahlada

1958 179' b&w Kannada
d H.S. Krishnaswamy, M.V. Subbaiah Naidu pc Shri Sahitya Samrajya Nataka Mandali s M.S. Bangaramma lyr G. Mahalinga Bhagavathar c K. Balu m L. Mallesh Rao lp M.V. Subbaiah Naidu, Lakshmi Bai, Udaya Kumar, Leelavathi, Narasimhraj, G. Mahalinga Bhagavathar, P.R. Venugopal, Master Loknath

Subbaiah Naidu and R. Nagendra Rao's theatre company staged many mythologicals which had a major influence on South Indian cinema, including Bhakta Prahlada and Bhukailasa. K. Shankar and AVM made the best-known film adaptation of Bhukailasa (1958), while S. Naidu and Nagendra Rao themselves made the screen adaptation of Bhakta Prahlada, their best-known filmed mythological. It tells the Ramayana's Vishnu Purana legend of the demon Hiranyakashapu, his son Prahlada, a devotee of Vishnu, and Vishnu's eventual triumph over the demon in his man-lion avatar.

⊗ Bhukailasa

1958 174' [Te]/169' [K] b&w Telugu/Kannada
d K. Shankar pc AVM dial/lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya [Te], K.R. Seetarama Sastry [K] c Madhav Bulbule m R. Sudarshanam, R. Govardhanam lp Jamuna, B. Saroja Devi, S.V. Ranga Rao, N.T. Rama Rao [Te], A. Nageshwara Rao [Te], Vijayanirmala [Te], Rajkumar [K], Kalyana Kumar [K], Ashwath [K]

Third and biggest film (cf. versions of 1938 and 1940) based on the Ramayana story originally staged by R. Nagendra Rao and Subbaiah Naidu. Intended as a major remake of A.V. Meiyappan's 1940 Telugu hit. Ravana, king of Lanka, propitiates the god Shiva and, when he wins a boon, claims in return the latter's phallic powers and his consort Parvati. Narada tells Ravana that the Parvati who has been sent is merely the shadow of the goddess. Ravana marries Mandodhiri believing her to be Parvati, but he is condemned by his mother Kaikasi. As for the atma-linga, the symbol of Shiva's magical powers, it is donated on condition that it never be set down on earth. Ravana cannot fulfil the condition and has to accept defeat. Dubbed versions in Tamil (Bhakta Ravana) and Hindi (Bhakti Mahima) were also released.

⊗ Appu Chesu Pappu Koodu/Kadan Vangi Kal yanam

1958 176' [Te]/185' [Ta] b&w/col Telugu/Tamil d/co-s L.V. Prasad pc Vijaya co-s Chakrapani co-s/dial Sadasiva Brahmam lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao c Marcus Bartley m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao lp S.V. Ranga Rao, Savitri, Jamuna, E.V. Saroja, N.T. Rama Rao [Te], K. Jaggaiah [Te], Relangi Venkatramaiah [Te], C.S.R. Anjaneyulu [Te], Ramana Reddy [Te], K. Siva Rao [Te], Girija, Suryakantam [Te], Gemini Ganesh [Ta], T.R. Ramchandran [Ta], K.A. Thangavelu [Ta], T.S. Balaiah [Ta], Meenakshi [Ta], Rajanala Nageshwara Rao [Te]

Prasad's comedy stages the victory of a nationalist-modern alliance over decadent feudalism, with all the popular ingredients of comic social melodrama. The villain is a Zamindar, Ramadasu (Anjaneyulu), who has recently acquired the colonial title of Rao Bahadur and lives in borrowed splendour, hosting lavish dinners while, in a back room, his wily manager Bhajagovindam (Relangi) keeps a crowd of creditors at bay with intimidation and false promises. His son Raghu (Jaggaiah) is scheduled to return from England, but the father has reduced Raghu's wife Leela (Jamuna) to penury, planning instead a new, more profitable alliance for his foreign-

⊗ Avan Amaran

aka He Is Immortal
 1958 199' b&w Tamil
d/m S. Balachander pc People's Films s S. Nagarajan lyr Kuyilan c Nemai Ghosh lp K.R. Ramaswamy, T.S. Balaiah, S.V. Subbaiah, Rajasulochana, P. Kannamba

Written by a CP ideologue, the plot concerns Arul, the bright son of a mill worker, who marries the mill owner's daughter Lily, becomes a barrister and ends up leading an amalgamation of mill workers' unions in a strike against the introduction of new machinery. He dies while preventing the mill owner from dynamiting a bridge filled with protesting workers. The Veena master Balachander, fresh from his successful Andha Naal (1954), achieves some excellent sequences (the workers passing over the Hamilton Bridge near Fort St George in Madras) shot by the Bengali director turned Tamil cameraman Ghosh. The censors cut 1034ft out of the film, including a series of lines spoken by the hero in a court scene and references to class struggle and economic inequality. People's Films with its Mosfilm-type logo is an early effort to define a Tamil

⊗ Chal ti Ka Naam Gaadi

1958 173' b&w Hindi
d Satyen Bose pc K.H. Pics dial/Ramesh Pant, Gobind Moonis lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Alope Dasgupta m S.D. Burman lp Kishore Kumar, Ashok Kumar, Anoop Kumar, Madhubala, Sajjan, K.N. Singh, Veena, Sahira, Helen, Cuckoo, Mohan Choti, S.N. Bannerjee

Following on from Bandi (1957), Bose made this crazy comedy with the brothers Kumar which became their best-known ensemble production. The eldest brother (Ashok Kumar) is a misogynist; the second one, Jaggu (Anoop Kumar) is the bumbler and the youngest, Mannu (Kishore Kumar), is the romantic. Together they run a garage. Mannu meets Renu (Madhubala) when she arrives in the dead of night to get her car repaired and they fall in love. With the help of the other brothers, they have fight off a gang led by Raja Hardayal Singh (K.N. Singh) and his son Kumar Pradeep (Sajjan) before they can live happily ever after. The film resorts to silent Hollywood comedy techniques like speeded up action and back projection (e.g. the race won by the trio in their ancient 1928 Chevrolet which gives the film its title), and freely digresses into scenes only tenuously related to the narrative (the great-lovers-in-history number, Paanch rupaiya bara anna). It features several of Kishore Kumar's jazzy numbers, such as Babu samjho ishare, horn pukare, Hum the woh thi woh thi hum the. Very soon after it starts, the film signals its disregard for chronological consistency.

Chenchul akshmi

1958 162' [Te]/190' [Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil
d/p B.A. Subba Rao pc B.A.S. Prod.
st/dial/co-lyr V. Sadasiva Brahmam co-lyr Arudra, Kosaraju, Samudrala Raghavacharya c C. Nageshwara Rao m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Anjali Devi, Relangi Venkatramaiah, S.V. Ranga Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Pushpavalli, Sandhya, Nagabhushanam, Master Babji

Musical mythological, remade from S. Soundararajan's hit of 1943, featuring Vishnu (Nageshwara Rao) in his two best-known incarnations: the boar (Varaha) and the man-lion (Narasimha). Not invited to the celestial marriage of Vishnu and Lakshmi (Anjali Devi), Durvasa banishes Lakshmi's parents to earth as common people. There, Lakshmi is reborn as a tribal. The film intercuts her story on earth with the heavenly tale of Hiranyakashapu (Ranga Rao) who cannot be killed by man or beast. The demon's son Prahlada (Balaji), devoted to Vishnu, survives several murder attempts by his own father until finally Vishnu kills Hiranyakashapu using his Narasimha avatar. The heaven-earth split allows the film to deploy two narrative styles: the mythological one and a folk idiom (cf. Anjali Devi as a restrained goddess and a coquettish earthling). Her performance and Rajeshwara Rao's music helped the film's commercial success.

Ettuku Pai Ettu

1958 ? b&w Telugu
d Tapi Chanakya pc Sarathi Pics s/co-lyr Tapi Dharma Rao, Kondepudi, Chiranjeevi co-lyr Kosaraju m Master Venu lp T.S. Balaiah, Sowkar Janaki, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Lakshmirajyam,

V. Narasimha Rao, Chittor V. Nagaiah, Chhaya Devi, Hemalatha

Considered an avant-garde film at the time for casting unknown actors in a realist story of two warring elders, Kailasam (Anjaneyulu) and Govindaiah (Gummadi), who are eventually brought together by their sons. The film made Balaiah a star.

Howrah Bridge

1958 153' b&w Hindi
d/p Shakti Samanta pc Shakti Films s Ranjan Bose dial Vrajendra Gaud lyr Qamar Jalalabadi, Hasrat Jaipuri c Chandu m O.P. Nayyar lp Ashok Kumar, Madhubala, Dhupal, K.N. Singh, Om Prakash, Helen, Kammo, Madan Puri, Sundar, Krishnakant, Kundan, Bhagwan Sinha, Sailen Bose

This crime movie was one of the first to assimilate the Hong Kong cinema's influence, a trend continued by Samanta's China Town (1962). Rakesh (Kumar), the son of a Rangoon merchant, comes to Calcutta in search of his brother's killer. With the help of Joe, a restaurant manager, and Edna (Madhubala), a cabaret dancer, he routs the villains Pyarelal (K.N. Singh) and Chiang (Puri). The film ends with a chase sequence over the famous Howrah Bridge in Calcutta and includes Geeta Dutt's famous cabaret number Mera naam Chin Chin Choo ... Hello mister, how do you do? performed in the film by Helen.

Jail or

1958 ? b&w Hindi
d Sohrab Modi pc Minerva Movietone
st/dial Kamal Amrohi sc J.K. Nanda lyr Rajinder Krishen c Y.D. Sarpotdar m Madan Mohan lp Sohrab Modi, Kamini Kaushal, Geeta Bali, Abhi Bhattacharya, Nana Palsikar, Daisy Irani, Eruch Tarapore, Pratima Devi

Modi's remake of his own 1938 film starring himself as the humanitarian prison warden Dilip whose wife Kanwal (Kaushal) elopes with Dr Ramesh (Bhattacharya), triggering Dilip's transformation into a viciously oppressive maniac (whose image recalls the Hollywood versions of Mr Hyde). Geeta Bali plays the virtuous Chhaya, Dilip's own temptation.

Jal saghar

aka The Music Room
 1958 100' b&w Bengali
d/p/sc Satyajit Ray pc Aurora Film Co. st Tarashankar Bandyopadhyay's stories Raibari and Jalsaghar c Subrata Mitra m Ustad Vilayat Khan lp Chhabi Biswas, Padmadevi, Pinaki Sengupta, Gangapada Basu, Tulsi Lahiri, Kali Sarkar, Waheed Khan, Roshan Kumari, Bismillah Khan

Ray's critique of decadent colonial feudalism, shot on the property of a zamindar at Nimtita near the river Padma on the (current) border between India and Bangladesh (by coincidence the very family on which novelist Bannerjee had based his fiction). The ageing Bishwambar Roy (Biswas) pawns the family jewels to keep up with the opulence of his ancestors and with his rich upstart neighbour Mahim Ganguly (Basu). Roy's reputation is based on the spectacular concerts of classical music and dance he once hosted, featuring Lucknow's great Kathak dancers and thumri singers, one of which is shown in flashback. Another concert, amid ominous thunder and lightning, is followed by news of the death of his wife and son. He withdraws into complete seclusion, only to resurface when his neighbour invites him yet again, and hosts his final show explicitly to upstage Ganguly's. Eventually he rides off on his horse, a shadow of his former grandeur, and dies by the hull of an upturned boat. Ray's nostalgic portrayal of the end of an era that saw feudal oppression but also sustained India's classical arts is often compared to Guru Dutt's film on the same theme, Sahib Bibi Aur Ghulam (1962), both portraying the feudal elite in sensual terms, reclining amid silk cushions, smoking hookahs and drinking, and because both directors rely on straightforwardly melodramatic idioms. Jalsaghar is heavy on symbols: shots of rain announcing death, an insect trapped in a glass, a decaying palace, the neighbour's trucks kicking up dust and obscuring Roy's view of his elephant grazing in the distance, the upturned boat at the end of the patriarch's life. Unlike the rest of the film, which was shot on location, the key locale of the music room was created on sets by Bansi Chandragupta. Ray included a concert by Begum Akhtar, India's greatest 20th C. ghazal singer. Other featured artists were shehnai maestro Bismillah Khan, singer Waheed Khan and dancer Roshan Kumari. The film boasts Chhabi Biswas's best-known screen performance.

Kal a Pani

1958 164' b&w Hindi
d Raj Khosla pc Navketan st Anand Pal sc G.R. Kamat dial Bappi Sonie lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Madhubala, Nalini Jaywant, Kishore Sahu, Nasir Hussain, Sapru, Krishna Dhawan, M.A. Latif, Rashid Khan, Beer Sakhua, Mukri, Agha

A crime movie about institutionalised corruption. Hero Karan (Anand) discovers that his father, believed dead, is in fact in jail for a murder he did not commit. Karan sets out to prove his father's innocence with the help of a fearless journalist, Asha (Madhubala). The villain is the corrupt public prosecutor (Sahu). The key witness is a dancer, Kishori, played by Nalini Jaywant who elevates the film beyond its plot. Her own desire, rendered in the hit Asha Bhosle number Nazar laagi raja tore bangle pe, makes for an ambiguous love triangle that also provides other reasons to that of the hero's vendetta for seeking out the truth. The other song hit Hum bekhudi me tumko pukare (sung by Mohammed Rafi), in which Kishori unleashes her charms on the drunken hero, was described by Mahesh Bhatt (1993) as 'a typical example of a Raj Khosla song and his unique attitude towards sex on the Indian screen'.

⊗ Lajwanti

1958 120' b&w Hindi
d/Narendra Suri pc Delux Films s Sachin Bhan lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c M. Malhotra
m S.D. Burman
lp Nargis, Baby Naaz, Balraj Sahni, Prabhu Dayal, Radhakrishen

Suri's family movie echoes Andaz (1949): a husband (Sahni) believes his wife (Nargis) to be having an affair with an artist friend and throws her out. In fact, she was having her portrait painted. When a decade later the two get together again, she has to win over her grown-up daughter (Baby Naaz) which she does only when she's on the verge of suicide. Sahni's naturalism as usual considerably tones down the emotional pitch.

⊗ Madhumati

1958 179' (165') b&w Hindi
d/p Bimal Roy pc Bimal Roy Prod. s Ritwik Ghatak dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Shailendra c Dilip Gupta m Salil Choudhury
lp Dilip Kumar, Vyjayanthimala, Johnny Walker, Pran, Jayant, Tiwari, Mishra, Baij Sharma, Bhudo Advani, Jagdish, Sagar, Ranjeet Sud, Sheojibhai, Tarun Bose

A reincarnation story with the lead actors in multiple roles. Devendra (D. Kumar) shelters from a storm in a deserted house and believes he hears a woman crying. Exploring the house, he finds a painting of its former owner Raja Ugranarayan. Devendra feels he must have painted the portrait in a previous life when he was called Anand. This cues a flashback to Anand's life when he worked as a foreman on a plantation and loved a woman from the village, Madhumati (Vyjayanthimala), who died escaping from the libidinous Raja Ugranarayan (Pran). Then a trap is set for the Raja by means of another woman, Madhavi (Vyjayanthimala again), who looks like the dead Madhumati and could be her reincarnation. The happy ending arrives when the original Madhumati returns from the dead to take her revenge. The film deploys an eerily romantic atmosphere, enhanced by Choudhury's background score and Hrishikesh Mukherjee's editing. Its songs have remained enduringly popular. The film includes the famous Aja re pardesi sung by Lata Mangeshkar. It was Bimal Roy's biggest commercial success, scripted by Ghatak. Many of the people involved in this film had worked together on Hrishikesh Mukherjee's Musafir (1957), also based on a Ghatak story. The imagery at times evokes Ghatak's Ajantrik (1957), linking the beautiful Madhumati with nature and tribal cultures beyond the grasp of capitalist appropriation.

⊗ Maya Bazaar

1958 ? b&w Hindi
d/sc Babubhai Mistri pc Wadia Movietone
st Vishwanath Pande dial C.K. Mast lyr Gopal

Singhnepali, Saraswati Kumar Deepak, Indivar
c N. Satyanarayan m Chitragupta lp Anita Guha, Mahipal, Vasant Pahelwan, Raaj Kumar, Ulhas, B.M. Vyas, Ram Singh, Indira

Director Mistri created the special effects for his best-known mythological narrating episodes from the Mahabharata: e.g. the Rajasuya Yagna, Krishna's killing of Shishupal, the game of dice, and Abhimanyu and Ghatotkach's rescue of Balaram's daughter Surekha from the Kauravas. Mistri remade it in colour in 1984.

⊗ Nadodi Mannan

1958 220' b&w/col Tamil
d/p M.G. Ramachandran pc Emgeeyar Pics st R.M. Veerappan, V. Lakshmanan, S.K.D. Sami co-dial/co-lyr Kannadasan co-dial Ravindran co-lyr Suradha c G.K. Ramu m S.M. Subbaiah, N.S. Balakrishnan
lp M.G. Ramachandran, P. Bhanumathi, P.S. Veerappa, M.N. Rajam, M.N. Nambiar, Chandrababu, T.K. Balachandran, B. Saroja Devi, T.P. Muthulakshmi, M.G. Chakrapani

MGR's period adventure fantasy, with 19 songs, and important DMK propaganda film repeating his successful screen pairing with Bhanumathi (Alibabavum Narpatha Thirudargalum, 1955 and Madurai Veeran, 1956) in a style derived from Gemini's post-Chandralekha (1948) films. The good king Marthandan (MGR) is dethroned by the Rajguru (Veerappa) and replaced by a double, the commoner Veerangam (MGR again). Nakedly propagandist (e.g. colour sequences showing the red and black DMK flag and its rising sun party symbol), the film presents the good guys as waiting to overthrow the Rajguru's corrupt rule, a thinly disguised reference to the Congress Party. Inaugurating MGR's personal political programme with songs like Thoongathe thambi thoongathe ('Don't sleep, young brother'), its commercial success was followed by a public reception for MGR by the DMK Party, taking him in procession in a 'chariot drawn by four horses, thronged by the people. The chariot had a background of a rising sun on a lotus. At the beginning of the procession there were party volunteers carrying festoons. Elephants garlanded MGR twice' (M.S.S. Pandian, 1992). Apparently Karunanidhi read out a poem he wrote about the film at the festivities. The film's success was a turning point in the star's film and political career marking him as the Puratchi thalaivar (revolutionary leader).

⊗ Neel Akasher Neechey

aka Under the Blue Sky
 1958 133' b&w Bengali
d/sc Mrinal Sen p/m Hemanta Mukherjee pc Hemanta Bela Prod. st Mahadevi Verma's story Chini Pheriwalla lyr Gouriprasanna Chattopadhyay c Sailaja Chatterjee lp Kali Bannerjee, Manju Dey, Bikash Roy, Smriti Biswas, Ajit Chatterjee, Suruchi Sengupta

Sen's first commercial success, after his financially disastrous debut Raat Bhore (1956). Produced by the composer Hemanta Mukherjee, the film is set in the 30s and tells of an honest Chinese hawker, Wang Lu (Bannerjee), who sells silk in Calcutta's streets while refusing to get involved in the opium trade run by his fellow countrymen. A flashback reveals his past history in China's Shantung province: a cruel landlord blackmailed Wang Lu's sister into prostitution, resulting in her suicide. The sequence, including documentary footage shot by Sen in China, is recalled when Wang Lu feels a brotherly affection for Basanti (Dey), the wife of a Calcutta lawyer (Roy). Basanti is committed to Swadeshi and has political disagreements with her husband, who blames Wang Lu for this. Basanti is arrested and imprisoned, causing Wang Lu to become more involved with her political group. When she is released, in 1931, the Japanese invasion of Manchuria makes Wang Lu go back and join the resistance. The story attempts to link India's independence struggle with China's fight against Japan. Sen said that the 30s, which formed much of the CPI's theory on imperialism, was 'enormously exciting ... [w]ith an element of nostalgia' and he returned to the period several times (cf. Matir Manisha, 1966). However, the film's non-chauvinist end is as significant as its internationalism in the anti-Chinese hysteria preceding the India-China War of 1962. The sentimental film is remembered mainly for one of composer-singer Mukherjee's most famous songs, O nadire ekti katha sudhai, and for Kali Bannerjee's remarkable performance. Shot mainly on sets, the dialogue evokes political and class stereotypes while inscribing several political references, e.g. Basanti's use of homespun Khadi cloth when Wang Lu offers her a piece of silk.

⊗ Phir Subah Hogi

1958 168' (154') b&w Hindi
d/co-sc Ramesh Saigal pc Parijat Pics st Dostoevsky's Crime and Punishment co-sc Mubarak dial D.N. Madhok lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Krishan Saigal m Khayyam lp Raj Kapoor, Mala Sinha, Rehman, Leela Chitnis, Mubarak, Nana Palsikar, Jagdish Sethi, Kamal Kapoor, Mishra

Dostoevsky's story provides only the bare outlines of this emotional plea for social justice in 'Nehrui' India by an influential film-maker of the genre (cf. Railway Platform, 1955). Ramu (Kapoor) is a poor law student in love with the even poorer Sohni (Sinha). Sohni's father (Palsikar) is an alcoholic tailor in debt to the villainous Harbanslal who demands to marry Sohni. Ramu must pay off the villain if he is to win Sohni. He is caught robbing the safe of a vicious old moneylender and kills the man in self-defence. When the wrong man is arrested for the crime, a police detective puts pressure on Ramu to confess and save the innocent man from the gallows. Ramu eventually confesses and makes a moving plea on behalf of the dispossessed's right to defend themselves against the real villains in society. The film includes the poet Sahir Ludhianvi's famous critique of Nehru's non-aligned liberalism: Chin-o-Arab hamara, with an opening stanza declaring 'China and Arabia are ours/India is ours/We have no roof over our heads/The whole world is ours' (China and Arabia being references to Zhou En-Lai and Nasser). This song is picturised at night in Bombay's easily recognisable square opposite the Victoria Terminus where even today, as Kapoor does in the film, one may sleep on the pavement without police interference. Other classic numbers include Aasman pe hai khuda aur zameen pe hum ('The Lord is in the heavens and we on earth/And these days He doesn't look our way very often') sung by Kapoor to a cabaret dancer and intercut with the death of Sohni's father. The best-known number is the title refrain heralding a new dawn, Woh subah kabhi to aayegi.

(From left) Raj Kapoor, Mubarak and Rehman in Phir Subah Hogi

Post Box 999

1958 ? b&w Hindi
d Ravindra Dave pc Nagina Films
s/lyr P.L. Santoshi c M.W. Mukadam
m Kalyanji Veerji Shah lp Sunil Dutt, Shakila, Purnima, Leela Chitnis, Manorama, Krishnakant, Gulab, Sadhana, Anwari, Amarnath

Apparently inspired by Hathaway's Call Northside 777 (1947), this is the best-known and the most successful of Dave's crime thrillers. Journalist Vikas (Dutt) is hired by an old woman (Chitnis) to prove the innocence of her wrongly convicted son Mohan. The investigation of the villainous hotel owner Banarasilal involves Vikas and his girlfriend Nilima (Shakila) posing as magicians while the intrepid mother helps out by going to work in the villain's bird-shop. Mohan's innocence can only be proved via the testimony of Bindiya, supposedly long since dead but believed to be still alive by the investigators.

Puberun

1958 139' b&w Assamese
d/sc Prabhat Mukherjee pc Kathakali Cine st Khagen Roy c Ajoy Mitra m Faizuddin Ahmed lp Jnanada Kakoti, Beena Devi, Margaret, Rebecca Achaw, Gautam Borbora, Radha Gobinda Barua, Tasadduf Yusuf, Khagen Roy

Assamese melodrama about motherhood set in the hill-station of Shillong. The mother (Kakoti) extends her love for her child to that of the children of a Christian orphanage. Kakoti's performance was critically acclaimed.

Rai Daich

1958 112' b&w Sindhi
d J.B. Lulla pc Atu Lalwani, D.D. Kripalani s Ram Panjwani lyr Parsram Zia c Chandu m Bulo C. Rani
lp Shanti Ramchandani, Veena Makhijani, Atu Lalwani, Pratap Maniar, Chandu Shivdasani, Kanmohan, Sajju Kripalani, Minoo Kripalani, Tuntun, Bhudo Advani

Sindhi folk-tale adapting the Moses and Krishna legends to Rai Daich (Lalwani), the king of Junagadh, who, it is predicted, will be killed by his sister's son. The sister hands her newborn son to her maid who floats him in a box down the river where he is rescued and raised by a shepherd. He grows up to become Bijal (Maniar) whose girlfriend Kamodini (Ramchandani), at the rival King Anerai of Gujarat's request, agrees on Bijal's behalf to behead Rai Daich. Bijal sings before Rai Daich, wins a boon, and asks for his head, triggering a war. Bijal's song suddenly has Anerai's castle bursting into flames. The war is constructed on the editing table with stock shots. This unusual Sindhi film is known mainly for Rani's music.

Raj Tilak

1958 171' b&w Hindi
d S.S. Vasan pc Gemini co-st Kothamangalam Subbu co-st/dial Ramanand Sagar co-st/sc K.J. Mahadevan lyr P.L. Santoshi c P. Ellappa m C. Ramchandra lp Gemini Ganesh, Vyjayanthimala, Pran, Padmini, Gajanan Jagirdar, Bipin Gupta

Gemini's fairy-tale adventure continued in the vein of Chandralekha (1948) and Apoorva Sahodarargal (1949), involving the same writer (K. Subbu) and art director (A.K. Sekhar). Chander (Ganesh), rescued when still a child from a drifting raft, falls foul of a villainous senapati (chieftain) (Pran). Exiled to a desolate island, he learns that he is the son of the good Sardar Mangal Sen (Jagirdar). He jumps into the sea whence he is rescued by a foreign ship which takes him to its home port. There Chander falls in love with the local princess, Mandakini (Vyjayanthimala). Returning to his homeland, Chander finds that his father has been imprisoned by the villain. To set things right he has to overcome the might of the state.

Randidangazi

aka Two Measures of Paddy
 1958 174' b&w Malayalam
d/p P. Subramanyam pc Neela Prod.
s Thakazhy Shivashankar Pillai based on his novel lyr Thirunayanar Kurichi, Madhavan Nair
c N.S. Mani m Brother Lakshmanan
lp Kumari, P.J. Anthony, T.S. Muthiah, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, S.P. Pillai, Bahadur, Adoor Pankajam, J.A.R. Anand

Seminal political movie by a director better known for mythologicals. Set among the conditions of bonded labour in the Kuttanad province, it tells the story of the peasant Koran, who fights the oppression of the landlord Yusuf along with his wife Chirutha and friend Chatthan. He eventually organises the first peasant union in his area, leading the labourers to freedom. The film was dominated by its script, written by the major novelist Pillai, and prefigures the later achievement of Kariat's Chemmeen (1965). The genre was akin to many of the stage productions of the radical KPAC (cf. IPTA), as was some of the music.

Ranga Pol ice

1958 ? b&w Assamese
d Nip Barua pc Milita Silpi Cine s Ramesh Sarin
c Nalin Duara m Nizamuddin Hazarika lp Jnanada Kakoti, Nip Barua, Munim Burman, Abdul Majid, Syed Abdul Malik, Bhola Kakoti, Bina Das

Best-known Assamese director Nip Barua's first major film, made for an amateur theatre group turned film company. Melodrama about an honest policeman who has to weigh his principles against the difficulties faced by his impoverished family. One of the first Assamese films to receive critical attention outside the region. The composer, noted for scoring several numbers in the popular Jyoti Sangeet idiom, is a former colleague of Jyotiprasad Agarwala.

⊗ School Master/Badi Pantalu

1958 185' b&w/col Kannada/Hindi/Telugu d B.R. Panthulu pc Padmini Pics dial Kanagal Prabhakara Sastry c W.R. Subba Rao
m T.G. Lingappa lp B.R. Panthulu, M.V. Rajamma, Dikki Madhava Rao, Udaya Kumar, Sowcar Janaki, B. Saroja Devi, Sivaji Ganesan, Balkrishna, Narasimhraj, Gemini Ganesh

Panthulu's best-known Kannada film is a reform drama featuring an old but committed schoolteacher (Panthulu) who transforms the students of his native village though his own sons abandon him. He builds a new school, but succumbs to the villainy of the leader of the village panchayat (council) until the entire village comes to his support. Ganesan played a guest role as a police officer. Apparently inspired by the Raja Paranjpe melodrama Oon Paos (1954), Panthulu dubbed the film in Hindi (1958) and remade it in Tamil (1973), while his disciple Puttanna Kanagal made it in Malayalam (1964).

either of her two aunts, suddenly becomes a film star. Her relatives now vie with each other to exploit her new-found earning capacity. Lakshmi falls in love with Amar, a gossip journalist (Mahmood), who ditches her when he realises that Lakshmi's wealth is controlled by her greedy family. On the point of committing suicide, Lakshmi hears the hope-filled song Raat bhar ka yeh mehmaan andhera [Darkness is only a guest for the night] (written by Ludhianvi and sung by Mohammed Rafi) and meets the radical poet Shrikant (Sahni) whom she has idolised for years. After a long digression stigmatising the way the film industry exploits its workforce, Shrikant falls in love with Lakshmi, but when Lakshmi's brothers offer him money to abandon her, he accepts the money and donates it to the Junior Artists' Fund. Lakshmi, believing herself betrayed yet again, realises the truth only at the end of the film when she rejoins Shrikant to the refrain of the 'new dawn' song. Writer and producer Chughtai contrasts the popular cinema's romanticised narratives (cf. the soft-focus film-within-the-film song between Amar and Lakshmi) with the hard-edged reality of industrial exploitation underpinning them: the Saiyan jab se ladi tori akhiyan song is rapidly followed by the documentary-type Junior Artists' episode. Sahni's imposing presence enhances the film's realist aspirations, e.g. when he reads his poem to a bored producer or when he discovers the reality beneath the industry's glamour.

⊗ Sone Ki Chidiya

1958 171' b&w Hindi
d Shaheed Latif pc Filmindia Corp. s/p Ismat Chughtai lyr Sahir Ludhianvi, Majrooh Sultanpuri, Kaifi Azmi c Nariman A. Irani
m O.P. Nayyar
lp Nutan, Balraj Sahni, Talat Mahmood, Altaf, Amar, Bikram Kapoor, Pratima Devi, Chandabai, Sarita Devi, Baij Sharma, Hammad Jaffri, Zebunissa, Dhumal

The orphaned Lakshmi (Nutan), unwanted by ⊗ Yahudi

1958 161' b&w Hindi
d Bimal Roy pc Bombay Films st Aga Hashr Kashmiri's play Yahudi Ki Ladki (1915)
sc Nabendu Ghosh dial Wajahat Mirza lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c Dilip Gupta
m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Sohrab Modi, Dilip Kumar, Meena Kumari, Nigar Sultana, Nasir Hussain, Anwar Hussain, Minoo Mumtaz, Helen, Cuckoo, Kumari Kamala

Based on Kashmiri's famous and often-filmed play, this version is partially authenticated by former Parsee Theatre actor Modi's presence. The melodrama in fancy dress is set in ancient Rome. The infant son of Ezra the Jew (Modi) is fed to the lions by Brutus (N. Hussain). Ezra's devoted slave Elias then kidnaps Brutus's daughter Lydia, whom Ezra renames Hannah (Kumari) and raises as his own child. The Roman Prince Marcus (D. Kumar) falls in love with Hannah by pretending to be a commoner, but he refuses to convert to Judaism in order to marry her. When, by royal decree, Marcus is to marry Octavia, Hannah and Ezra publicly complain of Marcus's infidelity. Realising that the penalty for infidelity is death, Hannah withdraws her complaint, which in turn entails a death sentence for herself and her father. They are saved only by Ezra's last-minute revelation of Hannah's true ancestry and Marcus blinds himself in atonement for his misbehaviour. The film has many popular songs, including the well-picturised Yeh mera diwanapan hai (sung by Mukesh).

⊗ Abba! A Hudgi

1959 190' b&w Kannada
d/s/lyr H.L.N. Simha pc Shri Jamuna Pics
c B. Dorairaj m P. Kalingrao
lp Raja Shankar, Mynavathi, Rajkumar, Leelavathi, Narasimhraj, B.R. Panthulu, M.V. Rajamma, Pandharibai, H.L.N. Simha, Dikki Madhava Rao

Taming of the Shrew-type drama. The feminist Sarasa, president of the Anti-Marriage League, is tamed by her lover Sarvottam with the assistance of an urban theatre group performing Samsara Nauka, one of 20th C. Kannada theatre's most successful plays. The play, which deals with the reforming of a crusty lawyer, is adapted to stage a 'real life' fiction in which Sarvottam is accused of having murdered the theatre group's proprietor. Fear of her lover going to the gallows transforms the woman, as predicted. For the film Simha revived the original stage performance of Samsara Nauka by the Chandrakala group, including Panthulu, Rajamma and Simha himself.

⊗ Anari

1959 166' b&w Hindi
d Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc L.B. Films s Inder Raj Anand lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c Jaywant Pathare m Shankar-Jaikishen lp Raj Kapoor, Nutan, Lalita Pawar, Motilal, Shubha Khote, Nana Palsikar, Ashim Kumar, Paul Mahendra, Brahm Bhardwaj, Sulochana, Helen

The naive painter Raj (Kapoor) lodges with the devout, rather maternal Mrs D'Sa (Pawar). Raj falls in love with Aarti (Nutan), the niece of the wealthy pharmaceuticals manufacturer Ramnath

M. V. Rajamma (second from left) and B. R. Panthulu (right) in School Master

(Motilal) who is Raj's employer. To sidestep class differences, Aarti pretends to be her own maid. This stratagem leads to problems aggravated when Mrs D'Sa dies after taking medicines made by Ramnath's company. Raj is accused of having poisoned her. Eventually Ramnath acknowledges responsibility for the crime. Although directed and edited by Mukherjee, the film's cynical view of capital accumulation betrays Kapoor's authorial signature (cf. Shri 420, 1955). The presence of Shailendra, Hasrat and Shankar-Jaikishen, close collaborators of the RK banner, as well as the expected Mukesh solo showing a philosophising tramp (Kissi ki muskurahaton pe ho nisar) underline Kapoor's direct influence on the film.

Apur Sansar

aka The World of Apu

1959 117' (106') b&w Bengali

d/p/sc Satyajit Ray pc Satyajit Ray Prod.

st Bibhutibhushan Bannerjee's novel Aparajito

c Subrata Mitra m Ravi Shankar

lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Sharmila Tagore,

Alok Chakraborty, Swapan Mukherjee,

Dhires Majumdar, Shefalika Devi, Dhiren

Ghoshal

Rather belatedly, Ray decided to add a third film to his Pather Panchali (1955) and the initially unsuccessful Aparajito (1956). A grown-up Apu (Chatterjee's debut), now living poorly in Calcutta and dreaming of becoming a great novelist, is persuaded to marry a young village woman, Aparna (the 14-year-old Tagore), to protect her honour when her scheduled marriage is abruptly cancelled. The two live together in Calcutta and fall in love, but when Aparna goes to her maternal home for her first pregnancy, she dies although her son lives. Apu rejects the child and tries to overcome his desperation by working in a remote colliery. He eventually accepts his son. The scenes of the young married couple living in poverty are Ray's first major location shots in contemporary Calcutta, soon to become a leitmotif in his work. Here he also elaborated his way of weaving a complex and suggestive usage of (urban) geography into the cinematic narrative, as in the classic sequences where Apu brings his bride to their new home, a squalid room above a railway line, or the couple's visit to a movie followed by the cab-ride home. Of the remarkable scene in which Apu reclaims his young son Kajal (Alok Chakraborty), standing in front of the river, Geeta Kapur (1993) notes: 'He stands at the crossroads extra tall with his child on his shoulder. [B]ut there is in the very courage of this verticality a disjuncture between the future and the past, and a regret at the alienated space of the present'. It also recalls the young Apu at the beginning of the trilogy.

Char Dil Char Raahein

1959 160' b&w Hindi

d/st/co-sc/dial K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar

co-sc Inder Raj Anand, V.P. Sathe lyr Sahir

Ludhianvi c Ramchandra m Anil Biswas

lp Raj Kapoor, Meena Kumari, Ajit, Nimmi, Shammi Kapoor, Kumkum, Jairaj, David, Anwar Hussain, Badri Prasad, Shakuntala, Rashid Khan, Nana Palsikar, Baby Naaz, Achala Sachdev

Abbas's only venture into the star-studded Hindi film mainstream. It tells a parable about love and community using three stories, each featuring a hero, his lover and a villain. The Ahir youth Govinda (Kapoor) is prevented from marrying his childhood sweetheart Chavli (Kumari) because she is an Untouchable. Chavli is driven out of the village but Govinda goes and waits for her at a crossroads. Dilawar (Ajit), a Pathan chauffeur, rescues the dancing-girl Pyari (Nimmi) from the clutches of his employer, a villainous nawab, but Pyari refuses to escape without her mother. Pyari then settles down at the same crossroads and starts a small shop, waiting for Dilawar to relent and to accept both of them. The hotel employee Johnny Braganza (S. Kapoor) falls in love with Stella D'Souza (Kumkum) who is coveted by his boss Ferreira (David). Ferreira frames Johnny and has him jailed. Johnny later joins the group at the crossroads and starts a garage. The trade union leader Nirmal Kumar (Jairaj) eventually enlists the trio at the crossroads to help build a road. Blasting through a hill, Govinda finds Chavli again and the whole community walks down 'their' road singing the socialist song Sathi re kadam kadam se dil se dil mila rahe. Later, in an interview with Vasudev and Lenglet (1983), Abbas blamed the film's failure on the stars' lack of screen glamour: 'Meena Kumari was blackened, Raj Kapoor was put in a dhoti, Shammi Kapoor was made into a waiter, Nimmi was made into a prostitute'. He never worked with major stars again.

Chhoti Bahen

1959 155' b&w Hindi

d L.V. Prasad pc Prasad Prod. s Inder Raj

Anand lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri

c Dwarka Divecha m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Balraj Sahni, Shyama, Nanda, Rehman, Mehmood, Shubha Khote, Sudesh Kumar,

Veena, Badri Prasad, Dhupal, Radhakrishen, H.

Shivdasani, Tridip Kumar

Prasad's early Hindi hit is a family melodrama featuring Rajendra (Sahni) who must support his younger brother Shekhar (Rehman) and sister Meena (Nanda). Shekhar prefers flirting with Shobha (Shyama) to his studies and Meena goes blind. Shekhar then marries Shobha who starts oppressing her blind sister-in-law, eventually causing her to end up on the streets. Rajendra loses his job and ends up destitute, allowing the film to reiterate its humanist message. It was probably adapted from Ch. Narayanamurthy's earlier Naa Chellelu (1953).

Deep Jewel ey Jai

1959 132' b&w Bengali

d/sc Asit Sen pc Badal Pics st/dial Ashutosh

Mukherjee c Anil Gupta, Jyoti Laha

m Hemanta Mukherjee

lp Suchitra Sen, Basanta Choudhury, Pahadi Sanyal, Tulsi Chakraborty, Anil Chatterjee, Namita Sinha, Kajari Guha, Chandrabati Devi, Dilip Choudhury, Shyam Laha

Original version of Sen's Rajesh Khanna psychodrama Khamoshi (1969) and one of Suchitra Sen's best-known performances. She plays Radha, the hospital nurse employed by a progressive psychiatrist (Sanyal). She is expected to develop a personal relationship with the male patients as part of their therapy. The doctor diagnoses Tapash's (B. Choudhury) problem as an unresolved Oedipal dilemma - the inevitable consequence, he says, for men who are denied a nurturing woman. He orders the nurse to play that role, even though on an earlier, similar occasion she fell in love with the patient. Radha bears up to Tapash's violence, wears red-bordered silk saris to impersonate his mother, sings his poetic compositions and, in the process, falls in love yet again. In the end, having brought about Tapash's mental cure, Radha has a nervous breakdown. Suchitra Sen's hauntingly beautiful, often partly lit close-ups set the tone for the film's visual style. Hemanta Mukherjee's music, e.g. Ei raat tomar amar, used a whistling chorus as a sort of leitmotif and contributed greatly to the movie's success.

Dhool Ka Phool

aka Blossom of Dust

1959 153' b&w Hindi

d Yash Chopra pc B.R. Films s Mukhram

Sharma lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Dharam Chopra

m N. Dutta

lp Mala Sinha, Rajendra Kumar, Ashok

Kumar, Nanda, Sushil Kumar, Manmohan

Krishna, Leela Chitnis, Daisy Irani, Amirbano,

Mohan Choti

Yash Chopra's debut was an epic melodrama about illegitimacy. University colleagues Mahesh Kapoor (R. Kumar) and Meena (Sinha) have an affair which leaves her pregnant. Mahesh Bhatt (1993) described the love-making scene as typical of the representation of sex in Indian cinema of the period: 'The real thing is made possible by a studio downpour and the library shots of lightning and thunder.' Under pressure from his autocratic father, Mahesh agrees to marry a rich heiress (Nanda). Meena, helped by her former maid (Chitnis), gives birth to a son and, fearing the stigma of being a single mother, abandons the baby in a forest. The child is found and raised by an old Muslim, Abdul Rasheed (M. Krishna). The grown-up boy (S. Kumar) is ostracised because of his illegitimate birth and falls in with bad company. At the end of the film, the boy's tangled history is revealed when, accused of theft, he has to appear in a court presided over by his father while the defending lawyer (A. Kumar) is his mother's husband. Meena herself acts as a witness. There is a plea for communal harmony when the old Muslim tells the boy not to adhere to any particular religion (Tu Hindu banega na musalman banega, sung by Mohammed Rafi, i.e. 'You will not grow up to be/a Muslim or a Hindu/You are the son of a man/and a human being you shall be.') The elaborate crane movements (esp. in the scene of Mahesh's wedding procession) and the combination of high-angle 'nature' shots with tightly edited scenes were characteristic of 50s B.R. Films (cf. Kanoon, 1960). Well-known songs, including the duet Tere pyar ka aasra chahata hoon (by Mahendra Kapoor and Lata Mangeshkar) and Jhukti ghata gaati hawa (sung by Asha Bhosle).

framework for a series of rock numbers including the title song Dil deke dekho, dil deke walon and Pyar ho to keh do Yes (sung by Mohammed Rafi).

⊗ Goonj Uthi Shehnai

1959 174' b&w Hindi

d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics

s G.D. Madgulkar dial Shiv Kumar, Qamar Jalalabadi lyr Bharat Vyas c Bipin Gajjar m Vasant Desai

lp Rajendra Kumar, Amita, Ulhas, I.S. Johar, Manmohan Krishna, Leela Mishra, Prem Dhawan, Pratap Bhansali, Rammurthy, Anita Guha

A successful romance featuring a classical shehnai musician. Kishen (R. Kumar) is a musical prodigy in love with Gopi (Ameeta). Their union is opposed by Gopi's widowed mother Jamuna (Mishra) and by Kishen's adopted music teacher Raghunath (Ulhas) whose daughter Ramkali (Guha) secretly loves the musician. Later, when Kishen is a famous radio musician, his benefactor Shekhar (Bhansali) marries Gopi. In several scenes, the love-stricken Kishen vows never again to play the instrument with which he had wooed Gopi and he drowns his sorrows in alcohol. The film's main asset is the extensive use of the shehnai instrument, performed in playback by 20th C. India's best-known shehnai maestro, Bismillah Khan. In order to try to match the music's classical authenticity, an attempt was made to present the story as a medieval Sanskrit love legend.

⊗ Guest House

1959 ? b&w Hindi

d Ravindra Dave pc Golden Movies

s K.A. Narayan dial Adil Rashid, Rafat Badayuni lyr Prem Dhawan c Raj Kumar Bhakri

m Chitragupta

lp Ajit, Shakila, Maruti, Lalita Pawar, Vimla Kumari, Tiwari, Pran

A moral fable presented as a crime melodrama. Amar (Ajit) and his cousin Manohar (Pran) are a pair of shifty childhood friends. However, Manohar's father believes his son to be a fine person led astray by Amar. When Amar's dying mother makes her son promise never to tell lies, Manohar, caught by the police, is jailed because Amar refuses to lie to save his friend. Amar is disinherited by his equally shifty guardian and goes to Bombay where he is taken in by Neela (Shakila) and dreams of becoming a saintly figure with his new-found idealism. When Manohar is released, he seeks revenge on his cousin and erstwhile friend. In the process he has to disown his dotting father, now a beggar on the streets.

⊗ Kaagaz Ke Phool

aka Paper Flowers

1959 153' b&w/scope Hindi

d/p Guru Dutt pc Guru Dutt Films s Abrar Alvi lyr Kaifi Azmi c V.K. Murthy m S.D. Burman

lp Guru Dutt, Waheeda Rehman, Baby Naaz, Johnny Walker, Mahesh Kaul, Veena, Minoo Mumtaz, Pratima Devi, Niloufer, Sulochana, Sheila Vaz, Bikram Kapoor

The commercial failure of this film on its initial release prompted Guru Dutt, by some accounts, to stop taking directorial credit for his films. The baroque, quasi-autobiographical fantasy has over time become his best-known film next to Pyasa (1957) and could be regarded as India's equivalent of Citizen Kane (1941). It tells, in flashback, the story of Suresh Sinha (Dutt), a famous film director. His marriage to Bina (Veena), the daughter of a wealthy parvenue (Mahesh Kaul), is wrecked because film directing is a job lacking in social status. Sinha is denied access to his beloved daughter Pammi (Baby Naaz) who is sent to a private boarding school. On a rainy night Sinha meets Shanti (Rehman) who turns out to be ideally suited to act the part of Paro in Sinha's film Devdas. Shanti becomes a star and gossip columns link her with Sinha. The distraught Pammi pleads with Shanti to quit films, which she does, and her withdrawal leads to a rapid decline in Sinha's fortunes. Soon he is a forgotten and destitute man. Eventually, after some painful adventures (reminiscent of Emil Jannings's fate in Sternberg's The Last Command, 1928) Sinha is found dead in the director's chair in an empty studio. With a more complex narrative structure than Pyasa, this film can be seen as a meditation on the control of space, itself an eminently cinematic concern and brilliantly rendered by Murthy's astonishing CinemaScope camerawork. The film dramatises the conflict between open and constricted spaces, between spaces controlled by the director and spaces constraining him, spaces he can enter and those from which he is excluded. Eventually these tensions are resolved in the enclosed and womblike but huge and free-seeming space of a deserted film studio. The tragic refrain Waqt hai meherbaan of the song Dekhi zamaane ki yaari, written

⊗ Dil Deke Dekho

1959 187' b&w Hindi

d/s Nasir Hussain pc Filmalaya lyr Majrooh

Sultanpuri c Dilip Gupta m Usha Khanna

lp Shammi Kapoor, Asha Parekh, Sulochana, Raj Mehra, Randhir, Wasti, Rajendranath, Mumtaz Ali, Indira, Tahir Khan, B.K. Mukherjee, Kewal Kapoor, Surendra, Siddhu, Malika

Hussain's reworking of Tumsa Nahin Dekha (1957) repeats the former film's plot, except that the long-lost father is replaced by a mother. Heiress Jamuna (Sulochana) is deserted by her husband Rana, who takes their son Roop with him. She adopts Kailash (Rajendranath) and Neeta (Parekh) and wants the two to get married. However, Neeta falls in love with a rock singer who turns out to be the grown-up Roop (Kapoor). The villain Harichand persuades Jamuna that her son is in fact his accomplice Sohan, and that Sohan should marry Neeta. The confusion is resolved by way of a shootout during the marriage ceremony. Shammi Kapoor repeats his trademark scene, impersonating a Muslim gentleman (cf. the Dekho kasam se number in Tumsa Nahin Dekha), Professor Saamri, who sings Do ekam do while dispensing advice to other characters. The story merely provides a by Azmi, repeated throughout the film, endows the narrative with an epic dimension enhanced by Burman's music. The original Cinema Scope negative has been damaged and few scope prints survive (two are at European TV stations).

Ameeta and Rajendra Kumar in Goonj Uthi Shehnai

☞ Kal yana Parisu

aka The Wedding Gift

1959 194' b&w Tamil

d/s C.V. Sridhar pc Venus Pics lyr Pattukotai Kalyanasundaram c A. Vincent m A.M. Raja lp Gemini Ganesh, A. Nageshwara Rao, K.A. Thangavelu, B. Saroja Devi, Vijayakumari, M. Saroja, S.D. Subbulakshmi

The playwright Sridhar's directorial debut is a melodrama featuring the student Bhaskar (Ganesh) who has a secret liaison with Vasanthi (Saroja Devi), a fellow student in whose house he rents a room. However, he marries her sister Geetha (Vijayakumari), the breadwinner of the family. Vasanthi stays with the couple until Geetha asks her sister to leave. When Geetha dies and leaves Bhaskar a single father, he tries to secure Vasanthi again but finds her already married to Raghu (Nageshwara Rao), so he hands her his child as a 'wedding gift' and disappears into the mist. The film presents the egotistical Bhaskar as a victimised, tragic hero in a story advocating the observance of social convention, with popular songs performed by playback singer and music director A.M. Raja in his debut as composer. Its autonomous comic sub-plot also proved very popular and is still sold on audio cassettes. Sridhar went on to make a series of 'eternal triangle' pictures in a similar vein.

☞ Mahishasura Mardini/Durga Mata

1959 167' b&w Kannada/Hindi

d/c B.S. Ranga pc Vikram Prod.

s/lyr Chi. Sadashivaiah m G.K. Venkatesh lp Rajkumar, Udaya Kumar, Sowcar Janaki, Sandhya, Narasimhraj, Chittor V. Nagaiyah, Ashwath, Rajanala, Suryakala, Indrani, M. Lakshmidevi, Kushalakumari, Ramadevi

Devi Purana variation of the circumstances that led to the goddess Durga slaying the demon Mahishasura. In the film, told in flashback, he is not a demon but one who was ancestrally wronged when the god Indra slew Karambha, king of Mahishamandala. Karambha's brother Rambha (Udaya Kumar), in retaliation, reaches the Nagaloka and steals the Sanathanakalpa fruit, bringing down a curse on his son: the boy shall never see either of his parents alive. The prophecy comes true as Rambha is killed and his wife Mahishi (Suryakala) commits sati (ritual self-immolation) just after her son Mahishasura is born. Mahishi was in fact a buffalo turned into a beautiful woman by Indra. The orphaned Mahishasura (Rajkumar) is raised by Shukracharya, who tells him the family story in the film's opening. Vowing to take revenge against the invincible Indra, Mahishasura through prayer achieves indestructibility. The celestial impasse is resolved when the goddess Parvati-Durga, gifted with the accumulated power of all the gods, defeats Mahishasura in a nine-day battle.

☞ Maragatham

aka Karunkuyil Kunrathu Kolai

1959 203' b&w Tamil

d S.M. Sreeramulu Naidu p Pakshiraja Studios sc Murasoli Maran m S.M. Subbaiah Naidu lp Sivaji Ganesan, S. Balachander, Padmini, Sandhya, Chandrababu

To escape a false charge of fratricide, Maranamarthanda Zamindar (Balachander) leaves his wife Karpagavalli (Sandhya) and moves to Sri Lanka with his daughter Maragatham (Padmini), assuming the names Anandar and Alamu. When his brother-in-law Varendran (Sivaji) arrives in Sri Lanka on holiday and meets them, he falls for Alamu not knowing that she is his niece. Eventually, the fugitives return to Tamil Nadu and their names are cleared with the help of Varendran and Butler Gundan (Chandrababu).

☞ Paigham

1959 188' b&w Hindi

d S.S. Vasan pc Gemini s Kothamangalam Subbu dial Ramanand Sagar, T. Mukherjee lyr Pradeep c P. Ellappa m C. Ramchandra lp Dilip Kumar, Vyjayanthimala, Raaj Kumar, Pandharibai, Motilal, B. Saroja Devi, Johnny Walker, Minoo Mumtaz

After Mr Sampat (1952) and Insaniyat (1955), this multi-star melodrama consolidated S.S. Vasan's efforts to break into the Hindi cinema. Poor heroine Manju (Vyjayanthimala) befriends Malati (Saroja Devi), the daughter of rich millowner Seth Sewakram (Motilal). The engineer Ratanlal (D. Kumar), together with his brother Ramlal (Raaj Kumar), works at Sewakram's mill where he meets Manju again and falls in love with her. The complicated story that ensues involves Ratanlal setting up a union while his brother Ramlal tries to break it under pressure from the boss. The major twist in the plot is that Manju is revealed to be the rich millowner's daughter, whereupon she tries to burn down the mill. Ratanlal, who tries to stop her, is arrested and jailed for arson before the story is eventually resolved.

☞ President Panchatcharam

1959 162' b&w Tamil

d A. Bhimsingh pc Savithri Pics st N. Gogol's The Government Inspector sc B.S. Ramaiah c M. Karnan m G. Ramanathan lp S.S. Rajendran, S.V. Sahasranamam, T.R. Ramchandran, V.R. Rajagopal, B. Saroja Devi, S.N. Lakshmi, T.V. Karunanidhi, N. Chandini, D.V. Narayanaswamy

The District Board president (Sahasranamam) meets the unemployed youth Sigamani (Rajendran), who wants a job and says he is in love with the president's daughter (Saroja Devi). However, the president mistakes him for a government representative investigating corruption charges.

☞ Raja Makutam

1959 179' [Te]/184' [Ta] b&w Telugu/Tamil

d/co-sc B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini

st/dial D.V. Narasaraju co-sc Padmaraju, B.S. Ramaiah lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry, Kosaraju, Nagaraju c B.N. Konda Reddy m Master Venu lp N.T. Rama Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Rajanala, Rajasulochana, P. Kannamba

An unacknowledged adaptation of Ramanna's 'folkloric' adventure Pudumaipithan (1957) by a director known for reformist films. The king is assassinated in the absence of his son Prince Pratap (NTR). When Pratap returns in disguise, he falls in love with the village belle Prameela (Rajasulochana). He becomes a public enemy when he sentences the men who appear to be guilty of the killing, one of whom is Prameela's brother, but the real villain is Prachanda, the prince's uncle. Disguised as an avenging revolutionary known as the Black Snake, Pratap dethrones the villain. The Telugu version of the bilingual (Reddi's only two-language film) was a success, but the director later disowned it for pandering to commercialism.

☞ Sangtye Aika

1959 157' b&w Marathi

d Anant Mane pc Chetana Chitra st G.G. Parkhi s Vyankatesh Madgulkar lyr G.D. Madgulkar c I. Mohammed m Vasant Pawar lp Sulochana, Hansa Wadkar, Jayashree Gadkar, Ratnamala, Neelam, Pushpa Rane, Chandrakant, Suryakant, Dada Salvi, Vasantrao Pahlwan, Vasant Shinde, Kisanrao Agihotri

Mane's major hit is a Wadkar classic, later providing the title for her controversial autobiography (1970). Marathi cinema's best-known Tamasha musical (with Shantaram's Lokshahir Ramjoshi, 1947) is an epic saga narrating a conflict over two generations between the evil Mahadev Patil of Rajuri (Dada Salvi) and folk Tamasha dancer Chima (Wadkar). The good Sakharam (Chandrakant) and his wife (Sulochana) move into the village where he defeats Patil in a bullock-cart race (one of the film's most spectacular sequences). Patil has Sakharam killed and his home burnt down. He then rapes Sakharam's wife, who dies while giving birth to her child. The infant girl is raised by Chima. In the second half, the young dancer (Gadkar), now apprenticed to Chima, faces the amorous attentions of Patil's son (Suryakant). The remarkable finale has Chima reveal the truth on stage through song: the young dancer is in fact Patil's own daughter. Sakharam's naivety (cf. the song Jhali bhali pahaat) is contrasted with the cynical real politik of the villain, while Wadkar's extraordinary performance holds the story together as well as commenting on the village's history. In a performance recalling Brecht's dramaturgy, she integrates the Tamasha and the Lavni idioms into the melodramatic plot, combining Madgulkar's stereotypes of authenticity with the mythic aspects of the ruralist 'gramin chitrapat' genre. Wadkar's successor in the Tamasha and saint film idioms, Gadkar, here has one of her first major roles.

⊗ Satta Bazaar

1959 ? b&w Hindi

d Ravindra Dave pc Nagina Films

st Mohanlal G. Dave sc K.A. Abbas

lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri, Gulshan Bawra, Indivar c W.V. Mukadam m Kalyanji-Anandji

lp Meena Kumari, Balraj Sahni, Johnny Walker, Suresh, Tiwari, Krishnakant, Asit Sen, Savita Choudhury, Vijaya Choudhury

A devout housewife (Kumari) supports her stepdaughter's decision to marry a man not of her own caste, but her husband Ramesh (Sahni) gets mixed up with a bunch of crooks and causes the family much distress.

⊗ Sivagangai Seemai

aka The Land of Sivagangai

1959 173' b&w Tamil

d K. Shankar pc Kannadasan Prod.

p K.S. Ranganathan s/lyr Kannadasan

c Thambu m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy lp S.S. Rajendran, T.K. Bhagavathi,

M.K. Mustafa, P.S. Veerappa, Kamala Laxman, M.N. Rajam, S. Varalakshmi, Wahab Kashmiri, Thambaram Lalitha, N. Lalitha

The lyricist and Dravidian ideologue Kannadasan uses a fictionalised account of the British East India Company's subjugation of the Sivagangai kingdom as a vehicle for DMK propaganda. Set in 1798, Omaithurai, the brother of Kattabomman who rose against the British, seeks the protection of the Marudu brothers who rule Sivagangai (the Marudu are folk legends renowned for their anti-British insurrections). Col. Welsh (Kashmiri) uses this incident to storm their fort and execute the rulers. In parallel, the film chronicles the tragic love story between Muthazhagu (Rajendran) and Chittu (Kamala). Chittu and another female character die of unspecified causes after their husbands get killed. A young bride whose husband is murdered by robbers commits sati, something the film appears to approve of as the Marudu brothers declare she should be worshipped as a deity. Theatricality, verbosity, angled shots for emotional emphasis and insistent background music weigh the film down, although folk-songs provide a lighter touch. The film was sometimes presented as the DMK's counter to Veerapandiya Kattaboman, made the same year with a more strongly emphasised nationalism. The script was published in 1994.

⊗ Sujata

1959 161' (147') b&w Hindi

d/p Bimal Roy pc Bimal Roy Prod. st Subodh

Ghosh sc Nabendu Ghosh dial Paul Mahendra

lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Kamal Bose

m S.D. Burman

lp Nutan, Sunil Dutt, Shashikala, Tarun Bose, Sulochana, Lalita Pawar

Roy's classic reformist melodrama about a Harijan (Untouchable) girl whose kinfolk die in a plague epidemic and is raised by an upper-class and caste family. Upendranath Choudhury (Bose) and his wife Charu (Sulochana) have a daughter, Rama (Shashikala), and they adopt Sujata (Nutan), the Harijan orphan. Later, Sujata discovers the truth of her ancestry and must bear the demeaning treatment meted out by Charu and the family friend Giribala (Pawar), whose son Adhir (Dutt) is supposed to marry Rama but falls in love with Sujata. When Sujata donates blood to save Charu's life, even Charu has to abandon her caste prejudice. Nutan gives one of her best performances, surpassed only by her solo tour de force in Roy's Bandini (1963). Unfortunately, the weak Adhir has to bear the burden of being the only representative of the progressive forces ranged against oppressive tradition. Presumably for its humanist message, the film includes a rather arbitrarily inserted but elaborate stage performance of Tagore's dance drama Chandalika. Several classic numbers include Asha Bhosle's Kali ghata chhaye, composer S.D. Burman's own Suno mere bandhu re and Talat Mahmood's Jalte hain jiske liye.

⊗ Veerapandiya Kattabomman/ Amar Shaheed

1959 201' col Tamil/Hindi

d/p B.R. Panthulu pc Padmini Pics

s Sakthi Krishnaswamy c W.R. Subba Rao

lyr K.M. Balasubramanyam m G. Ramanathan lp Sivaji Ganesan, Gemini Ganesh,

Padmini, S. Varalakshmi, Ragini,

V.K. Ramaswamy, Jawar Seetharaman,

Anandan

The epic historical and best-known of Ganesan's collaborations with Panthulu. Kattaboman is presented as the ruler of a small kingdom in Tamil Nadu in the 18th C. who heroically fought against the British invaders and is still revered for his rebellion. The plot has the British lure a rival, Ettayappan (Ramaswamy), into betraying the valiant Kattaboman (Ganesan) who is wounded, captured, humiliatingly brought to trial and hanged. The idealised portrait of Kattaboman is interwoven, in Ganesan's first Technicolor picture, with lavish court scenes, temple worship and the taming of bulls (much of the film was shot in Rajasthan). A love interest has been added as well. The film consciously invoked Cecil B. DeMille's spectacles with Panthulu adopting DeMille's tactic of personally introducing the film, on camera.

⊗ Angul imal

1960 153' col Hindi

d Vijay Bhatt pc P.V. Films, Thai Information

Service dial Sudarshan lyr Bharat Vyas

c V. Avadhoot m Anil Biswas

lp Nimmi, Bharat Bhushan, Anita Guha, Ulhas, Chandrasekhar, Achala Sachdev, Manmohan Krishna, Prem Adib, Kaisari, Helen

Financed by the Thai Government this film was to celebrate the 2500th anniversary of the Buddha (6th century BC). The tyrannical Angulimal (Bhushan), a bandit wearing a garland of severed human fingers and who engages in bloody mystical rituals to achieve divine power, eventually succumbs to the Buddha's teachings. Nimmi played Angulimal's lover and Hemen Gupta was originally announced as the director.

⊗ Anuradha

aka Love of Anuradha

1960 141' (120') b&w Hindi

p/d Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc L.B. Films st/co-sc Sachin Bhowmik co-sc D.N. Mukherjee,

Samir Choudhury dial Rajinder Singh Bedi

lyr Shailendra c Jaywant Pathare m Ravi

Shankar

lp Balraj Sahni, Abhi Bhattacharya, Leela

Naidu, Baby Ranu, Nasir Hussain, Hari

Shivdasani, Mukri, Rashid Khan, Asit Sen,

Ashim Kumar, Madhav Chitnis, Bhudo Advani

A sentimental variation on Madame Bovary. Anuradha Roy (Naidu), a lively and successful singer, marries a dull but idealistic country doctor (Sahni) and soon gets bored. Her former lover, who has an accident while passing through her village, ignites memories of her past and persuades her to return to her former profession. However, a timely visit by a famous and worldly-wise doctor, who recognises her sacrifice as more praiseworthy than the genius of her husband, reconciles her to her new life. Some poetic shots in the film play on life's ironies: while Anuradha looks at palm trees in the moonlight, the doctor gazes at wriggling worms through his microscope. Imaginative cutting (the director is also an expert editor) creates effective narrative ellipses, as when the newly married bride eagerly awaits her husband and he bursts in, years later, tired and irritable. Mukherjee's traditionally conservative fable about marriage is well served by Sahni's underacting, the subtle play of shadows suggesting the flavour of Anuradha's nostalgia for her former success, and Ravi Shankar's music, including popular songs like Kaise din beete and Hai re woh din kyon na aaye (sung by Lata Mangeskar).

⊗ Apna Haath Jagannath

1960 173' b&w Hindi

d Mohan Segal pc Deluxe Films

s G.D. Madgulkar dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Kaifi Azmi c C.S. Puttu m S.D. Burman

lp Kishore Kumar, Sayeeda Khan, Leela

Chitnis, Nasir Hussain, Jagdev, Nandkishore,

Shivraj, Sabita Chatterjee

Following on from his successful New Delhi (1956), Segal here uses the comedy star Kishore Kumar to address middle-class attitudes to manual labour. Madan (Kumar), the son of an impoverished aristocrat, Dhaniram, is forced to take a labouring job to the disappointment of his father and the disapproval of his future in-laws. However, he makes a success of his printing press and eventually employs his own father in the expanding business. The film has several

Kishore Kumar numbers including the bouncy Permit permit...ke liye mar mit.

✪ Baishey Shraavan

aka The Wedding Day

1960 110' (98') b&w Bengali

d/s Mrinal Sen pc Kallol Films st Kanai Basu

c Sailaja Chatterjee m Hemanta Mukherjee

lp Gyanesh Mukherjee, Madhabi Mukherjee, Hemangini Devi, Umanath Bhattacharya, Sumita Dasgupta, Anup Kumar

Set in a Bengal village just before and during the catastrophic famine of 1943 when some 5 million people died of starvation. A middle-aged hawker (G. Mukherjee) marries a beautiful 16-year-old girl (M. Mukherjee) who initially brightens his life. Then the man's mother (H. Devi) dies, WW2 presses upon them and the famine hits Bengal as the couple's marriage and the entire fabric of life disintegrates. In the end, the wife hangs herself. It is a deliberately cruel film about cruel living conditions, with the stark realism heightened through several melodramatic techniques. The mother dies when the roof falls on her head in a violent storm; the marriage breaks up when Priyanath greedily eats up the little rice he can find in the midst of the famine, without leaving any for his wife. The real innovation is that the third party destroying the marriage is not a person but the impact upon the couple of, in Sen's words, 'the men who, as they served colonial bosses in their war efforts, cared only for profiteering and black marketing'.

Guru Dutt and Minoo Mumtaz in Chaudhvin Ka Chand

lp Waheeda Rehman, Guru Dutt, Rehman, Minoo Mumtaz, Johnny Walker, Mumtaz Begum, Perveen Paul, Naazi, Nurjehan, Razia, Zebunissa

Dutt apparently commissioned Sadiq to make this Muslim social to help the maker of Rattan (1944) out of his impecunious condition. The love triangle pivots around the Islamic practice of purdah, which forbids women to show their face to men outside their immediate family. A nawab (Rehman) catches a brief glimpse of Jamila's (W. Rehman) face and falls in love with her. At his sister's party, he manages to get hold of a torn fragment from Jamila's veil and gives it to a maidservant to trace the identity of its owner. Jamila happens to exchange her veil with that of her friend Bano and so the nawab identifies the wrong woman. This mistake becomes a tragic irony when the nawab, having refused to marry a woman chosen by his ailing mother, persuades his close friend Aslam (Dutt) to marry the maternal choice instead: that woman turns out to be Jamila. When some time later Aslam realises that his friend the nawab is in love with his wife Jamila, he pretends to tire of her, hoping that she will demand a divorce and so will be free to marry the nawab. The nawab soon learns of Aslam's attempted sacrifice and in the tradition of male friendships on the screen, the nawab chooses to die for his friend and commits suicide. In later release prints, two song sequences, one being the famous Rafi solo Chaudhvin ka chand ho, ya aftaab ho, were rendered in colour although designed for b&w.

m Kalyanji-Anandji

lp Raj Kapoor, Nutan, Rehman, Shobhana Samarth, Pran, Moppet Raja, Ramlal, Gul, Shyamal

Desai's directorial debut is an unlikely drama about India's Partition. Shanti (Nutan) is married to Kewal (Rehman) in Lahore on the eve of Independence. When the nation is divided, Shanti's family and her husband migrate to Delhi, leaving her behind. She finds shelter for five years with the Afghan bandit Abdul Rehman (Pran) who has a sister of Shanti's age across the border. Shanti bears a son, Anwar (Moppet Raja), and when she travels to Delhi with her child her husband disowns her, as does her father. She finds shelter with another generous criminal, Chhalia (Kapoor), who falls in love with her. Abdul Rehman comes to Delhi to pursue an old feud with Chhalia and threatens to kidnap Shanti. After an extended fight sequence, the two bandits call a truce. On the train back to Pakistan, Rehman is reunited with his sister. Chhalia arranges a reconciliation between Shanti and Kewal, renouncing his own chance at happiness. The film alludes to aspects of realism derived from radical literature as well as from Kapoor's presence (cf. Phir Subah Hogi, 1958), but Desai seems impatient with the finer points of plot structure, a tendency that would later lead to his virtual abandonment of temporally coherent plots in the Bachchan films of the 70s and 80s. The film had several hit songs including the communal-harmony number Chhalia mera naam, sung by Mukesh.

✪ Bambai Ka Babu

1960 154' b&w Hindi

d/co-p Raj Khosla co-p/c Jal Mistry pc Naya Films s G.R. Kamath dial Rajinder Singh Bedi

lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Suchitra Sen, Manohar Deepak, Rashid Khan, Jagdish Raj, Lalita Kumari, Prem Khanna, Sailen Bose, Anwaribai, Nasir Hussain

The nice Inspector Malik (Deepak) reforms the criminal Babu (Anand) who is then pursued by the gang boss Bali (Raj) who suspects Babu has become an informer. In a fight, Bali is killed and Babu has to go on the run. A blackmailer, Bhagatji (Khan), forces Babu to impersonate the long-lost son of a rich household in order to steal their jewellery. In the process, Babu falls in love with Maya (Sen), the daughter of the family. After the film's noirish beginning, as in many Dev Anand starrers, it turns into a romance, initially with incestual overtones since Maya believes Babu to be her brother. Eventually, when Babu discovers that the lost son was Bali, whom he has killed, he accepts his responsibilities to the family and that Maya will marry someone else.

✪ Chaudhvin Ka Chand

1960 169' b&w/col Hindi-Urdu

d M. Sadiq p Guru Dutt pc Guru Dutt Films

s Saghir Usmani dial Tabish Sultanpuri

lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Nariman Irani m Ravi

✪ Chhal ia

1960 112' b&w Hindi

d Manmohan Desai pc Subhash Pics s Inder

Raj Anand lyr Qamar Jalalabadi c N. Satyen

✪ Devi

aka The Goddess

1960 93' b&w Bengali

d/p/sc Satyajit Ray pc Satyajit Ray Prod.

st Prabhakar Kumar Mukherjee c Subrata Mitra
m Ali Akbar Khan

lp Chhabi Biswas, Soumitra Chatterjee, Sharmila Tagore, Purnendu Mukherjee, Karuna Bannerjee, Arpan Choudhury, Anil Chatterjee, Kali Sarkar, Mohammed Israel, Khagesh Chakraborty

Following Jalsaghar (1958), Ray made a series of period movies featuring strong, well-rounded characters no longer limited to the requirements of melodramatic plot functions. These characters, Bishwambar Roy, Dayamoyee and later Charulata (1964) were adapted equally from Bengali literary stereotypes and from English literature's notion of psychological realism. Made in the same year as Devi, Ghatak's classic Meghe Dhaka Tara uses the popular Bengali legend associating young married women with Durga, the mythical provider, to reveal how history and culture create the oppressive social spaces determining women's lives. Instead, Ray presented a psychological portrait of a young woman and her zamindar father-in-law set in the mid-19th C. The beautiful Dayamoyee (Tagore) is deemed by her recently widowed father-in-law Kalinkinkar Roy (Biswas) to be the goddess Kali incarnate, disregarding the rationalist arguments put forth by her husband Umapasrad (S. Chatterjee), a university student. The old man transforms her into an icon for prayer in the village, and she soon develops a reputation for miracle cures. Seduced by her role as divinity, she is reluctant to return with her husband to the city. When the death of her son destroys her illusions, Dayamoyee goes mad and disappears bejewelled into the mist. Much of the film dealt with the barely-concealed sexual relationship between Dayamoyee and the father-in-law as she massages his feet while he reclines with a hookah, or even more explicitly in a prayer sequence that juxtaposes her sitting before the Kali icon with shots of the father-in-law descending for prayer. Ray preferred a cultural and psychological reading, enjoining his Western critics to acquaint themselves thoroughly with e.g. the cult of the Mother Goddess, the 19th C. Renaissance in Bengal and the position of the Hindu bride. The film is also remembered for Mitra's remarkable camerawork, contrasting the purely psychological exposition with two breathtaking crane shots that show the immersion of the goddess during the Puja festival and capture the manic hold exerted by the Durga/Kali legend in Bengal.

Ganga

aka The River

1960 151' b&w Bengali

d/sc Rajen Tarafdar pc Cine Art Prod.

st Samaresh Bose c Dinen Gupta m Salil

Choudhury

lp Niranjana Ray, Gyanesh Mukherjee, Sandhya Roy, Ruma Guha-Thakurta, Seeta Devi, Mani Srimani, Namita Sinha

Following in the wake of Satyajit Ray's idyllic rural realism, Tarafdar's best-known film is an epic drama about a young fisherman of the Sundarbans, Bilash (Ray), who has to overcome fear and superstition to make his way down the river to the sea. Old Panchu (Mukherjee) witnessed, shown in flashback, the horrifying disappearance into the sea of his elder brother and former leader of the fishermen. His impulsive nephew Bilash has an affair with a married woman, rejects the love of Gamli Panchi (Roy) and finally wants to marry Himi (Guha-Thakurta), daughter of the unscrupulous moneylender Damini. When Bilash decides to 'go south' to the sea too, evoking an ominous pattern all too familiar to his uncle Panchu, Himi refuses to follow him. The story meanders through several detours chronicling in detail the fisherfolk's dangerous lives and their struggles with storms, floods, hunger and indebtedness. Its primitivist iconography extends to the depiction of women as both home-makers and destroyers, and to aligning the men's thirst for life with nature rites. Chidananda Das Gupta critiqued the film for its lyricism, which for him detracted from the story's epic potential and pushed it towards melodrama. The film established Tarafdar as a major film-maker, but he still had problems finding work in the industry.

Hospital

1960 164' b&w Bengali

d Sushil Majumdar pc Shri N.C.A. Pics

m Amal Mukherjee

lp Ashok Kumar, Suchitra Sen, Pahadi Sanyal, Chhabi Biswas, Sushil Majumdar, Bhanu Bannerjee

A medical story complicated by caste differences. Saibal (A. Kumar) and Sarbari (Sen) are surgeons in a hospital. Their marriage is prevented by her lower-caste status. When she discovers that she is pregnant, Sarbari goes to work in a small town where she gives birth to a son. She then discovers that she suffers from cancer. Saibal comes to perform the operation that saves her. Not to be confused with the bilingual Jogajog/Hospital (B/H) (1943) by the same film-maker.

Jaal i Note

1960 155' b&w Hindi

d Shakti Samanta pc S.P. Pics lyr Raja

Mahendra, Anjaan m O.P. Nayyar

lp Dev Anand, Madhubala, Om Prakash, Helen, Madan Puri, Bipin Gupta, Kundan

A crime thriller featuring Inspector Dinesh (Anand) who tracks down a gang of counterfeiters with the assistance of a fearless journalist, Renu (Madhubala). He puts on a variety of disguises and masquerades as a prince who runs a counterfeiting business. In the end the main villain (Gupta) turns out to be the hero's long-lost father. One of Samanta's lesser-known detective movies.

Jagachya Pathivar

1960 147' b&w Marathi

d/st Raja Paranjpe pc Shripad Chitra

sc/lyr G.D. Madgulkar c Bal Bapat m Sudhir Phadke

lp Raja Paranjpe, Seema, G.D. Madgulkar, Dhupal, Mai Bhide, Vinay Kale, Raja Gosavi, Ramesh Deo, Sharad Talwalkar, Rajdutt

Melodrama evoking Chaplin's City Lights (1931). Poor hero, in search of employment, meets blind heroine who sings and dances in the street for a living. He looks after her until her millionaire father rediscovers her. There are some classic hit songs by Phadke, e.g. Jag he bandishala and Nahi kharchali kavadi damadi.

Jis Desh Mein Ganga Behti Hai

1960 167' b&w Hindi

d Radhu Karmakar p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films s

Arjun Dev Rashk lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri

c Tara Dutt m Shankar-Jaikishan

lp Raj Kapoor, Padmini, Pran, Tiwari, Nayampalli, Chanchal, Raj Mehra, Lalita

Pawar, Sulochana Chatterjee, Nana Palsikar, Vishwa Mehra, Amar

A pacifist film directed by Kapoor's cameraman since Awara (1951). Set among the bandits of central India and by the banks of the Ganges, the story tells of Raju (Kapoor), a wandering innocent who believes in the purity of the Ganga and abhors violence (a trait influenced by the philosophies of Acharya Vinoba Bhave and Gandhi). He rescues a man who turns out to be a bandit chieftain and then reforms the gang after complicated negotiations with the police. In the process, he has to overcome the gang's lieutenant, Raka (Pran), and falls in love with the chief's daughter (Padmini). The film emphasised scenic shots, beginning with several slow pans over the Ganges and ending with a spectacular sequence in a valley when the outlaws finally lay down their arms and surrender to the law. Its most typical movement is a slow crane movement upwards, leaving the audience to 'judge' the characters and their contradictory ideologies. Kapoor, distinctly older than in his 50s classics, moves with the stilted gestures of a marionette in his characteristic role of the innocent country lad who ends up reforming the world.

Kadu Makrani

1960 148' b&w Gujarati

d/sc Manhar Raskapur pc Sadhana Chitra st

Gunwantrao Acharya co-lyr/m Avinash Vyas

co-lyr Apa Hamir c Bipin Gajjar

lp Arvind, Shalini, Champsibhai Nagda, Mahesh Desai, Babu Raje, Bhudo Advani, Champak Lala, Radha, Sulochana, Ulhas, Jaya Bhatt, Honey Chhaya, Vishnu Vyas, Padmakumar Joshi, Ajit Soni, Mukand Desai, Devika Roy, Bhimjibhai, Upendra Trivedi, Gunvant Kayastha, Bagla, Manjula Moti

Raskapur's best-known film is an anti-imperialist fantasy historical, his favourite genre (cf. his Mulu Manek, 1955). Unlike most Indian royals, the Makranis of Junagadh defy the British who retaliate by invading Inaj, a Makrani settlement. Four members of the royal clan become bandits. The main one, Kadar Baksh aka Kadu Makrani, causes major problems for the British who order the local police chief, one of Kadar's boyhood friends, to capture him. After a furious battle Kadu is captured in Karachi and hanged. The film was remade by Manu Desai in 1973.

Kal a Bazaar

1960 163' b&w Hindi

d/s Vijay Anand pc Navketan Films

lyr Shailendra c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman

lp Dev Anand, Waheeda Rehman, Nanda, Leela Chitnis, Vijay Anand, Kishore Sahu

Hero Raghuvir (D. Anand) becomes Bombay's top black marketeer in film tickets and falls in love with Alka (Rehman) who shuns 'black' money. The hero reforms and starts a 'white market' [Safed Bazar] with his now legitimate gang of touts. Vijay Anand's characteristic use of realism as a counterweight to the release of fantasy is exemplified in the visual and sound montage that opens the film and in the remarkably picturised Suraj ke jaisi golayi, chanda se thandak bhi payi set in top-angle camera among sleeping pavement-dwellers. Dev Anand may have had this strategy in mind when he declared that films should be 'brought as close as possible to the reading of a newspaper'. The film includes several classic songs, e.g. Na main dhan chahun (sung by Geeta Dutt and Sudha Malhotra) and Khoya khoya chand (sung by Mohammed Rafi).

Sinha continues his adaptations of Tagore (Kabuliwala, 1956) with this ghost story shot in Bhopal, Bikaner and in the hills of MP although the story is set in the village of Barich in Hyderabad. A young tax collector (S. Chatterjee) decides to live in a deserted 250-year-old palace on the banks of the Susta river. An obsessive old man in the village (Bhattacharya) warns the prosaic taxman not to spend a single night in the palace because it is haunted. The old man's narration then gives way to that of the taxman as he gradually falls under the spell of the place. Its hallucinatory world takes him over, in the form of a beautiful female apparition (A. Devi). His obsession gets to the point where his everyday life appears unreal as he vividly relives episodes from the fantasised history. In the fantasy, he is the trader Imtiaz Ali who gave the slave girl to the emperor but then fell in love with her. The palace used to be Emperor Mahmud Shah II's pleasure den and its stones seem to have absorbed the untold anguish suffered by the aristocratic potentate's female victims, a suffering so intense that it overwhelms those who dwell there. The film and its lyrical imagery can be read as metaphors for the remnants of feudal oppression still active in contemporary society. Alternatively, the feudal palace can be seen as triggering the eroticised fantasies of power of modern middle-class men.

lp Supriya Choudhury, Anil Chatterjee, Bijon Bhattacharya, Geeta De, Niranjan Ray, Geeta Ghatak, Dwiju Bhawal, Gyanesh Mukherjee, Ronen Ray Choudhury

One of Ghatak's most powerful and innovative melodramas revolving around the self-sacrificing Neeta (S. Choudhury), a figure analogous to the women in Mizoguchi's work. A family of refugees from the Partition of Bengal live in a shanty town near Calcutta, surviving on the earnings of the eldest daughter Neeta. Her elder brother Shankar (A. Chatterjee) hopes to become a classical singer, and Neeta postpones her marriage to the scientist Sanat (N. Ray) to support the family and to pay for her younger brother's and sister's studies. Eventually, with the tacit encouragement of Neeta's mother (De), Sanat marries her younger sister Geeta (G. Ghatak). The family is beset by misfortunes as the father (B. Bhattacharya) and the younger brother Montu (Bhawal) both suffer accidents, forcing Neeta to remain the sole breadwinner in spite of her worsening tuberculosis. Finally Shankar, having achieved his ambition, takes her to a mountain resort for treatment. There, terminally ill and having sacrificed her best years, she finally cries out into the silence of the mountains her will to live. The story is familiar in Bengali melodrama (cf. Arundhati Devi's Chhuti, 1967), a link stressed by the casting of Bengali star Supriya Choudhury. However, into this plot Ghatak weaves a parallel narrative evoking the celebrated Bengali legends of Durga who is believed to descend from her mountain retreat every autumn to visit her parents and that of Menaka. This double focus, condensed in the figure of Neeta, is rendered yet more complex on the

Kanoon

1960 150' b&w Hindi

d/p B.R. Chopra pc B.R. Films s C.J. Pavri

dial Akhtar-ul-Iman c M.N. Malhotra m Salil Choudhury

lp Ashok Kumar, Rajendra Kumar, Nanda,

Nana Palsikar, Mehmood, Om Prakash

Chopra's courtroom drama and suspense movie tells of the progressive Judge Badriprasad (A. Kumar) whose daughter Meena (Nanda) is married to the equally progressive Public Prosecutor Kailash Khanna (R. Kumar). Kailash witnesses his father-in-law commit a murder. His dilemma grows when a petty thief is arrested and tried in Badriprasad's court. Eventually, when Badriprasad is forced to step down and submit to a new investigation, the killer is found to be an identical look-alike of the judge. The unlikely ending is shored up by a strong plea against capital punishment. The long court sequences are alleviated by extensive film noir passages (cf. the crane movements along walls and corridors), and the film's association with Hollywood models is enhanced by the absence of songs.

Meghe Dhaka Tara

aka The Cloud-capped Star aka Hidden Star

1960 134' b&w Bengali

d/sc Ritwik Ghatak pc Chitrakalpa st Shaktipada Rajguru c Dinen Gupta

m Jyotirindra Moitra

Kshudista Pashan

aka Hungry Stones

1960 117' b&w Bengali

d/sc Tapan Sinha pc Eastern Circuit p Hemen

Ganguly st/lyr Rabindranath Tagore m Ali

Akbar Khan c Bimal Mukherjee lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Arundhati Devi,

Radhamohan Bhattacharya, Chhabi Biswas,

Padmadevi, Dilip Roy, Bina Chand, Rasaraj

Chakraborty

Supriya Choudhury in Meghe Dhaka Tara

level of the film language itself through elaborate, at times non-diegetic sound effects working alongside or as commentaries on the image (e.g. the refrain Ai go Uma kole loi, i.e. Come to my arms, Uma, my child, used through the latter part of the film, esp. on the face of the rain-drenched Neeta shortly before her departure to the sanatorium). This approach allows the film to transcend its story by opening it out towards the realm of myth and to the conventions of cinematic realism (evoked e.g. in the Calcutta sequences). The characters, their actions and the way both are represented acquire an epic dimension: characters, without losing their singularity, are presented as figures caught in the web of historical (and therefore changeable) forces while the limits of mythic and of 'traditional' melodramatic narrative idioms are exceeded by a new, specifically cinematic mode of discourse. For instance, Neeta cuts across both the mythic and the melodramatic stereotypes of 'the nurturing mother', an association elaborated further musically by the Baul folk number, the Khayal compositions and a spectacularly filmed Tagore song (Je raate mor dwarguli); the oppression/ seduction/nurture triangle which structures the Durga legend as derived from Tantric abstractions, is projected on to the mother, Geeta and Neeta, inscribing these abstractions back into history and thus making them available for critical reconsideration. Kumar Shahani addressed the film's achievements in his major essay 'Violence and Responsibility' (cf. Shahani, 1986).

Prithviraj Kapoor in Mughal-e-Azam

Raskapur's attempts to fantasise an identity for his native state (cf. Mulu Manek, 1955, Kadu Makrani, 1960).

⊗ Mughal -e-Azam

1960 173' b&w/col Urdu d/p/co-sc K. Asif pc Sterling Investment Corp.
co-sc/co-dial Aman co-dial Kamal Amrohi, Ehsan Rizvi, Wajahat Mirza lyr Shakeel Badayuni c R.D. Mathur m Naushad lp Prithviraj Kapoor, Dilip Kumar, Madhubala, Durga Khote, Nigar Sultana, Ajit, Kumar, Murad, Jilloo, Vijayalakshmi, S. Nazir, Surendra, Gopi Krishna, Jalal Agha, Baby Tabassum, Johnny Walker

K. Asif's classic megabudget spectacular and best-known historical romance was nine years in the making. Opening with the voice-over words 'I am Hindustan' spoken over a map of India, the film retells in flashback the popular story (cf. Loves of a Mughal Prince, 1928; Anarkali, 1953) of the Mughal Emperor Akbar (P. Kapoor) and his Rajput wife Joda Bai (Khote) who finally manage to have a son, Prince Salim (D. Kumar). Salim grows up into a weak and pleasure-loving youth. Having proved himself in battle, Salim receives a sculpture of a beautiful female slave. He falls in love with the 'live' statue, Anarkali (Madhubala), and wants to marry her. Akbar pressurises Anarkali to give up Salim, humiliating and imprisoning her, but to no avail: in the film's best-known Sheesh Mahal (Palace of Mirrors) sequence, shot in colour, she defies Akbar through song: Pyar kiya to darna kya ('What is there to fear? All I have done is to love', sung by Lata Mangeshkar). Salim remains devoted to her and disobeys his father to the point of rebelling against the emperor and challenging him to battle. Akbar defeats Salim and condemns him to death. Anarkali is allowed to sacrifice her life to save Salim. However, contrary to the legend which has Anarkali walled in alive, Akbar spares her unbeknown to Salim. The film is remembered mainly for Amrohi's dialogues, esp. the confrontations between Kapoor and Kumar. Naushad's music includes the songs by noted classical singer Bade Ghulam Ali Khan (Shubh din aaye and Prem jogan ke sundari pio chali) and Mathur's expansive camerawork interrupts the statically and frontally shot dialogues (cf. R.D. Mathur, Mughal-e-Azam and its Creator Mr K. Asif, Lensight, 1993). Mahesh Bhatt (1993) drew attention to the memorable love scene 'shot in extreme close-ups of just faces in which Dilip Kumar tickles the impassioned face of Madhubala with a white feather. This was perhaps the most sensitively portrayed erotic scene on the Indian screen.'

⊗ Padhai Theriyudu Paar

1960 168' b&w Tamil
d/c Nemai Ghosh, V. Ramamurthy pc Kumari Films lyr K.C.S. Arunachalam, Jayakantan, Pattukotai Kalyanasundaram
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp K. Vijayan, S.V. Sahasranamam, V. Gopalakrishnan, S.V. Subbaiah, T.K. Balachandran, R. Muthuraman,
S.V. Subbaiah, A. Veerappan

Set up by Nemai Ghosh, Srinivasan and others as a co-operative venture, with contributions from over 50 shareholders and collectively scripted in line with CPI ideology, most of the film addressed the trade union movement as seen through the eyes of Murugesan, a worker on the Southern Railway (Vijayan). The novelist

⊗ Mehndi Rang Lagyo

1960 151' b&w Gujarati
d Manhar Raskapur pc Varsha Chitra s/co-lyr Chaturbhuj Doshi p/c Bipin Gajjar co-lyr/m Avinash Vyas
lp Rajendra Kumar, Usha Kiron, Chandravadan Bhatt, Satish Vyas, Keshav, Toral Divetia, Kiran Lal, Chandrakant Sangani, Honey Chhaya, Jayesh Desai, B.M. Vyas, Bhimjibhai, Narayan Ragjor, Jaya Bhatt, Niharika Divetia, Upendra Trivedi, Madan Saigal, Mamta Bhatt, Nitin Shah

The beautiful and innocent example of Gujarati womanhood, Alka (Kiran), loves and marries Anil (Kumar). However Anil becomes an alcoholic and ends up in jail. Alka finds a job in a college in Calcutta and raises her two children. Anil, released from prison, happens to become a gardener at the college and is thus able to rescue their daughter from a rapist. A classic domestic melodrama, showing the initially Westernised hero corrupted by his first drink at a place called the Bombay Bar, imprisoned in the Sabarmati jail (where Gandhi and other nationalist leaders had been arrested during the Independence movement), and emerging as a bearded, nationalist icon who saves his daughter's boyfriend from taking his first drink with an extended speech on the evils of liquor. The film also mobilises a range of references to exemplify a tradition of 'Gujarati-ness', the title coming from a well-known Raasgarba song to which couples dance during the festival of Navaratri. The film also continues Jayakantan contributed the hit song Thennan keethu oorjalile set to unusual music by Srinivasan using a xylophone. Randor Guy writes that internal dissensions spoiled the film's release and caused it to flop.

Parthiban Kanavu

aka Parthiban's Dream

1960 219' b&w Tamil

d D. Yoganand pc Jubilee Films st novel by R. Krishnamurthy [aka Kalki] s Kannadasan c P.S. Selvaraj m Veda

lp S.V. Ranga Rao, Gemini Ganesh, P.S. Veerappa, S.V. Subbaiah, T.S. Balaiah, Vijayanthimala, Malathi, Kamala Kumari, Ragini, B. Saroja Devi

Verbose Tamil historical with a relentless music track, adapting one of Kalki's Walter Scott-like historicals. King Parthiban (Ashokan), 8th C. Chola king, dies in battle against the Pallavas and his son Vikraman (Ganesh) tries to realise his father's dream of an autonomous and unified Tamil kingdom. He achieves this with the help of a wise Pallava king, Narasimhavarman I (Ranga Rao), whose daughter Kundhavi (Vijayanthimala) he marries. Together they defeat the Chalukyan King Pulakesin II and overcome the latter's nasty priests. An abridged version of another Kalki novel, Sivakamiyin Sabatham [The Vow of Sivakami], has been incorporated, clumsily, as a dance drama. The film, like many other South Indian historicals, overlaps with the stage, here including painted backdrops and simulated shrines (except one shot of the Pallava monument of Mahabalipuram).

Ranadheera Kanteerava

1960 191' b&w Kannada

d N.C. Rajan pc Kannada Kalavidaru s/lyr G.V. Iyer c B. Dorairaj m G.K. Venkatesh lp Rajkumar, Sandhya, Leelavathi, Narasimhraj, Ashwath, G.V. Iyer, Veerabhadrapa, Eswarappa, Rama Devi, Udaya Kumar, H.M.S. Sastry, R. Nagendra Rao, Venkatasubbaiah, Shanthamma, Radha, Saroja, P. Saroja, Papamma, Balkrishna

This epochal Rajkumar historical is the prototype for many of the star's costume epics, often written by G.V. Iyer (cf. Rajan's Immadi Pulakesi, 1967). The film evokes the Mysore royalty's intrigues to address Kannada national chauvinism. Rajkumar plays Kanteerava, supported as an alternative ruler by the villain Dalavayi Vikrama Raya (Nagendra Rao), but Kanteerava defeats the villains using his legendary physical prowess in the service of the official monarch. Made as a co-operative venture by actors Balkrishna and Narasimhraj, the directors Iyer and T.V. Singh Thakore, et al. Although this co-operative made only one film, it featured in several 60s Rajkumar films, effectively constituting the Kannada film industry. Some of G.V. Iyer's filmographies credit him with directing this film, which he wrote and helped both produce and direct.

Shri Venkateswara Mahatyam

aka Balaji

1960 204' b&w Telugu

d P. Pullaiah pc Padmasri Pics. sc/co-lyr Acharya Athreya co-lyr Malladi Ramakrishna Sastry, Arudra, Narasa Reddy

c P.L. Rai m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Savitri, S. Varalakshmi, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Chittor V. Nagaiah, Shantakumari, Suribabu, S. Janaki, Sandhya, Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao, Rajanala Nageshwara Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah

Pullaiah's remake of his 1939 biographical of the Tirupati temple deity is a milestone in NTR's acting career. Balaji (NTR) descends to earth following a celestial problem caused by Narada. On earth, as a common man who is nevertheless recognised by all the 'good folk' as a god, he falls for Padmavati (Savitri). In the end, as two earthly women, the 'heavenly' Lakshmi and Padmavati, battle over him, he turns into a statue. The film then turns into a documentary on the Tirupati temple, before the populist ending restores the god to his true devotees as against the Brahmin clergy. In spite of the shift from celestial grandeur to semi-documentary earthliness, the film seeks to induce a childish religiosity, e.g. in the sequence where Balaji is fed milk by a cow, the udder and his mouth being framed, in close-up, by a rock. The film's marketing suggested that viewing the film was a substitute for visiting India's richest shrine, and papier maché replicas of the icon were placed outside movie theatres soliciting donations in the name of the god. Apparently the temple authorities later sued the film's producers. According to Rama Rao's biographer S. Venkatnarayan (1983), the star's politicisation stems from this period when thousands of pilgrims from Tirupati also visited his Madras house. NTR later produced and directed another Venkateshwara version, Shri Tirupati Venkateshwara Kalyanam (1979).

Arappavan

aka Half a Sovereign

1961 158' b&w Malayalam

d K. Shankar pc Seva Films p K. Kumar s/lyr Kothamangalam Sadanandan c Thambu
m G.K. Venkatesh

lp Sathyam, Prem Nawaz, Kalakkal Kumaran, S.P. Pillai, T.S. Muthaiah, G.K. Pillai, Sreenarayana Pillai, Kothamangalam
Sadanandan, Pattom Sadan, Sulochana, Ambika

Set in the working-class milieu of toddy tappers and coir workers in Kerala. Paramu, the son of a toddy tapper, marries Kallu, a woodcutter's daughter. As Kallu did not bring the promised dowry of half a sovereign, Paramu's domineering mother harasses the new bride until she returns to her own parents and the lovers are reduced to meeting on the sly until the dowry issue has been settled. Kallu becomes pregnant and a local toddy-shop owner tries to rape her, resulting in rumours in the village that her child is illegitimate. When Kallu's brother returns having earned the money for her dowry, he rejects his sister and Kallu commits suicide. The grim melodrama, realistically filmed, was not successful on its initial release.

Arasil ankumar

1961 ? b&w Tamil

d A.S.A. Sami p Jupiter Films

s M. Karunanidhi c P. Ramaswamy
m G. Ramanathan

lp M.G. Ramachandran, M.N. Nambiar, Ashokan, K.A. Thangavelu, Padmini, Rajasulochana

As a result of a trick, Arivazhgan (MGR) sees his sister Anbukarasi (Padmini) married to and abducted by Vetrivelan (Nambiar), the general to the King of Mulai Nadu. The King entrusts one part of his will to his daughter Azhagurani (Rajasulochana) and the other to his friend Manimaraboopathi (Ashokan), the King of Naga Nadu, specifying that the will cannot be opened until his daughter's 19th birthday. She, however, loves Arivazhgan. After the King dies, the villainous Vetrivelan becomes ruler, repudiates his wife and plans to possess the Princess. She manages to escape by hiding with the villain's father, using a false identity. There she bears a child. On her 19th birthday, Arivazhgan comes to challenge the villain for his sister and his beloved, but Vetrivelan has made a false will public, proclaiming him King. However, Arivazhgan reveals the full truth of the man's misdeeds and is about to kill him when his sister pleads for mercy for her miscreant husband. The villain then repents his misdeeds, opening the way for true democracy in Mullai Nadu.

Babasa Ri Laadi

1961 ? b&w/col Rajasthani

d B.K. Adarsh pc Adarshlok st/co-dial/lyr Pandit Indra co-dial Naval Mathur c D.R. Dadhicha m Shivram

lp P. Kailash, Hiralal, Rajkumar, Mohan Modi, Rajdeep, Kiran Lal, Saraswati Devi, Sarita Devi,

Champak Lala, Dhannalal, Helen, Nana Palsikar

The second Rajasthani film (after G.P. Kapoor's Nazrana, 1942) and its first hit. Feudal melodrama about the virtuous landlord Dharamdas, representing an idealised Marwari business community, who adopts a deceased employee's daughter, Saraswati. She and Dharamdas's son Ramesh fall in love, but her villainous uncle, who wants Ramesh to marry his flippant daughter Vijayanti, uses his familial authority to arrange Saraswati's marriage with the handicapped son of a greedy shah. The tragic consequences of feudal patriarchal powers are eventually overcome and the lead couple unite in the end.

Bhabhi Ki Chudiyen

1961 168' b&w Hindi

d Sadashiv J. Row Kavi pc Sadashiv Chitra st Y.G. Joshi sc Srinivas Joshi lyr Narendra Sharma c Arvind Laad m Sudhir Phadke lp Meena Kumari, Balraj Sahni, Seema, Ratnamala, Master Aziz, Sailesh Kumar, Sulochana, Durga Khote, Om Prakash

A sentimental melodrama which helped establish Kumari's image as 'the queen of tragedy'. Shyam's (Sahni) wife Geeta (Kumari) is like a foster-mother to her young brother-in-law, Mohan (S. Kumar). Mohan's filial devotion becomes an erotic obsession, to the distress of his new bride. The virtuous Geeta tirelessly serves and mothers the men in the family until she dies of exhaustion. The relations between a wife and her younger brother-in-law, echoing Seeta and Lakshman from the Ramayana, were often used in films to titillate the audience's expectation of images of sexual impropriety.

Bhakta Kuchela

1961 165' b&w Malayalam

d/p P. Subramanyam pc Neela Prod.

s Nagavalli R.S. Kurup lyr Thirunayanar Kurichi
c N.S. Mani m Brother Lakshmanan

lp Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, S.P. Pillai, T.K. Balachandran, Kumari, Ambika, Shanti, Shashi, Kushalakumari, Jose Prakash, Hari,
C.S. Kantha Rao, Adoor Pankajam, Vinodhini, Vilasini, Satheesh

The first big mythological by a director who, having put the radicalism of Randidangazhi (1958) behind him, would be increasingly associated with the devotional genre through the 60s (including Biblical themes e.g. Snapakaya Yohannan, 1963). Krishna's childhood friend and devotee, the Brahmin Kuchela, grows up to father 27 children even as he pines to meet his idol. His worship of Krishna causes enmity with King Shishupala. With his several offspring on the verge of starvation, he goes on a pilgrimage to Dwarka, where he meets his friend and master. To his astonishment Krishna sends him away empty-handed, but Kuchela returns home to find that his modest hut has miraculously been turned into a palace. The film did much to establish a bigger-budgeted version of the B-movie mythologicals routinely churned out by studios in Alleppey and Trivandrum.

Ganga Jumna

1961 178' col Hindi-Bhojpuri

d Nitin Bose pc Citizens Films s/p Dilip

Kumar dial Wajahat Mirza lyr Shakeel Badayuni c V. Babasaheb m Naushad lp Dilip Kumar, Vyjayanthimala, Nasir Khan, Azra, Kanhaiyalal, Anwar Hussain, Nasir Hussain, S. Nazir, Leela Chitnis, Perveen Paul, Helen, Husn Bano, Ranjeet Sud, Khwaja Sabir, Amar, Bihari, Harun, Narbada Shankar, Fazlu, Ram Kumar, Akashdeep, Baby Aruna, Baby
Naaz

Dilip Kumar produced, wrote and starred in this story, shot in garish Technicolor, of two brothers on opposite sides of the law, Ganga (D. Kumar) and Jumna (played by D. Kumar's real-life brother, N. Khan). Having been framed by a zamindar (A. Hussain) for a crime he did not commit, Ganga becomes a criminal living in the mountains with his girlfriend Dhanno (Vyjayanthimala). His brother, educated on Ganga's money in the city, becomes a policeman. When years later Ganga is to become a father, he decides to return to the village to ask people's forgiveness, but he has to face his righteous brother Jumna who shoots him dead. Dhanno also dies in the gun battle. This dacoit drama, resembling a cross between 30s Hollywood gangster films and westerns, pioneered a widely copied action film formula (cf. Deewar, 1975). The most significant difference from the Hollywood stories is that the two main protagonists are brothers instead of 'kids from the same block' or 'erstwhile bosom buddies'. Dilip Kumar uses Bhojpuri instead of Hindi to liberate himself from his usual, more restrained persona while at the same time equating naturalism with a distinct class attitude against which, in this film, he rebels. This strategy was later followed by e.g. Bachchan (Ganga Ki Saugandh, Don, both 1978). The songs Nain lad gayi re (sung by Mohammed Rafi), Do hanson ka joda, Dhoondo dhoondo re saajana and Na maanon re (sung by Lata Mangeshkar), were major hits though little can be said for their picturisation.

Hiro Salaat

1961 129' b&w Gujarati

d Ramchandra Thakur pc Vishva Rang Chitra

c Bipin Gajjar lyr/m Avinash Vyas lp Vijay Datt, Nalini Chonkar, Champsibhai Nagda, Madhumati, Babu Raje, Tuntun, Ishwarlal

Famed sculptor Hiro Salaat is commissioned by King Siddharaj to build the fort at Darbhavati (now called Dabhoi). When he does so, the king, anxious that he should never surpass this spectacular achievement, buries the sculptor alive in one of its walls. The film, claiming to address the troubled relations between artist and patron, is remembered for artist and designer Kanu Desai's realistic sets e.g. the replication of the fort in the Mohan Studio.

Hum Dono

aka We Two

1961 164' (95') b&w Hindi

d Amarjeet pc Navketan Films p Dev Anand

st Nirmal Sircar sc Vijay Anand lyr Sahir

Ludhianvi c V. Ratra m Jaidev lp Dev Anand, Nanda, Sadhana, Lalita Pawar,

Gajanan Jagirdar, Prabhhu Dayal, Jagdish Raj, Rashid Khan, Leela Chitnis

Dev Anand plays two identical-looking soldiers, the comrades in arms Capt. Anand and Major Verma, in this (for Navketan) unusually excessive melodrama and major hit. Anand is in love with Mita (Sadhana) while Verma is married to Ruma (Nanda). When Verma is presumed dead, Anand has to take care of Ruma, endangering his relationship with Mita, esp. since Ruma mistakes Anand for her real husband. When Verma turns up again, severely crippled, he believes Anand has taken his place in his home. The resolution comes when all four characters meet in a temple. Some of the film's most successful songs including Asha Bhosle and Mohammed Rafi's duet Abhi na jao chhod kar and Lata Mangeshkar's bhajan Allah tero naam.

Jab Pyar Kisise Hota Hai

1961 ?' b&w Hindi

d/p/s Nasir Hussain pc Nasir Hussain Films

lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Shailendra c Dilip Gupta

m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Dev Anand, Asha Parekh, Sulochana, Mubarak, Raj Mehra, Pran, Wasti, Rajendranath, Tahir Hussain, Dulari, Bhishan Khanna, Ram Avtar

Musical cross-class romance featuring Sunder (Anand) and Nisha (Parekh) whose childhood betrothal is broken off by the girl's father when he becomes a millionaire. Sunder then woos Nisha, pretending to be the rich Popatlal, and she falls in love with him. Complicating the situation is a parallel story in which Nisha's best friend Shanti is killed by Sohan (Pran) who is blackmailed by a hotel manager and frames Sunder with the crime. Known mainly for its hit songs Yeh aankhen oof yumma, Sau saal pehle and Jiya ho jiya, both sung by Mohammed Rafi, the former being a duet with Lata Mangeshkar.

Jagadeka Veeruni Katha/

Jagathala Prathapan

1961 187' b&w Telugu/Tamil

d/p/sc K.V. Reddy pc Vijaya Prod.

st/dial/lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao c Marcus

Bartley m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao

lp N.T. Rama Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Rajanala, C.S.R. Anjaneyulu, K. Mukkamala,

Lanka Sathyam, B. Saroja Devi, Vijayalakshmi,

P. Kannamba, Rushyendramani, Girija

This characteristic Reddy fantasy is based on an earlier Tamil film, Jagathala Prathapan (1944) starring P.U. Chinappa. A king tests his two sons by asking what they desire most. Jagajittu says that he would wish to use the moonlit night to slay his enemies in their sleep. Jagadeka replies that he wishes to be with four heavenly angels. The latter, banished from home, has to make his wish come true by freeing a distressed angel cursed by Indrakumari before he can be readmitted.

Jhumroo

1961 171' b&w Hindi

d Shanker Mukherjee pc K.S. Films st/m

Kishore Kumar sc Vrajendra Gaud dial

Madhusudan Kalelkar lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri

c K.H. Kapadia

lp Kishore Kumar, Madhubala, Jayant, Lalita

Pawar, Anoop Kumar, Chanchal, M. Kumar,

Sajjan

One of Kishore Kumar's best-known comedies, containing the song exemplifying his yodelling style, Main hun jhum-jhum-jhum-jhum jhumroo. The zany stylistic melange tells the love story of the tribal Jhumroo (K. Kumar) who falls in love with the evil landowner's daughter (Madhubala). In the end, Madhubala is shown to be the daughter of Kamli (Pawar) and Jhumroo, the son of the upper-class landowner's friend. In the process, the film proposes the craziest notions of tribal identity in Indian cinema: one song is a variant of Tequila, another introduces rock into a Cossack dance, and the Kathmandu/Timbuctoo number sees the hero adopting a Fu Manchu look to rescue the heroine. The film has some of Kishore Kumar's most famous songs e.g. the Jhumroo number, Thandi hawa yeh chandni suhani and Koi humdum na raha.

Junglee

1961 150' col Hindi

d/p/s Subodh Mukherjee pc Subodh

Mukherjee Prod. dial Agha Jani Kashmiri

lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c N.V. Srinivas

m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Shammi Kapoor, Saira Banu, Shashikala,

Anup Kumar, Azra, Lalita Pawar, Helen

Shammi Kapoor's best-known film featuring him in his Yahoo persona in songs like Chaha koi mujhe jungle kahe and Aai aai ya suku suku. The rich bachelor Shekhar (S. Kapoor) returns from abroad and refuses to laugh until he meets Kashmiri belle Rajkumari (Banu) who eventually changes his view of the world. The film can be seen as heralding the colour films that came to be the mainstay of the popular cinema (cf. Manmohan Desai's work) after the 50s Filmistan genre products. Previously, colour had been reserved for big spectacles only. After Junglee, intimate family romances also had to be in colour. The movie is still regarded as a cult item because of Shammi Kapoor's youthful and rebellious performance.

Kabul iwala

1961 95' b&w Hindi

d Hemen Gupta pc Bimal Roy Prod.

sc Vishram Bedekar st Rabindranath

Tagore dial S. Khalil lyr Gulzar, Prem Dhawan

c Kamal Bose m Salil Choudhury

lp Balraj Sahni, Usha Kiron, Sajjan, Asit Sen,

Paul Mahendra, Sonnu

Tagore's story (pub. 1918) of the Pathan tribesman Rehman (Sahni) who journeys from Kabul to Calcutta seemed tailor-made for a naturalist acting challenge. It tells the tale of a seller of spices called Kabuliwala (the man from Kabul) in Calcutta who befriends a little girl because she reminds him of his own daughter. After years in jail for murder, Rehman finds the girl has grown up and realises that his own daughter may have forgotten him as well. Gupta's film, like Tapan Sinha's Bengali version (1956), depends mainly on star performances. Here, Sahni's colourful mannerisms contrast with the static camera, tableau-like shots and extensive dissolves intended to evoke geographic expanse and memory time. The music by Salil Choudhury includes numbers like Hemanta Mukherjee's

Balraj Sahni (right) in Kabuliwala

Ganga aaye kahan se and one of Manna Dey's best-known songs Ai mere pyare watan. The fake Persian music with its copious mandolin effects is rather intrusive.

written, theatrical Tamil. Rukmini plays the hero's wife.

⊗ Kittur Chanamma/Rani Chanamma

1961 187' b&w Kannada/Tamil d B.R. Panthulu pc Padmini Pics c W.R. Subba Rao, M. Karnan m T.G. Lingappa lp Rajkumar, B. Saroja Devi, M.V. Rajamma, Leelavathi, Balkrishna, Narasimhraj, Chindodi Leela

Panthulu's big-budget historical about the legendary Queen Chanamma of Kittur (Saroja Devi in her best-known role) who led her people into battle against the British and eventually sacrificed her life. It features much palace intrigue as some Kittur royals invite the British to represent them; others, led by Chanamma, refuse to pay the British taxes. In the end the Kittur state is abolished.

⊗ Komal Gandhar

aka E-Flat
 1961 134' b&w Bengali
d/s Ritwik Ghatak pc Chitrakalpa c Dilip Ranjan Mukhopadhyay m Jyotirindra Moitra lp Supriya Choudhury, Abanish Bannerjee, Anil Chatterjee, Geeta De, Satindra Bhattacharya, Chitra Mondol, Bijon Bhattacharya, Mani Srimani, Satyabrata Chattopadhyay, Gyanesh Mukherjee

Ghatak's innovatively filmed critique of both the IPTA style of radical theatre and of Partition caused a major political controversy in Bengal, apparently prompting the director to look for work outside the state. Set in the contentious 50s, the film's plot is structured around the rivalry of two radical theatre groups. One is led by Bhrigu (A. Bannerjee), the other by Shanta (G. De), while Shanta's niece Ansuya (S. Choudhury) participates in Bhrigu's work to the disapproval of her own group. When the two groups join together for a production of Shakuntala (Tagore's version of the story functioning as a constant reference within the film), Shanta deliberately sabotages it. Bhrigu and Ansuya discover they are both refugees separated from their country (Bangladesh) by a river and they fall in love. Eventually Ansuya, scheduled to marry Samar and move to France, decides to stay with Bhrigu. As in Ghatak's earlier Meghe Dhaka Tara (1960), the story is interrupted by sound effects including ancient marriage songs, sounds of gunshots and sirens. Music and sound effects mark particularly emotive political moments, as in one of the film's classic shots: a tracking movement along a disused railway ending abruptly at the national border with a fishermen's chant rising to a powerful crescendo. Appropriately for a film dealing with both political and geographical division, the most intense interactions of sound and image occur in spaces which simultaneously divide and connect, as in the aforementioned tracking shot or in the 360-degree camera pans showing a theatre group singing in boats on the river Padma which marks the border between India and Bangladesh. Spatial divisions are further elaborated as a critique of the theatre groups with their cramped and fragmented proscenium spaces and cavernous rehearsal rooms and the claustrophobic, expressionistically lit urban scenes. The overall effect, as noted by Kumar Shahani, is the creation of a space-in-formation, a dynamic though static-looking space animated by history.

⊗ Manini

1961 127' b&w Marathi
d Anant Mane pc Kala Chitra st Mahadevshastri Joshi sc Vyakatesh Madgulkar lyr G.D. Madgulkar, Bahinabai Choudhury
c V. Bargir m Vasant Pawar lp Jayashree Gadkar, Chandrakant Gokhale, Hansa Wadkar, Dada Salvi, Indira Chitnis, Vasant Shinde, Ratnamala, Ramesh Deo, Sharad Talwalkar

Mane's urban melodrama with stagey realist overtones, although formally very different from the Tamasha hit Sangtye Aika (1959) made by the same crew, almost matched its success. Heroine Malati (Gadkar) marries poor hero Madhav and is disowned by her wealthy aristocratic family. Her father Annasaheb tries to force her to abandon her husband. When she refuses, reprisals ensue: she and her husband are accused of theft and publicly humiliated at her younger sister's wedding. Malati eventually breaks away from her oppressive feudal family (until then portrayed as the guardians of traditional virtue in Marathi film). The film includes hit numbers like Are sansar sansar (saying you must first burn your fingers on the stove before you get bread to eat). Gadkar's performance as a demure, exemplary daughter-in-law helps the film to relocate a neo-traditional value system into the emerging urban middle class. A. Vincent remade the film in Malayalam as Abhijathyam (1971), and Krishnakant in Gujarati (Maa Dikri, 1977).

⊗ Mudiyanaya Puthran

aka The Prodigal Son
 1961 147' b&w Malayalam
d Ramu Kariat p T.K. Pareekutty pc Chandrathara Prod. s Thoppil Bhasi
lyr P. Bhaskaran c A. Vincent, P. Sundaram
m Baburaj
lp Sathyan, Ambika, Kumari, P.J. Anthony, Kambisseri, Kottayam Chellappan, P.A. Thomas, Adoor Bhasi

A story mapping good/bad brother relations on to employer/worker relations. The delinquent Rajan (Sathyan) loses his girl Radha (Ambika) to his more serious brother Gopal Pillai and is eventually ordered out of the parental home by his mother. When Rajan is ambushed and beaten, a Harijan girl he once molested, Chellamma (Kumari), nurses him back to health and humanises him. Workers, led by Vasu, who also assisted Rajan, are persecuted and attacked by the 'good' brother who nurses old jealousies and believes his wife still to be in love with Rajan. Vasu organises a strike and Rajan is blamed by his brother for knifing one of his thugs. Overcome by the affection the

⊗ Kadam Bacha Coat

aka The Patched-up Coat
 1961 156' col Malayalam
d/p T.R. Sundaram pc Modern Theatres st T. Mohammed Yusuf's novel sc K.T. Mohammed lyr P. Bhaskaran
c T.M. Sundarababu m Baburaj lp T.S. Muthaiah, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Prem Nawaz, Ambika, Pankajavalli, Aranmula Ponnamma, S.P. Pillai, P.K. Bahadur, Kothamangalam Sadanandan, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Kottayam Chellappan, Muttatha Soman, Chandni, Aisha, Omana

The kind-hearted Muslim cobbler Mohammed Kaka saved his life's earnings in the pockets of his ancient coat to fulfil his dream of going to Mecca. He offers shelter to Kunjubibi when her scheduled marriage to Ummar breaks down following a dowry dispute. Arranging the marriage of the lovers, he offers his life's savings as a dowry, an act that causes the evil parents of the couple to have a change of heart. Made at the Modern Theatres, Salem, the film was known mainly as the first colour feature in Malayalam.

⊗ Kappal otiya Thamizhan aka The Tamil who Launched a Ship

 1961 197' b&w Tamil
d B.R. Panthulu pc Padmini Pics st/dial S.D. Sundaram lyr Subramanya Bharathi lp Sivaji Ganesan, S.V. Subbaiah, Gemini Ganesh, T.K. Shanmugam, Savitri, Rukmini, S.V. Ranga Rao, M.R. Santhanam, K.D. Santhanam, S.A. Kannan, M. Saroja, P.S. Gnanam, Sukumari, R. Bharati, Baby Kanchana

Biographical film on the life of Va. Vu. Chidambaram Pillai (Ganesan), a nationalist businessman who launched the Swadeshi Steam Navigation Company to break the British monopoly in shipping at the turn of the century, which earned him the honorific title Kappalotiya Thamizhan or 'The Tamil who launched a ship'. An important film in Ganesan's post-DMK project of wrapping himself in nationalist colours and one of Tamil cinema's rare excursions into recent history. Set in Tirunelveli district, it features cultural celebrities like Subramaniya Siva (Shanmugham) and the poet Bharati (Subbaiah) whose poems were set to music and became popular songs. The mandatory duets and romance are updated via references to historical events like Vanchinathan's (Ganesh) killing of the British collector Ashe, the burning of imported cloth, the Tuticorin riots and the Harvey Mills strike. The launching of the first Tamil ship is the climax. In line with the film's political ambitions, the dialogue attempts to move away from the high-flown rhetoric of e.g. Elangovan's 40s style by having some characters speak Tirunelveli dialect, but most still declaim their lines in people seem to have for him, Rajan becomes 'good' and turns himself in to the police. Kariat's first major film adapted a Thoppil Bhasi play to inaugurate a uniquely Malayali brand of political melodrama, in which existential aimlessness is extended into a pervasive sense of guilt as feudal institutions crumble and political activism becomes a form of atonement for bad faith. The film was actively supported by the Kerala CPI, with many of its members acting in and otherwise helping with the production. Vincent's remarkable camerawork sets the tone of the film from its opening scene, in which Rajan lights a cigarette in darkness as he awaits and then molests the harijan girl.

Gopalakrishnan's melodrama Mukha Mukham (1984) is a retrospective comment on this tradition of melodrama as much as it is on the radical political history it chronicles. Sathyan's remarkable performance as the delinquent younger brother was later to extend into the definitive element in Kariat's directorial signature (cf. Chemmeen, 1965).

Pasamal ar

1961 197' b&w Tamil

d/sc A. Bhimsingh pc Rajamani Pics p Sivaji Ganesan st K.P. Kottarakkara dial Arur Das c G. Vittal Rao lyr Kannadasan m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy lp Sivaji Ganesan, Gemini Ganesh, Savitri, K.A. Thangavelu, M.N. Rajam, M.N. Nambiar

Brother and sister story about the orphaned Rajasekharan (Ganesan) who is devoted to his sister Radha (Savitri). However, she marries Anand (Ganesh), a worker and colleague of Rajasekharan. The lonely brother is struck with blindness and spends the rest of the film trying to unite with his beloved sister. Eventually the two die in each other's arms. One of the earliest and best known of Malayalam scenarist/producer K.P. Kottarakkara's Tamil films. A popular song in the film was Malarinthum malaratha (sung by T.M. Soundararajan), in which the hero dreams of his sister's marriage and what he will do for her child.

Pavamanippu

aka Forgiveness of Sins

1961 196' b&w Tamil

d/sc A. Bhimsingh pc Buddha Pics st Buddha Pics Story Dept dial M.S. Solaimalai c G. Vittal Rao lyr Kannadasan m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy lp Sivaji Ganesan, M.R. Radha, Chittoor V. Nagaiah, T.S. Balaiah, Kothamangalam Subbu, Savitri, M.V. Rajamma, Devika, Gemini Ganesh

Melodrama with religious stereotypes and symbols about a Hindu diamond merchant (Radha), a Muslim village doctor Rahim (Ganesan) and a Christian do-gooder (Devika), combining Tamil Nadu's three main religions in an effort to promote communal harmony. Extra twists are provided by a love story between the Muslim and Christian alongside an all-Hindu love story (Ganesh and Savitri). In the end it turns out that all the protagonists descended from the greedy Hindu merchant and from his equally high-caste Hindu chauffeur's (Baliah) family, providing ample material for tearful recognition scenes. Several famous songs underscore the film's attempt to advocate a nationalist secularism e.g. Vandhanaal mudhal indhanaal varai (sung by T.M. Soundararajan and G.K. Venkatesh) which castigates man's tendency to separate nature into categories of distinction, or the Ramzan song Ellorum kondaduvom (also sung by Soundararajan). Kannadasan belonged to the DMK's Rationalist Group and included ironic lines which redeem the didacticism of the script. The star studded cast - and notably Radha's remarkable performance - ensured the film's enduring success and Bhimsingh went on to establish himself as the main purveyor of moralising all-star movies in the 60s.

Prapancha

aka Family Life

1961 138' (97') b&w Marathi

d Madhukar Pathak pc Indian National Pics s/lyr G.D. Madgulkar c K.B. Kamat, Ghanekar m Sudhir Phadke lp Sulochana, Amar Sheikh, Kusum Deshpande, Jayant Dharmadhikari, Seema, Shrikant Moghe, Shankar Ghanekar

A miserabilist story about a poor Marathi village potter who tries to feed his wife (Sulochana) and six children in the hope that things will improve when younger brother Shankar completes his education. But they don't and, to foil Shankar's plans to start a porcelain factory, the local moneylender starts legal proceedings to claim the family house. The potter dies, causing the younger brother's marriage to his beloved Champa (Seema) to be cancelled. Eventually the potter's widow migrates with her children to the big city, so as not to be a burden. Shot mostly on location, it was screened in the USSR and in the West in two versions, one subtitled, the other with a voice over.

Punashcha

aka Over Again

1961 120' b&w Bengali

d/p/sc Mrinal Sen pc Mrinal Sen Prod. st Ashish Burman c Sailaja Chatterjee m Samaresh Roy lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Kanika Majumdar, Pahadi Sanyal, Kali Bannerjee, Shefali Bannerjee, N. Vishwanathan, Kunal Basu

After the harrowing exploration of a marriage broken by social-historical pressures on rural life in Baishey Shraavan (1960), Sen returned to the same issue in an urban context. The problems arise as the established patriarchal relations in a family are disrupted when the wife has to leave the domestic space to join the workforce. The resulting impact of a changing economic system on both male and female subjective attitudes and anxieties forms the substance of the plot. Sen contents himself with simply though critically setting out the problems without offering a solution. In this respect, his film allows for a level of ambiguity usually denied (in favour of an unambiguous validation of 'traditional values') in most Indian films with similar themes.

Rabindranath Tagore

1961 54' b&w English/Bengali

d/co-p/s Satyajit Ray co-p Films Division, Anil Choudhury c Soumendu Roy m Jyotirindra Moitra lp Raya Chatterjee, Shovani Gangopadhyay, Smaran Ghoshal, Purnendu Mukherjee, Kallol Bose, Subir Bose, Phani Nan, Norman Ellis

Ray's semi-documentary on his mentor commissioned for the centenary of Tagore's birth. The extraordinarily diverse literary and visual output of Tagore, the Shantiniketan experiment and the Tagore family's contributions to India's freedom struggle are condensed into one hour, relying on a voice-over commentary that eschews historical analysis in favour of a fairly reverential approach. Ray includes some re-enactments of episodes in Tagore's life together with images of paintings, photographs, documents, etc. The best moments are the reconstructed Balmiki Pratibha, and the song Tobu mone rekho ('Yet remember me') in Tagore's own voice.

Saptapadi

1961 163' b&w Bengali

d/sc/c Ajoy Kar pc Alochhaya Prod.

st Tarashankar Bannerjee m Hemanta Mukherjee

lp Uttam Kumar, Suchitra Sen, Chhabi Biswas, Tulsi Chakraborty, Tarun Kumar, Preeti Majumdar, Chhaya Devi, Padmadevi, Seeta Mukherjee, Swagata Chakraborty, Sabita Roy Choudhury

Set in WW2, the Jesuit Rev. Krishnendu (U. Kumar) runs a military hospital in Bankura. A wounded woman soldier, Rina Braun (Sen), arrives and he recognises his former lover, triggering a long flashback showing them as fellow medical students. She is an exotic Eurasian and the hero wins her while playing Othello (he was dubbed by Utpal Dutt, renowned for his stage performance of that role) to her Desdemona in a college performance. His orthodox father (Biswas) forbids their marriage. The hero converts to Christianity and exiles himself. Rina discovers that she is the illegitimate daughter of a Hindu maid and becomes an alcoholic, eventually joining the army. Back in the present, Rina tries to kill herself when she regains consciousness but the lovers are united in the midst of the war (Tarashankar's original story ended tragically). This Kumar/Sen hit (cf. Sagarika, 1956), including their characteristic low-angle, soft-focus close-ups and stylised movements, yielded one of the most popular song picturisations of the decade, the classic motor bike scene number Ei path jadi na shesh hoi.

Teen Kanya

aka Three Daughters, aka Two Daughters 1961 56' (Postmaster)/61' (Monihara)/ 56' (Samapti) b&w Bengali d/p/sc/m Satyajit Ray pc Satyajit Ray Prod.
st Rabindranath Tagore c Soumendu Roy lp (Postmaster) Anil Chatterjee, Chandana Bannerjee, Nripati Chatterjee, Khagen Pathak, Gopal Roy; (Monihara) Kali Bannerjee, Kanika Majumdar, Kumar Roy, Govinda Chakravarty; (Samapti) Soumitra Chatterjee, Aparna Das Gupta (aka Aparna Sen), Seeta Mukherjee, Geeta De, Santosh Dutta, Mihir
Chakravarty, Devi Neogi

Three short films adapted from three Tagore stories compiled for the writer's centenary. Western versions usually omit Monihara. In Postmaster, the most sentimental of the stories, Nandalal the postman (A. Chatterjee) is assigned the 10-year-old orphan Ratan (Bannerjee) as his assistant. Ill treated by his predecessor, she develops an attachment to Nandalal as he teaches her to read and write. Their acquaintance is abruptly ended when the postman falls ill and is transferred. Their wordless parting, as his rupee tip is rejected, was widely commended. Monihara is narratively the most complicated and the closest Ray has come to horror film. A schoolteacher (Chakravarty) tells of Manimalika (Majumdar), the jewellery-crazy wife of a zamindar (Bannerjee). When her husband has financial difficulties, Manimalika offers to sell her jewellery and then disappears with the shady Madhusudhan (Roy). When the zamindar returns to a deserted house and opens the new box of jewels he brought for his wife, manic laughter resounds and Manimalika's ghost appears to snatch the jewels. Returning to the storyteller, we discover that the hooded figure to whom the tale is addressed is the husband, who questions its accuracy and then vanishes. In Samapti, university graduate Amulya (Chatterjee) prefers to marry the extrovert Mrinmoyee (Das Gupta) rather than the woman chosen by his family. The wedding is both preceded and followed by a series of comic situations, first as Mrinmoyee disrupts the formal meeting with Amulya and his official bride-to-be and makes off with his shoes, and then on their wedding night when she escapes down a tree to sleep on her favourite perch by the river. Eventually the couple is reconciled as she promises to abandon her childish ways. Ray composed his own music score, combining Tagore and folk compositions with a much greater emphasis on 'musicalised' sound effects than in his earlier work.

Tero Nadir Parey

aka Beyond Thirteen Rivers
1961 82' b&w Bengali
d/sc/c Barin Saha pc Ramdhanu Pics st Nirmal Ghosh m Gyan Prakash Ghosh lp Gyanesh Mukherjee, Priyam Hazarika, Narayan Chandra Mondal, Nanda Adhikari

A quiet and intimate Bengali story set in a travelling circus prey to the pressures of commercialism. A clown (Mukherjee) resists the privileging of crowd-pleasing dancing-girls in the circus programme and resents the arrival of a new dancer (Hazarika). When he suffers a drunken accident the dancer nurses him, but he remains unable to reconcile himself to the change and becomes virtually insane. This is the only feature by Barin Saha (1925-93), a former IPTA activist who studied film-making in France and Italy. The film was not released until 1969 and its commercial failure forced its director to abandon film-making in favour of rural activism. It was shot entirely on location at the Tero Nadi aka the Haldi river in Midnapore, and included scenes of remarkable energy, including the arrival of the dancing-girl in the bazaar (a long subjective shot), the sweeping pans over the river and night shots at the end, evoking Ghatak's work.

Thayil I a Pil I ai

1961 173' b&w Tamil
d L.V. Prasad pc Prasad Movies
s M. Karunanidhi lyr Kannadasan, Kothamangalam Subbu, A. Marudakasi
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp T.S. Balaiah, G. Muthukrishnan, Kalyana Kumar, S. Ramarao, Manohar, M.V. Rajamma, Vijayalakshmi, Madhuri, Sandhya,
T.P. Muthulakshmi, Nagesh, C.V.V. Panthulu, Seetalakshmi

The conservative Brahmin Patanjali Sastry severs relations with his modern brother-in-law Dr Bharati. When Sastry's wife, who had had two miscarriages, finds herself pregnant, she goes to her brother to get medical aid and incurs the displeasure of her husband. The wife gives birth to a son but simultaneously adopts the son of a lower-caste woman who died in childbirth, creating some confusion for Sastry as to which baby is his son. Eventually the couple raise the adopted child while their own son becomes a rickshaw-puller. The two boys grow up and become friends. Following scenarist Karunanidhi's anti-caste politics, the family is reunited in the end.

Unniyar cha

1961 138' b&w Malayalam
d/p Kunchako pc Udaya Studios s Sarangapani lyr P. Bhaskaran c T.N. Krishnan Kutty Nair
m K. Raghavan
lp Ragini, Prem Nazir, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Sathyan, Kottayam Chellappan, Sunny, S.P. Pillai, Bahadur, Reetha, Kanchana

One of the most successful of Kunchako's early 60s films at Udaya Studio, the film features Ragini, one of the dancing Travancore sisters, as Unniyar cha, a warrior princess and part of North Kerala folklore. Born into the aristocracy, she is married to the kind-hearted Kunjiraman (Nazir) to whom she bears two sons. When her fearless brother is killed by the evil Chandu (Chellappan), she trains her sons in the martial arts so they can carry out her revenge mission. Shot in the Kerala backwaters, the film led to a major trend of adapting legends of folk heroes from the ballads of the Malabar region.

Vel ugu Needal u

aka Thooya Ullam
1961 ? b&w Telugu
d Adurthi Subba Rao pc Annapurna Prod. p D. Madhusudana Rao dial Acharya Athreya
lyr Sri Sri, Kosaraju Raghavaiah Choudhury c P.S. Selvaraj m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao
lp Savitri, Girija, Suryakantam, A. Nageshwara Rao, K. Jaggaiah, S.V. Ranga
Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah

A sentimental love triangle focussing on Suguna (Savitri), adopted by Rao Bahadur Venkatramaiah and his wife Kanakadurga, who is ill-treated when the couple have a child of their own. She is given away to a clerk, Vengalappa, who educates her and makes her a doctor. She falls for the poet Chandram (ANR), but he insists that she marry the terminally ill Raghu, who loves her too. Chandram now marries Valarakshmi (Girija), the daughter of Venkatramaiah. Valarakshmi, however, suspects that Chandram still loves Suguna. The film was a major 60s hit, mainly for its lyrics and music.

Abhij aan

aka The Expedition
1962 150' b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray pc Abhijatrik st Tarashankar Bannerjee's novel c Soumendu Roy
lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Waheeda Rehman, Ruma Guha-Thakurta, Gyanesh Mukherjee, Charuprakash Ghosh, Robi Ghosh, Arun Roy, Sekhar Chatterjee, Ajit Bannerjee, Reba Devi, Abani Mukherjee

Taking over from some friends who lost confidence after one day's shooting, Ray made his first Christian melodrama (see e.g. the boulders standing in for accumulated sin), set in Northern Bihar. Hero Narsingh (So. Chatterjee), a taxi driver who loses his licence, gets involved in drug smuggling and with two women, the missionary teacher Mary Nilima (Guha-Thakurta) and the prostitute Gulabi (Rehman's only appearance in a Ray movie). Conflicts of class with feudal Rajput honour inform the story about the villain Sukhanram (C. Ghosh) who is redeemed by the good Joseph (G. Mukherjee), Mary's brother. The urbane and upper-class Soumitra Chatterjee is cast against type as the rough, bearded Rajasthani driver.

Aradhana

1962 167' b&w Telugu
d V. Madhusudhana Rao pc Jagapathi Pics p Ranga Rao, Rajendra Prasad co-dial/co-lyr Narla Chiranjeevi co-dial Athreya co-lyr Sri Sri, Arudra, Kosaraju c C. Nageshwara Rao m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao
lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Savitri, Girija, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Ramana Reddy, K. Jaggaiah, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Chittor V. Nagaiah

Popular 60s love story and lukewarm remake of the Uttam Kumar and Suchitra Sen Bengali classic Sagarika (1956). Gopi (Nageshwara Rao) meets Anuradha (Savitri) while at medical college. Gopi agrees to marry a woman of his parents' choice (Girija) because the dowry will allow him to study medicine in the USA. While he is away, Anuradha moves in with Gopi's family and impersonates his fiancée whenever he telephones and also writes the fiancée's love-letters to Gopi. This, and the fact that his fiancée wanted to marry another man anyway, leads to the happy ending.

Bees Saal Baad

1962 158' b&w Hindi
d Biren Nag pc Geetanjali Pics p/m Hemant Kumar [Hemanta Mukherjee] s Dhruva Chatterjee dial Devkishen lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Marshall Braganza lp Waheeda Rehman, Biswajeet, Manmohan Krishna, Sajjan, Asit Sen, Madan Puri, Devkishen, Lata Sinha

Suspense movie allegedly derived from The Hound of the Baskervilles. Kumar (Biswajeet) is the last in a long line of Chandangarh zamindars. He returns to his lonely ancestral manor where his father had been mysteriously killed after he was lured into the fields by the sound of anklets and a woman crying. Rumours abound of the ghost of a woman raped and killed by Kumar's ancestor. Kumar falls for the local belle Radha (Rehman) and meets a gallery of dubious characters: an ex-con servant, a bearded doctor and a man on crutches who turns out to be a disguised policeman. The first half of the film builds up the suspense, mostly using the soundtrack according to generic conventions. The plot then becomes a whodunit until the murderer is revealed: Radha's guardian (M. Krishna), the father of the woman killed 20 years ago. Waheeda's seduction number, associating her with the ghost, is the classic Kahin deep jale kahin dil (sung by Lata Mangeshkar).

Bhoodana

1962 161' b&w Kannada
co-d/s G.V. Iyer co-d P.S. Gopalakrishna pc Ananthalakshmi Pics c B. Dorairaj m G.K. Venkatesh lp Rajkumar, Kalyana Kumar, Udaya Kumar, Ashwath, Leelavathi, Balkrishna, Narasimraju, H.R. Sastry, Adavani Lakshmi, Mahalinga Bhagavathar

Iyer's debut is a political melodrama made in the context of the Bhoodana (land-gift) movement started by the Gandhian Vinoba Bhave, calling on all large land owners to donate 1/6th of their land for redistribution to the landless. Exploitative landlord Lakshmiapati controls the bonded labourer Dasanna and his two sons Rama and Lakshmana. When he donates his sixth, the land is allotted to this trio who exploit it successfully. The landlord later reappropriates the land, causing Dasanna to go insane. One of the first Kannada political films, it is the only film to feature all three Kannada top male stars: Rajkumar, Kalyana Kumar and Udaya Kumar.

China Town

1962 151' b&w Hindi
d/p Shakti Samanta pc Shakti Films s Ranjan Bose dial Vrajendra Gaud lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Dwarka Divecha m Ravi lp Shammi Kapoor, Shakila, Helen, Madan Puri, S.N. Bannerjee, Mridula, Jeevankala, Gautam Mukherjee, Kanu Roy

Crime movie with 'Far Eastern' atmosphere following on from Samanta's Howrah Bridge (1958) and Singapore (1960). It is set in a township outside Calcutta inhabited by Chinese refugees from WW2, with smoke-filled bars, cabarets, criminals stalking the streets and skulking in alleys and gangland businessmen sporting fat cigars. Kapoor plays a double role of twins separated at birth who meet again as Shekhar, a cabaret entertainer in love with the aristocratic millionairess Rita, and Mike, the gangster. The police use the resemblance to get Shekhar to impersonate Mike in order to track down the gang boss. Only the shoemaker Ching Lee is wise to the substitution. Kapoor's imitation of Presley is most visible in the hit number Bar bar dekho, sung by Mohammed Rafi.

Dheuer Pare Dheu

aka Waves after Waves
 1962 100' b&w Bengali
co-d/co-p/co-sc/c B.K. Sanyal co-d/co-sc Smritish Guha-Thakurta co-p M. Dutta Gupta pc Renaissance Films st S. Dey m Ravi Shankar lp Shankar, Shampa, Badal

Most of the cast and crew headed by the former photographer Sanyal were new to cinema when they made this low-budget film in the wake of S. Ray's pioneering work in Bengal (Ravi Shankar had also scored Ray's Apu Trilogy). Set in a small fishing village, it tells of the fisherman Natal (Shankar) and his friend Loton (Badal). Natal marries their childhood companion, Padma (Shampa), but is later feared drowned in a fishing accident. Padma then marries Loton. When Natal returns, observing their happiness through the window of their home, he goes away again and drowns himself. The film's narrative pace is virtually static but the acting, the music and the extremely aestheticised imagery keep the viewer interested.

Ganga Maiya Tohe Piyari

Chadhaibo

1962 ? b&w Bhojpuri
d Kundan Kumar pc Nirmal Pics s Nasir Hussain lyr Shailendra c R.K. Pandit m Chitragupta lp Kumkum, Ashim Kumar, Nasir Hussain, Tiwari, Mishra, Helen, Leela Mishra, Bhagwan Sinha, Tuntun, Kumari Padma

The first feature of the now thriving Bhojpuri cinema, the rhythmic and flowery Central Indian dialect of Hindi approximating Brijbhasha, the language associated with North Indian classical music. In this melodrama Sumitra (Kumkum) is married, according to the film's publicity, 'in the style to which all young women aspire', only to find herself widowed soon after. A variety of villains include her father, the drunken Lakhon Singh, her father-in-law and other members of the village who see her as a harbinger of bad luck, but she eventually overcomes these obstacles and causes the village to revise its orthodox assumptions.

Gundamma Katha

aka Manithan Maravillai
 1962 166' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d K. Kameshwara Rao[Te]/Chakrapani[Ta] pc Vijaya co-p B. Nagi Reddy co-p/st Chakrapani dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr Pingali Nagenda Rao c Marcus Bartley
m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao
lp N.T. Rama Rao[Te]/Gemini Ganesh[Ta], A. Nageshwara Rao, S.V. Ranga Rao, Savitri, Vijayalakshmi, Jamuna, Relangi Venkatramaiah

The old woman Gundamma has a son, an exploited stepdaughter and a spoiled daughter for whom she hopes to get a 'resident' son-in-law who can also look after the rest of the family. She gets two: the brothers Anji and Raja, who teach the old woman a lesson. Producer Chakrapani credited himself with the direction of the film's Tamil version Manithan Maravillai but it was a failure, unlike the major success of the original Telugu. Regarded as the last film of Vijaya's 'golden age'.

Gyarah Hazaar Ladkiyan

1962 152' b&w Hindi
d/st/co-sc K.A. Abbas pc Film Friends p/co-sc Ali Sardar Jafri lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri
c Ramchandra m N. Dutta lp Mala Sinha, Bharat Bhushan, Helen, Jugnu, Baby Farida, Baby Vidyarani, Baby Vijay, Soni Sultana, Nirmala Mansukhani, Minal, Noor, Nadira, David, Madhavi, Imtiaaz

The noted Urdu poet Ali Sardar Jafri co-wrote and produced Abbas's film set among journalists. Puran (Bhushan) rebels against his millionaire father and joins a progressive journal. Reporting on working women, he falls in love with Asha (Sinha), a clerk in a food-rationing office. When his father forces Puran to leave his job, he starts his own paper. With the end of rationing after the war, Asha loses her job and her younger sister Uma becomes a cabaret dancer. In self-defence, Uma kills the lecherous nightclub boss and Asha takes the blame. Puran defends Asha in court where his speeches extol working women.

Hal f Ticket

1962 168' b&w Hindi
d Kalidas pc Cine Technicians Prod. st Surid Kar sc Ramesh Pant lyr Shailendra c Apurba Bhattacharjee m Salil Choudhury
lp Kishore Kumar, Pran, Madhubala, Manorama, Om Prakash, Helen, Shammi, Tuntun, Moni Chatterjee, Sailen Bose, Dilip Mukherjee, Anil Ganguly, B.R. Kapoor, Mauji, Zeb Rehman

Slapstick crime thriller parodying the genre with Indian cinema's weirdest and most sustained chase sequence. Raja Babu (Pran) stuffs stolen diamonds into the hip pocket of Vijay (Kumar), standing in front of him in a railway ticket queue. Vijay, a rich man's socialist son with a bizarre way of organising protests, is running away from home dressed in shorts and a schoolboy cap to obtain the half-price ticket available to schoolchildren. Throughout the rest of the film, Raja Babu chases Vijay and keeps making ineffectual grabs at the hero's hip pocket as they go through Bombay, visit a Cossack stage dance with Helen, a nautanki performance and eventually wind up in a crane, a hot-air balloon and an aeroplane that lands them atop a palm tree. The crazy plot recalls the Tashlin/Lewis films and the Marx Brothers as well as the boisterous traditions of Indian urbanised folk theatre.

⊗ Hansuli Banker Upakatha

aka Folk Tales of River Bend

1962 122' b&w Bengali

d/sc Tapan Sinha p S.L. Jalan st Tarashankar Bannerjee c Bimal Mukherjee m Hemanta Mukherjee

lp Kali Bannerjee, Dilip Roy, Ranjana Bannerjee, Ansuya Gupta, Lily Chakraborty, Robi Ghosh

Following in the wake of S. Ray's films set in Bengali villages (cf. Dheuer Pare Dheu, 1962), Sinha situates his film in 1941 in a village by the Kopai river. The isolated, bamboo-surrounded village is dominated by a greedy zamindar and an ineffectual chief, Banwari (K. Bannerjee). Young Karali (Roy) leads the drive for change, abandoning the fields for the railroad yard, which eventually succeeds when Banwari is killed and WW2 makes its impact on the village. Sinha uses pathetic fallacy imagery (a monsoon) to signal the advent of a new era and deploys a flowery style for scenes depicting the past while the present is filmed in an earthier, more humorous manner. The music track is enhanced by folk melodies.

⊗ Hariyal i Aur Raasta

1962 168' b&w Hindi

d Vijay Bhatt pc Prakash Pics s Dhruva Chatterjee dial Qamar Jalalabadi lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Shailendra c Bipin Gajjar m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Mala Sinha, Manoj Kumar, Shashikala, Krishnakumari, Manmohan Krishna, Surendranath, Aroon, Chopra, Samar Roy, Om Prakash

A hit musical melodrama set in Darjeeling's tea plantations and one of Sinha's best-known films. Shankar (M. Kumar) falls in love with Shobhana (Sinha), the daughter of the plantation supervisor Shivnath (Krishna). However, Shankar is due to marry the vampish Rita (Shashikala). To make life simpler at the plantation, Shobhana uses a train accident to disappear and to start a new life as Kamala, a hospital nurse. Shankar marries the spendthrift Rita and when their son Ramesh falls ill the boy is nursed back to health by 'Kamala'. Then Shankar himself falls ill and Shobhana's second rescue act brings the couple together again. Hits include Ibyade-ishq hum sari raat jaage and the title number Yeh hariyali aur yeh raasta, both sung by Lata Mangeshkar (the former being a duet with Mukesh).

⊗ Kanchanjunga

1962 102' col Bengali

d/s/m Satyajit Ray pc N.C.A. Prod. c Subrata Mitra

lp Chhabi Biswas, Anil Chatterjee, Karuna Bannerjee, Anubha Gupta, Subrata Sen, Sibani Singh, Alaknanda Roy, Arun Mukherjee, N. Vishwanathan, Pahadi Sanyal, Nilima Chatterjee, Vidya Sinha

Ray's first colour film and his first original script is a naturalist drama set in 'real time' (shot at a ratio of slightly over 1:2) over an afternoon in the tourist hill-station of Darjeeling (cf. a similar plot structure in Ray's next original script, Nayak, 1966). Indranath Roy Choudhury (Biswas), whom Ray described as a 'domineering British title-holding father', heads a large upper-class family on the last day of their holiday in Darjeeling surrounded by snowcapped mountains and swirling mists. His long-suffering wife Labanya (Bannerjee) is relegated to a secondary role while he encourages a possible marriage between their youngest daughter Monisha (Roy) with the pompous, foreign-returned Engineer Pranab Bannerjee (Vishwanathan). The elder daughter Anima (Gupta) confronts her alcoholic husband Shankar (Sen), openly acknowledging her affair with another man. The philandering son Anil (A. Chatterjee) loses one girlfriend and acquires another. Brother-in-law Jagdish (Sanyal) is only interested in bird-watching. The lower-class Sibsankar Roy, Anil's former tutor, tries to inveigle a job for his nephew Ashok (Mukherjee) from the patriarch, but when a job is offered the nephew turns it down, striking up a close friendship with Monisha instead, the latter having rejected her father's choice for a husband. The most significant aspect of the film is not the much-touted non-judgemental humanism nor the 'rounded' characters in this ensemble piece, but the mobilisation of a suspense formula (patterned on the country house murder mystery) in which something 'dramatic' always seems about to happen but never does. In the end, the only 'crime' committed is the wealthy patriarch's insistence on exerting a 'traditional' authority in a new, independent and industrial era. Although largely a naturalist drama, the casting of Biswas consciously mobilises a melodramatic stereotype, giving the film an iconic distance. The film is also remarkable for its use of pastel colours (unfortunately, the original negative has been damaged and existing prints do not always reproduce Ray's and Mitra's intended colour schemes) and the sound effect at the end when the humming of a Nepali boy suddenly expands to echo through the valleys dominated by the Kanchanjunga peak.

⊗ King Kong

1962 ? b&w Hindi

d Babubhai Mistri pc Santosh Prod. s V. Pande,

Madhur, Masterji dial M.R. Nawab lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Keki Mistry m Chitragupta lp Dara Singh, Kumkum, Chandrasekhar, Pravin Choudhury, Sheila Kashmiri, Kamal Mehra, Leela Mishra, Paul Sharma, Uma Dutt

Dara Singh's best-known 60s stunt movie. King Kong is the title that King Hingoo bestows upon the strongest man in his kingdom. The reigning King Kong discovers a mysterious man (Singh) in a forest who appears to be stronger than he and who eventually defeats him. It emerges that the new King Kong is the son of the strong man deposed by Hingoo. The new prince is imprisoned but breaks out and defeats the entire palace.

⊗ Kulagothralu

1962 166' b&w Telugu

d/st/sc K. Pratyagatma pc Prasad Arts Pics p A.V. Subba Rao dial Acharya Athreya lyr Kosaraju, Sri Sri, C. Narayana Reddy, Dasarathi

c A. Vincent m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Krishnakumari, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Suryakantam, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Nirmala, G. Varalakshmi, Ramana Reddy, Sandhya, Girija, Padmanabham

Pratyagatma's 2nd film is a musical melodrama and tells of hero Ravi who decides to marry a lower-caste woman and has to leave home to do so. The film included several comedy interludes featuring Venkatramaiah and established Krishnakumari as a major Telugu star while confirming the director's signature in the Prasad tradition of musical family melodramas.

⊗ Mahamantri Timmarasu

1962 177' b&w Telugu

d K. Kameshwara Rao pc Gauthami Prod. p N. Ramabhramam, A. Pundarikakshyya

m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Lingamurthy, L. Vijayalakshmi, S. Varalakshmi, A.V. Subba Rao, Devika, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Shobhan Babu, Rajashri, K. Mukkamala, Radhakumari

One of the many costumed spectacles featuring the Vijayanagara Emperor Krishnadeva Raya and his court (cf. the popular Tenali Ramakrishna films of 1941 and 1956). The king (NTR) marries two women, Chinna Devi (Vijayalakshmi) and Tirumaladevi (Varalakshmi). The only way he can end his war with Veerabhadra Gajapathi is to claim Annapurna (Devika) in marriage as well. The war drama and court intrigue includes a murder for which Timmarasu (Gummadi) is falsely accused. The musical consolidated Kameshwara Rao's reputation for making box-office hits in the genre.

⊗ Nenjil Ore Alayam

1962 164' b&w Tamil

d/sc C.V. Sridhar p Chitralaya c A. Vincent

m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy
lp Devika, Kalyan Kumar, S.P. Muthuraman, Nagesh, Rama Rao, Raghavan, Manorama, Kutti Padmini

Melodrama shot on one single location in fifteen days. The doctor (Kalyan Kumar) at a cancer hospital is in love with Seetha (Devika) who comes to tend to her dying husband Venu (Muthuraman), who urges his wife not to remain a widow and to marry the doctor. When the doctor has to perform surgery on Venu, Seetha is not convinced that his intentions are strictly medical. Although the doctor succeeds in saving Venu's life, his relationship with Seetha is spoiled and he dies of a heart attack. The film's hit song, 'Engiruadalum vazhga' became a classic number about unrequited love. Sridhar's Hindi version Dil Ek Mandir (1963) proved equally successful, featuring Raaj Kumar, Rajendra Kumar and Meena Kumari.

Rehman's robust and girlish presence (esp. in the Bhanwra bada nadaan number sung by Asha Bhosle). The film itself is told entirely in flashback and the long shadows of history invade the images in sequences such as the Saakiya aaj mujhe neend number (sung by Asha Bhosle) where all the dancers are seen in shadow while the singing courtesan (Minoo Mumtaz) is bathed in light.

Big-budget hit Telugu mythological derived from the Mahabharata. Krishna (NTR) has to confront his disciple Arjuna (Nageshwara Rao) in order to sustain the war. NTR, who made a career playing Krishna roles, here shifts the icon away from the romantic into the warlike, apparently a first in Telugu film. The music of Pendyala and lyricist Pingali was as usual successful, particularly the comedy hit Anchelanchelu sung by B. Gopalam and Swarnalatha.

☞ Sautel a Bhai

1962 ? b&w Hindi
d/co-sc Mahesh Kaul pc Alok Bharati st Saratchandra Chattopadhyay's novel Boikunther Will co-sc/dial Dev Kishen lyr Shailendra c R.L. Nagar m Anil Biswas lp Guru Dutt, Pronoti Bhattacharya, Bipin Gupta, Raaj Kumar, Ranibala, Asit Sen, Bela Bose, Radheshyam, Samar Chatterjee, Ratna Kanhaiyalal, Lakshman Singh

Melodrama about an extended family in Bengal. Baikunth Majumdar (Gupta), who has a son by a previous marriage, remarries. His new wife Bhawani raises her stepson Gokul along with her own son Vinod. When they grow up Vinod (Raaj Kumar) goes to the city to study while Gokul (Dutt) manages the family shop. Vinod turns bad in the city and his parents decide to leave the family property to Gokul. Vinod returns and contests the will. The battle between the stepbrothers over 'mother' and the will is resolved by Gokul's other-worldly innocence which succeeds in uniting the family.

☞ Siri Sampadal u

1962 167' b&w Telugu
d P. Pullaiah pc Padmasri Pics s Pinisetty lyr Athreya, Kosaraju, Sri Sri m Master Venu lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Chittor V. Nagaiah, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Chalam, Ramana Reddy, Savitri, Shantakumari, Suryakantam, Girija, Vasanthi, Surabhi Balasaraswathi, Relangi Venkatramaiah

Family melodrama about the decline of a feudal patriarch and the rise of a new generation with different values. The head of the family, Nayudu (Nagaiah), severs relations with his sister's family since he holds his brother-in-law responsible for his father's death. He also refuses to let his son Prasad (Nageshwara Rao) marry Padma (Savitri). The family becomes impoverished and Prasad has to restore both his father's honour and the family fortunes. He also marries Padma. Released at the same time as Kulagothralu (1962), also a family melodrama interspersed with comedy routines, Pullaiah's film flopped despite his reputation in Telugu cinema.

☞ Sahib Bibi Aur Ghulam

aka Master, Mistress, Servant aka King, Queen, Knave aka King, Queen and Slave
1962 152' (120') b&w Hindi-Urdu
d/sc Abrar Alvi p Guru Dutt pc Guru Dutt Films st Bimal Mitra's novel Saheb Bibi Golam (1952) lyr Shakeel Badayuni c V.K. Murthy m Hemant Kumar [Hemanta Mukherjee] lp Meena Kumari, Guru Dutt, Waheeda Rehman, Rehman, Nasir Hussain, Sapru, Sajjan, S.N. Bannerjee, Dhumal, Krishna Dhawan, Jawahar Kaul, Harindranath Chattopadhyay, Minoo Mumtaz, Pratima Devi, Ranjit Kumari, Bikram Kapoor

After the failure at the box office of Kaagaz Ke Phool (1959), Guru Dutt had let M. Sadiq direct his Chaudhvin Ka Chand (1960) before making this elegiac movie which he credited to his long-term collaborator and scenarist, Alvi. Taken from a classic Bengali novel, the story is set in the 19th C. zamindari milieu of the Choudhury household. It is seen through the eyes of the lower-class but educated Bhoothnath (Dutt) who arrives in colonial Calcutta looking for work (while British troops loot the shops). Through his city relative Bhoothnath finds accommodation in the Choudhury haveli (ancestral mansion) while working at the Mohini Sindoor factory, which allows the narrative to move from the aristocratically indolent world of the zamindars to the more prosaic one of the Brahma Samaj. The plot has the hero being fascinated by the lady of the house Chhoti Bahu (M. Kumari), whose husband (Rehman) prefers the company of dancing-girls and all-night drinking bouts. The film gradually gives way to a darker mood as the family loses its fortune and descends to ruin while Chhoti Bahu becomes an alcoholic. At times compared to Satyajit Ray's Jalsaghar (1958) as a commentary on Bengal's decaying feudalism, Dutt's film is a romantic and somewhat nostalgic tale about a bygone era, presenting the past and the future through the contradictory attitudes of two female figures. Meena Kumari's skilful performance, redolent with sensuality (e.g. the scene where she entices her husband to stay by her side through the song Na jao sayyan, sung by Geeta Dutt), is counterpointed by Waheeda

☞ Shri Krishnarjuna Yuddham

1962 174' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d/st K.V. Reddy pc Jayanti Pics dial/lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, A. Nageshwara Rao, B. Saroja Devi, S. Varalakshmi, Sriranjani Jr., Chhaya Devi, Rushyendramani, Balasaraswathi, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Kantarao, Allu Ramalingaiah

☞ Subarnarekha

1962 143' b&w Bengali
d/sc Ritwik Ghatak pc J.J. Films st/p Radheshyam Jhunjhunwala c Dilip Ranjan Mukhopadhyay m Bahadur Khan

Madhabi Mukherjee and Satindra Battacharya in Subarnarekha

lp Abhi Bhattacharya, Bijon Bhattacharya, Madhabi Mukherjee, Geeta De, Sriman Tarun, Satindra Bhattacharya, Abanish Bannerjee, Jahar Roy

One of Ghatak's most impressive and complex films, released in 1965, tells of Ishwar Chakraborty (A. Bhattacharya) and his young sister Seeta who start out in a refugee camp after Partition. After a brief scene ironically evoking the vagaries of nationalism, the two rescue the boy Abhiram (Tarun) when his mother Kausalya (De) is abducted. A businessman appoints Ishwar to run a foundry and he takes the two children to the new abode. Abhiram is sent to school and returns years later (S. Bhattacharya) intent on becoming a writer and marrying Seeta (M. Mukherjee). As Abhiram is an Untouchable, Ishwar finds his job prospects threatened and he asks the boy to leave, arranging for Seeta to marry someone else. She elopes with Abhiram and they, with their baby son, live in a shack in Calcutta until Abhiram dies in an accident and Seeta is forced to turn to prostitution. The lonely old Ishwar contemplates suicide and with his old friend Harprasad (B. Bhattacharya) he goes on a drinking binge in Calcutta, culminating in a visit to a brothel. He is ushered into his own sister's room. Ishwar is devastated and Seeta kills herself, watched by her son. At the end of the film, an aged Ishwar is leading Seeta's child to the promised 'new house' by the river which forms the visual leitmotiv throughout the film. Ghatak endowed virtually every sequence with a wealth of historical overtones through an iconography of violation, destruction, industrialism and the disasters of famine and Partition. Most of the dialogue and the visuals are a patchwork of literary and cinematic quotations enhanced by Ghatak's characteristic redemptive use of music. This strategy enconces the characters and their behaviour deep into the fabric of history itself, constantly referring their actions to forces playing on a broader canvas than the space-time occupied by an individual. A famous example is the sequence set on an abandoned airstrip with the wreck of a WW2 aeroplane where the children playfully reconstruct its violence until the girl comes up against the frightening image of the goddess Kali (who turns out to be a rather pathetic travelling performer). Later, in dappled light, the older Seeta sings a dawn raga on the airstrip. In a classic dissolve, the old Ishwar throws a newspaper showing Yuri Gagarin's space exploration into the foundry where it bursts into flames which then dissolve into the rainwater outside Seeta's hovel. Harprasad, who had earlier rescued Ishwar from committing suicide by quoting from Tagore's Shishu Tirtha, later in the night club parodies an episode from the Upanishads using an East Bengal dialect. Other quotes from this extraordinary sequence including Eliot's The Waste Land (1922) and, through the music, Fellini's La Dolce Vita (1960). Kumar Shahani pointed out that when brother and sister confront each other in the brothel, Ghatak's sudden and brutal recourse to the highly conventionalised codes of melodrama abruptly stresses the usually hidden theme of incestuous aggression in the commercial Indian cinema while also commenting on the brutalisation of India's revered classical heritage (cf. Shahani, 1986).

⊗ Akhand Saubhagyavati

1963 151' b&w Gujarati
d Manhar Raskapur pc Rajat Films p Rajab Shaida st/dial/lyr Barkat Virani sc Ramnik Vaid m Kalyanji-Anandji
lp Asha Parekh, Mahesh Kumar, Arvind, Agha

Raskapur's effort to introduce Hindi movie-derived idioms into Gujarati was also the first film in the language to be funded by the FFC (see NFDC). Asha Parekh in her first Gujarati lead role plays the virtuous Usha, who falls for the weak Arun (Kumar). The evil Pankaj however spreads rumours about Usha's infidelity and causes Arun to disappear on their wedding night. The excessively dramatic scenes that follow feature other characters including the sexy vamp, Maya, and sequences in which Usha's house is burned down, before she is proved innocent and receives her now-repentant husband.

⊗ Baba Ramdev

aka Baba Ramdev Peer, aka Ramdev 1963 ?' b&w Rajasthani d Manibhai Vyas pc Ranglok s Naval Mathur c Narottam m Shivram lp Mahipal, Anita Guha, Lalita Desai, Ratna, B.M. Vyas, Mohan Modi, Deepak, Madhumati, Dalda, Sarita

Rajasthani Saint film and mythological made by a Gujarati director known for mythologicals like Satyavan Savitri (1949) and Bhakta Tulsidas (1951). Featuring two of the most prominent Hindi stars associated with the genre, Mahipal and Guha, the film tells of Ramdev, a 13th C. Vaishnavite saint poet, unusually presented as a reincarnation of Vishnu (most Saint films usually emphasise the earthly origins of their subjects). Disgusted with his god when famine besets his kingdom, the king of Pokharan tries to commit suicide by jumping into the sea but he is placated by Vishnu who is reborn as the king's son. A variety of genres are telescoped into this miracle-laden film as Ramdev rescues his future wife, the Princess Netal, from bandits, and then saves his sister from her mother-in-law's tyranny. He also defeats the orthodox Yogiraj Kumbheshwar while espousing the cause of the lowest Untouchable castes.

⊗ Bandini

1963 157'(120') b&w Hindi
d/p Bimal Roy pc Bimal Roy Prod. st Jarasandha [Charuchandra Chakraborty] sc M. Ghosh lyr Shailendra c Kamal Bose m S.D. Burman lp Nutan, Ashok Kumar, Dharmendra, Raja Paranjpe, Tarun Bose, Asit Sen, Chandrima Bhaduri, Moni Chatterjee, Leela, Bela Bose, Iftikhar, Hiralal

Nutan's best-known film is set in the women's ward of a pre-independence prison. The story is based on a book by Jarasandha, a former Alipore central jail superintendent who wrote fictional versions of his experiences (Louha-Kapat, 1953; Tamasha, 1958; Nyaydanda, 1961). The gentle inmate Kalyani (Nutan), imprisoned for murder, appears determined to serve her full sentence, resisting the kind overtures of the prison doctor (Dharmendra). Her past is told in flashback. In a 30s Bengal riddled with revolutionary terrorists, she had become involved with the anarchist Bikash Ghosh (A. Kumar), and tries to save his life by claiming to be his wife. Her father (Paranjpe) insists that for her honour's sake she must really marry the man. Bikash disappears and Kalyani later learns that he has married another woman. To avoid her father's dishonour she leaves the village and becomes a servant in a nursing home where she encounters a particularly obnoxious patient who is revealed to be Bikash's wife. Regarding her as the cause of all her and her father's suffering, Kalyani poisons the woman and assumes her guilt. The sentimental story, which suggests a straight link between terrorism and patricide, is redeemed by the most accomplished cinematography Bimal Roy ever achieved and by Nutan's performance, perhaps the only consistent expression in Indian film of female guilt.

Raja Paranjpe and Nutan in Bandini

Medical student and playboy Selvam (Ganesan) falls for the wiles of Vasanthi (Priyadarshini) who only appears to covet his ancestral wealth. Later Selvam meets the schoolteacher Shanta (Saroja Devi) who is forced by her parents to marry him. However, she refuses to live with her husband because of his earlier affair. When Selvam is accused of murdering his former girlfriend, the crisis reconciles the couple. The playboy song Paravaigal palavidham (sung by T.M. Soundararajan) was a hit. Prasad produced the Hindi version made by T. Prakash Rao as Sasural (1961) starring Rajendra Kumar.

entrepreneur Mukherjee espouses ruthless business ethics and the salesgirl Edith exemplifies the orthodox bias against working women as 'Westernised' and with loose morals. Ray often adapts a shooting style to suit the different locales represented by these individuals, using e.g. expressionist low and wide-angle shots in Mukherjee's office and in the conversation between the two women in the ladies' rest room, whereas 'period' realism prevails for life in the family house. In between the sets designed by Bansi Chandragupta are the location shots, beginning with shots of tramlines and ending with the sweeping upward crane. Madhabi Mukherjee's performance dominates the film, as it would again in Charulata (1964).

Bluff Master

1963 ? b&w Hindi

d/sc Manmohan Desai pc Subhash Pics st Madhusudan Kalkar dial/lyr Rajinder Krishen c N. Satyen m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Shammi Kapoor, Saira Banu, Pran, Lalita Pawar, Mohan Choti, Tuntun, Rashid Khan, Niranjan Sharma, Santosh Kumar, Ramlal, Shyamal, Jugal Kishore, Charlie Walker

Desai inaugurates his characteristic 'performance masquerade' style with this virtual Shammi Kapoor solo act. Ashok (Kapoor) is a chronic liar who lives by his wits. As a gossip columnist he takes and publishes a photograph of a woman slapping a man in the street. The woman, Seema (Banu), is the boss's daughter. After many adventures, including an impromptu stage performance when he masquerades as his own father and violent encounters with Seema's villainous suitor Kumar (Pran), Ashok wins the woman. The film consistently emphasises a lumpenised street counter-culture culminating in the boisterous and popular number Govinda ala re ala performed by Kapoor on the city streets with numerous drunken youths.

Ito Sito Bohuto

1963 113' b&w Assamese

d/s/m Brojen Barua pc J.P. Cine Art lyr Navakanta Barua, Keshab Mahanta c Shankar Bannerjee lp Phani Sarma, Brojen Barua, Sarat Das, Muazzin Ali, Girin Barua, Probin Bora, Beena Das, Manideepa

Barua's remarkable debut is Assam's first comedy feature. It tells of an eccentric retired army major (Sarma) who clings to his authority and continues to expect military discipline. The fast-paced film is remembered mainly for Sarma's best-known, albeit uncharacteristic, film role.

Mahanagar

aka The Big City

1963 131' b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p R.D. Bansal pc R.D.B. & Co. st Narendranath Mitra's Abataranika c Subrata Mitra lp Anil Chatterjee, Madhabi Mukherjee, Jaya Bhaduri, Haren Chatterjee, Shefalika Devi, Prasenjit Sarkar, Haradhan Bannerjee, Vicky Redwood

Ray's first major incursion into the Calcutta environment after the brief sequence in Apur Sansar (1959). The film chronicles the shift from feudal social arrangements to Independent capitalism and urban mass culture. Middle-class clerk Subrata Majumdar (A. Chatterjee) persuades his wife Arati (Mukherjee) to take a job as a saleswoman. The large joint family, including his sister (played by Bhaduri in her debut) is horrified at the thought of a working woman in their midst. For Arati, going door-to-door selling knitting machines opens up a new world which includes an Anglo-Indian friend, Edith (Redwood), and her employer Mukherjee (Bannerjee). Earning money changes Arati's status in the family, causing further problems, especially when her husband loses his job. When Edith is unjustly sacked for racial reasons, Arati resigns in protest and throws the family into crisis. The film ends with an almost socialist-realist idiom as the camera cranes up to show the couple striding with determination into the teeming proletariat on the street. Different characters stand in for the conflicting ideologies: the father-in-law expects feudal loyalty from his former students; the

Mere Mehboob

1963 164' col Urdu

d/co-sc H.S. Rawail pc Rahul Theatres st/dial/co-sc Vinod Kumar lyr Shakeel Badayuni c G. Singh m Naushad lp Ashok Kumar, Rajendra Kumar, Sadhana, Nimmi, Johnny Walker, Pran, Sundar, Amita

A romance presumably set in early 20th C. Lucknow. Anwar (R. Kumar) glimpses the veiled Husna (Sadhana) and composes a love song for her while he sings at a college concert. Their subsequent meetings are bedevilled by class differences and family intrigues. The Eastmancolor musical, shot entirely in studios, effectively uses artifice to convey nostalgia for the elaborate courtly manners of a bygone (colonial) era. Naushad's music enhanced this approach with e.g. the famous title number Mere mehboob tujhe meri mohabat ki kasam (sung in two versions by Mohammed Rafi and Lata Mangeshkar).

Gumrah

1963 155' b&w Hindi

d/p B.R. Chopra pc B.R. Films dial Akhtar-ul-Iman lyr Sahir Ludhianvi m Ravi lp Ashok Kumar, Mala Sinha, Sunil Dutt, Shashikala, Nirupa Roy, Nana Palsikar, Vandana

Chopra's melodrama about marital infidelity sees Meena (Sinha), who loves Rajinder (Dutt), forced to marry her widowed brother-in-law Ashok (A. Kumar). Most of the story is occupied by a blackmailer (Shashikala) who, it transpires at the end of the film, was prompted by Ashok. The film features some famous Mahendra Kapoor songs (In havaon mein, in fizaon mein, Yeh hawa, yeh fiza; Chalo ek baar phir se ajnabi ban jayen hum dono).

Iruvar Ullam

1963 165' b&w Tamil

d L.V. Prasad pc Prasad Movies p Anand
s M. Karunanidhi lyr Kannadasan
c K.S. Prasad m K.V. Mahadevan lp Sivaji Ganesan, B. Saroja Devi, M.R. Radha, S.V. Ranga Rao, T.R. Ramchandran, T.P. Muthulakshmi, Sandhya, Padmini Priyadarshini, Lakshmirajyam, A. Karunanidhi

Moodupadam

1963 161' b&w Malayalam

d Ramu Kariat p T.K. Pareekutty
pc Chandrathara Prod. st S.K. Pottakkad dial K. Padmanabhan Nair, K.T. Mohammed lyr P. Bhaskaran, Yusuf Ali Kacheri c A. Vincent m Baburaj lp Sathyan, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Sheela, Premji, K. Balakrishnan Menon, Madhu, Adoor Bhasi, Poppu, Venu, Kothamangalam Ali, Kunjam, Ambika, Santha Devi

Kariat's film made at the Vijaya-Vauhini Studio dramatises Hindu-Christian and Hindu-Muslim relations: sexual relations between the former seem possible but sadly not between the latter. The four children of two working-class neighbours, one Hindu family and one Muslim family, grow up together. The Hindu boy Appu and the Muslim girl Ameena are in love but social taboos keep them apart. Having enabled his sister to marry a Christian man, Appu goes to Bombay where he becomes a respected playwright. Ameena's brother Ali is killed by communalist fanatics in Bombay but Appu withholds the news from the Muslim family, sending them money and gifts in Ali's name. Appu eventually arranges his beloved Ameena's marriage to a Muslim soldier.

Moogamanasul u

1963 164' b&w Telugu
d/sc Adurthi Subba Rao pc Babu Movies p C. Sundaram co-st/co-dial/co-lyr Acharya Athreya co-st/co-dial Mullapudi Venkatramana co-lyr Dasarathi, Kosaraju c P.L. Roy
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Savitri, Jamuna, Suryakantam, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Padmanabham, Allu Ramalingaiah, Annapurna, Nagabhushanam

Hit Telugu musical about rebirth. Boatman Gopi (Nageshwara Rao) ferries Radha (Savitri) every day across the Godavari river and falls in love with her although he is due to marry Gowri (Jamuna), a woman from his own class. Radha marries a rich man (Padmanabham) and later reappears as a widow. Her relationship with Gopi, which causes a scandal, is presented as a continuation of their relationship in a previous life, shown in flashbacks. The film established the reputation of its composer, Mahadevan, and his long-term collaboration with Athreya and Subba Rao, the latter remaking the film as Milan (1967) with Sunil Dutt and Nutan.

Ninamanninnya Kal apadaka aka Bloodstained Footsteps

 1963 165' b&w Malayalam
d N.N. Pishareddy pc Navarathna Prod. s Parappuram lyr P. Bhaskaran c U. Rajagopal
m Baburaj
lp Prem Nazir, P.J. Anthony, Ambika, Madhu, Sheela, Kambisseri, S.P. Pillai, Bahadur, Adoor Bhasi, Adoor Bhawani, Shantakumari, Kottayam Shantha, Mavelikkara L. Ponnamma, Susheela

A relentless melodrama about neighbours and childhood sweethearts tragically separated when their fathers die. He joins the army and she has to rely on another man's financial help. Wounded at the front and comforted by a friendly nurse, he returns to find his girl married to the drunken village butcher. He returns to the war, sees his best friend die and marries the man's sister but has to go back to the front before consummation can take place. The film adapted a story by Parappuram, who specialised in military stories (cf. Anveshichu Kandatiyilla, 1967) and was the first effort at making a war movie in the language, although much of the action was shot on sets.

Nirjan Saikate

1963 130' b&w Bengali
d/s Tapan Sinha pc New Theatres (Exhibitors) st Samaresh Bose c Bimal Mukherjee
m Kalipada Sen lp Anil Chatterjee, Sharmila Tagore, Ruma Guha-Thakurta, Chhaya Devi, Renuka Roy, Bharati Devi, Pahadi Sanyal, Jahar Ganguly, Robi Ghosh, Amar Mullick, Upamanyu Chatterjee

A leisurely tale using a narrative format reminiscent of Ophüls's Le Plaisir (1951) with the coachload of women transposed to a railway carriage. A young writer meets four widows and a jilted young woman on the train to Puri. The rest of the film consists of their interactions, the revelation of their backgrounds and the touristic scenery (including the temple of Konarak).

Parasmani

1963 ? b&w/col Hindi
d Babubhai Mistri pc MovieLand s Vishwanath Pande, Madhur dial C.K. Mast lyr Asad Bhopali, Farooq Kaiser, Indivar c Peter Pereira
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Geetanjali, Mahipal, Manhar Desai, Nalini Chonkar, Maruti, Nazi, Uma Dutt, Jugal Kishore, Aruna Irani, Ajit Soni, Shekhar Purohit, Jeevankala, Helen

A special-effects fantasy about the son of a princely state's army Chief. Jettisoned from a ship by his father during a storm, the son grows into the fearless Paras who falls in love with the princess of the realm. The king is told by a fortune-teller that his son-in-law will cause his death unless the mythical Parasmani diamond, owned by the witch queen of Mayanagari, is acquired. After many adventures, Paras obtains the jewel. The film, although in the tradition of cheap Hindi Arabian Nights fantasies, seems to take its cue from Tamil costume dramas. The inexpensive effects include a fight between Paras and his father on what looks like a cross between a magic carpet and a spaceship. Remembered mainly as the debut of the celebrated composers Laxmikant-Pyarelal, with hits such as Ooi ma yeh kya ho gaya and Hansta hua nurani chehra, filmed in colour.

Periya Idathu Penn

1963 161' b&w Tamil
d/p/sc T.R. Ramanna pc R.R. Pics st/dial Sakthi Krishnaswamy lyr Kannadasan c M.A. Rehman
m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy
lp M.G. Ramachandran, B. Saroja Devi, M.R. Radha, T.R. Rajkumari, Ashokan, Nagesh, Manimala, Jyothilakshmi, Kolappan

Kailasam Pillai's (Radha) children, Sabapathi (Ashokan) and Puridham (Saroja), grow into wealthy spoiled brats. The simple, but courageous and wise, farmer Murugappan (MGR) has two female relatives, Thilai (Jothilakshmi), whom he is to marry, and Valli (Manimala), both trained in traditional silambam (stick fighting). Sabapathi also covets Thilai and he challenges Murugappan to a silambam duel while Puridham drugs the honest farmer, so that Thilai is forced to marry Sabapathi. The angry Murugappan then resolves to impose himself on Puridham, bullying her into become his meekly obedient farmer's wife.

Punarjanma

1963 164' b&w Telugu
d/sc K. Pratyagatma pc Prasad Art Pics st Gulshan Nanda sc Acharya Athreya lyr Sri Sri, Dasarathi, C. Narayana Reddy, Kosaraju
c P.S. Selvaraj m T. Chalapathi Rao lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Krishnakumari,

Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Ramana Reddy, Padmanabhan, Prabhakara Reddy, Vasanthi, Suryakantham, Sandhya, Chadalavada

Melodrama about Gopi, an artist (Nageshwara Rao) who goes crazy when an electrical short circuit destroys his sculpture. The doctor has the dancer and singer Vasanthi (Krishnakumari) move in to restore the sculptor to sanity. The two plan to marry, but his return to health also causes an attack of amnesia. The hero can only recognise his lover when a second accident reminds him of his first illness.

Raktha Tilakam

1963 166' b&w Tamil
d/sc Dada Mirasi pc National Movies p Panchu Arunachalam co-dial/lyr Kannadasan
co-dial P.C. Ganesan, Thyagan c B.S. Jagirdar
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Sivaji Ganesan, C.K. Nagesh, M.N. Kannappa, K. Shanmugasundaram, Savitri, C.R. Parthiban, Pushpalatha, Veerasamy, Manorama, S.R. Janaki, Saradambal, Nambirajan, Natarajan, Dandapani, Dhanapal, Chitra, Suguna, Kannadasan

Ganesan's nationalist war movie against the background of the 1962 India-China conflict. The hero Kumar (Ganesan) and heroine Kamala (Savitri) are colleagues at university. She begins to appreciate him when he rescues a play she directs by understudying her brother in the role of Othello. Kamala then joins her father in Beijing while Kumar joins the Indian Army. In Beijing Kamala marries a Chinese Army doctor (Nambirajan) and accompanies him to the 1962 war as a nurse by day and an Indian spy by night. Kumar captures her and she is to be shot at dawn when her espionage activities come to light. She is killed by her Chinese husband. Kumar dies in battle holding on to the Indian flag. The film is an important turning-point in Ganesan's and scenarist Kannadasan's efforts to repudiate their DMK associations by valorising Congress nationalism. Kannadasan played a small role as a poet, singing two famous songs, the solo Oru koppaiyele and the nostalgic send-off group number Pasumai niraindha ninaivigule (both sung by T.M. Soundararajan, the second a duet with P. Susheela).

Rustom Sohrab

1963 ? b&w Hindi-Urdu
d Vishram Bedekar pc Ramsay Prod. s Kumar Ramsay co-dial Iqbal Nadeem, Masood Mashedi, Jagdish Gautam, Sardar Illham co-dial/lyr Qamar Jalalabadi co-lyr Jan Nissar Akhtar c Nariman Irani m Sayed Hussain lp Prithviraj Kapoor, Suraiya, Premnath, Mumtaz, Sajjan, Shah Agha, Marilyn

Kumar Ramsay, a member of the family best known for their horror films, scripted this version of the classic Persian legend drawn from the 10th C. Shahnama which was a staple item in the Parsee theatre. Rustom (Kapoor in a role reminiscent of his performance in Mughal-e-Azam, 1960) is the king of Persia whose wife Tehmina (Suraiya) bears him a son while he is away fighting wars. The son Sohrab (Premnath) grows into a powerful warrior and ends up challenging his father. Unaware of each other's identity, they confront each other on the battlefield where, in true feudal tradition, Rustom triumphs over his son.

in Bengali cinema. Despite the conservatism of the story, issues of marital compatibility are extensively discussed without invoking conventional patriarchal moralism.

Shaher Aur Sapna

aka Shehar Aur Sapna aka The City and the Dream

1963 140' (120') b&w Hindi
d/s K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar lyr Ali Sardar Jafri c Ramchandra m J.P. Kaushik lp Dilip Raj, Surekha Parkar, Nana Palsikar, Manmohan Krishna, David, Anwar Hussain, Rashid Khan, Asit Sen

Abbas's romantic view of Bombay's pavement-dwellers tells of a man (Roy) who arrives from a poor Punjabi village to find a job. Amazed at the city's opulence he soon realises the main problem is to find shelter. He finally settles down with his wife (Surekha) in an unused water pipe where she gives birth to their child. The activities of slum landlords and thieves open the way for property developers and bulldozers and the pavement-dwellers again have to find shelter elsewhere, but this time they act together. For the next decade, this film's sentimentalised way of showing urban class divisions became the standard, popular idiom for these motifs, extending into Abbas's own documentaries (cf. Char Shaher Ek Kahani, 1968) and into e.g. Sukhdev's influential 'progressive' featurettes (And Miles To Go ..., 1965).

Saat Pake Bandha

1963 133' b&w Bengali
d/s Ajoy Kar pc R.D. Bansal c Bishnu Chakraborty m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Suchitra Sen, Soumitra Chatterjee, Pahadi Sanyal, Chhaya Devi, Molina Devi, Tarun Kumar, Prasanta Kumar

Suchitra Sen gives a major performance in this marital melodrama. The independent Archana (Sen) tries to overcome her domineering and snobbish mother (Chhaya Devi) by marrying Sukhendu (Chatterjee), a serious university lecturer, but mother continues to interfere, reminding her son-in-law of his poverty. Suffering from divided loyalties, Archana's problems are aggravated when her husband insists that she sever all ties with her parents. She separates from her husband and decides to complete her studies while living independently. When she finally accepts her wifely duties and returns home it is too late, as Sukhendu has resigned his job and gone abroad. Sen's finely honed performance often undercuts the ideology her character is supposed to exemplify, evoking the possibility of a more egalitarian representation of women

Dilip Raj in Shaher Aur Sapna

Tere Ghar Ke Saamne

1963 149' b&w Hindi
d/s Vijay Anand pc Navketan lyr Hasrat Jaipuri c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Nutan, Harindranath Chattopadhyay, Om Prakash, Praveen Choudhury, Zareen, Rashid Khan, Rajendranath

After Paying Guest (1957), this is the best-known Dev Anand-Nutan vehicle. Two feuding millionaires, Seth Karamchand (Chattopadhyay) and Lala Jagannath (Prakash), want to build their houses in front of each other. Jagannath's son, the architect Rakesh Kumar (D. Anand), is commissioned to construct both houses. In addition, he falls in love with Karamchand's daughter Sulekha (Nutan). A frothy musical comedy with some classic hits such as Dil ka bhanwar kare pukar (sung by Mohammed Rafi), Yeh tanhaai hai re hai (sung by Lata Mangeshkar) and bravura song picturisations including the Dil ka bhanwara number on the steps of the Qutub Minar in Delhi, and the title song, performed by Rafi and Mangeshkar, in which an imagined Nutan appears in miniature in Anand's whisky glass as they sing the duet.

Uttar Falguni

1963 137' b&w Bengali
d Asit Sen pc Uttam Kumar Films sc Nripendra Chattopadhyay c Anil Gupta, Jyotish Laha m Robin Chatterjee lp Suchitra Sen, Bikash Roy, Pahadi Sanyal, Dilip Mukherjee, Chhaya Devi, Jahar Ganguly, Ajit Bannerjee, Kalipada Chakraborty

The unhappily married Debjani (Sen) escapes from her drunken husband Rakhlababu (Chakraborty) and becomes the courtesan Pannabai. Her former lover, the lawyer Manish Roy (Roy), comes to her rescue when he adopts her daughter Suparna. The adult Suparna (Sen in a double role) also becomes a lawyer, unaware of her real parentage. Debjani's husband, who had blackmailed his wife for several years, reappears on Suparna's wedding day, demanding money. Debjani shoots him dead and appears in court, where she is defended first by Manish and then by her daughter, who learns the truth. One of Suchitra Sen's famous roles appearing both as a Thumri-singing courtesan and her emancipated daughter. The film makes extensive use of Asit Sen's characteristic panning shots and lap dissolves as narrative bridges, most notably in the montage sequences that show Suparna growing up. The director remade the film in Hindi as Mamata (1966).

Veeva Kesari/Bandhipotu

1963 177' col Kannada/Telugu
d B. Vittalacharya pc Rajalakshmi Prod. p Sundar Lal Nahata dial/co-lyr Soorat Ashwath co-lyr K.R. Seetarama Sastry c Raveekant Nagaich m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao lp Rajkumar[K], Leelavathi[K], Udaya

Kumar[K], R. Nagendra Rao[K], N.T. Rama Rao[Te], Krishnakumari[Te]

Vittalacharya's big-budget return to Kannada cinema is a Rajkumar costumed adventure movie with a complicated plot, characteristic of all the star's films. King Satyasena of Gandhara is overthrown by his evil stepbrother Shurasena (Kumar). The masked hero Veera Nayaka, who leads the oppressed people, attacks the palace of Princess Mandara Male (Leelavathi), but she is rescued by the masked man's brother Narasimha Nayaka (Rajkumar/NTR). Veera Nayaka is killed together with his benevolent father Dharma Nayaka (Nagendra Rao) by Shurasena. This episode introduces a second masked man, revealed to be Narasimha Nayaka's brother. The princess tries to apprehend him but is herself caught. She is then told the truth about the palace intrigues. Narasimha Nayaka is captured, escapes, and eventually overthrows the evil empire of Shurasena. Vittalacharya simultaneously made a Telugu version, Bandhipotu, starring NTR and Krishnakumari.

Arohi

aka Aarohi, aka Ascent

1964 124' b&w Bengali

d/sc Tapan Sinha p Ashim Pal st Banaphool c Bimal Mukherjee m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Kali Bannerjee, Dilip Roy, Sipra Mitra, Bikash Roy, Tapan Bhattacharya, Shyam Laha, Chhaya Devi

The romanticised story of a peasant (Bannerjee) who lives in a small village. He learns to read and is befriended by a doctor (D. Roy) who helps him improve his status in the community. The film concentrates on atmospherics and the character of the somewhat irascible peasant anxious that others should accept the knowledge he gained from his readings.

Amada Bata

aka The Untrodden Road

1964 144' b&w Oriya

d/sc Amar Ganguly p Babulal Doshi st Basanti Kumar Pattanayak's novel dial Gopal Chatray c Deojibhai m Balakrishna Das lp Geeta, Jharana Das, Lakhmi, Menaka, Kiran, Krishnapriya, Umakant, Akhyay, Sharat, Brindavan

The debut of pioneering Oriya producer Doshi tells of the rebellious Maya (Das) who disapproves of her sister-in-law's meek assent to the role of obedient housewife. However, the latter's attitude is merely a ploy to get her husband to split from his family. When Maya gets married, the curtailment of her freedom causes her intense suffering. The moral of the story is that by meekly submitting to her husband, a woman can achieve greater happiness. This reactionary critique of women's desire for emancipation, adapted from a book by one of Orissa's first female novelists, is best remembered for Das's performance.

Amarashil pi Jakanachari/

Amarashil pi Jakanna

1964 161' col Kannada/Telugu

d/c B.S. Ranga pc Vikram Prod.

s/co-lyr[Te] Samudrala Raghavacharya co-lyr[Te] Dasarathi, Kosaraju, C. Narayana Reddy dial[K] Chi. Sadashivaiah m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao

lp Kalyana Kumar[K]/A. Nageshwara Rao[Te], B. Saroja Devi, Udaya Kumar [K]/Chittor V. Nagaiah[Te], Narasimhraj, Rama Devi, Girija, Pushpavalli, H.P. Saroja, Relangi Venkatramaiah[Te]

The first Kannada colour movie is a costume spectacle about the sculptor Jakanachari (K. Kumar/Nageshwara Rao) who is apparently responsible for the impressive 12th C. temple sculptures of Belur and Halebid during the reign of the Hoysala King Vishnuvardhana, now a major Karnataka tourist attraction. The sculptor is shown to be inspired by his love for Manjari (Saroja Devi), who is separated from him by a political conspiracy. Later, Jakanachari has a contest with a young sculptor unaware that the youth is his own son. Kalyana Kumar's best-known screen role.

Bhargavi Nil ayam

1964 175' b&w Malayalam

d A. Vincent p T.K Pareekutty pc Chandrathara Prod. s Vaikom Mohammed Basheer

lyr P. Bhaskaran c P. Bhaskar Rao m Baburaj lp Prem Nazir, Madhu, Vijayanirmala, P.J. Anthony, Pappu, Kothamangalam Ali, Baby Shanta, Malashanta, Parvati, Adoor Bhasi

Mystery story, and rare script by noted Malayalam novelist Basheer (whose diaries were later filmed by Adoor Gopalakrishnan, as Mathilukal, 1989). Set in a desolate mansion, it has a novelist (Madhu) who comes to stay and encounters the beautiful ghost Bhargavi (Vijayanirmala). He starts writing her story, a tragic tale about her love for a poet (Nazir) and her evil cousin (Anthony) who ruined the affair. As the novelist reads out the story to the ghost, the cousin turns up and tries to kill the novelist. They fall into a well but the ghost helps the hero out, leaving the villain to drown. Vincent's directorial debut, and the first ghost story in Malayalam, the film was noted for its elegiac camerawork adapting a highly symbolic script. It was also the first big role of future Telugu star and director Vijayanirmala.

Charulata

aka The Lonely Wife

1964 117' b&w Bengali

d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p R.D. Bansal pc R.D.B. st Rabindranath Tagore's Nastaneer (1901) c Subrata Mitra

lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Madhabi Mukherjee, Sailen Mukherjee, Shyamal Ghosal, Gitali Roy, Bholanath Koyal, Suku Mukherjee, Dilip Bose, Subrata Sen Sharma, Joydeb, Bankim Ghosh

Ray considered this film, structured like a musical rondo, to be his best work. Set in 1879 during the social reform movement in Calcutta, it tells of Charulata (M. Mukherjee), the bored and neglected upper-class wife of the reformer Bhupati Dutta (S. Mukherjee) who pursues a political career while editing a progressive English weekly newspaper, The Sentinel. He invites her older brother Umapada (Ghosal) and his wife Manda (Roy) to move in to provide company for Charulata. Bhupati's cousin, the literary-minded Amal (Chatterjee) also moves in. Charulata and Amal become increasingly intimate, but their acquaintance is abruptly terminated when Umapada embezzles money and disappears. Amal too leaves, guilty about Bhupati's increasing dependence on him, given his relationship with Charulata. The married couple try to reunite at the end, after she overcomes her loss and he overcomes his feeling of betrayal. The ending, which departs from Tagore's, freezes their gesture as they reach out to one another. From the opening, as Charulata observes a series of Bengali stereotypes with her opera-glasses through the shutters of her windows, the film boasts some of Ray's most cinematic sequences: the card game with an incantatory voice-over keeping score; Amal serenading Charulata with the famous Tagore song Ami chini-go-chini, and Charulata daydreaming in the garden. Except for the garden sequence, the film refers to the outside world only via the dialogue, with references to the novelist Bankimchandra, to Gladstone, Disraeli and the dominant political issues of the 1880s which preoccupy Bhupati. The freeze-frames at the end, showing the couple uniting again, were inspired by the ending of Truffaut's Les quatre cents coups (1959). The French New Wave apparently also influenced the extensive use of the tracking camera, sometimes across rooms (ironically Ray was to attack Mrinal Sen the following year, and New Indian Cinema directors in 1972, for being influenced by French cinema). Charulata also has the finest film work of several Ray regulars, including designer Bansi Chandragupta, cameraman Mitra and actors S. Chatterjee and Madhabi Mukherjee.

Chitral ekha

1964 ?' col Hindi

d Kidar Sharma pc Pushpa Pics s Rajinder Kumar Sharma lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c D.C. Mehta, A. Lateef m Roshan lp Ashok Kumar, Meena Kumari, Pradeep Kumar, Mehmood, Minoo Mumtaz, Zeb Rehman, Bela Bose, Achala Sachdev, Naseem, Neeta, Rehana, Shobhana

Sharma's opulent costume drama set in the Gupta period (4th C.) is a remake of his 1941 film. With Kumari in the title role of the court dancer, her romance with Samant Beejagupta leads to questions of infidelity, the futility of love and corrupt ascetics. The film contributed to Meena Kumari's image as the archetypal courtesan in costume spectacles (cf. Pakeezah, 1971), although its garish colours and costume design betray the degeneration of Sharma's work since his b&w romances.

Door Gagan Ki Chhaon Mein

1964 153' b&w Hindi

d/p/s/co-lyr/m Kishore Kumar pc Kishore Films co-lyr Shailendra dial Ramesh Pant c Aloke Dasgupta lp Kishore Kumar, Supriya Choudhury, Amit Ganguly, Raj Mehra, Sajjan, Shashikala, Nana Palsikar, Iftikhar, Leela Mishra, Harilal

The demobbed soldier Shankar (Kumar) returns to find his family perished in a fire and his infant son Ramu (Ganguly) struck dumb by the catastrophe. When he is attacked by the villainous Thakur's men, Shankar is rescued by Meera (Choudhury) and they fall in love, provoking further trouble from the Thakur whose son Jagga wants to marry Meera. For his directorial debut, the comedian Kishore Kumar cast himself in a tragic role (his own productions were never comedies). The film is remembered mainly for its classic song A chalke tujhe main le ke chalun written by the star for himself.

Priya Rajvansh (left) in Haqeeqat

Dosti

aka Friendship

1964 163' b&w Hindi

d Satyen Bose pc Rajshri Prod. sc Govind Moonis st Ban Bhatt lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Marshall Braganza m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Sushil Kumar, Sudhir Kumar, Nana Palsikar, Leela Chitnis, Abhi Bhattacharya, Baby Farida, Leela Mishra, Sanjay, Uma, Aziz

A crippled boy (Sushil Kumar) and a blind boy (Sudhir Kumar) become close friends in Calcutta and help each other to survive. They befriend a sick rich child (Farida). Famous for its numerous hit songs by Mohammed Rafi including Jaane vaalon zara mud ke dekho mujhe and Chahoonga main tujhe. The film is a remake of the Bengali Lalu Bhulu (1959).

platoon commander (Sahni) excoriating Mao's Little Red Book which a soldier spears with a bayonet; the commanding officer (Jayant) denouncing the Chinese to documentary footage of Zhou En-Lai landing in Delhi and being given a guard of honour; Kaifi Azmi's song Kar chale hum fida jaan-o-tan saathiyon (sung by Mohammed Rafi) cut to more documentary shots of Nehru addressing the troops and of the Republic Day parade. Shot on location on the Ladakh border, the film had one other song hit, the soldiers' qawali Ho ke majboor mujhe usne bulaya hoga (sung by Mohammed Rafi, Bhupendra, Talat Mahmood, Manna Day and a chorus).

popular 60s genre chronicling the breakdown of family relations within an urban upper class (cf. Mrinal Sen's Akash Kusum, 1965) and the ancestor of Basu Bhattacharya's 70s melodramas.

Haqeeqat

1964 184' b&w Hindi

d/s Chetan Anand pc Himalaya Films lyr Kaifi Azmi c Sadanand Sengupta m Madan Mohan lp Balraj Sahni, Dharmendra, Priya Rajvansh, Vijay Anand, Jayant, Indrani Mukherjee, Sanjay Khan, Chand Usmani, Achala Sachdev, Gulab, Sulochana, Sudhir Jagdev, Levy Aaron, Nasreen

A propaganda film dedicated to Nehru and trading on the resurgence of nationalist sentiment in the wake of the India-China war of 1962 which provides the film's setting. The war had led to a sobering awareness of India's military capability and contributed to major schisms about Nehruite notions of non-alignment while accelerating the split in the CPI between Moscow- and Beijing-aligned groups. Made by former Marxists Anand, Sahni et al., the film's main plot concerns a small platoon of Indian soldiers presumed dead but rescued by Kashmiri gypsies and by Capt. Bahadur Singh (Dharmendra) and his tribal girlfriend (Rajvansh) who die holding the Chinese at bay while their comrades retreat to safety. Rhetorical highlights including the

Jotugriha

1964 130' (118') b&w Bengali

d/sc Tapan Sinha pc Uttam Kumar Films p Uttam Kumar st Subodh Ghosh c Bimal Mukherjee m Ashish Khan lp Uttam Kumar, Arundhati Devi, Bikash Roy, Binota Roy, Anil Chatterjee, Kajal Gupta, Bankim Ghosh, Sailen Mukherjee, Geeta De, Smita Sinha, Biren Chatterjee

Marital melodrama often regarded as Sinha's best film. The upwardly mobile Satadal (Kumar), an officer in a government archaeology department, is estranged from his wife Madhuri (A. Devi) because she cannot bear children. They divorce, leaving him alone to complete their joint dream of building a house while she resumes her earlier career as a school teacher. The voice of middle-class normalcy in this cultural vacuum of the rootless elite is provided by Satadal's junior, Supriyo (A. Chatterjee). The earlier part of the film, shot on location in Calcutta in the monsoon, sets the pace for a slow, even tempo which Sinha manages to retain throughout, especially in the remarkable sequence when Satadal chances to meet his ex-wife in a railway waiting room and they spend a few hours talking before they part once more. One of the early films in the

Kadal ikka Neramil I ai

1964 159' col Tamil

d/p/co-sc C.V. Sridhar pc Chithrasala co-sc Gopu c A. Vincent lyr Kannadasan m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy lp Ravichandran, Kanchana, Muthuraman, Rajashri, T.S. Balaiah, Nagesh, Kumari Sachu, V.S. Raghavan

A very successful romantic comedy. The schoolteacher's son Ashok (Ravichandran) comes to Ooty to manage Vishwanathan's (Baliah) estate, but falls foul of the man's daughters Nimmi (Rajshri) and Kanchana (Kanchana), who get him sacked. Angry, Ashok pitches his tent in front of Vishwanathan's house and demands his job back. However, he falls in love with Nimmi and enlists the help of a rich friend, Mohan (Muthuraman), to fool Vishwanathan into agreeing to the wedding. Actually, Mohan is Kanchana's lover, and when the trickery is eventually discovered, all nevertheless ends happily.

Karnan/Karna/Daanveer Karna

1964 177' [Ta]/187' [Te] col Tamil/Telugu/Hindi

d/p B.R. Panthulu pc Padmini Pics sc A.S. Nagarajan dial Sakthi Krishnaswamy lyr Kannadasan c V. Ramamurthy m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy lp Sivaji Ganesan, N.T. Rama Rao, Savitri, Devika, M.V. Rajamma, Sandhya, Jawar Seetaraman, Ashokan, Muthuraman

The big-budget follow-up to Panthulu's multilingual Ganesan hit Veerapandiya

Kattaboman (1959) tells the tragic Mahabharata tale of Karnan (Ganesan), Kunti's (Rajamma) eldest son, known for his charitable nature and archery expertise. Although a brother of the Pandavas, he remains faithful to Duryodhana (Ashokan) who raised him and fights his kinfolk until Krishna (NTR) overcomes him. Savitri played Duryodhan's wife, Devika played Karnan's wife Shubhangi while Muthuraman played Arjuna. Shot with three camera units at Jaipur, the massive action scenes such as the Kurukshetra battle required the participation of the 61st Cavalry, 80 elephants and 400 horses. Tamil and Telugu stars Ganesan and NTR had worked together in K. Somu's hit mythological Sampoorna Ramayanam (1958). The film is also known for Kannadasan's remarkable condensation of the Bhagavad Geeta into a poem of seven stanzas, considered one of his most accomplished lyrics.

☞ Kashmir Ki Kali

1964 168' col Hindi
d/p Shakti Samanta pc Shakti Films s Ranjan Bose dial Ramesh Pant lyr S.H. Bihari c V.N. Reddy m O.P. Nayyar lp Shammi Kapoor, Sharmila Tagore, Pran, Anoop Kumar, Nasir Hussain, Sundar, Madan Puri, Padmadevi, Mridula, Tuntun, Bir Sakhuja, Robert, Padma Chavan, Sujata, Neeta, Samar Chatterjee, Aruna, Hamida

Taking its title from the hit song Kashmir ki kali hoon main sung by Lata Mangeshkar in Kapoor's successful Jungle (1961), this is an exotic comedy romance in colour deploying Shammi Kapoor's established persona as the rich youth who spurns his family's wealth and after some adventures falls in love with a woman not of his social class who cares little for his wealth. Rajib (Kapoor), constantly criticised by his mother for crazy decisions (e.g. announcing an award of Rs 500,000 to the family's mill employees), leaves when there is talk of arranging a marriage for him and goes to Kashmir where he falls in love with a flower-girl (Tagore). Rajib lives in his family's bungalow, sneakily rented out by the caretaker, and is regarded as weak in the head. Kapoor had put on some weight and his physical gyrations are less elegant than they were in his b&w Nasir Hussain films, but the influence of rock music, the exotic locales and the emphasis on upper-class youth culture continues from his previous films. The film includes several Mohammed Rafi hits in the Kapoor style (Kisi na kisise, Yeh chand sa roshan chehra).

☞ Kohraa

1964 153' b&w Hindi
d/sc Biren Nag pc Geetanjali Pics st R. Sawant dial/lyr Kaifi Azmi c Marshall Braganza p/m Hemant Kumar [Hemanta Mukherjee] lp Waheeda Rehman, Biswajeet, Manmohan Krishna, Abhi Bhattacharya, Badri Prasad, Madan Puri, Tarun Bose, Chand Usmani, Asit Sen, Samar Roy, Dev Kishen

The former art director Nag (e.g. for Navketan films) tells a ghost story about Rajashree (Rehman), a new bride who arrives at an ancestral mansion to find that it is pervaded by the spirit of her husband Amit's first wife, Poonam. Known for its classic songs such as Lata Mangeshkar's Jhoom jhoom dhalti raat.

☞ Mahapurush

aka The Holy Man
 1964 65' b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p R.D. Bansal pc R.D.B. st Rajasekhar Bose's [aka Parashuram] Birinchi Baba c Soumendu Roy lp Charuprakash Ghosh, Robi Ghosh, Prasad Mukherjee, Gitali Roy, Satindra Bhattacharya, Soumyen Bose, Santosh Dutta, Renuka Roy

First of two short films often shown as Kapurush-o-Mahapurush. Returning to the farces of Parashuram (cf. Parash Pathar, 1957) and to the comedy team of Abhijaan (1962), Charuprakash and Robi Ghosh. The widower Gurupada Mitter (Mukherjee) becomes the disciple of the yogic godman Birinchi Baba (C. Ghosh), followed by his daughter Buchki (G. Roy). Satya (Bhattacharya) and members of an informal club unmask the godman as a fraud. This broadly played, verbose comedy is full of puns, often in English, as the godman claims to have been present in ancient Babylon, argued with Plato and taught Einstein the relativity theory, claiming that the crucifixion of Christ was crucifact because he saw it with his own eyes. The film evokes the popular 50s/60s Calcutta fashion of groups meeting in coffee-houses to swap stories and argue about politics.

☞ Maratha Tituka Melavava

1964 137' b&w Marathi
d/s Bhalji Pendharkar pc Avinash Films, Jai Bhawani Chitra lyr Sanjeev, Shanta Shelke c Arvind Laad m Anandadhan (Lata Mangeshkar) lp Alhaad, Sulochana, Jeevankala, Chandrakant Gokhale, Jaishankar, Kashinath Ghanekar, Rajshekhar, Bhimrao, Barchi Bahadur, Govind, Arun Naik, Latkar

Stylised and wordy historical recreating Pendharkar's favourite subject, the career of the Maratha king Shivaji. This film features the early career of the king (Alhaad) in a Maharashtra riven with internal dissent and threatened by the Adil Shahi sultans. Under the tutelage of his mother, Jijabai (Sulochana), Shivaji overcomes various threats from the Deshmukh, Bandal and Khopde families to found his empire. Pendharkar reveals yet again his penchant for rousing dialogue and his limitations in the action sequences, the biggest scenes in the film being mainly in the epilogue as all of Maharashtra celebrates Shivaji's rise to power. It includes some all-time song hits in Marathi including Akhercha ha tula dandavata (sung by Lata Mangeshkar) and Shoor aamhi sardar (sung by Hridaynath Mangeshkar) in the powada form.

☞ Murali Krishna

1964 169' b&w Telugu
d P. Pullaiah pc Padmasri Pics
p V. Venkateswarulu st P. Radha s/co-lyr Acharya Athreya co-lyr Dasarathi, C. Narayana Reddy c Madhav Bulbulu
m Master Venu
lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Jamuna, S.V. Ranga Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Haranath, Geetanjali, Sharada, Suryakantam, L. Vijayalakshmi, Ramana Reddy

A comedy of mistaken (gender) identity in which the bluff, retired military man (Ranga Rao) raises his daughter Murali (Jamuna) as though she were a son. She loves and is to marry Krishna (Nageshwara Rao) when a painter, Lakshmikantam (Haranath), appears. Murali had written letters of appreciation believing him to be a woman. When Lakshmikantam wants to marry Murali, she persuades her friend Srilatha (Sharada) to pretend to be Murali, a subterfuge that works until the painter turns out to be a friend of Murali's fiance.

☞ Nandi

1964 162' b&w Kannada
d/st/sc N. Lakshminarayan pc Shri Bharati Chitra p Vadiraj, Jawahar dial/lyr R.N. Jayagopal c R.N.K. Prasad
m Vijayabhaskar
lp Rajkumar, Harini, Kalpana, Balkrishna, Udaya Kumar, Soorat Ashwath, Ganapati Bhatt, Hanumanthachar, Jayashree, Rama, Shanthamma, Baby Suma, Baby Anita

Melodrama about deaf-mute people. Murthy's (Rajkumar) wife (Kalpana) dies in childbirth, and when his son becomes deaf and mute, Murthy marries a deaf-mute (Harini), learns to lip-read and starts a school for the handicapped. When his son dies, his wife joins him in running the school. Eventually, the wife delivers a normal baby. The debut of Kannada cinema's first self-proclaimed successor to Satyajit Ray, the hit film established Kalpana as a Kannada star.

☞ Pathl aag

1964 123' b&w Marathi
d Raja Paranjpe pc Shripad Chitra st Jayant Devkule's novel Asha Parat Yete sc/dial/lyr G.D. Madgulkar c Datta Gorle
m Datta Davjekar
lp Bhavana, Kashinath Ghanekar, Ishwar Agarwal, Vasant Thengadi, Ganpat Patil, Raja Nene

Hit suspense thriller introducing the future Marathi stage and film stars Bhavana and Ghanekar. When the noted lawyer Balasaheb Panse (Ghanekar) goes abroad, he receives a telegram informing him of the sudden death of his wife Asha (Bhavana). After she has been cremated and he is still in mourning, a woman arrested as a member of a criminal gang by the police claims to be Asha, whom she resembles absolutely (Bhavana again). She keeps telling Panse intimate details about their lives, expresses surprise that anyone could have thought her dead and implores him to have her released, causing a major emotional dilemma for the hero. Eventually, in an unconvincing end that deflates the suspense, the second woman is revealed as indeed his wife, while the woman who died was her hitherto unmentioned twin sister. An early success by composer Davjekar, the film also included the hit song Ya dolyachi don pakhare. The film was remade as Mera Saaya (1966) by Raj Khosla.

and her brother (Pran) who plot to overthrow him. The prince tries to foil the villains by pretending to be eccentric. He also falls in love with a tribal princess (Sadhana) with a predilection for singing complicated love songs while standing e.g. at the edge of a giant waterfall. Hit numbers include Aaja aai bahar dil hai bekaraar (sung by Lata Mangeshkar) and the title refrain Aage peeche zara hoshiyar yahan ke hum hain Rajkumar (sung by Mohammed Rafi).

this rags-to-riches story set in the film industry. Sundaram (Nagesh, introducing the tragic 'common-man' hero to Tamil film with this fictional autobiography) is an inept waiter in a coffee-shop who falls for rich girl Radha (Vijaya). Through his friend Raghavan (Muthuraman) he gets a break in movies and becomes a star, only to see his beloved become his friend's fiancée. Nagesh, at the peak of his career as the 'server', evokes Chaplin and accentuates the sentimentality in the Tamil cinema's standard mother-son scenes. Balachander provides witty, fast-paced dialogues and the comedy sequences are integrated into the main narrative, giving the film a modern feeling, confirmed by the scenes showing film production and song recording. The original play, staged by Ragini Recreations and featuring Nagesh was very popular, and the film established this now-veteran actor in his first star role. Also released in a (probably dubbed) Telugu version. The directors remade the film in Hindi as Main Sundar Hoon (1971) with Mehmood.

☞ Poojaphalam

1964 156' b&w Telugu
d B.N. Reddi pc Shri Sambhu Films st Muniapalle Raju's novel Pujari sc/dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry, C. Narayana Reddy, Kosaraju c U. Rajagopal m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Ramana Reddy, Savitri, Jamuna, Vijayalakshmi, Rajashree, K. Jaggaiah

Love story about the shy and sensitive Madhu (Nageshwara Rao), a lover of music, who meets and has affairs with three women, each making a radically different kind of sexual proposition. The first, Vasanthi (Jamuna), represents romantic love leading to several musical compositions in her praise; the second, Seeta (Savitri), is the devoted partner who restores his emotional health when Vasanthi leaves, and the third, Neelanagini (Vijayalakshmi), is the seductive courtesan from a family of entertainers. Eventually Madhu selects Seeta. The performances of the leading duo were praised in the popular press, esp. Nageshwara Rao's as the lovesick poet, continuing his Devadasu (1953) image. The music includes work of the celebrated violinist Paravur Gopalakrishnan.

☞ Rajkumar

1964 178' col Hindi
d K. Shankar pc Saravana Films st Manmohan Desai sc Ramanand Sagar lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c G. Singh m Shankar-Jaikishen lp Shammi Kapoor, Sadhana, Prithviraj Kapoor, Om Prakash, Pran, Master Babloo, Ravi Shivdasani, Achala Sachdev, Rajendranath, Manorama

Made in Madras and written by the star combination of Manmohan Desai and Ramanand Sagar, this is one of India's few successful parodies. It satirises the historical/costumed adventure fantasy, practised in Madras by e.g. the influential fictions generated at Modern Theatres. The king (P. Kapoor) awaits the return of the prince (S. Kapoor) in a direct quote from his role at the beginning of the classic Mughal-e-Azam (1960), but on his arrival from Paris in a two-seater plane the son greets the welcoming committee sent by his father with 'bonsoir'. A major palace intrigue involves the king's second wife (Manorama)

☞ Sangam

aka The Confluence
 1964 238' col Hindi
d/p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films s Inder Raj Anand lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri c Radhu Karmakar m Shankar-Jaikishen lp Raj Kapoor, Vijayanthimala, Rajendra Kumar, Lalita Pawar, Achala Sachdev, Iftikhar, Nana Palsikar, Raj Mehra

Kapoor's first colour film is presented as a glossy love triangle but can equally well be seen, along with many Indian triangle dramas, as a romance between two men interrupted by a woman. Sunder (Kapoor) is from a lower class than his childhood friends Gopal (Kumar) and Radha (Vijayanthimala). Although both men, bosom pals, are in love with Radha, Sunder ignores the fact that he and Gopal share the same object of desire. When Sunder finally wins and marries Radha by joining the air force and becoming a national hero, Gopal puts male bonding and his passion for his friend above his attachment to Radha and withdraws. However, Sunder is obsessed by thoughts of Radha's possible infidelity. In the end, Gopal reassures Sunder of Radha's fidelity and then commits suicide. The film includes a plea by Radha for fairer treatment of women but the logic of the story demonstrates that the most valuable relationship a man can have is with another man. Mahesh Bhatt (1993) commented that the hit song Bol radha bol, sangam ho ga ke nahin, sung by Mukesh, 'triggers off memories of a beautiful woman in a picturesque setting dressed in a swimsuit (while) Raj Kapoor, clad in shorts, hangs from a tree with a bagpipe under one arm and begs his beloved Radha for an orgasmic release'. Another hit was Ye mera prem patra, sung by Rafi. One of the early films to use locations in Europe as exotic backdrops as Sunder and Radha honeymoon in snowy Switzerland and 'decadent' Paris, where, to the song Main kya karoon ram mujhe buddha mil gaya, Radha behaves like a prostitute to taunt her husband's virility.

☞ Server Sundaram

1964 165' b&w Tamil/Telugu
d Krishnan-Panju pc Guhan Films sc K. Balachander from his play c S. Maruthi Rao lyr Kannadasan m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy lp Nagesh, Muthuraman, Major Sundarajan, K.R. Vijaya, S.N. Lakshmi

One of the future director Balachander's plays with an urban middle-class setting is used in ☞ Vivahabandham

1964 166' b&w Telugu
d P.S. Ramakrishna Rao pc Bharani Pics
st Ravoori sc Atluri Picheshwara Rao lyr C. Narayana Reddy c Annayya
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp N.T. Rama Rao, P. Bhanumathi, Chittor V. Nagaiah, Suryakantam, Hemalatha, Padmanabhan, Prabhakara Reddi, Vasanthi, Balaiah

Telugu remake of Ajoy Kar's Suchitra Sen hit Saat Pake Bandha (1963), substantially diluting both the performance and plot of the original. Idealists Bharati (Bhanumathi) and Chandrasekhar (NTR) get married against the wishes of Bharati's mother who wants a richer son-in-law. Chandrasekhar refuses to meet Bharati's parents and later Bharati falls out of favour with Chandrasekhar's stepmother. The couple decide to divorce before things work out in the end. The film reunited the successful team of Bhanumathi and NTR at the Bharani Studio. Bhanumathi's only duet with P.B. Srinivas, Neetilona, was appreciated.

☞ Woh Kaun Thi

aka Who Was She?
 1964 140' b&w Hindi
d Raj Khosla p N.N. Sippy pc Prithvi Pics s Dhruva Chatterjee dial Ehsan Rizvi lyr Mehdi Ali Khan c K.H. Kapadia m Madan Mohan
lp Sadhana, Manoj Kumar, Pravin Choudhury, K.N. Singh, Raj Mehra, Dhuma, Mohan Choti, Ratnamala, Helen, Prem Chopra

A rare big-budget excursion into the thriller genre, the story concerns a young doctor, Anand (Kumar), obsessed by a woman (Sadhana) who appears to him with different names and in different guises, making him doubt his senses. Like Vertigo (1958), the story evokes the supernatural and madness but eventually the hero unravels the plot. The villain of the piece is Anand's friend Dr Ramesh (Chopra) who concocts the plot to drive Anand insane in order to get hold of an inheritance. The enigmatic, sexually repressed figure played by Sadhana ranges from a ghostlike apparition to Anand's future wife (with a seduction scene where she momentarily turns 'human' to the song Lag jaa gale). In spite of the often woefully inadequate soundtrack and the fact that the suspense hinges mainly on the repeated use of the song Naina barse rimjhim (sung by Lata Mangeshkar), it remains one of director Khosla's favourites. The film was remade in Tamil as Yar Nee by Sathyam (1966).

Manoj Kumar and Sadhana in Woh Kaun Thi

he takes this opportunity to accuse her in order to justify himself before committing suicide, hanging himself with her wedding sari. A depressingly uninhibited demonstration of male infantilism and neurosis, the film adopts a naturalist acting idiom played against props such as Mario Miranda cartoon characters animated in the background or balloons representing people whenever the presence of other characters is required. The film's most interesting moment comes when Dutt is attacked by a bunch of toys berating him for his lack of concern for his family. The only living presence other than Dutt occurs at the end when Nargis, playing Priya, is shown in silhouette.

Yaadein

aka Only the Lonely
1964 113' b&w Hindi
d Sunil Dutt pc Ajanta Arts st Nargis Dutt sc Omkar Sahib dial Akhtar-ul-Iman lyr Anand Bakshi c Ramchandra m Vasant Desai
lp Sunil Dutt, Nargis

Sunil Dutt's directorial debut was a bizarre 'One actor movie monument' according to the opening credit. Anil (Dutt), a successful businessman, returns to his palatial home to find his wife Priya and their two sons are out. This sets off an extraordinary two-hour soliloquy, shot entirely in the flat, describing the days when he first met his wife, how they got married, when they had their two children, the children's first birthdays, their misunderstandings, his meeting of a new girlfriend, Salma, his nights when they fought, when they made love, and so on. We gather that his wife had many reasons for leaving and

Aasmaan Mahal

1965 172' b&w Hindi
d K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar s Inder Raj Anand c Ramchandra m J.P. Kaushik lp Prithviraj Kapoor, Dilip Raj, Surekha Parkar, Nana Palsikar, Mridula, David, Anwar Hussain, Madhukar, Irshad Panjatan, Rashid Khan

Shot on location in a dilapidated mansion, Abbas's film suggests that the old feudal order must be allowed to fade away with dignity while its descendants must take their cue from 'the people' rather than from entrepreneurs. An old nawab, Aasmaan (Kapoor), refuses the wealth offered by capitalists who want to turn his palace into a hotel. His dissolute playboy son Salim (Roy) is ultimately reformed by a virtuous young woman, Salma (Parkar).

Akash Kusum

aka Up in the Clouds
1965 115' (110') b&w Bengali
d/co-sc Mrinal Sen pc Purbachal Film st/co-sc Ashish Burman c Sailaja Chatterjee
m Sudhin Dasgupta lp Aparna Das Gupta (aka Aparna Sen), Soumitra Chatterjee, Subhendu Chatterjee, Haradhan Bannerjee, Sova Sen, Sati Devi, Prafullabala Devi, Gyanesh Mukherjee

After seeing Truffaut's Les quatre cents coups (1959) and Jules et Jim (1961) early in 1965, Sen felt inspired to make this bitter-sweet romance set in Calcutta. The lower-middle-class Ajay Sarkar (Soumitra Chatterjee) finds himself having to pretend to be a successful businessman in order to win the hand of Monica (Sen), the daughter of an affluent family. In the end he is exposed as a con man, his own business dealings go wrong and the romance comes to grief. Sen later said that he wanted a film that would 'physically look youthful', scripting in his street scenes, extensive use of still frames, voiceovers, and emphasis on unrehearsed sound effects. It sparked a major debate in the press between Burman, Sen, Satyajit Ray and others about notions of topicality, with Ray arguing that despite the 'modish narrative devices and [s]ome lively details of city life', and despite the film-makers' belief 'that they have made an angry film about struggling youth assailing the bastion of class', the hero's behaviour in fact 'dates back to antiquity' (cf. Sen, 1977). Ray later continued his tirade against what he thought was the French cinema-inspired 'new wave' of the 70s (cf. New Indian Cinema).

And Mil es To Go...

1965 14' b&w English
d/p S. Sukhdev c K. Vaikunth, K. Ghanekar
m Vasant Desai

Sukhdev's first major propaganda film 'dedicated to all the forces of rationalist thought that are opposed to the path of violence'. After a parallel montage of stereotypical rich/poor oppositions, the camera cuts to the face of the film-maker looking angry. After some shots of street violence in negative images, a voice declaims 'The people speak with the voice of history'. After some fast cuts of a police blockade and sounds of gunfire comes the film's message calling for rational thought: the real enemy is greed and corruption, not the State.

Ayirathil Oruvan

1965 174' col Tamil
d B.R. Panthulu p Padmini Pics.
sc K.J. Mahadevan dial/co-lyr R.K. Shanmugham c V. Ramamurthy co-lyr Vali, Kannadasan
m Vishwanathan-Ramamurthy
lp M.G. Ramachandran, Jayalalitha, R.S. Manohar, M.N. Nambiar, Madhavi, L. Vijayalakshmi, Ramarao, Nagesh

The heroic doctor Manimaran (MGR) helps some wounded rebels against the dictator of Naithal Nadu, Chengappan (Manohar), who accuses the doctor of leading the rebellion and puts him in jail. The tyrant's daughter, Poonkodi (Jayalalitha), falls in love with the good doctor, who is totally preoccupied with the struggle to liberate his motherland. When a pirate ship attacks the town, the tyrant enlists the help of the rebels, promising them freedom but breaks that promise as soon as victory has been secured. The rebels then escape and join up with the pirate leader (Nambiar), Manimaran becoming his second in command. But the good doctor sends all the loot allotted to him to the village folk in his motherland to help them fight Chengappan. When Poonkodi falls into the pirates' hands, Manimaran has to protect her from his colleagues' concupiscence and he kills the pirate captain in a duel, his rebel comrades overpowering the rest. They all return home and defeat Chengappan in a sea battle. The film's rebel tune 'Ado andha paravai pole paada vendum' ('We should sing like free birds') became a popular freedom song.

✪ Bangaru Panjar am

1965 168' b&w Telugu

d B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini s Palagummi Padmaraju lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry, Sri Sri c B.N. Konda Reddy, C.A.S. Mani, Madhav Bulbule m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao, B. Gopalam lp Shobhan Babu, Vanisree, Geetanjali, Sriranjani Jr, Ravi Kondala Rao, Pushpavalli

Marital melodrama. Hero Venu (S. Babu) marries the poor Neela (Vanisree) despite his crooked employer Rangaiah who tries to prevent the marriage. Venu's uncle Ramakoti and Ramakoti's daughter Padma, who loves Venu, plant the maid Mangamma in Venu's house. Mangamma spreads rumours that lead to marital discord and Neela is forced to leave home. She is in a train accident and her husband believes her to be dead although she finds shelter in the house of a doctor. When Venu falls ill he is taken to that very doctor and husband and wife are reconciled. Reddi's and the old Vauhini production unit's last film was not a commercial success though it included some popular music such as S. Janaki's Pagalai the doravera.

✪ Chemmeen

aka Wrath of the Sea, aka The Shrimp

1965 140'(120') col Malayalam

d Ramu Kariat p Babu Ismail pc Kanmani Films s Thakazhy Shivashankar Pillai from his novel dial S.L. Puram Sadanandan lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Marcus Bartley, U. Rajagopal m Salil Choudhury lp Sathyam, Sheela, Madhu, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, S.P. Pillai, Adoor Bhawani, Adoor Pankajam, Lata, Kottayam Chellappan, Rajakumari, J.A.R. Anand, Paravoor Bharathan, Kothamangalam Ali, Philomena

Melodrama that put Malayalam cinema on the map. Chambankunju (Nair) manages to prosper as a fisherman thanks to his daughter Karuthamma (Sheela) and to the man she loves, the Muslim trader Pareekutty (Madhu).

In order to obey tradition, she cannot marry the trader and so she becomes the wife of the remote stranger Palani (Sathyam). Although Palani accepts that she never slept with the trader, the village does not believe it and Palani is censured. One day Karuthamma meets her old boyfriend again and they make love, even as Palani, out battling a shark on the high seas, dies in a whirlpool that is attributed to Kadalamma, the goddess of the sea, exacting vengeance for an infringement of prevailing chastity codes. The film ends with the dead shark lying on the beach. Known mainly for the remarkable performances of its entire lead cast (notably Sathyam), the film was made as a sprawling epic matching the scale of one of Malayalam literature's most famous novels. The editing, done by Hrishikesh Mukherjee virtually as a salvation job for a production that had apparently got out of hand, is extremely tight, but the film still retains the frontier realism of a fishing community battling the forces of nature, myth and uncontrolled emotion as dictated by the script. Novelist Pillai's highly mystical end in the book, as Palani battles the shark while his wife betrays him, nevertheless remains too complex for predominantly realist melodrama. Composer Salil Choudhury's Malayalam debut was remarkably successful, and both songs and background score are integral to the scale of the drama.

✪ CID

1965 172' b&w Telugu

d Tapi Chanakya pc Vijaya co-p B. Nagi Reddy co-p/sc Chakrapani dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr Pingali Nagendra Rao c Madhav Bulbule m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Jamuna, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Pandharibai, Ramana Reddy, Meena Kumari, Mikkilineni, Rajanala

The gambler Chalpathi (Gummadi) is presumed dead by the police when they find a corpse wearing his clothes on a railway track. His wife and son are supported by Ramadasu (Mikkilineni) and the son grows up to become a policeman (NTR). Chalpathi, who is not dead, has become the leader of a gang of thieves and becomes the prey of his own son. The film was considered a major let-down from Telugu cinema's most high-profile banner.

✪ Daham

aka Thirst

1965 130' b&w Malayalam

d/sc K.S. Sethumadhavan p M.P. Anand, P. Rangaraj pc Thirumugham Pics dial Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, B.K. Pottakkad lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c P. Ramaswamy m P. Devarajan lp Sathyam, Sheela, K.P. Oomer, Bahadur, Sreenarayana Pillai, B.K. Pottakkad, Vijayan, Murali, M.M. Babu, Kunjan, Pratap Chandran, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Indira, Parvati

This melodrama, made in 21 days at the Venus Studio, tells of the redemption of Jayarajan, who killed his young wife and her lover in a fit of jealousy and is sent to jail. Transferred to a hospital for an operation, the convict's humanity is rekindled by a kind widow and her son who turn out to be the family of the man Jayarajan killed. However, the hero dies and the script does not allow a new nuclear family to be formed at the end of the film.

✪ Enga Veetu Penn

1965 177' col Tamil

d Tapi Chanakya pc Vijaya sc Chakrapani dial S. Ayyapillai lyr Kannadasan, Alangudi Somu c Marcus Bartley m K.V. Mahadevan lp M.R. Radha, S.V. Subbaiah, A.V.M. Rajan, Jaishankar, K.A. Thangavelu, Nagesh, Chittor V. Nagaiah, O.A.K. Thevar, Nirmala (aka Vijayanirmala), Vasantha, Manorama, Madhavi

Tamil remake of the Vijaya unit's own Telugu film Shavukaru (1950), modernising the tale of two warring groups in an Andhra village, with e.g. more urban references. M.R. Radha played G. Subbarao's role of the moneylender. Remembered mainly for the star entry of Nirmala, who changed her name to Vijayanirmala with this film in tribute to the studio.

✪ Guide

1965 183'(120') col Hindi

d/sc Vijay Anand pc Navketan st R.K. Narayan's novel (1958) lyr Shailendra
c Fali Mistry m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Waheeda Rehman, Leela Chitnis, Kishore Sahu, Anwar Hussain, Ulhas, Gajanan Jagirdar, Rashid Khan

Adapted from a classic novel written in English, the plot is structured around two processes of transformation. Rosie (Rehman) who belongs to a family of courtesans, is seduced away from her tyrannical archaeologist husband Marco (Sahu) by the brash tourist guide Raju (Anand). Raju helps her to realise her dream of becoming a successful dancer, realising his own ambition to become wealthy at the same time. Their life together is ended when he is jailed for forging Rosie's signature on a cheque. Released from jail, he becomes a drifter and is mistaken for a holy man. Raju uses his newfound respectability to provide a school, a hospital and other facilities for the villagers. Forced to demonstrate his messianic status when there is a drought, he manages to fast for 12 days and the rain comes, confirming his holy status in the eyes of the villagers (and of the audience) as he dies of starvation. The film can be seen as a regressive comment on 'national culture' e.g. the shift from colonial tourism to capitalist enterprise to religious faith, from mass cultural commodification and spectacle to pre-colonial naivety and ritual. There is also a discourse about stardom: starting out as a man of the people, the hero transgresses conventional moral codes and fulfils his dream of wealth, then finds this unsatisfying and, having been freed from material possessions (and women), he ends up fulfilling others' wishes and finds apotheosis as a god in death. The film's quasi-expressionist, garish use of colour and of calendar art sets provides its own comment on notions of national popular culture, highlighted in the sequence when Raju changes from a fast-talking tourist guide to a saintly figure through dissolves awash with blue and yellow light spots and in the rhythmic cutting of the song He ram hamare ramachandra. Disowned by the novelist Narayan, the film has been attacked mainly for its thematic deviations, esp. the transformation of Rosie: in the novel she is a devadasi (temple dancers and prostitutes liberated by a reformist political movement leading to the Devadasi Bill in 1927 in Madras), a condition defended by orthodox historians for having preserved the South Indian classical Bharat Natyam dance tradition. Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak's essay 'Once Again a Leap into the Postcolonial Banal' (1990) addresses the irony of a novel, written originally in English and critical of that orthodoxy, itself being assimilated by the orthodox literary establishment in order to attack the film. She suggests a different version of colonial historical continuity than the one dominated by ideas of (literary, historical) authenticity. The film was a musical success with major hits such as Gaata rahe mera dil and Aaj phir jeene ki tamanana hai. A substantially altered 120' English version (co-sc Pearl S. Buck p/d/co-sc Tad Danielewski) was released in the USA in 1965. It introduced new characters and much enlarged the role of e.g. a bitchy US television reporter played by Sheila Burghart. It also added new scenes (including a sequence in the US Embassy in Delhi). Although the Indian version has Pathe colour, the US version has US-processed Eastmancolor.

☒ Kapurush

aka The Coward
1965 74' b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p R.D. Bansal pc R.D.B. st Premendra Mitra's Janaiko Kapuruser Kahini c Soumendu Roy lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Madhabi Mukherjee, Haradhan Bannerjee

Ray's morality play, usually shown with Mahapurush (1964), continues his ensemble play format. Both films were dubbed in Hindi and commercially released. Movie writer Amitabha Roy (Chatterjee) finds shelter with a tea magnate (Bannerjee) in Darjeeling when his car breaks down. He finds that the magnate is married to his former lover Karuna (Mukherjee). The film intercuts the banal conversation of the long evening and a picnic the next day with flashbacks showing how Roy had once betrayed Karuna. He offers, in a hurriedly written note, to marry her if she wishes to leave her husband. She turns him down, arriving at their rendezvous simply to recover a bottle of sleeping pills. Critic Chidananda Das Gupta saw the film as a sequel to Charulata (1964), replaying the man's inability to defy social norms.

☒ Kavya Mel a

1965 138' b&w Malayalam
d M. Krishnan Nair p T.E. Vasudevan pc Jayamaruthi Prod. st A.K.V. sc S.L. Puram Sadanandan lyr Vyalara Rama Varma c C.J. Mohan m V. Dakshinamurthy lp Prem Nazir, Sheela, Adoor Bhasi, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, Nellikode Bhaskaran, S.P. Pillai, Murali, Ramesh, Nilambur Aisha

Tear-jerking Malayalam adaptation of Guru Dutt's Pyasa (1957) and one of Prem Nazir's classic tragic lover performances. He plays Jayadevan, a blind poet, who is starved of the love of his family by a cruel sister-in-law. He strikes up a relationship with Shridevi (Sheela) whose doctor father restores his eyesight but forbids a marriage. His best friend steals Jayadevan's poetry and publishes it in his own name, thus becoming rich and famous while the original author suffers in a cruel world. In the end, when Jayadevan is recognised as the writer and offered a major award, he rejects the honour.

☒ Kel a Ishara Jata Jata

1965 157' b&w Marathi
d Anant Mane pc Chetana Chitra s Shankar Patil lyr Jagdish Khebudkar c Vasant Shinde m Ram Kadam lp Leela Gandhi, Arun Sarnaik, Usha Chavan, Barchi Bahadur, Ganpat Patil, Aminabai, Kamal Begadkar, Kamal Dunbale, Maya Jadhav, Kausalya Jadhav, Rajan Salvi

Marathi Tamasha musical by its best-known exponent, Mane (Sangtye Aika, 1959). It is a story about two dancing-girls, the sisters Bakul and Shevanti, who are given a break by drummer Ganpat (Sarnaik). Both sisters fall in love with their benefactor, which causes a split in the theatre group. Shevanti joins the rival Tamasha faction led by Sonbai, sharpening the already fierce competition between the two groups. Much of the film consists of Tamasha numbers, culminating in the long Sawal-Jawab (question and answer) contest where Bakul defeats Sonbai and then her own sister to claim her man.

☒ Mal aj anha

aka The Dead Moon
1965 164' b&w Oriya
d/sc Nitai Palit pc Raja Saheb of Ali st Upendra Kishore Dash's novel dial Govind Senapati, Bhim Singh lyr Kabisurya Baladev Rath c Dinen Gupta m Akshay Mohanty lp Jharana Das, Manimala, Geeta, Akshay Kumar, Sarat Poojary, Pira, Bhima, Purna Singh

Epic melodrama often presented as Oriya cinema's coming of age. The sensitive Sati (Das) is forced to marry an old man but refuses to consummate the marriage. She is thrown out of the house when she takes shelter with Nath (Kumar) after a storm. Her parents die in a cholera epidemic and Nath takes her to the city where they live together, fighting unemployment and poverty. On their return to the village they are shunned and, unable to bear further humiliations, Sati drowns herself (in an understated dawn sequence simply showing her footsteps leading to the river). A long, slow-moving film renowned for Bengali cinematographer (later director) Gupta's sensitive camerawork, for the famous Kabisurya Baladev Rath's pastoral lyrics and for being probably the first Oriya film to pay attention to its soundtrack (notwithstanding the overuse of flute and sitar). However, the main plaudits go to Jharana Das's remarkable performance which showed the oppression of women in traditional Oriya society without glorifying suffering womanhood.

☒ Mur appennu

aka Bride by Right aka The Betrothed One
1965 176' b&w Malayalam
d A. Vincent p K. Parameshwaran Nair pc Roopavani s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr P. Bhaskaran c A. Venkat
m B.A. Chidambaranath
lp Prem Nazir, Madhu, P.J. Anthony, K.P. Omer, S.P. Pillai, Adoor Bhasi, Jyothilakshmi, Sharada, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Shanta Devi, Bharati Menon, Kalliamma

A relentless joint family melodrama about the social impotence of righteous people. Balan (Nazir) is mercilessly exploited and defrauded by his uncle (Anthony), his cousin and his own brother, even as he dutifully looks after his mother and teenage sister. He sacrifices his own love for Bhagi (Sharada), the daughter of his uncle, so that a complicated (but not unusual) arrangement with the evil uncle can result in Bhagi marrying the hero's younger brother, in return for a marriage between his sister and the uncle's son. However, the uncle's son betrays Balan's sister at the last minute. Balan, forced to borrow money for a dowry, is too late to prevent his sister from committing suicide. The end leaves him an utterly defeated man. This was one of novelist Vasudevan Nair's first major scripts, adapting to the cinema his well-known literary format of the hero caught in a vicious but declining feudal system. It was also the debut of his long-term association with director Vincent, creating a distinct brand of melodrama as social critique in Malayalam.

☒ Odeyil Ninnu

aka From The Gutter
1965 175' b&w Malayalam
d K.S. Sethumadhavan p/c P. Ramaswamy pc Swami Thirumugham Pics s P. Kesavadev lyr Vyalara Rama Varma m P. Devarajan lp Sathyan, K.R. Vijaya, Prem Nazir, Adoor Bhasi, S.P. Pillai, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Adoor Pankajam, Kottayam Chellappan, Baby Padmini

The rickshaw man Pappu (Sathyan) adopts the baby girl Lakshmi (Baby Padmini/Vijaya) having rescued her, as the title suggests, from the 'gutter'. Having dropped out of school and earlier worked as a railway porter, he now works hard to provide Lakshmi with an education and with all her needs. She marries a rich man, Gopi (Nazir), which does not, contrary to expectations, signify the end of her foster-father's struggles, for now she is ashamed of her humble origins. In the end, after Pappu has declined her offer to live in her new home, her husband censures her, and she is punished by fate for her ingratitude when Pappu falls terminally ill. The 'punishment' is further heightened by forcing on the woman the guilt of a barely-concealed incest relationship since she insists on seeing Pappu as a parental figure. Sethumadhavan's first critically acclaimed film featured a rare contribution by noted Malayalam novelist Kesavadev, integrated into Bimal Roy-type realist melodrama. The film was remade in Tamil as Babu (1971).

🌀 Oonche Log

1965 144' b&w Hindi

d/sc Phani Majumdar pc Chitrakala (Madras) st K. Balachander's play Major Chandrakant dial Arjun Dev Rashk lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Kamal Ghosh m Chitragupta lp Ashok Kumar, Raaj Kumar, Feroz Khan, Kanhaiyalal, Tarun Bose, K.R. Vijaya

Melodrama about an upright father, the blind Major Chandrakant (A. Kumar), with a good son, the policeman Srikanth (R. Kumar), and the other son the dissolute playboy Rajnikant (Khan). Rajnikant impregnates and then abandons a woman who commits suicide as a result. The woman's brother Mohan (Bose) kills Rajnikant and wants to hide from the pursuing policeman, Srikanth. He is sheltered by the sympathetic major. The melodramatic pivot contrasts the father's revulsion for his son's murderer with his even greater revulsion at his son's callous philandering. Srikanth has to arrest his own father for having sheltered a killer. One of the more successful adaptations of a play to the screen, the film is shot like a thriller, using emphatic 'suspense' music to bridge the extended 'realistic' longueurs. Made at the Vijaya-Vauhini Studios in Madras, it adapted K. Balachander's best-known play, filmed by Balachander himself (Major Chandrakant) the following year.

🌀 Pandava Vanavasam

1965 188' b&w Telugu/Tamil

d K. Kameshwara Rao pc Madhavi Prod. s/co-lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya co-lyr Arudra, Kosaraju c C. Nageshwara Rao m Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Savitri, S.V. Ranga Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Kanta Rao, T.S. Balaiah, Haranath, Satyanarayana, Rajanala, Lingamurthy, Mikkilineni, Prabhakara Reddy, K. Mukkamala, Ramana Reddy, Padmanabham, Vijayalakshmi, Sandhya, Baby Sasirekha, Rajasulochana, Chittor V. Nagaiah, Ajit Singh, Vanisree

Kameshwara Rao's Mahabharata-based hit mythological has NTR playing Bhima, Ranga Rao as Duryodhan and Savitri in one of her better-known mythological performances as Draupadi. Ghantasala's music also became a hit. A version of the film, dubbed in Hindi and starring Hema Malini, was released in 1973, presumably with extra footage cut into the film.

🌀 Rosy

1965 140' b&w Malayalam

d/st P.N. Menon p Mani pc Vrindavan Pics sc P.J. Anthony lyr P. Bhaskaran c E.N. Balakrishnan m Job lp P.J. Anthony, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Prem Nazir, Nirmala, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, T.S. Muthaiah, D.K. Chellappan, Johnson, C.P. Anthony, M.M. Narayanan Nair, Sushil Kumar, E. Madhavan, Susheela

The former art director Menon's directorial debut stars the scenarist of this crime melodrama. Having unintentionally murdered a man to save his sister's honour, Thumman flees and finds shelter in a fisherman's hut where he falls in love with his benefactor's daughter Rosy. In spite of the obstacles, the lovers decide to marry. When a police inspector appears in the village, Thumman and the pregnant Rosy escape to the mountains and are sheltered by a Muslim friend. Eventually, Rosy dies giving birth and Thumman, having buried his family, calmly allows himself to be arrested.

🌀 Sadhi Manse

1965 134' b&w Marathi

d/s Bhalji Pendharkar pc Gayatri Chitra lyr Yogesh, Jagdish Khebudkar c Arvid Laad m Anandadhan [pseud. of Lata Mangeshkar] lp Jayashree Gadkar, Chandrakant, Master Vithal, Sulochana, Barchi Bahadur, Rajshekhar, Chandrakant Gokhale

Pendharkar inflects his regional chauvinist approach, dominant in his historicals, to contrast an idyllic rural Maharashtra with urban corruption. The happy Shankar (Chandrakant) and his wife Parvati (Gadkar) find their lives disrupted when they accept the offer of a truck driver (Rajshekhar) to find them better prospects in the city. Shankar goes to jail when the driver involves him in a crime. Parvati is imprisoned when she kills the villain, just as Shankar is released. The film ends with a socialist-realist work song, Airanichya deva, the woman's singing punctuated by sounds on a metal lathe, as they return to their profession and their independence. The other song hit was Malachya manyamandi (both sung by Lata Mangeshkar).

🌀 Satya Harishchandra

1965 221' b&w Kannada/Telugu

d/st/dial/lyr[K] Hunsur Krishnamurthy d/p/sc[Te] K.V. Reddy pc Vijaya dial/lyr[Te] Pingali Nagendra Rao c Madhav Bulbule m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp Rajkumar[K], Udaya Kumar[K], K.S. Ashwath[K], Narasimhrajju[K], M.P. Shankar[K], Balkrishna[K], Baby Padmini[K], Dwarkeesh[K], N.T. Rama Rao[Te], K. Mukkamala[Te], Chittor V. Nagaiah[Te], Rajashri, S. Varalakshmi, L. Vijayalakshmi, Vanisree, Pandharibai, Relangi Venkatramaiah

Famous Ramayana legend of the truth-seeking king of Ayodhya, his banishment and suffering as he is tested by Vishwamitra (Udaya Kumar), culminating in his dilemma of having either to kill his own wife who is accused of murder or to forsake his principles. The elaborate costume drama featured the two top stars of Kannada and Telugu cinemas, Rajkumar and NTR, playing the king. The Kannada version credited to Hunsur Krishnamurthy was a hit, but the Telugu one by K.V. Reddy failed.

🌀 Shevatcha Mal usara

1965 144' b&w Marathi

d/p Vasant Joglekar st Sumati Joglekar sc Datta Keshav dial Madhusudan Kalelkar lyr Jagdish Khebudkar c Bal Joglekar m Datta Davjekar lp Ramesh Deo, Uma, Shrikant Moghe, Chandrakant Gokhale, Chitrarekha, Sunanda, Master Sachin, Ashok Kumar

An unusual Marathi war movie which mobilises and updates a historical/regional chauvinism associated with 17th-C. Maratha emperor Shivaji. Major Subhanrao Malusare, a direct descendant of Shivaji's legendary lieutenant Tanaji Malusare, continues a proud family tradition by winning the Victoria Cross as an Allied officer fighting against Italian fascists in WW2. When he dies, his wife Savitri (Uma) vows that their son will never join the army. However, during the India-China conflict (1962), when her son's friend is killed, she enjoins her son to fight for the nation even though the boy's death would mean the end of the ancient clan. The film updated the rousing sentimentalism associated with Shivaji historicals into the present via songs such as He bharatiyano aika balidan katha veeranchi.

🌀 Thene Manasul u

1965 174' col Telugu

d/sc Adurthi Subba Rao pc Babu Movies p C. Sundaram co-st Mullapudi Venkatramana, K.R.K. Mohan co-st/co-dial K. Vishwanath, co-dial/co-lyr Acharya Athreya co-lyr Dasarathi c P.S. Selvaraj m K.V. Mahadevan lp Rammohan, Krishna, Chalapathi Rao, Sandhyarani, Sukanya, K.V. Ramamurthy, G.S.R. Murthy, Koneshwara Rao Subba Rao's 'experimental' film announces his co-productions with Nageshwara Rao (Sudigundalu, 1967; Maro Prapanam, 1970). Narasaraju (Murthy) steals money from his friend Srinivasarao (K. Rao) to pay for his daughter's wedding, leaving Srinivasarao unable to finance his own daughter Bhanumathi's (Sukanya) marriage and compelling him to abandon his family and run away. To earn a living, Bhanumathi goes to the city where she meets Basavaraju (Krishna), the man she was to have married, and the two fall in love. Of the several new actors making their debuts, only Krishna became a major star.

🌀 Waqt

1965 206' col Hindi

d Yash Chopra pc B.R. Films st F.A. Mirza sc B.R. Films Story Dept. dial Akhtar-ul-Iman lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Dharam Chopra m Ravi lp Sunil Dutt, Raaj Kumar, Sadhana, Sharmila

Tagore, Shashi Kapoor, Balraj Sahni, Shashikala, Motilal, Rehman, Achala Sachdev, Madan Puri, Jeevan

A contribution to the 'lost and found' genre (cf. Kismet, 1943; Awara, 1951) later associated with Manmohan Desai's films. The old and prosperous merchant Lala Kedarnath (Sahni) sees his family split and his house wrecked by an earthquake. Trying to trace one of his sons, he learns that the boy was ill treated by an evil orphanage warden (Jeevan) and he kills the warden, earning himself a 20-year stretch in jail. The son is raised by the crook Chinoy (Rehman) and becomes the suave thief Raja (Kumar). Kedarnath's other sons are the fun-loving Ravi (Dutt) who becomes a lawyer and the hard-working but poor Vijay (Kapoor) who looks after their ailing mother. Vijay is hired as a chauffeur by his girlfriend Renu (Tagore) while Ravi and Raja love the same woman, Meena (Sadhana). After advocating a fatalist approach to the passage of time, the film turns into a suspense and courtroom drama when Chinoy frames Raja for murder. Raja is defended in court by Ravi. Eventually the family is reunited. The film was a major hit, exemplifying a kitschy colour aesthetic (denoting wealth) that was to become popular in Hindi films: a series of living-rooms in pink and blue, with fountains and circular beds in bedrooms, motor boats and fancy cars in which the rich race each other to get the girl in between attending huge parties. Hit songs included Ai meri zohrajabeen (sung by Manna Dey), Din hai bahar ke (sung by Asha Bhosle and Mahendra Kapoor) and Aage bhi jane na tu (sung by Asha Bhosle).

Aakhri Khat

1966 153' b&w Hindi
d/s Chetan Anand pc Himalaya Films lyr Kaifi Azmi c Jal Mistry m Khayyam lp Rajesh Khanna, Indrani Mukherjee, Naqi Jehan, Bunty, Nana Palsikar, Manavendra Chitnis

A social-realist melodrama about a man (Khanna in his debut) who secretly marries a gypsy girl from the hills (Mukherjee). They have a son (Bunty) but misunderstandings arise and the wife ends up living on the streets of Bombay with the child. She dies, leaving the boy wandering the city's streets, having his own little adventures while his distraught father searches for him. With its extensive actuality footage of Bombay's slums, suburban trains and working-class life, the film evokes e.g. K.A. Abbas's urban melodramas (Munna, 1954; Shaher Aur Sapna, 1963). The film deploys a simple set of oppositions to signal good and bad: jazzy music and discotheques signify the callous and modern rich while the poor display their human warmth through acts of kindness to the child. Although the soundtrack adheres to the 'realist' principle of using the pilot dialogue track for all speech except that of the hero and heroine, it occasionally inserts suspense music to plug the narrative gaps in the plot.

Anupama

1966 148' b&w Hindi
d/st Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc L.B. Films
p L.B. Lachman sc Bimal Dutt, D.N. Mukherjee dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Kaifi Azmi
c Jaywant Pathare m Hemant Kumar [Hemanta Mukherjee] lp Dharmendra, Sharmila Tagore, Shashikala, Deven Verma, Durga Khote, David, Surekha Pandit, Dulari, Naina, Brahm Bhardwaj, Amar, Tarun Bose

Although dedicated to Bimal Roy, known for his reformist socials, this is a psychodrama. Throughout her life Uma (Tagore), the daughter of Mohan Sharma (Bose), is blamed for her mother dying while giving birth to her. The guilt-laden Uma is contrasted with the flippant, upper-class Anita (Shashikala). Other characters include Arun (Verma), Anita's boyfriend who returns from abroad, and his idealist friend Ashok (Dharmendra), a writer who loves Uma and eventually rescues her after writing a novel based on his imagination of her life. Classic songs composed and performed by Hemanta Mukherjee include the well-picturised Ya dil ki suno, and Lata Mangeshkar's Dheere dheere machal.

Chitthi

1966 177' b&w Tamil
d/s K.S. Gopalakrishnan pc Chitra Prod. lyr Udumalai Narayana Kavi, Kannadasan
c R. Sampath
lp Padmini, M.R. Radha, Muthuraman, Vijayanirmala, Nagesh, Vijayashree, V.R. Rajagopal, S.D. Subbulakshmi

In her comeback film, Padmini plays the suffering Meenakshi, the eldest daughter in a large family. To look after her handicapped sister and her medical-student brother Balu (Muthuraman), she spurns a rich lover since his property is under litigation, preferring the financial security promised by an ageing widower (Radha). The man's son disapproves and becomes a cab driver, while the widower's daughter (Vijayanirmala) falls in love with Balu. Known for its unusually bold dialogues explicitly addressing women's repression, the film boasted one song hit, Kalamithu kalamithu (sung by P. Susheela). B.A. Subba Rao's Pinni (1967) is the Telugu version.

Dil Diya Dar d Liya

1966 169' col Hindi
d A.R. Kardar pc Kay Prod. st Kay Prod. Story Dept. dial Kaushal Bharti lyr Shakeel Badayuni
c Dwarka Divecha m Naushad
lp Dilip Kumar, Waheeda Rehman, Pran, Johnny Walker, Rehman, Shyama, Sajjan, Rani, S. Nazir, Sapru, Amar, Dulari

Allegedly borrowing the characters of Wuthering Heights, the film tells of the tyrannical Ramesh (Pran), son of the thakur, who falls into bad company while Shankar (Kumar), a farm-hand employed by Ramesh, is unaware that he is the real heir to the kingdom. Shankar loves Ramesh's sister Roopa

(W. Rehman) and vows to earn enough money to win her hand. However, Ramesh's men beat him up and leave him for dead. Having survived, Shankar later returns a rich but bitter man and he uses a dancing-girl (Shyama) to make Roopa jealous, before things sort themselves out. According to the actress Shyama's reminiscences (in Movie, Bombay, Sept. 1991), Kardar's comeback film was directed by Dilip Kumar, uncredited, following a major falling out between the director and the star.

Gaban

1966 169' b&w Hindi
co-sc/co-d Krishan Chopra co-d Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc B.I. Prod. st Munshi Premchand's novel (1930) co-sc Bhanu Pratap dial Baij Sharma, Akhtar-ul-Iman lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Shailendra c K. Vaikunth m Shankar-Jaikishan
lp Sunil Dutt, Sadhana, Zeb Rehman, Kanhaiyalal, Agha, Anwar Hussain, Minoo Mumtaz, Badri Prasad, P. Kailash, Kamal Kapoor, Mishra, Pratima Devi, Leela Mishra, Brahm Bhardwaj, B.B. Bhalla, Surekha Pandit

Set in Allahabad, 1928, in the anti-British terrorist actions that peaked between the Simon Commission and the Gandhi-Irwin Pact (1929), Premchand's story tells of Ramnath (Dutt), son of a small-time clerk in the Allahabad court, who borrows large amounts of money in order to satisfy his wife's desire for jewellery. This forces him to embezzle money at the court, and gets the police after him. On the run, and unaware that his wife has repaid the embezzled money, he is blackmailed by a repressive police force into presenting a false eyewitness account that would convict non-violent nationalists for terrorist acts. One of Dutt's better-known screen performances holds together a film that was patched together by Mukherjee following the death of the original director, Chopra.

Gal I an Hoyian Beetian

1966 117' b&w Dogri d/sc Kumar Kuldip pc Tawi Films st Narendra Khajuria's play Pyasi Dharti dial Ramnath Shastri lyr Yash Sharma, Kehari Singh 'Madhukar' lp Ram Kumar Abrol, Jitender Sharma, Kaberi, Veena Kotwal

The only film made to date in the language of the Dogra community, which comprises c.25% of the Kashmiri people. Made mainly on the initiative of several well-known Dogri writers, the melodrama revolves around the problems of intermarriage between two villages and of water scarcity in the Kandli area of Duggar. A canal is dug between two villages when the marriages of a village chieftain's brother and sister are arranged with their counterparts from the other community. The sister Shano's marriage takes place, but when her brother dies, negotiations over the water-sharing agreement break down. Trying to resolve the resulting drought Shano is killed and, in the dramatic finale, her dead body reaches her marital home at the same time as the water from the reopened canal. The film is best-known for evoking Khajuria's realist idiom.

☞ Kaa

1966 165' b&w Oriya
d/sc Siddharth p Parbati Ghosh st Kanhucharan Mohanty c Deojibhai, Bijoy De m Shrikumar
lp Guruprasad, Chandana, Geeta, Manimala, Sarat Pujari, Byomkesh, Sudhangsu

Oriya melodrama based on Mohanty's popular fiction. According to some sources, the film was pseudonymously directed by Ramchandra Thakur. Nandika, childless after eight years of marriage, persuades her husband Sunanda to remarry. Both Nandika and the second wife Lalita are unhappy though superficially affectionate. After Lalita and Sunanda move to the city, Nandika finds herself pregnant and follows them. The tensions are resolved when Nandika dies in childbirth. This is the first production of Parbati Ghosh, actress and director (Chamana Atha Guntha, 1986) and known for producing, with husband Gauruprasad Ghosh, quality Oriya cinema (cf. Nitai Palit's Bhai Bhai, 1956; Sharada Prasanna Nayak's Lakhmi, 1962).

☞ Kal api

1966 137' b&w Gujarati
d Manhar Raskapur pc Pragya Pictures st Prabodh Joshi co-lyr Kalapi c Shankar Bakel
co-lyr/m Avinash Vyas
lp Sanjeev Kumar, Padma Rani, Aruna Irani, Vishnukumar Vyas, P. Kharsani, Pratap Ojha, Nandini Desai, Narayan Rajgor, Dineshkumar, D.S. Mehta, Ashok Thakkar, Premshankar
 Bhatt, Ajit Soni, Nutan, Manoj Purohit, Jayant Vyas, Miss Jayashree, Madhumati

Film based on the life of Kalapi (1874-1900), a Gujarati romantic poet who died aged 26 leaving one anthology, Kelkrav, consisting mainly of love poems, apparently addressed to his wife's maid. Some evoke the legend of Bilwamangal, while others adapt Wordsworth, Shelley and Keats into a local idiom. Prince Sursinhji Takthasinghji Gohil (Hindi star Sanjeev Kumar), the ruler of Lathi, marries two princesses on the same day. However, Rama, the princess he loves, is more interested in power than in him. The prince rejects the throne, becomes a poet and falls in love with Rama's maid Shobhana (Irani).

☞ Kayamkulam Kochhunni

aka The Dear One of Kayamkulam
 1966 131' b&w Malayalam
d/p P.A. Thomas dial Jagathi N.K. Achari lyr P. Bhaskaran, Abhayadev c P.B. Mani
m B.A. Chidambaranath
lp Sathyan, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, K.P. Oomer, Adoor Bhasi, Manavalan Joseph, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, Kaduvakulam
 Anthony, O. Ramdas, Kothamangalam Ali, Lateef, Usha Kumari (aka Vijayanirmala), Kamaladevi, Sukumari, Nalini, Parvati, Laxmi

A story featuring Central Travancore's Robin Hood-type folk hero, Kochhunni (Sathyan), an expert in Kerala's martial arts who became a notorious dacoit, allegedly with a golden heart. Betrayed by his lover, the palace maid Janaki, he escapes, settles the score with Janaki and her accomplice and then gives himself up to the law.

☞ Kumari Penn

aka Kanne Pilla
 1966 154' b&w Tamil
d Ramanna pc E.V.R. Pics lyr Kannadasan
c G. Dora m M.S. Vishwanathan lp Jayalalitha, Ravichandran, Madhavi, S.V. Ranga Rao

Early Jayalalitha and Ravichandran hit featuring her in body-hugging tights and sexy numbers like the train song Varushattai paru arubattai aaru (sung by L.R. Ishwari). She plays Shyamala, whose rich but ailing grandfather (Ranga Rao) insists she marry before he dies. She passes off an illiterate shepherd (Ravichandran) as her chosen groom to keep the old man happy, but eventually marries the man. The Hindi film Manchali (1973) had a similar story.

☞ Kunjali Marakkar

1966 147' b&w Malayalam
d S.S. Rajan pc Chandrathara Prod. s K. Padmanabhan Nair lyr P. Bhaskaran
c C.A.S. Mani m B.A. Chidambaranath lp Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, Prem Nazir, Adoor Bhasi, S.P. Pillai, Kottayam Chellappan, P.J. Anthony, G.K. Pillai, Sathyapal, Premji, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Jyothilakshmi, Sukumari, Nalini

Major Malayalam historical telling the story of the legendary 16th C. naval captain Kunjali Marakkar (Nair). Following Vasco da Gama's landing in Calicut (1498) the Portuguese dominated the Malabar trade for the next century, opposed only by the Zamorin of Calicut (Premji). In the film, the zamorin's evil nephew (Anthony) sides with the Portuguese. Marakkar defeats the imperialist enemy in several sea battles, but the perfidy of the nephew and a scheming Namboodiri priest causes the zamorin's downfall. Marakkar is arrested and killed. The film belonged to Nair in his best-known role, supported by Nazir playing the double role of the Portuguese Antonio and Narayana Nair.

☞ Major Chandrakanth

1966 163' b&w Tamil
d/sc K. Balachander p AVM Prods.
c S. Maruthi Rao lyr Vali m V. Kumar lp Sundarajan, Nagesh, Muthuraman, A.V.M. Rajan, Jayalalitha

When Vimala's (Jayalalitha) wayward lover Rajnikant (Rajan) is killed by her brother Mohan (Nagesh), the brother is sheltered from the police by the victim's blind father, Major Chandrakanth (Sundarajan). The major's elder son, the zealous cop Srikanth (Muthuraman), is in charge of finding Mohan, whom he finally arrests in his own house. Realising that his father knowingly sheltered a murder suspect, Srikanth arrests the blind old man as well. Based on a noted play by Balachander himself, the story was however filmed earlier in Hindi as Oonche Log (1965).

☞ Matir Manisha

aka Two Brothers
 1966 113' b&w Oriya
d/sc Mrinal Sen p Babul Doshi pc Chhaybani Pratishthan st Kalindi Charan Panigrahi's novel (1930) dial Gopal Chatray c Sailaja Chatterjee
m Bhubhaneshwar Mishra lp Sarat Pujari, Prashanta Nanda, Ram Mania,

Kaa

Sujata, Dukhiram Sain, Bhim Singh, Kartick Ghosh, Bhanumathi, Snehalata, Meera

Sen's only feature in Oriya, based on a major Oriya novel, tries to elaborate a new way of representing rural India. The director wrote his script and dialogues in Bengali, first translating them into Oriya, then adapting and modifying the text during the shooting on advice from the actors and the local villagers. Set in a small Orissa village in the late 30s as WW2 breaks out and the Indian economy is neglected in favour of the war effort, the film contrasts different attitudes, exemplified by two brothers, Baraju (Pujari) and Chakkadi (Nanda), to tradition and modernity, an important debate within nationalist politics at the time. Sen's film was criticised for its symbolic imagery and for bringing a 'Communist' angle to the Gandhian fable (referred to via the elder brother's character), but it remains a pioneering attempt to inscribe a rural world into history, divesting it of both nostalgia and idealisation. Produced by Oriya's main producer Doshi, Pujari and Nanda later became the top male stars in the language.

Motor Sundaram Pillai

1966 160' b&w Tamil

d Balu pc Gemini s Vembattur Kittu lyr Kothamangalam Subbu c P. Ellappa
m M.S. Vishwanathan

lp Sivaji Ganesan, Sowcar Janaki, Manimala, Kanchana, Asha, Jayalalitha, Pandharibai, Chittoor V. Nagaiah

Motor magnate Sundaram Pillai (Ganesan) disappears on weekdays to his workplace, leaving his wife (Sowcar Janaki) behind, until it is revealed that he has a second wife (Manimala) at another residence. The Gemini Studio production - made after a long period of inactivity, and also Ganesan's sole film with this studio - was a remake of Kishore Sahu's Grihasthi (1963).

Nayak

aka The Hero

1966 120' b&w Bengali

d/s/m Satyajit Ray p R.D. Bansal pc R.D.B. c Subrata Mitra

lp Uttam Kumar, Sharmila Tagore, Bireshwar Sen, Soumyen Bose, Nirmal Ghosh, Premangshu Bose, Sumita Sanyal, Ranjit Sen, Bharati Devi, Lali Choudhury, Kamu Mukherjee, Sushmita Mukherjee, Subrata Sen Sharma, Jamuna Sinha, Hiralal, Jogesh Chatterjee, Satya Bannerjee, Gopal Dey

Ray's first original script since

Kanchanjungha (1962) seems inspired by Bergman's Smullstronstallet (1957) and uses an ensemble piece with the structure of a suspense plot: a group of characters interact during a 24-hour train journey between Calcutta and Delhi. The film is dominated by its insecure male lead, movie megastar Arindam Mukherjee (played by Bengali megastar Uttam Kumar). In nightmares he drowns in a sea of banknotes amid jangling telephones operated by skeletons. On the train, he tells his story to Aditi (Tagore), the sexy but severe (her intelligence is signalled conventionally by her glasses, her beauty equally conventionally by having her remove her glasses) editor of a women's magazine. In the end, she destroys her notes because journalists should respect the privacy even of film stars. As in Kanchanjungha, the bizarre protagonist, the dream sequences and the flashbacks constantly suggest an impending dramatic event: e.g. the tensely edited sequence in which he gets drunk, contemplates suicide, gets the attendant to call Aditi, starts confessing to her about his affair with a married woman, etc. The presence of a small set of bit players, including an advertising man, a religious guru (Bannerjee) who wants to advertise his business, an old writer who sees the hero as exemplifying contemporary decadence and a businessman with his family, are typical of the whodunit ploy of creating a small but varied set of potential murder suspects. Here, unlike Kanchanjungha or the film that would use the format with greater skill, Aranyer Din Ratri (1969), the 'clues' to the unfolding drama point not to a crime but to a notion of cultural identity hidden in verbal, gestural and dress nuances (e.g. when Aditi gets off the train, Arindam puts on his dark sunglasses again). Ray made his first real thriller the following year, Chidiakhana (1967).

Rangul a Ratnam

1966 181' b&w Telugu

d B.N. Reddi pc Vauhini st Palagummi Padmaraju dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr Dasarathi, C. Narayana Reddy, Kosaraju c U. Rajagopal m Saluri Rajeshwara Rao, B. Gopalam lp Anjali Devi, Pushpavalli, Rekha, Chandramohan, Rammohan, Vanisree, Vijayanirmala, Sukanya, Ramana Reddy, Kakarala, Radhakumari

Hit family melodrama about a formerly rich but now impoverished rural family that migrates to the city. The father dies, leaving behind his widow (Anjali Devi), two sons and a daughter. The elder son Suryam (Rammohan) marries the daughter of a corrupt politician. Younger son Vasu (Chandramohan) starts working at a young age to help his mother but retains his idealism and he eventually comes to represent the oppressed classes. The two brothers clash, first ideologically and then physically, during an election in which they fight on opposite sides. The mother tries to intervene and is injured, leading to a family reconciliation. Reddi cast several newcomers, some of whom (Kakarala, Chandramohan, Vanisree) later became stars. Hindi star Rekha debuted in this film as child actress Baby Bhanurekha, acting alongside her mother Pushpavalli.

Teesri Kasam

aka The Third Vow

1966 159' b&w Hindi

d Basu Bhattacharya p/co-lyr Shailendra pc Image Makers st/dial Phanishwar Nath Renu's Mare Gaye Gulfam sc Nabendu Ghosh co-lyr Hasrat Jaipuri c Subrata Mitra
m Shankar-Jaikishen

lp Raj Kapoor, Waheeda Rehman, Dulari, Iftikhar, Asit Sen, C.S. Dubey, Krishna Dhawan, Vishwa Mehra, Samar Chatterjee, Nabendu Ghosh, Keshto Mukherjee

Wonderfully photographed by Mitra, who shot S. Ray's early films, this musical melodrama sees Kapoor return to his role as a country bumpkin called Hiranman, a bullock-cart driver. Transporting a Nautanki dancer, Hirabai (Rehman) to join a performing troupe, he wins her affection with his old songs and by treating the 'dancing-girl' as a respectable woman. Hiranman eventually finds out that a dancing-girl in a troupe is in no position to refuse sex with local potentates. However, his innocence has persuaded her to fight off unwanted advances and to leave the Nautanki theatre. She bids farewell to Hiranman at the railway station and invites him to come and see her in a different show. The film ends with Hiranman taking his third vow, telling his bullocks that he will never carry a Nautanki dancer again. The sentimental story touches on the gross sexual oppression of women but in the end places its sympathies with the disillusioned Hiranman rather than with the woman. The film is notable mostly for its seamless, lyrical imagery and for Kapoor's best performance of his archetypal persona.

Teesri Manzil

1966 172' col Hindi

d Vijay Anand pc United Producers, Nasir Hussain Films s/p Nasir Hussain lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c N.V. Srinivas m R.D. Burman lp Shammi Kapoor, Asha Parekh, Premnath, Helen, K.N. Singh, Raj Mehra, Prem Chopra, Laxmi Chhaya, Neeta, Sabina, Salim, Rashid Khan, Iftikhar

Musical love story and murder mystery repeating the star pairing of the hit Dil Deke Dekho (1959) as well as its locales, the hill-station and the hotel dance-floor. Sunita (Parekh) goes to Mussoorie with her college hockey team. She is also determined to avenge the death of her sister Rupa, who had apparently committed suicide when she was rejected by her lover Rocky (Kapoor), a drummer in the hotel's jazz band. Rocky meets her and, wise to her intentions, disguises his identity. The two fall in love. The story picks up again when a policeman (Iftikhar) reveals that Rupa was murdered. The dancer Ruby (Helen), who is in love with Rocky, and Rupa's jealous fiancé (Chopra) are prime suspects. In the end, a subplot is quickly developed and the murderer caught. The film included classic Mohammed Rafi and Asha Bhosle duets such as O hasina zulfonwali, Aaja aaja, O mere sona re sona re and the quixotic Rafi solo, Diwana mujhsa nahin, energetically picturised on the ageing but lively lead duo.

Yarukaka Azhudan

1966 111' b&w Tamil

d/sc Jayakantan p Asai Jyothi Films c Nemai Ghosh lyr Kannadasan m S.V. Ramanan lp Nagesh, K.R. Vijaya, T.S. Balaiah,

S.V. Sahasranamam, Prabhakar, Wahab
Kashmiri, Kokila

A melodrama with thriller overtones set entirely in a small lodge in Madras. A drunken Seth (Kashmiri) who comes to stay gives his cash to the owner (Balaiah) in safekeeping. The next morning the customer, having forgotten to whom he gave the money, accuses the retarded servant boy Joseph (Nagesh). The owner takes advantage of the situation and keeps the money. A woman lodger (Vijaya), deserted by her lover, tries to help, but only the return of the vacationing head cook Naidu (Sahasranamam) finds out the truth and clears Joseph's name.

Aada Paduchu

1967 162' b&w Telugu
d K. Hemambharadhara Rao pc Subhashini Art Pics sc L.V. Prasad dial K. Pratyagatma lyr Dasarathi, Kosaraju, Sri Sri, C. Narayana Reddy, Arudra c M.G. Singh, M.C. Sekhar m T. Chalapathi Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Padmanabham, Shobhan Babu, Chandrakala, Vanisree, Geetanjali

Melodrama written by noted Telugu directors Prasad and Pratyagatma. Satyam (NTR) looks after his sister Sharada (Chandrakala) and younger brother Shekhar (Shobhan Babu). The sister has an accident and goes blind just before her marriage. The younger brother gets married and takes to drinking and gambling. Satyam finally succeeds in bringing the family together and restores his sister's sight. The film adapted two earlier versions of the same plot, C. Narayanamurthy's Naa Chellelu (1953) and Prasad's own Chhoti Bahen (1959).

Agniputhri

1967 144' b&w Malayalam
d M. Krishnan Nair p Prem Nawaz pc Prem and Balaji Movies s S.L. Puram Sadanandan lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c N.S. Mani m Baburaj lp Prem Nazir, T.S. Muthaiah, T.K. Balachandran, S.P. Pillai, Adoor Bhasi, Bahadur, Sheela, Vasantha, Aranmulla Ponnamma, Baby Usha, T.R. Omana, Meena

Melodrama taking Malayalam cinema's fascination with incest to its limit. The respectable college teacher Rajan (Nazir) marries Sindhu (Sheela), the orphaned inmate of a home for destitutes. The feudal conservative hypocrisies of the hero's family are graphically criticised: Rajan's cousin Chandran admits he once had sex with Sindhu, and Rajan's snooty brother, the doctor Jayadev, fathered Sindhu's daughter Bindu. Sindhu further confesses on her wedding night that she suffers from venereal disease, and eventually dies. The gruesome film is adapted from a popular play by Nazir's brother Prem Nawaz. The theatrical gestures and painted backdrops were maintained in the film version. The film was remade in Hindi as Darpan (1970) starring Sunil Dutt and Waheeda Rehman.

Antony Firingee

1967 157' b&w Bengali
d Sunil Bannerjee p B.N. Roy lyr Pranab Roy c Bijoy Ghosh m Anil Bagchi lp Uttam Kumar, Tanuja, Lolita Chatterjee, Asit Baran, Chhaya Devi, Haridhan, Ruma Guha-Thakurta, Jahar Roy, Ashim Kumar

Reformist musical recounting the legend of a Portuguese-Indian who in the early 19th C. became a famous Bengali poet-musician (in the Kabigan genre). Antony Firingee [Antony the Foreigner] (U. Kumar) falls in love with the famous courtesan Shakila (Tanuja). At first she rejects him, but later reveals her tragic story: she is a widow who escaped when she was forced to commit sati (ritual immolation) and was later raped. She then agrees to marry Antony and they try to overcome social ostracisation when, under her tutelage, he defeats a series of famous poets (e.g. Bhola Moira) in the tradition of the Kabir Larai (contest between poets emphasising improvisation). However, he returns home to find his wife killed by a mob and resigns himself to being a social outcast, 'the fate of all poets and foreigners'. Bagchi's music was the film's most successful feature.

Anveshichu Kandatiyil I a aka Sought But Didn't Find

1967 150' b&w Malayalam
d/lyr P. Bhaskaran p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc Kollam General Pics s Parappuram c E.N. Balakrishnan m Baburaj lp Sathyan, Madhu, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, P.J. Anthony, T.S. Muthaiah, Adoor Bhasi, Bahadur, G.K. Pillai, Latif, K.R. Vijaya, Vijayanirmala, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Mavelikkara Ponnamma, Meena, Sukumari, Sharada, Baby Sheela, Baby Kausalia, Nellikode Bhaskaran

Emotional drama about a woman's unsuccessful search for happiness, made as a reply to the biblical homily, 'seek and ye shall find'. Susamma (Vijaya), born eight months after her parents' marriage, is for this reason rejected by her father and ridiculed by her village community. She eventually becomes a nurse during WW2 and falls for a dashing captain who turns out to be a philanderer. He is killed and she returns home where she has a relationship with Anthony, who turns out to be a married man. Disillusioned, she finds peace in the very hospital where she used to be a nurse. Bhaskaran's biggest film to date, with a major star cast, adapting one of Parappuram's war stories (cf. Ninamanninnya Kalapadakkal, 1963). Bahadur and Bhasi have independent comedy routines.

Arundhati

1967 145' b&w Oriya
d/sc Prafulla Sengupta p Dhiren Patnaik st Gurukrishna Goswami dial Anand Shankar Das c Bishnu Chakraborty m Shantanu Mahapatra lp Minati Mishra, Sarat Pujari

Ambitious but unsuccessful big-budget Oriya musical extravaganza. Arundhati (Mishra), studying dance at her father's performing arts establishment, loves Manoj (Poojari), a singer whom her father hopes will become his successor. The industrialist Biswajit claims Arundhati is his wife Madhu, believed to have died in a train accident. He presents various kinds of proof and accuses the bewildered Arundhati of infidelity. Eventually a twin sister, lost when still a child, turns out to have been the cause of the confusion. The skeletal plot was mainly an excuse for several classical dance numbers by Mishra, choreographed by the legendary Odissi dancer Guru Kelucharan Mahapatra.

Ashwamedham

aka The Liberation Ritual
1967 135' b&w Malayalam
d/c A. Vincent p Hari Pothan pc Supriya Pics s Thoppil Bhasi lyr Vyalar Rama Varma m P. Devarajan
lp Sathyan, Prem Nazir, Madhu, Sheela, Indira Thambi, Sukumari, P.J. Anthony, Adoor Bhasi, G.K. Pillai, T.R. Omana, Bahadur, Kambisseri Karunakaran

Vincent's reform drama adapted a noted Bhasi play about attitudes to disease. Sarojan's (Sheela) marriage to lover Mohan (Nazir) is called off when she contracts leprosy. She is cured in six months, but neither her lover nor her own family accept her back. Eventually she returns to the sanatorium that cured her, and finds happiness helping others afflicted by the disease. Sathyan plays the good doctor Thomas.

Aval

aka She
1967 142' b&w Malayalam
d Aziz p Mohammed Sarkar pc Beena Films s Thoppil Bhasi lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Ravi Varma m P. Devarajan
lp Usha Nandini, Madhu, K.P. Oomer, Adoor Bhasi, Bahadur, Kothamangalam Ali, Ramchand, Maya, Meena, Shanta, Baby Waheeda, Kaduvakulam Anthony, Krishnan Kutty, Shanta Devi

Bizarre Bhasi melodrama about sexual impotence, divorce and a social system that is shown as riddled with incestuous relationships. Sridevi (Usha Nandini) becomes a schoolteacher in a remote village in the mountains, where a widower falls in love with her. This leads to a long story in flashback, where she tells him about how she was betrayed by her lover (Madhu). It appears that her brother had rejected his sister, and in retaliation he does the same to her. She marries a second man even though she is pregnant by her first lover. Her new husband turns out to be sexually impotent. When she delivers her child, she is told that it is dead, but the child survives and is adopted by its biological father. In the end she has to choose between her duties to her new husband and her maternal desire to raise her own child. The problem is solved by the generosity of her husband who accepts her with her baby. This film was the debut of former FTII student Aziz, at this time a member of an informal collective.

Bambai Raat Ki Bahon Mein

1967 136' b&w Hindi

d/s/p K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar lyr Hasan Kamal c Ramchandra m J.P. Kaushik lp Surekha, Vimal Ahuja, Jalal Agha, Madhavi, David, Persis Khambatta, Irshad Panjatan

Characteristic of many CPI ideologues' work in the 60s (cf. Sukhdev), this is a demagogic melodrama bewailing the city's effect on 'traditional' values. The city is represented by nightclubs, swindlers and drunken women. The hero is Amar Kumar (Ahuja), a crusading journalist under pressure to accept a bribe to kill his story about corruption in high places. Returning from Delhi, he meets a bootlegger named Johnny (Agha) on the plane. An old passenger, Sevakram (Panjatan), dies and leaves a wad of money he stole from a bank. Amar, debating the future with his estranged wife Asha, winds up in Bombay at a nightclub. At Toto's house, Amar meets the cabaret singer Lily (Khambatta) and the drunk Rosy (Madhavi). Although Rosy loves Johnny, he loves Lily. Eventually it transpires that Johnny strangled the old man and as the police chase him through Bombay, his car runs over Rosy and he is caught.

Bel I imoda

1967 163' b&w Kannada

d/s S.R. Puttana Kanagal pc Srinivasa Arts st Triveni c R.N.K. Prasad m Vijayabhaskar lp Kalpna, Kalyana Kumar, Pandharibai, Ashwath, Balkrishna

Kanagal's Kannada debut is a classic melodrama inaugurating his characteristic type of expressionist psychodrama. The story is set in a hilly orchard belonging to Indira's (Kalpana) father Sadashiva (Ashwath). She loves Mohan (Kumar), who goes abroad to study sponsored by Indira's father. Although the two are supposed to marry, a problem arises when Indira's mother Lalitha (Pandharibai) dies giving birth to a son, the official heir to Sadashiva's property. Believing himself too indebted to her father and socially beneath her, Mohan refuses to marry Indira. In the film's extraordinary end, Indira hacks a tree to pieces and rises 'to catch a rainbow'. Although mobilising the Kannada version of Mills & Boon romances, Kanagal's work evokes the psychotic undertone of these lower middle-class fictions e.g. Indira nurses her infant brother as she would her own child, intensifying Mohan's envy. The lush orchard is disturbingly filmed with a hand-held camera and the film's imagery repeatedly refers to calendar art: the stars, the moon, curved washstands and a fan-shaped bed, painted backdrops, etc. The film established Kalpana as Kannada cinema's reigning star, and composer Vijayabhaskar. Kanagal remade the film in Malayalam as Swapnabhoomi (1967) with Prem Nazir and Sheela.

Bhama Vijayam/Bhal e Kodalu

1967 179' b&w Tamil/Telugu

d K. Balachander pc Manohar Pics/Sekhar Films lyr Kannadasan c P.N. Sundaram,

K.S. Prakash m M.S. Vishwanathan, T.V. Raju
lp Rajashri, Nagesh, Muthuraman, Sundarajan, T.S. Balaiah[Ta]/S.V. Ranga Rao[Te], Jayanthi, Kanchana, Sowcar Janaki, K. Mukkamala, N.T. Rama Rao

Balachander's satire is reminiscent of his stage work. A movie star Bhama (Rajshree) moves into the neighbourhood where a joint family of three husbands (Nagesh, Muthuraman, Sundarajan) and their wives (Jayanthi, Kanchana, Janaki) live. Her presence sends the wives into a spending spree as they buy radios and fancy goods in order to keep up with their glamorous neighbour, while accusing their husbands of being more than friendly with the star. The comic song Varavu ettanna salavu pathanna (Earn Eight Annas and Spend Ten) was a hit.

Chhuti

1967 119' b&w Bengali

d/sc/m Arundhati Devi pc Purnima Pics st Bimal Kar c Bimal Mukherjee lp Nandini Maliya, Mrinal Mukherjee, Ajitesh Bannerjee, Romi Choudhury, Debabrati Sen, Dipali Chakraborty, Tinku

Actress Arundhati Devi's directorial debut is a lyrical melodrama. When Bhramar's (Maliya) father (Bannerjee) remarries, she does not get on with her stern stepmother Himani (Sen), who is a disciplinarian and a moralist, and who helps the story become a critique of protestant ethics. Bhramar falls ill but hides her illness, which develops into tuberculosis. Into this family arrives Amal (Mukherjee) and the two fall in love. In the end Bhramar is taken to hospital and Amal, aware she is terminally ill, promises to wait for her. The elegiac film is set in a Christian community in Bihar, whose sylvan landscape, where the tragedy is played out, serves to comment on the contemporary - both geographically and generically, as it distances itself from the tradition of popular romances addressing similar themes of terminal illness - by a literal process of exclusion.

Chidiakhana

aka Chiriakhana aka The Zoo

1967 125' b&w Bengali

d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Harendranath Bhattacharya pc Star Prod. st Saradindu Bannerjee's novel Chidiakhana c Soumendu Roy lp Uttam Kumar, Sailen Mukherjee, Sushil Majumdar, Kanika Majumdar, Subhendu Chatterjee, Shyamal Ghosal, Prasad Mukherjee, Subira Roy, Nripati Chatterjee, Subrata Chatterjee, Gitali Roy, Kalipada Chakravarty, Chinmoy Roy, Ramen Mullick, Brajadas, Nilatpal Dey, Jahar Ganguly

This relatively unknown Ray film, made to help out some friends, is his first real detective thriller (cf. Sonar Kella, 1974; Joi Baba Felunath, 1978) although he had deployed the generic narrative structure often before (cf. Kanchanjunga, 1962). The detective Byomkesh Bakshi (Kumar) is hired by a retired judge (S. Majumdar) to trace a former screen actress who lives in a colony for social outcasts (run by the judge to atone for sentencing several convicts to death). Bakshi ends up investigating the mysterious death of his own client. He unmasks the culprit when he notices that, in a series of tape-recorded interviews with the inhabitants, a woman (G. Roy) betrays her identity by her accent. The woman turns out to be the former film actress, whose career was ruined by her lover when he changed her looks with plastic surgery.

Chitramela

Aka Image Festival

1967 172' b&w Malayalam

d T.S. Muthaiah pc Shri Movies s Nagarathinte Mukhangal: M.K. Mani, S.L. Puram

Mrinal Mukherjee (left) and Nandini Maliya (right) in Chhuti

Sadanandan; Penninte Prapancham:

T. Vasudevan, Bharathan Kutty; Apaswarangal: Srikumaran Thampi
c N.S. Mani m P. Devarajan
lp Nagarathinte Mukhangal: Sheela, K.P. Omer, Kottayam Chellappan, Baby Rajani, Baby Usha; Penninte Prapancham: S.P. Pillai, Adoor Bhasi, Bahadur, Manavalan Joseph, Shri Nagendra Pillai, Meena, Khadija, C.R. Lakshmi; Apaswarangal: Prem Nazir, Sharada, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Sukumari, G.K. Pillai, Nellikode Bhaskaran, T.R. Omana, Wahab Kashmiri

Malayalam cinema's first portmanteau film, consisting of three short films, is also Tamil/Malayalam actor Muthaiah's debut as director. Nagarathinte Mukhangal [Faces of the City] (38') shows the tragic fate of children left at home by pleasure-loving parents who frequent nightclubs. Penninte Prapancham [A Woman's World] (39') is a Laurel and Hardy-inspired comedy speculating on life 50 years in the future when sex-change operations become commonplace. The longest story, Apaswarangal [Discordant Notes] (95'), is a tragic love story between a street singer and a blind woman. To achieve success, the street singer has to accept the patronage of a famous dancer, which estranges him from his girl. In the end she dies in his arms.

Hatey Bazarey

1967 133' (128') b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Tapan Sinha pc Priya Films st Banaphool lyr Rabindranath Tagore
c Dinen Gupta
lp Ashok Kumar, Vyjayanthimala, Ajitesh Bannerjee, Chhaya Devi, Samita Biswas, Rudraprasad Sengupta, Bhanu Bannerjee, Geeta De, Samit Bhanja, Chinmoy Roy, Partha Mukherjee

Maudling Sinha melodrama about a benevolent rural doctor Mukherjee (Kumar) working in a village on the Bengal-Bihar border where, along with some good villagers, he opposes the cruel landlord and rapist Lachhman (A. Bannerjee). The doctor solves local problems and becomes a political hero. The comely widow Chhipli (Vyjayanthimala) is the dramatic pivot, as the villain first tries to seduce and then rape her. The doctor rescues her, but both hero and villain die. The villagers unite to ensure the success of the doctor's new mobile hospital. With this film Sinha began using major Hindi stars to play larger-than-life, explicitly anti-Communist 'common-man' heroes (cf. Dilip Kumar in Sagina Mahato, 1970) opposing the Left Front's rise in West Bengal. The film is remembered mainly for the well-known stage star Ajitesh Bannerjee's performance of untrammelled villainy.

India 67

aka An Indian Day, aka India Today 1967 57' col wordless
d S. Sukhdev pc Films Division

Sukhdev's best-known documentary was a more muted work than his more demagogic

And Miles To Go ... (1965). A wordless montage strings together shots from various parts of the country, moving from the village to the city. Sequences include well-known political figures e.g. Bal Thackeray, now head of the notorious right-wing Shiv Sena, making a streetside speech. Some shots were admired by S. Ray: the drop of sweat on the nose of a perspiring Rajasthan musician, followed by an ant on the desert sand, or the dog urinating on a bicycle. The film consciously recalls Rossellini's India 57 (1958). The film was recut into shorter versions with alternative titles.

Irutinte Atmavu

aka The Soul of Darkness
 1967 147' b&w Malayalam
d/lyr P. Bhaskaran p P.I. Muhammad Kasim pc Sony Pics s M.T. Vasudevan Nair
c E.N. Balakrishnan m Baburaj lp Prem Nazir, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, P.J. Anthony, T.S. Muthaiah, Balaji, Sharada, Ushakumari (aka Vijayanirmala), M.S. Namboodiri, Shankaradi, Adoor Bhasi, Shanta Devi, Philomena, Padmini, Selina, Rukmini, Shobha

One of scenarist Vasudevan Nair's best-known scripts, critiquing the feudal values of a declining Nair community in Kerala. The key figure prising out the biases and attitudes of the family headed by the karanavar (Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair) is the patriarch's mentally retarded nephew Velayudhan (Nazir). To the family his condition symbolises the curse that has led to its decline. He has a good relationship with Ammukutty (Sharada), his cousin and traditionally his future bride. When she is molested by a foreign-returned relative, he protests his innocence but is chained and locked up in a cage. She is married off to an old widower, but when she too rejects his pleas to reconsider her decision, Velayudhan finally acknowledges defeat and agrees to be defined as mad. The film was also cut out as an actorial challenge for megastar Nazir, playing his role with aplomb in scenes such as the one where he swings in ecstasy from one areca tree to another, and generally exploits the tearjerking sympathy generated by his character.

Jewel Thief

1967 186' col Hindi
d/sc Vijay Anand pc Navketan Films st K.A. Narayan lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri, Shailendra c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Ashok Kumar, Vyjayanthimala, Tanuja, Helen, Fariyal, Anju Mahendru, Nasir Hussain, Sapru, Pratima Devi

Hero Vinay (Anand), son of the police commissioner (Hussain), finds himself repeatedly mistaken for notorious jewel thief Amar. He is accused by Shalini (Vyjayanthimala) of being the man who had promised to marry her, and the accusation is substantiated by her brother (Ashok Kumar). Vinay masquerades as Amar to try to crack the gang, even as it appears that Amar too masquerades as Vinay, leaving the audience guessing for most of the film on the identity of the hero. Eventually Amar turns out to be a piece of fiction, created by the real thief, Shalini's brother, who turns out not to be her brother at all. This cult movie, using concealed bars, moving walls and hidden safes, snowlifts and aeroplanes, determined the look and the fashions of much of late 60s Hindi cinema. Vijay Anand's direction, demonstrating a greater control over colour than e.g. Guide (1965), goes well with the taut editing despite a meandering plot. Song hits include Yeh dil na hota bechara (sung by Kishore Kumar), Rulake gaya sapna mera and Hoton pe aisi baat main dabake chali aayi (both by Lata Mangeshkar).

Kandan Karunai

1967 146' col Tamil
d/s A.P. Nagarajan pc ALS Prod. lyr Kannadasan, Sankaradas Swamigal
c K.S. Prasad m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Sivaji Ganesan, Savitri, Gemini Ganesan, K.R. Vijaya, Jayalalitha, Ashokan, Balaji, V. Gopalakrishna, Nagesh, K.B. Sundarambal, Shakuntala, Manorama, Sridevi

Major Nagarajan mythological with Ganesan unusually starring as a minor local deity, Veerabaghu, apprenticed to the more popular male deity Muruga (Sivakumar). Muruga is born to earth specifically to eliminate the evil Soorasura (Ashokan), and the film includes spectacular footage of the war between the two kings Athigaman and Malayaman, halted by Avvaiyyar's (Sundarambal) pacifist speech. The dialogue was noted for its lofty classical Tamil idiom. Jayalalitha and Vijaya played Muruga's consorts. The film is also known for being 80s star Sridevi's debut, aged 5, in the role of the child Muruga.

Kaval am Chundan

aka The Racing Boat aka Fisherman Chundan
 1967 136' b&w Malayalam
d/st Sasikumar p V.P.M. Manikkam pc Bhagawathi Pics sc Thoppil Bhasi
lyr Vyalar Rama Varma
c U. Rajagopal, Benjamin m P. Devarajan
lp Sathyan, Sharada, Aranmulla Ponnamma, P.J. Anthony, Pankajavally, S.P. Pillai, Adoor Bhasi, Manavalan Joseph, Joseph Chacko, Adoor Pankajam, Adoor Bhawani, Radha, Kadhija

Family melodrama set in one of the most spectacular festivals in Kerala, the traditional boat race during the festival of Onam (and a major tourist attraction). Kavalam Chundan is the name of a famous racing boat, the symbol of the village's pride, strength and unity. Saraswathi Kunjamma (Ponnamma), a widow, owns the boat. Her son Chandran (Sathyan) loves his cousin, the woman traditionally destined to be his bride, Sharada (Sharada), but when his sister comes home pregnant the family is torn apart by disputes over succession and property rights, including the right to the racing boat. The drama involves the entire village, leading to gory scenes when Sharada's jealous father gains the traditional secret of how the boat is made, after which the master carpenter kills his own son-in-law for having divulged the knowhow. In the end, Chandran's rights are restored and he wins the race thereby also signalling the victory of traditional values, after which he dedicates the boat to the entire village.

⊗ Kottayam Kol a Case

1967 143' b&w Malayalam
d K.S. Sethumadhavan pc Jayamaruthi Prod. st Chembil John dial S.L. Puram Sadanandan
lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c C. Namashivaya
m B.A. Chidambaranath
lp Prem Nazir, Sheela, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, Adoor Bhasi, T.K. Balachandran, G.K. Pillai, Kamaladevi, Sukumari, Shankaradi, Shanta Devi, Indira Priyadarshini

Sethumadhavan changed his style to make this joint family melodrama that turns into murder mystery. The two brothers Shekhar and K.G. Nair part ways when the latter refuses a loan. Shekhar, who leaves his wife to live with his mistress, is mysteriously murdered. Police investigations disrupt the marriage ceremony of Shekhar's son Prabhakaran. When Nair's son Rajan is the next to get killed, the police accuse Prabhakaran. He, however, evades arrest and eventually catches the real criminal, Nair himself.

⊗ Madhuchandra

1967 148' b&w Marathi
d Rajdutt pc Madhuvasant Chitra
s Madhusudan Kalekar lyr G.D. Madgulkar
c Datta Gorle m N. Datta lp Kashinath Ghanekar, Uma, Shrikant Moghe, Raja Pandit, Barchi Bahadar, Nana Palsikar, Master Sachin, Raja Paranjpe

Poor hero Dinu Khare (Ghanekar) elopes with rich girlfriend Malu (Uma), using a false railway pass. Malu's rich father searches for the missing couple but they are caught by the railway authorities and have to spend their wedding night in jail. Rajdutt's debut is a whimsical comedy. The highlight is the hero and heroine, interned in two separate cells in the prison, singing a love duet to each other, the hit number Madhu ithe ani chandra tithe. The film made Ghanekar, a noted stage actor, a major Marathi film star.

⊗ Pranamithrulu

1967 177' b&w Telugu
d P. Pullaiah pc Padmasri Pics
p V. Venkateshwarulu s Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr Athreya, Dasarathi, C. Narayana Reddy c P.S. Selvaraj
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp A. Nageshwara Rao, K. Jaggaiah, Savitri, Shantakumari, Kanchana, Girija, Geetanjali, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Gummadi
Venkateshwara Rao, Allu Ramalingaiah

Melodrama about two friends, Babu (Jaggaiah), a third-generation owner of a business, and his best friend, his employee and childhood friend Chinna (Nageshwara Rao). When Babu wills all his property to his friend, the diwan (Venkateshwara Rao), who runs the company's affairs, leaves and Babu's mother Jagadamba (Shantakumari) tries to break up the friendship. This happens anyway when the diwan incites a workers' strike and Chinna becomes a labour leader opposed to Babu. Chinna is eventually shot dead by a killer hired by the diwan. First of the several versions of Peter Glenville's Becket (1964) adapted to contemporary conditions, and the original version of Mukherjee's Namak Haram (1973) with Bachchan and Rajesh Khanna in Jaggaiah's and Nageshwara Rao's roles.

⊗ Ram Aur Shyam

1967 171' col Hindi
d Tapi Chanakya pc Vijaya International st D.V. Narasaraju lyr Shakeel Badayuni c Marcus Bartley m Naushad lp Dilip Kumar, Waheeda Rehman, Mumtaz, Pran, Nirupa Roy, Kanhaiyalal, Nasir Hussain, Zebunissa

A successful Hindi remake of Chanakya's equally successful Telugu Ramudu Bheemudu (1964, with NTR) and Tamil Enga Veetu Pillai (1965, with MGR). In a double role Dilip Kumar plays twins separated at birth who grow up to become the timid Ram, who is terrified of villain Gajendra (Pran), and the boisterous Shyam. They are mistaken for each other, even by their respective girlfriends Anjana (Rehman) and Shanta (Mumtaz).

⊗ Saakshi

1967 142' b&w Telugu
d/sc Bapu pc Nandana Films st/dial Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr Arudra, Dasarathi
c P.S. Selvaraj m K.V. Mahadevan lp Krishna, Vijayanirmala, Jagga Rao, Ramana Panthulu, Rajababu, Sivarakrishnaiah, Chalapathi Rao, Saakshi Rangarao

Bapu's debut is regarded as an 'experimental' movie (it flopped) about rural politics. The villain Fakir (Jagga Rao), a truck driver paid by a local politician, kills two men. A boatman (Krishna) witnesses the murders and the entire village, hoping to get Fakir imprisoned, supports the witness when the case comes to court. However Fakir claims self-defence and he gets a light jail sentence. When Fakir comes out, he publicly announces his intention to kill the boatman. Eventually the boatman's lover (who is also Fakir's sister) (Vijayanirmala) kills Fakir. The film introduced the then unknown lead pair of Krishna and Vijayanirmala acting without make-up in outdoor sequences, a standard aspect of New Indian Cinema realism.

⊗ Shri Krishnavataram

1967 211' b&w Telugu/Tamil
d K. Kameshwara Rao p N.T. Rama Rao pc Tarakarama Pics s/co-lyr Samudrala Raghavacharya co-lyr C. Narayana Reddy c Annaya m T.V. Raju lp N.T. Rama Rao, Shobhan Babu, Satyanarayana, Rajanala, Chittor V. Nagaiah, Lingamurthy, K. Mukkamala, Dhoolipala,

Devika, Kanchana, Sukanya, Rushyendramani, Krishnakumari, Vijayalakshmi, Geetanjali, Sandhyarani, S. Varalakshmi, Chhaya Devi

This big-budget mythological is one of the best known of NTR's screen versions of the Krishna myth and recounts several of the Mahabharata's well-known episodes, including Krishna's childhood in Dwarka, the slaying of Shishupala, the visit of Kuchela, the killing of Kansa, etc. Raju's score, adapting the Tirupati Venkata Kavulu, was widely admired.

⊗ Taqdeer

aka Destiny
 1967 108' b&w Hindi
d/sc A. Salaam pc Rajshri lyr Anand Bakshi
c Nariman Irani m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Bharat Bhushan, Shalini, Kamal Kapoor, Farida Jalal

All this film shares with Mehboob Khan's Taqdeer (1943) is its title. The plot concerns a music teacher who leaves wife and children to try to earn money abroad. When his wife hears that her husband's ship has been wrecked, she tries to make ends meet by marrying a rich, villainous mine owner. Later, the husband, who suffers from amnesia, returns and the nasty industrialist tries to kill him. In the end, the villain gets killed and the musician's family is reunited. The film's main interest resides in its nostalgic music track.

⊗ Thangai

1967 159' b&w Tamil
d/sc A.C. Trilogchander pc Sujata Cine Arts p K. Balaji dial Aroor Das lyr Kannadasan
c T. Muthuswamy m M.S. Vishwanathan lp Sivaji Ganesan, K. Balaji, K.R. Vijaya, Nagesh, Kanchana, Sundarajan, Baby Kausalya, Ramadas, Baby Nalini, Devi Chandrika, Vasundhara, Mysore Sudarshan,
 T.S. Bala, Hari Krishna, Master Sridhar

Madan (Ganesan), sent to jail in his teens for a crime he did not commit, is released and becomes a gambler to support his sister. He falls in love with the rich Leela (Vijaya) who is, however, supposed to marry Sridhar (Balaji), the cop who wants to bust the gambling racket. Fellow gambler Lalitha (Kanchana) also loves Madan. When an argument at the gambling tables leads to a fight, a gang leader shoots at Madan but kills Lalitha instead.

⊗ Thanga Thambi

1967 139' b&w Tamil
d Francis Ramanath pc Unmayal Prod. st/dial M. Karunanidhi lp Sundarajan, Ravichandran, Vanisree, Bharati, Nagesh, Manorama, O.A.K. Thevar

Karunanidhi's domestic melodrama about two loving brothers torn apart by their respective wives. Elder brother Varadan (Sundarajan) marries Sundari (Vanisree). He wants younger brother Venu (Ravichandran) to marry a rich woman, but Sundari wants a poor and obedient sister-in-law. Although Sundari initially refuses pregnancy for fear of ruining her looks, she eventually bears a child at the same time as the meek sister-in-law Parvathi (Bharati). Parvathi raises both children, causing an estrangement between the brothers.

⊗Thaikku Thal aimagan

1967 159' b&w Tamil
d/dial M.A. Thirumugham pc Devar Films sc M.M.A. Chinnappa Devar lyr Kannadasan
c N.S. Varma m K.V. Mahadevan lp M.G. Ramachandran, Jayalalitha, Sowcar Janaki, Manorama, S.V. Ranga Rao, Nagesh, Manohar, M.M.A. Chinnappa Devar, S.N. Lakshmi

A good and bad brother morality play. Younger brother Maradhur (MGR) marries the rich Malathi (Jayalalitha) but refuses to move into his father-in-law's (Ranga Rao) house. Elder brother Somu uses this impasse to persuade Maradhur's father-in-law to finance a new garage and to have the entire family move in, forcing Maradhur to follow suit, but the plan is foiled when Somu falls in love with a dancing-girl, driving his family into poverty. Both Somu and the brothers' beloved mother (Lakshmi) die. MGR's melodrama, enlivened by several fight sequences, deploys his usual persona of the working-class hero who marries a rich heiress and wins his battles by virtue of his sterling lower-class morality.

⊗Upkaar

aka Good Deed
 1967 172' col Hindi
d/s Manoj Kumar pc Vishal Pics lyr Prem Dhawan, Indivar, Gulshan Bawra, Qamar Jalalabadi c V.N. Reddy m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Asha Parekh, Manoj Kumar, Pran, Kamini Kaushal, Prem Chopra, Kanhaiyalal, Madan Puri, Manmohan Krishna, David

Stridently nationalistic melodrama with which Manoj Kumar launched a series casting himself as good hero Bharat, contrasting his son-of-the-soil simplicity with Westernised decadence (cf. Purab Aur Paschim, 1970). He tends to the family fields to pay for bad younger brother Puran's (Chopra) education, but Puran spends it all in a dissolute life in the city. When the villain (Puri), who had killed their father, encourages enmity between the brothers, Bharat surrenders all his property and joins the Indian Army. The villain follows him into the war and tries to kill him, but he is rescued by the crippled soldier Malang Baba (Pran, atttempting a change of screen image). Meanwhile Puran, who heads a nationwide network of smugglers and black marketeers, recants and helps the government to crack the gang. Bharat is saved in a medical operation performed by his girlfriend (Asha Parekh). Much of the strident rhetoric along with the peasant-and-soldier iconography (illustrating the Jai jawan jai kisan slogan) is in the context of India's war with Pakistan the previous year. The film's nationalism is encapsulated in its theme song Mere desh ki dharti (sung by Mahendra Kapoor), and the other hit is Lata Mangeshkar's Har khushi ho wahan.

Padmini (right) in Adhyapika

⊗Adhyapika

1968 139' b&w Malayalam
d/p P. Subramanyam pc Neela Prod. s Kanam E.J. lyr Balamurali c E.N.C. Nair
m V. Dakshinamurthy
lp Padmini, Madhu, Ambika, S.P. Pillai, Bahadur, Shanti, Aranmula Ponnamma, Leela, Meena, Shobha, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, Piravam Mani, Ramakrishna, T.K. Balachandran

Unremittingly tragic melodrama, drawing on the paingili type of popular sentimental fiction, about a middle-class schoolteacher, Saramma (Padmini). She supports her father and two siblings, but receives nothing but ingratitude. The only man in her life marries her sister, her brother refuses all responsibilities to the family when he completes his education, and her father prevents her marriage for fear of losing his only source of income. Eventually she dies of tuberculosis, sad and lonely, apparently loved only by her dog (the pet featured prominently in the poster campaign for the film). The film is designed to show off Padmini's melodramatic talents and remains one of her best-known Malayalam weepies.

⊗Apanjan

1968 123' b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Tapan Sinha pc K.L. Kapoor Prod. st Indramitra lyr Rabindranath Tagore, Atulprasad Sen c Bimal Mukherjee lp Chhaya Devi, Swarup Dutta, Samit Bhanja, Partha Mukherjee, Kalyan Chatterjee, Robi Ghosh, Bhanu Bannerjee, Dilip Roy, Premangshu Bose

Tapan Sinha's violent and cynical melodrama in response to the Naxalite student movement in Bengal (cf. Satyajit Ray's Pratidwandi, 1970 and Seemabaddha, 1971; Mrinal Sen's Calcutta trilogy). An old woman, Anandamoyee (Chhaya Devi), 'adopts' a group of lumpen youth, sensing the emotional vulnerability beneath their violent reduction of democracy to a series of gang wars. Two gangs clash when their respective political leaders (representing also the ongoing conflict between 'local' people and post-Partition migrants from East Bengal) fight an election. Anandamoyee eventually dies trying to save one of the students from a bullet. The hit film is remembered for its tightly edited portrayal of the farcical election campaign and for its climactic confrontation. The film was remade by Gulzar (Mere Apne, 1971) with Meena Kumari emulating Chhaya Devi's performance.

⊗Ashirwad aka The Blessing aka Aashirwaad

 1968 146' col Hindi
d/s Hrishikesh Mukherjee p N.C. Sippy dial/co-lyr Gulzar co-lyr Harindranath c T.B. Seetaram m Vasant Desai lp Ashok Kumar, Sanjeev Kumar, Sumita Sanyal, Veena, Sajjan, Abhi Bhattacharya

A flamboyant melodrama about a poet, Shivnath (A. Kumar) who studies folk-songs but is married to a woman who owns much land and ruthlessly extorts taxes from the local Untouchables. She even threatens to burn down their village unless they pay. At this point, the mild husband rebels and kills one of his wife's allies, which earns him a spell in jail. When he is released, he is a broken old man. He attends his daughter's wedding and offers his blessings without telling her that he is her father.

⊗Asuravithu

1968 158' b&w Malayalam
d A. Vincent pc Manoj Pics s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr P. Bhaskaran c A. Venkat
m K. Raghavan
lp Prem Nazir, Adoor Bhasi, P.J. Anthony, Shankaradi, N. Govindankutty, Nilambur Balan, Sharada, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Shanta Devi

Political melodrama sometimes considered to make a Vasudevan Nair trilogy with Vincent's Murappennu (1965) and Bhaskaran's Irutinte Atmavu (1967) about life in feudal Kerala. This one is set in the communally charged situation of violence between Hindu and Muslim communities. The rich Shankaran Nair tries to bribe his brother-in-law, the good hero Govindankutty (Nazir), to marry his daughter Meenakshi. The reason for the haste is that Meenakshi is pregnant by Govindankutty's wayward nephew Kochuppan. Govindankutty, however, refuses, and is thrown out by the family. He moves in with his Muslim friend Kunjarikkar (Anthony), a daring thing to do given the prevailing political atmosphere. He eventually converts to Islam, renaming himself Abdullah.

⊗ Bangaru Pichika

1968 145' b&w Telugu

d Bapu pc Shri Ganesh Pics s Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr Arudra c Kannappa m K.V. Mahadevan

lp Shantakumari, Vijayanirmala, Padmanjali, Chandramohan, Ramana Panthulu, Rajababu, Chalapathi Rao, 'Sakshi' Rangarao

The rich mother (Shantakumari) of hero (Chandramohan) wants him to marry but his worldly-wise father advises him to escape from his mother's clutches and to seek his own fortune. He runs away, pursued by several people seeking to collect the reward offered by his mother for locating him. A criminal gang uses one of its female members (Vijayanirmala) to lure the hero into its control. Eventually she falls in love with her target and proves to be his only true friend. The fast-paced movie is noted for its racy script, although Vijayanirmala claimed it as an art-house movie since she wore the same costume throughout.

⊗ Char Shaher Ek Kahani

aka A Tale of Four Cities

1968 16' b&w English/Hindi

d/sc/p K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar

Abbas's best-known political documentary and a notorious censorship case. Fast-paced editing intercuts touristic images of India's 'achievements' in industry and agriculture with verite long shots of Bombay's red-light area. Rhetorical devices include a shot of the first indigenously launched rocket, from the Thumba base, which freezes a missile in mid-air and turns the image into its negative to a distorted soundtrack. Shot in Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras, the film also has a dramatised sequence enacted by a real-life prostitute. Abbas was a member of the G.D. Khosla Committee on Film Censorship (New Delhi: 1969) and writes that he made the film during the committee's investigations especially to put its proclaimed political liberalism to the test. The Censor Board objected mainly to the prostitution scenes, alleging them to be pornographic. Abbas fought the case up to the Supreme Court, rejecting even the compromise of an Adult certificate, and when he won his case he shifted his legal argument to claim all forms of censorship as ultra vires, leading to Chief Justice Hidaytullah's landmark judgment on safeguards in the censorship process, including the setting up of an appellate tribunal. When Abbas later released the short, along with his Saat Hindustani (1969), he shot the mandatory censor certificate at the beginning of the copy with a zoom lens and used suspense music.

⊗ Ezhu Rathrikal

aka Seven Nights

1968 140' b&w Malayalam

d Ramu Kariat p Babu Ismail pc Kammani Films s Kaladi Gopi from his play lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Kamal Bose m Salil Choudhury

lp Alumoodam, Chachhappan, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Govindankutty, Shihaab, J.C. Kuttikkad, Kamalamma, Kamaladevi, Latha, Radhamony, K.R. Rajam, Kothamangalam Ali, Kuttan Pillai, Raghava Menon, Aravindan, Kaduvakulam Anthony

Kariat's film follows Kaladi Gopi's play in weaving together a number of melodramatic plots, realist acting conventions and the theatrical device of enclosing disparate characters into a socially ambiguous space. A number of vagabonds and social outcasts shelter every night in a dilapidated house, the dim, municipal light setting the atmosphere for their interactions. Characters include the hypocritical Pashanam Varky who exploits religious bigotry; Maria the street vendor; the ex-con Ikka, an old Muslim who murdered his unfaithful wife and is now searching for his daughter; a blind and victimised young woman; Abu, who went to jail to protect his girlfriend's father but lost his girl in the process, and the hunchback Paramu, who acts as a metaphor for a crippled but still decent moral universe. In the end, the blind girl turns out to be Ikka's long-lost daughter, tying up some of the diverse narrative strands designed to give a picture of contemporary social problems.

⊗ Goopy Gyne Bagha Byne

aka The Adventures of Goopy and Bagha

1968 132' (118') b&w/col Bengali

d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Nepal Dutta, Ashim Dutta pc Purnila Pics st Upendra Kishore Roy-Choudhury c Soumendu Roy lp Tapen Chatterjee, Robi Ghosh, Santosh Dutta, Jahar Roy, Santi Chatterjee, Harindranath Chattopadhyay, Chinmoy Roy, Durgadas Bannerjee, Govinda Chakravarty, Prasad Mukherjee, Haradhan Mukherjee, Abani Chatterjee, Khagen Pathak, Binoy Bose

Ray's children's fantasy is his first major commercial success and became a cult movie in Bengal. It is a fairy-tale about ghosts and kings written originally by his grandfather and published in 1914. The impoverished amateur musicians Goopy (T. Chatterjee) and Bagha (R. Ghosh), banished for their inept playing, receive a magic pair of slippers from an animated ghost-king which allow them to travel anywhere they like. They can also conjure up food. They become master performers, arriving in the kingdom of Shundi whose king (Dutta) makes them his court musicians. The twin brother of this king (Dutta again), who rules neighbouring Halla, is held prisoner by his despotic and warlike prime minister (J. Roy). The musical duo are captured by the prime minister but they escape and, with a series of magical effects, overthrow the villain and live 'happily ever after' having married two princesses. The film mobilises a range of sources from Lewis Carroll to the bawdy Bengali jatra, held together by the sheer cinephilia which animates the performances, the sets and the soundtrack. The high point is the spectacular ghost dance followed by the rhyming dialogue of the ghost-king amid flashing lights. The dance, nearly 7' long and set to percussion music, calls on mime, shadow puppetry and Pat painting traditions and is shot with shimmering effects and negative images to tell of the four classes of colonial society: well-fed Brahmins, kings, peasantry and the colonial bureaucracy. The melange of musical styles, from keertan to Carnatic, and local folk idioms, as used e.g. for Barfi the magician (Chattopadhyay) talk of war, power and greed. Ray felt the film was probably unique, although it coincides with French, British and Italian comic-strip-inspired films of the mid-60s. Ray made a sequel, Hirak Rajar Deshe (1980), and his son Sandeep continued with Goopy Bagha Phere Elo (1991). Salman Rushdie, in a tribute to the enduring appeal of this loveable duo, introduced them briefly in his children's novel Haroun and the Sea of Stories (1990).

⊗ Hannel e Chiguridaga

1968 161' b&w Kannada

d/sc M.R. Vittal pc Srikanth & Srikanth Ents p Srikanth Nahata, Srikanth Patel st Triveni's novel dial/lyr R.N. Jayagopal c Srikanth, Kumar m M. Ranga Rao

lp R. Nagendra Rao, Rajkumar, Kalpana, Arun Kumar, B.V. Radha, Ranga, Dinesh, Pradhan, Jayakumar, Premalatha, Jayashree, Papamma, Indira George, Baby Rani

An orthodox patriarch (Nagendra Rao) is upset when one of his five sons (Arun Kumar) wants to marry a theatre actress (Premalatha). The old man's daughter Malathi (Kalpana) is widowed and her friend Prasad (Rajkumar), who had arranged Malathi's marriage, also loses his wife. The patriarch refuses to let Malathi marry Prasad, leading to extensive debate and a revolt within the family before he relents. The original novel, working within a social reform tradition, strongly advocated widow remarriage, but the film weakened the arguments to avoid questioning the legitimacy of patriarchal despotism. One of veteran Kannada thespian Nagendra Rao's best-known roles. The film also has the Kannada song hit Hoovu cheluvela endendithu.

⊗ Hasina Maan Jayegi

1968 165' col Hindi

d/co-lyr Prakash Mehra pc Mangatram Films s S.M. Abbas co-lyr Qamar Jalalabadi, Akhtar

Roomani, Kafeel Azar c N. Satyen m Kalyanji-Anandji

lp Shashi Kapoor, Babita, Johnny Walker, Amita, Yunus Pervez, Manmohan Krishna, Niranjan Sharma, Hari Shivdasani, Sapru, Brahm Bhardwaj

Two identical look-alikes Kamal and Ramesh (Kapoor in both roles) love Archana (Babita). She loves Kamal, but often mistakes the one for the other. The evil Ramesh tries to take advantage of this resemblance to have Kamal kidnapped on the day of their marriage, but becomes the victim of his own ploy when his henchmen make the same error as everyone else. The plot expands to take in the India-China War (1962), as Kamal enlists and Ramesh once again tries to kill him. When only one of the two emerges from a muddy pond, the audience is inducted into the confusion as Archana, who initially accepts the man as her husband, starts getting suspicious and eventually has him arrested for impersonation. It is only when Ramesh reappears that the man she has been living with is revealed to be indeed her husband. Mehra (cf. Zanjeer, 1973, Muqaddar Ka Sikandar, 1978) in his debut reveals only one element of his trademark plotting in this convoluted film, that of Kamal's illegitimacy and unknown parentage.

Kanavan

1968 152' b&w Tamil
d P. Neelakantan pc Vali Films p Satiappan st M.G. Ramachandran dial Sornam lyr Alangudi Somu, Vali c V. Ramamurthy m M.S. Vishwanathan lp M.G. Ramachandran, Jayalalitha, Vijayakumari, Vasantha, Kannan, Ashokan, Manohar, Cho, Manorama, Rama Rao, Sundaribai, Shanmughasundari, Kannaiah, Justin, Soundararajan, Venkatraman

The self-willed Rani (Jayalalitha) does not want to marry, but according to her father's will she cannot inherit her property until she does. She marries Valaiyan (MGR), a prisoner on death row, but Valaiyan is acquitted of the murder charge when a documentary showing a Prosperity Brigade rally proves his alibi.

Leel udi Dharti

1968 138' col Gujarati
d Vallabh Choksi pc K.V. Films st Chunilal Madia sc Manu Desai dial Jitubhai P. Mehta lyr Avinash Vyas c A.G. Dhanik m Purushottam Upadhyay, Gaurang Vyas lp Daisy Irani, Mahesh Desai, Kala Shah, Champsibhai Nagda, Upendra Kumar, Kishore Bhatt, Mahendra Zaveri, Shashikant Bhat, Veena Prabhu, Vanlata Mehta, Shirin, Sudha Zaveri, Arvind Kamdar, Suvarna Kapadia

The first Gujarati colour feature mixes fertility rituals with rural melodrama in an adaptation of Chunilal Madia's short story. One of the three sons of farmer Hada Patel falls in love with the accursed Santu Rangili, accused of having caused a drought. The accusation is confirmed when her child is stillborn. She and her marriage are rehabilitated when an other woman abandons her own child in favour of Santu. Eventually, when another of the farmer's sons returns, having become a holy man, the family settles down 'to make the earth greener'.

Mahatma - Life Of Gandhi

1869-1948

1968 330' b&w English
d/s Vithalbhai Jhaveri pc Gandhi National Memorial Fund m Vishnudas Shirali

Landmark compilation documentary on Gandhi, made with the assistance of D.G. Tendulkar, the author of the 8 vol. biography Mahatma, which is the source of the film's narrative. Edited down from over 50 hours of footage assembled by Gandhi's son Devdas, the film chronicles political events with little analysis e.g. the famous salt agitation, the Swadeshi movement, village reconstruction programmes, Gandhi's march through the communal riots in Noakhali, his fast which almost singlehandedly forced an end to the Partition riots, etc. These events are intercut with footage revealing Gandhi's unfamiliarity with world literature, his controversially conservative positions on birth control and his statement that under socialism all property would belong to God. Although there is very little material of Gandhi actually speaking, the film has been used as a standard reference for Gandhian iconography (cf. Attenborough's biographical). Tendulkar, known mainly for his biography, studied film in Germany and Moscow and may briefly have been a student of Eisenstein. Director Jhaveri is a former jeweller and freedom fighter.

Padosan

1968 157' col Hindi
d Jyoti Swaroop pc Mehmood Prod. st Arun Choudhury's Pasher Bari sc/dial/lyr Rajinder Krishen c K.H. Kapadia m R.D. Burman lp Sunil Dutt, Saira Banu, Kishore Kumar, Mehmood, Om Prakash, Mukri, Agha, Keshto Mukherjee

Slapstick musical comedy in which the innocent Bhola (Dutt) gives up his commitment to celibacy when he falls for sexy neighbour Bindu (Saira Banu). His rivals in love are his own uncle (Prakash) and Bindu's traditionalist Carnatic music teacher (Mehmood). He, however, wins his girl with the assistance of the crooked guru (K. Kumar), when he serenades her using the guru for a musical playback. The high point of the film is a zany take-off on the jugalbandi (musical contest) between the guru and the Carnatic musician (Ek chatur naar karke singaar, sung by Manna Dey and Kumar). The original Bengali story had previously been filmed by Sudhir Mukherjee (Pasher Bari, 1952), C. Pullaiah (Pakkinti Ammayi, 1953) and Raghavaiah (Adutha VeetuPenn, 1960).

Pudhiya Bhoomi

1968 144' b&w Tamil
d Tapi Chanakya pc Jayanti Films, Jayaar

Movies p K. Shankaran, Arumugham sc V.C. Guhanathan dial S.S. Thenmarasu lyr Kannadasan, Poovai Senguttuvan c P.N. Sundaram m M.S. Vishwanathan lp M.G. Ramachandran, Jayalalitha, M.N. Nambiar, S.A. Ashokan, T.S. Muthaiah, Sheila, Trichy Sundarajan, Nagesh, S. Ramarao, Pandharibai, Ramapriya

Bandits kidnap Dr Katheeravan (MGR) to treat their ailing leader in his secret lair and send him back, attaching a bomb to his car. Katheeravan survives the blast and is nursed to health by a girl in a remote village, Kannamma (Jayalalitha). He sets up a hospital in the village, causing problems for the bandit chief Kankeyan (Nambiar), who informs Katheeravan's urban fiancée (Sheila) of her lover's village affair. Eventually, Kannamma turns out to be the bandit's daughter. Although not a mainstream DMK film, it included the mandatory political symbology: the hero's name Katheeravan (the sun) refers to the DMK party symbol; the hero reveals his social consciousness as much through his medical commitment to the villagers as through rejecting his city-bred fiancée to marry a rural woman.

Sangharsh

1968 ? col Hindi
d/co-sc H.S. Rawail pc Rahul Theatres st Mahashweta Devi's story co-sc Anjana Rawail dial Gulzar, Abrar Alvi lyr Shakeel Badayuni c R.D. Mathur m Naushad lp Dilip Kumar, Vijayanthimala, Balraj Sahni, Sanjeev Kumar, Jayant, Durga Khote, Sulochana, Sundar, Iftikhar, Sapru, Mumtaz Begum, Padma, Urmila, Mehmood Jr., Master Arun, Kamaldeep, Jagdish Raj, Master Levy, Ram Mohan

Big melodrama set in the 19th C. Thuggee, a cult of bandits in Central India. Bhawani Prasad (Jayant), a legendary bandit whose own relatives have threatened to destroy him, adopts his grandson Kundan against the wishes of his wife (Khote) in order to initiate him into the ancestral profession. The boy, however, grows up (D. Kumar) into a pacifist. When his cousins (Sahni, Sanjeev Kumar) try to kill him, he is saved by a mysterious dancer (Vijayanthimala). The original story was by noted Marxist novelist Mahashweta Devi.

Saraswaticandra

1968 156' b&w Hindi
d Govind Saraiya pc Sarvodaya Pics st Govardhanram Tripathi's novel sc Vrajendra Gaur dial Ali Raza lyr Indivar c Nariman Irani m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Nutan, Manish, Vijaya Choudhury, Sulochana, Sulochana Chatterjee, Ramesh Deo, Seema, B.M. Vyas, Surendra, Babu Raje, Jeevan Kala, Madhumati

Set in the 19th C. and adapting the most important reform novel in Gujarati (1887-1901). The rich Saraswaticandra (Manish) is to marry Kumud (Nutan), daughter of a neighbouring dewan. Initially committed to nationalism and reluctant to marry, he changes his mind when he falls in love with his fiancée. However, a jealous sister-in-law forces him to leave his ancestral residence, and Kumud is forced into marrying a drunk and a debauchee (Dev). She tries to commit suicide but is rescued by the nuns in a reformist charitable mission. Here she once again meets her former betrothed. Following the death of her degenerate husband, she is free to remarry, and is indeed encouraged by her family to do so, but instead she dedicates her life to charitable work. The 19th C. novelist Tripathi had been personally opposed to widow remarriage, contradicting his otherwise progressive reformism (cf. Sudhir Chandra, 1992). Extraordinarily, a century later, the film endorses this attitude with a variety of melodramatic effects, making a contemporary love story with silhouetted split-lighting and a sentimental soundtrack even though the story is periodised by a commentary and 'period' decor. One of Nutan's typical performances of reformist romance fiction, the film is known for some major song hits including Phool tumhe bheja hai khat mein, Chandan sa badan and Main to bhool chali babul ka des.

Nutan and Manish in Saraswathichandra

lyr Kannadasan m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Sivaji Ganesan, T.S. Balaiah, Padmini, Manorama, A.V.M. Rajan, M.N. Nambiar, K.A. Thangavelu, Chittor V. Nagaiah,
C.K. Saraswathi, C.K. Nagesh, K. Balaji

A major hit celebrating nostalgia, set in the Kaveri delta in TN, the nursery of many dance and music traditions, the plot features a musical contest and love story between dancer Mohanambal (Padmini) and the nadaswaram player Sikkil Shanmugha-sundaram (Ganesan). The love story, overcoming many hurdles presented mainly by the dancer's mother and her rich suitor Nagalingam (Balaji), reaches a happy ending and the couple bids farewell to the audience from the wedding dais when 'tradition', so crucial to Nagarajan's neo-traditionalism, has been valorised. Although the film claimed to represent 'classical' art, using noted nadaswaram players Sethuraman and Ponnuswamy dubbing the hero's performances, and Padmini in probably her most elaborate Bharat Natyam film performance, its aesthetics are borrowed mainly from the commercial theatre with a mise en scene using mostly frontal shots, even lining up the characters to deliver their lines facing the camera. A major song hit was Nallamdana (sung by P. Susheela). Nagarajan, a former TKS Brothers employee, pays tribute to Sankaradas Swamigal (a major theatrical figure from whom the TKS group traced its ancestry) by naming a drama company after him and providing cameo roles for many old stage actors (Balaiah, K. Sarangapani, Chittor V. Nagaiah, M.N. Nambiar, S.V. Sahasranamam, E.R. Sahadevan, P.T. Sambandham, K.A. Thangavelu and A. Karunanidhi). References to the courtesan tradition, horse-drawn carriages and palaces suggest a 19th C. setting, but contemporary images of Madurai and Thanjavur railway junctions belie this. Similarly, actual locations are mixed in with a fictional town, Madanpur, ruled by an achkan-clad king with a Western wife, turning the entire film into a fantasy scene.

Thirichadi

1968 145' b&w Malayalam
d/p Kunchako pc Excel Prod. st Kanam E.J.
sc S.L. Puram Sadanandan lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Dattu m Sudarshanam lp Prem Nazir, Govindankutty, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, Adoor Bhasi, S.P. Pillai, Bahadur, Manavalan Joseph, Kaduvakkulam, Sheela, Pankajavalli, Adoor Pankajam, Kanchana, Devaki

The vagabond and petty thief Kuttappan (Nazir) goes to the city to discover and settle scores with his unknown father. The father had abandoned his pregnant wife and moved in with another woman. Kuttappan finds the father, and also a look-alike stepbrother, the policeman Venu (Nazir again). His way of taking revenge is to impersonate the cop and commit crimes. He also kidnaps Venu's fiancée. Major Nazir double role, and typical 60s Kanam script for the Excel Studio.

Thul abhar am

1968 152' b&w Malayalam
d A. Vincent p Hari Pothain pc Supriya Pics
s Thoppil Bhasi lyr Vyalar Rama Varma
c Bhaskar Rao m P. Devarajan
lp Prem Nazir, Madhu, Thikkurisi
Sukumaran Nair, Adoor Bhasi, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Paravoor Bharathan, Thoppil Bhasi, Sheela, Sharada, Adoor Bhawani

Vincent's political melodrama, based on Bhasi's play staged by the KPAC, tells of two friends, Vijaya (Sharada) and Vatsala (Sheela), who part ways when Vatsala's father, a lawyer, causes Vijaya's father, a businessman, to lose a case which leads to the man's death. Vijaya is forced to marry the trade unionist Ramu (Nazir) who leads a strike but dies when the strike turns violent. The suffering Vijaya kills her three starving children and is arrested before she can commit suicide. She is sent to the gallows by her former friend Vatsala, now a noted lawyer. The film is the best known of the Vincent/Bhasi collaborations (cf. Ashwamedham, 1967). It was remade with great success by Madhusudhana Rao in Telugu (Manushulu Marali, 1969) and in Hindi (Samaj Ko Badal Dalo, 1970). All three films featured Sharada, and collectively they represent her best-known screen image.

Thil I ana Mohanambal

aka Dancer Mohanambal
1968 175' col Tamil
d A.P. Nagarajan pc Shri Vijayalakshmi Pics
s Kothamangalam Subbu c K.S. Prasad

Varakatnam

1968 176' b&w Telugu

d/s N.T. Rama Rao pc Ramakrishna/NAT Combines dial Maddipatla Suri, Samudrala Ramanujacharya lyr Kosaraju, C. Narayana Reddy c Ravikant Nagaich m T.V. Raju lp N.T. Rama Rao, Krishnakumari, Nagabhushanam, Hemalatha, Savitri, Satyanarayana, Chandrakala, Suryakantam, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Padmanabham, Ravi Kondala Rao

Anti-dowry melodrama in which Meesala Venkaiah (Nagabhushanam), who wants his son Devasimha (NTR) to marry in a manner befitting the father's social status, demands a dowry of Rs 50,000. The marriage is stopped just before the ceremony is completed. Eventually the groom marries the bride, after overcoming the oppressive attitudes of his family. The film includes a parallel narrative of another groom who, in a situation similar to the hero's, marries the bride anyway, which leads to the woman being exploited by her husband's family in various ways.

Adimagal

aka Slaves

1969 145' b&w Malayalam

d K.S. Sethumadhavan p M.O. Joseph pc Manjilas Cine Ents s Thoppil Bhasi from M.K. Menon's novel lyr Vyalar Rama Varma
c Mehli Irani m P. Devarajan
lp Sathyan, Prem Nazir, Sheela, Sharada, Adoor Bhawani, Adoor Bhasi, Shankaradi, Bahadur, Jaycee, N. Govindankutty, Bharathan, Ammini, Kuttan Pillai, Padmini, Kumudam

Ponnamma (Sharada), the beautiful servant of the devout Saraswathi Amma, is seduced and made pregnant by Saraswathi's brother Anandan, an office worker. Ponnamma is thrown out of Saraswathi's house, but finds shelter with a progressive-minded neighbour, Appukuttan (Sathyan), who brings the absconded Anandan back and forces him to offer to marry Ponnamma. She refuses and prefers to marry the deaf-mute odd job man Raghavan (Nazir) who has loved her all along. Saraswathi finally realises that her religious gullibility caused much suffering, and she discards her saffron robes in favour of a new life (to be reached by train) with the tolerant Appukuttan. The film is adapted from a novel by Pammen aka M.K. Menon.

Adimai Penn

1969 180' col Tamil

d K. Shankar p MGR Pictures
sc R.M. Veerappan, Vidwan V. Lakshmanan, S.K.D. Sami c V. Ramamurthy lyr Vali, Alagudi Somu, Avinasiarani, Pulamaipithan
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp M.G. Ramachandran, Ashokan, R.S. Manohar, O.A.K. Thevar, Jayalalitha, Pandharibai, Jothilakshmi, Rajshri

Chengodan of Soorakadu lusts after Mangamma, the wife of the chieftain of Vengaimalai. When the woman cuts off her unwelcome suitor's leg, he takes revenge by enslaving all the women of Vengaimalai and beheading all the men. However, Mangamma's son Vengaiyyan (MGR), kept in a cell since childhood, escapes the slaughter and grows up to become an illiterate hunchback who, with the help of a slave woman, eventually reconquers his ancestral domain and kills the tyrant.

Aparichita

1969 ? b&w Bengali

d/sc Salil Dutta pc R.D. Prod. st Samaresh Bose lyr Pranab Roy c Bijoy Ghosh m Robin Chatterjee

lp Uttam Kumar, Soumitra Chatterjee, Aparna Sen, Sandhya Roy, Bikash Roy, Utpal Dutt, Haradhan Bannerjee, Dilip Roy

Bizarre and spectacular psychodrama based on Samaresh Bose's novel with overtones of Dostoevsky's The Idiot. Sunita (Sen), forced into prostitution by her 'respectable' politician-employer Priyanath, is abducted by the gangster Ranjan (Kumar) from a nightclub. She travels with Ranjan as though in a dream, and when she is rescued meets a similarly disoriented and unbelievably naive Sujit (Chatterjee) who has just recovered from a mental breakdown. When Sunita's marriage is arranged, mainly to avoid scandal, she tries to elope with Sujit but Ranjan prevents it. Eventually, Ranjan, unable to subdue her, kills Sunita and lands in jail, while Sujit has a second breakdown. The film is known mainly for Chatterjee's remarkable performance.

Aradhana

1969 169' col Hindi

d/p Shakti Samanta pc Shakti Films s Sachin Bhowmick dial Ramesh Pant lyr Anand Bakshi c Aloke Dasgupta m S.D. Burman lp Rajesh Khanna, Sharmila Tagore, Sujit Kumar, Pahadi Sanyal, Anita Dutt, Abhi Bhattacharya, Madan Puri, Asit Sen, Subhash
Ghai, Farida Jalal

The musical romance about non-family-sanctioned sex that established Khanna as a major star backed by the singing voice of Kishore Kumar and Burman's music. The film helped set the pattern for 70s entertainment cinema. Arun (Khanna), an Air Force officer, secretly marries Vandana (Tagore) who bears him a son. Arun dies in an air crash. Vandana is rejected by Arun's family as his legal wife. To safeguard her son's honour, she decides to let him be adopted by a childless couple while making sure she is responsible for raising the child by becoming his nanny. She devotes the rest of her life to raising her son to become an air force pilot like his father. Khanna plays both father and son. Remembered mainly for its music with e.g. Mere sapnon ki rani and Kora Kaagaz. The film's best-known song, Roop tera mastana (sung by Kishore Kumar), was picturised in a single 4' take deploying the conventional cloudburst as a metaphor for sex as the drenched heroine, clad only in a blanket, succumbs to the hero's advances after a sexual encounter in the next room has been shown in silhouette. This sequence was for years presented to students of Indian film schools as the definitive example of mise en scene.

Aranyer Din Ratri

aka Days and Nights in the Forest

1969 115' b&w Bengali

d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Nepal Dutta, Ashim Dutta pc Priya Films st Sunil Ganguly's novel
c Soumendu Roy, Purnendu Bose lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Subhendu Chatterjee, Samit Bhanja, Robi Ghosh, Pahadi Sanyal, Sharmila Tagore, Kaberi Bose, Simi Garewal, Aparna Sen

Four young male Bengali urban stereotypes leave Calcutta for a holiday in the forest of Palamau, Bihar: the suave executive and former political activist Ashim (Soumitra Chatterjee), the middle-class Sanjoy (Subhendu Chatterjee), the sportsman Hari (Bhanja) and the insecure comedian Sekhar (Ghosh). They bribe a caretaker and hire a government bungalow in the forest where they meet the sophisticated Aparna (Tagore) and her widowed sister-in-law, Jaya (Bose). Completing the ensemble is the sexy Santhal tribal Duli (Garewal). The film moves in a series of episodes as Ashim falls for Aparna and then has some embarrassing encounters which shake his patriarchal attitudes. The climactic sequence takes place at a village fair as the group splits up into couples: Hari seduces the tribal woman, Sanjoy is unable to accept Jaya's overtures, Aparna's tragic autobiography causes Ashim to replay some of the anxieties of his predecessors in previous Chatterjee roles in Ray's films (cf. Charulata, 1964; Kapurush, 1965). The many references to Bengali literature, colonial history and recent political events provide the viewer with an array of clues to some pervasive but unspoken off-screen enigma which has taken the place of the 'crime' which usually powers this type of plot. This use of a suggested trauma, indirectly shaping the lives of the characters as they try not to deal with it, was taken up by other Bengali New Indian Cinema directors (cf. B. Dasgupta's work) to deal with middle-class ambivalence and guilt in the face of the political events of the 70s (cf. Naxalite). It also informed Ray's own Calcutta trilogy, begun shortly after this film.

Bandhan

1969 159' col Hindi

d/s Narendra Bedi pc Sippy Films dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Anjaan, Indivar
c K. Vaikunth m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Rajesh Khanna, Mumtaz, Anju Mahendru, Jeevan, Kanhaiyalal, Achala Sachdev, Aruna Irani, Sundar, Ratnamala, Sapru, Kamal Kapoor, Meena, Birbal, Rajindernath, Keshav Rana, Roopesh Kumar, Narmada Shankar, Baldev
Mehta

Ruralist melodrama featuring Khanna as Dharma who grows up haunted by a thieving, alcoholic, wife-beating father, Jeevanlal (Jeevan), who even steals his own daughter's jewels on her wedding day. Dharma manages a meagre living tilling his land until his father assigns it to the wicked moneylender Malik Ram (Kanhaiyalal), whose daughter Gauri (Mumtaz) is Dharma's beloved. Malik Ram takes over Dharma's field, and when his father is killed Dharma is arrested for the murder until the truth emerges. The film continued the Do Raaste (1969) star combination of Khanna and Mumtaz, with several musical hits including Bina badara ke bijuriya kaise chamke (sung by Mukesh).

⊗ Bhuvan Shome

1969 111' (96') b&w Hindi
d/p/sc Mrinal Sen pc Mrinal Sen Prod.
st Banaphool dial Satendra Sharat, Badrinath
c K.K. Mahajan m Vijay Raghava Rao lp Suhasini Mulay, Utpal Dutt, Sadhu Meher, Shekhar Chatterjee, Rochak Pandit, Punya Das; voice over by Amitabh Bachchan

Sen's breakthrough film, a low-budget, FFC-sponsored hit, is sometimes seen as the origin of New Indian Cinema. The story, set in the late 40s just after Independence, was sarcastically summarised by Satyajit Ray as 'Big Bad Bureaucrat Reformed by Rustic Belle'. It is a satirical comedy about the upright Bengali railway officer Bhuvan Shome (Dutt). He sacks a corrupt ticket collector (Meher) before going off on a duck-shooting expedition in Gujarat. There, in the dunes of Saurashtra, he meets the village belle Gauri (Mulay) who turns out to be the wife of the man he sacked. He has a long, and unstated, sexual/cultural encounter with her, enjoying the attention she lavishes upon him even as he remains anxious about his sudden loss of authority. He returns determined to enjoy life to the full. Sen described his first Hindi feature as Tati-inspired nonsense and suggested that the ending, with the 'humanised' bureaucrat boisterously disrupting the office routine, is difficult to grasp 'unless you grant Mr Shome a certain touch of insanity. As you examine the sequence, you will see that the same can be said about the editing pattern, all erratic and illogical.' Mulay went on to become a noted maker of radical documentaries while occasionally acting in independent films.

⊗ Buddhimanthudu

1969 187' b&w Telugu
d/sc Bapu pc Chitrakalpana Films p N.S. Murthy st/dial Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr Arudra, Kosaraju, Dasarathi, C. Narayana Reddy
c Venkatarathnam m K.V. Mahadevan lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Nagabhushanam, Krishnamraju, 'Sakshi' Rangarao, Vijayanirmala, Sandhyarani, Suryakantam, Shantakumari, Shobhan Babu, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Allu Ramalingaiah

Bapu's rationalist critique of religion. Madhavacharya (Nageshwara Rao), a temple priest, goes into mystic trances when he encounters the god Krishna. Consequently, he is both believed to have magic powers and ridiculed for his mystic mumbo-jumbo. His brother (Nageshwara Rao again, in a double role), a rationalist, argues that it is not temples but schools that will lead to progress. There is also a love story subplot between the rationalist brother and the virtuous village belle (Vijayanirmala).

⊗ Dr Bezbaruwa

1969 ? b&w Assamese
d/s Brojen Barua pc Ranghar Cine Prod. c Sujit Singha m Ramen Barua lp Nipon Goswami, Brojen Barua, Meghali Devi, Tarun Duara, Ranjana Bordoloi, Protibha Thakur, Junu Barua, Sadhan Hazarika

Romance and crime thriller and major Assamese hit. Although consciously modelled on the Bombay formula, the film was made with local personnel and technical resources, launching the possibility of a self-sustaining film industry in the region.

⊗ Do Raaste

1969 165' col Hindi
d/p Raj Khosla pc Raj Khosla Films st Chandrakant Kakodkar's novel Nilambiri
sc G. R. Kamath lyr Anand Bakshi
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Rajesh Khanna, Mumtaz, Balraj Sahni, Prem Chopra, Bindu, Kamini Kaushal, Veena, Mohan Choti, Asit Sen, Randhir, Birbal, Leela Mishra, Shivraj, Shah Agha, Uma Dutt, Ravikant, Anand Tiwari, Kumud Bole, Jayant, Krishnakant

Along with Aradhana (1969), this film, released within weeks of the former title, established Khanna as a major star. Navendu's (Sahni) stepmother (Veena) treats him like her own son. When his father dies, Navendu has the responsibility of looking after his stepmother and stepbrothers (Khanna and Chopra) which leads to conflict when one of them (Chopra) decides to marry a shrewish 'modern' girl (Bindu). Most of the film is a Khanna-Mumtaz romance culminating in the famous Bindiya chamkegi song sung by Lata Mangeshkar.

⊗ Ittefaq

1969 104' col Hindi
d Yash Chopra pc B.R. Films st B.R. Films Story Dept dial Akhatar-Ul-Iman c Kay Gee
m Salil Choudhury
lp Rajesh Khanna, Nanda, Sujit Kumar, Bindu, Gajanan Jagirdar, Madan Puri, Iftikhar, Shammi, Jagdish Raj, Alka

Low-budget, songless suspense drama in which the hero Dilip Roy (Khanna), accused of having murdered his wife and pronounced mentally insane, escapes from an asylum and finds refuge in the house of a young but married woman. He sees the corpse of her husband in the bathroom, but it disappears. Shot mainly on sets, the taut editing keeps the whodunit plot enigmatic until the ending resolves the suspense. It is one of Khanna's pre-Aradhana (1969) hits. Apparently, he appeared unshaven in Raj Khosla's Do Raaste (1969) because he had to be unshaven for Ittefaq and was shooting the two films simultaneously.

⊗ Janmabhoomi

aka Motherland
 1969 130' b&w Malayalam
d/s John Shankaramangalam pc Rooparekha lyr P. Bhaskaran c Ashok Kumar
m B.A. Chidambaranath
lp Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, S.P. Pillai, Madhu, Manavalan Joseph, Janardhanan, T.R. Ramchand, Ushakumari, Shobha, T.R. Omana, Snehalatha, L.V. Sharada Rao, Baby Saroja

A melodrama about acculturation as a poor family of Christian Syrians from Central Travancore resettle on a jungle farm in the wilds of Wynad in North Malabar. After succumbing to social pressures (incarnated by the local zamindar) and to natural ones (some of the family's children are drowned in a local river, others are trampled by a rogue elephant), the family's heroic son, Johnny, finally overcomes the rogue elephant and returns in triumph to the village where henceforth he will assume his rightful position in the community.

⊗ Kanku

1969 148' (99') b&w Gujarati
d/p/sc Kantilal Rathod pc Akar Films st Pannalal Patel c Kumar Jaywant m Dilip Dholakia lp Pallavi Mehta, Kishore Jariwala, Kishore Bhatt, Arvind Joshi

Reformist Gujarati tale introducing New Indian Cinema to the language. Kanku (Mehta) is a village maiden widowed while she is still pregnant. The rather static and verbose film tells of her relationship with a local grocer, Malakchand (Bhatt). Refusing to remarry, she devotes her life to her son and arranges his marriage with the grocer's help. Afterwards, she and the grocer make love, which would normally have led to their ostracism, but Kanku struggles to retain her honour.

⊗ Kaval Daivam

aka The Guardian Deity
 1969 145' b&w Tamil
d K. Vijayan pc Ambal Prod. st Jayakanthan's Kai Vilangu [Handcuffs] lyr Mayavanathan, Thanjai Vanan, Nellai Arulmani c R. Vijayan
m S. Devarajan
lp S.V. Subbaiah, Sivaji Ganesan, Nagesh, Sivakumar, M.N. Nambiar, Laxmi, Sowcar Janaki, T.S. Balaiah, R. Muthuraman, V.K. Ramaswamy, S.A. Ashokan,
 O.A.K. Thevar, V. Gopalakrishnan, Shakti Sukumaran

One of the better-known filmic translations of Jayakanthan's fiction, the noted Tamil novelist and former CPI member who later joined the Congress and who also had a brief film career as scenarist and producer. Mainly an ode to the humanity of a childless jail warden Raghavan (Subbaiah) who treats the prisoners as his children, equating him with Ayyanar, the guardian deity of Tamil villages. The main plot features the farmer Manikam (Sivakumar), a peasant who wounds his brutal rival and becomes a prisoner. There is a second plot, added especially for the film, with a toddy-tapper (Ganesan) who killed the two men who raped his daughter. He is caught and hanged. The film's highlight was the inclusion of several of Tamil Nadu's best-known folk forms, the therukoothu (including its famous exponent Purisai Natesathambiran performing The Destruction of Hiranyan), the karagam dance and the villupattu. The film has only two songs and emphasises village life and rural forms of worship, unusual in Tamil cinema.

⊗ Mattukkara Velan

1969 173' col Tamil
d P. Neelakantan pc Jayanthi Films
p N. Kanakabai dial A.L. Narayanan lyr Kannadasan, Vali c V. Ramamurthy
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp M.G. Ramachandran, Jayalalitha, Laxmi, S. Varalakshmi, S.A. Ashokan,
 V.K. Ramaswamy

Classic MGR double role where he plays the title role of the cowherd Velan and the urbane lawyer Raghu. Their lovers (Jayalalitha and Lakshmi respectively) mistake the men for each other, providing the cowherd with an opportunity to help locate a murderer in a case that has baffled the lawyer, and also to claim the rich heiress whose father had earlier thrown him out of his house. The MGR political formula, which M.S.S. Pandian (1992) describes as 'the hero's use of literacy as a weapon of struggle against oppression [c]ontrasted with its use as a weapon of oppression in the hands of the elite' (cf. Padakotti, 1964; Enga Veetu Pillai, 1965) is most typically demonstrated in this film. It was remade as cinematographer turned director Ravikant Nagaich's Jigri Dost (1969) starring Jeetendra.

⊗ Megh-o-Roudra

aka Sun and Showers
 1969 116' b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Arundhati Devi p Ajitesh Bandyopadhyay pc K.L. Kapur Prod.
st Rabindranath Tagore c Bimal Mukherjee lp Nripati Chatterjee, Hashu Bannerjee, Prahlad Brahmachari, Prasad Mukherjee, Swaroop Datta, Gautam Ghosh, Sushil Chakravarty, Bankim Ghosh, Monojit Lahiri, Bhabharup Bhattacharya, Balai Sen, Satu Majumdar, Samar Nag

Arundhati Devi aka Mukherjee's 2nd feature after the critically acclaimed Chhuti (1967). Megh-o-Roudra tells of a strong young woman in British-ruled 19th C. Bengal. Struggling to affirm her human dignity in her village, she learns to read and write under the tutorship of a stubborn and impetuous law student who constantly challenges the British colonists and is eventually jailed. By the time he is released, the woman has become a prosperous widow. When they meet, she bows courteously to pay homage to the bedraggled man who helped her achieve self-confidence.

⊗ Nadhi

1969 133' col Malayalam
d A Vincent pc Supriya Prod. st P.J. Anthony sc Thoppil Bhasi lyr Vyalar Rama Varma
c P.N. Sundaram, A. Venkat m P. Devarajan
lp Prem Nazir, Madhu, Thikkurisi
Sukumaran Nair, P.J. Anthony, Adoor Bhasi, Shankaradi, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Sharada, Ambika, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Adoor Bhawani

Vincent's colour debut also represented a more dramatic style of plotting than his Thoppil Bhasi and Vasudevan Nair b&w scripts. The families of Varkey and Thomman rekindle their ancient feud when they happen to hire adjacent boathouses on the Alwaye lake. However, Varkey's daughter Stella (Sharada) falls in love with Thomman's son Johnny (Nazir). The dramatic highlight, when the infant daughter of Stella's sister falls and is drowned, also leads to the reconciliation. Several songs were major hits.

⊗ Nam Naadu

1969 186' col Tamil
d Jambulingam pc Vijaya International p B. Nagi Reddy, Chakrapani st Mullapudi Venkatramana dial Sornam lyr Vali
c B.N. Konda Reddy, T.M. Sundarababu
m M.S. Vishwanathan, Swaminathan lp M.G. Ramachandran, Jayalalitha, S.V. Ranga Rao, K.A. Thangavelu,
 S.A. Ashokan, Nagesh, Bhagavati, S.V.
 Ramadas, Manohar, Thanjai Ramaiyadas, Pandharibai, Baby Padmini, Sridevi,
 S.V.Sahasranamam, K.R. Ramaswamy, Chittoor
V. Nagaiah, Mukkamala Krishnamurthy

MGR, who would soon be expelled from the DMK, here turned the DMK propaganda discourse against the Party. The philanthropists and pillars of society, a doctor, a builder and a merchant, led by the rich Dharmalingam, are in fact villains dealing in crime and the black market. They are exposed when the nationalist Dorai (MGR) masquerades as a foreign-returned millionaire dealing in contraband. He gets the villains to confess to their deeds before a hidden camera. The film was remade in Hindi with Rajesh Khanna as Apra Desh (1972).

⊗ Nanak Naam Jahaz Hai

1969 140' col Punjabi
d/s Ram Maheshwari p Pannalal Maheshwari
c D.K. Prabhakar m S. Mahindra

⊗ Khamoshi

1969 127' b&w Hindi
d Asit Sen pc Geetanjali Pics st Ashutosh Mukherjee dial/lyr Gulzar c Kamal Bose
m Hemanta Mukherjee
lp Rajesh Khanna, Waheeda Rehman, Dharmendra, Nasir Hussain, Lalita Pawar, Snehalata, Iftekhar

The first of Sen's tragic melodramas with Hindi star Khanna (followed by Safar, 1970). The nurse Radha (Rehman) has to pretend to fall in love with her male patients, as part of the therapy in a mental asylum. The first time she does this, she actually falls in love, and is devastated when her cured patient (Dharmendra) merely thanks her and leaves to marry his fiancée. When it threatens to happen once again, with a few variations, with her second patient (Khanna), the nurse goes insane. Hindi remake of Sen's classic Deep Jweley Jai (1959), rescued like its predecessor mainly by soft-focus b&w photography and classic songs like composer Mukherjee's Tum pukar lo, tumhara intezar hai and Woh shyam kuch ajeeb thi (sung by Kishore Kumar).

Hashu Bannerjee (right) in Megh-o-Roudra

Ip Prithviraj Kapoor, Vimi, Nishi, Som Dutt, Suresh, Veena, I.S. Johar

Epic fable with a major cultural impact on Punjabi Sikhs at home and abroad. It is also the last of the great Saint films, although not a biographical of Guru Nanak but a devotional movie addressing his teachings. Made for the 500th anniversary of the saint's birth and apparently inspired by legends around the Golden Temple in Amritsar, the film tells of Gurmukh Singh (Kapoor) and his equally devout son Gurmeet (Dutt). Gurmukh treats his partner Prem Singh as a younger brother until a business dispute ends their relationship. Prem Singh's wife Ratan Kaur (Nishi), influenced by the villain Shukha, wants the son Gurmeet to marry her niece Channi (Vimi); however, in an argument she accidentally blinds him. The blind Gurmeet, a repentant Ratan Kaur and Gurmeet's fiancée Channi (dressed as a man) set out on a pilgrimage of atonement to all the Sikh shrines. The troubled relationship and unconsummated marriage between Gurmeet and Channi is eventually resolved at the Golden Temple where, in answer to Channi's prayers, a miracle causes Gurmeet's eyesight to return while destroying that of the original villain Shukha. The classic musical, extensively quoting from the basic Sikh text, the Granth Sahib, is the first big hit in post-Independence Punjabi cinema, badly hit by Partition and the loss of its Lahore base as well as by the Pakistan government's decision (1953) to ban the import of Indian films. Much of its devotional fervour comes from the region's troubled political history (references include a documentary opening showing the festival celebrating Nanak's anniversary in the presence of Abdul Gaffar Khan and the Dalai Lama).

Natun Pata

aka The New Leaf

1969 121' b&w Bengali

d/c Dinen Gupta pc Gora Pics st Pratiba Bose sc Ajitesh Bannerjee m Bahadur Khan lp Arati Ganguly, Kajal Gupta, Ajitesh Bannerjee, Samit Bhanja, Indranath Chatterjee, Sombhu Mitra, Sipra Mitra, Geeta De, Jahar Roy, Chinmoy Roy, Sikha Roy Choudhury

Lyrical ruralist melodrama building on e.g. Satyajit Ray's Samapti episode of Teen Kanya (1961) to tell the story of a mischievous 14-year-old young girl, Savitri, and how she is 'tamed' into marriage and conventional behaviour. Forced by her guardian-aunt to marry the son of the stationmaster, she runs away from her marital home but finds herself unwelcome everywhere. Her husband eventually rescues her just before she tries to commit suicide on a railway line (the railway track is used as a recurring symbol through the film). Disturbingly, the film presents this socially sanctioned form of child abuse as a painful but ultimately positive experience as the girl 'grows up' to be a woman who accepts her domestic and marital duties. Noted cinematographer Gupta's debut as director.

Nindu Hridayalu

1969 188' b&w Telugu

d K. Vishwanath pc S.V.S. Films

p M. Jagannatha Rao st Nagercoil Padmanabhan dial Samudrala Raghavacharya lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Devulapalli Krishna Sastry c S.S. Lall m T.V. Raju lp N.T. Rama Rao, Shobhan Babu, Chalam, Satyanarayana, Vanisree, Geetanjali, Relangi Venkatramaiah, Chhaya Devi, Chandrakala, Thyagaraju

Gopi, when a child, witnesses his father's murder at the hands of Veeraju and vows to take revenge. However, when he grows up, circumstances make it necessary for him to extend his protection to Veeraju's wife and son, and he also falls in love with Veeraju's daughter Sharada. The hit film is Vishwanath's breakthrough work.

Olavum Theeravum

aka Waves and Shore

1969 120' b&w Malayalam

d P.N. Menon p P.A. Backer pc Asha Films, Charuchitra s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr P. Bhaskaran c Ravi Varma m Baburaj lp Madhu, Jose Prakash, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Usha Nandini, Paravoor Bharathan, Kunjava, Philomina, Mala, Nilambur Aisha, Nilambur Balan

Independently produced by future director Backer, this is often considered the first film to have introduced an art-house New Indian Cinema aesthetic to Kerala. Noted mainly for Nair's classic script and unusual dialogue style evoking local accents, as well as for its extensive use of outdoor locations. The Muslim trader Bapputti (Madhu) loves Nabisa (Usha Nandini), and tries to earn money that would enable them to live in comfort after marriage. However, when the rich stranger Kunjali (Prakash) arrives, Nabisa's money grabbing mother (Philomina) forces her to marry him. The film ends with Nabisa's dramatic suicide when Bapputti, rejected by her family, leaves only to find her swollen corpse washed ashore. The 'tragic' realism in this art-house movie and commercial hit was later to prove definitive to a whole generation of Malayalam directors including Backer himself, K.G. George (cf. Kolangal, 1980), scenarist Vasudevan Nair's own directions or the work of e.g. Padmarajan.

Saat Hindustani

1969 144' b&w Hindi

d/p/s K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar st Madhukar lyr Kaifi Azmi c Ramchandra m J.P. Kaushik lp Shahnaz, Madhu, Utpal Dutt, Madhukar, Anwar Ali, Amitabh Bachchan, Jalal Agha, Surekha, Sukhdeo, Prakash Thapa, Irshad Panjatan, Dina Pathak, A.K. Hangal, Anjali

Remembered as one of Bachchan's first feature films, this is a non-violent variation of the Dirty Dozen (1967) with moralistic comments about contemporary India. Six men from different parts of the country join Maria (Shahnaz), a native of Portuguese-occupied Goa, to raise nationalist sentiment in that state by hoisting Indian flags on Portuguese forts and buildings. In the process they find unity and abandon their religious and regional differences. The film begins with a dying Maria who summons her former comrades and ends with the comrades assembling before her and reiterating their faith in nationalism. The film was released together with the controversial short Char Shaher Ek Kahani (1968). Apart from Bachchan, it was also the first Hindi film by Malayalam star Madhu, who played the Bengali commando.

Sara Akash

aka The Big Sky aka The Whole Sky

1969 99' (96') b&w Hindi

d/sc Basu Chatterjee pc Cine Eye Films st Ravindra Yadav c K.K. Mahajan m Salil Choudhury

lp Rakesh Pandey, Madhu Chakravarty, Tarala Mehta, Dina Pathak, A.K. Hangal, Mani Kaul, Jalal Agha, Nandita Thakur

A realist critique of arranged marriages and patriarchy set in North India. The film chronicles the relationship of Samar (Pandey), whose parents (Pathak and Hangal) coveted the dowry his marriage would bring, and his wife Prabha (Chakravarty). Samar shuns his wife because he is afraid her presence might hinder his educational ambitions. She thus has to accept being confined largely to the joint family's kitchen or to return to her parental home for long visits. She commits the faux pas of washing the vessels with the clay symbolising a deity designed for use only during the religious ceremony of her sister-in-law's (Thakur) newborn child. Together with Sen's Bhuvan Shome and Kaul's Uski Roti, made in the same year, this film set the pattern for what the media described as New Indian Cinema. All three films were shot by cinematographer K.K. Mahajan who had just graduated from the FTII and who received his first national award for Sara Akash.

Satyakam

1969 160' col Hindi

d Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc Panchi Art sc Bimal Dutt st Narayan Sanyal's novel dial Rajinder Singh Bedi lyr Kaifi Azmi c Jaywant Pathare m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Ashok Kumar, Dharmendra, Sharmila Tagore, Robi Ghosh, David, Sanjeev Kumar, Tarun Bose, Sapru, Rajen Haksar, Baby Sarika, Manmohan, Uma Dutt, Dina Pathak, Paul Mahendra, Kanu Roy, O.P. Kohli, Anand Mama, Abhimanyu Sharma

Nationalist melodrama using the metaphor of illegitimacy. When Satyapriya is born his mother dies (cf. Mukherjee's Anupama, 1966). His father turns into a sanyasi (ascetic) and he is raised with strong nationalist feelings by his grandfather, a Sanskrit scholar. He grows up (Dharmendra) to become an engineer at the time of India's independence. Employed by a princely state, he discovers that few of his nationalist-utopian dreams have been realised. The critique of the state of the nation is illustrated by the unfortunate Ranjana (Tagore) who has been raped by the prince and is pregnant. Satyapriya marries her and she gives birth to the child. The rest of the film concerns the aged grandfather's refusal to accept a child born of sin and refers to a mythological tale from the Upanishads: Gautam accepted Jabala's son, Satyakam, under similar circumstances.

Teen Bhubhaner Parey

1969 151' b&w Bengali

d/sc Ajitesh Bannerjee pc Satirtha Prod. st Samaresh Bose co-lyr Pulak Bannerjee co-lyr/m Sudhin Dasgupta c Ramanand Sengupta lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Tanuja, Kamal Mitra, Tarun Kumar, Sulata Choudhury, Subrata Chatterjee, Padmadevi, Aparna Devi, Robi Ghosh, Sumita Sanyal

Factory clerk Subir, aka Montu (Soumitra Chatterjee) falls in love with schoolteacher Sarasi (Tanuja), transgressing the class barrier between them. She marries him, partly intending to 'improve' him through education. Her disapproval of his working-class friends causes problems for the marriage, but the real crisis occurs when the tables are turned. Once educated, Subir becomes a bespectacled and grey-haired professor, and also an opportunist who plans to take up a lucrative post in a new city. Eventually his arguments for conformism, merging with the greyness of his urban environment, become increasingly unreal (underlined by make-up and acting style). Soumitra Chatterjee's classic performance is supported by Sengupta's intricate camerawork as Subir moves through different spaces on his socially upward journey. Samaresh Bose's scathingly critical novel is softened into a typically reformist presentation of education as the solution to all social ills.

Uski Roti

aka A Day's Bread aka Our Daily Bread

1969 110' (95') b&w Hindi

d/sc Mani Kaul p Rochak Pandit st Mohan Rakesh's short story c K.K. Mahajan lp Gurdeep Singh, Garima, Richa Vyas, Lakhanapal, Savita Bajaj

Kaul's debut is an adaptation of a short story by the noted Hindi author Mohan Rakesh and is perhaps the first consistently formal experiment in Indian cinema. The burly bus driver Sucha Singh (G. Singh) travels through the dusty, flat Punjabi countryside. His wife Balo (Garima) spends long hours waiting for him at the bus-stop with his food packet. One day her younger sister is sexually molested, causing Balo to arrive late at the bus-stop. Sucha Singh is upset by her late arrival, rejects her food and drives away. She remains standing at the roadside until nightfall. The original story uses many stereotypes for both its characters and situations. The film, however, integrates the characters into the landscape, evoking an internalised yet distanced kind of realism reminiscent of Robert Bresson, cf. the shots from within the bus showing the road and the countryside going by while a little sticker on its window intrudes in the corner of the frame. Kaul wanted to discover 'what was truly cinematic in the filming of a play' (1974) and he used a minimum of gestures to enact the rigidly notated script. The two registers of Balo's physical and mental environment are represented by two camera lenses: the 28mm wide-angle deep-focus lens and the 135mm telephoto lens leaving only a minute section of the frame in focus. This schema was gradually reversed through the film, making it Indian cinema's most controlled achievement in image composition. Its use of spatial volume refers to the large canvases of the modernist painter Amrita Sher-Gil while the soundtrack isolates individual sounds to match the equally fragmented visual details. The film, financed by the FFC, was violently attacked in the popular press for dispensing with familiar cinematic norms and equally strongly defended by India's aesthetically sensitive intelligentsia.

Uyyal e

aka The Swing

1969 163' b&w Kannada

d/N Lakshminarayan pc Bharat Ents st Chaduranga c N.G. Rao m Vijayabhaskar lp Rajkumar, Ashwath, Kalpana, Balkrishna, Rama Devi

Marital melodrama about a professor (Ashwath) who, engaged in his researches, neglects his domestic life. His indifference alienates his wife (Kalpana), especially when their daughter dies. The wife becomes attracted to the professor's friend Krishna (Rajkumar) who eventually goes away to preserve the marriage of his friend.

Vaa Raja Vaa

1969 152' b&w Tamil

d/s A.P. Nagarajan pc C.N.V. Prod.
c W.R. Subba Rao m Kunnakudi Vaidyanathan lp Master Prabhakar, Baby Shanti, V.S. Raghavan, Rukmini, Manorama, C.K. Nagesh

Raja (Master Prabhakar), aged 10, is a tourist guide at the Mahabalipuram shrine. His friend and mentor is a sculptor (Raghavan) who keeps a pillar in his yard on which there are sayings affirming the truths of past wisdom. Raja tries to see if these bits of wisdom are valid in today's world and finds that they are. Neo-traditionalism Nagarajan style.

Adina Megha

1970 154' b&w Oriya

d/sc Amit Moitra p Babulal Doshi st Kuntala Kumari Acharya dial Gopal Chatray c Sailaja Chatterjee m Balakrishna Das lp Prashanta Nanda, Jharana Das, Sandhya, Geeta, Bhanumathi, Niranjan, Dukhiram, Sagar, Janaki

Hit Oriya musical melodrama by Bengali director Moitra. University student Suresh (Nanda) loves Champak (Jharana Das), though his brother and sister-in-law would like him to marry Alka. Suresh ends up marrying a third woman, Bina, as an act of chivalry when she is abandoned by her fiancé. Champak is heartbroken while Alka marries, becomes a widow almost immediately and ends up educating tribal children. Eventually, she is the one who brings Suresh and Bina together. One of the best-known films by the famous Oriya star duo Nanda and Das, and also known for hit numbers like Ae bhara janha raati and Boulo ki kahibi.

Anand

1970 122' col Hindi

d/st/co-sc Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc Rupam Chitra co-sc/dial/co-lyr Gulzar co-sc Bimal Dutt D.N. Mukherjee co-lyr Yogesh c Jaywant Pathare m Salil Choudhury lp Rajesh Khanna, Amitabh Bachchan, Sumita Sanyal, Ramesh Deo, Seema, Johnny Walker, Dara Singh

The Khanna hit which launched the 70s melodrama formula of endowing the central character with a terminal disease. In this way, a typical emotional highlight of the melodramatic genre, the death of the hero could be spun out across the entire length of the film. Anand (Khanna) zestfully fights intestinal cancer, determined to extract as much pleasure from his remaining lifespan as possible despite the physical pain. The moral of the story is emphasised via the recording of the hero's voice, replayed minutes after his actual death, enjoining the audience to value a large-hearted life over a merely long one. The film retained a commercial repeat value as one of Bachchan's early starring roles. He plays the brooding Dr Bhaskar who tends to Anand in his last days and then writes a book on him which wins a literary prize. The award ceremony provides the framing narrative of Anand's story told in flashback. Choudhury's music also contributed to the film's success e.g. Kahin door sung by Mukesh. Mukherjee cast the popular Bengali actress Sanyal (Ashirwad, 1968; Chena Achen and Chiradiner, both 1969; and esp. Guddi, 1971) in her first major Hindi role. He remade the film, with less success, as Mili (1975), featuring a terminally ill heroine, Jaya Bhaduri, opposite a cynical and alcoholic Bachchan.

Aparajeya

1970 108' b&w Assamese

d Chaturanga pc Madhab Films lyr Keshab Mahanta, Phani Talukdar c D.K. Prabhakar m Salil Choudhury lp Rakhi, Prasanta Hazarika, Parag Chaliha, Punya Das, Prasannalal Chowdhe, Rajen Das

Assamese communal harmony movie set among the region's marginalised fishermen's community, consisting mainly of Bengali immigrants. The film is remembered mainly as an unusual collective experiment, directed by Atul Bordoloi, poet-playwright Phani Talukdar, Gauri Burman and Munin Bhuyan, and for its unusual 'frontier' cultural primitivism.

Aranazhikaner am

aka Just Half An Hour

1970 168' b&w Malayalam

d K.S. Sethumadhavan p M.O. Joseph pc Manjilas s Parappuram, from his novel lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Mehli Irani
m P. Devarajan

lp Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, Sathyan, Prem Nazir, Adoor Bhasi, Ragini, K.P. Oomer, Sheela, Ambika, Meena, Bahadur, Shankaradi, Bharathan, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai. Govindan Kutty, Jose Prakash, Santosh Kumar, P.R. Menon

Sethumadhavan's bizarre portrayals of deviant sex, seen from the 'tragic' viewpoint of decaying but good tradition, became increasingly the standard for his 'middle-of-the-road' Malayalam cinema (cf. Odeyil Ninnu, 1965; Adimagal, 1969; Chattakkari, 1974). The story features the reminiscences of the good octogenarian Kunjochanam (Nair), whose history is narrated as well as that of his five offspring. Shortly after succumbing to a paralytic stroke, he discovers his 'bad' daughter-in-law carrying on with an evil opium dealer. The old man believes death to be 'half an hour away', but this does not stop the villain from poisoning him as well. Eventually the daughter-in-law, like her predecessor in Odeyil Ninnu, commits suicide. The film was noted mainly for Kottarakkara's florid performance accompanied by some unusual make-up.

(S. Kumar), a clerk in Bombay, and his bride Salma (Sultan) live next to the red-light district in a small apartment formerly inhabited by the famous prostitute Shamshad (Bhopali). Clients still turn up, to the annoyance of the young couple who strive to achieve respectability. In contrast to the abstract commands of 'respectable' morality, the grossly materialist economics of prostitution offering more concrete and immediate benefits acquire liberating overtones for the couple. When Hamid refuses a bribe and finds himself unable to buy his own house or to raise money for his sister-in-law's marriage, he displaces his anger and frustration into sexual exploitation. He rapes his wife and fantasises her as a whore in order to be able to respond to her sexually. For Salma, it is the association between prostitution and classical music which provides the link to her family inheritance. Eventually the two realise that there is no escape from prostitution (in reality or as a metaphor) in the urban world. Commercially, the theme had obvious voyeuristic attractions exploited fully in its publicity: the notorious scene where Salma lies on the floor, naked, features prominently in the advertising campaign. Unfortunately, the script, published as a book (1971) with considerable literary merit, was greatly marred by the screen adaptation. Songs include Bahian na dharo and Hum hain mataye-kuch-o-bazaar ki tarah, both sung by Lata Mangeshkar.

blind sister Sumathi (Pushpalata). Out of loyalty to the man's mother, he forces Murthy to reform and to marry Sumathi (the blind girl's feelings about having to marry the man who brutally raped her are glossed over). Thangam himself first rescues Kala (Jayalalitha), daughter of a policeman, from a gang of robbers and marries her, having brought the culprits to justice. MGR was the Deputy Chairman of Small Savings in Tamil Nadu's State Assembly at the time, reflected in the film's opening sequence where he is called Vathiar ('teacher', a term used by his fans) at the opening of a Savings Bank. The film includes footage of a speech by C.N. Annadurai while MGR literally wraps himself in the colours of the DMK: claiming to be the true inheritor of Annadurai's mantle, MGR often uses the red and black DMK colours in his wardrobe. He also depicts himself as the protector of the poor while preaching against alcohol and smoking. In a highlight of the film he rises from a coffin to sing 'I died and came back alive, I laughed at Yama', the god of death, referring to his 'rebirth' when he survived a gunshot wound inflicted by fellow actor M.R. Radha in 1967. The incident was earlier referred to, to enhance his heroic image, in Vivasayee (1967).

Dastak

1970 140' b&w Hindi

d/s Rajinder Singh Bedi pc Dachi Films
lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Kamal Bose
m Madan Mohan

lp Sanjeev Kumar, Rehana Sultan, Anju Mahendroo, Shakila Bano Bhopali, Anwar Hussain, Manmohan Krishna, Niranjan Sharma, Kamal Kapoor, Yash Kumar, Jagdev

Author Bedi uses his own outstanding script for his directorial debut financed by the FFC as part of early New Indian Cinema. Hamid

Engal Thangam

aka Our Darling

1970 174' col Tamil

d Krishnan-Panju pc Mekala Pics c S. Maruthi Rao m M.S. Vishwanathan lp M.G. Ramachandran, Jayalalitha, Cho Ramaswamy, A.V.M. Rajan, Manorama, S.R. Janaki, Pushpalata

MGR film made at the height of his popularity, typical of his own propaganda idiom as he broke from the DMK (1972). A concerned and law-abiding truck driver Thangam (MGR) tracks down Murthy (Rajan), the rapist of his

Ezhuthatha Katha

aka Unwritten Story

1970 153' b&w Malayalam

d A.B. Raj p T.E. Vasudevan pc Jaimaruthy Pics st E.P. Kuriem sc V. Devan dial Jagathi N.K. Achari lyr Harippad Sreekumar Thampi
c Ashok Kumar m V. Dakshinamurthy lp Prem Nazir, Sheela, Oomer, T.R. Omana, Adoor Bhasi, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, G.K. Pillai, Shankaradi, Bharathan, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Chandrakala, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, T.K. Balachandran, A. Abbas

A story simultaneously exposing venality in the press and corruption among stage stars and politicians. A former prostitute and stage star, Kamalamma, lives on her memories and the income of her daughter Meena, a successful singer. When Prathapan, the editor of a local newspaper, wants to publish Kamalamma's memoirs, her former clients panic and seek to prevent publication by various means including bribery and violence. Prathapan eventually discovers that his own uncle, a respected political leader, is in fact Meena's father. A CID agent masquerading as a journalist uncovers an old plot to accuse Kamalamma of a murder committed by politicians and overwhelmed by the pressures, Kamalamma collapses. Meena is taken into Prathapan's family. Although Kamalamma is presented as a former stage star, her story also evokes the shady past of some film stars.

Gejje Pooje

aka The Mock Marriage

1970 154' b&w Kannada

d/sc S.R. Puttana Kanagal pc Chitra Jyothi st M.K. Indira's novel c S.V. Srikanth
m Vijayabhaskar
lp Kalpana, Gangadhar, Leelavathi, Arathi, Pandharibai

Sanjeev Kumar and Rehana Sultan in Dastak

Kanagal's best-known film outside Karnataka. Aparna (Leelavathi), an orphan raised by a brothel madam, has an affair and bears a daughter whom the madam hopes to make into a prostitute. To prevent this outcome, Aparna brings up her daughter Chandra (Kalpana) in a different city among respectable neighbours Lalita (Arathi) and her brother Somu, who falls in love with Chandra. When Chandra's father resurfaces, her inability to explain the presence of a stranger becomes the cause of her broken engagement and her return to prostitution. Continuing Kanagal's fascination with tragic heroines, incarnated until Sharapanjara (1971) by Kalpana and then by Arathi, who makes her debut here, the film has two distinct camera styles which also influence the performances: the style used to portray the 'normal' world of middle-class orthodoxy is rendered increasingly brittle in both image and sound by a second aesthetic in which the worlds of Aparna and Chandra are shown through tight close-ups, expressions of terror and low-angle shots of exploitative men. The musical leitmotiv, associated with the violin that Aparna plays when she remembers her father, extends into expressionist sound effects. In Kanagal's later work (Ranganayaki, 1981; Manasa Sarovara, 1982) he used colour not only to make films about corruption but a cinema that is so to say in itself corrupted. The film's Telugu remake is Kalyana Mandapam (1971).

Jeevan, I.S. Johar, Pran, Sajjan, Padma, Randhawa, Iftikhar, Sulochana

The policeman father of Mohan and Sohan is killed by villain Ranjit Singh (Premnath) who later abducts Mohan. Mohan grows up to become Moti (Pran), the lieutenant in Ranjit Singh's gang, while brother Sohan (Anand) becomes a cop who tries to infiltrate the gang calling himself Johnny. He succeeds with the help of Rekha (Hema Malini), whose father is held hostage by the villain. Eventually the brothers reunite and destroy the gang. Vijay Anand, noted for earlier crime dramas (Jewel Thief, 1967), adopts the dominant Hindi film style (rapid editing and a noisy soundtrack) and several quotes caricaturing the box-office 'formula' e.g. a quadruple role for the comedian Johar. The script contains attacks on classical music (the gang exploits the foreign 'craze' for Indian music by exporting drugs hidden in musical instruments) and religion (the burglary of a temple with Pran dressed as a holy man and Malini as a jogan). Although the film has several Kishore Kumar hit songs such as Pal bhar ke liye koi hame pyar kar le, Vijay Anand's famed song-picturising skills are evident only in the opening number, Vaada to nibhaya, sung by Kishore Kumar and Asha Bhosle.

The commercial failure of this film ended both the experiment and Chakravarthi Chitra.

Mer a Naam Joker

aka I Am a Clown
1970 240' col Hindi
d/p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films s K.A. Abbas lyr Shailendra, Hasrat Jaipuri, Neeraj, Prem Dhawan, Shailey Shailendra c Radhu Karmakar
m Shankar-Jaikishen
lp Raj Kapoor, Manoj Kumar, Rishi Kapoor, Dharmendra, Dara Singh, Rajendra Kumar, Padmini, Ksiena Rabiankina, Simi Garewal, Achala Sachdev, Om Prakash, members of the Soviet State Circus and of the Gemini Circus

A mammoth film apparently inspired by Chaplin's Limelight (1951), featuring Raj Kapoor as Raju the circus clown in a sprawling tale often seen as the star's autobiographical fantasy. Initially conceived as three separate films, the 3-part story abounds with allusions to Kapoor's own life and work. It starts with the young Raju (Rishi Kapoor), the son of a trapeze artist, falling in love with his schoolteacher Mary (Simi), and dreaming of becoming a famous clown. In Part 2, Raju joins a Russian circus where he falls in love with Marina (Rabiankina). The climax of this part comes when Raju's mother (Sachdev), seeing him on a trapeze and remembering his father's fatal fall, collapses, forcing the anguished Raju to finish the routine with a smile. Using the Soviet State Circus and portraying Marina as devoted to the title number of Awara (1951) since childhood, Kapoor intended to signal his gratitude to the USSR for the popularity he had enjoyed there since the 50s. In Part 3, Raju befriends the young Mina (Padmini) who, disguised as a boy, pastes cinema posters while dreaming of becoming a film star. The film's conclusion shows the three women in his life witnessing, as special guests, Raju's grand circus finale. Kapoor constantly deploys emphatically symbolic images, like a clown doll abandoned in the hut where Raju and Mina used to meet, a cracked mirror showing a laughing face, etc. If Kapoor's 50s films projected the attainment of political freedom as a loss of innocence and a yearning for a new world, this film projects an uninhibited infantile narcissism combined with a mother fixation which not only determines his acrobatic demands for affection but also programmes the proliferation of female figures whose approval the leading character craves. Its commercial failure is often cited as the reason for Kapoor's lapse into a cynical use of sexploitation in his post-70s films, as if the rejection of the film had been translated into a vengeful recourse to demeaning images of women thrown at an unworthy public.

Interview

1970 101' (78') (85') b&w Bengali
d/sc Mrinal Sen pc Mrinal Sen Prod. st Ashish Burman c K.K. Mahajan m Vijay Raghava Rao lp Ranjit Mullick, Karuna Bannerjee, Shekhar Chatterjee, Mamata Bannerjee, Bulbul Mukherjee, Umanath Bhattacharya, Amal Chakravarty, Tapan Dasgupta, Bimal Bannerjee, Satyen Ghosh

The first of Sen's Calcutta trilogy (Calcutta '71, 1972; Padatik, 1973) marking the director's turn to a more explicitly political address. While the overt symbols of colonial rule are being dismantled, the internalised residues of colonialism still blight the country, as Ranjit (Mullick) finds out when he cannot get a middle-class job because he cannot get hold of his only suit. The narrative structure is humorous and episodic as the mishaps and frustrations accumulate within one dawn-to-dusk period until the protagonist rebels and destroys a genteel, Western-looking mannequin in a shop window, the symbol of aspirations out of touch with actuality. Inspired by Brecht's approach to the theatre, Sen includes newsreels and an argument between the protagonist and a voice representing the audience, inviting the viewer to adopt the stance of a critical interlocutor. Not to be confused with Sasikumar's Malayalam titillation melodrama Interview (1973).

Johnny Mer a Naam

1970 159' col Hindi
d/sc Vijay Anand pc Trimurti Films st K.A. Narayan lyr Rajinder Krishen, Indivar c Fali Mistry m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Dev Anand, Hema Malini, Premnath,

Kaviyath Thal aivi

1970 166' b&w Tamil
d/s K. Balachander p Sowcar Janaki pc Selvi Films lyr Kannadasan c N. Balakrishnan
m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp Sowcar Janaki, Gemini Ganesh, Ravichandran, M.R.R. Vasu

The heroine Devi (Janaki, who also produced the film) loves the lawyer Suresh (Ganesh) but circumstances force her to marry the gambler and alcoholic Paranthaman (Vasu). Trying to escape from her evil husband, Devi becomes a dancer in Hyderabad where she gives birth to a daughter. When her husband tries to kidnap the child, she has Suresh adopt her. Later, when her husband's blackmail threatens her daughter's marriage, Devi kills him. Remake of Asit Sen's Bengali classic Uttar Falguni (1963).

Maro Prapancham

1970 155' b&w Telugu
d Adurthi Subba Rao pc Chakravarthi Chitra st B.S. Thapa sc K. Vishwanath dial Modukuri Johnson lyr Sri Sri c K.S. Ramakrishna Rao
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Savitri, A. Nageshwara Rao, K. Jaggaiah, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Padmanabham, Jamuna

Second and last of the 'experimental' co-productions featuring Subba Rao, star Nageshwara Rao and scenarist K. Vishwanath (cf. Sudigundalu, 1967). The earlier film had attacked the flaws in the legal system, and had won the state award of best film. Here, a revolutionary group calls for an end to all poverty and the social systems that curtain freedom of thought. The film used Sri Sri's lyrics to push through their radical message.

Mukti

1970 145' b&w Kannada
d N. Lakshminarayan pc Navodaya Chitra st V.M. Inamdar's novel Shapa c Meenakshi Sundaram m Vijayabhaskar lp Kalpana, Rajasekhar, Udaya Kumar,
B. Jayamma

Prostitution melodrama involving the hero

Madhava (Rajasekhar) and the heroine Sarojini (Kalpana), who want to marry. He discovers that his recently deceased father had an affair with Sarojini's mother (Jayamma), a former prostitute. When Sarojini's mother falls ill, it is discovered she has a venereal disease, which she passed on to her daughter. Madhav thus finds himself in love with his diseased stepsister.

⊗ Ningal enne Communistaki aka You Made Me a Communist

1970 155' b&w Malayalam
d/s Thoppil Bhasi p Kunchako pc Udaya Studios (Alleppy) lyr Vyalar Rama Varma m P. Devarajan
lp Sathyan, Prem Nazir, Sheela, Ummer, Jayabharati, Kottayam Chellappan, S.P. Pillai, Thoppil Krishna Pillai, Lalitha, Adoor Pankajam, P. Rajamma, Vijayakumari, Alumoodan, Kundara Bhasi

Bhasi's version of his own landmark socialist realist play (1952) popularising official CPI ideology in Kerala. Gopalan, after obtaining a college degree, devotes himself to trade union work to the distress of his father, the tradition-bound Paramu Pillai whose family fortune has been eroded. Gopalan and his working-class friend Mathew oppose the evil landlord Kesavan Nair's schemes to obtain ever more land through fraud and intimidation. They are beaten up by the landlord's hired thugs and hospitalised. In the end, Paramu Pillai, radicalised by the need to defend himself against the landlord, emerges from his house brandishing a red flag and joining the collective struggle against exploitation. A subplot has Gopalan in love with Kesavan Nair's daughter although the one who truly loves him is Mala, the daughter of a poor, aged tenant farmer also about to be evicted by the villain. The film, produced by the owner of Udaya Studios, was not as successful as the play. Bhasi went on in the same agit-prop vein, backed by the CPI, with e.g. Enippadikal (1973).

⊗ Penn Daivam

1970 164' b&w Tamil
d M.A. Thirumugham pc Dandayuthapani Films st A. Abdul Muthalif dial Arur Doss lyr Alangudi Somu, Kannadasan c P. Bhaskar Rao m V. Kumar lp Laxmi, Jaishankar, Padmini, Sundararajan, S.P. Muthuraman, Nagesh, Thengai Srinivasan, Udayachandrika

Elaborate Padmini melodrama marking her change to mother roles. Ponnamma (Padmini) is the suffering wife of a criminal (Sundararajan) who leaves her and forces their son (Muthuraman) into a life of violent crime. Their daughter (Lakshmi), placed in a home for destitutes, is adopted and raised by a rich man in whose house Ponnamma becomes a servant. Later, the criminal father tries to kidnap his daughter and is confronted by his wife. The criminal son dies. The film's love interest is integrated into the crime melodrama when the daughter falls in love with a police inspector (Jaishankar).

⊗ Pratidwandi

aka The Adversary, aka Siddhartha and the City
1970 110' b&w Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Nepal Dutta, Ashim Dutta pc Priya Films st Sunil Ganguly's novel c Soumendu Roy, Purnendu Bose lp Dhritiman Chatterjee, Indira Devi, Debraj Roy, Krishna Bose, Kalyan Choudhury, Jayshree Roy, Shefali, Shoven Lahiri, Pishu Majumdar, Dhara Roy, Mamata Chatterjee

The first of Ray's Calcutta trilogy, coinciding with Mrinal Sen's, addresses his native Calcutta's turbulent politics. The student movement aligned with the Naxalite rebellion is invoked through the younger brother (Debraj Roy) of the film's protagonist Siddhartha (D. Chatterjee) and informs the plot repeatedly e.g. with the Films Division newsreel about Indira Gandhi's budget speech and, most importantly, by Siddhartha's search for self-realisation and a job in Calcutta, an enterprise presented as inherently tragic. Siddhartha fails to get a job by answering that the greatest achievement of mankind in the 60s is the courage of the Vietnamese people rather than the NASA moon landing. In such an atmosphere, defined by the endless waiting for job interviews in stiflingly oppressive and humiliating conditions, he is eventually driven to leave Calcutta and his lover Keya (J. Roy). Ray introduces for him unprecedented narrative devices such as the voice-over of an unseen political activist (Ray's own voice) who offers advice to Siddhartha, two film clips (the newsreel and a boring European art-house movie shown by the local film society) and the encounter with a prostitute which is shown in negative. Ray also includes, in the background as the lovers part, footage of a big political rally on Calcutta's Maidan. Unlike Sen, however, whose use of similar devices was accompanied by a more sophisticated understanding of Brecht, Ray's protagonist leaves only after performing a cathartic act of rebellion: he upsets an office in which yet another set of job interviews are being conducted. The film intercuts these episodes with a relatively more familiar pattern of flashbacks e.g. Siddhartha's fantasies about his childhood before being disturbed by American hippies, or the flashback which interrupts the argument he has with his sister (K. Bose) about her opportunistic affair with her employer. The 2nd title in the trilogy is Seemabaddha (1971).

⊗ Prem Pujari

1970 192' col Hindi
d/s Dev Anand pc Navketan lyr Neeraj c Fali Mistry m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Waheeda Rehman, Zaheeda, Prem Chopra, Nasir Hussain, Siddhu, Madan Puri, Achala Sachdev, Sajjan, Ulhas, Master Sachin

The first film Dev Anand officially signed as director is a nationalist and militarist pot-pourri of war and international espionage, partly shot in Spain, France and Britain. Ram (Anand), a soldier descending from a long line of famous army men, is a pacifist. Court-martialed for disobeying orders he is jailed but escapes. On the run, he encounters Rita (Zaheeda) whose single-seater plane has crashed and who embroils him in a spy ring he is determined to expose. This involves impersonating a Tibetan and a Portuguese and travelling to many international tourist spots before he destroys the spy ring which was leaking information about India's military deals. However, he is too late to prevent Pakistan from attacking India in 1965 and, abandoning his pacifism, he rushes back to fight the enemy and to win back his girl (Rehman). The film is mainly notable for its aggressive exoticisation of the West (bullfights in Spain; cabarets, restaurants and boulevards in Paris; the Embankment and Scotland Yard in London).

⊗ Priya

1970 152' b&w Malayalam
d Madhu p N.P. Ali, N.P. Abu pc Jammu Pics s C. Radhakrishnan lyr Yusuf Ali Kacheri

Madhu and Lily Chakraborty in Priya

c U. Rajagopal, Benjamin, Ramchandra, L.C. Kapoor m Baburaj lp Madhu, Jayabharati, Adoor Bhasi, Bahadur, Lily Chakraborty, Shankaradi, Veeran, Sukumari, Kadhija, Meena

Malayalam star Madhu's directorial art-house debut, edited by Hrishikesh Mukherjee in his first association with Malayalam cinema. Gopan (Madhu) becomes a sexual debauchee when he gets a job in a Bombay advertising agency. He married his cousin Devi against the objections of her father. Migrating to Bombay, he gets his typist Thulasi pregnant, forcing her into prostitution. Later, he visits a brothel and meets Thulasi again, who has renamed herself Priya, but he does not recognise her. She entices him into her room and kills him, tearing him to pieces with her poisoned nails. She is jailed and Gopan's disillusioned wife accepts the care of her husband's illegitimate child. The story is told in flashback as Gopan's friend (Bhasi) tries to trace Gopan in Bombay. Madhu attempted a change of image in this negative role, also casting Bengali star Lily Chakraborty in her only Malayalam film. The film was critically acclaimed in Kerala for its realism and for confirming the conventional image of Bombay as sin city, where most of the film is shot on location, with numerous dingy night scenes.

against both a corrupt colonial industry and a Communist party willing to compromise and manipulate its most committed members. Sagina, a large-hearted, hard drinking guardian of the people as well as of the workers of the British-owned railway factory on the Himalayan foothills, is wooed by an unnamed Left trade union based in Calcutta. He agrees to become a labour welfare officer and to move to Calcutta where he becomes a pawn in a larger power struggle within the union, an allusion to the 1940s differences between the P.C. Joshi and B.T. Ranadive factions of the CPI. The militant 'fascist fanatic' Aniruddh (Chatterjee) splits from his leader (A. Bannerjee) to pursue a career based, it would appear, entirely on manipulating Sagina's charismatic hold over his people. The film's story is told through a series of flashbacks within a framing narrative that shows Aniruddh and his comrades, dressed in military fatigues, conducting a peoples' court in a forest. Much of the film depends on Dilip Kumar's star presence to get its message across. The story followed the Bengali literary tradition of showing charismatic popular leaders being destroyed by an impersonal and exploitative Party machinery (cf. Samaresh Bose's novel Mahakaler Rather Ghora, 1977, about Naxalite tribal leader Jangal Santhal). The original writer of Sagina Mahato, Ghosh, is a well known anti-Communist writer and the film was offered as an allegory for Bengal in the 70s.

sc Girish Karnad c Tom Cowan m Rajeev Taranath

lp Girish Karnad, Snehalata Reddy, P. Lankesh, B.R. Jayaram, Dasharathi Dixit, Lakshmi Krishnamurthy

The Telugu director and poet Reddy's landmark adaptation of an early story written by his family's friend, the noted Karnataka novelist Ananthamurthy whose work is an important source for many young Kannada film-makers, launching a cinematic version of the literary Navya Movement. Shot on location in the mountains of Mysore by a visiting Australian cameraman, this morality tale set among orthodox Madhava Brahmins tells of a rebellious but charismatic Brahmin who rejects his caste's religion. Plague erupts in a village claiming as its first victim Naranappa (Lankesh), a Brahmin notorious for eating meat, drinking and for his low-caste mistress Chandri (Snehalata Reddy). None of the Brahmins are willing to cremate him until Chandri appeals to the scholar Pranesacharya (Karnad), who cannot find a solution to the problem in the scriptures. Pranesacharya seduces Chandri and his subsequent guilt induces him to assume responsibility when the entire village becomes plague infested. He is lectured on the reality principle by a talkative commoner (Jayaram) and eventually returns to cremate Naranappa himself, rejecting brahminical bigotry. The film's backbone is the playwright Karnad's script (here making his film debut) which adopted the novel's very localised idiom. A censor ban was averted through the personal intervention of the Information and Broadcasting Minister I.K. Gujral. Ananthamurthy approved of the film but noted that in his story, the corpse is soon buried secretly by Naranappa's Muslim friend, so that the scholar's dilemma is purely a matter of brahminical beliefs: by burning the corpse, it becomes an ancestor to be worshipped. The novelist commented that when the scholar 'realises all he has in common with his rival after making love to the dead man's mistress, he becomes the other man himself, thus embodying the presence of the other within himself. The scriptwriter and the director felt that the body should be kept for the protagonist to return to after his wanderings, cremating it himself as an act of expiation.' The film in effect dismisses religious subtleties in favour of simple humanitarian values. Following a year after Sen's Bhuvan Shome (1969), this film helped New Indian Cinema gain a foothold in the South.

☞ Sachcha Jhutha

1970 143' col Hindi

d Manmohan Desai pc V.R. Films s J.M. Desai dial Prayag Raj lyr Indivar, Gulshan Bawra, Qamar Jalalabadi c Peter Pereira m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Rajesh Khanna, Mumtaz, Naaz, Vinod Khanna, Faryal, Prayag Raaj, Kamal Kapoor, Jagdish Raj

Desai's Khanna hit was, together with e.g. Hum Dono (1961) and many others, an example of the popular 'double role' Hindi films. Good guy and village simpleton Bhola (R. Khanna) looks like the gangster Ranjit (also R. Khanna). Ranjit uses the resemblance to deceive the police until Bhola finally gets wise and impersonates Ranjit, leading to the gangster's downfall. The film includes a highly sentimental subplot about Bhola's reciprocated love for his disabled sister (Naaz) with the Kishore Kumar number Meri pyari bahenia.

☞ Sagina Mahato

1970 148' (137') b&w Bengali

d/sc/m Tapan Sinha pc Rupasree International p Ruma Ganguly, Mini Kapur st Rupadarshi (aka Gour Kishore Ghosh) lyr Hemen Ganguly, Shyamal Gupta c Bimal Mukherjee lp Dilip Kumar, Saira Banu, Sumita Sanyal, Swaroop Datta, Ajitesh Bannerjee, Bhanu Bannerjee, Rudraprasad Sengupta, Chinmoy Roy, Kumar Roy, T.A. Liddell, Romi Choudhury, Anil Chatterjee

Sinha's anti-Communist tract, set in 1942-3, comments on the controversial years of the Left movement by setting up the larger than life 'man of the people' Sagina Mahato (D. Kumar)

☞ Samaj Ko Badal Dal o

1970 162' col Hindi

d V. Madhusudhana Rao pc Gemini Studio st Thoppil Bhasi dial Mukhram Sharma lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Thyagaraj Pendharkar m Ravi lp Sharada, Kanchan, Aruna Irani, Parikshit Sahni, Shammi, Jayashree T., Perveen Paul, Pran, Mehmood

An unusual political film made by the mainstream Gemini Studio, the Telugu commercial director Rao, the Malayalam communist Bhasi and the Telugu/Malayalam star Sharada. Chhaya (Sharada), whose father once owned a textile mill but was swindled by his partner, now finds happiness as the wife of a mill worker. The couple have to contend with trade union blacklegs and the villainous owners who persecute Chhaya's husband. Songs include Dharti mata ka maan hamara pyara lal nishan, stridently praising the red flag, and the miserabilist beggar song Amma ek roti de which later became popular among real beggars in Bombay. The film is not a remake of Vijay Bhatt's Samaj Ko Badal Dalo (1947) but of Vincent's Thulabharam (1968), and was adapted by Madhusudhana Rao in Telugu (Manushulu Marali, 1969) before he made it in Hindi.

☞ Samskara

aka Funeral Rites

1970 113' b&w Kannada

d/p Pattabhi Rama Reddy pc Ramamanohara Chitra st U.R. Ananthamurthy's novel (1966)

☞ Shri Krishnadevaraya

1970 216' col Kannada

d B.R. Panthulu pc Padmini Pics s A.N. Krishnarao m T.G. Lingappa lp Rajkumar, B.R. Panthulu, Narasimhraj, M.V. Rajamma, R. Nagendra Rao, Bharati, Jayanti, Sudarshan

Panthulu's last big Kannada historical returns to his familiar terrain of the 16th C. Vijayanagara Empire with its best-known king, Krishnadeva Raya (Rajkumar), his canny minister Thimmarasu (Panthulu) and the wise buffoon Tenali Ramakrishna, all famous figures in the Kannada historical genre. While apparently addressing a regional-chauvinist 'Kannada Nadu', the film was in fact shot in Rajasthan, and adopted Rajasthani architecture to locate Karnataka's 'cultural pinnacle'.

☞ Thurakatha Vathil

aka The Unopened Door
1970 143' b&w Malayalam
d/lyr P. Bhaskaran p A. Raghunath pc Sanjay Prod. s K.T. Mohammed c N. Rajagopal, Benjamin m K. Raghunath lp Prem Nazir, Madhu, Bahadur, Ragini, Jayabharati, Philomina, K.T. Mohammed, Raghava Menon, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Ramankutty, B.K. Pottekkad, C.A. Balan

One of K.T. Mohammed's best-known scripts, this sentimental movie was part of a growing trend in 70s Malayalam cinema, showing the infantile hero sacrificing his happiness to fulfil his obligations towards his sister, which involves asking his best friend to live the life he had planned for himself. The simple-minded Bappu (Nazir) leaves for the city to earn money that would allow him to fulfil his two ambitions: to get his sister happily married, and to himself marry Sulekha (Ragini). In the city he meets and befriends Vasu (Madhu). When Bappu is injured and about to die, he asks Vasu to complete the course he had embarked upon. Vasu goes to Bappu's village, arranges the sister's marriage, and, in a poignant moment at the end of the film, seeks out Bappu's girlfriend, who immediately realises what happened and its implications for her future.

Sivaji Ganesan and Padmini in Vietnam Veedu

☞ Vazhve Mayam

aka World of Illusion
1970 153' b&w Malayalam
d K.S. Sethumadhavan p M.O. Joseph
pc Manjilas Cine Ents s Thoppil Bhasi from P. Ayyaneth's novel lyr Vyalar Rama Varma
c Mehli Irani m P. Devarajan
lp Sathyam, Sheela, Ummar, Kadeeja, Bahadur, K.P.A.C. Lalitha, Adoor Bhasi, Shankaradi, N. Govindankutty, C.A. Balan, Ammini, Kuttan Pillai, Muthukulam Raghavan Pillai, Paravoor Bharathan, Philomina

The team responsible for Adimagal (1969) followed on with this unusual love story featuring three neighbouring couples working in the electricity supply industry: Sudhi who is madly in love with his wife Sharada, Sudhi's younger colleague and friend Sasidharan and his wife Kamalakshmi, and Kuttappan, the department's lineman, and his wife Gauri. The insecure and jealous Sudhi suspects his wife of being unfaithful with Sasidharan and he spies on her, causing an indignant Sharada, pregnant with their daughter, to pack her bags and return to her family, where her father makes matters worse and the loving couple end up agreeing to a divorce. Sudhi eventually finds out that it was Sasidharan's wife who was having an affair, but by that time Sharada has remarried and Sudhi goes mad. Years later, the couple meet again at their daughter's wedding. After blessing his daughter, Sudhi returns home and dies. Sharada goes to pay her last respects to her former husband and dies as well.

☞ Vietnam Veedu

aka Vietnam House
1970 164' b&w Tamil
d P. Madhavan p Sivaji Ganesan pc Sivaji Prod.
s Sundaram, from his play c P.N. Sundaram
lyr Kannadasan m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Sivaji Ganesan, Nagesh, Srikanth, K.A. Thangavelu, Padmini, Ramaprabha,
V.S. Raghavan

Traditionalist melodrama focusing on the traumas of retirement and generational change (a suitable transition towards 'mature' roles for the ageing producer and star Ganesan). The dignified old company executive known as Prestige Padmanabha Iyer (Ganesan) is forced to retire and experiences hostility and indifference in his new life at the head of a family including his wife Savitri (Padmini), two sons (Nagesh, Srikanth) and a daughter. He devoted the best years of his life to pay for the children's upbringing, only to end up in a lonely and complicated retirement. The film's high points are the subtly erotic relationship between the ageing couple (e.g. the song Pallakattu pakathile, sung by T.M. Soundararajan and P. Susheela), some big dance numbers intended to show the generation gap as college girls prance around in miniskirts, and the montage sequences when the old man is in hospital. Originally a play staged by Ganesan's troupe, the film opens with the patriarch introducing all the characters. The action is set inside the old man's ancestral house, named Vietnam Veedu (Vietnam House) because of the constant fighting and arguing in the family.

Kaviyoor Pannamma and Master Babloo in Abhijathyam

Abhijathyam

aka False Pride

1971 164' b&w Malayalam

d A. Vincent p R.S. Prabhu pc Shri Rajesh Films s Thoppil Bhasi lyr P. Bhaskaran c Surya Prakash m A.T. Ummar

lp Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Veeran, Sharada, Madhu, Raghavan

An adaptation of Anant Mane's Manini (1961). Malathi (Sharada) is the daughter of a wealthy family. She forces her father Shankara Menon (Nair) to let her marry a poor music teacher, Madhavan (Madhu), claiming to be pregnant by him. The father rejects the couple, who manage to make a meagre living in the husband's village. The mother dies of grief and her spirit visits the daughter, soon followed by a repenting father. P.K. Nair suggests that the end sequence echoes Mizoguchi's Ugetsu Monogatari (1953).

Andaz

1971 166' col Hindi

d Ramesh Sippy pc Sippy Films s Sachin Bhowmick dial Gulzar lyr Hasrat Jaipuri c K. Vaikunth m Shankar-Jaikishen lp Shammi Kapoor, Hema Malini, Achla Sachdev, Aruna Irani, Simi Garewal, Rajesh Khanna, Roopesh Kumar, Randhawa, Sonia Sahni

Ramesh Sippy's haltingly meandering debut film bears no resemblance to the classic Andaz (1949). A spendthrift widower (Kapoor) falls in love with a woman (Malini) who, in a long flashback, secretly married her lover (Khanna) but soon became a widow. His villainous, womanising younger brother (Kumar) makes life difficult for all concerned. When the villain rapes a hill woman (Irani) and she commits suicide, his nastiness is at last exposed and the two brothers' dotting mother (Sachdev) sees the light. Rajesh Khanna, then at the peak of his popularity, is billed as a guest star and sings the hit motor-bike number Zindagi ek safar hai suhana (sung by his regular playback Kishore Kumar). The vaguely Westernising dimension, necessary to justify a widow falling in love, is provided by the rather ludicrous presence of several Caucasians and by the priest who gives the widow permission to remarry.

Anubhav

1971 139' b&w Hindi

d/s Basu Bhattacharya pc Arohi Film Makers co-dial Sagar Sarhadi co-dial/co-lyr Kapil Kumar co-lyr Gulzar c Nandu Bhattacharya m Kanu Roy lp Sanjeev Kumar, Tanuja, Dinesh Thakur, A.K. Hangal

Bhattacharya's best-known film after Teesri Kasam (1966) began a series of melodramas about the problems of married couples (cf. Avishkar, 1973). The newspaper editor Amar (Kumar) grows distant from his wife Meeta (Tanuja) because his new assistant is her former lover Shashi (Thakur). Amar cannot accept that his wife is no longer enamoured of Shashi. The film is part of the early FFC-sponsored 'art-house' cinema. It is shot on location in one of Bombay's best-known and most expensive high-rise apartment blocks. The soundtrack rather crudely takes its cue from Godard, interrupted by radio advertising jingles, combined with the leitmotiv of a ticking clock in addition to two popular Geeta Dutt songs, Mera dil jo mera hota and Koi chupke se aake sapne sulake.

Anubhavangal Palichakal

aka Shattered Experience

1971 133' b&w Malayalam

d K.S. Sethumadhavan p M.O. Joseph pc Manjilas st Thakazhy Shivashankar Pillai's novel sc Thoppil Bhasi lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Mehli Irani m P. Devarajan lp Sathyan, Prem Nazir, Sheela, Adoor Bhasi, Shankaradi

Following on from Sethumadhavan's typical formula (cf. Odeyil Ninnu, 1965; Aranazhikaneram, 1970, Chattakkari, 1974) of viewing sexually deviant behaviour as being the consequence of the 'tragic' decay in feudal values, he tells a story here of a conscientious worker (Sathyan) who suspects his wife's (Sheela) fidelity when she wants to go out to work. This becomes the reason for him getting involved in a murder, which forces him to abscond and thus to abandon his family. The wife survives with the help of a friend (Nazir). When the husband reappears, he now discovers his wife apparently living with his friend. Trapped between the decay of the feudal values he upholds and an equally oppressive legal system, he surrenders to the police. Based on a Thakazhy story, the film adheres to some of the detailed realism of the original, but the performances of the male leads remain extreme. Sathyan, in his last film, replays to some extent the tragic condition of being married to an unfaithful wife in Chemmeen (1965), also a Thakazhy story. This was also the last film by the Manjilas production group, responsible for memorable Malayalam films in the 60s (cf. Aranazhikaneram).

Aranya

1971 107' b&w Assamese

d/s Samarendra Narayan Deb pc United Club, Mangaldoi lyr Keshab Mahanta c Ramananda Sengupta m Sudhin Dasgupta lp Biju Phukan, Vidya Rao, Tasadduf Yusuf, Kashmiri, Beena Barwati, Bijoy Shankar, Punya Das, Deuti Barua, Bishnu Khargaria

Conservationist drama protesting the poaching of the one-horned Assamese rhinoceros. Set in the famed Assamese Kaziranga sanctuary, the film indicts the local elite and exposes the cruelties of the poachers.

Ashad Ka Ek Din

aka A Monsoon Day

1971 114' b&w Hindi

d/sc Mani Kaul pc FFC st Mohan Rakesh's play (1958) c K.K. Mahajan lp Arun Khopkar, Rekha Sabnis, Om Shivpuri, Pinchoo Kapoor, Anuradha Kapur

Kaul's 2nd film continued his exploration of cinematic form via this adaptation of Rakesh's play featuring the legendary Sanskrit playwright Kalidasa (Abhignan Shakuntala, Kumarasambhava, Meghdoot), a figure tentatively identified as a court poet in the reign of Chandragupta II (3rd C. AD). The play presents the ethical dilemmas of an artist by requiring Kalidasa to choose between his lover Mallika and his duties at the court of Ujjain. The film is set in a small hut on a hillside and concentrates on three characters: Kalidasa (Khopkar), Mallika (Sabnis) and their friend Vilom (Shivpuri). The characters' lines, mostly monologues, were pre-recorded and played back during shooting, freeing the actors from any vestiges of theatrical conventions. The sparse realism of Uski Roti (1969) is replaced by Mahajan's sensuously shot landscapes and languid camera movements, minutely registering light changes within the frame, at times by slowly shutting the aperture.

Do Boond Pani

1971 141' col Hindi

d/s/p K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar lyr Kaifi Azmi, Balkeshav Bairagi m Jaidev lp Simi Garewal, Jalal Agha, Prakash Thapa, Madhu Chanda, Sajjan, Kiran Kumar, Rashid Khan, Pinchoo Kapoor, Amrit Oberoi

The Rajasthan Ganga Sagar Canal Project, intended to transform the state's vast barren desert, was one of the Nehru government's show pieces. Shot on the canal building site, this distant echo of King Vidor's Our Daily Bread (1934) endorses Indira Gandhi's slogans while deploying the developmental rhetoric and Nehruite iconography of dams, bridges and industrialisation. Ganga Singh (Agha) lives in a drought-stricken village in Rajasthan and leaves his wife Gauri (Simi), sister Sonki (Chanda) and father Hari Singh (Sajjan) to dedicate himself to the canal project. He learns of the project via a government propaganda newsreel in a touring cinema. The story intercuts Ganga Singh's struggle for progress at work with the dire pre-industrial conditions at home: his father dies, his sister is raped by the bandit Mangal Singh (Thapa) and Gauri waits for her husband to return. Ganga Singh sacrifices his life to avert a disaster at the site but eventually industrial progress triumphs and the life-giving water arrives.

Dushman

1971 177' col Hindi
d/Dulal Guha pc Suchitra s Virender Sinha lyr Anand Bakshi c M. Rajaram
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Meena Kumari, Rajesh Khanna, Mumtaz, Nana Palsikar, Kanhaiyalal, K.N. Singh, Anwar Hussain, Sajjan, Abhi Bhattacharya, Rehman, Bindu

Khanna plays a truck driver who in a drunken accident kills a man. Sentenced to work in his victim's village and to look after the family that lost its sole breadwinner, he enters a hostile environment. The hero eventually makes himself loved by tackling the real villains (a gang of hoarders and criminals), gets the heroine (Mumtaz) and wins the affection of his implacable foe, the widow (Kumari) of the man he killed. With classic Khanna-Kishore Kumar numbers such as Tumhari zulf hai ya sadak ka mod hai ye, the film was also a musical success. The film was remade in Tamil as Neethi (1972) starring Sivaji Ganesan in Rajesh Khanna's role.

Ek Adhuri Kahani

aka An Unfinished Story
 1971 115' (110') b&w Hindi
d/sc Mrinal Sen p Arun Kaul/FFC st Subodh Ghosh's Gotranta c K.K. Mahajan m Vijay Raghava Rao lp Utpal Dutt, Shekhar Chatterjee, Arati Bhattacharya, Vivek Chatterjee, Shyam Laha, Sova Sen, Sandhya Roy Choudhury

The novelist Ghosh (filmed earlier by Bimal Roy in Anjagarh, 1948 and Sujata, 1959) provided the story for Sen's exploration of the ravages wrought by capitalism in a rural economy. Set in 1929 in a Bihar sugar mill, a middle-class outsider becomes the factory's cashier. When the Depression hits, the apparently benevolent factory owners reveal their true colours as the workers and the peasants desperately try to defend their livelihood by any means at their disposal, including violence. The outcome of the struggle and the ending of the film are left open, suggesting that they have to be provided by real rather than represented struggles. However, the mood of the 'unfinished story' is far from triumphant and stresses the soul-destroying aspects of having to battle against overwhelming odds.

Guddi

aka Darling Child
 1971 121' col Hindi
d/co-sc Hrishikesh Mukherjee pc Rupam Chitra p N.C. Sippy st/lyr/co-sc/dial Gulzar co-sc D.N. Mukherjee c Jaywant Pathare
m Vasant Desai
lp Jaya Bhaduri, Dharmendra, Sumita Sanyal, Vijay Sharma, Utpal Dutt, Samit, A.K. Hangal, Keshto Mukherjee

Teenaged and miniskirted Kusum aka Guddi (Bhaduri) has such a crush on Hindi film star Dharmendra that her family arranges for her to meet the star. A rare Hindi film about film-making, Guddi appears to want to deconstruct the myth of the star and to show not only how films are made but the poverty, the exploitation and the transitory nature of stardom. What it does do, however, is produce a small parade of stars playing 'themselves'. The film's tentative critique of stardom involves drawing a comparison between contemporary screen idols and gods: Kusum adores Dharmendra like the legendary saint poet Meerabai was unconditionally devoted to Krishna. The film made Bhaduri into a major 70s star as the bouncy teenager with an ear-splitting laugh, repeated e.g. in Jawani Diwani (1972).

Hare Rama Hare Krishna

1971 149' col Hindi
d/s Dev Anand pc Navketan lyr Anand Bakshi c Fali Mistry m R.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Mumtaz, Zeenat Aman, Prem Chopra, Kishore Sahu, Achala Sachdev, Iftikhar

Set among Hare Krishna cultists, presented as dope-smoking hippies fronting for drug smugglers, Anand's call for a return to nationalist Indian values was dominated by Zeenat Aman in her first starring role. She is the hero's sister, parted from him by an unhappy family life and now in the clutches of long-haired freaks in Nepal. His attempt to rescue her involves encounters with pop ideologies of liberation, crooks and rapists before the final reconciliation. Mumtaz, a sexy local belle, provides the hero's love interest but she is overshadowed by Aman. The smash hit Dum Maro Dum, sung by Asha Bhosle and blues singer Usha Iyer, remains the film's main claim to fame.

Jesal Toral

1971 137' col Gujarati
d Ravindra Dave p Kanti R. Dave, T.J. Patel pc Kirti Films st Himmat Dave sc Jitubhai Mehta dial Ramesh Mehta c Pratap Dave
lyr/m Avinash Vyas
lp Anupama, Uendra Trivedi, Arvind Trivedi, Ramesh Mehta, Jayant Bhatt, Mulraj Rajda, Mukund Pandya, Laxmi Patel, Sarala Dand, Induben Rajda, Lily Patel, Vandana, Suryakant, Umakant, Veljibhai Gajjar, Jayashree T.

A big Gujarati hit in Eastmancolor renovating the tradition of the adventure folk-tale. It adapts a famous Kutchhi legend (first filmed, with great success, by Chaturbhuj Doshi in 1948) featuring the dreaded bandit Jesal (U. Trivedi) and the devout god-woman Toral (Anupama) who reforms him. Director Dave's Gujarati debut sees the star Uendra Trivedi in one of his best-known performances.

Mere Apne

1971 134' col Hindi
d/sc/lyr Gulzar pc Uttam Chitra st Indramitra
c K. Vaikunth m Salil Choudhury lp Meena Kumari, Vinod Khanna, Shatrughan Sinha, Paintal, Asrani, Danny Denzongpa, Yogesh Chhabda, Dinesh Thakur, Mehmood, Yogita Bali, Deven Verma, Leela Mishra

Story of an old widow (Kumari) who becomes a silent witness to two violent eras in India's history: the Partition riots and the criminal politics amid gang warfare in the 60s. Persuaded by an acquaintance to move from her tranquil village home to the city to look after their child, the old woman finds herself lost on the streets until she is offered shelter by Shyam (Khanna), a notorious gangster fighting with the leader of a rival gang (Sinha). The widow's tales, and her maternal concern for Shyam's criminal friends, make her an oasis of peace amid the prevailing violence. In the end she becomes the unintended victim of their violence, restoring peace in her death. The story is intercut with flashbacks of the widow's oppressive marriage to a Nautanki performer (Verma) during the Partition riots which led to the death of her husband. Gulzar's directorial debut adapted Sinha's controversial Apanjan (1968), relocating the plot from its original Naxalite Bengal into a North Indian milieu. The film is held together mainly by Meena Kumari in what was, together with Pakeezah (1971), one of her last major screen performances.

Mohammed-Bin-Tughlaq

1971 136' b&w Tamil
d/s Cho Ramaswamy pc Prestige Prod. lyr Vali
m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp Cho Ramaswamy, Sukumari, Ambi

Best-known satirical film, adapted from his own play, by Ramaswamy, now better known as a civil liberties activist and editor of the anti-DMK journal Tughlaq. The graves of two historical figures are unearthed by the commoner Rangachari (Ambi): Ibn Batuta, a mid-14th C. African Arab who travelled through India and wrote a travelogue, and Mohammed-bin-Tughlaq, a 14th C. king of the Tughlaq dynasty who sought to shift his capital from Delhi to Daulatabad trying to consolidate an all-India empire. To Rangachari's amazement, the two men are still alive. He brings them to Madras where Tughlaq wins the mid-term elections, eventually becoming Prime Minister. Seduced by power, he breaks his promise to Ibn Batuta and refuses to reveal his true identity. When Ibn Batuta threatens to expose both Tughlaq and himself as cheats impersonating politicians, Tughlaq has Ibn Batuta murdered. As a critique of the DMK (and of its leading politicians), the party tried to get the film banned by the Information & Broadcasting ministry. It was remade the following year by B.V. Prasad in Telugu.

Oru Penninte Katha

aka Story of a Woman

1971 147' b&w Malayalam

d K.S. Sethumadhavan p K.S.R. Murthy pc Chitranjali Films st Moses sc/dial S.L. Puram Sadanandan lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Mehli Irani m P. Devarajan

lp Sathyam, Sheela, Ummar, Jayabharati, Adoor Bhasi, Govindan Kutty Jr, Bharathan, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, T.R. Omana

Sethumadhavan's formula of the decay of feudalism with a sex motive here yields his most bizarre female lead yet, Gayatri Devi (Sheela), who carries out a remorseless vendetta against a feckless former lover, Madhavan Thambi (Sathyam), as she returns to her native village of Moonnar. She buys Madhavan's estate and his bungalow and harasses him in various ways until Madhavan's wife asks for mercy. Then, in flashback, Gayatri reveals the story of her past relationship with Madhavan.

Pakeezah

aka Pure Heart

1971 175'(125') col/scope Urdu

d/s/p/co-lyr Kamal Amrohi pc Mahal Pics lyr Kaif Bhopali, Majrooh Sultanpuri, Kaifi Azmi c Josef Wirsching m Ghulam Mohammed, Naushad

lp Ashok Kumar, Meena Kumari, Raaj Kumar, Pratima Devi, Altaf, Parveen Paul, Lotan, Chandabai, Meenakshi, Chandramohan, Zebunissa, Nadira, Veena

As shown by the presence of 40s Bombay Talkies cameramen Wirsching and R.D. Mathur as well as the composers Ghulam Mohammed and Naushad, Kumari's best-known film had been planned by her and her husband Amrohi as their most cherished project since 1958, when Amrohi intended to star in it himself. The film started production in 1964. When the star and her director-husband separated, the filming was postponed indefinitely. After some years, during which Kumari suffered from alcoholism, she agreed to complete the film. The plot is a classic courtesan tale set in Muslim Lucknow at the turn of the century. The dancer and courtesan Nargis (Kumari) dreams of escaping her dishonourable life but she is rejected by the family of her husband Shahabuddin (A. Kumar) and dies, in a graveyard, giving birth to a daughter, Sahibjaan. The daughter grows up to become a dancer and a courtesan as well (Kumari again). Sahibjaan's guardian, Nawabjaan (Veena), prevents Sahibjaan's father from seeing her or knowing who she is. Later, Sahibjaan falls in love with a mysterious, noble stranger who turns out to be her father's nephew, Salim (R. Kumar). Salim's father forbids his ward to marry a courtesan. The film's climax occurs when Sahibjaan dances at Salim's arranged wedding where her own father also discovers her identity and claims her as his child. Finally her desires are fulfilled and she marries Salim, leaving her past behind. The film's main merit, however, resides in its delirious romanticism enhanced by saturated colour cinematography. Includes the all-time Lata Mangeshkar hit songs Chalte chalte and Inhe logone ne.

Reshma Aur Shera

1971 158'(85') col/scope Hindi

d/p Sunil Dutt pc Ajanta Arts st/co-sc Ali Raza co-sc Ajanta Arts Story Dept lyr Balkavi Bairagi, Neeraj, Udhav c Ramchandra m Jaidev lp Sunil Dutt, Waheeda Rehman, Raakhee, Jayant, Sulochana, K.N. Singh, Amrishi Puri, Amitabh Bachchan, Vinod Khanna, Padma
Khanna

Sunil Dutt's best-known film as director, shot in the desert at Jaisalmer, retells the Rajasthani legend about the love of Reshma (Rehman) and Shera (Dutt) amid violent feudal conflict between their clans. Also remembered as an early Bachchan appearance in the role of Chotu, Shera's sharpshooting 'kid brother' who, ordered by their vengeful father, shoots Reshma's father and her recently married brother. Unable to bear the grief of the widowed bride, Shera kills his own father believing he actually pulled the trigger. Trying to save Shera from grief and destructive madness, Reshma marries Chotu. In the end, Shera tries to redeem his patricidal act and commits suicide. Reshma also dies, rolling down a sand-dune towards his dead body. A sandstorm comes to cover their bodies, united in death. The film's sweeping desert shots dwarf the actors among the enormous dunes. Thematically, the film was unusual in its refusal to sanction the traditional, macho values of bloody revenge: Reshma refuses revenge and, prompted by the goddess Durga, finds a way out of the dilemma while remaining true to her lover. The man, however, chooses to avenge the bride turned widow and rejects love in favour of keeping his word.

Seemabaddha

aka Company Limited

1971 110' b&w Bengali

d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Jung Bahadur Rana pc Chitranjali st Shankar's novel c Soumendu Roy

lp Barun Chanda, Sharmila Tagore, Paromita Choudhury, Harindranath Chattopadhyay, Haradhan Bannerjee, Indira Roy, Promod

Ray's follow-up to Pratidwandi (1970) sees contemporary Calcutta through the eyes of a dull sales manager in a fan factory. Shyamalendu Chatterjee (Chanda), whose life story is briefly narrated in a voice-over in the beginning, leads a well-off life among Calcutta's newly rich, apparently untouched by the political turmoil around him. He gets involved in a deal with his corrupt personnel manager, to the disappointment of his sexy sister-in-law (Tagore), but the company rewards him with a promotion. The film's moral points about the corrosive effects of a social system based on greed are made mainly through a series of markedly symbolic shots, such as the zoom into the telephone wire through which the corrupt deal is being hatched and, at the end, the high-angle shot from above the ceiling fan. The final film in Ray's Calcutta trilogy would be Jana Aranya (1975).

Shantata! Court Chal u Aahe aka Silence! The Court is in Session

1971 138'(118') b&w Marathi

d/co-p Satyadev Dubey pc Satyadev-Govind Prod. s Vijay Tendulkar from his Marathi play based on Friedrich Durrenmatt's Die Panne (1956) aka A Dangerous Game c/co-p Govind Nihalani m Jeetendra Abhishekhi lp Sulabha Deshpande, Arvind Deshpande, Eknath Hattangadi, Saroj Telang, Amol
Palekar, Narayan Pai, Arvind Karkhanis, Arun
Kakde, Vinod Doshi, Amrishi Puri, Savant

Marathi cinema's first explicitly avant-garde film. It is based on one of Tendulkar's best-known plays first staged by the well-known experimental theatre collective Rangayan. Stranded in a village, the members of a low-brow theatre group decide to pass the time by mounting a mock trial. One member of the group, Leela Benare (S. Deshpande), is expected to defend herself against a series of charges. These so disconcert the woman that the game gradually turns more serious, revealing the false veneer and the propensity to violence of the middle-class performers. The film features several of the Rangayan cast, including Sulabha Deshpande in the central role. Noted avant-garde stage director Dubey shot it using extensive jump-cuts, repeatedly fragmenting the action and the sound into a series of isolated units. Although the film depicts some of the fictional accusations, it follows the play's strategy of not revealing to the audience whether the charges are in fact true or false. It was the debut of several noted film personalities, including Tendulkar himself, Amol Palekar, Amrishi Puri and director/cinematographer Govind Nihalani who co-produced the film in addition to shooting it. The film was apparently admired by Ritwik Ghatak.

Sharapanjara

1971 180' col Kannada

d/sc/co-dial S.R. Puttana Kanagal pc Vardini Arts, K.C.N. Movies st/co-dial Triveni, based on her novel c D.V. Rajaram m Vijayabhaskar lp Kalpana, Gangadhar, Chindodi Leela, Narasimhraj, Ashwath, Shivaram, M.N.
Lakshmidevi, Leelavathi, Rama, Kala, Jayamma, Malathamma, K.S. Ashwath, Srinath

The culmination of Kalpana's long association with Kanagal (cf. Bellimoda, 1967; Gejje Pooje, 1970). The happily married Kaveri (Kalpana) becomes pregnant and suffers an attack of hysteria in which she recalls having gone to Nanjangud on a picnic with an unnamed man. She returns to the picnic spot and frantically searches for something she believes she 'lost' there. Her husband heroine and dialogues replete with sexual puns and innuendo. The script is by Sabnis, whose Tamasha-derived stage hit Vichcha Majhi Puri Kara (1965) saw Kondke's breakthrough performance. The innocent Namya (Kondke), the son of the tough Shitabai, is taken by his friends to see a Tamasha performance. He gets so excited by the Mahabharata scene of Draupadi's vastraharan (in which the enemy Kauravas try forcibly to disrobe her) that he jumps on stage disrupting the performance. He goes to the next village to see the performance again, where (as the actor who is to play the monkey-god Hanuman gets drunk) he is invited to understudy the part. Namya's distraught mother kicks him out of the house, but the dancer Kalavati (Chavan, Kondke's usual female lead) offers him shelter. The clutch of hit songs includes the duet Malyachya malya madhi kon ga ubhi.

(Gangadhar) has her interned in an asylum and starts an affair with an office colleague (Leela). Released from the asylum, Kaveri finds that everyone keeps reminding her of her 'insanity', including the new cook (Shivaram), the neighbours, her father (Ashwath) and her mother-in-law. She eventually has to return to the hospital for the rest of her life. Kalpana's spectacular performance and the film's blatant but unacknowledged psychoanalytic dimension holds the story together. The conflict between virtue and unconscious desire is given a mythological dimension in the song Hadi nalaku varusha comparing Kaveri to Seeta returning from exile in the Ramayana. Kanagal's neo-expressionist idiom is most in evidence in the scenes of Kaveri's hysteric episode, the mysterious boyfriend's presence being confined to the soundtrack only.

⊗ Sindooracheppu

aka Sindoor Box

1971 150' b&w Malayalam

d Madhu p/s/lyr Yusuf Ali Kacheri c Benjamin, Master Aloysius, Vasant B.N. m P. Devarajan lp Madhu, Shankaradi, Jayabharati, Bahadur, Philomina, Radhamani, Shobha

Directed by Malayalam star Madhu, the film was dominated by its producer and writer, the poet Kacheri. It used the rich Kerala landscape and folklore as a backdrop for his love songs in a story humanising elephants and poking fun at soothsayers and simple village folk. The star of the sometimes violent film is the elephant Gopi who behaves a little like a golem, rebelling against being maltreated and blindly enacting a code of social justice. A soothsayer claims that the beloved elephant will kill three people and the mahout's daughter, Ammalu, fills her sindoor box with ants which she then puts into Gopi's trunk to kill him. Years later, the village has been modernised but the prediction has not been forgotten. When the mahout Shankaran Nair drunkenly annoys Gopi, the elephant kills a man and is to be destroyed. A wandering mahout, Keshavan, saves Gopi's life and becomes Ammalu's lover. When Keshavan is about to marry Ammalu, Gopi goes mad with anger and Ammalu again puts ants in his trunk. Gopi kills her and Keshavan leaves the village as the police come to shoot the elephant. Kacheri went on to make another animistic film, Maram (1972).

⊗ Songadya

1971 142' b&w Marathi

d Govind Kulkarni p/co-lyr Dada Kondke pc Sadiccha Chitra s/co-lyr Vasant Sabnis co-lyr Jagdish Khebudkar c Arvind Laad m Ram Kadam lp Usha Chavan, Dada Kondke, Ratnamala, Nilu Phule, Ganpat Patil, Gulab Mokashi, Sampat Nikam

Marathi comedian Kondke's first independent production inaugurates his particular style: a vaguely Tamasha-derived ribald comedy featuring an innocent bumbling hero, a sexy

⊗ Tere Mere Sapne

1971 175' col Hindi

d/sc/p Vijay Anand pc Navketan, Vijay Anand Prod. st Kaushal Bharti's story based on A.J. Cronin's The Citadel lyr Neeraj c V. Ratra m S.D. Burman lp Dev Anand, Mumtaz, Mahesh Kaul, Vijay Anand, Agha, Hema Malini, Tabassum, Premnath

Dev Anand is the young, idealistic doctor who moves to the village with his wife, a rural schoolteacher (Mumtaz). When his pregnant wife meets with an accident caused by a rich car driver who then bribes the authorities, the hero loses faith in his idealism and returns to the city. There he becomes rich and falls in love with the film star Malatimala (Hema Malini). He is reconciled with his wife when their long-awaited son is born. Shot mainly in studios (except for the picturisation of the hit song Maine kasam li), the film resembles a TV drama. Notable mainly for Burman's music.

⊗ Vamsha Vriksha

1971 166' b&w Kannada

co-d B.V. Karanth co-d/dial Girish Karnad p G.V. Iyer st S.L. Bhairappa's novel c U.M.N. Sharief m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Venkata Rao Talegiri, L.V. Sharada Rao, B.V. Karanth, Girish Karnad, Chandrasekhar, Uma Sivakumar, G.V. Iyer

The debut feature of directors Karnad and Karanth, in the wake of Samskara (1970), interrogates the legitimacy of tradition: a proud Brahmin scholar (Talegiri) looks after his widowed daughter-in-law (Sharada) and grandson until she falls in love with her English lecturer (Karnad) and remarries. She loses custody of her son, and her guilt feelings are aggravated by her son (Chandrasekhar) who becomes her student but refuses to acknowledge her as his mother. Eventually the old patriarch discovers that he himself was illegitimate and he foregoes his wealth to prove to the heroine, on her deathbed, that she was right to insist on inventing her own notion of tradition.

⊗ Ummachu

1971 162' b&w Malayalam

d/lyr P. Bhaskaran pc Rajshri Prod. s Uroob m Raghunath lp Sheela, Madhu, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Shankaradi, Bahadur, Vidhubala

Convoluting drama adapting a famous Uroob novel. The Muslim girl Ummachu (Sheela in a major role) has two suitors, Mayan (Madhu) and Beeran (Bhaskaran). She marries the rich Beeran, who ill-treats her. In retaliation Mayan kills Beeran and marries Ummachu, even as an innocent man is arrested for the crime. Many years later the truth comes out, after which Mayan commits suicide and his son by Ummachu marries the daughter of the man accused of Mayan's crime.

⊗ Vidyarthikal e Ithil e Ithil e aka This Way Students aka Students Today

1971 174' b&w Malayalam

d John Abraham p Minnal pc Mehboob Prod. s M. Azad lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Ramchandra m M.B. Srinivasan lp Adoor Bhasi, Manorama, S.V. Ranga Rao, Jayabharati, S.P. Pillai, M.R.R. Vasu, T.K. Balachandran, Paravoor Bharathan, Kuthiravattom Pappu, Philomina, Santha Devi

Abraham's first feature is a politically pessimistic but ethically optimistic story advocating practical forms of solidarity with victimised or threatened colleagues. While playing football, some schoolboys break the statue of the school's founder and the culprit, Raju, must pay for the damage or face expulsion. The boys get together and earn the money polishing boots, selling lottery tickets and so on. The school's principal (Ranga Rao) is so impressed that he gets the management to repair the statue and spends the money paid by the boys on a school trip for them. Shortly afterwards, during another game of football, the ball hits and breaks the statue again. Apparently inspired by Louis Daquin's Nous les gosses (1941).

⊗ Anta Mana Manchike

aka All for the Best

1972 176' b&w Telugu

d/s/co-m P. Bhanumathi pc Bharani Pics dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr Dasarathi, Arudra, Devulapalli Krishna Sastry c Laxman Gore co-m Sathyam lp P. Bhanumathi, Krishna, Nagabhushanam, Krishnamraju, Chittor V. Nagaiah, T. Padmini, Suryakantam, Rushyendramani, Chhaya Devi, Sandhyarani, K. Mukkamala Bhanumathi's return to direction (cf. Chandirani, 1953) is a melodrama with nine songs. A young widow, Savitri, raises her sister, Seeta. When Seeta grows up she gets a job with the villain Phanibhushana Rao, not knowing that he was the cause of her parents' poverty and death. She also falls in love with the man's son. The villain tries to trap Savitri into prostitution and has her imprisoned when she attacks his associate. Eventually Savitri is freed and Seeta marries her beloved.

✿ Bangarada Manushya

1972 180' col Kannada
d/sc Siddalingaiah pc Rajkamal Arts st T.K. Ramarao's novel dial/co-lyr Hunsur Krishnamurthy co-lyr R.N. Jayagopal, Vijayanarasimha c D.V. Rajaram
m G.K. Venkatesh

lp Rajkumar, Bharati, Balkrishna, Arathi, M.P. Shankar, B.V. Radha, Srinath, Dwarkeesh, Vajramuni, Loknath, Lakshmidevi

Ruralist frontier melodrama in which hero Rajiv (Rajkumar) abandons his urban career to help his widowed sister and her impoverished family reestablish themselves. Overcoming the ingratitude of his elder brother (Loknath) and the self-serving opposition of several villagers, he builds a garish home symbolising his family's success. However, his wife (Bharati), wearing her red wedding sari, is chased by a bull, falls into a well and drowns. His two nephews, Sethuram and Chakrapani (introduced as a comedy duo), accuse him of bigamy with the woman (Arathi) who later is revealed to be the illegitimate daughter of his late brother-in-law whom Rajiv secretly protected. In the end, Rajiv leaves and renounces all his worldly possessions. The film recalls the upwardly-mobile and gaudy neo-traditionalism associated with Rajkumar as well as Rajesh Khanna (cf. Bandhan, 1969, and Dushman, 1971). From the opening, as Rajkumar steps out of the train dressed in red and black singing the homecoming song Nagunaguta nali nali to the bizarre sequence showing his decision to abandon his family (camera tilting down to his uneaten meal), the film constructs a fantasy village as the authentic underpinning of urban values, echoing the formally more sophisticated ruralist realism of the contemporary New Indian Cinema. Rajkumar's biggest 70s hit and one of the top grossers of Kannada cinema.

over by multinational interests. The film combined fiction with documentary sequences, which continued Das Gupta's fascination with Calcutta first in evidence in his b&w documentary Portrait of a City (1961) using the remarkable camerawork of Barin Saha.

✿ Calcutta '71

1972 132' b&w/col Bengali
d/sc Mrinal Sen pc DS Pics p D.S. Sultania st Manik Bandyopadhyay's Atmahatyar Adhikar, Prabodh Sanyal's Akal, Samaresh Bose's Esmalghar, Ajitesh Bannerjee's Calcutta '71, Mrinal Sen's Interviewer Pare
c K.K. Mahajan m Ananda Shankar lp Ranjit Mullick, Utpal Dutt, Geeta Sen, Madhabi Mukherjee, Sandhya Roy Choudhury, Satya Bannerjee, Snigdha Majumdar, Ajitesh Bannerjee, Debraj Ray, Robi Ghosh, Raju, Suhasini Mulay, Binota
 Ray

Sen set out the aims of his 2nd film in the Calcutta trilogy (Interview, 1970; Padatik, 1973): 'As long as you present poverty as something dignified, the establishment will not be disturbed. We wanted to define history and put poverty in its right perspective.' Extending his anti-naturalist approach in order to explore more freely and with greater complexity the way history shapes the texture of people's lives, the film recounts three famous Bengali stories by three Bengali authors together with two contemporary episodes, each presenting an aspect of poverty and exploitation: an angry young man (Mullick) on trial in 1971, a rainstorm in a slum in 1933, a lower-middle-class family during the 1943 famine, teenage smugglers in 1953 and, back again in 1971, a middle-class group in a posh hotel. The events are linked by an imaginary figure who, by 1971, has gained an insight into the dynamics of history and urges action for change. Often described

✿ Bil et Pherat

1972 145' b&w Bengali
d/p/s/m Chidananda Das Gupta pc C. Das Gupta Prod. lyr Jaidev c Dhruvajyoti Basu, Kamal Nayak
lp Nirmal Kumar, Anil Chatterjee, Soumitra Chatterjee, Aparna Sen, Dulal Ghosh, Shyamal Ghosh, Sohag Sen, Anuradha Lahiri, Neeta Ghosh, Ashok Mitra, Krishna Kundu, Sonali Sen, Neela Khan

Noted critic Das Gupta's critically acclaimed solo feature reworks the theme of one of the first Bengali films, Dhiren Ganguly's Bilet Pherat (1921) satirising colonial India's 'foreign-returned' youth. The film tells three separate short stories, all written by the director and featuring young men who prove unsuccessful in getting their idealism to work in present-day India. The best known of the three, Rakta, was later re-issued as a separate film. In it, a young man (S. Chatterjee) who returns to Calcutta from Oxford University is forced by the conservatism of his family to quit his job as lecturer and then his job as executive in a British firm. He rebels and starts his own business, converting animal blood into fertiliser, but loses that as well when it is taken as 'propagandistic', the film is more didactic in the Brechtian sense, encouraging audiences to learn from the representations rather than telling people what to think. The film became a major cultural rallying point for student radicals, its screenings at the Metro Theatre in Chowringhee, Calcutta, being placed constantly under police surveillance.

Snigdha Majumdar (left, rear), Sandhya Roy Choudhury (centre) and Satya Bannerjee (right) in Calcutta '71

Chemparathi

1972 142' b&w Malayalam
d P.N. Menon p S.K. Nair pc New India Films
s Malayattoor Ramakrishnan lyr Vyalar Rama Varma c Ashok Kumar m P. Devarajan lp Madhu, Raghavan, Sudhir, Balan K. Nair, Bharathan, Adoor Bhasi, Bahadur, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, Shobhana, Adoor Bhawani, Rani Chandra, Radhamani

Menon followed up his critically acclaimed realist drama Olavum Theeravum (1969) with this love tragedy and murder mystery. The beautiful teenager Shantha (Shobhana), daughter of a gatekeeper, loves the student Dinesh who lives in the main lodge along with Prof. Balachandran. However, the rich villain Rajappan rapes and then kills Shantha. Dinesh, who witnesses the murder and is haunted by Shantha's ghost, kills the villain in turn. Shot largely in close-up and mid-shot, the film includes several suspense-inducing sequences like Shantha's corpse floating in a well, or Dinesh being haunted by what he saw, to shift an otherwise conventional Malayalam storyline into a new genre.

Dhakam

aka Thirst
 1972 144' b&w Tamil
d/s Babu Nanthancode pc Kavya Chitra sc K.K. Raman st/c T. Vaiyadurai lyr Bharati, Poovai Senguttuvan m M.B. Srinivasan lp R. Muthuraman, Nandita Bose, Sundarajan, Pandharibai, Rajakokila, Renuka Parvathi, Jayaseelam

The blind Sekhar (Muthuraman) lives with other orphans in a Gandhian ashram, where he forms a special bond with little Sharada (Bose). They eventually get married and she tries to make a living as a saleswoman in Madras, but city life is too much for them and they return to the ashram. Sharada dies, having donated her eyes to a blind person. Nanthancode and Vaiyadurai devised this film while on the staff at the Madras Film Institute and shot it in Gandhigram against the beautiful Sirumalai hills. An influential effort to establish a Tamil art cinema, paving the way for later films like Aval Appadithan (1978). Composer Srinivasan's speciality of the group song is evident in the hits Vanam namadhu thanthai and Bharata samudayam.

Gnana Oli

aka The Light of Wisdom
 1972 158' b&w Tamil
d P. Madhavan pc Jayaar Movies
p P.K.V. Shankaran, Arumugham s Vietnam Veedu Sundaram lyr Kannadasan

c P.N. Sundaram m M.S. Vishwanathan lp Sivaji Ganesan, Sharada, Major Sundarajan, M.R.R. Vasu, Srikanth, Jaya Kausalya, V.K. Ramaswamy, Seetalakshmi, Vijayanirmala, Manorama, Gokulnath

The golden-hearted ex-criminal Anthony (Ganesan) works with the Rev. Adaikalam (Gokulnath) who has raised him. When his daughter Mary (Sharada) is impregnated and abandoned by her lover Bhaskar (Srikanth), Anthony kills Bhaskar and gets a life sentence. He escapes, with the priest's assistance, and becomes the millionaire philanthropist Arun, wearing a black eyepatch and white gloves as a disguise. Inspector Lawrence, who has pursued his former schoolfriend Anthony for years, eventually arrests his prey at the wedding of Anthony's granddaughter (Jaya Kausalya) with the cop's son. Loosely based on Victor Hugo's Les Miserables (cf. Ezhai Padum Padu, 1950), the film was shot around the Church of the Immaculate Lady at Poondi near Thanjavur and was released on the anniversary of St Thomas's arrival in India, an important Christian festival in India. Anthony's song, Devene Ennai parungal, sung by T.M. Soundararajan, was the hit of the year.

Grahan

1972 121' b&w Hindi
d/p/c Arvind Kumar Sinha st Bimal Kumar
m Vasant Desai
lp Nutan, Subhash Ghai, Suhasini Mulay, Basanta Choudhury

Art-house melodrama with a complicated plot. The notoriously principled scientist marries a young woman. His assistant falls in love with his superior's wife. The assistant's wife causes further problems when she reveals a past affair that the scientist once had with her sister. Financed by the FFC, the film was for a while exhibited as an instance of the 'parallel' or 'new-wave' cinema of the 70s (cf. New Indian Cinema).

Inner Eye, The

1972 20' col English/Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray c Soumendu Roy

After an unfortunate experience with the documentary Sikkim (1971), produced by the Chogyal of Sikkim (whose widow, Hope Cooke, may possess a copy) but banned by the Indian Government, Ray made this documentary on the noted Bengali painter and muralist Binode Behari Mukherjee. Extensive footage of the artist as a (blind) old man is intercut with shots of paintings and stock footage of Shantiniketan where he worked. The best moments in the film are the shooting of Mukherjee's best-known work, the Medieval Hindi Saints mural on the walls of the Hindi Bhavan, Shantiniketan.

Koshish

1972 125' col Hindi
d/st/co-sc/lyr Gulzar co-sc P. Romu N. Sippy, Raj N. Sippy, Mohini N. Sippy c K. Vaikunth

m Madan Mohan

lp Sanjeev Kumar, Jaya Bhaduri, Om Shivpuri, Dina Pathak, Asrani, Nitin Sethi, Seema, Urmila
 Bhatt, Atam Prakash

Melodrama about a deaf and dumb couple who, with the aid of a blind man, overcome the odds of living in a hostile and uncaring society. Haricharan (Kumar) and Aarti (Bhaduri) are plagued by Aarti's evil brother (Asrani) as they struggle to bring up their son notwithstanding their disabilities. When their son refuses to marry a disabled girl, Haricharan forces a happy ending. Probably Gulzar's most heavy-handed drama, further weighed down by an emphatic score.

Mar am

aka Tree
 1972 131' b&w Malayalam
d/p/co-lyr Yusuf Ali Kacheri pc Anjana s N.P. Mohammed co-lyr Sateeshan
c U. Rajagopal m P. Devarajan lp Prem Nazir, K.P. Ummer, Jayabharati, Nellikode Bhaskaran, K.P.A.C. Lalitha, T.S. Muthaiah, Adoor Bhasi, Bahadur, Philomina

Melodrama in which a young Muslim woman, Ameena (Jayabharati), believes her husband Ibrahim (Nazir) to have been killed at the front. She consents to marry a coarse but rich mill owner. When her first husband returns, she has a problem, resolved when she rejoins her true love. The film was a musical hit with songs by Yesudas, P. Susheela et al., one of which, Pathinalam ravudichathu, was a hit.

Maya Darpan

aka Mirror of Illusion
 1972 107' col Hindi
d/p/sc Kumar Shahani pc FFC st Nirmal Varma c K.K. Mahajan m Bhaskar Chandavarkar
lp Aditi, Anil Pandya, Kanta Vyas, Iqbalnath Kaul

Shahani's extraordinary but controversial debut feature marks both the culmination and the end of the brief NFDC-sponsored renewal of Indian cinema. With great formal rigour and beauty, the film extends Ghatak's Meghe Dhaka Tara (1960; quoted on two occasions on the soundtrack), making female sexuality and the very textures of living the focus of a conflict between oppressive feudal norms and a changing industrialised landscape. Taran (Aditi), the younger unmarried daughter of the zamindar (Kaul) in a Rajasthani mansion, violates the social codes dictating class and gender segregation by her sexual encounter with an engineer (Pandya). Shahani, who later evolved a theory of epic cinema, develops a uniquely cinematic orchestration of time and space through e.g. the rigid cyclical rhythms of lyric poetry: cf. the tracking shots through the ancient house while Vani Jayaram sings the lullaby Lal bichhona or the repeated reading of her brother's letter about fertile Assam as she walks through the arid industrial landscape around her home. In the end, the circular form is broken as the Chhou dancers, dressed in black and red, are shot with gigantic tilt-down camera movements and the film closes with a linear flight-line (fantasy escape) towards a green shore, but filmed through the constricting portholes of a boat. Taran moves through a landscape that mirrors her state of mind: a barren desert that was once owned by a warrior caste now reduced to effete rituals of self-purification, and handed over without protest to a new era of technological colonisers. The effects of capitalist modernisation are presented as both ruthless and incomprehensible, reducing an articulate cultural landscape into a mere natural resource. Taran's fantasies of Assam are contrasted with the engineer's radical notion of change as he quotes Engels's famous line 'freedom is the recognition of necessity'. Images and soundtrack are at times punctuated by violent eruptions of anger at the suffocation of desire: e.g. gunfire, war (in an explosion of yellow), the hushed reference to working-class agitations. Taran's own rebellion is prefigured by a breathtaking shot of herself annointed with the ultramarine blue of Kali against an urban skyline. Her recognition of 'necessity' is followed by her absorption into the Chhou performance as the dancers invoke fertility on the desert sand. The film also constitutes the only successful colour experiment of New Indian Cinema.

☞ Nagara Haavu

1972 184' col Kannada
d/sc S.R. Puttana Kanagal pc Shri Eswari Prod. st T.R. Subba Rao co-dial/co-lyr Chi. Udayashankar co-dial Vijayanarasimha co-lyr R.N. Jayagopal c R. Chittibabu m Vijayabhaskar lp Vishnuvardhan, Arathi, Shobha, K.S. Ashwath, Shivaram, Ambareesh, M.P. Shankar, Leelavathi, Loknath, H.R. Sastry, B. Raghavendra Rao

Kanagal's colour debut continues his neo-expressionist psychodramas. Ramachari (Vishnuvardhan), Kanagal's first male protagonist, is a 'cobra', i.e. a hunched, unpredictable, phallogocentric creature, disinterested in his studies and dreaded by his teachers and neighbours. He falls in love with Alamelu (Arathi), but the relationship is discouraged by his teacher, the only man able to influence him. The cobra then falls in love with Margaret (Shobha). Alamelu marries another man and Ramachari discovers, in the lobby of a hotel with a gaudy fountain, that she has become a prostitute. Eventually, Ramachari pushes his teacher off a cliff and commits suicide along with his Christian girlfriend. Characteristically, Kanagal uses the skeletal plot to elaborate a long drama, set in the mountainous wilds of the Chitradurga region. Its major constituent is the stylised, reptilian performance of Vishnuvardhan, making his film debut. It extends into several fantasy sequences of women running in slow motion in a rocky landscape, the rebellious Nanna rosha number set to a marching beat, and the climactic hotel sequence as Alamelu bursts into song to explain her condition. Subba Rao, aka Ta.Ra.Su., wrote the original story but later disowned the film, causing furious supporters of Kanagal to attack him for not having understood his own story. It was remade by Kanagal in Hindi as Zehreela Insaan (1974), starring Rishi Kapoor.

☞ Nine Months To Freedom: The Story of Bangladesh

1972 72' col English
d S. Sukhdev pc Films Division collaboration by Sohrab Boga, Tapan Bose, Jag Mohan, Gopal Mahesh, Bina Puri, Abdullah Khan, B.I. Maisuriya, Subrata Bannerjee, Harisadhan Dasgupta, Pratap Sharma, N.V.K. Murthy, Pyare Shivpuri

Sukhdev's biggest documentary is a partisan chronicle of the history of Pakistan to the point where Bangladesh, led by Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, demanded its freedom. Then it narrates the events after 25 March 1971, when Yahya Khan sent in the raping and rampaging Pakistani army, the heroic struggle of Bangladesh's Mukti Bahini and finally the Indian Army's defeat of Pakistan and the liberation of Bangladesh. The highlights of the film are its refutation of a clip from Pakistan TV with a strong voice-over, and the interview with an enraged Andre Malraux saying he wants to pick up a rifle and join the war against Yahya Khan's army. Large parts of the story are told using a montage of stills, including newspaper headlines. In addition to footage from BBC TV and Pakistan TV, the film uses sequences of the massacre in Bangladesh (including the opening shot of a dog ripping apart a human corpse).

☞ Padi Pishir Barmi Baksha

aka Aunt Padi's Burmese Box
 1972 118' b&w/col Bengali
d/sc/m Arundhati Devi pc Anindiya Chitra st Leela Majumdar lyr Kazi Nazrul Islam
c Bimal Mukherjee
lp Chhaya Devi, Tapan Bhattacharya, Chinmoy Roy, Ajitesh Bannerjee, Robi Ghosh, Jahar Roy, Haridhan Mukherjee, Ketaki Dutta, Nirmal Kumar, Padmadevi, Rudraprasad Sengupta

Enjoyable though uneven adaptation of Leela Majumdar's classic children's novel. Young hero Khokha, on the way to his uncle's house, is told the tale of his famed Aunt Padipishi (Chhaya Devi). A formidable widow, she once tamed a bandit uncle (Bannerjee) of hers who passed himself off as a saint, extracting a precious Burmese box in return for her silence. Back in the present, a private detective (Ghosh) follows the young hero as the entire family searches for the missing treasure. Eventually the box is found in the attic, where it had been hidden by Padipishi's no-good son Gaja. The film's flashbacks, showing the exploits of the aunt, are in colour. The zany shooting and acting styles mix naturalism with a stylised, operatic direct address.

☞ Pandanti Kapuram

1972 178' col Telugu
d/sc P. Laxmi Deepak pc Jayaprada Pics

p G. Hanumantha Rao st Prabhakara Reddy dial Madipatla Suri lyr Dasarathi, C. Narayana Reddy, Kosaraju, Gopi, Appalacharya c V.S.R. Swamy m S.P. Kodandapani lp Krishna, Vijayanirmala, S.V. Ranga Rao, Devika, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Jamuna, Prabhakara Reddy, B. Saroja Devi, Rajababu, Sandhyarani, Ram Mohan, Pandharibai, Mikkilineni, Sujatha, Allu Ramalingaiah, Radhakumari, 'Sakshi' Rangarao

Traditionalist joint family tale by a star better known for his indigenous adaptations of James Bond thrillers. Four brothers, who love each other dearly, get married and find their wives less than inclined to share their notions of family collectivity.

☞ Parichay

1972 145' col Hindi
d/co-sc/dial/lyr Gulzar pc Tirupati Pics st R.K. Mitra co-sc D.N. Mukherjee c K. Vaikunth m R.D. Burman lp Jeetendra, Jaya Bhaduri, Pran, Sanjeev Kumar, Vinod Khanna, A.K. Hangal, Veena, Leela Mishra, Keshto Mukherjee, Asrani, Master Ravi, Master Kishore, Baby Pinky, Master Raju

Sound of Music (1965) adaptation turning the tutor into a man (Jeetendra) who arrives at Rai Saheb's (Pran) regimental household to 'civilise' the orphaned grandchildren: a brat pack and their elder sister Rama (Bhaduri). The children's father was the talented singer Nilesh (Kumar) who had been told to leave the house when he married against his father's wishes, and the brood hold their rich grandfather responsible for their father's penury and death from tuberculosis. The tutor eventually befriends the children and changes their attitude towards their grandfather. Rama falls in love with him and Rai Saheb blesses their wedding. The Hindi version of the Do re mi number was Sa-re ke sa-re ga-ma, sung by Asha Bhosle and Kishore Kumar.

☞ Pinjra

1972 175' [Mar]/186' [H] col Marathi/Hindi
d/p V. Shantaram pc V. Shantaram Prod. s Anant Mane dial Shankar patil lyr Jagdish Khebudkar c Shivaji Sawant m Ram Kadam lp Sandhya, Shriram Lagoo, Nilu Phule, Vatsala Deshmukh, Govind Kulkarni, Manikraj, Krishnakant Dalvi, Sarla Yevlekar

Shantaram's remake of Sternberg's Der blaue Engel (1930) is a belated homage to his German neo-expressionist influences. He set the story in the popular (esp. in scenarist Mane's own films) Marathi genre of the Tamasha musical. The upright teacher (Shriram Lagoo), vehemently opposed to what he considers degenerate entertainment, is seduced by a Tamasha actress (Sandhya). The two fall in love, forcing the teacher to change his identity. In his new guise he ends up being accused, and sentenced to death, for having murdered the teacher, i.e. himself. Known mainly for its numerous hit songs, the film uninhibitedly rehearses the emphatic symbologies of Shantaram's early days. Ironically, the film also chronicles Shantaram's own dissolution as a film-maker closely linked to the formal misery of contemporary Marathi cinema, performing lok-natya music to garish colour and Sandhya's actorial contortions. This is the film debut of Dr Lagoo, who was making a big impact at the time on the Marathi stage with his highly charged naturalist style.

Shayar-e-Kashmir Mahjoor

1972 153' col Hindi
d/p/sc Prabhat Mukherjee pc Tas Films, Govt. of Jammu and Kashmir dial Balraj Sahni, Pran Kaul lyr Prem Dhawan, Kaifi Azmi c Ajoy m Prem Dhawan lp Balraj Sahni, Parikshit (aka Ajay) Sahni, Miss Kaul, Kalpana Sahni, Pran Kishore Kaul, Badgami, Raja Hamid, Kishori Kaul, Rajni Gupta, Geetanjali Desai, Sajda Zameer Ahmed, Gulam Mohammed Pandit

Although regarded as a Kashmiri production, this Hindi film is a biographical of Ghulam Ahmed Mahjoor (1885-1952), the Kashmiri poet often presented as the greatest writer in the language after Habba Khatoon's 16th-C. romantic lyrics, which strongly marked the writer's early work. In the 40s, influenced by the radical literary movements of the PWA, he wrote poems addressing contemporary Kashmir and his death triggered state-wide mourning rituals. In 1953 he was declared the official national poet of Kashmir. The film presents Mahjoor's (Sahni) chequered early life until he switches from writing in Persian and Urdu to Kashmiri, after which his image becomes fused with the official iconography of the Jammu and Kashmir government. However, under Sahni's influence, the film also offers a nationalist critique of the regime of Sheikh Abdullah, jailed by the Delhi government in 1953 shortly after Kashmir officially joined the Republic.

Swayamvar am

aka One's own Choice aka Betrothal by Choice
 1972 131' b&w Malayalam
d/co-sc/st Adoor Gopalakrishnan
p Kulathoor Bhaskaran Nair pc Chitralakha Film Co-op co-sc K.P. Kumaran c Ravi Varma m M.B. Srinivasan lp Sharada, Madhu, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Adoor Bhawani, Lalitha, Gopi, P.K. Venukuttan Nair, Janardhan Nair, B.K. Nair, Vaikom Chandrasekharan Nair, G. Shankara Pillai

In Gopalakrishnan's debut feature, Viswam (Madhu) and Seeta (Sharada) come to the city as eloped lovers, but although the social pressures to conform may be less stifling, the economic pressures make their survival increasingly precarious. They move from their expensive hotel to a cheaper one, and eventually to a slum, with a smuggler, a rice seller and a prostitute for neighbours. Viswam, who is also a writer, has his novel turned down, and then loses his job as a lecturer. Eventually he dies in poverty, leaving Seeta a destitute widow with a small baby. In the end, as she puts the child to sleep, she hears a knock at the door and looks up into camera. This shot is held for a while, raising the question of the viewers' implication in the conditions portrayed in the film. A bitter drama redeemed by the passion the lovers bear for each other, represented by the child which deserves a better deal out of life than the parents received. The immiseration of the couple is not presented as a punishment for infringing some repressive moral code, which is a refreshing change in this type of melodrama in Kerala; instead, Gopalakrishnan raises the issue of collective responsibility in an impressively cinematic manner.

Tata Manavadu

1972 177' b&w Telugu
d/st/sc/dial Dasari Narayana Rao pc Pratap Art Prod. p K. Raghava lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Kosaraju, Sunkara c Kannappa m Ramesh Naidu lp S.V. Ranga Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Rajababu, Satyanarayana, Anjali Devi, Vijayanirmala, Rajasulochana, Renuka, Allu Ramalingaiah, Manjula

Dasari Narayana Rao's debut is a melodrama featuring three generations of a rural family. A villager educates his son who then moves to the city, forgetting all about his responsibilities to his parents until his own son resumes a relationship with the grandfather.

Thiruneel akantar

1972 145' b&w Tamil
d Jambulingam p K. Selvaraj co-s/lyr Kannadasan co-sc Panchu Arunachalam c T.K. Venkat
m C.N. Pandurangam
lp T.R. Mahalingam, Sowcar Janaki, R.S. Manohar, Bhanumathi (jr), Kanthimathi, Surulirajan, A. Veerappan

A melodrama propagandising for religion. Set in Thillai, tells of the proud potter Ambalavaanar (Mahalingam) who, on his wife Leelavathi's (Janaki) prompting, becomes a devotee and, hearing the Vishalakshi Ammayar Harikatha, dedicates himself totally to the temple, neglecting the girl next door, Saraswathi (Bhanumathi), who had become attached to the couple. Saraswathi falls ill, but is saved through a prayer to Nataraja. When Ambalavanar becomes enamoured of the temple devadasi Kalavathy, his wife refuses any further contact with her husband, but Nataraja again intervenes and reconciles the couple who emerge rejuvenated from the experience thanks to their Lord's blessings.

Trisandhya

1972 133' b&w/col Hindi
d/p Raj Marbros st Uroob c Sudarshan Nag m Bahadur Khan
lp Waheeda Rehman, Bhaskar, Lata Menon, P.K. Abraham

Art-house movie adapting an Uroob novel and set in Kerala. Bhaskar (Bhaskar) falls in love with Indu (Rehman), but she marries his elder brother and business partner. The elder brother dies and Bhaskar has a paralytic attack. He is attended to by his former lover, who has now become a professional nurse. The only significant feature of an otherwise unremarkable film was that John Abraham was employed, early in his career, to assist Marbros.

Zer To Pidhan Jani Jani

1972 127' b&w Gujarati
d/sc Upendra Trivedi pc Rangbhoomi Prod. st Manubhai Pancholi 'Darshak' lyr/m Avinash Vyas c Pratap Dave lp Anupama, Upendra Trivedi, Arvind Trivedi, Vishnukumar Vyas, Narhari Jani

Trivedi, the main star of Gujarati cinema, directed this version of Pancholi's novel after first adapting it to the stage. A man retires to rural life and becomes a benevolent agriculturist. His daughter and her childhood boyfriend, a city-bred son of a barrister, fall into a complex family drama against the backdrop of India's freedom struggle.

Abachurina Post Office

1973 114' b&w Kannada
d/sc N. Lakshminarayan pc Chitra Shilpi st Purnachandra Tejasvi dial Navarathna Ram c N.G. Rao m Vijayabhaskar
lp B.N. Narayanan, Girija Lokesh, Jayaram, Shanta, Katte Ramchandra, Ramesh Bhatt

Bobanna works on a coffee plantation and doubles up as the village postman. He becomes involved with the lives of the illiterate villagers who ask him to write or read out their letters. Although he scrupulously respects people's privacy, his evil mother-in-law leaks the contents of an anonymous letter and causes a scandal. The village turns against Bobanna, who has to leave.

Ankur

aka The Seedling
 1973 136' col Hindi
d/s Shyam Benegal p Lalit M. Bijlani pc Blaze Film dial Satyadev Dubey c Govind Nihalani m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Anant Nag, Shabana Azmi, Sadhu Meher, Priya Tendulkar, Mirza Qadir Ali Baig, Agha Mohammed Hussain, Hemant Jeshwantrao, Shesham Raju, Aslam Akhtar, Syed Yakub, Jagat Jeevan

Benegal's successful feature debut is set in feudal AP and consolidated the New Indian Cinema movement. The politically inflected melodrama tells of a newly married urban youth, Surya (Nag, in his Hindi film debut), who is sent alone to his rural home to look after his ancestral property. Finding himself in the role of the traditional landlord, he has an affair with Lakshmi (Azmi, in her extremely powerful film debut), the young wife of a deaf-mute labourer (Meher), and she becomes pregnant. Her husband, believing the child to be his, goes to tell the landlord the good news but Surya, consumed by his guilt and afraid of being exposed, beats the man almost to death. Lakshmi then turns on her former lover with a passionate speech calling for a revolutionary overthrow of feudal rule. In the last shot, a young boy throws a stone at Surya's house and then the screen turns red. Azmi and Nag launched a new style of naturalist acting deploying regionalised Hindi accents (here Hindi inflected by a Hyderabadi accent) that came to be associated with Benegal's subsequent work. It also helped define a 'middle-of-the-road' cinema which adapted psychological realism and regionalism (emphasised in the fluid camera style) to the conventions of the mainstream Hindi movie. Having cherished the project to make this film for a long time, Benegal eventually found a producer, a distributor of advertising films for whom he had previously made commercials. The producer also backed Benegal's next films.

Shabana Azmi (left, in crowd) in Ankur

villagers, while strangers who have profited from WW2 try to subjugate the local women. Chutki (Sandhya Roy), who had earlier protected Ananga from a sexual assault, has to resort to prostitution in return for rice. The famine forces Gangacharan to abandon his priestly identity and the film ends with his family, including his pregnant wife, sharing what little food they have with a large family of refugees. Footage of starving people in silhouette, with a caption reminding viewers that over five million died in the famine, closes the film. In sharp contrast to Ray's 50s ruralism based on Bibhutibhushan stories, this film is closer to Benegal's Ankur (also 1973) in its use of realist plotting and performance within a melodramatic structure. Several critics had problems with the use of colour e.g. the lush green environments and blazing sunsets. Although defended by Ray himself as an appropriate device to emphasise the artificial nature of the man-made tragedy, it could also be due to laboratory processing in India which tends towards highly saturated effects in line with the demands of the commercial mainstream and advertising film.

⊗ Ashani Sanket

aka Distant Thunder

1973 101' col Bengali

d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Sarbani Bhattacharya pc Balaka Movies st Bibhutibhushan

Bannerjee's novel c Soumendu Roy lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Babita, Ramesh Mukherjee, Chitra Bannerjee, Govinda Chakravarty, Sandhya Roy, Noni Ganguly, Seli Pal, Suchita Roy, Anil Ganguly, Debatosh Ghosh

Ray returns to the village setting of his early films, but in lush colour, with this Bibhutibhushan novel set in 1942 in the run-up to the catastrophic 1943 Bengal famine (evoked in many films, cf. Mrinal Sen's Calcutta '71, 1972). A Brahmin, Gangacharan (Chatterjee), and his beautiful wife Ananga (Bangladesh actress Babita) find their village, despite a successful harvest, overrun by famine. The rice shop of Gangacharan's former benefactor, Biswas (Mukherjee), is attacked by starving

⊗ Banaria Phool

1973 165' b&w Assamese

d/sc/dial Atul Bordoloi pc Goti Chitra

p Keshab Sharma st Bireshwar Barua

lyr Bhupen Hazarika, Nirmal Prova Bordoloi

c Dinen Gupta m Jayanta Hazarika lp Biju Phukan, Ela Kakoti, Chandra Narayan Barua, Makham Khaund, Naemuddin Ahmed, Golap Datta

Romance movie featuring rivals in love. The hero is a young geologist, Abanish, the heroine a tribal woman, Sibila. The problem they face is presented by a villain and vamp. The film was known mainly for its music, being the film debut of noted musician Hazarika, and its competent direction (in a state where film was still a nascent industry).

⊗ Bobby

1973 168' col Hindi

pc R.K. Films d/p Raj Kapoor

st/co-sc K.A. Abbas co-sc V.P. Sathe

dial Jainendra Jain lyr Anand Bakshi,

Vithalbhai Patel, Inderjit Singh Tulsi c Radhu

Karmakar m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

lp Rishi Kapoor, Dimple Kapadia, Pran,

Premnath, Sonia Sahnii, Durga Khote, Shashi

Kiran, Pinchoo Kapoor, Jagdish Raj, Prem

Chopra, Aruna Irani, Farida Jalal

Very successful kitschy teenage love story deploying the urban 'pop' iconography of mid-60s middle-class teenage fashions and Annette Funicello beach movies (including the display of a variety of bathing suits). The 18-year-old Raj Nath (Rishi Kapoor), son of a wealthy businessman (Pran) and a rough but prosperous Goan fisherman's (Premnath) 16-year-old daughter, Bobby Braganza (Kapadia), have a romance despite their respective fathers feuding over class status. The numerous love songs include the famous Hum tum ek kamre mein band ho (sung by Shailendra Singh and Lata Mangeshkar). Although the original script required a tragic ending confirming its Romeo and Juliet model, the distributors insisted on a happy one. Their wishes were met by a manifestly fake conclusion in which celebrated screen villain Chopra appears as himself, and kidnaps the heroine so that the hero may rescue her and unite the two families through his heroism. Raj Kapoor includes many references to his own famous love scenes with Nargis, casting his son Rishi (fresh from his appearance in Mera Naam Joker, 1970) in the lead opposite the debuting Dimple. Apparently Dimple was chosen because of her resemblance to Nargis. The couple's first meeting in the film recreates Kapoor's often-recounted first meeting with Nargis: Dimple comes through the kitchen door with dough on her hands which she absentmindedly rubs into her hair. Hit songs by the new singer Shailendra Singh include Main shayar to nahin and his duets with Lata Mangeshkar, Mujhe kuch kehna hai and Jhoot bole kauva kaate. Rishi Kapoor and Dimple, who had been absent from the screen for a while, starred together again in Ramesh Sippy's Sagar (1985).

⊗ Bon Pal ashir Padabal i

1973 224' b&w Bengali

d/sc Uttam Kumar pc Silpi Sangsad

st Ramapada Choudhury dial Jayadeb Basu

lyr Gouriprasanna Majumdar, Ruby Bagchi

c Madhu Bhattacharya, Kanai Dey

m Nachiketa Ghosh, Satinath Mukherjee,

Dwijen Mukherjee, Adhir Bagchi, Shyamal Mitra

lp Uttam Kumar, Supriya Choudhury, Basabi

Nandi, Bikash Roy, Molina Devi, Anil

Chatterjee, Jahar Roy, Nirmal Kumar,

Kalipada Chakravarty, Madhabi Chakraborty

The Bengali matinee idol Uttam Kumar's massive melodrama about passion, violence and politics in the small village of Bon Palashi. The film is narrated through two sets of characters whose stories are intercut and eventually merged. The first is the family of Girijaprasad, a retired and now impoverished school principal. His inability to invest in the progress of the village has the natives looking for a new leader in his former schoolmate, the businessman Abani. A long flashback, featuring the tragic history of Abani's old aunt (Molina Devi), serves to frame Girijaprasad's present crisis: his scheming brother offers the fiancée of Girijaprasad's daughter Bimala a larger dowry to marry his own daughter instead. The second protagonist is the peasant Udas (Uttam Kumar), who loves the good Padma (Choudhury) but is forced to marry the neurotic Laxmi (Nandi) in order to be allowed to learn to drive a bus. Laxmi kills Padma's father and then commits suicide. Udas tries to get Padma to elope with him but he ends up trying to rape her and, eventually, he kills Padma. Plans to develop the village loom large in the melodrama but the film impresses mainly through its scale (the title means The Songs of Bon Palashi) and its recourse to several acting idioms, including folk theatre.

Daag

aka The Stain aka Stigma
1973 146' col Hindi
d/p/co-sc Yash Chopra pc Yash Raj Films st/co-sc Gulshan Nanda dial Akhtar-ul-Iman
lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Kay Gee m Laxmikant Pyarelal lp Sharmila Tagore, Rajesh Khanna, Raakhee, Baby Pinky, Raju, Manmohan Krishna, Madan Puri, Iftikhar, Karan Dewan, Prem Chopra, Padma Khanna, Achala Sachdev, Surendranath

A convoluted melodrama about Sunil (Khanna) who is charged with murder. He kills his boss's villainous son (Chopra) in self-defence when the latter attacks his wife Sonia (Tagore). On his way to jail the hero has an accident and is believed dead while Sonia bears his child. Later, after she loses her job as a schoolteacher, Sonia and her child are given refuge by Chandni (Raakhee). Chandni is married to Sonia's husband, Sunil, who did not die and now lives under an assumed name. Sunil is elected mayor but a policeman discovers his real identity and a trial ensues. Sunil and Sonia are eventually united again.

Dhund

aka Fog
1973 130' col Hindi
d/p B.R. Chopra pc B.R. Films sc B.R. Films Story Dept dial Akhtar-ul-Iman lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Dharam Chopra m Ravi, Gyan Varma lp Sanjay Khan, Zeenat Aman, Danny Denzongpa, Urmila Bhatt, Madan Puri, Jagdish Raj, Nana Palsikar, Padma Khanna, Ashok Kumar, Navin Nischol

A love-triangle suspense film. The heroine (Aman) is married to a vicious, crippled tyrant (Denzongpa) who is killed in the beginning of the film (shot from the killer's subjective point of view). The heroine and her secret lover (Khan) are the prime suspects. Their story is shown in flashbacks alternating with the progress of the police investigation. In the end, another man (Nischol) confesses to the crime: the old tyrant had raped the man's wife and she became a nun.

Duvidha

aka In Two Minds aka Two Roads
1973 83' col Hindi
d/p/sc Mani Kaul pc Mani Kaul Prod.
st Vijaydan Detha's short story c Navroze Contractor m Ramzan, Hammu, Saki Khan, Latif lp Ravi Menon, Raisa Padamsee, Hardan, Shambhudan, the villagers of Barunda

Kaul's third film, financed by the FFC and an independent multi-arts co-op led by the noted painter Akbar Padamsee. Derived from a Rajasthani folk-tale, it tells of a merchant's son (Menon) who returns home with his new bride (Padamsee), only to be sent away again on family business. A ghost witnesses the bride's arrival and falls in love with her. He takes on the absent husband's form and lives with her. She has his child, which poses a problem when the real husband returns home. A shepherd traps the ghost in a bag. The film focuses on the wife's life and dispenses with almost any dialogue, developing the characters through parallel, historically uneven and even contradictory narratives. The classical styles of the Kangra and Basohli miniature paintings inform the colour schemes, the framing and the editing, as well as the somewhat melancholic atmosphere of the film. This is contrasted by the full-blooded folk-music score. Kaul skilfully orchestrates the way classical and folk forms (apparently) contradict each other in the way they present each other's fantasy worlds, an opposition with many ramifications in the realm of everyday behaviour. It is one of Kaul's best-known films and was widely shown in Europe. It was also sharply attacked by Satyajit Ray who preferred what he took to be the 'realism' of Benegal and M.S. Sathyu's work.

Enippadikal

aka Staircases
1973 164' b&w Malayalam
d/sc Thoppil Bhasi p Kambiseri Karunakaran pc K.P.A.C. st Thakazhy Shivashankar Pillai lyr Vyalar Rama Varma, Irayamman Thampi
c P. Ramaswamy m P. Devarajan lp Madhu, Sharada, Jayabharati, Shankaradi, Kaviyoor Ponnama, K.P.A.C. Lalitha, Adoor Bhasi, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair

Classic Thoppil Bhasi socialist realism backed by the official CPI, continuing his agit-prop stage and screen work starting from Ningalenne Communistaki (You Made Me A Communist, 1970). The film adapts a Thakazhy story set in the oppressive pre-Independence bureaucracy of the diwan C.P. Ramaswamy Aiyer. Erstwhile farmer Kesava Pillai (Madhu) gets a clerical job in the government secretariat advocating and administering the savage repression of the popular CPI uprising. Although married in his village to Karthiyani, in the city he has an affair with Thankamma (Sharada), the daughter of an influential bureaucrat. Thankamma eventually discovers his selfish hypocrisy and becomes a sanyasini. The strength of the people's movement forces his voluntary retirement when his family, personal and professional relationships are all in ruins.

Garam Hawa

aka Hot Winds
1973 146' col Urdu
d/co-p M.S. Sathyu co-p Abu Siwani co-p/c Ishan Arya pc Unit 3 MM. st Ismat Chughtai's short story co-sc/dial/lyr Kaifi Azmi co-sc Shama Zaidi m Bahadur Khan lp Balraj Sahni, Dinanath Zutshi, Badar Begum, Geeta Siddharth, Shaukat Kaifi, Abu Siwani, Farouque Shaikh, Jamal Hashmi, Yunus Pervez, Jalal Agha, Kalpana Sahni, Shanta Agarwal, A.K. Hangal

Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair (2nd from left, foreground), Jayabharati (centre) and Madhu (2nd from right) in Enippadikal

The FFC-sponsored film debut of the IPTA stage director Sathyu is one of the last titles by the generation of 50s Marxist cultural activists (Sahni, Azmi and Chughtai) and chronicles the plight of the minority Muslims in North India. Set in Agra after the first major Partition exodus, the film tells of an elderly Muslim shoe manufacturer, Salim Mirza (Sahni) and his family who must decide whether to continue the ancestral business or to migrate to the newly formed state of Pakistan. Salim's brother Halim (Zutshi) migrates but Halim's son Kazim (Hashmi) returns illegally across a sealed border to marry Salim Mirza's daughter, Amina (Siddharth). He is arrested and sent back. The family loses its ancestral property which under new laws is allocated to a Sindhi businessman; refugees from Pakistan start competing with Salim's business while moneylenders refuse to invest in someone who might emigrate; Amina commits suicide after yet another lover leaves her to go to Pakistan. These adversities persuade the old patriarch to leave as well, leading to a poignant scene where his ancient mother (Badar Begum) hides herself to try to stay in her 'home'. On the way to the station, the family comes across a communist rally proclaiming the unity of all the dispossessed, regardless of religion or caste. Salim's son Sikandar (Shaikh) abandons his emigration plan and joins the rally, determined to stay in India. The film, with its lovingly re-created portrait of Agra's Muslim milieu, is dominated by Sahni's remarkable performance in his last major role.

⊗ Kaadu

1973 141' b&w Kannada
d/sc Girish Karnad p G.N. Lakshmiopathi, K.N. Narayan pc L.N. Combines st/dial Shrikrishna Alanahalli c Govind Nihalani m B.V. Karanth lp Amrith Puri, Nandini, Lokesh, G.K. Govinda Rao, G.S. Nataraj, B. Sudha Belwadi, Kalpana Sirur, Uma Shivakumar, T.S. Nagabharana, Sunderraj

Girish Karnad's first solo direction is a violent rural drama about rivalry between two villages as seen through the eyes of a young boy, Kitti (Nataraj). The boy, who is temporarily staying with his uncle Chandre Gowda (Puri) and aunt Kamali (Nandini), notices his uncle's secret visits to his mistress in the next village. This affair escalates into a larger confrontation between Chandre Gowda and his rival Shivaganga (Lokesh), which eventually leads to violence, the death of Aunt Kamali and the arrival of the police. The boy cannot distinguish the specifically man-made violence that surrounds him from the more primeval threats presented by the dense forest which, according to legend, contains a killer bird that calls out its victims by name. In a fantasy ending, the boy imagines the bird calling him and he follows the call, ignoring the frantic voices of his parents who want to take him home. Shot by Nihalani and starring Amrith Puri, both key figures in Shyam Benegal's cinema, the film anticipates many conventions later associated with Benegal-style ruralism. Karanth did the art direction as well as the music while T.S. Nagabharana designed the costumes.

⊗ Manzil ein Aur Bhi Hain aka Jail is still Ahead

 1973 112' col Hindi
d/st Mahesh Bhatt p Johnny Bakshi, R.H. Jain pc Cine Guild sc Rakesh Sharma dial Satyadev Dubey lyr Yogesh c Pravin Bhatt
m Bhupinder Soni
lp Prema Narayan, Kabir Bedi, Gulshan Arora, Purnima, Sudhir, Shah Aga, Mukesh Bhatt, Soni, Ranvir Raj, Viju Khote, Kirti Kumar, Uma Dutt

Bhatt described his first feature as revolving around 'an unusual sexual relationship between a prostitute (Narayan) and two criminals on the run. The film was a box-office disaster.' The fast paced thriller proclaims its violation of morality codes, as noted theatre personality Dubey's aggressive dialogues sometimes evoke the Abbas or Sukhdev-type rhetoric attacking corruption. It was banned for 14 months by the censors for mocking the 'sacred institution of marriage'.

⊗ Namak Har am aka Traitor aka The Ungrateful

 1973 146' col Hindi
d/st Hrishikesh Mukherjee p Raja Ram, Satish Wagle, Jayendra Pandya pc RSJ Prod. co-sc/dial Gulzar co-sc D.N. Mukherjee lyr Anand Bakshi c Jaywant Pathare
m R.D. Burman
lp Rajesh Khanna, Amitabh Bachchan, Rekha, Simi Garewal, Asrani, A.K. Hangal, Jayashree T, Om Shivpuri, Durga Khote, Raza Murad

Mukherjee repeats his successful pairing of Khanna and Bachchan in Anand (1970) with this buddy melodrama in an industrial working-class setting. When his father (Shivpuri) falls ill, the rich playboy Vikram (Bachchan) has to manage the Bombay factory. He insults a union leader (Hangal) and triggers a strike which he can end only by publicly apologising. Vikram asks his friend Somu (Khanna) to help avenge this humiliation and Somu joins the workforce. Somu becomes involved with a female union activist (Rekha) and changes his views about the conflict and sides with the workers. Vikram's father exposes him as a management stooge and Somu is killed. Vikram takes the blame, is jailed and, when released, decides to champion workers' rights to honour Somu's memory. Based loosely on Peter Glenville's Becket (1964) with a contemporary plot, it attempted a hard-edged realism in its dialogue, with several references to debates and political action from the Left in the late 60s.

⊗ Nathayil Muthu

1973 189' b&w Tamil
d/p/sc K.S. Gopalakrishnan c P. Ramaswamy lyr Vali m Shankar-Ganesh lp K.R. Vijaya, R. Muthuraman, S.V. Subbaiah,

M.R.R. Vasu, V.S. Raghavan, Chandrakantha, S. Varalakshmi

A melodrama about the perils of cross-class marriage. Madhu (Muthuraman), the foreign-educated son of the orthodox brahmin lawyer Varadhachari (Subbaiah) and his wife (Varalakshmi), falls in love with the poor Chelakannu (Vijaya) who looks after their cows. While bathing, Chelakannu's sari is washed away and Madhu lends her his clothes. The slumdweller's misconstrue the situation and force Madhu to marry the girl right away, which he gladly does, going to live with her in the slums. However, Chelakannu realises the unfairness of inflicting such discomfort on her husband while the boy's mother schemes to break up the marriage by suggesting Chelakannu is unfaithful to him. Events culminate in a Panchayat which judges in Chelakannu's favour, but when the Panchayat leaders try to abuse Madhu's sister, Chelakannu saves her and this act of generosity persuades Madhu's family that their son's wife is a worthy member of the group.

⊗ Nirmal ayam

aka The Offering aka The Blessed Offering
 1973 134' b&w Malayalam
d/p/s M.T. Vasudevan Nair pc Novel Films lyr Edassery c K. Ramachandra Babu
m K. Raghavan
lp P.J. Anthony, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Ravi Menon, Sukumaran, Sumitra, Shankaradi, Devidasan, K.R. Sumithra, Shanta Devi, S.P. Pillai, Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair

The directorial debut of noted novelist and screenwriter Vasudevan Nair is an art-house movie about Kerala at the crossroads of modernisation. The ancient temple is neglected and in ruins, tended only by the old oracle, Velichapad (Anthony) and the man who picked flowers for its garden, Variyar (Kottarakkara). When the priest leaves to start a teashop, one of the trustees sends his cook's son (Sukumaran) as the new priest, but the young man is not really interested in the job and forms a relationship with the oracle's teenage daughter, Ammini. The oracle's son is caught trying to sell the sacred sword and has to leave the village. When smallpox breaks out, the villagers return to the temple and prepare a big festival to appease the goddess, to Velichapad's delight. But on the festive day, he discovers that his daughter has been seduced by the young priest and that his wife (Ponnamma) sells herself to a moneylender to feed the family. The film ends on an expressionist scene of the oracle performing the final ceremony of the temple, as he dances before the goddess, spitting at her for letting him down and striking his forehead with the sacred sword until he draws blood. He finally collapses, dead. Stage and film actor Anthony creates with great conviction a larger-than-life character made anachronistic by a changing world.

⊗ Padatik

aka The Guerrilla Fighter aka The Rank And File
 1973 98' (93') b&w Bengali

d/p/s/co-st Mrinal Sen p Mrinal Sen Prod. co-st Ashish Burman c K.K. Mahajan m Ananda Shankar

lp Simi Garewal, Dhritiman Chatterjee, Bijon Bhattacharya, Jochan Dastidar, Dhruva Mitra, Ashima Sinha, Kamal Kidwai, Farida Kidwai, Tapan Das

Completing his Calcutta trilogy (Interview, 1970; Calcutta '71, 1972) with a story more conventionally coherent than its predecessors, Sen presents the lessons adumbrated in the two previous instalments in a reflection on practical politics and party organisation after the Moscow-Beijing split of the early 60s and the Naxalite rising. An urban political activist (Chatterjee) escapes from police custody and is sheltered by an upper-class woman (Simi) who also defies the constraints of 'traditional' oppression: she left her husband and lives alone in a comfortable flat. The two are visited by a prudish and dogmatic party official (Mitra). The activist, though loyal to the movement for political liberation, uses his enforced isolation to reassess the political situation in Bengal. Eventually the activist leaves the flat to visit his ailing mother and learns that his father (Bhattacharya) refuses to be coerced into signing a no-strike agreement at his factory. Sen's lucid if at times naive assessment of party politics and leadership questions caused considerable controversy at the time, partly because, via the figure of the activist's father's admonition that the 'Naxalite movement should learn its lessons from the freedom struggle' (referring thereby to Tagore's Char Adhyay), Sen suggests that the Naxalite rising against the Indian State could also be viewed as an extension of the Independence movement.

Sharada

1973 166' b&w Telugu

d K. Vishwanath pc Annapurna Cine Ents dial Bollimunta lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Dasarathi, Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Arudra c G.K. Ramu, V.K. Gopal m K. Chakravarty lp Shobhan Babu, Sharada, Jayanthi, Satyanarayana, Rajababu, Allu Ramalingaiah, Ravu Gopala Rao, Sarathi, Baby Dolly, Shanta Devi

Vishwanath's psychodrama in the Annapurna tradition (cf. Adurthi Subba Rao's work). A woman (Sharada) goes insane after her husband's (Shobhan Babu) death on their wedding night. A doctor who resembles the husband (Shobhan Babu again) pretends to be the husband as part of the therapy. The treatment eventually fails when she realises the truth and, upholding what the film presents as the glorious Indian tradition of female virtue, dies in a boat on a river at the very place where the husband died. The music enhanced the film's popularity and launched Vishwanath towards an art-house cinema.

Titash Ekta Nadir Naam

aka A River Named Titash

1973 159' b&w Bengali

d/sc Ritwik Ghatak pc Purba Pran Katha

Chitra (Bangladesh) st Advaita Malla Burman's novel c Baby Islam m Bahadur Khan, Ahid-ul-Haq

lp Rosy Samad, Kaberi Choudhury, Roshan Jamil, Rani Sircar, Sufia Rustam, Banani Choudhury, Prabir Mitra, Chand

Ghatak's film, considered by some to be his masterpiece, is a Bangladesh production made shortly after its independence. The tale is set among Malo fishermen living by the Titash river. Kishore's (Mitra) bride (K. Choudhury) is abducted by river bandits. She escapes and is rescued by the fisherfolk, with whom she lives and raises her child. Kishore becomes a madman and is offered shelter by his wife but they recognise each other only before they die. The child is raised by Basanti (Samad) while the river starts silting up and urban traders drive out the fisherfolk. Kumar Shahani devoted an essay to the film, 'The Passion of a Resurrected Spring' (1985), suggesting that the tightly cut beginning of the abduction sequence has the closed structure of a myth which the film gradually opens out into history, especially through the archetypally constructed male and female spaces. Kishore represents an unprecedented amalgamation of Christ and Shiva, usually regarded as contradictory figures, while the thrice-born female figure, associated with the motif of the nurturing river, constitutes a movement of both historical displacement and deliverance. For Shahani the only precedent for such a construction is classical Indian sculpture's use of volume: the film works entirely through planar rather than perspectival depth while condensing opposites such as 'natural' and highly evolved cultural forms into the same image. The film, which works according to an iconographic rather than a narrative logic, places those hybrid images at the end of a civilisation (the drying up of the river), anticipating a future overshadowed by industrial encroachments on nature. The film exists in two versions, the second being c.30' shorter and apparently cut by Ghatak himself.

27 Down

aka Sattawis Down aka The Train to Benares

aka 27 Down Bombay-Varanasi Express

1973 123' (115') b&w Hindi

d/p/sc Avtar Krishna Kaul pc Avtar Kaul Prod. st/dial Ramesh Bakshi lyr Nand Kishore Mittal c Apurba Kishore Bir m Bhuban Hari lp M.K. Raina, Raakhee, Rekha Sabnis, Om Shivpuri, Madhvi, Manjula, Nilesh Velani

The promising young Kaul's only feature, financed by the NFDC and finished shortly before he died trying to save someone from drowning. An engine driver (Shivpuri), incapacitated after an accident, forces his son Sanjay (Raina) to join the railways and to stifle his artistic ambitions beneath a conductor's uniform. Sanjay befriends the commuting typist Shalini (Raakhee) but his father pressures Sanjay to marry a village belle (Sabnis) who resembles the buffaloes she brings as her dowry. Sanjay escapes in yet another train journey (the Bombay-Benares train that provides the film's title as well as the framing scene for the flashback narrative). When Sanjay meets Shalini again, he finds they have nothing in common any more. The train motif dominates the film's highly contrasted imagery and generated one classic high-angle shot of an empty platform filled within seconds by thousands of commuting travellers.

UI agam Sutrum Val iban

1973 184' col Tamil

d/p M.G. Ramachandran pc Emgeeyar Pics st R.M. Veerappan, S.K.T. Samy, Vidwan V.E. Lakshmanan sc Emgeeyar Pics Story Dept dial K. Sornam lyr Kannadasan, Vali, Pulamayi Pithan, Pulavar Veda c V. Ramamurthy m M.S. Vishwanathan lp M.G. Ramachandran, M.N. Nambiar, S.A. Ashokan, R.S. Manohar, Nagesh, Thengai Srinivasan, V. Gopalakrishnan, San Chai, Selvi, Chandrakala, Manjula, Lata, Meta Rungrat

MGR's last major self-produced film is a James Bond-style drama shot in Hong Kong, Singapore, Kuala Lumpur and Thailand. The scientist Murugan (MGR) invents a way of harnessing the energy of lightning. The crooked Prof. Bhairavan (Ashokan) offers him a fortune but Murugan donates the secret to a villainous Buddhist monk in Japan. Murugan is believed to be murdered, after which his brother, a Central Bureau of Investigation official (MGR again), unmasks the international gang of villains. Shot partly also at the Expo '70 in Tokyo, the film's claim to support scientific investigation is further underlined by documentary footage of Nehru, Lal Bahadur Shastri and Annadurai speaking on the subject. It was a major hit with continuous 50-day runs at all centres where it was first released.

Yaadon Ki Baraat

aka Procession of Memories

1973 164' col Hindi

d/p/dial Nasir Hussain pc Nasir Hussain Films s Salim-Javed lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri

c Munir Khan m R.D. Burman

lp Dharmendra, Zeenat Aman, Vijay Arora, Tariq, Ajit, Anamika, Imtiaz, Ravinder Kapoor, Nasir Khan, Shyam Kumar, Neetu Singh, Jalal Agha, Shetty, Satyendra

Vendetta movie and teenage love story inaugurating the influence of Western rock music in Hindi cinema associated with the Americanised persona of Zeenat Aman. While escaping from the murderers of their parents, three brothers get separated. The eldest, Shankar (Dharmendra), a professional thief for whom the traumatic murder remains associated with the motif of a train, pursues the killer (Ajit). The second brother (Arora) has a love affair with a rich woman (Aman), while the youngest (Tariq) becomes a rock star. The 'lost and found' fairy-tale formula, often deployed in Indian cinema (cf. the films of Desai) is adapted here to allow for various encounters between the brothers before they all recognise each other when the rock star sings the film's title refrain, a song they learned from their mother as children. An interestingly fetishistic aspect is that the villain is recognised by his shoes. Although the film recalls Hussain's own earlier musicals with Shammi Kapoor and Dev Anand, its main 'merit' is Aman's guitar-strumming introduction of the disco era. Hits include Burman's Chura liya hai tumne jo dil ko, sung by Asha Bhosle and Mohammed Rafi.

Zanjeer

aka The Chain

1973 145' col Hindi-Urdu

d/p/co-lyr Prakash Mehra pc Prakash Mehra

Prod. s Salim-Javed co-lyr Gulshan Bawra

c N. Satyen m Kalyanji-Anandji

lp Amitabh Bachchan, Jaya Bhaduri, Ajit, Bindu, Pran, Om Prakash, Iftikhar, Ram Mohan, Yunus Pervez, Purnima, Gulshan Bawra, Keshto Mukherjee

First of many films to cast Bachchan as an angry young man, although this still seems a transitional movie: the hero evolves from a cop into a vigilante, the latter being closer to the star's subsequent persona. As a child, Vijay witnesses the murder of his parents by a faceless killer wearing a chain around his wrist. Haunted by the image of the chain, the adult Vijay (Bachchan) becomes a cop determined to clean up Bombay. He befriends the Pathan gambler Sher Khan (Pran) who becomes his ally. Although romantically involved with Mala (Bhaduri), Vijay singlemindedly roots out evildoers and finally identifies his parents' killer: Teja (Ajit). Taking the law into his own hands, he avenges the murders. The film, which introduced the Salim-Javed style, the real authors behind the Bachchan persona, was a great success and set the trend for later revenge and vigilante movies to which the director, the scenarists and the stars of this film would continue to contribute throughout the 70s. Mehra continued the theme in Muqaddar Ka Sikandar (1978).

Alluri Seetamaraju

1974 187' col/scope Telugu

d V. Ramachandra Rao p G. Hanumantha Rao pc Padmalaya Pics dial Maharathi

lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Arudra, Kosaraju,

Sri Sri c V.S.R. Swamy m Adi Narayana Rao

lp Krishna, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Kantha Rao, Chandramohan, K. Jaggaiah,

M. Prabhakara Reddy, Jagga Rao,

Vijayanirmala, Jayanthi, Manjula, Allu

Ramalingaiah, Mikkilineni, Ravu Gopala Rao,

Pandharibai

Telugu star Krishna produces this big-budget film which introduces CinemaScope to Telugu cinema. He stars as the famous revolutionary Alluri Seetamaraju, an anti-imperialist tribal leader who founded the early peasant movements in the state before he was sentenced to death by the British. Remembered for the lyrics by radical poet Sri Sri, the film's success spawned a wave of biopics of historical as well as mythological figures, usually presented as major challenges to the star actors.

Amanush

1974 165' [B]/153' [H] col Bengali/Hindi

d/p/co-sc Shakti Samanta pc Shakti Films st/co-sc Shaktipada Rajguru dial Prabhat Roy [B], Kamleshwar [H] lyr Gouriprasanna

Majumdar [B], Indivar [H] c Alope Dasgupta

m Shyamal Mitra

lp Uttam Kumar, Sharmila Tagore, Utpal Dutt, Abhi Bhattacharya, Anil Chatterjee, Prema Narayan, Manmohan, Asit Sen

Samanta's hit with an all-Bengali star cast reconnects with the Bengali-Hindi bilinguals and signifies to some extent the powerful Bombay production sector's cultural takeover of the Bengali cinema. In the village of Dhaniakhali, the new police chief Bhuvan Sen finds corruption and decay personified by the dissolute Madhusudhan Roy Choudhury (Kumar), the zamindar's son. However, the cause of the rot is not the persistence feudalism in the village but the presence of the sophisticated and mild-mannered Mahim Babu, cast as the villain who turns the head of Madhusudhan's girlfriend Lekha (Tagore). The policeman eventually restores the old feudal power relations, rehabilitates the hero and restores Lekha to him. This reactionary parable was celebrated for the performance of Bengali megastar Uttam Kumar. The Hindi version has the hit song Dil aisa kisine mera toda, sung by Kishore Kumar.

Aval um Penn Thaane

aka She Too Is A Woman

1974 164' b&w Tamil

d/s Durai pc Shri Panduranga Prod.

p P.R. Ramarao, Pandharibai Ramarao lyr Vali

c V. Manohar m V. Kumar

lp R. Muthuraman, M.R.R. Vasu, Thengai

Srinivasan, S.A. Ashokan, S.V. Sahasranamam,

Sumithra, Manorama, M.N. Rajam,

Pandharibai, Kutti Padmini, V.K. Ramaswamy, S.V. Ramadas, Adithan, Dasarathan, Ambathur Mani

Durai's first film tells of Seeta (Sumithra), a prostitute, and her attempt to quit the trade. Muthu (Muthuraman), a young businessman from a mofussil town finds her in a Madras brothel and proposes marriage but her pimp (Vasu) ruins her chances and she commits suicide. A strident camera and editing, heavy symbolism, two songs and a comic subplot help maintain the narrative momentum of the melodrama. In contrast to Tamil cinema's archetypes, the film offers some well-drawn characters with distinct caste identities, speaking with pronounced regional accents: the Chettiar money lender and his young wife interested in pornography, Kanagu the vegetable vendor and Sambandham the bicycle mechanic.

Behind the Breadline

1974 29' col English

d/p S. Sukhdev s Tanvier Farouq, Tapan

Bose c Govind Mahares m Vanraj Bhatia

Propaganda film with emphatic graphics (e.g. a large question mark cut out of newspaper) for Indira Gandhi's 'Garibi Hatao' (Away with Poverty) agricultural policies. Opening with shots of demonstrators led by the Mumbai Mazdoor Sabha being confronted by police, the film cuts to paddy-fields and suggests that the main political and economic problem facing the country is the presence of Sukhdev's favourite enemy: black marketeers and hoarders. Shots of peasants at work are juxtaposed with food-laden plates at tourist resorts, and the mechanical sieving of wheat in Punjab is accompanied by bhangra folk-dance music. The film ends with a governmental raid on black marketeers staged for the film.

Bhoomikosam

1974 176' col Telugu

d/co-s K.B. Tilak pc Anupama Films co-s/dial/co-lyr Shankara co-s/co-lyr Sri Sri co-lyr Arudra, Rimjhim, Srikanth

c Ramakrishna m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao

lp Chalam, K. Jaggaiah, Gummadi

Venkateshwara Rao, Thyagaraj, Ashok

Kumar, Ramana Reddy, Prabhakar Reddy,

Prabha, Jamuna, Vijaya

The film propagates a CPI(ML) (cf. Naxalite) ideology and is dedicated to the director's brother, Narasimha Rao, a member of the party. Set in rural post-Independence AP, it presents the struggle of the peasantry against the rich zamindar, continued at the end by the son of a martyred peasant. Shot on location in Telangana, it included several of Sri Sri's radical lyrics e.g. the title song Bhoomikosam buktikosam saage raitula poratam and Evaro vastharani edo chestarani eduruchoosi mosapokuma.

Boothayana Maga Ayyu

1974 155' col Kannada

d/co-p/sc Siddalingaiah pc Jain Combines co-p M. Veeraswamy, S.P. Varadaraj,

G. Chandulal Jain st Gorur Ramaswamy Iyengar

dial Hunsur Krishnamurthy

lyr Udayashankar, R.N. Jayagopal,

Vijayanarasimha c D.V. Rajaram

m G.K. Venkatesh

lp Vishnuvardhan, Lokesh, M.P. Shankar, Balkrishna, L.V. Sharada, Bhawani,

Rushyendramani, Vaishali, Susheela Naidu

Based on Gorur Ramaswamy Iyengar's story about a village feud that brings two families to the brink of annihilation. Ayyu (Lokesh), son of the cruel and miserly landlord Boothayana (Shankar), goes to court against Gulla (Vishnuvardhan). In the prolonged court case, Gulla's family is reduced to penury and he becomes Ayyu's servant in order to repay debts. Ayyu has a sudden change of heart, but Gulla plots his revenge and mobilises the village to ransack Ayyu's house. Ayyu, however, saves the villagers from the police, and Gulla, in his turn, saves Ayyu's family from flood waters. The film successfully combined a realism-effect, reminiscent of the Kannada New Cinema, with the conventions of rural melodrama. The reform thrust is embodied by the buffalo sacrifice which Gulla defends but Ayyu tries to prevent and which becomes a symbol for the village's caste antagonisms. Also remembered for the tremendously popular performance of Shankar as the evil Boothayya.

⊗ Bristi

1974 122' b&w Assamese
d/s Deuti Barua pc Jayashree Prod. lyr Bhupen Hazarika m Jayanta Hazarika lp Biju Phukan, Bishnu Khargaria, Ela Kakoti, Deuti Barua, Rudra Goswami

Unusual film by noted playwright Deuti Barua. The middle-class hero's diffidence for the girl he loves is contrasted with the lofty idealism of a friend, and the more humane promise of marriage another friend makes to a lonely, elderly woman. The film, accused of upholding the very middle-class conservatism it seeks to critique, was acclaimed for its unusual scripting style.

⊗ Chorus

1974 124' b&w Bengali
d/p/co-st/co-sc Mrinal Sen pc Mrinal Sen Prod. co-st/co-sc/lyr Mohit Chattopadhyay co-st Golam Khuddus c K.K. Mahajan
m Ananda Shankar
lp Utpal Dutt, Subhendu Chatterjee, Asit Bannerjee, Haradan Bannerjee, Shekhar Chatterjee, Satya Bannerjee, Snighda Majumdar, Robi Ghosh, Rasaraj Chakraborty, Geeta Sen, Dilip Roy, Moon Moon Sen, Nirmal Ghosh

Starting out as a fantasy mythological with the gods, entrenched in their fortress, deciding to create 100 jobs, the film becomes an exemplary fairy tale when 30,000 applicants start queuing up for work. The fairy tale then becomes a didactic tragedy with realist sequences (media men interviewing individuals in the crowd of applicants) when the people realise the job scheme is grossly inadequate and popular discontent grows into a desire to storm the citadel. Freely mixing different styles and modes of storytelling including direct address to the camera, with the chorus both as narrator and as political agitator (R. Ghosh, who also plays god and the sutradhara). Sen continues exploring the possibilities of a cinematic narrative that would be both enlightening and emotionally involving without descending into authoritarian sloganising. Having gone as far in this direction as he could, Sen deploys the lessons of his experiments with complex and stylistically diverse cinematic idioms in his next feature, Mrigaya (1976).

Utpal Dutt in Chorus

⊗ Jadu Bansa

1974 167' b&w/col Bengali
d/sc/co-st/co-dial/m Partha Prathim Choudhury pc Montage Films co-st/co-dial Bimal Kar lyr Atulprasad Sen, Rabindranath Tagore
c Krishna Chakraborty, Kanai Das lp Sharmila Tagore, Uttam Kumar, Aparna Sen, Dhritiman Chatterjee, Santosh Dutta, Siddhartha Dutta, Dulal Ghosh, Mihir Pal, Robi Ghosh

Modernist critique of decadent rationalism by the former critic and film society organiser Choudhury. A group of young people live in an unnamed, culturally insecure town where they interact with a series of characters e.g. an old shopkeeper (Uttam Kumar) whom they torture and humiliate but who remains their staunchest ally until his death. The self-indulgent style is occasionally interrupted by lively scenes such as the encounter with a deaf politician, the ransacking of a shop and the number picturised on an Atulprasad Sen lyric, Ar kata kal thakbo basey. Aparna Sen played a double role in the film.

⊗ Jukti Takko Aar Gappo

aka Reason, Debate and a Story aka Argument and a Story
 1974 119' b&w Bengali
d/p/s/m Ritwik Ghatak pc Rit Chitra c Baby Islam lp Ritwik Ghatak, Tripti Mitra, Shaonli Mitra, Bijon Bhattacharya, Saugata Burman, Gyanesh Mukherjee, Utpal Dutt, Ananya Ray, Shyamal Ghoshal

Ghatak's last film featured himself as the drunken and spent intellectual Neelkantha who goes on a picaresque journey through Bengal to reconcile himself with his wife. He is accompanied by Nachiketa (Burman) and Bangabala (S. Mitra), a young refugee from Bangladesh. On the way they are joined by a Sanskrit teacher, Jagannath (Bhattacharya). The episodic narrative also includes encounters with Shatrujit (Dutt) who was once a noted writer but who now writes pornography (apparently a reference to novelist Samaresh Bose); a ranting trade union leader and Panchanan Ustad (Mukherjee) who makes masks for Chhou dancers (a sequence is devoted to showing the famous dance). Jagannath is shot by a landlord when the group stumbles upon a land-grab action. The film ends with Neelkantha meeting a group of Naxalite students wanted by the police: he argues politics with them and is shot in a police ambush the next morning. Filmed while Ghatak was ill and suffering from alcoholism shortly before his death, Jukti is an inventive and lucid though pessimistic testament film, acted with elegance and irony by the director. With an astonishing sense of freedom Ghatak weaves together different styles and images ranging from gross calendar art (the courtship of his wife) to an almost abstract dance of death; from the elaborate Chhou performance where the goddess Durga slays the demon to lyrical depictions of nature; from inserted bits of leader footage to a Baul song. The encounters with the pornographer and the Naxalites add up to a devastating critique of contemporary politics. In the end, Ghatak offers a disabused but stubborn politics of the everyday: Neelkantha dies with a quote from the Manik Bandyopadhyay story Shilpi about a weaver who wove an empty loom because 'one must do something'. Geeta Kapur's essay 'Articulating the Self into History' (1989) is the most extended study on the film.

⊗ Rajanigandha

aka Tube Rose
 1974 110' col Hindi
d/sc/dial Basu Chatterjee pc Devki Chitra st Manu Bhandari's short story Yeh Sach Hai
lyr Yogesh c K.K. Mahajan m Salil Choudhury lp Vidya Sinha, Amol Palekar, Dinesh Thakur, Rajita Thakur, Master Chikkoo, Rajprakash, Gopal Dutia, Naresh Suri

The novelist Manu Bhandari (Mahabhoj, Aapka Banti) was also associated with the 50s literary Nai Kahani movement in Hindi. Her story chronicles the life of a working woman, Deepa (Sinha) torn between two lovers: her intended husband, the gregarious bank clerk Sanjay (Palekar) and Navin (Thakur) whom she meets in Bombay when applying for a teaching job. Palekar's debut performance in Hindi established his best-known screen image as a bumbling common-man hero. The film's claim to represent realistically the middle class through Sanjay's persona is belied by an extensive use of glamorous soft-focus imagery. It was Basu Chatterjee's breakthrough into mainstream Hindi cinema, encouraging the notion that low-budget art-house films can be commercially successful.

Shri Ramanjaneya Yuddham

1974 166' col Telugu

d Bapu pc Shri Lakshminarayana Films
s Gabbita Venkatarao lyr Arudra, C. Narayana Reddy, Dasarathi, Kosaraju c K.S. Prasad
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp N.T. Rama Rao, Arja Janardana Rao, Kantarao, Dhulipala, B. Saroja Devi, Jayanthi, Rajashri, Hemalatha, Jaikumari, K. Mukkamala, Kashinath Tata, Sridhar, Nagaraju, Ramesh, P.J. Sharma, Ch. Krishnamurthy, Ashok Kumar

Costumed mythological featuring a contest between Shiva and Parvati to ascertain whether Shakti (physical prowess) is stronger than Bhakti (devotion). The issue will be decided through a test of Hanuman's devotion to Rama. The film, which includes the Paduka Pattabhishekham and the Yayati episodes from the Ramayana, offers an important example of NTR's god-on-earth political image, here playing Rama.

Sonar Kella

aka The Golden Fortress

1974 120' col Bengali

d/s/m Satyajit Ray pc West Bengal Govt.
c Soumendu Roy

lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Santosh Dutta, Siddhartha Chatterjee, Kushal Chakraborty, Sailen Mukherjee, Ajoy Bannerjee, Kamu Mukherjee, Santanu Bagchi, Harindranath Chattopadhyay, Sunil Sarkar, Suili Mukherjee, Haradhan Bannerjee, Rekha Chatterjee, Ashok Mukherjee, Bimal Chatterjee

The first film featuring the detective Feluda from the Sherlock Holmes pastiches which Ray had published and illustrated since 1965 in his magazine Sandesh. The 6-year-old Mukul (Chakraborty) is obsessed with memories of a previous life in a golden fortress with pigeons, peacocks and camels. Parapsychologist Dr Hazra (Sailen Mukherjee) guesses that the location of Mukul's past life is in Rajasthan and takes the child there to find it. Two crooks, Burman (Ajoy Bannerjee) and Bose (Kamu Mukherjee), read about the expedition in a local paper and, sensing there is a fortune to be made, try to kidnap Mukul. This brings the famed detective Feluda (Soumitra Chatterjee) and his sidekick Topse (Siddhartha Chatterjee) into the case. In an extended chase through Rajasthan, the detective is joined by the thriller writer Jatayu (S. Dutta) as the action, energetically orchestrated via parallel cutting, moves from cars to camels and a train. The film is dominated by the remarkable performance of Kushal Chakraborty as the boy, as well as Santanu Bagchi's extraordinary cameo as the boy who gets kidnapped by mistake and then explains what happened to the detective. Ray made another Feluda story, Joi Baba Felunath (1978).

Uttarayanam

aka Throne of Capricorn

1974 117' b&w Malayalam

d/co-sc G. Aravindan p Karunakaran pc Ganesh Movie Makers st/co-sc Thikkodiyam

c Ravi Varma m Raghavan, M.B. Srinivasan lp Mohandas, Kunju, Balan K. Nair, Adoor Bhasi, Sukumaran, Mallika, Radhamani, Shanta Devi

Aravindan's debut extended a 60s Calicut modernism into cinema, drawing on the work of the writer Pattathiruvila Karunakaran, who produced the film, and the satirical playwright Thikkodiyam, who co-scripted it. The plot is about a disabused young man, Ravi, who has a series of ironic encounters while looking for a job. One of his mentors, Kumaran Master, and his now critically ill friend Setu had participated in the 1942 Quit India agitations with Ravi's father (shown in flashback). The lawyer Gopalan Muthalaly, also a participant in those events, has become a rich contractor and an example of the corrupt post-Independence bourgeoisie. Ravi abandons the city and, in a mystical ending, is initiated into 'eternal truths' by a godman meditating on a mountain. The figures of the father and the ailing friend form a composite portrait of Sanjayan, a political activist, spiritualist and satirist, and major influence on the Calicut artists who participated in the film. Aravindan's approach to his lead characters and his framing evoke the cartoon characters Ramu and Guruji from his Small Man and Big World series.

Aandhi

1975 133' col Hindi

d/sc/lyr Gulzar pc Filmlyug, Om Prakash st Kamleshwar's novel c K. Vaikunth
m R.D. Burman

lp Suchitra Sen, Sanjeev Kumar, Om Shivpuri, Manmohan, A.K. Hangal, Om Prakash, Rehman

A combination of marital romance and political intrigue. A woman politician, Aarti Devi (Sen), fights an election against the powerful Chandersen. Her headquarters are in a hotel owned and managed by her estranged husband J.K. (Kumar). Their memories of life together are intercut with the election campaign, the opposition turning her nightly meetings with her ex-husband into a scandal. She eventually wins the election following an impassioned speech from Chandersen's platform in which she proclaims the man to be her husband and insists on her right to marital privacy. The Bengali musical superstar Suchitra Sen's last Hindi film role is controversial because of her character's obvious references, during the Emergency, to Indira Gandhi (e.g. the streak of white hair; the reference to an ambitious father who caused her marriage to break up), producing some mild censorship problems. There were some popular Kishore Kumar and Lata Mangeshkar duets such as Is mod se jaate hain, Tere bina zindagi and Tum aa gaye ho noor aa gaya hai.

Apoorva Ragangal

1975 144' b&w Tamil

d/s K. Balachander pc Kalakendra Films
lyr Kannadasan c B.S. Lokanathan
m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp Kamalhasan, Sundarajan, Nagesh, Rajnikant, Srividya, Jayasudha, Kanaga Durka, Kannadasan

Melodrama in which the lovers end up exchanging parents. The rebellious Prasanna (Kamalhasan) leaves his home after quarrelling with his father (Sundarajan) and finds shelter with the singer Bhairavi (Srividya) whose illegitimate daughter Ranjini (Jayasudha) also leaves home and finds shelter at Prasanna's father's house. The problem becomes acute when the newly formed couples want to marry: leading to the famous line 'My son has become my father-in-law, your daughter has become your mother-in-law'. The film uses several avant garde conventions fashionable at the time incl. freeze frames and unconventional camera angles, although one unusual scene is the spontaneous jugalbandi in the bathroom between Prasanna and Bhairavi. Rajnikant's debut film also re-launched Kamalhasan. Lyric writer Kannadasan plays himself.

Chamel i Memsaab

1975 144' b&w Assamese

d/p/s Abdul Majid pc Seuj Bolchhabhi Santha st Nirode Choudhury lyr/m Bhupen Hazarika
c Bijoy De lp George Baker, Binita Gohain, Hadi Alam Bora, Saleha Parveen, Abdul Majid, Master Rajib

Tragic love story featuring an English manager of a tea estate (Baker) and a labourer in his employ. The manager is held responsible for the death of his Indian wife, who had committed suicide after giving birth to a handicapped child. The film established its director, a former actor and playwright, as a leading Assamese filmmaker, and was also known for Hazarika's award-winning compositions.

Charandas Chor

aka Charandas the Thief

1975 156' b&w Hindi

d Shyam Benegal pc CFS s Shama Zaidi, Habib Tanvir lyr/m Nandkishore Mittal, Gangaram, Swarnakumar c Govind Nihalani
lp Lalu Ram, Madanlal, Bhakla Ram, Ramnath, Thakur Ram, Malabai, Fidabai, Ram Ratan, Hira Ram, Habib Tanvir, Smita Patil, Anjali Paingankar, Sadhu Meher

Benegal's adaptation of the classic Chattisgarhi dialect folk play by the noted stage director Habib Tanvir. Remembered mainly for celebrated folk theatre actors Fidabai and Madanlal and as Smita Patil's film debut (in the role of a princess). The crazy comedy is about petty thieves in a village who keep eluding the bumbling police until the central character, Charandas (Lalu Ram), is executed for being honest rather than for being a criminal.

Chhotisi Baat

aka A Little Affair

1975 123' col Hindi

d/s Basu Chatterjee pc B.R. Films lyr Yogesh c K.K. Mahajan m Salil Choudhury lp Amol Palekar, Vidya Sinha, Ashok Kumar,

Asrani, Nandita Thakur, Rajen Haksar, Rajendranath, Komilla Wirk

Chatterjee's sequel to Rajanigandha (1974) continues his middle-class love stories. This is a comic tale about a lovesick clerk, Arun Pradeep (Palekar), who is too shy to declare his love to Prabha (Sinha). He is coached in assertiveness by a bluff ex-officer (Kumar) and then succeeds, besting his cocky rival and winning the woman. The film intercuts this story with Arun's fantasies and boasts one hit song, Jaaneman jaaneman tere do nayan, sung by Yesudas and Asha Bhosle.

Chomana Dudi

aka Choma's Drum

1975 140' (120') b&w Kannada

d/m B.V. Karanth pc Praja Films s K. Shivrama Karanth from his novel (1933) c S. Ramchandra Ip M.V. Vasudeva Rao, Jayaran, Honnaiah, Padma Kumtha, Sunderraj, Nagaraja, Nagendra, Shankar Bhat, Lakshmibai, Sarojini, Venkatesh, Mahalakshmi, Govind Bhatt

A relentlessly miserabilist but well-scored and acted story set among the mari holeya, a caste of Untouchables in Southern Karnataka who are forbidden from owning or tilling their own land. This rigid law prevents old Choma (Vasudeva Rao) repaying a long-standing debt to the landlord despite owning two buffaloes he found in the forest. The film chronicles the disintegration of Choma's family: two of his three sons die (one drowns because Brahmins refuse to touch him), the third seeks to escape his social status by converting to Christianity. The daughter is seduced by the landlord's secretary and then submits to the landlord himself hoping to settle the debt. Choma's only way of transcending his grim situation is by playing his little drum nightly, sometimes accompanied by his daughter. When Choma discovers his daughter's relationship with the landlord, he goes to the forest, releases his precious buffaloes, breaks his plough and dies a lonely old man madly playing his drum. Brilliantly carried by the performance of Vasudeva Rao, the film is one of the most successful examples of a ruralist New Indian Cinema, elevating the post-Satyajit Ray invocation of primitivist authenticity into something like a productive principle.

Deewar

aka The Wall aka I'll Die for Mama

1975 174' col Hindi

d Yash Chopra p Gulshan Rai pc Trimurti Films s Salim-Javed lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Kay Gee m R.D. Burman Ip Amitabh Bachchan, Shashi Kapoor, Nirupa Roy, Neetu Singh, Parveen Babi, Manmohan Krishna, Madan Puri, Iftikhar, Sudhir, Rajpal, Jagdish Raj, Kuljit Singh, Rajkishore, A.K. Hangal

Boasting one of the best-known Salim-Javed scripts, Bachchan's hit crime film, told in flashback, relies on the familiar plot of two brothers, one of which is an exemplary cop, Ravi (Kapoor), the other a criminal, Vijay (Bachchan). The bridge between them is the mother they both adore, Sumitra (Roy) but whom Vijay cannot later visit for fear of being arrested. Vijay is the focus of the narrative as he works hard at menial jobs and suffers many humiliations to pay for his younger brother's education. Embittered by the prevailing social iniquities, Vijay is recruited by a dockyard gang of smugglers and rises to become their leader. Ravi has to arrest him. Vijay decides to marry his pregnant lover, the dancer Anita (Babi), and go straight but she is murdered, causing him to become a ruthless vigilante while his mother gives Ravi permission to hunt down his wayward brother. Eventually a dying Vijay, shot by his brother, keeps his tryst at a temple with his mother. A phenomenal hit, the film repeats the 'traditional' proposition that kinship laws must prevail over legality at a very sensitive political and cultural moment: the year the Emergency was declared. Salim-Javed apparently modelled Bachchan's character on the notorious smuggler Haji Mastan Mirza (a media celebrity as public enemy number one jailed during the Emergency and making a dramatic self-criticism afterwards). Although his fight scenes seem calibrated on those in Hong Kong action films, Bachchan's sultry performance in the discursive scenes humanises the gangster, thus also humanising the contemporary nationalist law and order rhetoric used to legitimise dictatorial oppression. The mother-as-nation cliché, an extension of the nation-as-family cliché, both often deployed in Hindi films (cf. Mehboob's emblematic Mother India, 1957), was mobilised here for a more ambiguous purpose: although the audience's sympathies are directed towards the working-class rebel, the mother-nation reluctantly sanctions the legalised persecution of her well-meaning but misguided son, an action with obvious parallels in the political situation of the time.

Ganga Chil oner Pankhi

1975 105' b&w Assamese

d/co-sc/m Padum Barua pc Rupjyoti Films

st Laxmi Nandan Bora co-sc Mohammed Sadulla lyr Shankara Deb c Indukalpa Hazarika Ip Beena Barwati, Basanta Saikia, Basanta Duara, Mohini Rajkumari, Asaideo Handige, Bipul Barua, Beena Das Manna, Bhola Kakoti

Landmark Assamese political melodrama set shortly after Independence. A petty trader refuses to let his sister marry the man she loves because he has supported a rival candidate in a local election. Instead, he forces her to marry another man, who dies tragically when he learns of his wife's past. The bulk of the film addresses the young widow's difficult life as she defies her family only to be rejected by the man she loves. A decade in the making, this remains the director's only film to date.

Hamsa Geethe

aka The Swan Song

1975 150' col Kannada

d/sc G.V. Iyer pc Ananthalakshmi Films st T.R. Subba Rao lyr Muthuswamy Dikshitar, Shama Sastry, Sadasiva Brahmendra, Uthukadu Venkatasubbaiah Iyer, Jayadeva c Nemai Ghosh m B.V. Karanth, Balamurali Krishna Ip Anant Nag, Rekha Rao, Narayana Rao, Mysore Mutt, G.S. Rama Rao, B.V. Karanth, Chandrasekhar, Balasubramanyam, Girimaji, Prema Karanth, Jayalakshmi Eswaran, Meenakshi, Saroja, Ramkumar

Veteran director Iyer's first art-house film is a musical version of the legendary tale of the 19th C. Carnatic singer Bhairavi Venkata Subbaiah (Nag, in his first major screen role), who received the patronage of Chitradurga royalty and at one time defied Tipu Sultan. The singer apparently cut out his tongue to prove that 'music is nobody's slave'. The film presents the singer according to the conventional Romantic model of the artist: a musician who rebels against his teacher, wanders aimlessly and asks a beggar to become his new guru, attains glory, falls in love and 'sells' two of his compositions to survive. With less than 15' of dialogue, the film's sequence shots emphasise the barren, rocky outback of Chitradurga as an analogy for the musician's quest for aesthetic rigour. One of Iyer's first attempts to fulfil the old Mysore royalty's search for a brahminical classicism to legitimate their British-backed rule. In this respect, Iyer's film is at the opposite pole, in contemporary Karnataka politics, of anti-brahminical films such as Samskara (1970). Iyer's revivalist project, which led him later to make Saint films, is repeated by K. Vishwanath's Telugu films after Shankarabharanam (1979).

Rekha Rao in Hamsa Geethe

Jai Santoshi Maa

aka In Praise of Mother Santoshi

1975 145' col Hindi

d Vijay Sharma pc Bhagyalakshmi Chitra Mandir s R. Priyadarshini lyr Pradeep c Sudhendu Roy m C. Arjun

lp Anita Guha, Ashish Kumar, Kanan Kaushal, Trilok Kapoor, Mahipal, Manhar Desai, B.M. Vyasa, Bharat Bhushan, Anant Marathe, Rajen Haksar, Dilip Dutt, Johnny Whisky, Shri Bhagwan, Leela Mishra, Asha Poddar, Lata Arora, Neelam, Surendra Mishra

Starting life as a routine B picture, the film made history by becoming one of the biggest hits of the year (with Sholay and Deewar), and made a little-known mother goddess into one of the most popular icons esp. among the urban working-class women who started observing the goddess's ritual fast on 12 consecutive Fridays and made offerings of chick-peas. The foremost earthly disciple of the deity Santoshi (Guha) is Satyavati (Kaushal). When Satyavati marries the itinerant Birju, the wives of the celestial trio Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva feel envious and create a series of problems intended to test Satyavati's devotion. After Santoshi has made the heavens literally rock with her rage, Satyavati emerges from her trials with her faith untarnished and so allows Santoshi to be accepted into the cosmic pantheon. The movie was lucidly analysed by the anthropologist Veena Das in her essay 'The Mythological Film and its Framework of Meaning' (1980). I. Masud noted some revealing differences between this mythological and its classic predecessors, showing this film to be far closer to 'daily preoccupations' than its generic models (e.g. gods also engage in frenetic quarrels).

Jana Aranya

aka The Middleman

1975 131' b&w Bengali

d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Subir Guha pc Indus Films st Shankar's novel c Soumendu Roy lp Pradip Mukherjee, Satya Bannerjee, Dipankar Dey, Lily Chakraborty, Aparna Sen, Gautam Chakraborty, Sudeshna Das, Utpal Dutt, Robi Ghosh, Bimal Chatterjee, Arati Bhattacharya, Padmadevi, Soven Lahiri, Santosh Dutta, Bimal Deb, Ajeya Mukherjee, Kalyan Sen, Alokendu Dey

The final film in Ray's Calcutta trilogy (cf. Pratidwandi, 1970; Seemabaddha, 1971) is also his most disaffected melodrama. Further elaborating the theme of corruption which runs through the entire trilogy and would return later in e.g. Shakha Proshakha (1990), the film features the young Somnath Bannerjee (P. Mukherjee) who, unfairly assessed in his graduate examination, cannot get a job. He goes into partnership with Bishuda (Dutt) and becomes a corporate 'middleman' or dalal (also the term for a pimp) buying and selling. Since the purchasing officer of a mill, Goenka (Lahiri), requires a call-girl as a bribe, Somnath and his new mentor, Mitter (Ghosh), explore Calcutta's underworld. Several comic failures later, he finally meets the prostitute Juthika (Das), the sister of a former classmate Sukumar, (G. Chakraborty), although she is too ashamed to admit to this. The film is contextualised by the Emergency situation through e.g. the references to power shortages and the then-Chief Minister Siddhartha Shankar Ray's hostility to the film. With this grimly comical tale Ray abandoned the gentle humanism with which he chronicled the follies of his well-meaning but sometimes ill-equipped liberal intelligentsia. Even the mild sympathy he felt for the radical movements reflected in Pratidwandi now disappear before a hero willing to be led unquestioningly through life by mentors like Bishuda or Mitter. The 'upright' father-figure (Satya Bannerjee) now belongs to a different world from this new generation. For the next decade, Ray concentrated on children's stories and period melodramas, turning away from the contemporary.

Julie

1975 145' col Hindi

d K.S. Sethumadhavan pc Vijaya st Pamman's novel Chattakari dial Inder Raj Anand lyr Anand Bakshi, Harindranath Chattopadhyay m Rajesh Roshan lp Laxmi, Om Prakash, Utpal Dutt, Vikram, Jalal Agha, Sulochana, Sridevi

Sethumadhavan and Tamil star Laxmi's best-known Hindi film is a remake of the director's Malayalam hit Chattakkari (1974). The Anglo-Indian Julie (Laxmi) abandons her boyfriend to have an affair with Shashi (Vikram) and becomes pregnant, providing an excuse for several shots detailing the star's body. She tries to contain the scandal by sending her son to a far-away place. The film claimed to address the attitudes of India's Anglo-Indians but its major attraction, apart from the voyeurism, is Harindranath Chattopadhyay's English song, My heart is beating, sung by Preeti Sagar.

Kabani Nadi Chuvannappol

aka When the Kabani River Turned Red

1975 87' b&w Malayalam

d/s P.A. Backer pc Saga Movie Makers p Pavithran c Vipin Das m P. Devarajan lp T.V. Chandran, Raveendran, J. Siddiqui, Salam, Pailunni, Shalini, Dawn

Backer's debut telling the love story between a young woman (Shalini) and a radical political activist (Chandran). The relationship 'humanises' the idealist who is declared to be a criminal. The featurette ends with police killing the hero, a tragedy the woman learns about through the newspapers. Several young Malayalam directors were strongly influenced by the film, notably T.V. Chandran (Alicinte Anveshanam, 1989), who plays the lead, and Raveendran, who worked on it. The film was repeatedly censored, and even pulled out of theatres during the Emergency, apparently on Indira Gandhi's instructions.

Katha Sangama

1975 144' b&w Kannada

d/sc S.R. Puttana Kanagal pc Vardhini Art Pics st Giraddi Govindaraj, Veena Yelburgi, Eshwar Chandra dial Yoganarasimha lyr Vijayanarasimha c B.N. Haridas m Vijayabhaskar lp G.K. Govinda Rao, B. Saroja Devi, Arathi, Loknath, Manjula Rao, Kalyana Kumar, Leelavathi, Gangadhar, Rajnikant

Portmanteau film based on three short stories. Hangu is about a poor university professor presented with a bribe just when his son is ill and requires expensive medical treatment. The second episode, Atithi, tells of an old spinster who once refused to marry the man who loved her and now sees him marrying her student. The third, Munithayi, has a wealthy man marrying a blind girl (Arathi) out of pity, but in his absence she is raped by an adolescent youth and later blackmailed. The husband eventually 'forgives' her for having been raped.

Mamata

1975 124' b&w Oriya

d/sc Byomkesh Tripathi pc Peekay Prod. st Prashanta Nanda co-lyr Madhusudhana Rao, Sibabrata Das, Gopal Krishna Das co-lyr/m Prafulla Kar c Deojibhai lp Prashanta Nanda, Suresh, Asima, Dhira Biswal, Dinabandhu, Bhanumathi, Radha Panda

Melodrama celebrating the love between a woman and her brother-in-law. Mohan goes to the city and marries Chitra. They become parent figures for Mohan's younger brother, the rustic Ramu. When Mohan dies, gossip about an affair between Chitra and Ramu forces her to leave but she returns to take care of Ramu. This Oriya hit, largely for Prafulla Kar's music, is regarded as having revived the region's film industry.

Mausam

1975 156' col Hindi

d/co-sc/lyr Gulzar pc Sunandini Pics, P. Mallikarjuna Rao st Kamleshwar co-sc Bhushan Banmali c K. Vaikunth m Madan Mohan lp Sharmila Tagore, Sanjeev Kumar, Om Shivpuri, Agha, Satyen Kappu, Dina Pathak, Lily Chakraborty

The successful doctor Amarnath Gill (Kumar) returns to a hill resort where 20 years ago he had an affair with the local beauty Chanda (Tagore). He learns that she had gone crazy waiting for him, married unhappily and died shortly after giving birth to a daughter. He now encounters the fiery prostitute Kajli (Tagore again) who turns out to be the daughter. Without revealing his identity, he tries to make her a socially respectable woman in several comic and, to him, embarrassing situations recalling Shaw's Pygmalion. Kajli, who hates the man who jilted her mother and caused her death, eventually relents and leaves with the hero. Tagore's lively performance is the highlight of the film.

☞ Muthyal a Muggu

1975 165' col Telugu
d/sc Bapu pc Shri Rama Chitra st/dial Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr Arudra, C. Narayana Reddy, Guntur Sheshendra Sharma c Ishan Arya m K.V. Mahadevan lp Sridhar, Sangeetha, T.L. Kantha Rao, Ravu Gopala Rao, K. Mukkamala, Suresh, Allu Ramalingaiah, Varaprasad, Suryakantam, Purnima, Jaya Malini, Kalpana, Baby Radha, Master Murali, Arja Janardana Rao, 'Sakshi' Rangarao, Haram

Although the author of mythologicals (cf. Shri Ramanjaneya Yuddham, 1974; Seeta Kalyanam, 1976), Bapu is better known for his updating of the genre as a critique of modernity (cf. Hum Paanch, 1980). This is a contemporary version of the Rama legend. Sridhar (Sridhar), the son of Raja Ramadas, marries Laxmi (Sangeetha) who is earlier seen with a pet monkey (evoking the monkey god Hanuman). The villain (Mukkamala) and his daughter (Malini) seek out a modern Ravana (Gopala Rao), who hides a person in the wife's bedroom so that her husband will suspect an affair. Eventually the couple's twins bring their parents together and wreak revenge on the Ravana figure. Gopala Rao's stylised performance together with the twins' 'cute' pranks assured the film's entertainment value.

☞ Nishant

aka Night's End
 1975 144' col Hindi
d Shyam Benegal p Freni M. Variava, Mohan J. Bijlani pc Blaze Film Ents s Vijay Tendulkar
dial Satyadev Dubey lyr Mohammed Quli Qutb Shah c Govind Nihalani m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Girish Karnad, Shabana Azmi, Anant Nag, Amrish Puri, Smita Patil, Satyadev Dubey, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Mohan Agashe, Naseeruddin Shah, Savita Bajaj, Sadhu Meher

Based on Tendulkar's original play, apparently inspired by an actual event and written for Utpal Dutt, the film extends the Ankur (1973) theme of rural oppression in AP. A poor schoolmaster (Karnad) and his young wife (Azmi) come to a village dominated by a villainous family of zamindars, consisting of four brothers who abduct and rape his wife. The distraught schoolteacher, helped by an old priest (Dubey), finally succeeds in mobilising the villagers and they slaughter their oppressors. Although not as big a success as Ankur, the film enabled many of the actors to trade on their naturalist authenticity to become mainstream Hindi stars including the debuting Naseeruddin Shah and Amrish Puri, who plays the eldest and nastiest brother and is now the highest-priced screen villain in Hindi cinema.

Anwar Hussain (left) and Utpal Dutt (right) in Palanka

☞ Pal anka

1975 128' b&w/col Bengali
d/dial Rajen Tarafdar pc Film Arts, Anis Film Corp [Bangladesh] st Narendranath Mitra c Sailaja Chattopadhyay m Sudhin Dasgupta lp Utpal Dutt, Sandhya Roy, Anwar Hussain

This Indo-Bangladesh co-production sees the return to prominence of Tarafdar (Ganga, 1960). In East Bengal during Partition, the Hindu patriarch Rajmohan (Dutt), aka White Boss because of his fair complexion, stays behind when his family emigrates to Calcutta. His only companion, the poor Maqbool (Hussain), ridicules him for staying in what is now Pakistan. Rajmohan's daughter-in-law, facing poverty in Calcutta, asks him to sell a giant four-poster bed that had once been her dowry, and to send her the money. The opulent bed, renowned throughout the village for its size and elaborate craftsmanship, is bought by Maqbool (who dreams of making love to his wife on it). This sparks a major controversy among the Muslim gentry in the village as Maqbool is accused of trying to transcend his class position. The quarrel is eventually resolved and Rajmohan imagines Maqbool's two children sleeping on the bed in the manner of the infant Krishna. With fluent dialogue and memorable acting, esp. by Dutt and Hussain, the recourse to the bed as a metaphor within a realist idiom allows the film to address the fantasy dimensions inherent in questions of class and religion.

☞ Pandu Haval dar

1975 143' b&w Marathi
d/co-lyr Dada Kondke pc Sadiccha Chitra s/co-lyr Rajesh Majumdar co-lyr Jagdish Khebudkar c Arvind Laad m Ram-Lakshman lp Dada Kondke, Usha Chavan, Ashok Saraf, Lata Arun, Ratnamala, Gulab Mokashi, Mohan Kothivan

Kondke's ribald crazy comedy hit, a change from his usual rural Tamasha-derived formula, continues the director-star's fondness for sexual puns, as in the song Aho havaldar majhya kulupachi chavi haravli ('I lost the key to my lock'). Pandu Havaladar (Kondke) is a corrupt cop, a comical figure whose costume undermines any effort to appear authoritative, and an ally of Paru Kelewali, a fruitseller with links to a smuggling ring. The gang is smashed and the cop humanised through the unashamedly sentimental use of a deaf-and-dumb woman he rescues.

☞ Saamna

aka Samna aka Confrontation
 1975 151' b&w Marathi
d/co-lyr Jabbar Patel pc Giriraj Pics s Vijay Tendulkar lyr Aarti Prabhu [aka C.T. Khanolkar], Jagdish Khebudkar
c Suryakant Lavande m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Shriram Lagoo, Nilu Phule, Vilas Rakate, Mohan Agashe, Lalan Sarang, Usha Naik, Sanjeevani Bidkar, Smita Patil, Asha Patil, Rajani Chavan

Tendulkar's first independent Marathi script and Jabbar Patel's debut is set in Maharashtra's notorious sugar co-operatives, the power base of the state's Congress Party. In his best-known screen role the noted Marathi stage and film actor Phule plays Hindurao Dhone Patil with the familiar body language of the arrogantly corrupt politician secure in his power. He covers up an incident involving the military officer Maruti Kamble (Agashe) until a mystic hobo, a former schoolteacher, amateur magician and drunkard (Lagoo) challenges the politician's might. The film's high points are the acrotorial duel between the two biggest names of the Marathi theatre, Lagoo and Phule, and characters which a literary critic would describe as rounded. The film continues directly from Tendulkar's 70s theatre (cf. Sakharam Binder, 1971) but glorifies cinema's ability to show actual locations. Lagoo sang the hit song Kuni tari ashi phataphat.

☞ Sansar Simantey

1975 126' b&w Bengali
d/co-lyr Tarun Majumdar pc Samakalin Pics st Premendra Mitra s Rajen Tarafdar co-lyr Pulak Bannerjee, Hridayesh Pandeya, Himansu Sekhar Sen c K.A. Reza m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Sandhya Roy, Soumitra Chatterjee, Shekhar Chatterjee, Robi Ghosh, Sulata Choudhury, Samita Biswas, Utpal Dutt, Kali Bannerjee

Endearingly realist love story between a prostitute and a thief. Rajani (Roy), a streetwalker, shelters the thief Aghor (So. Chatterjee) but he steals her money. She has him beaten up by a mob and then nurses him back to health. Aghor gives her a stolen necklace and is then chased by his own gang for failing to share the booty. Eventually Rajani agrees to marry Aghor and he promises to buy her from her pimp, but he gets caught by the police. Major scenes include Aghor taking Rajani on a tour of Calcutta, the hand-held shot showing the police searching the corpse of Rajani's friend Manada, and cameraman Reza's controlled bounce-lighting technique. The love story does not, except at the end, interfere with the film's intention of showing sentimentalised life in the red-light area through a series of characters like the madam, the doctor, the vendors, the hoodlums, the landlord's agent who comes for his weekly rent, and the 'respectable' neighbours.

☞ Shol ay

aka Flames of the Sun aka Embers
 1975 199' col Hindi
d Ramesh Sippy p G.P. Sippy pc Sippy Films s Salim-Javed lyr Anand Bakshi c Dwarka Divecha m R.D. Burman lp Dharmendra, Sanjeev Kumar, Amitabh Bachchan, Hema Malini, Jaya Bhaduri, Amjad Khan, Iftikhar, A.K. Hangal, Leela Mishra, Macmohan, Sachin, Asrani, Helen, Keshto Mukherjee

Massively popular adventure film shot in 70mm. India's best-known 'curry' western patterned on Italian westerns with admixtures of romance, comedy, feudal costume drama and musicals. In addition, it is peppered with elements from e.g. Burt Kennedy, Sam Peckinpah, Chaplin and Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969). The revenge plot has two adventurous crooks, Veeru (Dharmendra) and Jaidev (Bachchan) who are hired by ex-cop Thakur Baldev Singh (Kumar) to hunt down the dreaded dacoit Gabbar Singh (Amjad Khan) who massacred Thakur's family. The film tells its story in three long flashbacks, the first showing the meeting between Thakur and the crooks followed by a long sequence of bandits attacking a train; the second shows Thakur arresting Gabbar Singh, who retaliates by wiping out Thakur's entire family, except for his younger daughter-in-law Radha (Jaya Bhaduri). This episode introduces the third and final encounter when Thakur, whose two arms have been cut off, kicks the bandit into submission. In keeping with his romantic screen image, Jaidev/ Bachchan is also killed (which also allowed the film to adhere to the Hindi cinema's norm that the widowed Radha may not remarry). A technically accomplished film, it uses its spectacular cinematography panning and craning over rocky heights and barren quarries, often under menacing clouds, mainly to build up its major legend, the evil Gabbar Singh. Amjad Khan's best-known screen role includes dialogues that became famous throughout the country (an edited soundtrack of the film was released as an LP). The kaleidoscopic approach to the plot structure allowed the film-maker to anthologise the highlights of various genre narratives (e.g. How the West Was Won, 1962) and to combine them into a single film, a privilege usually reserved for crazy comedies but here held together by its intensely emotional current, sustained not only by the high-energy shooting styles but also by the music and savoury dialogues. The end result resembles a skilfully designed shopping mall with the viewer being propelled past successive window displays, each exhibiting an eye-catching presentation of some aspect of the popular cinema's history. W. Dissanayake and Malti Sahai (1992) published a book-length commentary on the film.

☞ Swapnadanam

aka Journey through a Dream aka Somnambulism
 1975 121' b&w Malayalam
d/co-sc K.G. George pc K.R. Films Int st E. Mohammed co-sc Pamman c K. Ramchandra Babu m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Mohandas, M.G. Soman, P.K. Abraham, Isaac Thomas, Venukuttan Nair, Rani Chandra, T.R. Omana, Prema, Mallika, Sonia

George's commercially successful art-house debut is a marital psychodrama without the usual songs and dances. Hero Gopi (Mohandas, a medical practitioner as well as an actor) is unhappily married to Sumitra (Rani Chandra), his cousin and traditional bride. The problem is complicated by his indebtedness to her father (Nair) who sponsored his education. The film works through extensive use of flashbacks (George's favourite storytelling device) as the hero is treated by a psychiatrist (Thomas), haunted by memories of the woman he loved at university. He ends up in a mental asylum.

☞ Tanariri

1975 120' col Gujarati
d/sc Chandrakant Sangani pc Geeta Chitra st/dial Harin Mehta lyr Kanti Ashok c Vishnukumar Joshi m Mahesh-Naresh lp Sohrab Modi, Kanan Kaushal, Bindu, Nareshkumar, Urmila Bhatt, Vishnukumar Vyas, Naran Rajgor, Leela Jariwala

A version of the often-filmed legend associated with the 16th C. musician Tansen (cf. Tansen, 1943) at Mughal Emperor Akbar's (Modi) court and one of the founding figures of North Indian classical music. After singing the raga Deepak (associated with light), Tansen himself burns from within and can be saved only by an equally competent singer performing the Malhar (a raga associated with the monsoon). The two women, Tana and Riri, daughters of the head of the Nagar community and victims of Akbar's imperialism, can do so but they turn down the invitation from Akbar. This leads to royal retribution and eventually forces the two women to commit suicide.

☞ Waves of Revolution

aka Kranti Ki Tarangein
 1975 30' b&w English
d/co-c Anand Patwardhan co-p Pradip Krishen, Ved Prakash

Patwardhan's first full documentary, made on Super-8, inaugurated the independent documentary movement in India. It chronicles the Navnirman students' movement in Gujarat (1974) which eventually led to the mass movement of Jayaprakash Narayan in Bihar, culminating in the Emergency being declared (26 June 1975). The film interprets the JP agitation as a latter-day and more radicalised version of Gandhi's call for non-violent land reform, this time directed against Indira Gandhi's rule. It includes several speeches by Narayan himself, and one direct interview, and shows the rallies he led in Patna (1974) and New Delhi (1975). Completed before the declaration of the Emergency, it has an epilogue on the early days of the state crackdown in the months of June and July. Extensively screened by underground groups during the Emergency, the film inaugurates several of the director's typical documentary strategies, including the use of his own voice and his interviews while holding the camera. Along with its sequel, Prisoners of Conscience (1978), the film represents definitive coverage of the political conflicts, as well as the rhetoric, characterising those turbulent years.

☞ Annakkil i aka Annam the Parrot

 1976 134' b&w Tamil
d Devaraj-Mohan pc SPT Films st R. Selvaraj sc/dial/lyr Panchu Arunachalam c A. Somasundaram m Ilaiyaraja lp Sivakumar, S.V. Subbaiah, Srikanth, Thengai Srinivasan, Sujatha, Fatafat Jayalakshmi, Vennira Adai Murthy, Senthamarai, M.N. Rajam, Manimala, S.N. Lakshmi

Eternal-triangle story set and shot on location in the picturesque village of Thengumarada in a valley near Sathyamangalam. The young village midwife Annam (Sujatha) falls for the new schoolteacher (Sivakumar), but he marries her friend Sumathi (Jayalakshmi), the rich landlord's daughter. The owner of the local cinema, Azhagappan (Srinivasan), is the villain: he abducts the teacher's son to blackmail Annam into marrying him. She sets fire to his cinema and rescues the infant but dies in the process. Silent Tamil film shows often had live attractions on the programme and this aspect was later incorporated into the films e.g. as a special dance drama. Here, two long extracts from other films were worked into the plot by having the heroine go to her local cinema and watch Padmini dancing as Andal, the mythical devotee offering flowers to her god, and - intercut with the climax - Kannamba playing the title part in Kannagi (1942) where she burns the city of Madurai after proving the innocence of her husband. The film also launched Ilaiyaraaja's phenomenal career as a music director with the songs Annakkili unnai thedudhu and Machanai partheengala, two extremely popular and long-lasting hits in TN.

⊗ Bhadrakali

1976 139' b&w Tamil/Telugu
d/sc A.C. Trilogchander p Cine Bharath st Maharishi dial Arur Das lyr Vali
c Vishwanath Roy m Ilaiyaraaja lp Rani Chandra, Sivakumar, Major Sundarajan, Bhawani, Sukumari, Sivagami, Thengai Srinivasan, Manorama, Rajasekharan

Adapted from a popular novel narrating how a peaceful woman changes into a fury, the film's climax remained unfinished due to the death of Rani Chandra, but was an immense success anyway. She plays Gayathri, whose happy middle-class marriage was ruined when a 'chandalan' Kandeepan raped her. Divorced and mentally disturbed, she still imagines herself to be married. Her ex-husband marries Jayanthi (Bhawani), but the evil Kandeepan lusts after Jayanthi as well and kidnaps her stepson to force her to sleep with him. Gayathri recovers her sanity long enough to hunt down the villain with a trishul and dies while killing him.

⊗ Bhumika

aka The Role
1976 142' col Hindi
d/co-sc Shyam Benegal p Lalit M. Bijlani, Freni
M. Variava pc Blaze Film Ents st Hansa Wadkar's Sangtye Aika (1970) co-sc Girish Karnad dial Satyadev Dubey lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri, Vasant Dev c Govind Nihalani
m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Smita Patil, Anant Nag, Amrish Puri, Naseeruddin Shah, Sulabha Deshpande, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Baby Rukhsana, Amol Palekar, B.V. Karanth

Benegal abandons his rural settings for this cinephile fantasy based on the autobiography of the Marathi/Hindi actress Hansa Wadkar. Usha (Patil, in the role of Wadkar) is taught music by her grandmother. She tries to become a film actress as a child and eventually becomes a star in adulthood, a trajectory inflected by the four men she meets at various points in her life: husband Keshav (Palekar), narcissistic male co-star Rajan (Nag), effete film-maker Sunil Verma (Shah) with whom she makes an unsuccessful suicide pact, and the landowner Kale (Puri) whose second wife she becomes. Many aspects of the story allow the question of women's oppression to be raised although, tragically, Usha seems to end up identifying herself with the romantic cliché of the self-sacrificing heroine, defeated by the patriarchal mores that have weighed on her since early childhood (shown in sepia flashbacks). The film opens with scenes alluding to the making of Wadkar's best-known title, Lokshahir Ramjoshi (1947). The music test which Govindrao Tembe and Baburao Painter gave the young Wadkar at Shalini Cinetone is reconstructed, a rather poignant moment since Wadkar hates the very music which elevates her to stardom. However, film history is treated with poetic licence as the story roams through some pre-WW2 genres: Bombay Talkies is evoked through Sunila Pradhan who is made up to look like Devika Rani; this is followed by quotes from Kismet (1943) and allusions to Wadia's masked stunt films. The soundtrack uses radio broadcasts about Pearl Harbor and other events to provide historical markers.

⊗ Chhatrabhang

aka The Divine Plan
1976 80' col Hindi
d/co-p/s Nina Shivdasani co-p Asha Sheth, Vashketu Foundation c Apurba Kishore Bir
m Edgar Varese
lp Amrish Puri

An allusive documentary shot in 1975 with a commentary written by Vinay Shukla and narrated by Puri, India's notorious screen villain. The film uses an aestheticised, painterly shooting style to meditate on the iniquities of the caste system esp. in rural areas. The focus of the story is the fictional reconstruction of a real-life episode in which Harijans confront Brahmin elites and eventually the police, when their well dries up. It ends with some documentary interviews with real people involved in the original struggle. Born in Bombay (1946), Shivdasani was trained as a painter and a photographer in New York and Los Angeles. She is probably the first Indian woman director of experimental films. After four short films, this is her first feature-length work.

⊗ Chuvanna Vithukal

aka Red Seedling
1976 96' b&w Malayalam
d/s P.A. Backer p Salam Karasheri pc Navadhara Movie Makers c Vipin Das
m P. Devarajan
lp Shantakumari, Rehman, Zeenat, Nilambur Aisha, V.V. Anthony, Siddiqui, Nilambur Balan, Sethu

Melodrama about two sisters. Bharati (Shantakumari) works as a prostitute for Madam Rudrama and tries to secure a better life for her younger sister Lekha, but the prostitute is caught in a police raid and jailed while Lekha disappears with a dubious young man. After she is released, Bharati plies her trade on the streets. A truck driver, Keshavan, is kind to her and a new life seems possible when a haggard Lekha suddenly arrives on Bharati's doorstep, holding a baby and explaining that her lover has left her. The older sister sees their chance of a better life vanish as new burdens are placed on them.

⊗ Gal pa Hel ebi Sata

1976 148' col Oriya
d Nagen Ray pc Swati Films st/dial Basanta Mahapatra sc/c P.D. Shenoy lyr Gurukrishna

Chuvanna Vithukal

Goswami c Surendra Sahu m Bhubhan, Hari lp Banaja, Sudharani, Harish, Suresh, Soudamini, Tanuja

Wealthy hero meets local belle while touring the famous temples of Konarak, Orissa. He marries her and then goes home, promising to return. When he fails to do so, the woman traces him to his home. After first rejecting her he eventually accepts her as his wife. Oriya cinema's first colour film is better known for its music, composed by Hari, i.e. the noted flautist Hariprasada Chaurasia, and Bhubhan. Hit song hits include E banara chai and E mora dost, sung by Kishore Kumar's son Amit Kumar, and Sathi re jaa kahi, sung by Suman Kalyanpur.

☞ Hungry Autumn

1976 75' b&w English
d/c Gautam Ghose pc Cine 74

Ghose's first major film is a documentary about the 1974 Bengal famine, analysing how famines come about and chronicling their impact in the cities and the villages of India. Made on a Paillard Bolex by a group calling itself the 'Joris Ivens collective', it was one of the first Indian documentaries to face censorship under the Emergency. Much of the footage reflects Ghose's preoccupation, later developed in his features, with people surviving on the margins of society.

☞ Kabhi Kabhie

1976 177' col Hindi-Urdu
d/co-sc Yash Chopra pc Yash-Raj Films st Pamela Chopra co-sc/dial Sagar Sarhadi lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Kay Gee, Romesh Bhatta m Khayyam lp Amitabh Bachchan, Shashi Kapoor, Waheeda Rehman, Raakhee, Neetu Singh, Rishi Kapoor, Naseem, Simi Garewal, Parikshit Sahni

The poet Amit (Bachchan) loves Pooja (Raakhee) but she, under pressure from her parents, marries another (S. Kapoor). The resulting tensions between the two families are resolved only in the next generation: Pooja's son (Rishi Kapoor) will choose the partner he prefers. According to the film, the object of his desire also chooses him. Remembered for Mukesh's rendering of the title song Kabhi kabhie mere dil main khayal ata hai.

☞ Manimuzhakkum

aka Tolling of the Bell
1976 112' b&w Malayalam
d/sc P.A. Backer pc Anaswara Chitra st Sara Thomas m P. Devarajan lp Hari, Cyril, Veeran, Prabhakaran, Urmila, Charulata, Vani

Backer's 2nd film is a melodrama about an infantile youth, Jose Paul, whose love life is blighted by his early years in a Christian orphanage. Born a Hindu, he is imbued with Christian beliefs by a kindly priest, Father Francis. Later he is adopted by a rich Hindu uncle, who renames him and urges him to change his religion. Jose Paul's problems with his own sense of identity are dramatised in terms of his relations with women: rejected by a rich woman for his complicated past, he is refused next by a Hindu woman for having been a Christian and again by the daughter of his Christian employer in Madras for having been a Hindu.

☞ Manmatha Leelai

1976 161' col Tamil
d/sc K. Balachander pc Kalakendra Movies
lyr Kannadasan c B.S. Lokanathan
m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp Kamalhasan, Y.G.P. Mahendran, Y.G. Parthasarathy, M.R.R. Ravi, Harihara

Subramanyam, Halam, Y. Vijaya, Jayapradha, Hema Choudhury, Jayavijaya, Sudha

Balachander's comedy-melodrama about a rich company director (Kamalhasan) who has everything but a child. He compulsively has affairs until he comes to terms with his infertility just in time to save his marriage.

☞ Manthan

aka The Churning
1976 134' col Hindi
d/co-st Shyam Benegal pc Sahyadri Films co-st V. Kurien sc Vijay Tendulkar dial Kaifi Azmi lyr Niti Sagar c Govind Nihalani
m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Girish Karnad, Smita Patil, Naseeruddin Shah, Sadhu Meher, Anant Nag, Amrish Puri, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Mohan Agashe, Savita Bajaj, Abha Dhulia, Anjali Paingankar

Although the film suggests in its opening title, '500,000 farmers of Gujarat present ...', that it was publicly financed, it was in fact made through the National Dairy Development Board (NDDB), a controversial organisation headed by Dr V. Kurien, who shares a script credit. Established in 1965 to regularise milk co-operatives and to enhance their productivity with new technology, the NDDB was accused of aggravating India's foreign debt and of diverting resources destined to help the rural poor into servicing the urban upper-class market. Made during this controversy to enhance the NDDB's image, Manthan tells a version of the organisation's early years when corrupt local politicians, middlemen and an uneducated community's prejudices had to be overcome to create local co-operatives. Karnad plays what is presumably a fictional version of Dr Kurien himself while Kharbanda is the villainous Sarpanch (village head). Shah and Patil represent the voices of progress among the peasantry. The Andhra Hindi spoken in Ankur (1973) and Nishant (1975) is here replaced by Gujarati Hindi.

☞ Mrigaya

aka The Royal Hunt
1976 119' col Hindi
d/co-sc Mrinal Sen p Rajeshwara Rao pc Udaya Bhaskar co-sc Mohit Chattopadhyay st Bhagavati Charan Panigrahi c K.K. Mahajan
m Salil Choudhury
lp Mithun Chakraborty, Robert Wright, Mamata Shankar, Gyanesh Mukherjee, Sajal Roy Choudhury, Samit Bhanja, Ann Wright, Sadhu Meher, Anup Kumar

After a series of stylistically complex, politically oriented experiments with modes of cinematic storytelling, Sen achieved this controlled yet seductive allegorical tale shot in vibrant colours. Set in the 30s in Orissa with echoes of the Santhal revolt, a tribal hunter, Ghinua (Chakraborty) feels a kinship with a middle-aged British colonial administrator (Wright) who is equally passionate about hunting and perhaps also attracted to the vigorous young man. Protected by colonial notions of law and order, the moneylender Bhuban Sardar (Meher)

☞ Ghashiram Kotwal

1976 108'(98') col Marathi
d K. Hariharan, Mani Kaul, Kamal Swaroop, Saeed Mirza pc Yukt Film Co-op s/lyr Vijay Tendulkar from his play c Binod Pradhan, Rajesh Joshi, Manmohan Singh, Virendra Saini m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Mohan Agashe, Rajani Chavan, Om Puri, Vandana Pandit, Shriram Ranade, Ravindra Sathe

This remarkable avant-garde experiment in collective film-making is based on one of the most celebrated plays in contemporary Indian theatre, staged in 1972 by the Theatre Academy, Pune (members of which participate in the film's cast). The play used Marathi folk forms like the Gondhal and the Keertan in an elaborately choreographed musical featuring the legendary Nana Saheb Phadnavis, the prime minister of Peshwa Madhavrao II and the real power behind Maharashtra's Peshwa throne (1773-97). The original play, a transparent allegory referring to Indira Gandhi's reign, was adapted in order to comment on Maratha and Indian history, starting from the enthronement of the child Peshwa Madhavrao II, until the final decline of the empire and the arrival of the British (cf. Ramshastri, 1944). It presents the decadent Nana Saheb (Agashe) and his lieutenant Ghashiram (Puri), a Brahmin from Kanauj, whom he uses to mount a reign of terror in the capital city of Pune. The main plot concerns Nana's spy network, the rout of the British at Wadgaon (1779), Ghashiram's rise and his fall when Nana sacrifices him, and the popular revolt against Nana's henchman leaving the prime minister (and true culprit) unscathed. The film's main significance resides in the way it adapts theatre to investigate cinema itself, a point underlined by the chorus at the beginning of the movie and, at the end, the quote from Glauber Rocha's Antonio das Mortes (1969) as the sutradhara (chorus) suddenly enters into the present when a truck leaves the quarry. The collective of former FTII students made one more film, Saeed Mirza's debut Arvind Desai Ki Ajeeb Dastaan (1978) before folding. Ghashiram Kotwal itself was subject to a court order from the bank which loaned the production finance, delaying its general screening after the premiere in Madras in January 1977.

pursues a tribal rebel (Bhanja) and legally murders him, taking his head to the Administrator for his reward. When Ghinua's wife (Shankar) is seized by the greedy moneylender in lieu of payment, the young man hunts down the villain and proudly takes the villain's head as a hunting trophy to the British officer, claiming he has rid the jungle of its most savage beast. The young hero in his turn becomes the prey of colonial justice. Made during the Emergency, the film's ramifications go beyond the depiction of a clash of cultures, advocating resistance against the imposition of an administrative tyranny that ends up recompensing the perpetrators of injustice. First major role by Mithun Chakraborty, later a Hindi cinema star associated with disco musicals.

Pal I avi

1976 128' b&w Kannada
d/s P. Lankesh pc Indira Lankesh Prod.
c S. Ramchandra m Rajeev Taranath lp Vimala Naidu, T.S. Seetaram, P. Lankesh, Pandu, Shashidhar, Shankara Swamy, Parvathavani

For his film debut, the noted Kannada novelist Lankesh tells of Shanta (Naidu), a bouncy university teenager who wants to grow her hair as long as that of Vyjayanthimala and is as idealistic as her boyfriend Chandru. The two apply for the same job, which Shanta gets. She eventually marries her boss, Jagannathan (Lankesh), but continues working. Her old boyfriend suddenly resurfaces, a fugitive from justice, and accuses her of having sold out in return for security. The film tells her life story in flashback, returning to the present to show the boyfriend being caught by the cops.

Rushya Shringa

1976 112' col Kannada
d/sc V.R.K. Prasad pc Young Cinema st/lyr Chandrasekhar Kambhar from his play dial G.V. Iyer c S. Ramchandra
m B.V. Karanth
lp Rathna, Suresh Heblikar, Sundarshree, Kavitha, Shanta, Swarnamma

Melodrama derived from a contemporary adaptation of a myth. In a rainless village, a demon possesses the headman and the local deity prophesies that only Balappa can solve the problem. On his arrival, Balappa embarrassingly fails until he meets his father's ghost. When he takes on the headman, the man's wife appears as a goddess, gives him a necklace and tells him that if he sleeps with a virgin wearing the necklace, the rain will come. Eventually Balappa does indeed bring rain and rids the village of its demon.

Seeta Kal yanam

aka Seeta's Wedding
 1976 134' col Telugu
d Bapu p P. Ananda Rao pc Ananda Lakshmi Art Movies sc/dial Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr Arudra, C. Narayana Reddy c K.S. Prasad, Ravikant Nagaich m K.V. Mahadevan lp Ravi Kumar, Jayapradha, Sathyanarayana, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Jamuna, K. Mukkamala, Mikkilineni, Kantha Rao, Thyagaraj, Hemalatha, P.R. Varalakshmi,

 Mamata

Bapu's lavish and successful colour mythological with special effects supervised by the cinematographer and director Ravikant Nagaich and art direction by K. Nageshwara Rao, is one of the best-known 70s Telugu films in the genre. The story is the Ramayana tale leading up to the wedding between Rama (Kumar, who also plays the part of Vishnu) and the Princess Seeta (Jayapradha, who also plays Lakshmi). The villainous interloper is King Ravana (Sathyanarayana).

Shesha Shrabana

1976 129' col Oriya
d/sc Prashanta Nanda pc Shri Jagannath Films st Basanta Mahapatra's play co-lyr Sibabrata Das co-lyr/m Prafulla Kar c Rajan Kinagi lp Prashanta Nanda, Mahashweta, Mohammed Mohsin, Hemant Das, Banaja Mohanty

Oriya star Nanda's successful directorial debut and the second Orissa colour film. The Brahmin woman Manika (Mahashweta in her screen debut) is rescued in a flood by the fisherman Sania (Nanda). When he takes her home, their class differences cause problems in the village. When the brutish village head tries to rape Manika, she jumps into the river and Sania goes insane.

Sil a Ner angal il Sil a Manithargal aka Some People Sometimes

 1976 130' b&w Tamil
d/sc A. Bhimsingh pc A.B.S. Prod.
st/dial/lyr Jayakantan's novel and the story Agnipravesam c D.S. Pandian
m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp Laxmi, Srikanth, Y.G. Parthasarathy, Nagesh, Neelakantan, Rajasulochana, Sukumari, Sundaribai, Jai Geetha

Noted Tamil writer Jayakantan (cf. Kaval Daivam, 1969) wrote this novel as a justification for his ending of the controversial story Agnipravesham (Ordeal by Fire). The film incorporates both works. Ganga (Laxmi) is raped and the stigma condemns her to remain unmarried, living with her widowed mother (Sundaribai) where her uncle sexually harasses her. Years later she tracks down the rapist: Prabhu (Srikanth), a chain-smoking, wealthy, lower-caste businessman, married and father of a teenage daughter. Ganga insists on him being 'her man' although the relationship remains platonic. She refuses his suggestion that she marry an old middle-class widower. The film reproduces the novel's long conversations but somewhat dilutes their impact: nadaswaram music, traditionally played during marriages, is played over the rape in the car, and at the end Ganga, dressed in white like a widow, is compared in a voice-over to the pure and serene Ganges. The acting by Laxmi and Sundaribai convey the force and the underlying bitterness of the story. The film was hailed for bringing Tamil film up to the level of quality literature and for showing a married man in a relationship with an unmarried woman. That he is also a rapist seems not to have been so important to the critics.

Siri Siri Muvva

1976 144' col Telugu
d/st/sc K. Vishwanath pc Geetha Krishna Combines co-dial Jandhyala co-dial/lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c V.S.R. Swamy
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Chandramohan, Jayapradha, Devadas,
 'Sakshi' Rangarao, Ramaprabha, Kavitha, Sathyanarayana, Allu Ramalingaiah

The first of Vishwanath's several 'classical' musicals (cf. Shankarabharanam, 1979) is a love story between Hema (Jayapradha), a pretty deaf-mute dancer, and Samba (Chandramohan), a talented drummer. Their love has to overcome the prejudices suffered by the disabled woman, esp. from her stepmother. The film has 10 songs and was a hit mainly for Mahadevan's music. Remade by the director in Hindi as Sargam (1979) starring Rishi Kapoor and Jayapradha.

Sonbaini Chundadi

1976 152' col/scope Gujarati
d/sc Girish Manukant pc R.J. Films st Kantilal Jagjivan Mehta's play lyr/m Avinash Vyas
c Rajen Kapadia lp Dilip Patel, Ranjitraj, Sohil Virani, Narayan Rajgor, Premshankar Bhatt, Jay Patel, Ashvin Patel, Girija Mitra, Anjana, Vrinda Trivedi, Parul
 Parekh, Priti Parekh

Adapted from Mehta's stage version of a gruesome Gujarati folk legend addressing early capitalism and the fragmentation of the feudal joint family. Four of the little Son's seven brothers leave home in search of employment, leaving Son's cruel sister-in-law Bhadra free to inflict her tyranny upon the remaining members of the family. One of her brothers-in-law, Shambhu, is killed but his ghost reappears to try to protect the defenceless Son. Bhadra and her new lover try to kill her but in the process her own son loses his life. Eventually Bhadra too dies and the seven brothers reunite. A musical melodrama with 10 songs, and Gujarati cinema's first CinemaScope film.

Thunder of Freedom

1976 31' col English
d/c S. Sukhdev pc Films Division, Film-20 Series made with Gopal Mahares, Govind Mahares, B.L. Maisuriya, M. Michael, Salim
 Sheikh

Sukhdev's Emergency propaganda documentary is the best known of the Film-20 series illustrating the benefits of Indira Gandhi's Twenty-point Economic Programme. Shot mainly in and around New Delhi, the film presents the pre-Emergency period as riddled with riots and disruptions, in which 'almost anyone' could bring all legal processes to a standstill. It interviews a factory owner who praises the absence of labour agitation and two noted journalists, Dileep Padgaonkar and Abu Abraham, both of whom express some doubt about the loss of fundamental human rights while agreeing that the breakdown of the State infrastructure prior to the Emergency was not a situation to which the country would wish to return.

⊗ Agraharathil Kazhuthai

aka Agraharathil Oru Kazhuthai aka Donkey in a Brahmin Village

1977 96' b&w Tamil

d/co-p/co-sc John Abraham co-p Charly John pc Nirmiti Films co-sc Venkat Swaminathan dial Sampath c Ramchandra

m M.B. Srinivasan

lp M.B. Srinivasan, Swathi, Savitri, Raman Veerarghavan, Krishnaraj, S. Gopali, Rajan, Sri Lalitha, Lalithambal, Narasimhan, Thilairajan

Abraham's 2nd feature, his only one in Tamil, is an acid satire told in an innovative, surreal narrative style making excellent use of repetitions for comic effect, on brahminical bigotry and superstition. It was shot around Kunrathur near Chingelpet and at the Loyola College in Madras. A donkey strays into the brahminical enclave in a village and is adopted as a pet by Prof. Narayanaswami (Srinivasan). Ridiculed by his caste fellows, he asks the mute village girl Uma (Swathi) to look after it. When the girl's stillborn baby is deposited outside the temple, the donkey is blamed and killed. Guilt then induces the priests to start seeing miracles. The dead donkey becomes an object of veneration and is ritually burned. In a symbolic sequence recalling Bunuel, the fire spreads and engulfs the entire village. Only the girl and the professor survive. Although Brahmin bigots tried to have the film banned, it is more a morality fable about innocence (Abraham claimed Bresson's Au Hasard Balthazar, 1966, as an inspiration) and guilt, recalling parts of Ajantrik (1957) by Abraham's FTII teacher Ghatak. Although the film received a national award, the Tamil press ignored the film. Even in late 1989, Doordarshan thought it prudent to cancel a scheduled TV screening.

⊗ Amar Akbar Anthony

1977 186' col Hindi

d Manmohan Desai pc MKD Films

st Mrs J.M. Desai sc Prayag Raj dial Kadar Khan

lyr Anand Bakshi c Peter Pereira

m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

lp Vinod Khanna, Rishi Kapoor, Amitabh Bachchan, Neetu Singh, Shabana Azmi, Parveen Babi, Nirupa Roy, Jeevan, Pran, Helen, Nadira, Pratima Devi, Madhumati

Desai's breakthrough film started his long collaboration with Bachchan and established his characteristic style: a series of episodic 'highlights' (as the director describes them) edited into an extravagant fantasy spectacle. Hunted by Robert (Jeevan), the ex-convict Kishenlal (Pran) is forced to abandon his wife Bharati (Roy) and his three sons who get separated by a combination of fate and villainy. The sons grow up to become Amar (Khanna), raised by a Hindu cop; Akbar (Kapoor), looked after by a Muslim tailor; and Anthony (Bachchan), sheltered by a Catholic priest. The convoluted story has Kishenlal become a crime boss while gangsters led by Robert and his sidekick Zebisco interfere in the story on various occasions to trigger more action. A close friendship develops between the three brothers and their separated parents before the family is reunited. Starting with a pre-credit sequence where, in high-angle shots, all three heroes are seen simultaneously donating blood for their injured mother, each of them unaware of their relationship with the other, the plot merely provides a formal skeleton for the narrative spectacle. The substance of the movie is not in its ostensible plea for religious tolerance but in the Bachchan-dominated star turns, esp. the famous My name is Anthony Gonsalves song (by Kishore Kumar and Bachchan) that has Bachchan step out of an Easter egg, and his drunken dialogue with a mirror reflection. The film, which on one occasion involves divine intervention (when their mother Bharati's eyesight is restored), ends with all three brothers in various disguises (cop Amar as a one-man band, Akbar as a tailor and Anthony as a priest) pursuing the same villains. Bachchan speaks in a dialect colloquially described as Bombay Hindi, a vernacular and body language usually associated with the city's lumpenised underclass. The masquerade presented by the film helped create an autonomous cult image for the star which, because not anchored in a coherent narrative, could be deployed henceforth as a brand image in disparate contexts. The action sequences are shot rather perfunctorily.

⊗ Avargal

aka Characters

1977 167' b&w Tamil

d/s K. Balachander pc Kalakendra Movies

lyr Kannadasan c B.S. Lokanathan

m M.S. Vishwanathan

lp Kamalahasan, Rajnikant, Ravi Kumar, Sujatha, Leelavathi, Kutty Padmini

Lovers Anu (Sujatha) and Bharani (Ravikumar) separate and Anu is forced to marry Ramnath (Rajnikant), the sadistic boss of her dying father. After she has a child she gets a divorce and finds a job in Madras. Her old lover Bharani is now her neighbour and their affair is resumed. Through all of this, she is supported by a Malayali clerk and ventriloquist Janardan (Kamalahasan), who also loves her. When her former husband reappears to destroy again her aspirations for a new life, her repentant mother-in-law (Leelavathi) stands by her,

Kamalahasan in Avargal

getting employed as her servant. In the end, abandoned once more, she leaves to start yet another life, this time with her mother-in-law.

Baba Taraknath

1977 159' b&w Bengali
d Sunil Bannerjee, Baren Chatterjee pc Sulochana Art Int. co-s/lyr Gouriprasanna Majumdar co-s/dial Bibhuti Mukherjee co-s Shantiranjan Ghosh Dastidar c Anil Gupta, Jyoti Laha m Neeta Sen lp Sandhya Roy, Biswajeet, Sulochana Chatterjee, Gurudas Bannerjee, Sukhen Das, Anup Kumar

Bengali hit mythological comparable with the more famous Hindi Jai Santoshi Maa (1975). The film addresses the shrine of Taraknath (a version of Shiva) at Tarakeswar, represented by a phallic stone over which pilgrims pour holy water. The extremely simplistically presented conflict between religion and science has an urban scientist (Biswajeet) marry a devout rural belle (Sandhya Roy) against his will. An astrologer foretells much misfortune, which comes true when the scientist, fed up with superstition, returns to his experiments with snake poison and is bitten by one of his snakes. The wife saves her husband by undertaking a long and hazardous pilgrimage to Tarakeswar, where the deity sends a snake that sucks the poison out of her husband's body. The film adhered to the tenets of the communal mythological e.g. linking religious faith and female chastity, and evoked the popular legend of Behula and Lakhinder from the Manasa Mangal, a legend promptly filmed within a month of Baba Taraknath's success (Behula Lakhinder, 1977). Frenzied crowds attending screenings left their footwear outside and many poured the ritual water over a make-believe shrine in the theatre lobby. The film sparked a new wave of pilgrimages to the shrine, esp. by women.

Chaani

1977 134'[M]/136'[H] col Marathi/Hindi
d/sc/p V. Shantaram pc V. Shantaram Prod.
st C.T. Khanolkar dial Vrajendra Gaud lyr Bharat Vyas c Shivaji Sawant m Hridaynath Mangeshkar lp Ranjana, Sushant Ray, Yeshwant Dutt, Premkumar, Gauri Kamat, Durga Senjit, Arvind Deshpande

Shantaram intended the film to be part of New Indian Cinema's vanguard, adapting a difficult work from the innovative contemporary Marathi writer C.T. Khanolkar. The story, written in 1970 and set on the Konkan coast, features a woman born of an 'incident' between an Englishman and a local fisherwoman, now only discussed as a hushed rumour except by a boatman who loudly curses the girl whenever he ferries his boat across the river. Shantaram's garish colour photography and emphatic dialogue make the story into a bizarre calendar-art curiosity with a plump, blue-eyed, blonde fisherwoman (Ranjana), a caricature of the original literary character.

Chakradhari

aka Panduranga Mahima
 1977 153' col Telugu
d/sc V. Madhusudhana Rao pc Lakshmi Film Combines p N.R. Anuradha Devi dial/co-lyr Acharya Athreya co-lyr C. Narayana Reddy c P.S. Selvaraj
m G.K. Venkatesh
lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Satyanarayana, Allu Ramalingaiah, Vanisree, Jayapradha, Ramaprabha, Vijayanirmala, Jayamalini, Rajababu

Saint film featuring the Marathi poet Gora Kumbhar (Nageshwara Rao), whose devotion to his god causes much hardship to his wife Lakshmi (Vanisree). It also leads to the death of their son, whom his god, descending to earth, brings back to life. The film included cabaret items by Jayamalini, indicating changes in the genre from its pre-Independence heyday.

Chilakamma Cheppindi

1977 155' b&w Telugu
d Eranki Sharma pc Gopikrishna Int.
sc K. Balachander dial Ganesh Patro lyr Athreya, Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy
c B.S. Lokanathan m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp Narayana Rao, Rajnikant, Lakshmi Kant, P.L. Narayana, Sripriya, Sangeetha, Seetalatha, Lakshmi, Hemsunder

Melodrama about a village girl in the city. The heroine Malli (Sripriya) prompted by a fortune-teller, sets out to seek her fortune in the city. She is seduced by Madhu (Narayana Rao), who quickly abandons her when she becomes pregnant. Madhu's man-hating sister Bharati (Sangeetha) initially helps her, but then abandons her when she falls in love with a neighbour. Eventually a chastened Malli finds happiness with Kasi (Rajnikant), a rural simpleton who loves her. Eranki Sharma's debut was praised for its b&w photography and rustic songs.

Daana Veera Shura Karna

1977 233' col Telugu
d/s N.T. Rama Rao pc Ramakrishna Cine Studios dial/co-lyr Kondaveeti Venkata Kavi co-lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Dasarathi, Thirupati Venkatakavulu c Kannappa
m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp N.T. Rama Rao, M. Satyanarayana, Rajanala, S. Varalakshmi, B. Saroja Devi, Sharada, Prabha, Mikkilineni, Dhulipala Sivarama Sastry, Kanchana, Deepa, Prabhakara Reddy, Balakrishna, K. Mukkamala

NTR's best-known film as director is a mammoth mythological about the life of Karna, a character from the Mahabharata born to Kunti, brought up among the Kauravas and eventually killed in the great battle by Arjuna when his chariot wheel gets stuck in the ground. NTR plays three roles in this special-effects-laden movie: Krishna, Duryodhana and Karna. It was later resurrected as part of the propaganda for NTR's Telugu Desam Party. After the film's success, he directed himself in several multiple-role mythologicals e.g. Shri

Rama Pattabhishekham (1978); he plays five roles in Shrimad Virat Veerabrahendra Swamy Charitra (1984).

Dharam Veer

1977 165' col Hindi
d Manmohan Desai pc S.S. Movietone st J.M. Desai, Pushpa Sharma sc Prayag Raj, K.B. Pathak dial Kadar Khan lyr Anand Bakshi, Vithalbhai Patel c N.V. Srinivas
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Dharmendra, Jeetendra, Zeenat Aman, Neetu Singh, Pran, Indrani Mukherjee, Jeevan, Ranjeet, Sujit Kumar, Dev Kumar, Chand Usmani, Pradeep Kumar

A Manmohan Desai-style fairy-tale adventure story freely mixing elements from different film genres and historical periods. A lone hunter (Pran) secretly marries the maharani (Mukherjee) of a princely state. In a scene crying out for a psychoanalytic reading, a wild tigress manifests herself during their wedding night. The bride believes her husband to have died as a result and marries a more powerful man, a prince (P. Kumar). Before the maharani gives birth to twin boys, her husband is killed; his dying wish is that the boys' parentage be kept secret. The twins are separated: Dharam (Dharmendra) is raised by a woodcutter while Veer (Jeetendra) becomes the heir-apparent to the throne. Unaware of their relationship, the two become buddies and go through a series of adventures. Dharam woos the haughty princess (Aman) of a neighbouring kingdom and Veer falls for a gypsy girl (Singh). The maharani's evil brother (Jeevan) provides complications to the plot and the key action scene, presided over by the haughty princess, is a jousting tournament won by Dharam. When the victorious knight is captured, Veer, disguised as a gypsy, rescues him. The end of the film includes a spectacular battle between two pirate ships. The film also features a trained hawk, which was responsible for saving Dharam as a child and which intervenes several times on behalf of the good guys.

Ghattashraddha

aka The Ritual
 1977 144' b&w Kannada
d/sc Girish Kasaravalli pc Suvarnagiri Films st U.R. Ananthamurthy dial K.V. Subbanna c S. Ramchandra m B.V. Karanth lp Ajit Kumar, Meena Kuttappa, Ramaswamy Iyengar, Shanta, Jagannath, Suresh, Jagadish, Narayana Bhatt, M.D. Subba Rao, Gopala Krishna, S.M. Shetty, Ramakrishna

Set in the 20s in a rural orthodox Brahmin Karnataka village, Kasaravalli's first feature tells the story of a child widow through the eyes of a young boy. The widowed Yamuna (Kuttappa) lives with her father Udupa (Iyengar), who runs a traditional scripture school for young Brahmins. The student Nani (Kumar), bullied by his colleagues, is protected by Yamuna. When she becomes pregnant after an affair with a teacher, Nani becomes a horrified witness to her attempts to induce an abortion and then to commit suicide. The climactic moments of the film show her achieve the abortion, helped by an Untouchable, to the sound and images of drunken tribals, the terror of Nani, the guilty schoolteacher leaving the village in the night, and the villagers looking for Yamuna and Nani. Udupa then imposes the ghatashraddha ritual on his daughter: breaking a pot (a metaphor for the womb) as an expulsion and humiliation ritual that leaves her isolated, clad in a white sari, banned from the village. Having thus made amends, the old Udupa ogles a 16-year-old girl hoping to start a new family. Although Kasaravalli acknowledges the influence of the Navya literary movement and Samskara (1970), this is a major cinematic achievement: the dark woods (where Yamuna expresses her sexual desires and tries to kill herself by sticking her hand into a snake's nest) and the harrowing, torch-lit night pierced by cries of pain during the abortion while the villagers obsessively bang their drums, contain more human kindness and honesty than the glaring sunlight exposing the rejected Yamuna in her white sari, a desolate figure with shaven head sitting under a tree while her only friend, a small child, is dragged away from her. Kasaravalli's film was anticipated in his student diploma featurette Avasesh (1975) where the little Brahmin boy first appears.

st/lyr Rakesh sc Shivendra Sinha m Raghunath Seth lp Utpal Dutt, Shabana Azmi, Chaman Bagga, Raj Babbar, Surekha Sikri, Dinanath, Rajeshwar Nath, Master Champalal

Gross political satire renowned mainly as a censorship scandal during the Emergency. The original version of the film attacking Indira Gandhi's rule was apparently destroyed by Sanjay Gandhi's men. Its fate was later linked to the Turkman Gate carnage in Delhi as examples of the authoritarianism of the regime. Nahata remade the film after the Emergency was lifted. The film has its villainous politician (Dutt) mouthing flowery rhetoric, usually addressing a character who stands for 'the people', Janata (Azmi). After several allusions to the Emergency, the politician rapes Janata. Nahata, who introduced the remake, later joined the Congress Party and disowned the film.

Kodiyettam

aka The Ascent

1977 137' (118') b&w Malayalam

d/s Adoor Gopalakrishnan p Kulathoor Bhaskaran Nair pc Chitralakha Film Co-op

c Ravi Varma lp Gopi, Lalitha, Aziz, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Adoor Bhawani, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Vilasini, Susheela, Radhamani

Gopalakrishnan's 2nd and to many his best feature, made five years after Swayamvaram, tells of the growth to adulthood of a wide-eyed village simpleton, Sankarankutty (an admirable performance by Gopi). Affectionately treated as a fool, the man begins to come to terms with real human relationships through an encounter with a truck driver prone to most human weaknesses. Sankarankutty begins to accept that a wife (Lalitha), or indeed any woman, should not be regarded solely as a provider of food and comforts. The most tragic figure in the story is the lonely widow Kamalamma (Ponnamma) who mothers the central character but whose life is ruined by various exploitative relationships, and she ends up by committing suicide. The film has an innovative soundtrack, esp. with Kathakali drums, and unfolds at the slow, rhythmical pace of a village festival which provides the opening imagery of the tale. The main character's maturation can be seen as a parallel to social and historical changes in Kerala: the erosion of a matriarchal system and the rise of a competitive world conventionally coded as masculine, the impact of technology and so on. Blending realism and lyricism, the film achieved both artistic and commercial success.

Kondura/Anugraham

aka The Boon aka Sage from the Sea aka Manas Ka Maharshi

1977 137'[H]/136'[T] col Hindi/Telugu

d/co-sc Shyam Benegal pc Raviraj Int.

st C.T. Khanolkar's novel Kondura (1966)

co-sc Arudra, Girish Karnad Satyadev Dubey lyr Vasant Dev[H], Arudra[T] c Govind Nihalani m Vanraj Bhatia

lp Anant Nag, Vanisree, Smita Patil, Venu, Shekhar Chatterjee, Amrish Puri[H], Satyadev Dubey, Ravu Gopala Rao[T], A.R. Krishna[T]

Benegal's only film in the language of the Northern AP region in which his early political dramas (Ankur, 1973; Nishant, 1975) are located. Continuing his interest in the politics of rural exploitation, this is a morality tale linking religious illusions with personal frustrations. Adapting a mystical Marathi novel, it tells of the Brahmin Parashuram (Nag) who meets the sage Konduraswamy (Puri) and receives a boon: in exchange for a vow of celibacy he receives a root able to terminate pregnancies. Parashuram's wife (Vanisree) reluctantly goes along with her husband's new convictions and soon he becomes known as a holy man. In his dreams, the 'holy man' covets the daughter-in-law of a rich scoundrel and, mistakenly assuming that the scoundrel impregnated her, Parashuram administers the abortive root to the woman with disastrous results. Disillusioned, Parashuram realises his asceticism was an act of naivety and he proceeds to rape his own wife who then commits suicide. The Telugu version ended with a voice-over instructing the audience to consider the implications of the story. The original novel, set in the culturally primitive Konkan, uses its central mythic narrative to create different states of perception so that the viewer is constantly asked to interrogate the protagonist's experiences, leaving open the question of whether the frustrated and exploited Parashuram Tatya ever really saw what he says he saw. The film sidesteps this level of complexity and settles for a more standard political critique of feudalism.

Kul avadhu

1977 148' col Gujarati

d Krishnakant pc Chitrakala Mandir s Gulshan Nanda dial Harin Mehta lyr Barkat Virani, Kanti Ashok, Manubhai Gadhvi c Alope Dasgupta

m Kalyanji-Anandji

lp Asha Parekh, Navin Nischol, Rita Bhaduri, Kiran Kumar, Champsibhai Nagda, Dulari, Agha, Saroj Oza, Dinu Trivedi

Pioneering melodrama in a cinema dominated by quasi-historicals and folk legends. The rich but unfortunate Chandan (Parekh) suffers for previous sexual misdemeanours when she marries Anil (Nischol). A flashback introduces the cruel Pankaj who has an affair with both Chandan and her sister-in-law Bindu. When Bindu becomes pregnant, Chandan offers to sacrifice herself. Eventually she kills Pankaj and goes to jail. Her magnanimous husband forgives her. The film belonged to Hindi star Asha Parekh in one of her infrequent appearances in her native Gujarati language.

Mukti Chai

1977 55' b&w Bengali

d/p Utpalendu Chakraborty c Sanjay Brahma, Shekhar Tarafdar

Chakraborty's debut was a strident denunciation of the Indian State from a Kanchana Seeta

aka Golden Seeta

1977 90' col Malayalam

d/sc G. Aravindan p K. Ravindranathan Nair

pc General Pics st/dial C.N. Sreekantan Nair

c Shaji N. Karun m Rajeev Taranath

lp Ramadas, Venkateshwaralu, Chinna Pullaiah, Keshav Panicker, Krishnan, Pottiah, Rangiah, Shobha Kiran, Annapurna

Aravindan's most enigmatic film to date is his version of the Ramayana episode about Rama (Ramdas) and his bride Seeta, represented here only as aspects of nature such as the rustling of the wind in the trees or as rain bringing harmony where discord threatens. Derived from Sreekantan Nair's play and Valmiki's epic, the film alludes to the golden image of Seeta which Rama sets by his side for the Ashwamedha Yagya, the ritual sacrifice of a horse to Agni, the god of fire. The poet Valmiki (Panicker) is cast as a witness to the mythical events which move him to compose the story of Rama as an epic. The film's epilogue shows Rama's last journey as he walks into the River Saraya and becomes one with Seeta, i.e. nature. Aravindan's nature mysticism finds expression in Shaji's pellucid images prefiguring some of the associations of nature in his later Estheppan (1979) and Chidambaram (1985)). The director's most daring gesture is his attempt to renovate the mythological as a genre, partly by his interpretation of Seeta's presence but also by casting Rama Chenchus, tribals from AP where the film was shot, as the mythological figures.

Kissa Kursi Ka

1977 142' col Hindi

d Amrit Nahata pc Dhvani Prakash

CPI(ML) position. It argued that the laws of the colonial regime, against which India's nationalists fought their freedom struggle, were then duplicated by the Indian State, culminating in the Emergency and its MISA (Maintenance of Internal Security Act) ordinance. Along with Patwardhan's and Gautam Ghose's early films, this is one of the major documentaries to emerge from the Emergency experience.

Nagarhole

1977 170' col Kannada
d/sc S.V. Rajendra Singh pc Mahatma Prod.
st/dial H.V. Subba Rao lyr Udayashankar m Satyam lp Vishnuvardhan, Bharati, Shivaram, Ambarish, B.V. Radha, Uma Sivakumar, Sundarkrishna Urs

Enormously popular children's film by a director best known for violent cop movies. Madhu (Bharati) takes four children, including her son, to visit the Nagarhole wildlife sanctuary. Her son is killed by a tiger, but her husband, believed dead but in fact captured by tribals, resurfaces and saves the other children.

Oka Oorie Katha

aka The Outsiders, aka Story of a Village
 1977 116' col Telugu
d/co-sc Mrinal Sen p A. Parandhama Reddy pc Chandrodaya Art co-sc Mohit Chattopadhyay st Munshi Premchand's Kafan (The Shroud) dial Veerendranath lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry
c K.K. Mahajan m Vijay Raghava Rao lp M.V. Vasudeva Rao, G. Narayana Rao, Mamata Shankar, Pradeep Kumar,
 A.R. Krishna, Krishnamurthy, Kondala Rao, Rama Devi, Siddapa Naidu, Lakshmi Devdas, D. Ramgopal, C. Ramesh, Vijayalakshmi

After the masterful Mrigaya (1976), Sen's first Telugu film continues exploring the contradictions of resistance. Set in UP by Premchand but shifted to Telangana for the film, the story tells of old Venkaiah (Vasudeva Rao), an obstinate eccentric fighting social oppression through determined indolence, and his son Kistaia (Narayana Rao) who follows in his father's footsteps. However, their individual resistance depends on the backbreaking work of the son's wife Nilamma (Shankar) who desperately tries to achieve a more civilised lifestyle. The sterility of the two men's rebellion is cruelly demonstrated when they refuse to help the pregnant Nilamma when her labour goes wrong and she is left to die in agony. Convinced they are right in rejecting society but unable to comprehend the import of their own actions, the two men sink into demented fantasies. The film replaces the end of the original story, where they spend their money drinking in a bar, with a more rhetorical style featuring the father-in-law's soliloquy, the image of the dead woman, and a song about how only fools toil in the fields while the rich reap the harvest. Premchand's cruellest story was adapted by the playwright Chattopadhyay and the dialogue was translated into a widely understood, non-dialect Telugu. Sen acknowledged the help of a local political activist, Krishnamurthy, in adapting the film to its regional setting. The film is dominated by the savage performance of Vasudeva Rao, chosen by Sen after seeing him in Karanth's Chomana Dudi (1975), 'for his coiled energy, sarcasm and fury'. The work prompted several New Indian Cinema directors from other languages to work in Telugu since that region's displaced peasantry and absentee landlordism adhered to the stereotypes of 70s ruralist political films about feudal oppression: cf. Benegal's Kondura

(also 1977), Raveendran's Harijan (1979) and Gautam Ghose's Maabhoomi (1979), continuing the local trend of e.g. Bhoomikosam (1974) and Tharam Marindi (1977).

Pathinaru Vayathinile

aka 16 Vayathinile aka Sweet 16
 1977 139' col Tamil
d/s Bharathirajaa pc Shri Amman Creations
p S.A. Rajakannu dial P. Kalaimani lyr Kannadasan, Alangudi Somu, Gangai Amaran c P.S. Niwas m Ilaiyaraja lp Kamalhasan, Rajnikant, Shabir Ahmed, Raghunath, Goundamani, Isaac Senapathi,
 S.V. Subbaiah, Balagiri, Sridevi, Kanthimathi,
 Gemini Rajeshwari

Sometimes considered the second film (after Annakkili, 1976) to take the Tamil cinema out of the studio, Bharathirajaa's debut is a love story in which a young maiden, Mayil (Sridevi), has fantasies about marrying a fashionable urban youth. Her dreams are shattered when the village idiot Sappani (Kamalhasan) she marries rescues her from the local bully Parattayan (Rajnikant). Unfortunately he kills the bully and has to go to jail but she will wait for him. The musical established Sridevi as a major Tamil star.

Ram Ram Gangaram

1977 160' col Marathi
d/p/co-lyr Dada Kondke pc Dada Kondke Prod. s/co-lyr Rajesh Majumdar c Arvind Laad
m Ram-Lakshman lp Dada Kondke, Ashok Saraf, Usha Chavan, Dhupal, Anjana, Ratnamala, Master Bhagwan

Gangaram (Kondke) becomes a millionaire after the death of a rich uncle and leaves his village to go to Bombay where he has to face his uncle's corrupt manager and his gullible, illiterate mother. Disillusioned, he gives up his wealth and returns to the village and to his lover Gangi (Chavan). Kondke's film had a censorship problem apparently because the original version (entitled Gangaram Vis Kalmi) referred to Indira Gandhi's Twenty-point Economic Programme during the Emergency, and the film itself was intended as a political satire. A partially re-edited version was released under this new title. Kondke's style, however, remains intact, including the song Gangu tarunya tuzha befaam jasa ishkacha atom bomb.

Sandhya Raag

aka The Evening Song
 1977 159' b&w Assamese
d/p/s/co-m Bhabendranath Saikia
c Indukalpa Hazarika co-m Ramen Choudhury, Indreshwar Sharma, Prabhat Sharma lp Runu Devi, Arun Sharma, Maya Barua, Ishan Barua, Aarti Barua, Kashmiri Saikia, Purnima Pathak, Ananda Mohan Bhagwati

Saikia's debut reveals a remarkable sense for realist, ethnographic detail in this unusually complex treatment of the cultural tensions between an impoverished village and a modern city. The two daughters of the widowed Putali go to the city as domestic servants in two upper-class households. The elder sister, Charu, is treated like a member of the family and gets used to the urban lifestyle. The younger sister, Taru, has to ward off the amorous advances of her employer's son. When the sisters are of marriagable age, they return to their village but are unable to adjust to the poor and restricted life in the village. Charu agrees to marry her former employer's chauffeur even though he is sexually impotent. Her mother and sister join her in the city.

Mamata Shankar in Oka Oorie Katha

commercial release by local distributors because of the director's Calcutta art-house reputation.

Swami

1977 129' col Hindi
d/sc Basu Chatterjee p Jaya Chakraborty pc Jaya Sarathy Combine st Saratchandra Chatterjee's novel (1918) dial Manu Bhandari lyr Amit Khanna c K.K. Mahajan m Rajesh Roshan lp Girish Karnad, Shabana Azmi, Vikram, Dhiraj Kumar, Shashikala, Utpal Dutt

Chatterjee extends his usual middle-class romances into a more jaundiced view of marriage based on a novel by the Bengali fountainhead of reformist writing, Saratchandra. Saudamini (Azmi) is a pampered girl until she is forced to marry the widower Ghanshyam (Karnad) and move into his large household. Saudamini cannot cope with her husband's overbearing and greedy stepmother and pines after the man she really loved and had to abandon, Narendra (Vikram). Although she resents the husband imposed on her by custom, she gradually discovers that Ghanshyam is a tolerant, wise and progressive man. In the end, she prefers to stay with Ghanshyam rather than to leave with her former suitor, and so the wisdom of 'traditional' conventions is affirmed.

Seeta Geeta Datithe

1977 140' b&w Telugu
d/sc C.V. Sridhar pc C.P.R. Prod.
st Balamurugan dial Ganesh Patro lyr Acharya Athreya, Arudra, Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy
c Balakrishnan m K.V. Mahadevan lp Sridhar, Chakrapani, Gavaraju, Kavitha, Bhawani, Nirmala, Y. Vijaya, Potti Prasad, Ravi Kondala Rao, Jayamalini, Jyothilakshmi

Marital infidelity drama regarded as an art-house film. Ravi is more interested in literary debate with his friends than in his wife Seeta. Their friends Deepa and Venu also have marital difficulties. Venu draws near to Seeta and both husbands suspect each other of sleeping with the other's wife.

Shatranj Ke Khiladi

aka The Chess Players
 1977 129'(124') col Urdu
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray p Suresh Jindal pc Devki Chitra st Premchand c Soumendu Roy lp Sanjeev Kumar, Saeed Jaffrey, Amjad Khan, Richard Attenborough, Shabana Azmi, Farida Jalal, Veena, David Abraham, Victor Bannerjee, Farouque Sheikh, Tom Alter, Lila Mishra, Barry John, Samarth Narain, Bhudo Advani

Ray's so-called Hindi debut (in fact, it is in Urdu with some English dialogue) is set in 1856 at the court of Wajid Ali Shah in Lucknow, the capital of Oudh. It features two parallel narratives: the first, based on Premchand's short story, shows the interminable games of chess played by two hookah-smoking zamindars, Mir Roshan Ali (Jaffrey) and Mirza Sajjad Ali (S. Kumar); the other dramatises the conflict between Wajid Ali Shah (A. Khan) and General James Outram (Attenborough) who represents Lord Dalhousie's treacherously implemented annexation policies. Wajid Ali, shown as a politically weak and effete figure who stimulated the revival of the Kathak classical dance and the musical Raas-leela (cf. Indrasabha, 1932), in the end surrenders to the British without a fight. The colourful period drama about colonialism and indigenous culture begins with an animated cartoon (with Amitabh Bachchan's voice) about the British annexation policy, and ends with the apolitical duo playing chess in the wilderness - since they can get no peace at home - fighting with each other while the British army marches into their capital. Although he cast major Hindi stars, Ray's film was refused a normal

Tharam Marindi

1977 143' b&w Telugu
d/sc Singeetham Srinivasa Rao pc Vishwabharati Movies st Madireddy Sulochana dial C.S. Rao lyr Sri Sri, Kopalle Sivaram c Balu Mahendra m G.K. Venkatesh lp Sridhar, G.S.R. Murthy, Dasarathi, Prasadrao, G. Satyanarayana, M. Panchanadam, Lakshmikanth, Pradeep, Pallavi, Shobha, Rajakumari, Seethalatha, Satyavati, Sudha, Lakshamma

Realist melodrama. An old man has his daughter Chenna (Shobha) married to an aged drunkard because of a promised dowry. The old man's progressive son opposes this 'trade' and further defies his father by marrying Parvati. The son has to set up house in the Harijan section of the village and is forced to become involved in corrupt village politics. Along with T. Madhava Rao's Chillara Devullu (1975) and B.S. Narayana's Voorummadi Brathukulu (1976), which also address rural Telangana politics, this film constitutes a current of realist New Telugu cinema.

Agni

aka Fire aka Anger which Burns
 1978 117' b&w Malayalam
d/s C. Radhakrishnan p P.M.K. Babu, Hassan pc Sheeba Arts lyr Shakuntala c U. Rajagopal
m A.T. Oomer
lp Madhu, Vidhubala, Balan K. Nair, Bahadur, Vilasini, Abu Baker, Manavalan Joseph, Shanta Devi, Master Suku

The novelist Radhakrishnan (cf. Ottayadi Paathakal, 1990) used one of his own novels for his directorial debut telling of a headstrong butcher, Moosa (Nair, in one of his most impressive roles), whose daughter Amina (Vidhubala) elopes with Suleman (Madhu), a man accused of parricide. The butcher furiously pursues the lovers but he eventually realises his now-pregnant daughter's strength of feeling and blesses the couple.

Akbar Sal eem Anarkali

1978 139' col Telugu
d/s N.T. Rama Rao pc Tarakarama Films dial/lyr C. Narayana Reddy m C. Ramchandra lp N.T. Rama Rao, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Jamuna, Deepa, Madhavi, Sridhar, Chalapathi Rao

In a rare departure from the mythologicals he directed at Tarakarama, NTR's big-budget Mughal historical retells the often-filmed love story between Prince Salim and the slave girl Anarkali. This version ends with both Salim and Anarkali being saved when the court singer Tansen persuades Akbar (NTR) to forgive the lovers. The film marks the belated entry into Telugu by the Hindi/Marathi composer C. Ramchandra with hit songs like Reyi agiponi and Vela eringa doravunte, echoes his own memorable score for Filmistan's Anarkali (1953) over two decades previously. The film recalls Muddu Krishna's stage version of the story which was also NTR's first theatrical success in the early 40s.

Arvind Desai Ki Ajeeb Dastaan

aka The Strange Fate of Arvind Desai
 1978 118' col Hindi
d/co-s Saeed Akhtar Mirza pc Yukt Film Coop co-s/co-dial Cyrus Mistry co-dial Vijay Tendulkar c Virendra Saini m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Dilip Dhawan, Anjali Paingankar, Shiram Lagoo, Om Puri, Sulabha Deshpande, Rohini Hattangadi

Mirza's first and most experimental feature tries to elaborate its own political film language. The somewhat wimpish young Arvind Desai (Dhawan), the son of a businessman (Lagoo), occasionally dates the company's secretary (Paingankar) and discusses politics and art with a Marxist colleague (Puri). However, the film constantly juxtaposes Desai's views with other information: e.g. his views on his sister's marriage are contrasted with his acquiescence in an arranged marriage; when luxurious carpets are hung in the family's shop, the film shows the weavers who made the carpets. Critic Bikram Singh suggested influences of Antonioni, Ben Barka's politics and, for the epilogue (summing up and placing the central character), La hora de los hornos (1967). This was the second and last film by the Yukt Co-op, a group started by FTII film-makers and technicians (Ghashiram Kotwal, 1976).

Ashwathama

aka Wandering Soul
 1978 121' b&w Malayalam

d K.R. Mohanan p P.T.K. Mohammed pc Mohan Mohammed Films sc P. Raman Nair st/dial Madampu Kunjukuttan from his own novel c Madhu Ambat m A. Anantha Padmanabhan
lp Madampu Kunjukuttan, Vidhubala, Vatsala, Ravi Menon, Savitri, Kuthulli, M.S. Valliattan

A contemporary fable about a man who is cursed to live on earth for 3000 years like Ashwathama in the Mahabharata. He lives as a teacher, Kunjuni (played by the author of the original novel, Kunjukuttan) and finds himself so frustrated by the prevailing customs and orthodoxies in his milieu that he becomes an alcoholic and begins to lead a dissolute life. Trying to reform and to become like 'other people', the respected scholar marries but his virtuous wife (Savitri) turns out to be an epileptic and the man returns to his wayward behaviour, which means mostly drinking himself into a stupor. In addition, the woman he originally loved (Vidhubala) finds herself with a broken marriage and discovers she has cancer. Ambat uses diffused lighting in keeping with the mood of the characters who feel torn in a changing world.

⊗ Aval Appadithan

aka She Is Like That
1978 114' b&w Tamil
d/st/co-sc C. Rudraiah p Ragamanjari pc Kumar Arts dial Vannanilavan, Somasundareswar lyr Kannadasan, Gangai Amaran c Nallusamy, Gnanasekharan m Ilaiyaraja
lp Kamalahasan, Rajnikant, Sripriya, Sivachandran, Indrani, S.R. Rajkumari, Nalini

A cautionary tale about an independently minded woman, Manju (Sripriya), who works in advertising for a male chauvinist boss (Rajnikant). Weary of men, she keeps her distance from her sensitive boyfriend Arun (Kamalahasan), who makes vox-pop documentaries. Arun eventually accepts an arranged marriage and Manju declares her love for him when it is too late. The film leaves her a lonely figure on Madras's Marina beach. The collaboration between modernist writer Vannanilavan and Rudraiah, a graduate from the Madras Film Institute, is an early engagement with the 'independent woman' motif in South India. The music and the fluid narrative style mixes flashbacks with vox-pop (students and women workers interviewed about the status of women) and glossy pictorialism. Godard's Deux ou trois choses que je sais d'elle (1966) could be a distant ancestor of this film.

⊗ Chithegu Chinthe

aka The Restless Corpse
1978 129' col Kannada
d M.S. Sathyu p G.N. Lakshmipathy pc Savan Movies s N. Rama Swamy, Javed Siddiqui
c Ashok Gunjal m B.G. Ramanath, Prabhakar Badri, G.K. Venkatesh
lp C.R. Simha, Shivaram, MacMohan, Manjula, Paula Lindsay, Ram Prakash, Padma Shri, Uma Sivakumar

A crazy comedy using the conventions of mainstream Hindi cinema and set on a mythical island, Gajadweepa. The plot features crooked politicians and revolves around a gangster, Thimmaya alias T.K., ensconced in a home for the blind to cover up his criminal activities, and a popular film star Gajasimha (Simha). The star keeps escaping the traps set for him and becomes a successful politician. Good guys Avinash, a karate expert, and Mary (Lindsay), a foreign secret agent, take on the villains. Director Sathyu, better known for his poignant Partition drama Garam Hawa (1973), uses an idiom associated mainly with his stage career at IPTA.

⊗ Dooratwa

aka Distance
1978 96' b&w Bengali
d//p/sc Buddadhev Dasgupta st Sirsendu Mukherjee c Ranajit Roy m Ain Rasheed Khan, Mahmud Mirza
lp Mamata Shankar, Pradip Mukherjee, Bijon Bhattacharya, Niranjana Ray, Snigdha Bannerjee, Provosh Sarkar

Dasgupta's feature debut is a story about a young man's growth into maturity. A Calcutta college teacher and former revolutionary of the late 60s generation, Mondar (P. Mukherjee), marries a young woman, Anjali (Shankar). When the former rebel learns that Anjali is a single mother, he leaves her. He also refuses shelter to a Naxalite on the run. The lonely teacher forms a relationship with a working-class woman and her insane mother, but class differences prevent this from going any further. In the end, he finds that the woman he rejected is mature enough to accept him as a friend and their relationship shows renewed promise as he tries to shed his prejudices. The film continued the Bengali cinema's fascination with the Naxalite uprising of the late 60s and 70s, often using symbolic imagery as in the opening shot of a newly paved VIP road and the commentary linking the annihilation of 'troublemakers' with the 'beautification' of the city. The film recalled aspects of Ray's 70s Calcutta films in its extensive use of silence and its consistently lyrical emphasis on the protagonist's subjectivity.

⊗ Gaman

aka Going
1978 119' col Hindi
d/p/s Muzaffar Ali pc Integrated Film
dial Hriday Lani lyr Makhdoom Mohiyuddin, Shahryar c Nadeem Khan m Jaidev lp Farouque Shaikh, Smita Patil, Geeta Siddharth, Jalal Agha, Devi Mishra, Nana Patekar, Arun Bhuthnath, Amir Bano, Hameed, Sulabha Deshpande, Arvind
Deshpande, Nitin Sethi

The uneducated and landless Ghulam Hussain (Shaikh) leaves his wife Khairun (Patil) in his native village in UP to go to Bombay in search of work. He becomes a cab driver and the film intercuts his struggles in the city with those of his wife while she awaits his infrequent letters and remittances. The film's best moments are in the sequences with the close-knit group of cabbies who operate a kind of subterranean jungle-telegraph. Muzaffar Ali's FFC-sponsored debut features a typical and characteristically sensitive Smita Patil performance as a rural belle.

⊗ Ganadevata

aka The People
1978 172' col Bengali

(From left) Madhabi Mukherjee, Sandhya Roy, Soumitra Chatterjee and Sumitra Mukherjee in Ganadevata

d/co-sc/co-lyr Tarun Majumdar pc West Bengal Govt st/co-lyr Tarashankar Bannerjee from his novel (1942) co-sc Rajen Tarafdar co-lyr Pulak Bandyopadhyay, Mukul Dutta, Gangacharan Sarkar c Shakti Bannerjee m Hemanta Mukherjee
lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Sandhya Roy, Madhabi Mukherjee, Samit Bhanja, Ajitesh Bannerjee, Anup Kumar Das, Debraj Roy, Robi Ghosh, Purnima Devi, Sumitra Mukherjee

This adaptation of Bannerjee's main novel is Majumdar's most ambitious film. Set in pre-WW2 rural Bengal, it chronicles the revolution incited by two villagers, a blacksmith and a tanner, who refuse to work on the traditionally established rates of barter. A rapacious village landlord, a radicalised schoolteacher (Chatterjee), a revolutionary sought by the British and a group of corrupt policemen lead a large ensemble of characters in a film whose political message is made to order for its sponsors.

✪ Gorantha Deepam

1978 154' col Telugu
d Bapu pc Chitrakalpana Films st Nerella Ramalakshmi sc Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Arudra, Dasarathi c Ishan Arya m K.V. Mahadevan lp Sridhar, Mohan Babu, Ravu Gopala Rao, T.L. Kantha Rao, Allu Ramalingaiah, Vanisree, Suryakantam, G. Varalakshmi

Telugu melodrama about feudal marital life. The young bride Padmavati (Vanisree, in one of her best-known performances) is sent to her new home with injunctions to regard her husband as father, god, teacher and so on and always to 'earn' her keep. What she finds is an exploitative mother-in-law, an uncaring husband and a family friend who tries to rape her. However, her exemplary virtuousness eventually transforms everyone.

✪ Grahana

aka The Eclipse
1978 121' b&w Kannada
d/co-s T.S. Nagabharana p D. Sivaram, D. Venkatesh, D. Rame Gowda pc Harsha Pics co-s T.S. Ranga st Kodalli Shivaram c S. Ramchandra m Vijayabhaskar lp Anand Paricharan, G.K. Govinda Rao, Venkatramane Gowda, S.N. Rotti, B.S. Achar, Katte Ramchandra, Shobha Jyoti, Malati Rao

Nagabharana's first feature is a critique of the caste system and of 'traditional' mores (cf. Samskara, 1970). The story is based on the Hebbaramma Festival celebrated in some Karnataka districts where Nagabharana shot the film on location (after bribing the local high priest to obtain permission). The plot concerns an annual village ritual in which a small number of Untouchables are selected to be Brahmins, for two weeks only, provided they mortify themselves throughout this period, often in extremely cruel fashion, as a kind of purification ceremony performed by ritual scapegoats. One of the scapegoats dies as a result and his body cannot be buried by members of either caste. The village headman's son, Puttuswamy, calls in the police who remove the corpse. Puttuswamy then lives with the Harijans for a while. Since this infringes the rules of the ritual and of caste behaviour, the headman commits suicide. In spite of these traumas, the next year's ritual goes ahead with the full participation of all villagers. However, the rebellious Puttuswamy joins the selected Harijans in the temple and tries to prevent the ritual. The Harijans throw him out to the angry Brahmin crowd and he is beaten to death. Girish Kasaravalli, who assisted on this film while still an FTII student, apparently directed most of it.

✪ Jagan Mohini

1978 163' col Telugu
d/p/st/sc B. Vittalacharya pc Vittal Prod. dial G. Krishnamurthy, Karpoorapu Anjaneyulu lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Duttaluri Ramarao c H.S. Venu m Vijaya Krishnamurthy lp Narasimhraj, Prabha, Jayamalini, Vijayalakshmi, Sarathi, Dhoolipala, Savitri, A. Satyanarayana, Bhoosarapu, Jayavani, Attili Lakshmi, Varanasi, K. Mukkamala, Balkrishna, Jayachandran, Anita

In a year marked by spectacular flops (e.g. V.B. Rajendra Prasad's gangster movie Ramakrishnulu with megastars NTR and A. Nageshwara Rao), the surprise Telugu hit was this mid-budget ghost film. A woman betrayed by a king reappears in his next life as a ghost (the cabaret dancer Jayamalini) intent on possessing him. On the advice of a priest, the king marries a pious woman who matches her devotional prowess against the ghost's seductions and wins.

✪ Joi Baba Fel unath

aka The Elephant God
1978 112' col Bengali
d/s/m Satyajit Ray p R.D. Bansal pc R.D.B. c Soumendu Roy lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Santosh Dutta, Siddhartha Chatterjee, Utpal Dutt, Jit Bose, Haradhan Bannerjee, Bimal Chatterjee, Biplab Chatterjee, Satya Bannerjee, Moloy Roy, Santosh Sinha, Manu Mukherjee, Indubhushan Gujral, Kamu Mukherjee

Following on from Sonar Kella (1974), here the trio of detective Feluda (Soumitra Chatterjee), his sidekick Topse (Siddhartha Chatterjee) and thriller writer Jatayu (Dutta) become involved in a grimmer story set in the Bengali quarter of the holy city of Benares. Feluda, on holiday, is hired to track down a stolen gold statuette of Ganesh, the elephant god, harbinger of good fortune and worshipped by the mercantile middle class. Feluda finally gets the villains: the evil Maganlal Meghraj (Dutt), a Marwari businessman and smuggler, and his employer in crime, the yogic godman Machli Baba (Manu Mukherjee). With less action than Sonar Kella and more direct confrontation between the good and evil, the film's main departure from Ray's earlier children's movies is the portrait of the villain who Ray described as 'polished and ruthless, [c]ertainly the most ferocious character that I have created'.

✪ Junoon

aka The Obsession aka Possessed aka A Flight of Pigeons
1978 141' col Hindi
d/sc Shyam Benegal p Shashi Kapoor pc Film Valas st Ruskin Bond's short story A Flight of Pigeons dial Satyadev Dubey, Ismat Chughtai lyr Yogesh Praveen, Jigar Muradabadi, Amir Khusro, Sant Kabir c Govind Nihalani m Vanraj Bhatia, Kaushik lp Shashi Kapoor, Shabana Azmi, Jennifer Kendall, Naseeruddin Shah, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Jalal Agha, Benjamin Gilani, Tom Alter, Pearl Padamsee, Nafisa Ali, Ismat Chughtai, Geoffrey Kendall, Deepti Naval Shashi Kapoor's debut as producer is set at the time of the 1857 'Mutiny' and weaves a passionate love story into the historical fresco. Javed Khan (Shashi Kapoor) is a Pathan whose wife (Azmi) has not yet borne a child. Javed falls madly in love with a half-caste Anglo-Indian girl, Ruth Labadoor (Nafisa Ali), who lives with her mother (Jennifer Kendall). After Javed's brother-in-law (Shah) and a band of mutineers attack and massacre the English garrison, Javed takes the women under his protection. Marriage with Ruth is impossible because Javed's family objects to the 'English' woman becoming Javed's second wife. The irony is that the Labadoor family represents the Raj to the Indians even though they are equally suspect in the British milieu. In the end, Javed is killed and Ruth returns to Britain where she dies an old maid. The film touches on the complex relationships between people from three different religions (Muslim, Hindu and Christian) and from different classes as well as ethnic groups. The story opens strongly with an entranced fakir overwhelming his audience with his vision of love and war, but this is quickly overcome with acting styles that are either 'passionate' and loud (Shah, Kapoor) or standing still with backlit profiles (Ali, but also the older women). Although the film claimed to offer the first authentic depiction of the 'Mutiny' (e.g. every formal, well-drilled attack ends in bloody chaos), it sidesteps any engagement with the issues underpinning what is often described as the first Indian war of independence and opts for a colonial-sexual fantasy instead.

✪ Kaadu Kudure

aka The Wild Horse
1978 117' col Kannada
d/st/co-lyr Chandrasekhar Kambhar pc Wheel Prod. sc Shama Zaidi co-lyr M.N. Bangalore c Sundarnath Suvarna m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Manu, Benglori, Mariappa, Krishnappa, Narayana, Ramchandra, Silpa, Swarnamma, Sundarashri, Maithili, Malati Rao, Shashikala

Folklorist Kambhar's remarkable debut feature, adapting Lorca's House of Bernarda Alba into a surrealist fable. The film tells, through extensive use of verse, the story of Huligonda (Manu), a handsome youth who falls in love with the youngest daughter of a village chief. To marry her he first has to break in the chief's wild horse. Having done that, the chief tricks him into marrying, not the girl he loves, but her ugly elder sister. He is virtually trapped in the household, representing different kinds of freedom for each of the three sisters and their formidable mother. When the youngest sister is to be married off to a loutish youth, she decides to elope with Huligonda. They sit astride the wild horse, which refuses to move, and are shot dead by the mother.

Shyamala, Madhavi, Saroja, Ramanamurthy, P.L. Narayana, Adams, Krishna Chaitanya, Bhaskara Raju, Janardana Rao, Meera Rani, Dhum

Tamil director Balachander's Telugu film is a love story between a Tamil man Balu (Kamalhasan) and a Telugu woman Swapna (Saritha). Their families interfere and ask them to remain separate for a whole year. Balachander remade the film for L.V. Prasad in Hindi, Ek Duuje Ke Liye (1981), again starring Kamalhasan.

shooting, the story's rootedness in Bombay and Bachchan's extraordinary performance confirmed him as the icon of Bombay's industrialised lumpen proletariat.

⊗ Kal I ol

aka Kollol aka The Wave
1978 94' b&w Assamese
d/s Atul Bordoloi pc Gati Chitra lyr/m Rudra Barua c Nalin Duara lp Chandra N. Barua, Lachit Phukan, Bishnu Khargharia, Bina Saikia, Muhidhar Gohain, Ranen Saha, Bharat Rajkhowa, Pratima Mahanta, Moihuddin Ahmed

Revolutionary, symbol-laden film about class conflict in a feudal fishing community. When the fishermen fail to capture a giant shark, the local landlord Anangaprasad Choudhury (Barua), who claims most of the fishermen's catch for himself, is enraged, esp. when a defiant youth, Mani (Phukan), sets out to catch the fish by himself. Eventually the youth leads a rebellion against the landlord. The wordy film was playwright Bordoloi's first independent movie.

⊗ Mannu

aka The Soil
1978 134' col Malayalam
d K.G. George pc Susmitha Prod.
s/lyr Dr M.K. Pavithran c K. Ramchandra Babu m A.T. Oomer lp Soman, Sharada, P.K. Abraham, Adoor Bhasi, Kuthiravattom Pappu, Nellikode Bhaskaran, Nilambur Balan, Sukumaran, Mallika, Shanta Devi

George returned to the idiom of his mentor, Kariat, in this strident feudal melodrama of greed and superstition. The poor Damu (Soman) gets into a legal fight, supported by a CPI activist (Bhaskaran), with the rapacious landlord Krishnan Nair (Abraham) over tenancy rights. The matter takes a religious turn when the landlord announces his decision to build a temple on Damu's land. Damu kills the landlord and goes into hiding. The film shifts the moral dilemma to the son of the landlord (Sukumaran), a patriotic army officer who has to decide whether to continue the ancestral dispute: the officer makes peace with Damu and his wife (Sharada).

⊗ Maro Charithra

1978 169' b&w Telugu
d/s K. Balachander pc Andal Prod. p Rama Arangannal dial Ganesh Patro lyr Acharya Athreya c B.S. Lokanathan m M.S. Vishwanathan lp Kamalhasan, Saritha, Jayavijaya, ⊗ Mul I um Mal ar um aka A Thorn and a Flower

1978 143' col Tamil
d/s J. Mahendran pc Ananthi Films st Uma Chandran lyr Kannadasan, Panchu Arunachalam, Gangai Amaran m Ilaiyaraja
lp Rajnikant, Sarath Babu, Fatafat Jayalakshmi, Shobha

Echoing Pasamalar (1961), the successful playwright and director Mahendran's debut feature provides a low-key version of the orphaned brother and sister theme. The short-tempered Kali (Rajnikant) is a worker at a power station and possessively protects his sister Valli (Shobha). In a clash with the new engineer, Kumaran (Babu), he is fired, gets drunk and loses his hand in an accident. Encouraged by Kali's wife Manga (Jayalakshmi), Kumaran forms a relationship with Kali's sister and Kali eventually matures enough to realise he cannot monopolise her for ever.

⊗ Muqaddar Ka Sikandar

1978 189' col Hindi
d/p/co-lyr Prakash Mehra pc Prakash Mehra Prod. st Lakshmikant Sharma sc Vijay Kaul dial Kadar Khan co-lyr Anjaan c N. Satyen m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Amitabh Bachchan, Raakhee, Vinod Khanna, Rekha, Amjad Khan, Shriram Lagoo, R.P. Sethi, Madhu Malini, Nirupa Roy, Kadar Khan

Bachchan reprises his typical persona of the doomed loner with a mother fixation living and fighting in an urban jungle. A homeless urchin, he receives his name, Sikandar, from his foster-mother (N. Roy). He is raised to be a servant of Kaamna (Raakhee), with whom he falls in love, but her father Ramanath (Lagoo) accuses him of theft and he is cast out. Sikandar befriends a lawyer, Vikas (Khanna), which presents him with a second parental figure and a new responsibility: to ensure Vikas's happiness. Vikas falls in love with Kaamna, pre-empting Sikandar's own declaration of love when he goes to find her. Forewarned by the suicide of the only other woman in his life, the prostitute Zohra (Rekha), Sikandar arranges Vikas's marriage to Kaamna before he dies at the hands of the villain Bilawal (Amjad Khan), a former lover of Zohra. In spite of the film's aesthetic shortcomings, with rapid and jumpy editing usually to cover up limitations in the

⊗ Ondanondu Kal adal I i aka Once Upon A Time

1978 154' col Kannada
d/co-s Girish Karnad p G.N. Lakshmiopathy, K.N. Narayan pc L.N. Combines co-s Krishna Basur dial G.B. Joshi lyr Chandrasekhar Kambhar c A.K. Bir m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Shankar Nag, Sundarkrishna Urs, Akshata Rao, Sushilendra Joshi, Ajit Saldanha, Rekha Sabnis, Anil Thakkar, Vasant Rao Nakkod, V. Ramamurthy, Sundarajan

A tribute to Kurosawa's samurai stories, resurrecting a South Indian martial arts technique which survives mainly in the Kerala-based form of the Kalaripayattu. The film is set in 13th C. Karnataka during the Hoysala dynasty (AD1073-1327), when small princelings fought each other for domination, often hiring martial arts experts. The plot focuses on the war between two rival brothers, Kapardi (Thakkar) and Maranayaka (Nakkod), who had already disposed of their elder sibling. The terrain is the margin between the Deccan plains and the Malnad jungles. Nag's Kannada debut appearance sees him in the Mifune-inspired role of the cynical and individualistic mercenary Gandugali whose main antagonist is the equally proficient but more tradition-bound Permadi (Urs), the general of the opposing force. When the rival brothers betray their own soldiers, Gandugali and Permadi join forces to fight the pretenders to the throne. Gandugali dies in the epic battle but Permadi succeeds in saving the real heir to the throne, Jayakeshi (Joshi), and peace is restored to the kingdom. The exuberant action consists mainly of swordplay, martial arts training and duels. The art directors Jayoo and Nachiket Patwardhan, architects who turned film-makers in their own right, researched the period details for this ballad-like tale. Karnad claims the film sets out to transcend the narrowly anti-brahminical agenda of most Kannada New Cinema's independents at the time.

⊗ Ondu Oorina Kathe

1978 127' b&w Kannada
d/s/lyr Baraguru Ramchandrappa c Sundarnath Suvarna m B.V. Karanth lp Pramila, Uimalakshi, Uma, M.V. Vasudeva Rao, M.S. Umesh, Lohiteshwara, Prasanna, Mailari Rao

Noted Kannada writer Ramchandrappa's directorial debut is a ruralist drama about caste exploitation, showing that economic exploitation goes beyond orthodox caste divides: when in power, rich Harijans (Untouchables) exploit people as ruthlessly as their erstwhile Brahmin masters did. Sometimes construed as a reply to the relentless anti-brahminism of the Navya writers and film-makers.

Oru Nadigai Nadagam Parkiral

aka An Actress Views Her Life

1978 131' b&w Tamil

d A. Bhimsingh pc Girnar Films

s/lyr D. Jayakantan based on his novel

c B. Kaman m M.S. Vishwanathan lp Laxmi, Srikanth, Y.G. Parthasarathy, Nagesh, Mahendran, Thengai Srinivasan, Rajani, Kanthimathi

The director's last, posthumously released film is a social comedy about women's independence. The 33-year-old Kalyani (Laxmi) marries the widowed Ranga (Srikanth), a drama critic. She refuses to be a subservient housewife, pursuing her stage career instead. The husband cannot cope but in the comic highlight of the movie, they visit a lawyer whose questioning makes them realise they belong together after all. When Kalyani has a paralytic stroke, they finally unite. Together with Bhimsingh's Sila Nerangalil Sila Manithargal (1976), this is one of Tamil star Laxmi's best-known performances.

Oru Veedu Oru Ulagam

1978 130' b&w Tamil

d/sc Durai pc Movie Int. dial 'Vietnam Veedu'

Sundaram st Lalitha lyr Vali, Alangudi Somu, Pulamai Pithan m M.S. Vishwanathan

lp Srikanth, Major Sundararajan, Delhi Ganesh, Surulirajan, Shobha, Pandharibai, Manorama

Melodrama about the travails of a daughter, Gowri (Shobha), of a piously Brahmin household. She has to overcome considerable parental resistance to be allowed access to higher education. She falls in love with A.R.K., a lecturer, then she marries the man's son, Murali. When her husband is accidentally drowned, her parents insist on her leading the austere and repressed life of a widow. Thankfully, A.R.K. intervenes and manages to get his daughter-in-law remarried.

Parashuram

aka The Man With The Axe

1978 100' col Bengali

d/co-sc Mrinal Sen pc West Bengal Govt.

Dept. of Information co-sc Mohit

Chattopadhyay st Sudhendu Mukherjee's sociological report c Ranajit Roy

m B.V. Karanth

lp Arun Mukherjee, Sreela Majumdar, Bibhas Chakraborty, Jayanta Bhattacharya, Sajal Roy Choudhury, Nilanta Sengupta, Nimai Ghosh, Arijit Guha, Sumati Guha-Thakurta

Named after the mythical hero Parashuram who avenged his father's death by raising his axe 21 times, killing the king's men with every blow, an axe-wielding dispossessed peasant (Mukherjee) arrives in the city and finds shelter in a hovel in an abandoned cemetery together with a beggar (Bhattacharya). Parashuram is haunted by his encounter with a tiger and is prone to fantasies of heroic actions although he lives in fear of authority and petty criminals. Into the world of the destitute a young woman appears, Alhadi (Majumdar), deserted by her husband. She and Parashuram live side by side for a while but then she leaves, presumably because she feels strong enough to look for a better life. The lonely Parashuram sinks into his fantasies and ends up madly wielding his axe against the darkness overwhelming him. The film developed partly from an earlier play, Jagannath, adapting Lu Xun's Ah Q, staged in Bengal with the film's lead Mukherjee.

Pranam Khareedu

1978 137' b&w Telugu

d K. Vasu pc Shri Annapurna Cine Ents.

p Kranthi Kumar s C.S. Rao lyr Jaladi

c R. Raghunandha Reddy m Chakravarthy lp Chandramohan, Jayasudha, Chiranjeevi, Reshmi, Ravu Gopala Rao, Nutan Prasad,

Satyanarayana, Ramaprabha

Chiranjeevi's debut hit about the misdeeds of the village landlord Kankaiah (Rao). The deaf-mute Bhimudu (Chandramohan) and Narsi (Chiranjeevi) are the landlord's servants. Narsi leaves for the city in search of employment. The landlord misunderstands his young second wife's (Jayasudha) kindness towards Bhimudu and her illness to mean that she has become pregnant by the servant, and has him whipped. When Narsi returns, having earned some money, he finds that Bhimudu's sister (Reshmi), whom he had intended to marry, was raped by the landlord's brother-in-law. The landlord later also kills Bhimudu and his own wife. Narsi kills Kankaiah, while the villagers rise up in revolt. The film is partly contextualised by the political ruralism of the New Indian Cinema.

Prisoners of Conscience

1978 45' b&w English/Hindi

d/p/co-c Anand Patwardhan m Shamla and Friends, Calcutta Peoples' Choir co-c Pramod

Mathur, Balan S., Govind Nihalani et al.

Patwardhan's first documentary to be widely screened in India contains clandestinely filmed footage and features the arrest and detention of political prisoners during the Emergency. It emphasises the widespread practice of arrest and torture both before and after Indira Gandhi's dictatorial crackdown. The film has interviews with several activists, including Jasbir Singh, member of the youth wing of the Socialist Party; D.P. Tripathi, member of the Students Federation of India; Mary Tyler, an Englishwoman who spent five years in prison and wrote the book My Years in an Indian Prison; Dev Nathan and Vasanthi Raman, intellectuals and supporters of the CPI(ML); and several others, alongside a humane commentary in the director's voice.

Rathi Nirvedham

aka Adolescent Desire

1978 124' col Malayalam

d Bharathan p Prathap Pothan pc Supriya

Creations s Padmarajan lyr Kavalam Narayana

Panicker c K. Ramchandra Babu m P. Devarajan

lp Soman, Krishnakumar, Adoor Bhasi,

Bahadur, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Manohar, Baby Sumathi, V.J. Jose, Jayabharati, Meena, T.R. Omanna

The painter and sculptor's 3rd feature tells of Pappu, an adolescent boy, and his sexual awakening, with a scenic tea plantation estate as backdrop, as he falls in love with the slightly older girl next door, Rathi. The consummation of the relationship is treated in high Gothic style with thunder and lightning accompanying the midnight union in a deserted cobra shrine, culminating in the woman being bitten by a snake and dying. Next morning, presumably feeling like a real man at last, he sets out for college and a new life. The most disturbing aspect of the film is not that sexuality is seen as some cataclysmic event but that the death of a woman is presented both as the price paid for sex by women and as a price worth paying by a boy to achieve manhood.

Sarvasakshi

aka The Omniscient

1978 135' b&w Marathi

d/p/st/co-sc Ramdas Phutane pc Giriraj Pics co-sc Meena Chandavarkar lyr Viroba, Aarti

Prabhu, Indira Sant, Shanta Shelke c Sharad

Navle m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Smita Patil, Jairam Hardikar, Anjali

Paingankar, Vijay Joshi, Datta Bhatt, Vilas

Rakte, Nilu Phule, Ram Nagarkar, Leela Gandhi,

Kamini Bhatia, Shankar Nag, Dilip Kulkarni,

Ashok Joshi, Rajan Kalekar, Suresh More

Phutane, a former journalist, art teacher, poet and actor, had produced Patel's Saamna (1975), inaugurating New Indian Cinema productions in Marathi. This is his debut feature and, like Palekar's Aakriet (1981), it deals with mystical rituals calling for human sacrifice in the context of the notorious Manwat murders in Maharashtra. The idealistic schoolteacher Ravi (Hardikar) and his wife Rekha (Paingankar) move to a village and come up against local superstition. When Rekha becomes pregnant, she has a premonition of death. A bhagat (witch-doctor) confirms the premonition and suggests a human sacrifice to stave off death. Rekha dies in childbirth. Ravi's problems are further heightened when he is arrested for the murder of one of the bhagat's ritual victims. In jail, he has a premonition of another sacrifice and is able to tip off the police who arrest the bhagat.

Sati Ansuya

1978 132' col Oriya

d/sc A. Sanjiva Rao pc Madhav Pics

dial/co-lyr Saubhagya Chandra Das c o-lyr Loknath Patnaik co-lyr/m Prafulla Kar

c Babu Rao

lp Chakrapani, Narendra Mishra, Roja Ramani, Mahashweta, Rita

Hit mythological made by a Telugu company and director showing Sati Ansuya narrating her story to Seeta during Rama's banishment. Her chastity is questioned by the gods, but her devotion to her husband gives her the power to transform the Hindu trinity of Brahma, Vishnu and Mahesh into children and to stop the sun from rising for seven days. The film is adapted from two successful Oriya plays, Lakhyahira and Na Pahu Rati Na Maru Pati. Its success persuaded more Telugu and other South Indian producers to explore the Oriya market.

☼ Satyam Shivam Sundaram

aka Love Sublime aka Love Truth Beauty
1978 172' col Hindi
d/p Raj Kapoor pc R.K. Films s Jainendra Jain lyr Narendra Sharma, Vithalbhai Patel, Anand Bakshi c Radhu Karmakar m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Zeenat Aman, Shashi Kapoor, Kanhaiyalal, A.K. Hangal, David, Hari Shivdasani, Leela Chitnis, Sheetal, Baby Padmini Kolhapure

Kapoor's most exploitative movie features Roopa (Aman) as the emphatically sexual woman unfortunately burdened with guilt (her mother died giving birth to her) and with half her face scarred by fire. However, she has an angelic voice which bewitches the engineer Rajiv (Kapoor) who marries her. Refusing to believe that this scarred woman is the figure of his dreams, he rejects the pregnant Roopa who curses her husband. The curse materialises in the form of a dam bursting, causing floods. Eventually, Rajiv accepts the 'real' Roopa and his conflict between sacred (ideal) and profane (earthy and imperfect) love is resolved. Aman, a former pin-up girl and advertising model, is presented as a sex object embodying the 'modernity' contemporary India has to come to terms with (resulting in censorship problems). In the process, the representation of what has been lost, 'tradition', also becomes corrupted, as can be seen from the glitzy temple architecture in the opening bhajan (devotional story) featuring Roopa as a child (Kolhapure) and in which ejaculatory symbols are inflated to gigantic dimensions.

☼ Shri Rama Pattabhishekham

1978 196' col Telugu
d/s N.T. Rama Rao pc Ramakrishna Cine Studios dial Samudrala Raghavacharya lyr Devulapalli Krishna Sastry, C. Narayana Reddy c M.A. Rehman m Pendyala Nageshwara Rao lp N.T. Rama Rao, Ramakrishna, Satyanarayana, Prabhakara Reddy, Jamuna, Sangeetha, Kanchana, Pushpalata, Saikumari, Suryakantam, Sridhar, Arja Janardana Rao, Thyagaraju, Mamata, Halam

Ramayana mythological featuring the life of Rama (NTR): his childhood, his banishment to the forests for 14 years, his war with the villainous Ravana (NTR again), his return to Ayodhya and Seeta's trial by fire to prove her chastity.

☼ Thampu

aka The Circus Tent
1978 129' b&w Malayalam
d/s G. Aravindan p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc General Pics lyr Kavalam Narayana Panicker c Shaji N. Karun m M.G. Radhakrishnan lp Gopi, Venu, Sriraman, Jalaja, members of the Great Chitra Circus

Aravindan's finest b&w film chronicles three days with a circus in a small town in Kerala. A series of high-angle shots, as the circus drives into its new location, introduce us to the village. Several sequences use a remarkable quasi-documentary effect combined with minutely choreographed action e.g. the sunset as the manager (Gopi) directs the raising of the big top. The episodic film tells of a soldier who befriends the circus strong man in a toddy bar and shows how the bizarre characters from the circus including the dwarf merge with the local populace. Much of the imagery is genuinely poetic, accompanied by some remarkable b&w work by Shaji, sustained by a narrative that consistently replaces conventional storytelling with a sense of the cultural geography of the village. The film's documentary style, including direct address to camera, is in sharp contrast with Aravindan's previous feature, Kanchana Seeta (1977), also shot by Shaji, although the same reverence for nature animates both works.

☼ Trishul

1978 167' col Hindi
d Yash Chopra pc Trimurti Films s Salim-Javed lyr Sahir Ludhianvi m Khayyam lp Amitabh Bachchan, Sanjeev Kumar, Raakhee, Shashi Kapoor, Prem Chopra, Hema Malini, Sachin, Poonam, Manmohan Krishna, Waheeda Rehman

In this story, Bachchan plays a character, Vijay, obsessed with his mother whom he believes to have been abandoned by his father Raj, alias R.K. Gupta (S. Kumar). Vijay plans an Oedipal revenge by trying to ruin his father, a prominent businessman. Chopra's apparent sequel to Deewar (1975), with the same star and scenarists, deploys Bachchan's familiar persona in a big-budget spectacular culminating in a massive fight sequence set in what looks like a giant aircraft hangar.

☼ Yaro Oral

aka Someone Unknown
1978 111' b&w Malayalam
d/s V.K. Pavithran pc Saga Movies c Madhu Ambat m Govindan Aravindan lp Ravi, Protima, A.C.K. Raja, Varma, Pavithran, Javed Siddiqui, Sathyabhama, Ramani, Baby Preetha

Surreal fable about death. The gynaecologist Malathi (Protima) is childless. To remedy her condition she divorces her husband (Varma) and marries his friend Ravi (Raja). At the end of the film she gives birth to an eight year-old child just before she commits suicide. Her former husband tries to find salvation in religion, while the second husband dies shortly after his wife. The film begins with its main narrator (Siddiqui) shown as a corpse in a mortuary, who is visited by the second husband. The husband eventually replaces the corpse which gets up and leaves. This cynical, often absurd and deliberately anti-realist film has an art-house reputation in Kerala, known for Aravindan's score and Pavithran's debut which introduced to Malayalam a genre of personal cinema, exemplified by its several long, static shots.

☼ Aur Kaun

1979 136' col Hindi
d/Tulsi and Shyam Ramsay p F.U. Ramsay pc Ramsay Pics st Kumar Ramsay dial/Kafeel Azar lyr Amit Khanna c Gangu and Keshu Ramsay m Bappi Lahiri
lp Sachin, Rajni Sharma, Padmini Kapila, Roopesh Kumar, Sudhir, Vimal Sahu, Kanchan Mathu, Om Shivpuri, Madan Puri, Nasir Hussain, Dina Pathak, Radha Saluja

A necrophilia film by India's foremost horror film-makers. Teenager Raj (Sachin) is left alone in his father's grand, isolated villa. He loves the innocent Kamal but is seduced by Mona, who dies before she was able to reach sexual satisfaction. Her corpse continues to mesmerise Raj, as it appears to demand the sexual fulfilment he was unable to provide. The rest of the film consists of Raj trying to rid himself of the sexually demanding female: first he tries to 'cool' her by putting her in the refrigerator, then he buries her and finally he disposes of the body in a lake.

☼ Cheriyachente Kroora Krithyangal

aka The Wicked Deeds of Cheriyachan, aka The Evil Deeds of Cherian
1979 107' b&w Malayalam
d/s John Abraham pc Janasakthi Films m Johnson c Madhu Ambat lp Adoor Bhasi, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Poornima Jayaram, Abraham Joseph, Venu, Payyannoor Aravindan

Released briefly in 1981, Abraham's 3rd feature is set in the Kuttanad rice-fields of Kerala, the director's home province. Cheriyachan (Bhasi) is a typical landlord who feels threatened by industrialisation and by left activists. When he witnesses the police massacring poor peasants, he takes upon himself the guilt of his class, as well as the guilt of the voyeur. He is last seen up a coconut tree trying to keep away from the police. It is Abraham's achievement that this figure, steeped in the local mix of feudal and Christian traditions, becomes understandable as a frightened victim of history whereas most films would cast him as a one-dimensional villain or a grotesquely comic character. The film is Abraham's most controlled, opening with a series of sweeping shots on the famed backwaters of the region as it establishes both the strongly realist and quasi-mythic flavour necessary to allow for the transference of economic oppression into the condition of Cheriyachan's guilt. It also leads the film into a far more contentious aspect of Kerala's political cinema and literature, addressing the common phenomenon of presenting the responsibility of intervention in highly romanticised and even directly sexualised terms, or in other ways implicating individual responsibility towards history in the voyeuristic, infantile guilt of the passive observer.

⊗ Duranir Rong

1979 177' b&w Assamese
d/p/s Johns Moholia pc Nabarun Film, Tezpur lyr Bankim Sharma, Rubi Singha, Gholam Samdani c Jaykrishna Patra, Indukalpa Hazarika m Ajit Singha lp Nipon Goswami, Purnima Pathak, Tasadduf Yusuf, Rupiyoti Das, Chandradhar Goswami, Biju Phukan, Reeta Moholia, Junu Barua, Chetana Das, Nirode Choudhury, Prafulla Barua

Ashim Datta, hired as an assistant manager in a mill, finds himself faced with a corrupt manager and an irresponsible staff. In an attempt to right things, he sacks a female employee, Juri Barua, for having lost an important file which, it turns out, had been destroyed by another staffer, Sunita. Attempting to right things, Ashim discovers that Juri has a personal/sexual relationship with the manager, knowledge which leads to him being charged with the manager's death. Later when Juri learns of all that has happened, she searches for Ashim in an effort to apologise, but finds him dead in a hospital. Technically sound attempt at a commercial film by a director trained at the Film & Television Institute of India, Pune.

⊗ Ek Din Pratidin

aka And Quiet Flows the Dawn aka And Quiet Rolls the Day
 1979 96' col Bengali
d/p/sc Mrinal Sen pc Mrinal Sen Prod. st Amalendu Chakravarty's Abirotto Chene Mukh c K.K. Mahajan m B.V. Karanth
lp Satya Bannerjee, Geeta Sen, Mamata Shankar, Sreela Majumdar, Umanath Bhattacharya, Arun Mukherjee, Tapan Das, Nalini Bannerjee, Kaushik Sen, Tupur Ghosh, Gautam Chakraborty, Biplab Chatterjee

Sen uses a thriller format for this tale set among Calcutta's petty bourgeoisie. A young woman, Chinu (Shankar), is the sole breadwinner supporting a family of seven headed by a retired clerk (S. Bannerjee) and his wife (G. Sen). One night, she does not return home from the office and, as the hours pass, the family grows increasingly distraught as each member, including the independent-seeming university student Minu (Majumdar), begins to realise how dependent they are on Chinu's labour. Filmed by Sen with a mastery of mise en scene in cramped surroundings, the story graphically illustrates how profound insecurities underpin a precarious, egotistical moral code that refuses to acknowledge the real place of women in the social network. When Chinu returns by taxi in the morning, nobody dares question her since this would involve each family member having to betray the selfishness of their concern. With amazing resilience, the facade is restored. There are some echoes of Sen's previous stylistic devices (e.g. direct address to camera by the characters when they visit a hospital to check on missing persons), but the film leaves an indelible impression of the cavernous courtyard surrounded by claustrophobic apartments and, beyond the gate, a teeming and indifferent metropolis making its presence felt mainly on the soundtrack. Sen claimed that the film started his interest in the 'inward' investigation into middle-class life, away from the explicitly political language of his earlier 70s films.

⊗ Estheppan

aka Stephen
 1979 94' col Malayalam
d/co-st/co-sc/co-m Govindan Aravindan
p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc General Pics co-st Kavalam Narayana Panicker co-sc/lyr Isaac Thomas Kotukapally c Shaji N. Karun co-m Janardhan lp Rajan Kakkadan, Krishnapuram Leela, Sudharma, Shobha, Catherine, Balakrishnan Nair, Ganesan, Gopalakrishnan, M.R. Krisnan, Francis David

Estheppan (Kakkadan) is a strange and mysterious figure, allegedly immortal, in a Christian fishing village in Kerala. Although a more earthly version of Kummatty (1979: the subject of his previous film), all manner of virtues and magical powers are ascribed to the Christ-like worker of miracles (including printing his own money and drinking whisky without getting drunk). The director says it was made as a rejoinder to the criticism levelled against him and his scenarist Panicker for the emphasis on folk ritual in their theatre. An extra dimension is given to the central character, adapted from stories about religious mystics of all stripes, by casting Kakkadan, a Malayalam tantric-modernist painter, in the role. The final sequence of the miracle play alludes to the Chavittu Natakam, a form derived from Portuguese passion-plays on the west coast. However, contrary to the director's stated intention sympathetically to explore religious mysticism, the film can be seen as celebrating confusion, jumbling together religious iconography, pop music, tourism and garish calendar-art colours and artistic creativity. This cultural levelling out is further heightened by more than one 'version' of Estheppan's activities, each bidding for plausibility but also undercutting whatever conviction the plot might have. The fragmented narrative helps to convey a critique of the conventions of psychological realism prevalent in 'quality' cinema by refusing to present an individual as a complex but ultimately coherent and knowable character. However, by also refusing to show the individual as a historically formed figure, an option chosen e.g. by Ghatak, Shahani and Abraham, Aravindan ends up relativising his characters completely, dissolving them either into creatures of gossip, as in the movie, or into the timeless and eternally unknowable flow of nature.

⊗ Jhor

aka The Storm
 1979 132' col Bengali

d/s/co-lyr Utpal Dutt pc West Bengal Govt co-lyr Jyotirindranath Tagore, Henry Derozio c Dinen Gupta m Prasanta Bhattacharya lp Ujjal Sengupta, Indrani Mukherjee, Sagarika Adhikari, Kaushik Bannerjee, Robi Ghosh, Utpal Dutt

The noted leftist theatre director and film star's tale about the introduction of Western-style rationalism in Bengal in 1829 and its conflicts with religious and traditional reaction. The focus of the plot is the Hindu College in which the Portuguese Indian Henry Derozio (Sengupta) taught, and his students, members of the Young Bengal movement, who save a woman from the sati ritual. The students lose their battle against obscurantist authorities and Derozio is sacked, but the initial impetus for change has been given. Dutt himself, in conflict with his own political reputation, played the orthodox Hindu leader Radhakanta Deb. The film is edited by Hrishikesh Mukherjee.

⊗ Kal a Patthar

1979 176' col Hindi
d/p Yash Chopra pc Yashraj Films s Salim-Javed lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Kay Gee
m Rajesh Roshan, Salil Choudhury lp Shashi Kapoor, Raakhee Gulzar, Amitabh Bachchan, Shatrughan Sinha, Neetu Singh, Parveen Babi, Prem Chopra, Parikshit Sahni, Romesh Sharma, Poonam Dhillon, Manmohan Krishna, Iftikhar, Madan Puri

A coal-mining tale about three main characters who try to avert a mining disaster in a colliery owned by Seth Dhanraj (Chopra). Vijay (Bachchan) is a court-martialled merchant navy officer who abandoned his ship during a storm and is riddled with guilt. He works as a miner to forget his past. Mangal (S. Sinha) is a dacoit hiding from the police among the miners. Ravi Malhotra (S. Kapoor) is an engineer working for Seth Dhanraj. He discovers his greedy employer's scheme that will endanger the lives of hundreds of miners in a coal-rich shaft. The men meet women who transform their lives. Vijay falls in love with Sudha (Raakhee), a doctor. Mangal flirts with a bangle seller (Singh) and then rescues her from rapists. Ravi meets his old flame Anita (Parveen Babi) who is now a journalist and has come to do a story about the mines. The wall of the mine shaft collapses and there is a deluge, leading to a long disaster-movie sequence as Mangal atones by sacrificing his life for his fellow miners. Vijay and Ravi survive after rescuing many workers. The film refers to several mining disasters in Dhanbad and Chasnala where organised criminal gangs, often masquerading as trade unions, had become major political issues in the pre-Emergency period. Despite these references, most of the script is largely subordinated to the necessity of providing each of the several stars with equal footage and a hand in the action.

⊗ Kashino Dikro

1979 145' col Gujarati
d Kanti Madia pc Cine India Int. st Vinodini Neelkanth sc/dial Prabodh Joshi

lyr Balmukund Dave, Ravji Patel, Madhav Ramanuj, Anil Joshi, Ramesh Patel c Barun Mukherjee m Kshemu Divetia

lp Rajiv, Ragini, Rita Bhaduri, Gireesh Desai, P. Kharsani, Tarla Joshi, Leela Jariwala, Vatsala Deshmukh, Mahavir Shah, Arvind Vaidya, Saroj Nayak, Jagdish Shah, Pushpa Shah, Javed Khan, Shrikant Soni, Dilip Patel, Kanti Madia

Debut and sole feature by theatre director and actor Madia, revitalising a Gujarati cinema inaugurated by Rathod's FFC-supported Kanku (1969). The sentimental melodrama adapted from a noted writer's story by Gujarat's two leading stage personalities, Madia and Joshi, tells of Kashi (Ragini) who raises her husband's (Desai) adolescent younger brother (Rajiv). The young man dies on his wedding night of snakebite. His widowed bride Rama (Bhaduri) is later raped by Kashi's husband and becomes pregnant. Kashi saves the family's and Rama's 'honour' by pretending to be pregnant herself and adopting the child as her own. Kashi dies in the end as an icon of saintly motherhood. The rather slow moving narrative promotes a conservative notion of Gujarat's brahminical joint family culture.

⊗ Kummatty

aka The Bogeyman

1979 90' col Malayalam

d/co-sc/co-m G. Aravindan

p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc General Pics st/co-s/lyr/co-m Kavalam Narayana Panicker c Shaji N. Karun co-m M.G. Radhakrishnan lp Ramunni, Master Ashokan, Vilasini Reema, Kothara Gopalakrishnan, Sivasankaran Divakaran, Vakkil, Mothassi, Shankar

Made shortly after the quasi-documentary Thampu (1978), this film adapts an age-old Central Kerala folk-tale featuring a partly mythic and partly real magician called Kummatty (played by the famous musician and dancer Ramunni in his screen debut) who comes to entertain a group of village children with dancing, singing and magic tricks. In a game, he changes them into animals. One boy, changed into a dog, is chased away and misses the moment when the magician breaks the spell restoring the children to their human form. The dog-boy has to wait a year until Kummatty returns to the village. Aravindan claimed the film to be his favourite and referred to the international legend of the bogeyman which parents use to frighten their children, except that, in Kerala, the bogeyman is often shown as a compassionate person.

⊗ Maabhoomi

aka Our Land aka The Motherland

1979 152' b&w Telugu

d/co-sc/co-m Gautam Ghose

co-p G. Ravindranath co-p/co-sc/co-dial B. Narasinga Rao

pc Chaitanya Chitra st Krishan Chander's novel Jab Khet Jaage (1948) co-sc Partha Bannerjee, Pran Rao co-dial Pran Rao lyr Suddala Hanumanthu, Yadagiri c Kamal Naik co-m Vinjanuri Seeta, Nagabhushanam lp Kakarala, Saichand, Rami Reddy, Bhopal

Reddy, Yadagini, Pokala, Rajeshwari, Hansa, Prasad Rao, Pradeep Kumar, Lakshmana Rao

Set during one of India's main peasant risings, the Telangana insurrection between 1945 and 1951 in the pre-Independence state of Hyderabad, the Bengali director's first feature tells the story of Chander's best-known novel from the peasant's point of view. A young peasant, Ramiah, rebels against the corrupt rule of the nizam, and when his girlfriend has to submit to the potentate's sexual coercion, Ramiah leaves. He befriends a Marxist activist (the rising was CPI-inspired) and participates in the Independence struggle. When the peasants take over the village after Independence, their anger boils over and they perpetrate a massacre. In 1948 the Indian army marched into Hyderabad and suppressed the rising. Many of the ousted landlords returned to power by becoming Congress officials, so that the peasants had to face the same struggle all over again. The film is made in a documentary style inspired by Latin American political cinema but also uses Indian folk idioms such as the Burrakatha style (cf. the political education sequence with the union leader Maqbool). The film's view of the rising is mostly an uncritical one, esp. in comparison with recent analyses by historians sympathetic to political groups currently working in Telangana.

⊗ Naxalites, The

1979 141' col Hindi

d/s/co-dial K.A. Abbas pc Naya Sansar

co-dial Inder Raj Anand lyr Ali

Sardar Jafri c Ramchandra m Prem Dhawan lp Mithun Chakraborty, Smita Patil, Nana Palsikar, Imtiaz Khan, Priyadarshini, Jalal Agha,

Tinnu Anand, Dilip Raj, Pinchoo Kapoor

Abbas's political drama about the Naxalbari peasant uprising (see Naxalite) and student movement borrows from several real-life characters including Ajitha (Patil), an activist from Kerala, Charu Majumdar (Palsikar) et al. The complexities of the historical issues are reduced to an interplay of simplistic attitudes while the sensationalist aspects are intensified (e.g. police torture shown in silhouette). In typical Abbas-style social realism, efforts to convey an insight into the historical events have been replaced by efforts to manipulate the viewers' emotions, as in the sequence where Majumdar's speech reverberates through the countryside while the police gather for the final assault, or in the finale, played with great skill by Smita Patil, where she walks to the gallows to the farewells of her fellow inmates. The reasons why young people became part of the Naxalite movements are presented in titillating images of rape, torture and corruption, with the sexual threats to women providing the main motive for male rebelliousness. Partly because of Abbas's prior political history and the CPI's rejection of the movement, the film faced some censorship problems. Abbas claimed that unsympathetic political groups waged a vendetta against the film.

⊗ Neem Annapurna

aka Bitter Morsel

1979 95' b&w Bengali

d/p/sc Buddhadev Dasgupta st Kamal Kumar

Majumdar c Kamal Nayak

lp Monidipa Ray, Sunil Mukherjee, Jayita Sarkar, Manojit Lahiri

Smita Patil (centre) in The Naxalites

A married man loses his job in a small town so he takes his family to the city in search of work. To make ends meet, they rent out part of their hovel to an old beggar. When the father fails to find work and his eldest daughter is tempted by prostitution, the mother steals a sack of rice from the beggar who has a heart attack and dies. She disposes of the body and serves up a delicious meal. Guilt prevents her from eating and she goes out to vomit as the film ends. Dasgupta's 2nd feature evokes a 1950s Ray style in using slow action, making the plot secondary to extensive and extended mid-shots and realist detailing. The director claimed the influence of Godard in some sequences.

✪ Pasi

aka Hunger
1979 138' col Tamil
d/s Durai pc Sunitha Cine Arts c V. Ranga
m Shankar-Ganesh
lp Shobha, Delhi Ganesh, Vijayan, Thambaram Lalitha, Praveena, Elangovan, Rajendran, Surulirajan, Narayanan, Sathya, S.N. Parvathi, Jayabharati

Durai's best-known film is a low-life drama set among Madras's shanty dwellers, people who in most films are cast as comic relief for their 'Madras Tamil' dialect or as villains. The teenage ragpicker Kuppamma (Shobha) and her father Muniyandi (Ganesh), a cycle-rickshawalla with many mouths to feed, are the main characters. She gets pregnant by a lorry driver (Vijayan) who turns out to be married, and dies in childbirth. Other vignettes include the owner of a cycle shop (Narayanan) who plays records to attract the attention of Kuppamma whenever she passes by, a narrative device that compensates for the absence of songs in the film. Spoken in genuine Madras Tamil and shot on location, at times with concealed cameras, the film has an authentic city flavour. Shobha, who committed suicide the following year, received a national award for her intense performance.

✪ Peruvazhiyampal am aka A Dead End aka Wayside Inn

1979 118' b&w Malayalam
d/s P. Padmarajan p Prem Prakash pc Bhadra Movie Makers lyr Kavalam Narayana Panicker c A. Kannan Narayanan m M.G. Radhakrishnan lp Ashok, Gopi, Aziz, Jose Prakash, Lalitha, Geeta, Adoor Bhawani

Set in a village, Raman (Ashok) is a rather simple boy living with his sister. The villainous bully, rapist and ex-con Prabhakaran Pillai (Aziz), a married man with children, covets the sister and persecutes Raman who, alone, stands up to the bully and kills him in a knife fight. He has to hide from the police and from the villagers, with the help of a teashop owner (Gopi) and a prostitute, Devayani (Lalitha), who thus express their hatred for the bully they did not dare confront themselves. It emerges that the villain enjoyed a grudging respect for his 'macho' qualities: by killing him, Raman has become the one who is both respected and feared. In the end, Raman is struck with remorse when faced by the children of the man he killed. The novelist Padmarajan's feature has a taut script in which women are expected to pay the price for demonstrations as well as critical examinations of manliness.

✪ Pratyusha

aka Before Dawn aka Dawn
1979 90' b&w Telugu
d/co-sc Jatla Venkataswamy Naidu [V.N. Jatla] p B. Nagabhushanam, S. Nagaiah, B. Sailu pc Swairi Films st/co-sc/dial K. Siva Reddy c R.S. Agarwal m Bhuvan Hari lp Kadambini, Gangaram, Godavari, Tulasi

Jatla's first feature is a critique of the 'Jogu' custom practised in some villages where a possessed devadasi (temple prostitute and dancer) selects, in the name of religion, another woman who shall succeed her as a prostitute. The film, performed by non-professionals and shot in documentary style on location in Binola in Nizamabad, focuses on a mother who refuses to hand over her chosen daughter and, because she cannot afford to pay the fine for this infringement against 'religious' duty, kills the child.

✪ Puthiya Varpugal

aka The New Moulds
1979 143' col Tamil
d/sc Bharathirajaa pc Manoj Creations st K. Selvaraj dial K. Bhagyaraj lyr Kannadasan, Gangai Amaran, Muthulingam c P.S. Niwas m Ilaiyaraaja lp K. Bhagyaraj, Goundamani, G. Srinivasan, Rati Agnihotri, Usharani, R. Rangarajan, Manorama

A newly arrived village teacher (Bhagyaraj) becomes the rival of the local elder and feudal bully (Srinivasan) for the beautiful Jyothi (Agnihotri), the daughter of a temple musician. The elder frames the teacher for murder and gets his factotum, Amavasai (Goundamani), to marry Jyothi so as to have access to her. She, however, knifes him and is caught in the act by both the teacher and Amavasai, who has an instant change of heart: he disposes of the corpse in a village ritual bonfire, lit by the dead man's son, and releases Jyothi to escape with her true love. The film is typical of Bharathirajaa's work, featuring his trade-mark scene of a group dance of white-clad women and following his set narrative structure: a new arrival in a rural location, love at first sight, rivalry with the socially powerful villain and resolution against the background of a village ritual. The locations around Mysore provide a convincing setting.

✪ Sanghaganam aka Chorus

1979 83' b&w Malayalam
d P.A. Backer p Salam Karasseri pc Navadhara Movie Makers s M. Sukumaran c Vipin Das m P. Devarajan
lp Srinivasan, Ramu Kariat, P.R. Nambiar, Madhu Master, Rani Tankam

A symbolic story continuing Backer's effort to provide a genealogy of political activists (cf. Kabani Nadi Chuvannappol, 1975; Chuvanna Vithukal, 1976). This story is structured as a quest for a reliable leader called Goutama. The educated but cynical hero meets different men bearing that name but all reject him until he meets a CP union activist being tortured in a police cell. Only after he sees the activist killed in a lathi charge does the hero realise that he must take responsibility for his own actions and rebel against injustice rather than put his faith in a charismatic figure.

✪ Shankar abharanam aka The Jewel of Shiva

1979 143' col Telugu
d/s K. Vishwanath p Edida Nageshwara Rao pc Poornodaya Art Creations dial Jandhyala lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c Balu Mahendra m K.V. Mahadevan lp J.V. Somayajulu, Manju Bhargavi, Allu Ramalingaiah, Pushpakumari, Tulasi Ram, Chandramohan, Rangarao, Baby Varalakshmi, Rajyalakshmi, Jhansi

Vishwanath's musical hit is often presented as the film that transformed the Telugu film industry in the 80s. It borrows extensively from classical Carnatic music to tell the story of a relationship between a Carnatic guru and a prostitute. The prostitute Ratnaprabha (Bhargavi) runs away from home and is reluctantly accepted as a student, which brings the guru Shankara Sastry (Somayajulu) into social disrepute. When Ratnaprabha is forced to return to her ancestral vocation, she murders her customer but nevertheless finds herself pregnant. She gives birth to a son (Tulasi), who now studies under the guru although they are ostracised. Eventually Ratnaprabha becomes rich and she builds an auditorium in the name of her guru. During the opening performance, he has a heart attack and the son replaces the guru on stage, extending the tradition. It is the first Telugu film to attempt a redefinition of mass culture, using calendar-art aesthetics in several garish dance sequences by Manju Bhargavi - many of them in front of temples - and classical music (the guru out-shouts the rock music created by his detractors). Successful mainly for its anti-Tamil and anti-North view of an indigenist Telugu classicism (cf. G.V. Iyer's work in Kannada at the same time), spawning a whole genre: cf. Bapu's Thyagayya (1981), Dasari Narayana Rao's Megha Sandesam (1982), Singeetham Srinivasa Rao's Sangeetha Samrat (1984), Vamsy's Sitara (1984) and Vishwanath's own sequels Sagara Sangamam (1983) and Swati Muthyam (1985). Somayajulu later played many similar roles, his presence being enough to invoke the Shankarabharanam legacy. Vishwanath remade his Telugu film in Hindi as Sur Sangam (1985) with Girish Karnad and Jayapradha.

✪ Sinhasan

aka The Throne
1979 170' b&w Marathi
d/co-p Jabbar Patel co-p D.V. Rao pc Sujata

Chitra st Arun Sadhu's novels Mumbai Dinank and Simhasan sc/dial Vijay Tendulkar
lyr Suresh Bhatt c Suryakant Lavande
m Hridayanath Mangeshkar lp Arun Sarnaik, Nilu Phule, Shriram Lagoo, Datta Bhatt, Madhukar Toradmal, Satish Dubhashi, Shrikant Moghe, Madhav Watve, Mohan Agashe, Jairam Hardikar, Nana Patekar

A film that sets out to elaborate a new genre derived from the language of political journalism. Based on two novels by the noted political correspondent Arun Sadhu, and scripted by a former journalist, Tendulkar, the plot addresses Maharashtra's political corruption linked with Bombay's entrepreneurial sector. The main protagonist is a newspaper correspondent, Digu Tipnis (Phule), who uncovers a network of telephone tapping and espionage, relations between trade union leaders and politicians, etc. Many of the characters were thinly-veiled references to real-life figures: Chief Minister Jivajirao (Sarnaik) refers to Maharashtra's former Chief Minister Vasanttrao Naik, while the trade union leader Da Costa (Dubhashi) refers to George Fernandes. In the end, the journalist appears to go crazy. The cast includes many of the Marathi theatre and cinema's most famous names.

Chaphekar brothers, the militant Hindu chauvinist followers of Bal Gangadhar Tilak whose violent anti-British activities led to their martyrdom. Mr Rand imposed martial law in Pune because of an outbreak of the plague in January 1897, and the eldest brother, Damodar, kills Rand on 22 June. In retaliation, Inspector Brewin starts a massive manhunt using former colleagues of the three brothers as informers. Damodar is hanged, despite Tilak's personal appeal to the British. When the youngest brother, Vasudev, kills the informers who helped Brewin, he and the remaining brother, Balkrishna, are also sentenced to hang. The directors rely heavily on a version of method acting which was then seeping into the Marathi avant-garde theatre, emphasising minimal movement, deep voices and meaningful looks. The cast includes members of Pune's Theatre Academy, including its most promising performer, Mankani. Contractor's sophisticated lighting combined with the directors' architectural sensibilities provide the film with a sense of place. However, a disturbing question hangs over the film: to celebrate, in 1979, anti-colonial activities is uncontroversial whereas the glorification of fanatical Hindu chauvinists at that time is troubling.

assimilate conventions of Hindi cinema. He plays a police officer who hunts down a gang of smugglers in a forest. The combination of NTR and the future Hindi star Sridevi caused a sensation.

Yugandhar

1979 159' col Telugu
d K.S.R. Doss pc Gajalakshmi Arts st Salim-Javed dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Acharya Athreya, Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c U.C. Shekhar m Ilaiyaraja lp N.T. Rama Rao, K. Jaggaiah, Prabhakara Reddy, T.L. Kantha Rao, Thyagaraj, Jayasudha, Jayamalini, Sheela, Satyanarayana

Early example of the impact of the Prakash Mehra and Salim-Javed styles on Telugu cinema, an idiom assimilated by NTR in his later work (cf. Vetagadu, 1979). A kind smuggler unfortunately kills Ramesh, whose sister Jaya vows revenge, but then falls in love with the hero. This genre confirmed several female stars (e.g. Sridevi and Jayapradha) who went on to perform the same roles in Hindi, and provided welcome platforms for 50s stars like Anjali Devi or G. Varalakshmi to play tearful mother roles. The genre also includes cabaret scenes with Jayamalini and Silk Smitha.

Sparsh

aka The Touch
1979 145' col Hindi
d/s Sai Paranjpye p Basu Bhattacharya pc Arohi Film Makers lyr Indu Jain c Virendra Saini m Kanu Roy lp Naseeruddin Shah, Shabana Azmi, Om Puri, Sudha Chopra, Pran Talwar, Arun Joglekar, Mohan Gokhale, Lakshman Tandon, I.V. Sambhani, Arun Sachdev, Tapan Kumar Nandi, Baladutt Sharma, Amjad Ali Khan

Paranjpye's first full-scale art-house feature tells a love story set among the blind. The blind Anirudh Parmar (Shah) runs a school for blind children and is particularly touchy about the notion that the children might be perceived as less than self-sufficient. Kavita (Azmi), who takes up charitable causes after the death of her husband, becomes involved with the school and falls in love with Anirudh. They are to marry, but Anirudh cannot get rid of the suspicion that she is doing it out of pity. This humanist though sentimental story was commended by reviewers for the performances of the children and the several comic moments that enlivened the script.

Udhiri Pookal

aka Scattered Flowers
1979 143' col Tamil
d/sc/dial J. Mahendran p Radha Balakrishnan st Pudumaipithan based on his short story Sittranaai c Ashok Kumar lyr Kannadasan, Muthulingam, Vallavan, Gangai Amaran
m Ilaiyaraja
lp Vijayan, Ashwini, Sundar, Baby Anju, Samikannu, Charuhasan, Sarath Babu

Melodrama based on the writing of noted author Pudumaipithan, about the feared autocratic Sundaravadivelu (Vijayan) and his gentle wife Lakshmi (Ashwini), beloved by the villagers. The trigger for the drama is the arrival of the schoolteacher (Sundar) who is in love with the headman's sister-in-law Shenbagam, and health officer Prakash (Sarath Babu), who used to be engaged to Lakshmi. When Lakshmi dies, Sundaravadivelu gets himself a second wife but also lusts after Shenbagam, whom he disrobes, in front of his second wife's eyes, on her wedding day. The outraged villagers march Sundaravadivelu to the river and invite him to drown himself. He repents, having turned the entire village of peaceable folk into a vengeful mob.

Aakrosh

aka Cry of the Wounded
1980 145' col Hindi
d/c Govind Nihalani p Devi Dutt, Narayan Kenny pc Krsna Movies s Vijay Tendulkar dial Satyadev Dubey lyr Vasant Dev, Suryabhanu Gupta m Ajit Varman lp Naseeruddin Shah, Amrith Puri, Om Puri, Arvind Deshpande, Smita Patil, Mohan Agashe, Achyut Potdar, Nana Palsikar, Bhagyashree Kotnis, Mahesh Elkunchwar, Vihang Nayak

Cinematographer Nihalani's directorial debut with a classic Tendulkar script based on an actual incident in Bhiwandi, a small town outside Bombay. The central character is a young lawyer, Bhaskar Kulkarni (Shah) appointed to defend a tribal, Lahanya Bhiku (Om Puri, who emerged as a star in this film), who is accused of murdering his wife Nagi (Patil) but refuses to speak a word. Kulkarni investigates and finds that the man's wife had been raped and killed by a group of politicians and businessmen during their revels. He also finds that the police and his own boss (A. Puri) are implicated in the cover-up and the framing of Lahanya. When Lahanya is allowed to attend the funeral of his father, he takes the opportunity to kill his young sister to protect her from the fate that befell his wife. In the end, Lahanya gives vent to his suffering and to his helpless anger with a cry of anguish. The part of a left activist who assists Kulkarni's investigations is played by the playwright Elkunchwar whose play Party Nihalani adapted to the screen (1984). Nihalani's film extended Tendulkar's interest in an expressionist fictional reconstruction of real-life political incidents (cf. Benegal's Nishant, 1975) and greatly influenced the way cinema in

22 June 1897

1979 121' col Marathi
d/p/co-s Nachiket Patwardhan co-d Jayoo Patwardhan pc Sanket co-s Shankar Nag dial Vijay Tendulkar c Navroze Contractor
m Anand Modak lp Prabhakar Patankar, Ravindra Mankani, Udayan Dixit, Rod Gilbert, John Irving, Sadashiv Amarapurkar

The co-directors, who are also architects and art directors (Ondanond Kalandalli, 1978) retell the famous Pune legend of the

Vetagadu

1979 161' col Telugu
d K. Raghavendra Rao pc Roja Movies
p M. Arjun Raju, K. Sivaram Raju st/dial Jandhyala lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c K.S. Prakash m Chakravarthy lp N.T. Rama Rao, Sridevi, Satyanarayana, Ravu Gopala Rao, K. Jaggaiah, Pushpalatha, Allu Ramalingaiah, Pandharibai, Nagesh, Mamata, Shrilakshmi

With this film, together with Yugandhar (1979), NTR tried to change his image and to the 80s approached political issues, using tight close-ups, fast-paced editing and dramatic lighting. Nihalani's 3rd film Ardh Satya (1983) went on to focus on police brutality.

⊗ Ajal i Nabou

1980 153' col Assamese
d Nip Barua lyr Keshab Mahanta c Nalin Duara m Ramen Barua lp Biju Phukan, Nipon Goswami, Ela Kakoti, Prasanta Hazarika, Purabi Sarma, Purnima Pathak, Vidya Rao, Pranjal Saikia, Biswajit Chakraborty

The first mainstream Assamese Eastmancolor film with a star cast is a melodramatic middle-class musical fantasy. It made Nip Barua the top commercial attraction in Assamese cinema.

⊗ Akal er Sandhaney

aka In Search of Famine
 1980 128' col Bengali
d/sc Mrinal Sen p Dhiresk Kumar Chakraborty pc D.K. Films st Amalendu Chakravarty c K.K. Mahajan m Salil Choudhury lp Dhritiman Chatterjee, Smita Patil, Sreela Majumdar, Geeta Sen, Dipankar Dey, Rajen Tarafdar, Radhamohan Bhattacharya, Devika Mukherjee, Sajal Roy Choudhury, Jochan Dastidar, Siddhartha Dutta, Reba Roy Choudhury, Umanath Bhattacharya, Nirmal Ghosh

In 1980 a film crew from Calcutta headed by a director (Chatterjee) arrives in a small Bengali village to make a 'social conscience' film set in the 1943 famine (setting of his earlier Baishey Shraavan, 1960). They stay in a dilapidated mansion inhabited by a woman and her incapacitated old husband. The crew, including star Patil (playing herself), begins to make contact with villagers such as the admiring Haren (Tarafdar), the last surviving weaver, and the local teacher (R. Bhattacharya). The villagers observe the preparations with undisguised curiosity but gradually the voyeuristic implications of a big film crew coming to address 'local history' in a village become unbearable to all concerned. Conflicts erupt and the film has to be abandoned. The double time levels involved in the 1943-1980 structure of the tale, with ample parallels between the two periods emerging as the film progresses (e.g. a villager accuses the crew of starting a new famine as they buy up food for the film unit's lavish meals; or the village notables used to be or are descended from famine profiteers), is further complicated by a village woman, Durga (S. Majumdar) whose intimations of the future disorient the city-dwellers even further. Suresh Chandra's art direction is particularly notable for the way he orchestrates the encroachment of set-like qualities into the village location, giving the cultural and temporal disjunctions in the narrative a palpably physical dimension. Sen commented that the film made 'a confession of our incapacities. We speak of the crisis in the arts when we hesitate to confront reality or fail to catch its true bearings.'

⊗ Albert Pinto Ko Gussa Kyon Aata Hai

aka What Makes Albert Pinto Angry
 1980 113' col Hindi
d/p/co-s Saeed Akhtar Mirza pc Saeed Mirza Prod. co-s Kundan Shah dial/co-lyr Madhosh Bilgrami co-lyr Hriday Lani c Virendra Saini m Manas Mukherjee, Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Naseeruddin Shah, Shabana Azmi, Smita Patil, Dilip Dhawan, Sulabha Deshpande, Arvind Deshpande

Mirza later acknowledged that the film, which addresses India's minorities, is set in a catholic Bombay milieu because at the time he lacked the courage to deal with Muslim issues (this he did later in his Salim Langde Pe Mat Ro, 1989). Albert Pinto (Shah) is a garage mechanic from Goa who dreams of owning the expensive cars he drives for clients. His girlfriend Stella (Azmi) upsets him with her casual and pragmatic attitude to his colleagues as well as to their employer's sexual interest in her. Albert's father (Deshpande) joins a textile workers' strike and stimulates his son's political awareness. Mirza wanted the film to be acceptable to the mainstream Hindi cinema and to that end included some songs e.g. the scene of the garage workers praising an expensive car, Paanch lakh ki gaadi hai ('The car costs 500,000 rupees'), shot in a single take. Several characteristic Mirza sequences are introduced into the film, such as the hero examining himself in a mirror, or the workers being searched as they leave the factory (shot with a concealed camera).

⊗ Bancharamer Bagan

aka The Garden of Bancharam
 1980 133' col Bengali
d/sc/co-dial/lyr/m Tapan Sinha p Dhiresk Kumar Chakraborty st/co-dial Manoj Mitra, based on his play c Bimal Mukherjee lp Manoj Mitra, Nirmal Kumar, Dipankar Dey, Robi Ghosh, Bishwa Guha-Thakurta, Debika Mukherjee, Donald F. Sihan, Bhanu Bannerjee, Madhabi Chakraborty

Sinha's excursion into the fairy-tale genre tells of an old peasant, Bancharam (Mitra), who defeats the tyrannical landlord Chhakari (Dey). Inheriting a dry patch of land, Bancharam converts it into a fabulous garden. The British magistrate supports him when Chhakari attempts to acquire the garden, after which he dies. Chhakari's son Nakari tries a new stratagem: he promises Bancharam Rs 100 every month provided Bancharam bequeaths his garden to the landowner by a specific date. Bancharam agrees but amazingly becomes healthier with every passing day, repeatedly promising to die but failing to do so. Come the appointed day, Nakari arrives with the funeral band and finds Bancharam glowing with health. Nakari collapses on the prepared funeral bed and dies instead. The film used several theatrical techniques, including direct address and rhyming dialogue, and has fine performances by Mitra, the author of the popular play, and Dipankar Dey.

Dipankar Dey (centre) in Bancharamer Bagan

Bara/Sookha

aka The Famine aka Drought aka Dushkal 1980 135'[K]/119'[H] col Kannada/Hindi d/p M.S. Sathyu st U.R. Ananthamurthy's story sc Shama Zaidi, Javed Siddiqui c Ashok Gunjal
m Kuldeep Singh
lp Anant Nag, Lavlin Madhu, Nitin Sethi, Veeraj Byakod, Uma Sivakumar

The noted Navya Movement writer Ananthamurthy (cf. Samskara, 1970) provided the story for this tale about political chicanery set in the Bidar district of Karnataka, a famine-ridden area. The film weaves together the farmers' daily reality with scenes of the political rivalry between two ministers, represented at local level by the clash between Gangadhar, president of the grain merchants' association, and Bhimoji, a small-time politician. When Satish Chandra (Nag), a deputy commissioner, resorts to a crazy water diviner to relieve the situation, a crisis erupts and a major riot ensues, leading to a ministerial resignation. The rival minister, by being the first to order much-needed grain to be rushed to the famine-stricken area, thereby consolidates his political hold.

Bhavni Bhavai/Andher Nagari

aka A Folk Tale aka The Bhavai of Life 1980 140'[G]/125'[H] col Gujarati/Hindi d/s Ketan Mehta pc Sanchar Film st Folk-tale Achhut No Bhavai Vesh c Pammy m Gaurang Vyas lp Naseeruddin Shah, Smita Patil, Mohan Gokhale, Om Puri, Dina Pathak, Suhasini Mulay, Benjamin Gilani, Nimesh Desai, Gopi Desai

Mehta's debut is a remarkably successful transposition of the folk performance idiom to the screen. It is dedicated to Brecht, Goscinnny and to the inventor of the Bhavai, Asait Thakore, who was a Gujarati Brahmin cast out from his community. He proceeded to live among the lower castes and his descendants, the targalas, are the traditional Gujarati performers of the plays he wrote and dedicated to Amba, a mother goddess. The Bhavai evolved into one of India's most energetic folk music and dance dramas. It has an episodic structure consisting of Veshas (playlets set in medieval Gujarat stressing masquerades and offering much scope for improvisation) and mobilises a wealth of religious, political and mythological references, usually held together by a male Rangla and female Rangli chorus. The film deploys a 'chinese box' structure. In the framing narrative, a group of persecuted Harijans (Untouchables) are migrating to the city and pause for the night. To the accompaniment of Malo's (Puri) music, a story is told of the time when Harijans had to have broomsticks tied to their backs in order to erase their footsteps while walking. The tale is of a king (Shah) with two wives. When the elder queen delivers a male heir, the younger one (Mulay) conspires to have the child killed. But the child survives and, raised by Malo, grows up into the handsome Jivo (Gokhale). The climax of the film combines Jivo's sexual awakening in response to the wild tribal woman Ujaan (Patil) with the digging of a well by the Untouchables to propitiate the gods, so that the king may have another heir. However, in a traditional happy ending, the well yields water, Jivo is saved and the people freed. This ending of Malo's story is disputed by his audience, who suggest an alternative: Jivo is beheaded and Malo jumps into the dry well cursing the king with his dying breath; his sacrifice results in a flood that washes away the evil rulers (this ending is intercut with documentary footage of India's freedom struggle). The film's own end shifts back into realism showing the Harijans approaching the city. The film succeeds mainly through the extraordinary performances of e.g. Shah, Gilani (the commander) and Mulay, enhanced by comic-strip-style camera angles and exotic locations. Its several contemporary references include violent caste riots in Ahmedabad and the severe drought in Northern Gujarat.

Chakra

aka Vicious Circle
1980 140' col Hindi
d Rabindra Dharmaraj p Manmohan Shetty, Pradeep Upoor pc Neo Films st Jaywant Dalvi's Marathi novel (1963) sc/dial Shama Zaidi, Javed Siddiqui lyr Madhosh Bilgrami c Barun Mukherjee m Hridayanath Mangeshkar lp Smita Patil, Naseeruddin Shah, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Ranjit Choudhury, Anjali Paingankar, Savita Bajaj, Uttam Sirur, Rohini Hattangadi

Predating Salaam Bombay (1988) by several years, Dharmaraj's only feature (he died in 1981) provides a less idealised look at Bombay's slum-dwellers. Amma (Patil) and her son Benwa (Choudhury) move to Bombay's slums when her husband killed a moneylender who tried to rape her. The husband was then shot trying to steal some tin to build a hut. In Bombay, she lives with the vain pimp and petty crook Lukka (Shah), Benwa's idol. Lukka is banned from Bombay by the police and Benwa marries the young Chenna (Paingankar). Amma acquires another lover, a truck driver (Kharbanda), and becomes pregnant. Lukka reappears, ravaged by syphilis and drugs; he kills a chemist to feed his habit and hides in Amma's hut. The cops find him and arrest both him and Benwa, beating them up in the process. Amma has a miscarriage in the scuffle. In the end, bulldozers arrive to flatten the entire slum area. Patil gives her best 'realistic' performance and some shots of her moving unrecognised among Bombay's slum-dwellers were taken with a hidden camera (Do Bigha Zameen, 1953, had made the same claims).

Chann Pardesi

1980 147' col Punjabi
d Chitrarath Singh co-p Swarn Seedha, J.S. Cheema co-p/st/dial Baldev Gill sc/co-lyr Ravindra Peepat co-lyr Pawan Kumar, Waryam Mast c Manmohan Singh m Surinder Kohli lp Raj Babbar, Rama Vij, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Om Puri, Amrish Puri

One of the few Punjabi hits is an epic melodrama spanning two generations of feudal warfare. The peasant Nekh (Kharbanda) loves Kammo (Vij), but she is seduced by the landlord Joginder Singh (A. Puri). Kammo gives birth to Singh's baby after she is married to Nekh, leading to Nekh's lifelong vendetta against Singh. Nekh becomes a bandit and on several occasions tries to attack Singh's house, which leads to his arrest and life imprisonment. Years later, Kammo's son (Babbar) falls in love with Singh's daughter, Channi, unaware that she is his half-sister. Eventually, after Nekh's release and complications involving Singh's blackmailing secretary (O. Puri) and Channi's wedding, the outlaw is reconciled with his wife. All leading players were imported from the Hindi cinema, inaugurating a new trend of commercially successful Bombay-based Punjabi movies as an offshoot of the Hindi industry.

Dadar Kirti

1980 154' col Bengali
d/sc Tarun Majumdar pc Ram Cine Arts p Ram Gupta st Saradindu Bandyopadhyay lyr Rabindranath Tagore, Pulak Bandyopadhyay, Hridayesh Pandey c Shakti Bannerjee m Hemanta Mukherjee lp Tapas Paul, Mahua Roy Choudhury, Ayan Bannerjee, Debashree Roy, Kali Bannerjee, Satya Bannerjee, Anup Kumar, Ruma Guha-Thakurta, Shefali Bannerjee, Sulata Choudhury

Hit melodrama about a simple-minded youth's growth into adulthood. Kedar (Paul) is sent to study with his smarter cousin Santu in the hope of improving his university results. Kedar falls in love with next-door neighbour Saraswati, but also comes under the nefarious influence of the local bully Bhombhal, who also estranges Kedar from Saraswati. The problems are resolved only at the end. Paul, whose debut this was, went on to become a major Bengali star in the 80s playing the naive, sacrificing hero almost to the point of masochism (cf. Guru Dakshina, 1987). His 'loveable' image is often pointedly in contrast to the 80s Hindi cinema's emphasis on machismo.

Doorathu Idhi Muzhakkam

aka Faraway Thunder
1980 125' col Tamil
d/p K. Vijayan pc Jai Sudha Films s Somasoodan c N. Balakrishnan m Salil Choudhury lp Poornima, Vijayakant, Peelisivam, A.K. Veeraswamy, Jagadeesan

A village melodrama about a fisherman, Ponnai (Vijayakant), believed lost at sea whose girlfriend Chelli (Poornima) marries a relative, Mari (Peelisivam), and has a child. Assuming she had been unfaithful, Mari and a nasty magician plan to sacrifice the child ritually to obtain wealth. Ponnar resurfaces and saves the child but both the men in Chelli's life die, leaving her to sail off into the sunset with her baby. The film introduced future star Vijayakant.

Gehrayee

1980 135' col Hindi
d/st/co-sc Aruna-Vikas pc N.B. Kamat, Avikam co-sc Vijay Tendulkar dial Hafeez lyr Gulzar
c Barun Mukherjee m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Shriram Lagoo, Anant Nag, Padmini Kolhapure, Indrani Mukherjee, Amrishi Puri, Rita Bhaduri, Sudhir Dalvi, Suhas Bhalekar, Shobha Joshi, Satyendra, Satya Kumar Patil, Shetty

Uma (Kolhapure), the daughter of a businessman (Lagoo), spews abuse and reveals uncomfortable secrets from her father's past. The father arranges psychiatric treatment for her, including electric shocks, to the disapproval of the mother (Mukherjee) and son Nandu (Nag) who prefer the more traditional interpretation that Uma is possessed by a rogue demon. To perform the exorcism, they employ a potentially dangerous Tantric (Puri) who practises black magic on virgins. The daughter's exorcism is then followed by the son's effort to track down the demon whom he finds living in the body of a woman. He strangles her as the film ends, literally, with a question mark. Although The Exorcist (1973) was an unofficially acknowledged influence, the film is more a mystificatory engagement with religious ritual than with the conventions of the horror film.

Greeshamam

aka Summer
 1980 122' col Malayalam
d/s V.R. Gopinath p Sumathy Ayyapan pc Mayflower Movie Makers c Madhu Ambat
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Rajendran, Gopi, Ravi Menon, Jalaja, Rekha Rao, Protima, Ramu

Drama about Hari (Rajendran), a psychology student with remarkably little psychological sensitivity who is obsessed by a 16-year-old girl, Rathi (Jalaja). When he discovers that she is not the daughter but the mistress of his university professor, the student is so traumatised and preoccupied with himself that he is unable to develop any real relationship with other women like the prostitute Anitha (Protima) or his former colleague Malini (Rekha Rao). The story, told in flashbacks, ends with a dreamlike reconciliation between Hari and Rathi, suggesting that Hari remains stuck in his adolescent fantasies.

Hirak Rajar Deshe

aka The Kingdom of Diamonds
 1980 118' col Bengali
d/s/m Satyajit Ray pc West Bengal Govt
c Soumendu Roy

lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Utpal Dutt, Tapan Chatterjee, Robi Ghosh, Santosh Dutta, Promod Ganguly, Alpana Gupta, Robin Majumdar, Sunil Sarkar, Noni Ganguly, Ajoy Bannerjee, Kartick Chattopadhyay, Haridhan Mukherjee

Continuing the adventures of Goopy Gyne Bagha Byne (1968), Ray's musical is at times a hard-hitting satire. The lead duo Goopy (T. Chatterjee) and Bagha (R. Ghosh) face up to the despotic king of Hirak (Dutt) who tries to brainwash his subjects with the help of a scientist (Dutta) and shuts down the only school in the kingdom, forcing the idealist schoolteacher Udayan (S. Chatterjee) to become a terrorist in hiding. Goopy and Bagha eventually plunder the diamond treasury, bribe the soldiers, rescue Udayan and defeat the king. The Emergency (1975-7) and Sanjay Gandhi's fascist programmes are directly referenced in e.g. the scene where poor people are to be evicted so that tourists may not see them, while the king's attempt to brainwash all his subjects by means of rhymed couplets inculcating good behaviour evokes the many official slogans launched at the time enjoining people to mind their own business, to 'be Indian buy Indian' and to follow the then prime minister's Twenty-point Programme.

Hum Paanch

1980 163' col Hindi
d Bapu pc S.K. Film Ents st S.R. Puttanna Kanagal sc M.V. Raman dial Rahi Masoom Raza lyr Anand Bakshi c Sharad Kadwe
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal, S.P. Balasubramanyam lp Sanjeev Kumar, Shabana Azmi, Mithun Chakraborty, Naseeruddin Shah, Deepti Naval, Raj Babbar, Gulshan Grover, Amrishi Puri, Kanhaiyalal

Bapu's first Hindi film remade Puttanna Kanagal's Paduvarahalli Pandavaru (1978), derived from a popular Mahabharata legend set in feudal UP. The villainous zamindar Veer Pratap Singh (Puri) is Duryodhan, his sidekick Lala (Kanhaiyalal) is Shakuni and their opponents are the drunken holy man Krishna (Kumar), Bhima (Chakraborty), Arjun (Babbar), etc. The good and the bad perform with straightforward conviction (which prevents the film from becoming a comedy) a story reduced to a series of action thrills. In many respects this feudal drama ironically echoed Benegal's Nishant (1975), a resemblance reinforced by the presence of Puri, Azmi and Shah.

Insaaf Ka Tarazu

aka The Scales of Justice
 1980 146' (135', 112') col Hindi
d/p B.R. Chopra pc B.R. Films s Shabd Kumar lyr Sahir Ludhianvi c Dharam Chopra
m Ravindra Jain lp Zeenat Aman, Padmini Kolhapure, Raj Babbar, Deepak Parashar, Shriram Lagoo, Iftikhar, Simi Garewal, Jagdish Raj, Om Shivpuri

This notorious rape movie followed in the wake of growing feminist activism in India in the 70s after the Mathura and Maya Tyagi rape cases, the amendment to the Rape Law and the impact of e.g. the Forum Against Rape which offered legal assistance to rape victims. The film has been analysed by Susie Tharu in her essay 'On Subverting a Rhetoric: Media Versions of Rape' (in Olympus, 9 August 1981). The pre-credit sequence shows a rape in shadow play. The story then shows the advertising model Bharati (Aman) being raped by the millionaire Ramesh (Babbar). When he is arrested, Bharati is unable to get a conviction in court. Bharati and her sister Nita (Kolhapure) move to another city where Nita, answering a job advertisement, is also raped by Ramesh. Bharati shoots Ramesh dead and once again faces the legal process, presided over by the same judge and prosecuted by the lawyer who had earlier defended Ramesh. The argument gets bogged down in legal technicalities until it is emotionally resolved with a passionate outburst from Nita. The three rape sequences shown in the film, staged with voyeuristic relish, no doubt contributed to its commercial success. Bapu remade the film in Telugu as Edi Nyayam Edi Dharmam (1982).

Kal yug

aka The Machine Age
 1980 152' col Hindi
d/co-s Shyam Benegal p Shashi Kapoor pc Film Valas co-s Girish Karnad c Govind Nihalani m Vanraj Bhatia lp Shashi Kapoor, Rekha, Anant Nag, Raj Babbar, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Victor Bannerjee, Vinod Doshi, Vijaya Mehta, Supriya Pathak, Sushma Seth

Following on from the work of Ghatak and Shahani, Benegal essayed an 'epic' movie by transferring famous episodes from the Mahabharata to contemporary industrial society in order to explore, in his words, 'human values as they exist today in the modern world'. The result is a crime movie about a feud between two industrial families, the Puranchands and the Khubchands, which escalates into violence and murder by contract. Karan Singh (Kapoor) is killed while changing a car tyre, referring to Karna, the tragic son of Kunti and the Sun god in the original epic, who was killed when his chariot wheel got stuck; other mythological characters become income tax inspectors raiding the Rekha's character's house, rummaging in her cupboard and fingering her underwear.

Karz

1980 160' col Hindi
d Subhash Ghai pc Mukta Films st Mukta Films Story Dept. sc Sachin Bhowmick dial Rahi Masoom Raza lyr Anand Bakshi
c Kamalakar Rao m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Rishi Kapoor, Tina Munim, Simi Garewal, Raj Kiran, Premnath, Pran, Durga Khote, Pinchoo Kapoor, Abha Dhulia, Iftikhar, Aruna Irani

Rebirth story with echoes of Bimal Roy's Madhumati (1958). The day after his wedding, Ravi Varma (Kiran) is killed by his calculating wife Kamini (Garewal) on instructions from Sir Judas. Years later a rock singer, Monty (Rishi Kapoor), who is in love with Tina (Munim), is haunted by images of a woman killing a man. Eventually realising himself to be Varma's reincarnation, he takes belated revenge on Kamini, now the queen of Ooty. The film had the electronic rock-music-inspired hit Om Shanti Om, performed on a stage resembling a giant gramophone record.

Kol angal

aka Caricatures

1980 133' col Malayalam
d/s K.G. George pc Falcon Movies
p K.T. Varghese, D. Philip pc Falcon Movies st P.J. Anthony c K. Ramchandra Babu
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Menaka, Rajam K. Nair, Gladys, D. Philip, Venu Nagavalli, Nedumudi Venu, Thilakan

A story set in a Kerala village where rumour and gossip spread like wildfire. Kunjamma (Menaka), the only daughter of an overbearing mother (Nair) with a biscuit stall in the market, sells milk to the villagers. When she befriends a fashionable urban youth (who works as a production assistant for a film company) (Nagavalli), gossip ruins her reputation and her mother threatens suicide if Kunjamma does not agree to marry the only man still willing to accept her as a wife: an old but well-off lecherous drunk (Thilakan). Set in the Kerala matriarchy, the film presents its several village characters as not always good but essentially benign, contrasting this edenic world with the corruption introduced by the urban youth (shown wearing garish clothes and dark glasses). The contrast is, however, undone by the mode of filming itself, with continuously saturated colour and emphatic performance modes.

Lorry

1980 136' (114') col/scope Malayalam
d B.G. Bharathan p Rajamma Hari pc Supriya Films s Padmarajan lyr Poovachal Khader
c Ashok Kumar m M.S. Vishwanathan lp Balan K. Nair, Nitya, Achan Kunju, Prathap Pothan

Continuing the collaboration between director Bharathan and writer Padmarajan, the film features the villainous Velan who kidnaps and forcibly blinds village children to turn them into fellow circus performers. He falls in love with one of his victims, the beautiful Rani, as does his hard drinking lorry-driver friend Ouseph. Eventually Ouseph and Velan kill each other allowing Rani to escape with the man she really loves, a lorry cleaner.

Minchina Ota

1980 135' col Kannada
d Shankar Nag pc Sanket Prod. s Girish Karnad c B.C. Gowri Shankar m Prabhakar Badri lp Anant Nag, Shankar Nag, Ramesh Bhatt, Priya Tendulkar, Loknath, Somu, Mandip Roy

Story of three petty thieves, Katte (S. Nag), Tony (A. Nag) and Tatha (Loknath), attempt a daring jailbreak because Tony wants to be with his pregnant wife (Tendulkar) when she has her baby. Shankar Nag's directing debut, apparently based on a real-life incident.

Murattu Kalai

1980 144' col Tamil
d S.P. Muthuraman pc AVM s/lyr Panchu Arunachalam c Babu m Ilaiyaraja lp Rajnikant, Jaishankar, Ashokan, Surulirajan, Mahendran, Thengai Srinivasan, Rati Agnihotri, Sumalatha

After a long absence, the prestigious AVM company returned with this megahit featuring Rajnikant as Kaaliyan, a simple but rich and virile young man in a village, who tames a bull and attracts the meretricious attentions of the headman's sister Soundaryan (Sumalatha). When the hero falls for the damsel in distress Kannamma (Agnihotri), the headman has his sister and henchman killed, blaming Kaaliyan, who has to flee into exile before being able to prove his innocence. The film confirmed Rajnikant as a superstar while the film's hit song, 'Podhuvaga en manasu thangam - oru pottiyinu vandhu vita singam' ('I am sensitive, but when challenged, I roar like a lion') became a classic, featuring prominently even in the election campaign of 1996.

Oppol

aka Elder Sister
 1980 143' col Malayalam
d K. S. Sethumadhavan pc Rosamma George s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr P. Bhaskaran
c Madhu Ambat m M.B. Srinivasan lp Menaka, Master Arvind, Balan K. Nair, Shankaradi, Master Sivaprasad

Sethumadhavan's best-known Malayalam film. The 6-year-old Appu (Arvind) is the illegitimate son of Malu (Menaka) and knows her as his elder sister. He becomes intensely jealous when Malu marries the hard-drinking ex-military man Govindan (Nair). Appu attacks him during the honeymoon. When Malu scolds him, the boy applies emotional blackmail by running away. Much of the film deals with the bizarre love triangle, which ends only when the little Oedipus triumphs by driving away the husband so that he can keep the mother all to himself. The film, and Vasudevan Nair's script, which apparently legitimises a woman's love for her illegitimate son, broke new ground with the characterisation (and performance) of the little boy who dominates the film.

Master Arvind (left) and Menaka in Oppol

⊗ Pikoo

aka Pikoo's Day

1980 26' col Bengali

d/s/m Satyajit Ray pc Henri Fraise c Soumendu Roy lp Arjun Guha-Thakurta, Aparna Sen, Sovan Lahiri, Promod Ganguly, Victor Bannerjee

Short film made as a companion piece for Sadgati (1981). It is a sad fairy-tale about an upper-class Bengali family seen through the eyes of the little boy Pikoo (Guha-Thakurta). One afternoon, Pikoo's father discovers that his wife (A. Sen) is having an affair. The mother makes love to her boyfriend (V. Bannerjee) while the grandfather (Ganguly) dies of a heart attack in another room and Pikoo sketches flowers in the garden with his new crayons.

⊗ Qurbani

1980 157' col/scope Hindi

d/p/ed Feroz Khan pc F.K. International st/sc K.K. Shukla dial Kadar Khan lyr Indivar, Farooq Kaiser c Kamal Bose m Kalyanji-Anandji

lp Feroz Khan, Vinod Khanna, Zeenat Aman, Aruna Irani, Amjad Khan, Shakti Kapoor, Amrish Puri, Baby Natasha Chopra

Hugely successful action movie mobilising the traditional 'yaari' or male bonding story. The crook Rajesh Kumar (F. Khan) loves the night club singer Sheila (Aman). While he is in jail, she falls for the reformed gangster Amar (Khanna), but repudiates him when Rajesh is released. Rajesh saves Amar's life on two occasions from the underworld leader Vikram (Kapoor) and Vikram's sister Jwala (Irani), while the villains also frame Rajesh for the murder of another criminal, Raaka (Puri). The film is mainly concerned with notions of 'qurbani' or male sacrifice and the climax comes when in a British countryside, Amar sacrifices his life for Rajesh. The film was known also for the song Aap jaisa koi, performed by the Pakistani-British singer Nazia Hassan, one of the first songs in the style later made popular by composer Biddu for MTV. By way of a lengthy opening tribute the film was dedicated to Sanjay Gandhi, showing the cremation of his body and announcing that the film's profits would be donated to charity in his memory. The controversial award of tax exemption to the film by the then-Maharashtra Chief Minister A.R. Antulay, who also extended the same facilities to Feroz Khan's younger brother Sanjay Khan's Abdullah (also 1980), was widely discussed in the media.

⊗ Satah Se Uthata Admi

aka Arising from the Surface

1980 114' col Hindi

d/p/sc Mani Kaul pc Infrakino Film, Madhya Pradesh Kala Parishad st texts by Gajanan Madhav Muktibodh c Virendra Saini m Fariduddin Dagar

lp Gopi, M.K. Raina, Vibhuti Jha, Kulbhushan Billori, Satyen Kumar

Kaul's film addresses the writings of Gajanan Madhav Muktibodh (1917-69), one of the main representatives of the Nai Kavita (New Poetry) movement in Hindi (Tar Saptak, 1943; Chanda Ka Mooh Tedha Hai, 1954). Muktibodh also wrote several short stories, one of which (1971) provides the film with its title, and critical essays. The film integrates episodes from Muktibodh's writings with material from other sources, including a reinvented neo-realism derived from Muktibodh's literary settings. The narrative is constructed around three characters. Ramesh (Gopi) is the one who speaks and enacts Muktibodh's writings, functioning as the first-person voice of the text; his two friends, Madhav (Jha) and Keshav (Raina), are Ramesh's antagonists and interlocutors esp. in the debates about modernity. Kaul gradually minimises the fictional settings until, in the remarkably shot sequences of the factory, the audience is directly confronted with the written text itself. Kaul had begun his studies of Dhrupad music, the classical North Indian music known mainly for its extreme austerity, and derived a number of cinematic styles from this musical idiom which have influenced all his films since: e.g. the continuously mobile camera, the use of changing light patterns and the importance of improvisation.

⊗ Yagam

1980 111' b&w Malayalam

d/c Sivan p B. Chandramani Bai pc Saritha

Films st N. Mohan sc K.S. Namboodiri

m M.G. Radhakrishnan lp Babu Nanthancode, Premji, Jalaja, Kalpana, Sreelatha

The sentimental melodrama, allegedly critiquing the extreme-left CPI(ML), has the middle-class namboodiri hero Unni join a political group committed to violent struggle. He abandons his studies, slavishly obeys the group's leaders and kills a fellow activist as well as a religiously inclined local landlord. Moving to Madurai, he falls in love with Kannamma, the daughter of a factory worker. In the end, following Party instructions, he blows up a train but discovers too late that one of the victims is Kannamma's father.

Amol Palekar in Aakriet

Aakriet

aka The Misbegotten

1981 135' col Marathi

d Amol Palekar pc Dnya Films s Vijay Tendulkar c S.D. Deodhar m Bhaskar Chandavarkar, Ashok Patki

lp Amol Palekar, Chitra Palekar, Rekha Sabnis, Dilip Kulkarni

Film star and stage director Palekar's directorial debut is based on a series of brutal ritual murders among tribals in Manwat, Maharashtra. The central characters are the corrupt Mukutrao Shinde (A. Palekar), an influential trader, fence and smuggler, and his mistress Ruhi (C. Palekar). The middle-aged Ruhi, desperate to consolidate her hold on her husband, wants to become pregnant and initiates the ritual murders of five young virgins to facilitate the desired event. The greedy Mukutrao's hope to become rich on completion of the ritual stifles his fear of being caught. The fast-moving, confidently edited story quickly abandons its initial realism in favour of the suspense.

Adharshila

aka The Foundation Stone

1981 154' col Hindi

d/p/s Ashok Ahuja pc Ashok Films c Sharad Navla lyr Ranjit Kapoor m Uttam Singh lp Naseeruddin Shah, Anita Kanwar, Devki Nandan Pandey, Anil Kapoor, Madhu Malati

An example of a genre rarely practised in Indian feature films: autobiography. Ahuja features the existential dilemmas of an FTII graduate who wants to express himself through art movies. Ajay (Shah) takes his new bride Asha (Kanwar) on a tour of the Film Institute, narrating its history (it was the former Prabhat Studio). The two set up home and do reasonably well except that Ajay is haunted by disturbing desires to make films.

Antha

1981 143' col Kannada

d/co-sc S.V. Rajendra Singh pc Parimala Arts

p H.N. Maruthi, Venugopal st H.K. Anantharao co-sc/dial H.V. Subbarao lyr Udayashankar, Geethapriya, R.N. Jayagopal c P.S. Prakash m G.K. Venkatesh lp Ambarish, Laxmi, Latha, Prabhakar, Jayamala, Vajramuni, Shakti Prasad, Musari Krishnamurthy, Pandharibai, Vatsala, Sundarkrishna Urs, Baby Sindhu

Derived from a serial in the popular magazine Sudha, the comic strip-style movie opens with a sequence showing, under the credits, the very pages of the magazine whence it took its story. It then evolves into a violent cop-on-the-rampage film (cf. Zanjeer, 1973; Ardh Satya, 1983), dubbed into Telugu, Malayalam and Tamil and remade in Hindi as Meri Awaaz Suno (1981). The film became a notorious censorship case. A police officer (Ambarish) tracks down a gang of smugglers, leading to some gruesome encounters (the cop's pregnant wife is tortured, his nails are torn out, etc). He discovers that his own superiors, incl the police chief (Shakti Prasad), are involved in the gang, massacres the villains and drives their corpses into the courtroom. In a remarkable and trendsetting title sequence, the camera appears to literally enter the pages of the popular journal Sudha, identifying the serialised source of Anantharao's original story. Such 'alienation' devices became the norm in several Kannada films later in the decade (cf. the action film Ajit, 1982, the comedy Ganeshana Madhuve, 1990). The promotion for the original Kannada version enjoined viewers to 'see it before it is banned' and created a series of controversies which finally led to a parliamentary debate on the Hindi version (starring Jeetendra and Hema Malini). There were claims of it being a political movie for exposing the connections between criminals, the police and politicians, but the censor cuts apparently had nothing to do with the movie's alleged politics, bearing mainly on nude scenes, a fire and a gory abortion.

Aparna

1981 97' b&w Malayalam

d/co-p/s Padmakumar co-p Vijayan pc Sahya Film Makers c Bipin Mohan m Anantha Padmanabhan

lp Prathap Pothan, Sudeshna, Kanakalatha, Master Tony, Balakrishna Pillai

The tale of a young woman, Aparna (Sudeshna), who invests all her hopes and dreams in the illusion of loving Ramesh (Pothan) while her real life becomes progressively more unbearable. She clings to memories and attaches herself to a little boy, Ramu (Tony), who bears the nickname she gave to her lost love. When she sets out to find Ramesh again, she reaches a banyan tree where Ramesh was said to have taken refuge one day and she realises that everything, happiness and misery, even death itself, have been manifestations of 'maya', illusion. The ambiguous ending suggests that Aparna too may have disintegrated into an illusion. The film evokes the myth of Aparna's love for Shiva, which was transformed into an intense and concentrated tapasya (a form of ritual penance).

Chaal chitra

aka The Kaleidoscope

1981 92' col Bengali

d/s Mrinal Sen p Dhiresk Kumar Chakraborty pc D.K. Films Enterprise c K.K. Mahajan m Aloke Dey

lp Anjan Dutt, Geeta Sen, Utpal Dutt, Debapratim Dasgupta

The lower-middle-class Calcutta milieu critically examined in Ek Din Pratidin (1979) here becomes the setting for an affectionate comedy with a sting in the tail. A talented young writer, Dipu (A. Dutt), is asked by a newspaper editor (U. Dutt) to write in two days a short story about everyday life. Dipu starts enthusiastically but each situation he addresses appears to have ramifications too wide to deal with in a short impressionistic sketch. He wants to write about families living in overcrowded apartment blocks using coal stoves for cooking because they cannot afford gas. This means the small rooms are constantly filled with smoke. At one point, Dipu's little brother innocently asks: 'How many coal stoves are there in the city?' Dipu, despairing of his ability to deal with the subject in the format commissioned by the newspaper, has an angry wish fulfilment dream which he writes up and presents to the editor who prints the story suitably toned down. Sen returns to the same problem in his next film, Kharij (1982).

Chashme Buddoor

aka Touch Wood aka Shield against the Evil Eye

1981 142' col Hindi

d/s Sai Paranjpye p Gul Anand pc PLA Prod. lyr Indu Jain c Virendra Saini m Raj Kamal lp Farouque Shaikh, Deepti Naval, Saeed Jaffrey, Rakesh Bedi, Leela Mishra, Ravi Baswani

A light romantic comedy about three students who share a flat in Delhi. Jomo (Bedi) and Omi (Baswani) are forever chasing women in the city but it is the shy Siddharth (Shaikh) who finds a woman he can love. The film also pokes fun at the way mainstream Hindi cinema portrays love relationships. Amitabh Bachchan puts in a guest appearance here, as he seems to do in all Gul Anand productions (Jalwa, 1986; Hero Hiralal, 1988).

Chattaniki Kaluluvu

1981 141' col Telugu

d/sc S.A. Chandrasekhar pc Srikr Prod. p Venkineni Satyanarayana st Sobha dial/lyr Mylavaram Gopi c D.D. Prasad m Krishna-Chakra lp Chiranjeevi, Laxmi, Madhavi, Kannada Prabhakar, Ceylon Manohar, Hema Sundar, Narayana Rao

Revenge drama with the siblings Vijay (Chiranjeevi) and Durga (Laxmi) pursuing their sister's and father's murderers John (Hema Sundar), Javed (Kannada Prabhakar) and Janardan (Ceylon Manohar). Durga, now a police officer, wants the murderers to be punished legally while Vijay tracks them down and kills two of them, on each occasion frustrating his sister's investigations. In the end, when Durga is kidnapped by Javed, the hero rescues her and kills the last villain in her presence. The very popular film belongs to the Chiranjeevi genre of vigilante revenge dramas deployed as critiques of a corrupted legal system, here adding the motif that a female cop is no match for a macho man.

✿ Dakhal

aka The Occupation

1981 72' col Bengali

d/co-sc/m/c Gautam Ghose pc West Bengal Govt st Sunil Jana co-sc Partha Bannerjee lp Mamata Shankar, Robin Sengupta, Sunil Mukherjee, Sajal Roy Choudhury, Bimal Deb

Ghosh's first Bengali featurette tells of Andi (Shankar), a member of a nomadic tribe of scavengers, and her struggle against a local landlord. Andi is married to the peasant Joga from a different tribe. When Joga dies, the landlord, who wants Andi's land, incites Andi's nomadic tribe to declare her marriage illegal so that the landlord may appropriate her land. Eventually, the tribe sees through the manipulation and apologises to Andi, offering her the tribe's protection. However, she refuses to rejoin the nomads and decides to fight for her land. Set among Bengal's most marginalised people, the film presents a poeticised (cf. the soft-focus twilight shots in the beginning) image, with allegorical rather than miserabilist overtones, of a struggle for bare survival (cf. Paar, 1984) in an elemental, raw nature shorn of cultural associations.

✿ El ippathayam

aka The Rat Trap

1981 127' col Malayalam

d/s Adoor Gopalakrishnan

p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc General Pics c Ravi Varma m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Karamana Janardanan Nair, Sharada, Jalaja, Rajam K. Nair, Prakash, Soman, John Samuel, Balan K. Nair, Jaycee, Thampi

Unni (Karamana) is a middle-aged relic, the head of a parasitic family of the Nair community of ex-rent collectors in a decaying feudal society. His eldest sister Janamma (R.K. Nair) fights for her own family's share of the feudal spoils; the obedient younger sister Rajamma (Sharada) is condemned to be both the slave and the surrogate mother of the indolent Unni until she collapses under the strain. The youngest sister Sridevi (Jalaja) is a student, defiantly pragmatic in her rejection of the old system. Confronted with any difficult situation, Unni withdraws like a rat into a dark hole and eventually sinks into paranoia. The film uses an obsessive, numbing rhythm and an intricate tapestry of close-ups, long shots and isolated sounds to convey the last gasp of a dying order as Unni runs through his house like a rat in a trap. As with Mukha Mukham (1984), his next film, the performance is pitched between naturalism and metaphor e.g. when Unni tries to make an inquisitive cow go away or shows a pathological fear of getting mud on his clothes. The director acknowledged autobiographical elements in the film, likening Unni's house to his own ancestral home, but he added that the film is in fact about Kerala's emergence into modernity.

✿ Illakkangal

aka The Emotional Upsurge

1981 114' col Malayalam

d/co-dial Mohan p David Kachapally, Innocent pc Sathru Films st M. Raghavan sc/dial Mohan, John Paul lyr Kavalam Narayana Panicker c U. Rajagopal m M.B. Srinivasan lp Nedumudi Venu, Shankaradi, Innocent, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Adoor Bhasi, Sudha

Unni, a young man working in the city, returns to his village for a holiday and has to cope with the adolescent yearnings of a 15-year-old girl, Amminikutty, who had built many of her fantasies around him and his presumed big city lifestyle. Unaware of the depth of her feelings, he returns to the city casually giving her a tip for having washed his clothes. One of art director Mohan's better-known films.

✿ Imagi Ningthem

aka My Son, My Precious

1981 106' b&w Manipuri

d Aribham Syam Sharma pc X-Cine Prod.
s M.K. Binodini Debi c K. Ibohal Sharma
m Khundrakpam Joykumar lp Leikhendro, Rashid, Ingdam Mangi, Thoithoi

The breakthrough film of Manipur's best-known director, made in collaboration with the writer and art patron maharajkumari M.K. Binodini Debi (they collaborated again on Ishanou, 1990). The sensitive schoolteacher Dhani helps Thoithoi, the illegitimate son of Dinachandra, to be adopted by Dinachandra's legitimate wife Ekashini. The legal aspects of the child's adoption are intercut with the child's growth, presented with mythological overtones (e.g. Thoi Thoi plays the infant Krishna in the folk Raas-Leela).

✿ Naseeb

aka Destiny

1981 197' col Hindi

d/p Manmohan Desai pc MKD Films, Aasia Films st Prayag Raj sc K.K. Shukla dial Kadar Khan lyr Anand Bakshi c Jal Mistry
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Amitabh Bachchan, Hema Malini, Shatrughan Sinha, Rishi Kapoor, Reena Roy, Kim, Pran, Amrish Puri, Kadar Khan, Amjad Khan, Shakti Kapoor, Prem Chopra, Lalita Pawar, Jagdish Raj, Raj Kapoor, Shammi Kapoor, Dharmendra, Rajesh Khanna, Mala Sinha, Waheeda Rehman, Sharmila Tagore, Shubha Khote, Om Shivpuri

Desai's most extravagantly plotted film to date. Namdev (Pran), a waiter, a band musician (Jagdish Raj), Damodar (A. Khan) the photographer and Raghubir (K. Khan) the hack driver jointly win a lottery ticket. After being framed for the murder of the musician, Namdev is presumably killed by Damodar and Raghubir who use the money to set up a criminal empire. The story then switches to the second generation: John Jani Janardan (Bachchan) and Sunny (Rishi Kapoor), are the sons of Namdev; John's buddy is Damodar's son Vikram (S. Sinha); the dead band musician had two daughters: the singer Asha (Malini) and schoolgirl Kim (Kim). Namdev was not killed after all and later resurfaces as the henchman of the ultimate crime boss, Don (Puri). Unlike Desai's other Bachchan films (cf. Amar Akbar Anthony, 1977), the convoluted plot and the multitude of characters overwhelms the superstar along with everyone else in the film. The film's shots gradually become shorter and by the second half of the story, two seconds seems an average shot-length. The dialogue accompanying the surfeit of physical action merely conveys information as quickly as possible. Desai's virtual abandonment of narrative structure is complemented by innumerable references to his own as well as to other films and TV commercials. Bachchan sings at a celebration of Desai's earlier Dharam Veer (1977); Charles Bronson's Hard Times aka The Streetfighter (1975) is replicated in Bachchan's second profession as a boxer; The Towering Inferno (1974) is evoked as a revolving restaurant goes up in flames; in the last song the heroes are dressed as a matador (Bachchan), a cossack (Sinha) and as Chaplin (Rishi Kapoor).

✿ Oridathoru Phayal wan aka There Lived a Wrestler

1981 128' col Malayalam

d/s P. Padmarajan pc Thundathil Films c Vipin Das m Johnson lp Rashid, Jayanthi, K.G. Devakiamma, Nedumudi Venu

Lightweight folk parable, apparently derived from the director's childhood memories, about success and failure in the life of a wrestler (Rashid). Patronised by the village tailor, he becomes a local hero when he overcomes all opponents and claims the prettiest woman (Jayanthi) as his wife. One of the cinematic highlights is the hero's primitive courtship dance in the traditional wrestling style, flexing his muscles as he throws his new bride in the air. However, his muscular prowess is offset by sexual inadequacy, and he has to leave the village. A novelist and frequent collaborator of B.G. Bharathan, Padmarajan presents the wrestler as a catalyst for change: the sleepy tailor transforms into a shrewd businessman and an old woman learns to guard her hens which kept disappearing whenever the wrestler grew hungry.

✿ Pal aivana Sol ai

1981 131' col Tamil

d/sc/c Robert Rajasekar p R. Vadivelu dial Prasannakumar lyr Vairamuthu
m Shankar-Ganesh

lp Chandrasekar, Rajiv, Kailash, Thyagu, Janakaraj, Suhasini, S.N. Parvathi, Kalawani

A love story of five boys for each other, using the death of a girl to confirm their mutual affections. The successful film was made by a group of Film Institute students seeking to inaugurate a new formula of ensemble playing using the conventional story of male youths using a pretty woman as a lightning conductor for the sexual undertones of their devotion to each other. Young Geeta (Suhasini), suffering from a heart disease, moves into a house on a street where five bosom buddies hang out: Shekhar (Chandrasekar), Senthil, Vasu, Siva and Kumar. Attracted to the laddish boys, she falls for Shekhar, but he marries Vasu's sister. Nevertheless, they all remain very devoted friends, though the two lead characters are rendered somewhat melancholic by their unconsummated friendship. When Geeta dies, the five friends bond together even more tightly.

☞ Pehl a Adhyay

aka Pahala Adhyay

1981 130' col Hindi

d/co-sc Vishnu Mathur pc Dhwanyalok Films st/co-sc C.S. Lakshmi aka Ambai, from her Tamil short story, Milechan c Navroze Contractor lp Dinesh Shakul, Jyoti Ranadive, Madan Jain, Rashmi Sethi, Madan Bawaria, Debu Parekh, P.C. Sethi, Kamala Sethi, Anant Bhave, Madhav Sathe

Mathur's debut is an avant-garde feature about Ravi (Dinesh Shakul), a young man from a small village who goes to Bombay University and finds himself unable to relate to life in the city. Unable to connect with the city, Ravi tries to establish contact with a fellow student but his sense of being 'out of place' remains until his pent-up anxieties and fears explode into a violent physical outburst and breakdown. The film ends on a cautious note of optimism as Ravi seems to recover. Mathur tries to make the lived and obscurely threatening sensations of displacement into the very substance of the film. He avoids the way questions of belonging are usually formulated in communitarian terms (religion, class, national or regional identity, etc.). The film was not released. Mathur's next major film, made years later, was The Flying Bird (1989).

☞ Pokkuvayil

aka Twilight

1981 106' col Malayalam

d/co-s Govindan Aravindan

p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc General Pics

co-s Dr Ramesh c Shaji N. Karun

m Hariprasada Chaurasia, Rajeev Taranath, Latif Ahmed

lp Balachandran Chullikad, Satish, Ansar, Kalpana, Vijayalakshmi, V.P. Nair

A poignant story of urban life showing a young artist living with his father, a radical friend and a music-loving young woman. The father dies, the radical has to flee and the woman is taken by her family to another city. The boy's world collapses: he becomes prey to hallucinations and ends up in an asylum where he is visited by his mother. The film, mostly told in flashback, betrays the nature-mystic Aravindan's distrust of urban living.

☞ Raja Parvai

1981 144' col Tamil

d Singeetham Srinivasa Rao pc Haazan Bros. s Hazan K, Santhanabharati lyr Kannadasan, Vairamuthu, Gangai Amaran c Barun Mukherjee m Ilaiyaraja
lp L.V. Prasad, Kamalhasan, Madhavi, Nirmala, KPAC Lalitha, Y.G. Mahendran, Delhi Ganesh

A major Kamalhasan melodrama in which he plays a blind musician oppressed since infancy by his evil stepmother. Nancy (Madhavi) falls in love with him, but her father David forces her to marry someone else. The happy ending sees the lovers elope on a scooter with the aid of Nancy's grandfather (Prasad). Kamalhasan apparently persuaded the producer, director and ex-actor Prasad to come out of retirement for this role. Both the direction and Kamalhasan's performance are unabashedly melodramatic, milking the hero's disability for all its worth, and Srinivasa Rao's notorious zooms and cutaways underlined by rapid and awkward editing are fully in evidence. Unusually, the credits list everyone in a single rolling title sequence without assigning individual credits.

☞ Ranganayaki

1981 196' col/scope Kannada

d/sc S.R. Puttanna Kanagal pc Ashok Arts st Ashwath dial Yoganna lyr Vijayanarasimha, Kanagal Prabhakar Sastry c Maruthi Rao

m M. Ranga Rao

lp Arathi, Ashok, Ambarish, Rajanand, Ramakrishna, Musari Krishnamurthy

Kanagal's epic features Arathi's most famous performance: she plays a stage actress in the folk theatre who marries a rich man (Ramakrishna) and ostensibly adapts to the required upper-class lifestyle. Her intense desire to perform on the stage is rekindled when her old theatre group arrives in her city. She agrees to replace one of the actresses in an emergency. The sexual release she experiences in acting emerges forcefully during a street procession when she appears to be 'possessed', to the intense embarrassment of her husband. Her obsession with acting leads to a divorce and her husband gets custody of their son. Having become a film star, she has an affair (coily presented in the film) with a sexy young man (Ashok) who turns out to be her son. In a drawn out climax, the son tries to reconcile his parents but arrives too late to prevent his mother's suicide. Kanagal extensively used hand-held camerawork and a distorting wide-angle lens which, in a CinemaScope frame, creates a disturbingly unsettling space, aggravated by the primary colour schemes. The film's publicity claimed it showed the backstage world of the old Company Natak.

☞ Sadgati

aka Deliverance

1981 52' col Hindi

d/sc/co-dial/m Satyajit Ray pc Doordarshan

st Munshi Premchand co-dial Amrit Rai

c Soumendu Roy

lp Om Puri, Mohan Agashe, Smita Patil, Richa

Mishra, Geeta Siddharth, Bhaiyalal Hedao

Short film, derived from a Premchand short story, made as a companion piece to Pikoo (1980) for Doordarshan. The indolent Brahmin Ghashiram (Agashe) gets the low-caste bonded labourer Dukhi (Puri) to perform several onerous tasks while denying him food. While chopping a giant log with a blunt axe, as instructed, Dukhi dies of exhaustion, leaving a grieving widow (Patil) and child in the village. Ghashiram, in a muddy and rain-soaked landscape, is last seen dragging the corpse away. In casting actors associated with the Bombay-based New Indian Cinema (Puri, Agashe, Patil) for this rural drama, Ray made a belated contribution to the 70s rural-exploitation melodrama, a genre eventually adopted by Doordarshan.

☞ Satte Pe Satta

1981 160' col/scope Hindi

d Raj N. Sippy p Romu N. Sippy st/co-sc Jyoti

Swaroop co-sc Satish Bhatnagar dial Kadar

Khan lyr Gulshan Bawra c Anwar Siraj

m R.D. Burman

lp Amitabh Bachchan, Hema Malini, Sachin, Shakti Kapoor, Amjad Khan, Ranjeeta, Sudhir, Aradhana, Prema Narayan, Paintal, Madhu Malhotra, Kanwaljeet, Asha Sachdev, Rajni Sharma

Successful Hindi adaptation of Stanley Donen's Seven Brides for Seven Brothers (1954). Ravi (Bachchan) is the eldest of a wild clan of seven brothers, each named after a day of the week, who collectively run a farm. Ravi falls for the nurse Indu (Malini), whose arrival following their marriage leads to a disciplining of the entire family. The remaining brothers in turn fall for each of the six companions of the heiress Seema (Ranjeeta), thus initiating the film's final drama. In order to appropriate her wealth, Seema's guardian, Ranjit Singh (Khan), has hired the notorious Babu (Bachchan in a double role) to kill her. The villains kidnap Ravi, allowing Babu to impersonate him in order to assassinate Seema. However, Babu is reformed by the large family and in the end falls in love with the heiress.

☞ Seethakoka Chil aka

1981 141' col Telugu

d/sc Bharathiraja pc Poornodaya Movie

Creations st Mani Kannan dial Jandhyala

lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c Kannan

m Ilaiyaraja

Ip Murali, Karthik, Aruna, K. Jaggaiah, Sarath Babu, Janaki Jr, Smita, 'Sakshi' Rangarao

Musical fantasy addressing communal harmony. Raghu (Karthik), the son of a Brahmin widow, falls in love with the Christian woman Karuna (Aruna). Karuna's brother (Sarat Babu), who does not like Raghu, warns him to keep away from his sister and to leave the village. Later the priest of the local church intervenes and both Raghu and Karuna abandon their respective religions to be able to live together.

Saritha in Thanneer Thanneer

Rajasthan's top star with neo-traditionalist melodramas like Chokho Lage Sasariyo (1983), Nanand Bhojai (1985), Bhikaoo Tordo (1987) and Lichhmi Ayi Angane (1992).

☞ Sil sil a

1981 182' col Hindi

d/co-sc Yash Chopra pc Yash Raj Films st Preeti Bedi co-sc Sagar Sarhadi lyr Javed Akhtar, Rajinder Krishan, Hasan Kamal, Nida Fazli, Harivanshrai Bachchan c Kay Gee
m Shiv-Hari

Ip Amitabh Bachchan, Shashi Kapoor, Jaya Bhaduri, Rekha, Sanjeev Kumar

Shobha (Bhaduri) is in love with the air force officer Shekhar (Kapoor). Shekhar's younger brother Amit (Bachchan) writes poetry and plays and woos Chandni (Rekha). Shekhar dies in the war, leaving Shobha pregnant. Amit sacrifices his love for Chandni to marry Shobha and save her reputation. Chandni marries a doctor (Kumar) in the town where Amit and Shobha live. The ex-lovers meet in an accident in which Shobha loses her baby. Amit and Chandni have an affair while their marital partners suffer in silence. The lovers elope after a highly stylised confrontation between the two women (the two rivals standing back to back). The film features Bachchan's alleged offscreen lover Rekha and his wife Bhaduri (who came out of retirement to play the part). Several scenes appear designed to fuel or to exploit the gossip journalism which underpins and surrounds film careers. In the end, the sanctity of marriage triumphs and the original married couples are restored. Bachchan sang his own songs and declaimed numerous poetic couplets addressed to Chandni, fully exploiting a key aspect of his star persona: his deep baritone voice. Songs picturised in Dutch tulip fields help promote Rekha's image as a glamorous but unattainable object of desire.

☞ Supattar Binani

1981 153' col Rajasthani

d/sc Satyen pc Amrit Kalash Prod.
st/dial/lyr/m Mahendra Pujari c Balbir Ip Shirish Kumar, Neelu, Kshitiij, Vijaya, Atmaram, Manjula, Padma Khanna

After a long commercially fallow period, Satyen's hit re-established the Rajasthani cinema. The modern Ramakant (Kumar) is forced by his rich orthodox father to marry the illiterate Munga (Neelu). Ramakant's greedy uncle and aunt urge him to abandon his wife and to marry the modern Kavita who stands to inherit a fortune. Ramakant almost kills his exemplary, long-suffering wife before orthodoxy triumphs. Neelu went on to become

☞ Thanneer Thanneer

aka Water Water

1981 143' col Tamil

d/sc K. Balachander pc Kalakendra Movies st Komal Swaminathan's play lyr Vairamuthu, Kannadasan
c B.S. Lokanathan m M.S. Vishwanathan
Ip Saritha, V.K. Veeraswami, Shanmugham, M.R. Radha Ravi

Shot on location and set in Athipattu, a drought-stricken hamlet in Southern TN, Balachander's political film tells of the villagers' desperate attempts to obtain water in the face of corrupt politicians and their servants, including the police. The villagers protect a communist fugitive from justice and later give him money to buy a bullock with which to bring water from a spring 20 miles away. The man persuades them to dig a canal, an initiative obstructed by government officials. The villagers then decide to boycott elections (a tactic tried in Thanjavur a year after the film's release), but in the end the police act against them for defying orders and corruption triumphs. The film's effort at a stark realism, esp. in the use of Southern Tamil dialect, goes alongside an agit-prop stage style borrowed from Swaminathan's original play e.g. when villagers hand a petition to a minister, he gives it to his assistant, who hands it to a district collector, who passes it to his orderly, who puts it in his pocket. The Tamil Nadu Information Minister, R.M. Veerappan, calling for a ban on the film, said that 'the law enforcement ministry had never used arms against people who made efforts to get their water supply'.

☞ 36 Chowringhee Lane

1981 122'(113') col English

d/s Aparna Sen p Shashi Kapoor pc Film Valas c Ashok Mehta m Vanraj Bhatia

Ip Jennifer Kendall, Dhritiman Chatterjee, Debashree Roy, Geoffrey Kendall, Soni Razdan, Dina Ardeshir, Fae Soares, Reny Roy, Sylvia Philips

Aparna Sen's directorial debut, made in English, relies heavily on Bansi Chandragupta's art direction for her film on loneliness and old age. An Anglo-Indian schoolteacher, Violet Stoneham (Kendall) lives a solitary life teaching Shakespeare, her major obsession, to schoolgirls. She invites Samaresh (Chatterjee) to write his novel in her house but instead he uses the place to make love to his girlfriend Nandita (D. Roy). The couple constitute Violet's principal interaction with the outside world. The lovers get married and no longer need the flat. The teacher reconciles herself to further loneliness on Christmas Day while the soundtrack plays Silent night, holy night. Presented as a European-style character study (reminiscent of Rene Allio's La Vieille dame indigne, 1965, and of the Merchant-Ivory films with which producer Kapoor was also associated), the film has often elicited charges of colonial nostalgia. The Indian version includes scenes removed from the British release version e.g. a sequence with Violet's cat atop the lavatory cistern.

☞ Thyagayya

1981 143' col Telugu

d Bapu pc Navata Cine Arts sc/dial Mullapudi Venkatramana lyr Thyagaraja, Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c Baba Azmi m K.V. Mahadevan
Ip J.V. Somayajulu, Ravu Gopala Rao, Rallapalli, M.B.K.V. Prasada Rao, K.R. Vijaya, Rohini

Bapu's remake of Chittor V. Nagaiah's classic Saint film (1946) adapted his mythological style to the notion of classicism proposed by Vishwanath's Shankarabharanam (1979). The latter film's star, Somayajulu, here plays the Telugu saint Thyagaraja (1767-1847) who defies Serfoji, the king of Tanjore. When the hero's sister-in-law Ganga steals his precious deity and throws it in the Kaveri river, the saint goes on a pilgrimage in search of his god. Several divine interventions later (filmed in Bapu's typical frontal-address mythological style) and following the death of his wife Kamala, the saint eventually transforms into a sanyasi, a renouncer. Unlike the pre-Independence versions of the genre, this film exemplifies the essential requirement of a neo-traditional 'authenticity' in terms of contemporary caste for the cinema Vishwanath and others pioneered. Here S.P. Balasubramanyam, who sang the kritis of Thyagaraja, was criticised by Carnatic vocalists for not being classical enough: this attack, unlike those pointing to the performance or soundtrack as the far more obvious instances of pandering to popular taste in the name of 'high' art, appeared to be seen as far more damaging to the film.

☞ Umbar tha/Subah

aka Threshold aka Dawn

1981 151'[M]/135'[H] col Marathi/Hindi

d/co-p Jabbar Patel co-p D.V. Rao pc Sujatha Chitra st Shanta Nisal's novel Beghar sc/dial Vijay Tendulkar lyr Vasant Bapat, Suresh Bhatt c Rajan Kinagi m Hridayanath Mangeshkar

lp Smita Patil, Girish Karnad, Shrikant Moghe, Ashalata, Daya Dongre, Kusum Kulkarni, Manorama Wagle, Jayamala Kale, Ravi Patwardhan, Shriram Ranade, Satish Alekar, Purnima Ganu

Smita Patil's best-known screen role features her as Sulabha, the wife of the progressive lawyer Subhash (Karnad). Upset by her husband's willingness to blacken the name of a rape victim in order to benefit his client, accused of committing the rape, Sulabha decides to take charge of a Mahilashram (women's home). There she has to contend with the gross corruption and greed which further exploits and victimises the women in her care. The governors of the institution eventually make life so difficult for Sulabha that she has to resign. When she returns home, her husband informs her that he has taken a mistress and intends to keep her. Sulabha leaves her home determined to make a life for herself. Based on an autobiographical work by Shanta Nisal, the film was given a feminist value by Smita Patil's performance and by her use of the film in campaigns for women's rights. The feminist historian Susie Tharu expressed reservations about the film's presentation of the lead character: 'The filmic focus, emphasised by several close-ups of Sulabha sitting, toying with her glasses, looking up, walking, sitting again [establishes her as the central character as well as the problem (the disruption, the enigma) the film will explore and resolve. In Umbartha it is clear that to search herself is, for a woman, a tragic enterprise. An enterprise in which she is doomed to fail, but can fail bravely and heroically. Such a perspective [i]nvariably poses the problem in such a way that the solutions come from the individual, more specifically from the individual's personality or character. We sense a vague structural similarity [b]etween Sulabha's own predicament and that of the destitute or abandoned women in the Home. But the parallel is never clear because while one motif is explored psychologically the other is given a rather crude sociological interpretation' (1986).

accomplished and respected musician and dancer) from Lucknow. Abducted as a child and sold in Lucknow, Umrao Jaan (Rekha) is trained in music and dance. She grows up to become immensely popular with the elite of the city, falls in love with an aristocrat nawab (Shaikh), then finds companionship with her childhood friend Gauhar Mirza (Shah), finally escaping her claustrophobic life with the bandit Faiz Ali (Babbar). Aijaz Ahmad (1992) notes about the novel that: 'The scandal of Ruswa's text is its proposition that since such a woman depends upon no one man, and because many depend on her, she is the only relatively free woman in our society. Ruswa was a very traditional man, and he was simply tired of certain kinds of moral posturing'. Ahmad sees the continuation of this motif of the free woman in the work of the PWA in the 30s. Muzaffar Ali recreated the image of the Urdu costume spectacular around the star Rekha while Bansi Chandragupta's sets and Khayyam's music endow the film with a sense of opulence enhancing the star's performance (as well as overshadowing her limitations as a dancer). Includes many popular ghazals sung by Asha Bhosle e.g. Dil cheez kya hai and In ankhon ki masti.

Val ar thu Mrugangal

aka Performing Beasts
 1981 148' (125') col Malayalam
d T. Hariharan pc Priyadarshini Movies
s/lyr M.T. Vasudevan Nair c Mehli Irani
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Balan K. Nair, Sukumaran, Madhavi, Nagesh

A bleak melodrama involving murder among circus performers. The members of a financially ailing circus troupe join a bigger circus, and find the employees exploited. Trapeze performer Janu falls for a stuntman who is also the employees' representative in their fight for better work conditions. The stuntman is killed in a simulated accident, and his girlfriend tries to commit suicide. The plot was originally written as a short story by scenarist Vasudevan Nair. Director Hariharan was one of the most prolific in the 70s Malayalam cinema, with over 60 features since his debut, Ladies' Hostel (1973).

Aar ohan

aka The Ascending Scale aka The Ascent
 1982 147' col Hindi
d Shyam Benegal pc West Bengal Govt sc Shama Zaidi dial/lyr Niaz Haider c Govind Nihalani m Purnadas Baul lp Om Puri, Sreela Majumdar, Victor Bannerjee, Rajen Tarafdar, Geeta Sen, Pankaj Kapoor, Khoka Mukherjee

The small farmer Hari Mondal (Puri) supports an extended family working on his little plot of land. When he tries to obtain a loan from his absentee landlord living in Calcutta, Mondal finds himself ensnared in a lengthy legal battle, lasting from 1967 to 1977, to preserve his political rights as a sharecropper. In the process, his family is destroyed. One of the better known of several films produced by the communist government of West Bengal to portray through fiction their political programmes: in this case, Operation Barga, a successful campaign of land for landless tillers. Benegal starts the film with Om Puri introducing himself, the cameraman, scenarist and other crew members who are to enact the performance to follow. The rest of the film, however, once it starts, attempts no further alienation devices except perhaps a spectacular and stage scene of lightning and floods.

Ajit

1982 148' col Kannada
d V. Somasekhar pc Parimala Arts st Vijaya Sasanoor sc/dial H.V. Subba Rao lyr Udayashankar, R.N. Jayagopal, Doddarange Gowda, Dr Kalyan c P.S. Prakash m Satyam lp Ambarish, Jayamala, Prabhakar, Sundarakrishna Urs, Jaijagadish, Pandharibai, Subhashini, Shakti Prasad, Musari Krishnamurthy, Lakshman, C.R. Simha, Sathananda, Pravin Kumar

Ambarish's follow-up of the successful Anth (1981). The quirky plot with segments of dystopian realism is characteristic of several crime films of the time. Ajit (Ambarish) displays his yogic skills and solves several cases before he is sent on a mission to a fictional foreign country to bring back a notorious criminal. Trapped in the criminal's fortress, he uses his yogic powers and manages to send the criminal back to India. However, in a self-consciously unconventional ending, he is himself left behind, on the brink of death, after a battle with armed gangsters.

Apar oopa/Apeksha

1982 127' col Assamese/Hindi d/p/st/co-sc Jahnu Barua co-sc J.S. Rao dial Jogen Chetia c Binod Pradhan lyr/m Bhupen Hazarika
lp Suhasini Mulay, Biju Phukan, Girish Karnad

Barua's technically accomplished debut feature is a stylish low-key melodrama set in the colonial upper-class society of Assam's tea gardens. Aparoopa (Mulay) foregoes her education to marry the rich Mr Barua to whom her father owes money. Her boredom and anxiety become unbearable on the arrival of an old college friend and military officer who offers her an escape route.

Ar th

1982 143' col Hindi
d/st/dial/co-sc Mahesh Bhatt pc Anu Arts co-sc Sujit Sen lyr Kaifi Azmi c Pravin Bhatt
m Chitra Singh, Jagjit Singh lp Shabana Azmi, Smita Patil, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Raj Kiran, Rohini Hattangadi, Siddharth Kak, Geeta Siddharth

Inder Malhotra (Kharbanda), a fashionable film-maker, is married to Pooja (Azmi) when he starts an affair with film star Kavita (Patil).

Umrao Jaan

1981 145' col Urdu
d/co-sc Muzaffar Ali pc Integrated Films st Meer Hadi Hassan Ruswa's novel Umrao Jaan Ada (1899) co-sc/dial Shama Zaidi, Javed Siddiqui lyr Shahryar c Pravin Bhatt
m Khayyam
lp Rekha, Farouque Shaikh, Naseeruddin Shah, Raj Babbar, Prema Narayan, Shaukat Kaifi, Dina Pathak, Leela Mishra, Gajanan Jagirdar

Based on the first major Urdu novel and possibly (there is controversy about this) the autobiography of a legendary mid-19th C. tawaif (a courtesan who was also an

Pooja leaves him and experiences the social insecurities of a single working woman. Her dilemmas are highlighted by the parallel story of her cleaning lady (Hattangadi) who, abandoned by her husband, kills him and is arrested. Kavita, who suffers from guilt and eventually succumbs to schizophrenia, leaves Inder. Bhatt's breakthrough film benefited both from gossip suggesting, with Bhatt's assistance, that it was autobiographical, and of a much-publicised rivalry between actresses Patil and Azmi. Bhatt continued producing sensationalised versions of wicked upper-class Bombay life, peppered with inane talk about art cinema (as in this film's party sequence), paralleling e.g. gossip columnist Shobha De's novels set in the film and advertising industries.

Chokh

aka The Eyes

1982 108' col Bengali

d/s/m Utpalendu Chakraborty pc West Bengal Govt dial Akhya Upadhyay c Shakti Bannerjee

lp Om Puri, Shyamanand Jalan, Anil Chatterjee, Sreela Majumdar, Asit Mukherjee, Dipak Sarkar, Madhabi Chakraborty

When in 1975, during the Emergency, a union leader, Jadunath (Puri), is falsely accused of murder and hanged, he bequeaths his eyes to a blind worker. The surgeon Dr Mukherjee (Chatterjee), who has to perform the operation, is put under severe pressure by the factory owner who instigated the judicial killing of Jadunath and who now wants an eye donor for his own son. When the factory owner (Jalan) learns who the eyes belonged to, he orders them to be destroyed in the hope that the revolutionary fire that burned in them may be extinguished forever. The surgeon resists the order but eventually has to comply while outside the hospital, Jadunath's widow (Majumdar) and demonstrating workers advance on the police cordon surrounding the surgery. The demagogic film by-passes the cinematic potential of the motif of 'vision' in favour of low-angle shots with wide-angle lenses together with a high-volume expressionist soundtrack.

Dhrupad

1982 72' col Hindi

d/p Mani Kaul pc Infrakino Film c Virendra Saini

lp Zia Mohiyuddin Dagar, Zia Fariduddin Dagar

Kaul's documentary on Dhrupad, the famous North Indian form of classical music. Its foremost living practitioners are members of the Dagar family. The film features the director's own music teachers, Zia Mohiyuddin Dagar on the rudra veena and his younger brother Fariduddin Dagar as vocalist. The music itself, unlike its successor form, the khayal, is austere and rigidly defined with e.g. precise rules for its elaboration from the formalist alaap (which includes no words and no external rhythmic accompaniment) to the faster and more celebratory drut. Its central tenet is that of freedom achieved within a rigid rule-bound structure through a continuous musical scale and the use of notes mainly as approximations rather than as absolutes (as in Western traditions). The film attempts to explore the musical form through the cinematic orchestration of space and light. It includes sequences suggesting Dhruwad's tribal musical origins and some remarkable scenes in Jaipur's Jantar Mantar observatory. The bravura ending has a long shot descending from the sky into the urban metropolis, weaving through concrete rooftops as the camera pulls slowly out of focus. The critic Shanta Gokhale commented: 'Classical Indian music is to Mani Kaul the purest artistic search. The alaap or slow unfolding of a raga (melody) to get its innermost swarop (form), is its finest expression. Just as a good musician has mastered the musical method of construction which saves his delineation of a raga from becoming formless, so a good film-maker has a firm control over cinematic methods of construction and can therefore allow himself to improvise.'

Eenadu

1982 181' col/scope Malayalam

d I.V. Sasi pc Geo Movie Prod. p N.G. John s T. Damodaran lyr Yusuf Ali Kacheri c S.S. Chandramohan, C.E. Babu m Shyam lp Mammooty, Balan K. Nair, T.G. Ravi, Ratheesh, Anjali, Surekha, Vanitha, Krishnachandran

Sasi's opus about Kerala politics. Karunakaran (Ravi), the corrupt Congress politician, and Venu (Ratheesh), a member of the Legislative Assembly, run a major nexus of crime with the assistance of the police and state bureaucracy. Karunakaran's son, a student gangster, tries to rape the girlfriend of his colleague Shashi in the college, leading to her suicide. In order to defeat their Left opponents, the corrupt politicians engineer the mass distribution of adulterated liquor, causing large-scale deaths. Eventually Salim (Mammooty), a Dubai-returned youth impoverished by prevalent conditions, leads a revolution, along with Krishna Pillai (Balan K. Nair), the good trade unionist/politician and a reference to the Kerala CPI leader P. Krishna Pillai. The people are successful, however, only because Karunakaran's wife Sridevi offers evidence of her husband's murderous activities. From the titles, which are intercut with a CPI(M) march, to the final confrontation as Venu is forced by the people to withdraw his bid for the chief minister's post, the film unabashedly locates the villains as representing the corrupt Congress governments that have ruled the state. The good, on the other hand, become politicised in support of the Left for a variety of reasons that include religious, caste and economic oppression. Much of the plot makes direct reference to contemporary events, including the notorious 'blade' finance companies and the liquor deaths, that have been (with the corruption) key issues in Kerala politics. The film packs in a massive number of characters in a variety of situations including political meetings, backdoor bargaining, press conferences and the inevitable drinking sessions, which it usually wraps up with a few fast-paced talking heads shots, with the demagoguery underlined by a relentless music track.

Ezhavathu Manithan

aka The Seventh Man

1982 125' col Tamil

d/sc K. Hariharan p/st Palai N. Shanmugham pc Lata Creations dial Somasundareswar, Arunmozhi lyr Subramanya Bharati c Dharma m L. Vaidyanathan lp Raghuvaran, Ratna, Satyajit, Deepak, Anita Mathews, Satyendra, Ranga

First feature of Hariharan, a former member of the YUKT Film Coop (Ghashiram Kotwal, 1976), who went on to become an eminent Tamil film critic. The film tells of labour/management conflicts in a Tirunelveli district village, the home of the legendary late 19th C. Tamil poet Bharati (cf. DMK Film) whose poems are featured in the movie, contrasting his utopian vision with contemporary conditions. The central figure is an engineer, Anand (Raghuvaran), who becomes the main activist for social justice in a cement factory with connections to a callous moneylender and his cronies. In line with traditional Tamil plot structures, the villain Seth and the hero are after the same woman, Gouri. The villains even plan to set the factory on fire hoping to blame the workers and to claim the insurance, but the plan misfires. The film was apparently inspired by Martin Ritt's Norma Rae (1979).

Grihajuddha

aka Crossroads, aka The Crossroad

1982 98' col Bengali

d/sc/m Buddhadev Dasgupta pc West Bengal Govt st Dibyendu Palit c Sambit Bose lp Anjan Dutt, Mamata Shankar, Gautam Ghose, Prabir Guha, Manoj Mitra, Monidipa Roy, Sunil Mukherjee

Costa-Gavras-type political thriller continuing Dasgupta's efforts to address the nexus between private lives and politics, evolving a kind of morality fable about sexual and comradeship relationships (e.g. Dooratwa, 1978). The corrupt owner of a steel factory has his labour officer killed and then hires thugs to murder Prabir, a left-wing trade union worker. Prabir's impoverished sister Nirupama (Shankar) loves her brother's friend and comrade Bijon (Dutt). The journalist Sandipan's (filmmaker Gautam Ghose) investigation is blocked by the paper's editor (Mitra) and eventually he too is killed. Bijon, now a successful salesman in distant Nasik, finds the gulf between himself and the politically committed Nirupama too wide to allow their marriage.

Katha

aka The Tale aka The Fable

1982 141' col Hindi

d/s Sai Paranjpye pc Devki Chitra lyr Indu Jain

c Virendra Saini m Rajkamal lp Naseeruddin Shah, Farouque Shaikh, Deepti Naval, Mallika Sarabhai, Leela Mishra, Nitin Sethi, Arun Joglekar, Winnie Paranjpye-Joglekar

Satire adapted from the director's own play Sakkhe Shejari, and inspired by the tale of the hare and the tortoise. Set in a lower-middle-class tenement in Bombay, it features the slow-but-sure upwardly mobile clerk Rajaram (Shah), who loves his neighbour Sandhya (Deepti Naval). The energetic Basu (Shaikh) arrives and dazzles everyone with his go-getting charm. He rapidly acquires three girlfriends: Sandhya, Anuradha (Sarabhai), Rajaram's boss's 2nd wife, and Jojo, the boss's daughter. When things get too hot, Basu departs for new pastures and life settles down again in the tenement. The fairly successful musical included signs on the screen officially censoring some of the lewd jokes presumably being told.

Marmaram

aka Rumbling

1982 113' col Malayalam

d Bharathan pc P.N. Films sc John Paul st/dial Vijayan Karot lyr Kavalam Narayana Paniker c K. Ramchandra Baba m M.S. Vishwanathan lp Nedumudi Venu, Gopi, Jalaja, Jose

A sensitive and progressive headmaster, Narayana Iyer (Venu), falls in love with the school's music teacher, the lower-caste Nirmala (Jalaja), whose husband is a political activist (Gopi) on the run and whose child is looked after by her parents in her home village. Narayana overcomes his own prejudices and endures his orthodox mother's disapproval. When Nirmala's husband is shot by the police, Narayana consoles Nirmala and their love for each other triumphs over all social and emotional obstacles. The young but prolific director described the film as, 'The melodious murmur of two people who love each other with all their hearts'.

Dasari's art-house melodrama shows the influence of Shankarabharanam (1979) on Telugu film. It invents a legend recalling Sternberg's Der blaue engel (1930): an upright and much-loved poet, Ravindrababu (Nageshwara Rao) falls in love with the courtesan Padma (Jayapradha). He composes several poems praising her, proving to his wife (Jayasudha) that he needs Padma to survive as an artist. Sacrificing herself to his talent, the wife urges her husband to move in with his lover. However, when the poet's daughter marries, Padma persuades him to go back to his wife. Overcome with remorse, Ravindrababu dies. Padma dies at the same time to confirm their profound unity. It remains Dasari's best-known film outside AP. Apparently a homage to the Telugu lyricist Devulapalli Krishna Sastri who died shortly before the film was made and whose songs (e.g. Akulo akunai, Sigalo avi virulo, Mundu telisena) were reset to music by Ramesh Naidu and became very popular.

Kharij

aka The Case is Closed

1982 95' col Bengali

d/sc Mrinal Sen pc Neelkanth Films st Ramapada Choudhury c K.K. Mahajan m B.V. Karanth

lp Anjan Dutt, Mamata Shankar, Indranil Moitra, Debrapatim Dasgupta, Sreela Majumdar, Nitalpal Dey, Bimal Chatterjee, Chakrurprakash Ghosh

Whereas Chaalchitra (1981) addresses the middle-class living conditions in Calcutta as a comedy, here Sen returns to the same theme in a darker mood. A young servant boy is hired by a middle class couple (Dutt, Shankar) and locked in the kitchen in an apartment block where he dies. The social networks prevailing in the neighbourhood are thrown into relief during the police investigation. Selfishness and guilt create a nightmarish atmosphere heightened by the arrival of the boy's father from a small village. In the end, the post-mortem reveals the boy died of carbon monoxide poisoning caused by a coal stove in the cramped room. In an ending reminiscent of Ek Din Pratidin (1979), as soon as the protagonists feel let off the hook, all the problems are promptly swept back under the carpet. In this second Calcutta trilogy, Sen deploys a critical yet compassionate look at his own social milieu and described the films as a form of autocritique. The flamboyant narrative style of the earlier Calcutta trilogy (starting with Interview, 1970) has been replaced by a more reflective but equally intense approach relying on framing and camera movement to emphasise the interactions between people's mentality and their living conditions. The relations between people and the spaces they inhabit (a series of Chinese boxes) becomes the driving force of a narrative proceeding with a sense of coiled energy constantly threatening to tear the fabric of daily life.

Masoom

aka Innocent

1982 143' col Hindi

d Shekhar Kapur pc Krsna Movies Ents s/lyr Gulzar c Pravin Bhatt m R.D. Burman lp Shabana Azmi, Naseeruddin Shah, Saeed Jaffrey, Tanuja, Supriya Pathak, Jugal Hansraj, Urmila Matondkar, Aradhana, P. Jairaj, Rajan, Satish Kaushik, Pran Talwar, Anila Singh

Marital melodrama featuring Shah as D.K. Malhotra, living happily with his wife Indu (Azmi) and their two daughters, Rinky and Minnie, when a boarding school asks him to come and fetch his son. Replying that he has no son, he later realises that the boy Rahul (Hansraj) is the fruit of a brief affair he had with the terminally ill Bhavna (Pathak). Unbeknown to D.K., Bhavna had raised the child. Now she is dead and D.K. and his wife are forced to adopt the boy, shattering the couple's peaceful life. Indu finally accepts the boy and D.K. at last has a male child in his family. Kapur's glossy directing debut benefits by the children's uninhibited performances which endeared the film to a predominantly urban middle-class audience. Although the film addresses the question of illegitimacy in a humane manner, it also sidesteps the knottier aspects of the problem by making the illegitimate child a boy and by requiring the wife to accept the fruit of her husband's infidelity rather than the other way around.

Megha Sandesam

aka The Cloud Messenger

1982 151' col/scope Telugu

d/p/s Dasari Narayana Rao pc Taraka Prabhu Films lyr Jayadeva, Devulapalli Krishna Sastry, Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Palagummi Padmaraju c P.S. Selvaraj m Ramesh Naidu lp A. Nageshwara Rao, Jayapradha, Jayasudha, K. Jaggaiah, Subhashini, Balamurali Krishna

Moondram Pirai

1982 143' col Tamil

d/s/c Balu Mahendra pc Satyajyothi Films p G. Thyagarajan lyr Vairamuthu, Kannadasan, Gangai Amaran m Ilaiyaraaja lp Kamalhasan, Sridevi, Silk Smitha, Y.G. Mahendran, Poornam Vishwanathan, Nataraj

Mahendra's best-known film is a morality tale about a schoolteacher (Kamalhasan) who rescues a mentally deranged woman (Sridevi) from a brothel and looks after her in his hillside home. While the crazed woman, regressing into a childlike state, becomes devoted to him, he struggles to keep his sexual desire in check. The libidinal tensions culminate in an orgiastic dream sequence attributed to the headmaster's (Vishwanathan) sexually frustrated wife (Silk Smitha) who desires the hero: she erupts into a sinuous, hip-swinging dance around a tree (and the teacher) on a bare hill. Mahendra remade the film with its original cast in Hindi as Sadma (1983).

Ormakkayi

aka In Your Memory

1982 113' col Malayalam

d/co-s Bharathan p David Kachapally, Innocent pc Pankaj Movie Makers co-s John Paul lyr Madhu Alleppey c Vasant Kumar m Johnson lp Adoor Bhasi, Madhavi, Gopi, Nedumudi Venu, Krishnachandran, Ramu, Innocent, Lalitha

The story, told in flashback during a scooter ride through the city on a bleak and rainy day, of Susanna's (Madhavi) tragic life. Recently released from prison, she looks for her little daughter in the city's orphanage. Her story involves the death of her pleasure-loving Anglo-Indian father, her marriage to the kindly deaf-and-dumb painter Nandagopal and the unwelcome advances of the pop singer Peter Lal. In a scuffle, both Peter and Nandagopal are killed, causing Susanna to be put in jail and her daughter in an orphanage.

Gopi (standing, left) and Madhavi (centre) in Ormakayi

Phaniyamma

1982 118' col Kannada
d/p/sc Prema Karanth pc Babukodi Movies st M.K. Indira lyr Chandrasekhar Kambhar
c Madhu Ambat m B.V. Karanth lp L.V. Sharada Rao, Baby Pratima, Pratibha Kasaravalli, Archana Rao, Dasharathi Dixit, H.N. Chandru, Vishwanath Rao, Kesargodu Chinna, Shri Pramila, Anant Nag

Stage personality Prema Karanth's directorial debut, adapting a major novel by Kannada author M.K. Indira (1976). The novel's protagonist, a mid-19th C. widow, resurrects a stereotype from reformist fiction, drawing 'its emotional capital from powerful and deeply embedded cultural formations and is emblematic of the way Swadeshi formulations of gender, nation and indeed feminism have reappeared and are renoted in the literature of the late 70s and 80s' (Susie Tharu/K. Lalitha, 1993). Based on the actual life story of Phaniyamma who from 1870 to her death in 1952 lived in the village of Hebbalige in Malnad, Karnataka. The woman's story was told to M.K. Indira's mother when Phaniyamma came to help her give birth to a child. Born into an upper-caste and respected family, Phani (Sharada Rao) is married aged 9 to a young relative who dies shortly afterwards. Having suffered the cruel conventions imposed upon widows throughout her childhood, Phani eventually grows into a strong, quiet and wise woman to whom many people come for help and advice. Flouting caste rules, she helps an Untouchable woman give birth to a child and stands by a young woman who, when widowed at the age of 16, rebels against the harsh norms imposed by an orthodox society. Mostly told in flashback, the film conveys the spirit of the original work through Sharada Rao's dignified performance, suggesting not a radical critique of orthodox society but a purification of tradition adapted to modern conditions (evoked in the film through tight close-ups e.g. in the opening childbirth sequence, and fast-paced editing).

Sahasa Simha

1982 174' col Kannada
d/sc Joe Simon pc Lakshmi Cine Prod
p Pandurangam, M. Ramalingam st Manu dial Ku. Nagabhushan lyr Chi. Udayashankar,

R.N. Jayagopal c H.G. Raju m Satyam lp Vishnuvardhan, Rajalakshmi, Vajramuni, Dharendra Gopal, Thoogudeepa Srinivas, Shakti Prasad, Prabhakar, Sudhir

One of the several dystopian crime thrillers from the early 80s, starring Vishnuvardhan. The convoluted plot begins with family-centered villainy, but then shifts to Bombay to expand into a story of child kidnappers. Police officer Pratap (Vishnuvardhan) busts the gang and reveals his own identity as one of the kidnapped children who had had acid thrown in his face. The scene in which the star Pratap takes off his mask to reveal a hideously disfigured face carries a traumatic charge that belies the promise of triumphant heroism contained in the title's reference to a lion. Like the several other films in this genre, the plotting is often inept, but it adheres to its key code of leaving the hero a castrated, destitute figure in the end (cf. Ajit, 1982).

Seeta Raati

aka Winter Night
 1982 108' b&w Oriya
d/co-s Manmohan Mahapatra pc Varatee Pics co-s Bibhuti Patnaik c Ranajit Roy m Shantanu Mahapatra
lp Arun Nanda, Mahashweta Roy, Hemanta Das, Sadhu Meher, Subrat Mahapatra, Samuel Sahu, Pinku

Melancholy film-novelette set in rural Orissa. The rich Pranab (Nanda) loves the poor Aruna (Roy) but class differences keep them apart. Their story is woven into the cultural divide between the city and the village and into rural politics. Eventually the woman realises that the class gap cannot be overcome and she resigns herself to her fate. Mahapatra's feature debut inaugurated the New Indian Cinema type of ruralist realism in Oriya.

Shakti

1982 177' col/scope Hindi
d Ramesh Sippy pc M-R Prod. p Mushir-Riaz
s Salim-Javed lyr Anand Bakshi c S.M. Anwar
m R.D. Burman
lp Amitabh Bachchan, Dilip Kumar, Smita Patil, Raakhee, Amrish Puri, Kulbhushan Kharbanda

Ramesh Sippy's extraordinary follow-up to his own Sholay and Chopra's Bachchan classic Deewar (both 1975), both scripted by Salim-Javed. Bachchan plays Vijay, the criminal son of the obsessively zealous police officer Ashwini Kumar (D. Kumar). Kidnapped by the gangster J.K. Verma (Puri) as a child, he discovers that his father puts duty before paternal affection and the two become estranged. Vijay is arrested twice for crimes he did not commit and on both occasions his father insists on scrupulously following legal procedure, refusing to help his son. Eventually, echoing Raj Kapoor's Awara (1951), Vijay finds a new father figure in K.T. Narang (Kharbanda), a hotelier and smuggler who once saved him as a child. Trapped in this dual patriarchy is Vijay's mother Sumitra (Raakhee) who is eventually killed by Verma. The stylishly shot night-time climax on an airport runway has the father shoot his son dead. Smita Patil plays Vijay's lover Roma. Often regarded as superior to Sholay and possibly Ramesh Sippy's best film, it failed at the box-office.

Shel ter

1982 42' b&w English
d/s/c Uma Segal FTII

The only film, made while still a student, by the promising cinematographer and director Uma Segal, who died in 1991. The film deals with slum demolition in Bombay, a major political issue in the early 80s (and also the subject of Patwardhan's Hamara Shaher, 1985). It intercuts interviews with various concerned individuals, and ends with documentary shots of an actual demolition.

Veena Poovu

aka Fallen Flower
1982 133' col Malayalam
d/sc Ambili p Surya Prakash pc Mithra Film Makers st Ravi Krishnan lyr Srikumaran Thampi, Mullaneshari c Bipin Mohan m Vaidyanathan, Anantha Padmanabhan lp Nedumudi Venu, Shankar Mohan, Uma, Babu Namboodiri, Seeta, Sukumari

Ambili was a leading art director when he turned director with this film about a young musician who falls in love with Sumangala, the daughter of an impoverished Brahmin in a village of the Namboodiri community. Obeying her father, the young woman marries a mentally retarded member of her own community. The drama is further heightened by first equating Sumangala with the mystificatory folk rituals the musician sets out to discover, and then by the book of poems in which he expresses her condition. The lovers remain separated, with dire consequences, especially for the woman.

Yavanika

aka The Curtain Falls
1982 147' col Malayalam
d/st/co-sc K.G. George p Henry pc Carolina Films co-sc S.L. Puram Sadanandan co-lyr O.N.V. Kurup c K. Ramchandra Babu co-lyr/ m M.B. Srinivasan lp Gopi, Jalaja, Mammootty, Venu Nagavalli, Nedumudi Venu, Thilakan, Jagathi Srikumar, Ashok

A story, told like a thriller, about touring players and the sense of claustrophobia that encompasses their violent lives. The plot is structured around the search for the unpopular tabla player (Gopi) of the Bhavana Touring Theatre in Kerala. He turns up as a murder victim. The subsequent police investigation reveals the complicated sexual rivalries and internal dissensions within the group, yielding several possible suspects. George said that in using the thriller form, situated in a theatrical context, he wanted to contextualise and thereby overcome the conventionally 'stagey' format of Malayalam film.

Abhilasha

1983 159' col Oriya
d/p/co-st/sc Sadhu Meher pc Shanti Films co-st Ramesh Mohanty dial Purna Mohanty lyr/m Saroj Patnaik c Suresh Patel lp Uttam Mohanty, Aparajita, Sujata, Jaya, Byomkesh Tripathi, Niranjan, Satapathy, Sadhu Meher

Medical students Chinmay (Mohanty) and Anuradha (Aparajita) get married but disagree on their professional priorities: Chinmay starts a clinic in the village while his wife stays in the city. The hero faces opposition from the local medicine man (Meher) and from Gajanan, the villainous son of the zamindar, who eventually has Chinmay killed. Anuradha continues the hero's good work. The debut feature of Meher, better known as the Hindi actor who played Shabana Azmi's handicapped husband in Ankur (1973) and in several Benegal films. Meher continued his mentor's style of dialogue, of a naturalist performance idiom and his use of rural locations.

Abhilasha

1983 145' col Telugu
d/co-sc A. Kodandarami Reddy pc Creative Commercials p K.S. Rama Rao st/co-dial Yandamuri Veerendranath co-sc G. Satyamurthy co-dial Satyanand lyr Acharya Athreya, Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c H. Loksingh m Ilaiyaraja lp Chiranjeevi, Radhika, Ravu Gopala Rao, Rallapalli, Gollapudi Maruti Rao, Rajyalakshmi

One of a series of Chiranjeevi films based on the novels of popular Telugu writer Veerendranath. The suspense drama tells of a complicated plot initiated by a young lawyer, Chiranjeevi (Chiranjeevi). His innocent father had been hanged and his sole ambition is to have capital punishment abolished in India. He teams up with the rich lawyer Sarvottama Rao (Rao) and also falls for Rao's niece Archana (Radhika). Rao has his illegitimate daughter Susheela (Rajalakshmi) murdered, and the plan is to let Chiranjeevi be accused of the killing and sentenced to death, so that in vindicating himself at the end of a sensational case, the duo would illustrate the evils of capital punishment. However Rao decides to let Chiranjeevi be hanged. He is eventually saved by Archana, who also helps him to solve the case so that the much-rehearsed plea for the abolition of the death sentence may be delivered in court.

Adaminte Variyela

aka Adam's Rib
1983 142' col Malayalam
d/st/co-sc K.G. George pc St Vincent Movies p Vincent Chittilappally co-sc Kallikkadu Ramachandran lyr O.N.V. Kurup c K. Ramchandra Babu m M.B. Srinivasan lp Suhasini, Srividya, Soorya, Rajam K. Nair, Gopi, Venu Nagavalli, Mammootty, Thilakan

An emphatic film graphically depicting the relentless oppression of women in urban milieus which are presumed to be more liberal than the Draconian conditions prevailing in rural India. The plot tells of three women. Vasanthi (Suhasini) has to mother three generations of her family in addition to her daytime job; she eventually escapes into madness and experiences the asylum as a kind of liberation. Alice (Srividya) is married to a ruthless businessman (Gopi) and seeks solace in affairs. When she is refused a divorce, she prefers suicide. Both the middle-class women push their rebellion to self-destruction. The third, however, overcomes her condition: Ammini (Soorya) is a brutally exploited maid in Alice's home. She ends up in a home for women where, in a powerfully utopian ending, she helps her fellow women break out of the suffocating institution and rush right past the camera crew waiting in front of the gates, to freedom.

Adi Shankaracharya

aka The Philosopher 1983 156' col Sanskrit
d/s G.V. Iyer pc NFDC dial Benanjaya Govindacharya lyr Balamurali Krishna c Madhu Ambat m B.V. Karanth lp Sarvadaman D. Bannerjee, M.V. Narayana Rao, Manjunath Bhatt, Leelamma Narayana Rao, L.V. Sharada Rao, Bharat Bhushan, T.S. Nagabharana, Srinivasa Prabhu, Gopal, V.R.K. Prasad, Gopalakrishna, Gayathri Balu, Balasubramanyam, Balu Bhargava

The first film made in Sanskrit. Set in 8th C. Kerala, it tells of Shankara aka Adi Shankaracharya, the best-known Advaita Vedanta (Monism) philosopher to whom over 300 Sanskrit texts are attributed and the subject of numerous biographies. He established a series of religious sites at Badrinath (in the Himalayas), Puri (in Orissa), Dwarka (on the west coast) and Sringeri in South India. The film begins with Shankara as a boy in a village inducted into brahminical rituals. When his father dies, the boy turns to philosophy to try to understand the great mysteries of life and death. He lives as a mendicant and studies Vedic texts. Later, he shies away from marriage and promises his mother that he will remain a devoted son while living as a wandering scholar. The teacher Govinda entrusts Shankara (Bannerjee) with the composition of new Vedic commentaries. Having glimpsed the inner truth of the texts, Shankara becomes an ascetic and travels to the peaks of the Himalayas. Everywhere he goes he is received as a man of infinite wisdom. He eventually founds his own monastery having transcended all earthly illusions, including the rituals of the Brahmin community, and, at the age of 32, he rises from his sickbed and wanders away towards the mountains so that his soul may become one with the Brahma. Continuing his effort after Hamsa Geethe (1975) towards a brahminical revivalism, Iyer claimed to have made the film in Sanskrit to do justice to the abstractions of Shankara's philosophical thought. The film does away with the miracle scenes typical of the genre and deploys several symbolic figures (e.g. death and wisdom are both personified). The extensive musical track consists of Vedic chants. Iyer went on to make two more Saint films featuring two of Shankara's main disciples, Madhavacharya (Kannada, 1986) and Shri Ramanujacharya (Tamil, 1989). The film did not get a commercial release in India but apparently did very well in foreign markets.

Akkare

aka The Other Shore

1983 118' col Malayalam

d/p/s K.N. Sasidharan pc Sooryarekha Film

c N. Diwakar Menon m M.B. Srinivasan

lp Gopi, Madhavi, Mammooty, Nedumudi Venu, Rani Padmini, Baby Vandana, Mohanlal, Master Prasad Babu

FTII graduate Sasidharan's debut satirising the phenomenon of Malayalis emigrating to the Gulf States and the rise of a culturally degenerate neo-rich class. Honest clerk Gopinath (Gopi) tries to learn typing and tailoring in an effort to emulate the success of men like Johnny (Venu) and Ismail (Mammooty). His ambitious wife (Madhavi) lusts for the consumer objects with which her neighbourhood is awash, but this gets the clerk into a series of difficulties. He has an encounter with a prostitute that leads to a scandal, is cheated by a labour agent and ends up as a porter carrying the luggage of Keralites returning from the Gulf. The film was important to future megastar Mammooty, establishing a generic context for many of his thrillers (cf. Eenadu, 1982, where he plays a Dubai-returned Muslim youth).

America America

1983 148' col/scope Malayalam

d I.V. Sasi pc Vijayataara Movies st Radhika Vijayan sc T. Damodaran lyr Bichu Thirumala c C.E. Babu m Shyam

lp Mammooty, Lakshmi, Seema, Ratheesh, Prathap, Balan K. Nair, K.P. Ummar

Complicated melodrama, adventure movie and whodunit set mainly in Florida. This definitive Malayalam hit established the combination of star Mammooty and director Sasi. He plays Ramesh, an undercover investigator checking the murder of Albert, the captain of a ship and husband of heroine Radha. He also investigates the loss of the ship Kaikeyi. The film's main highlight includes strippers in Miami, and shootouts on American streets, before the final confrontation with an international gang and the triumphant return of the good guys. The film's three songs included the Never on Sunday tune from Jules Dassin's Pote Tin Kyriaki (1960).

Ardh Satya

aka The Half-truth

1983 130' col Hindi

d/c Govind Nihalani p Manmohan Shetty, Pradeep Uppoor pc Neo Films Associates st S.D. Panwalkar's short story sc/dial Vijay

Tendulkar, Vasant Dev m Ajit Varman lp Om Puri, Smita Patil, Amrishi Puri, Naseeruddin Shah, Sadashiv Amrapurkar, Achyut Potdar, Shafi Inamdar

Nihalani followed his Aakrosh (1980) with this variation on Siegel's Dirty Harry (1971). The son of a brutally violent cop (A. Puri), Anant Welankar (O. Puri) is a sub-inspector in the Bombay police. Wanting to arrest the big gangster and powerful politician Rama Shetty (Amrapurkar), Welankar is constantly frustrated and vents his anger on less prominent targets, to the distress of his humane girlfriend Jyotsna (Patil). Although the example of the ex-cop Lobo (Shah), now an alcoholic wretch, is pointed out to him, Welankar cannot control his temper and he eventually kills a petty thief. Forced to ask Shetty for protection, he kills him instead and surrenders to the police. The fast-paced film, with almost continuous action interspersed with tightly framed close-ups of the lead character, was very successful and spawned numerous cop-on-rampage movies sharing none of this one's serious intent. Its best-known remake is K. Vijayan's Kaval (Tamil, 1985).

Banker Margayya

aka Margayya, the Banker

1983 145' col Kannada

d/co-p/sc T.S. Nagabharana co-p B.S. Somasundar pc Komal Prod.

st R.K. Narayan's novel The Financial Expert (1952) lyr Vijayanarasimha c S. Ramchandra m Vijayabhaskar

lp Lokesh, Jayanthi, Master Manjunath, Sundarraj, Sundarkrishna Urs, Vijayananjini, Surekha, Ponni, Musari Krishnamurthy

An ironic morality tale about an entrepreneur whose endeavours are constantly ruined by his son. Margayya (Lokesh) starts out as a moneylender sitting under a banyan tree opposite a co-operative bank, filling in forms, and offering advice to the villagers of Narayan's fictional village of Malgudi, usually on how to circumvent the bank's bureaucratic process of offering loans. His career as a banker is ruined when his son Balu (Sundarraj) throws away all the account books. Then Margayya publishes a sex manual with its author, a Dr Pal (Urs). The venture is very profitable and Margayya becomes wealthier than all the banks in the area. But Balu is the victim of the salacious book and starts visiting prostitutes. Dr Pal manoeuvres to keep all the profits for himself and Margayya has to start all over again under his banyan tree, with the threatening but beloved presence of his son by his side. Narayan, who had earlier disowned the Navketan production of his story Guide (1965), claimed this film to be the only 'authentic' screen version of his fiction.

Betaab

1983 162' col/scope Hindi

d Rahul Rawail pc Vijayta Pics. p Bikram

Singh Dehal s Javed Akhtar lyr Anand

Bakshi c Manmohan Singh m R.D. Burman

lp Sunny Deol, Amrita Singh, Shammi

Kapoor, Nirupa Roy, Prem Chopra

Sunny (Deol) and Roma, alias Dingy (Singh), are childhood sweethearts. When Sunny is forced to become a farmer, Roma's father Sardar Dinesh Singh (Kapoor) disapproves of their relationship. The arrogant Roma is 'tamed' by Sunny, who forces her to rebuild his house which she, provoked by his attentions, had destroyed. The father wants Roma to marry the son of his evil business partner Balwant (Chopra), but changes his mind when he overhears the villains plotting to appropriate his property. Designed to launch the career of Deol, Dharmendra's elder son, the romance set in mountain scenery approvingly quotes 'taming of the shrew' motifs of masculinity. The film had one hit song, Jab hum jawan honge.

Chakravyuha

1983 155' col Kannada

d V. Somasekhar pc Eswari Pics.

p N. Veeraswamy s M.D. Sundar dial/lyr Chi.

Udayashankar c Chittibabu m Shankar-Ganesh lp Ambarish, Vajramuni, Ambika, Prabhakar,

Jayanthi (centre) and Lokesh (right) in Banker Margayya

Thoogudeepa Srinivas, Shakti Prasad, H.N. Chandrasekhar, Shanthamma, Prashanti Nayak, Master Arjun, Ravichandran

Typical early 80s Kannada crime story with 'rebel star' Ambarish. The unemployed Amarnath (Ambarish), helped by a politician, trains to be a cop and serves the state honestly until he discovers a criminal network that includes his politician-benefactor as well as his own father-in-law. Blackmailed into collaborating with them, Amarnath soon becomes integrated into the network. The narrative, however, ascribes to him a secret purpose in order to justify the collaboration. The film ends with Amarnath, now a politician heading a new government, decimating his entire cabinet of criminals with a machine gun.

Chengathem

1983 160' col Malayalam
d Bhadrans pc Divya lyr Puthyakam Murali c Vipin Das m Ravi lp Mammooty, Murali, Satyakala, Captain Raju

Early Mammooty crime movie. Telephone operator Anne marries rich criminal Tony (Mammooty), discovering his occupation only after their marriage. His illegal dealings are however presented as a consequence of his childhood experiences, when his mother was killed by villains and he was imprisoned. When Anne is raped by another man, Daniel, Tony kills Daniel and becomes a fugitive from justice, this time chased by sadistic cops not very different from the villains of his childhood. He is eventually caught. Although similar in many ways to Bachchan-type themes e.g. with Prakash Mehra, what is often noted with Mammooty is the extent to which corruption, crime and violence are treated as a fact of life and with remarkably little moral posturing. The violence of law enforcement agencies is, likewise, treated on a par with that of organised crime, distinguished only by the assumed goodness of the hero and those in his protection.

Coolie

1983 177' col/scope Hindi co-d Manmohan Desai co-d/co-st Prayag Raj pc M.K.D. Films Combine co-st Pushpa Raj Sharma sc K.K. Shukla dial Kadar Khan
lyr Anand Bakshi c Peter Pereira
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Amitabh Bachchan, Waheeda Rehman, Rishi Kapoor, Rati Agnihotri, Shoma Anand, Suresh Oberoi, Kadar Khan, Om Shivpuri, Satyen Kappoo, Nilu Phule, Goga, Puneet Issar

Remembered mainly as the film in which Bachchan suffered a near-fatal accident. The frame recording the incident is frozen as the legend of his injury flashes on to the screen. It is also Manmohan Desai's most aggressively communal film. Iqbal (Bachchan) is orphaned when the villain Zafar (Khan) kills his father and rapes his mother Salma (Rehman). Zafar also bursts a dam killing hundreds of people. Iqbal grows up to become a leader of the coolies (porters) at a railway station. Other characters are the drunken journalist Sunny (Kapoor), a foster-child of the villain who befriends Iqbal, and the rich heroine Julie (Agnihotri) whose father was also killed by the villain. The end of the film, shot at the Haji Ali mosque in Bombay, makes an appeal to the lumpenised Muslim underclass when an injured Iqbal invokes the power of Allah to deal the death blow to the villain. Iqbal also enjoys an electoral triumph over Zafar, foreshadowing Bachchan's election as an MP in 1984. Not to be confused with the Malayalam film Coolie (also 1983) directed by Ashok Kumar.

Dhol a Maru

1983 152' col Gujarati
d/sc Mehul Kumar pc G.N. Films p Govindbhai N. Patel st/dial Ramjibhai Vania lyr Kanti-Ashok c Randev Bhaduri m Mahesh-Naresh lp Naresh Kanodia, Snehlata, Jayashree T., Kalpana Dewan, Padmarani, Arvind Joshi, Firoz Irani, Nalini Chonkar

Major Gujarati box office hit retelling the love legend of Dhola, son of the Navrang Garh chieftain, and Maru, daughter of the king of Pingal Garh. Promised to each other in their childhood, problems arise when the queen of Pingal Garh kills Dhola's father in order to annex his property. She later adopts her own brother as her heir while her evil subordinate Gumansinh falls for Maru.

Ente Mamattukuttiyama

aka For my Mamattukuttiyama
 1983 116' col Malayalam
d/s Fazil p Appachan pc Navodaya lyr Bichu Thirumala c Ashok Kumar m Jerry Amaldev lp Baby Shalini, Gopi, Sangeetha Naik, Mohanlal, Purnima Jayaram, Thilakan, Baby Manju

A regressive melodrama deploying all the myths about motherhood to make a plea on behalf of children born out of wedlock. Sethu (Naik) and Vinod (Gopi), distraught by the death of their own child, focus all their emotions on their adopted child, little Mamattukuttiyama, Tintu for short (Shalini). However, Tintu's real father Alex (Mohanlal) reclaims the child, explaining that his wife Mercy (Jayaram) had been forced to give away the illegitimate child and had gone insane as a result. Only reunification with her daughter will cure her. Overcoming her feelings, Sethu in the end personally hands over the child to its biological mother. Fazil remade the film in Tamil as En Bommu Kutti Amnavukku (1988). It was also an instance of the negative roles Mohanlal played in his early career.

Godam

aka Warehouse
 1983 140' col Hindi
d/s/co-dial/m Dilip Chitre pc NFDC st Bhau Padye co-dial Vasant Dev lyr Sharatchandra Arolkar, Sushama Shreshtha c Govind

Nihalani

lp Satyadev Dubey, K.K. Raina, Trupti, Vijaya Chitre

A tragic story about a woman's relentless suffering in an isolated village. Yesu (Trupti) is a child bride married to the retarded son of a lecherous old man who threatens to rape her. She kills the old man and hides in a disused warehouse where she is protected but sexually exploited by the caretaker Edekar (Raina) and his helper Dharma (Dubey). One morning, Edekar opens the warehouse to find Yesu has hanged herself. Almost the entire film is set in the abandoned warehouse, atop an isolated and rocky hill, intended to provide a hallucinatory, mystical experience. The hyperactive camera, with montage cut-outs of Queen Victoria and the monkey god Hanuman, and soundtrack, where Sharatchandra Arolkar's music jostles with John Coltrane, presents an excess that contrasts with the spartan setting. Noted Marathi poet Chitre's only feature.

Hero

1983 173' col Hindi
d Subhash Ghai pc Mukta Arts st Mukta Ghai sc Ram Kelkar lyr Anand Bakshi
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Jackie Shroff, Meenakshi Sheshadri, Sanjeev Kumar, Shammi Kapoor, Amrish Puri, Bindu, Shakti Kapoor

The orphan Jackie (Shroff) is raised by notorious criminal Pasha (Puri). When Pasha is arrested, he asks Jackie to silence the main prosecution witness, a retired police officer, Mathur (Shammi Kapoor). Jackie kidnaps Radha (Sheshadri), Mathur's daughter, who then falls in love with him and asks him to give himself up. The obstacles are Mathur, who hates Jackie, and Jackie's rival (Shakti Kapoor). Jackie has to save both Mathur and Radha from Pasha in the violent climax before he can be forgiven. Ghai's independent hit marketed its unknown lead, Jackie Shroff, via a major advertising campaign using a series of teaser ads. The film includes several of Ghai's trademark song picturisations in mountainous locales (e.g. Ding-a-dong baby sing-a-song).

Himmatwala

1983 179'(157') col Hindi
d/sc K. Raghavendra Rao pc Padmalaya p Krishna dial Kadar Khan lyr Indivar
c K.S. Prakash m Bappi Lahiri lp Jeetendra, Sridevi, Amjad Khan, Waheeda Rehman, Satyen Kappoo, Shakti Kapoor, Shoma Anand, Asrani

Ravi (Jeetendra), a government engineer, arrives in his ancestral village to right all the wrongs perpetrated on his family by the villainous Zamindar Sher Singh Bandookwala (Khan) and also - on behalf of the State - to introduce welfare measures represented by the dam he is to build on Sher Singh's property. Sher Singh, who runs his own 'parliament' and system of dispensing justice, had earlier forced Ravi's upright father (Kappoo), a school teacher, into bonded labour and raped Ravi's mother (Rehman). The villains now force Ravi to donate his sister Padma in marriage to the evil Shakti (Kapoor), but in the end he reforms the villains. The hero bullies Sher Singh's initially arrogant daughter Rekha (Sridevi) into supporting him and opposing her father. This modernisation melodrama, of the same generation as e.g. Bangarada Manushya (1972) and some of Bhartirajaa's films, was also a vehicle for the successful entry of South Indian production capital into Hindi cinema and the best-known of the several Jeetendra-Sridevi films usually referred to as 'South' pictures in the Bombay media. This shift sometimes created unusual rhetorical structures as it sought to transpose local idioms onto a 'national' terrain: e.g. the opening sequence in which Ravi's mother tells him of the family's unhappy history is narrated in quickfire, quasi-documentary imagery with freeze frames and cutaways providing 'information' accompanying the mother's strident voice-over.

Holi

aka Festival of Fire
1983 116' (120') col Hindi
d/co-sc/co-lyr Ketan Mehta pc Film Unit, Neo Film Associates st/co-sc/co-dial Mahesh Elkunchwar based on his play co-dial/co-lyr Hriday Lani c Jehangir Choudhury m Rajat Dholakia lp Sanjeev Gandhi, Manoj Pandya, Rahul Ranade, Ashutosh Gowariker, Amole Gupte, Om Puri, Naseeruddin Shah, Deepti Naval, Shriram Lagoo, Aamir Khan, Mohan Gokhale

Mehta's first Hindi film addresses the increasing lumpenisation of university students featuring scenes of victimisation reminiscent of Volker Schlöndorff's Der junge Toerless (1966). Forced to attend a lecture on India's cultural heritage while on holiday, the boys rebel. The violence gradually escalates into a major battle with the authorities as the colourful and anarchistic pre-Vedic spring festival, Holi, turns into a menacing festival of fire with burning school furniture. The college principal induces a boy to denounce the leaders of the rebellion. The informer is publicly humiliated and is forced to commit suicide. Mehta decided to shoot almost all the scenes in sequence shots, often using a crab-dolly or a steadycam, and using synch sound rather than playback or post-synched sound (in spite of the complicated songs and the musical accompaniment). The film's enthusiastic and hallucinatory participation in student violence (of which it is supposedly critical) allows it to move away from its original political thrust, conveying existential despair instead. The film enjoyed a cult audience in New Delhi for a short period.

Iniyenkilum

1983 201' col Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi pc Geo Movie Prod. st Rose dial T. Damodaran lyr Yusuf Ali Kacheri c Jayaman Vincent m Shyam lp Mammootty, Mohanlal, Lalu Alex, Ratheesh, Ravindran, T.G. Ravi, Seema, Rani Padmini, Sunitha Sharma, Balan K. Nair

Extraordinary and long-drawn out melodrama contrasting conditions in Kerala with those in Japan. A group of performers from Kerala are invited to Japan, but they are left stranded when their criminal host disappears. With the assistance of Nambiar (Nair), a benevolent Tokyo-based Malayali, they learn about the Japanese economy, initiating - on their return - a series of reformist movements that end up with the revolutionary overthrow of corrupt leadership. The film continued Sasi's tendency (America America, also 1983) to set his plots in exotic foreign locales, and also his 'hard-hitting' and often satirical collaborations with Marxist writer Damodaran (cf. Angadikkapurathu, 1985; Vartha 1986).

Jaane Bhi Do Yaaron

aka Who Pays the Piper
1983 143' (130') col Hindi
d/s Kundan Shah pc NFDC co-s Sudhir Mishra dial Ranjit Kapoor, Satish Kaushik c Binod Pradhan m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Naseeruddin Shah, Ravi Baswani, Bhakti Bharve, Om Puri, Satish Shah, Pankaj Kapoor, Satish Kaushik, Neena Gupta, Deepak Qazir, Rajesh Puri, Zafar Sanjari, Vidhu Vinod Chopra

Extraordinary slapstick comedy, a genre almost unknown in Indian cinema since Kishore Kumar's early films. Two bumbling photographers, Vinod Chopra (N. Shah) and Sudhir Mishra (Baswani), are employed by Shobha (Bharve), the editor of a scandal sheet, Khabardar. They have to spy on millionaire property developer Tarneja (Kapoor) and police commissioner D'Mello (S. Shah). The photographers uncover dirty business between Tarneja and his equally unsavoury rival Ahuja (O. Puri). The commissioner is killed by one of the builders who, as a result, wins the contract to build a flyover that collapses shortly afterwards. The photographers get hold of D'Mello's corpse in order to prove that he was murdered, but they lose it, which gives rise to an extended sequence where everyone chases everyone else. In the end, the photographers are framed for the collapse of the fly-over. The film, set in the same early 80s of e.g. Anand Patwardhan's documentary Hamara Shaher (1985), refers directly to specific corrupt Bombay politicians of the period. The collapse of the flyover, shown in a video clip in the film, is in fact footage of the actual Byculla Bridge in Bombay which collapsed shortly before the film was made. Commissioner D'Mello refers to the then police chief Julio Ribeiro (who appears in the Advertising Club meeting in Patwardhan's documentary), Tarneja and Ahuja are a composite picture of Bombay's biggest builder Raheja, while the Shobha who runs a scandal sheet is an allusion to Shobha Kilachand, aka Shobha De, former editor of a film gossip and city magazine. In addition, the film repeatedly refers to e.g. Antonioni's Blow Up (1966) and to New Indian Cinema, including some of Shah's former FTII colleagues: film-makers Vinod Chopra (on whose Sazaaye Maut, 1981, Shah had been a production manager) and Sudhir Mishra, who lend their names to the photographer duo. The Albert Pinto code-word of the two amateur sleuths refers to Saeed Mirza's film (1980). Large posters of Kumar Shahani's Maya Darpan (1972) and Mani Kaul's Uski Roti (1969) can be seen pasted on the walls during the chase. The film was a mild commercial success and influenced mainly a brand of TV comedy (cf. Shah's TV series Yeh Jo Hai Zindagi, 1985, and one he made together with Mirza, Nukkad, 1987).

Kattathe Kil ikoodu

aka Bird's Nest in the Wind
1983 136' col Malayalam
d Bharathan pc Grihalakshmi Prod.
st Nedumudi Venu sc T. Damodaran lyr Kavalam Narayana Panicker c Vasant Kumar m Johnson lp Gopi, Mohanlal, Srividya, Revathi, Lalitha, Shantakumari, Master Prashab, Baby Poonambili, Baby Anju, Baby Preetha, Krishna Swamy

Melodrama about the fears of young women's sexuality (a recurrent Bharathan theme, cf. Rathi Nirvedham, 1978; Ormakkayi, 1982). A callous and immature teenage girl, Asha (Revathi), who sets out to turn a middle-aged professor's (Gopi) head and nearly destroys his entire family. In the end, the girl marries the boy she wanted from the beginning, Unni (Mohanlal), the college's athletics coach.

Kavirathna Kalidas

1983 189' col Kannada
d Renuka Sharma pc Anandalakshmi Ents.
p Saraswathi Srinivasa, V.S. Murali, V.S. Govindu dial/lyr Chi. Udayashankar c V.K. Kannan m M. Rangarao lp Rajkumar, Bhatti Mahadevappa, Balkrishna, Ramesh, Srinivasa Murthy, Sivaprakash, Musari Krishnamurthy, Vadiraj, Thoogudeepa Srinivas, Master Arjun, Jayapradha, K. Vijaya, Sudhasindoor, Papamma

Folk mythological-biopic of Sanskrit poet and dramatist Kalidasa. The illiterate but wise shepherd (Kannada superstar Rajkumar) is made to dress up as a prince by a wicked minister (Balkrishna) who wants to get even with the King for having rejected his son as a match for the Princess. The Princess (Jayapradha) marries the impostor, but when she discovers the truth, she prays to Kali to grant her husband the gift of learning. The wish is granted but the shepherd, now Kalidasa, loses his memory and ends up as an admired and envied poet in the court of Bhojaratna. The Princess follows him there and the two are reunited after much intrigue.

Khaidi

1983 157' col Telugu
d/sc A. Kodandarami Reddy pc Samyuktha Movies p K. Dhananjaya Reddy, K. Narasa Reddy, S. Sudhakara Reddy st/dial Parachuri Bros. lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Rajashri c V.S.R. Swamy m Chakravarthy lp Chiranjeevi, Madhavi, Sumalatha, Ravu Gopala Rao, Nutan Prasad, P.L. Narayana, Ranganath, Sangeeta, Chalapathi Rao

Action thriller establishing Chiranjeevi as a megastar. Having been falsely accused of crime, he becomes a lone avenger. The poor Suryam (Chiranjeevi) falls for university colleague Madhu (Madhavi). In retaliation, Madhu's father and village landlord Veerabhadraiah (Gopala Rao) auctions the house of Suryam's father, the peasant Venkateshwarulu (Narayana). The landlord's associate in villainy, the village munsiff (Prasad), kills Suryam's sister and accuses Suryam of the deed. He is later tortured by the landlord. They also kill Dr Sujata (Sumalatha) when she offers shelter to the hero. The film begins with Suryam's escape from the police after a spectacular fight and much of the story deals with his efforts to dodge arrest while getting at the bad guys. In the end he kills Veerabhadraiah and the munsiff before surrendering to the police.

The second Sen film to receive a Hindi release, its passive storyline and heavy emphasis on meaningful looks was a major departure from his political cinema of the 70s. Sen commented that 'The film is partly memory and partly fantasy punctuated by bits of instant happenings', and created an expressionist set of broken walls and ruins to replicate the woman's state of mind. Claiming the influence of Robert Bresson, he also said that with this film he finally put the IPTA influence behind him, something he had aimed to do since the communist government returned to power in Bengal in 1977 which made the IPTA aesthetic into official policy.

⊗ Khandhar

aka The Ruins
1983 108' col Hindi
d/sc Mrinal Sen p Jagadish and Pushpa Chokhani pc Shri Bharatlaxmi Pics st Premendra Mitra's Telenapota Abishkar (The Discovery Of The Village Telenapota)
c K.K. Mahajan m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Shabana Azmi, Naseeruddin Shah, Geeta Sen, Pankaj Kapoor, Annu Kapoor, Sreela Majumdar, Rajen Tarafdar

Three friends from the city visit some ruins where an aged mother (Sen) and her daughter Jamini (Azmi) live. The mother awaits the arrival of a distant cousin to marry Jamini but the man is already married and living in Calcutta. The photographer Subhash (Shah) takes pity on the family and pretends to be the awaited suitor. The mother dies contented but when the threesome leave again, Jamini stays behind facing a life of loneliness in the ruins.

⊗ Koodevide?

aka Where is the Nest? aka In Whose Nest?
1983 150' (103') col Malayalam
d/sc/dia P. Padmarajan pc Prakash Movietone st Vasanthi lyr O.N.V. Kurup c Shaji N. Karun
m Johnson
lp Mammootty, Suhasini, Rehman, Jose Prakash, Prem Prakash, Sukumari, Rajani Menon

A story of ambition and resigned frustration set in Kerala's old Syrian Christian community, a milieu unfamiliar to the noted Malayalam novelist, scenarist and director Padmarajan. Alice (Suhasini), who lives with her brother (P. Prakash), is a teacher at the reputable Ootacamund convent school. An MP, Xavier Puthooran (J. Prakash), sacrifices his wife and son for his career. The MP's neglected and unruly son Ravi (Rahman in his debut role), is foisted upon the school and Alice manages to turn him into a prize student. Her boyfriend Capt. Thomas (Mammootty) feels intensely jealous of the attention Alice bestows upon Ravi. He kills the boy apparently by accident, but later surrenders to the police, leaving Alice frustrated in all aspects of her life.

⊗ Lekhayude Maranam Oru FI flashback aka Lekha's Death a Flashback

1983 172' col/scope Malayalam
d/s K.G. George p David Kachapally, Innocent pc Sathru Intl. dia S.L. Puram Sadanandan lyr O.N.V. Kurup c Shaji N. Karun
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Nalini, Gopi, Mammooty, Shubha, Jayashri, Jayachitra, Sharada, Nedumudi Venu, John Varghese, Adoor Bhawani, Thilakan, Venu Nagavalli, Innocent, Meena

Controversial film because of its alleged exploitation of the well-publicised suicide of the Tamil actress Shobha. When a poor Kerala family moves to Madras, their young daughter Shanthamma becomes the teenage film star Lekha (Nalini). However, the young girl hangs herself. The film recounts the events leading up to her decision, including a stint as a prostitute and the merciless exploitation she suffers from her alcoholic father (Varghese) and her pushy mother (Subha) as well as from her professional colleagues, esp. from her lover, the unhappily married Suresh (Gopi), a director of art-house films. The film depended heavily on the real-life events and characters to whom it alluded, while continuing the director's fascination with the thriller format (Yavanika, 1982).

⊗ Mal amukal il e Daivam aka The God Atop the Hill

1983 111' col Malayalam
d P.N. Menon pc Suryamudra Films s/lyr Kalpatta Balakrishnan c Deviprasad
m Johnson
lp Sudharani, Master Suresh, Kunjandi, Balasingh, Lakshmi Geetha, Subramanyam, Unni Mary, Sathyendra, Ranjith, Gabriel, Rani Abraham

Symbolic tale set in a tribal village at the foot of the Banasuran Mountains in Kerala. Religious superstition and ignorance maintain stasis in the village. A relentlessly intelligent boy escapes its oppressive confines and later returns, determined to bring enlightenment to the village. The event is represented in terms of a torchlight procession up the forbidding, god-guarded mountains shielding the villagers from the 'outside'.

⊗ Mandi

aka The Marketplace
1983 167' col Hindi
d/co-sc Shyam Benegal p Freni M. Variava, Lalit M. Bijlani pc Blaze Film Ents co-sc Satyadev Dubey, Shama Zaidi lyr Mir Taqi Mir, Bahadur Shah Zafar, Insha, Makhdoom Mohiuddin, Talwar Danda, Ila Arun c Ashok Mehta m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Shabana Azmi, Smita Patil, Naseeruddin Shah, Amrish Puri, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Saeed Jaffrey, Om Puri, Sreela Majumdar, Harish Patel, Neena Gupta, Soni Razdan, Ila Arun, Geeta Siddharth, Aditya Bhattacharya

Shabana Azmi and Naseeruddin Shah in Khandhar

Apparently inspired by The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas (Colin Higgins, 1982), Benegal's rare venture into comedy touches on religion and politics via the motif of prostitution. Brothel madam Rukmini (Azmi) tries to make her 'girls' conform to the time-honoured traditions of a kotha (a brothel where music and dance flourish). The women's mischievousness forces the establishment to find another home. Problems arise when Sushil, the son of Major Agarwal (Jaffrey), a local notable, falls in love with the prostitute Zeenat (Patil), Agarwal's illegitimate daughter. Instead, Sushil is supposed to marry the neurotic daughter of Mr Gupta (Kharbanda), a property developer who makes the brothel shift locations yet again in order to separate Sushil from Zeenat.

Maya Miriga

aka Maya Mriga aka The Mirage
1983 115' col Oriya
d/sc/co-st Nirad N. Mahapatra pc Lotus Prod. co-st/dial Bibhuti Patnaik c Rajagopal Mishra
m Bhaskar Chandavarkar
lp Bansidhar Satpathy, Manimala, Binod Mishra, Manaswini, Sampad Mahapatra, Sujata, Vivekananda Satpathy, Kishori Debi, Managaraj, Shriranjan Mohanty, Kunumuni, Tikina

FTII-graduate Mahapatra's low-key first feature, shot on 16mm with non-professional actors in Puri, a small coastal town in Orissa. The plot concerns the break-up of a middle-class extended family. The former freedom fighter Raj Kishore (Satpathy), now an elderly school headmaster, lives with his four sons and only daughter. The eldest son Tuku (Mishra) and his wife Prabha (Manaswini) are expected to help pay for the education of the younger siblings while the second son Tutu (Mahapatra) marries a well-off woman (Sujata) who insists on a separate household. In the end, Tuku refuses to keep shouldering the burdens of the extended family and the unit disintegrates. The director, a noted teacher and writer of film theory, acknowledges the influence of Yasujiro Ozu's editing style.

Mhari Pyari Chanana

1983 130' col Rajasthani
d/sc Jatin Kumar pc Jayashree Ents st Bharat Vyas's play Ramu Chanana dial/co-lyr Suraj Dadhich c H. Lakshminarayan m Narayan Dutt lp Satyajit Puri, Pooja Saxena, Ramesh Tiwari, Bina Shyam, Ajay Sinha, Suraj Dadhich, Ritu Khanna, S.D. Chavan, Hakim Keranvi, Master Anil

Successful Rajasthani melodrama adapted from Vyas's stage hit. Poor Ramu (Puri) and rich Chanana (Saxena) are childhood lovers but class differences keep them apart as her desires conflict with the need to maintain her father's social standing. The film evokes the Laila-Majnu and Shirin-Farhad legends with overtones of Devdas thrown in for good measure.

Nayanmoni

1983 140' col Assamese
d Suprabha Debi pc Rajendra Chalachitra sc Guna Sindhu Hazarika c Indukalpa Hazarika
m Jitu-Tapan
lp Nipon Goswami, Bidya Nair, Vandana Sharma, Girija Das, Ishan Barua, Gauri Barua

Debut feature by Assam's first woman director. Moina marries the rich Arup although his parents disapprove. She insists on a separate establishment away from her husband's joint family, which creates difficulties when her husband dies. Her lone struggle to bring up her children eventually wins her the affection of her estranged in-laws.

Oru Indhiya Kanavu

aka An Indian Dream
1983 141' col Tamil
d/s Komal Swaminathan p T.P. Varadarajan, Vijayalakshmi Desikan pc Shri Muthiallammal Creations lyr Vali. Vairamuthu c M. Kesavan
m M.S. Vishwanathan
lp Suhasini, Rajeev, R.K. Raman, Samikkannu, Lalitha

The celebrated playwright and scenarist of Thanneer Thanneer (filmed in 1981) turned director with Yuddha Kandam (1983) and this emphatic reformist melodrama is his 3rd effort. It tells of a woman intellectual, Anamika (Suhasini), who, when exposed to tribal authenticity, becomes an activist on behalf of the tribals in the Javadhi Hills. Overcoming the extremes of political persecution with the help of an honest and therefore victimised policeman, Muthuvel (Rajeev), she exposes the rapist of a tribal woman (Lalitha): the son of a powerful politician who stops at nothing to cover up his son's crime.

Rachana

aka Writing aka Rachna
1983 149' b&w Malayalam
d Mohan p Sivan Kunnamppilly pc Thushara Films st Eastman Anthony sc/dial John Paul lyr Mullahakshmi c Vasant Kumar
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Nedumudi Venu, Srividya, Gopi. Mammooty, Poornima Jayaram, Vijay Menon, Jagathi Srikumar, Ramu, Isaac Thomas

The story, told in flashback, of a writer, Shriprasad (Gopi), who uses his wife Sharada (Srividya) to get to know a simple-minded man, Unni (Venu), so that he may use him as source material for his next novel. The duped simpleton finds out the truth and commits suicide, leaving the wife insane with guilt and the writer a broken man even though the author of a highly acclaimed novel. The director is a well-known playwright and stage director as well as a prolific film-maker.

Rangul a Kal a aka Colourful Dreams

1983 136' col Telugu
d/st/co-sc/co-m B. Narasinga Rao pc Suchitra

Int. co-sc/co-lyr Devi Priya co-sc Uppala Narasimham co-sc/dial S.M. Pran Rao co-lyr Gaddar, Angaiah c Venugopal K. Thakker co-m Janardhan lp B. Narasinga Rao, G. Narayana Rao, T. Saichand, Kakarala, Chandra, Venkata Reddy, Roopa, Shakuntala, Shesham Raju, Sangeetha Behal, Rajyalakshmi, Usha Sheikh, Haritha, Amar Mohan

Narasinga Rao's debut is an existential melodrama with the director playing a romantic painter, Ravi, whose friends include a trade union leader (Kakarala), an auto-rickshaw driver, a Marxist journalist (Narayana Rao) and a glib, successful painter (Saichand) whose success contrasts with Ravi's inability to sell his own work. His neighbour Kankamma, who rejects an evil landlord's advances, is evicted from her house; the trade unionist is killed in police custody; and Ravi starts exhibiting his work on the streets to indicate his growing politicisation to the satisfaction of his Marxist friend. The film is geared to the CPI(ML)-led political movements in Northern AP and included the compositions and songs of the region's best-known radical poet and performer, Gaddar.

Sagar a Sangamam

aka The Confluence
1983 160' col Telugu
d/st/sc K. Vishwanath p Edida Nageshwara Rao pc Poornodaya Movie Creations dial Jandhyala lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy
c P.S. Niwas m Ilaiyaraja lp Kamalahasan, Jayapradha, Sarath Babu, S.P. Sailaja, 'Sakshi' Rangaroo, Vankayala, Janaki, Arunkumar, Bhoomeswararao, Potti Prasad, Manju Bhargavi, Mohan Sharma

Vishwanath's sequel to Shankarabharanam (1979) concentrated on classical dance. The drunken dance critic Balakrishna Bhagavatar (Kamalahasan) writes a review denouncing a mediocre but much-touted dancer (Sailaja). It turns out, in a flashback, that the dancer is the daughter of the reviewer's old flame Madhavi (Jayapradha). Madhavi persuades Balakrishna to teach her daughter. He eventually dies of a broken heart but his pupil achieves mastery in classical dance so that the classical art (cf. Shankarabharanam) will live on. The film is dominated by Kamalahasan, who demonstrated a remarkable, unexpected skill to dance the Bharat Natyam, although the rest of the film's classicism is pure kitsch.

Sagar am Shantham

1983 126' col Malayalam
d P.G. Vishwambaran pc Premadevas Films st Sara Thomas Babu sc John Paul lyr O.N.V. Kurup c K. Ramchandra Babu m M.B. Srinivasan lp Mammooty, Nedumudi Venu, Sreenath, Ramu, Shanti Krishna, Sukumari, Manochitra

Early Mammooty melodrama establishing some of the key tenets of his later screen persona: his commitment to helpless women, as well as his penchant for taking on the role of an avenging angel. He is the motor mechanic Anandan, who is rejected by his childhood friend Srivevi because of class differences. However, she marries a villain and gets thrown out on the streets, pregnant and penniless. Anandan takes revenge on her husband and ends up in jail, while she promises to wait for his release to marry him.

Sanakeithel

aka Golden Market

1983 131' col Manipuri

d M.A. Singh pc Th. Dorendra Singh

st/m N. Pahari c Suresh Patel

lp A. Memi, Master Tony, Somorendra, Manao, Upen, Ingochouba, Anwar Ali, Shah Nawaz Khan, Holkhomang, Ibechaobi, Bijoy, Meena, Meim Chaoba, Maharaj Okendrajit, G. Ibeyaima Devi

Melodrama featuring criminal violence in Imphal, the (for most Indians) exotic capital of Manipur. It addresses issues like unemployment, drugs and the nexus between an oppressive state power and an entrenched feudal elite through the story of a widow, Nungshi (Memi), and her son Ibungobi (Master Tony). When the independent-minded Nungshi is gang-raped and becomes a crazed beggar, her son joins a group of criminals operating in Imphal's 'Golden Market'. Ibungobi eventually realises that the beggar is his mother, but is too late to help her even though one of his criminal friends is a local politician. Shot under very difficult conditions, the film is a courageous effort to go beyond the exotic and miserabilist stories featured in many art-house films originating in India's smaller film industries.

Smritichitre

aka Memory Episodes

1983 135' col Marathi

d Vijaya Mehta pc Doordarshan st Laxmibai

Tilak's autobiography sc Mangesh Kulkarni

lyr Laxmibai Tilak c R.C. Mapakshi m Mohan

lp Vijaya Mehta, Suhas Joshi, Pallavi Patil, Ravindra Mankani, Shirish Joshi, Mangesh Kulkarni, Vishwas Mehendale, Rekha Kamat, Sudhir Joshi

Vijaya Mehta's debut is a TV film based on the legendary Marathi autobiography of Laxmibai Tilak (1868-1936), a major social reform text evoking the life of her husband, the philosopher Narayan V. Tilak (Mankani and, as an older man, Sudhir Joshi). The film covers 20 years of her life, from her marriage to her conversion to her husband's religion, Christianity. It also tells of her childhood, the loss of her two children, her self-education and her husband's conversion in Ahmednagar while she spent another five years in the same town rigidly adhering to her Hindu beliefs. The predominantly theatrical actors contribute to a theatrical film. The main character is played by three different actors: for the childhood scenes, Patil takes the role; as a young woman she is played by Suhas Joshi and as an old woman by Mehta herself.

Accident

1984 121' col Kannada

d Shankar Nag pc Sanket Prod. s Vasant Mokashi dial G.S. Sadashiv c Shankar Deodhar m Ilaiyaraja

lp Anant Nag, Shankar Nag, Ashok Mandanna, Srinivasa Prabhu, Ramesh Bhatt, Arundhati Rao

Fast-paced crime movie with two rich young men getting involved in a major accident that could threaten the election prospects of the corrupt politician Dharmadhikari. A police inspector is forced to withdraw from the case but a courageous journalist eventually reveals the political connections. Like Shankar Nag's previous film, Minchina Ota (1980), it is apparently based on a true-life incident.

Achamillai Achamillai

aka Fearless

1984 161' col Tamil

d/s K. Balachander pc Kavithalaya Prod.

lyr Vairamuthu, Erode Tamizhanban

c B.S. Lokanathan m V.S. Narasimhan lp Saritha, Rajesh, Delhi Ganesh, Pavithra, Ahalya, Prabhakar, Vairam Krishnamurthy, Veeraiah, Jayagopi, Charley T.

After the critical success of Thanneer Thanneer (1981), Balachander pushes his jaundiced view of (Tamil but also general Indian) politics further with this grotesque drama symbolising the conditions of life in independent India. The central character is Thenmozhi (Saritha), a textile worker, who loves and marries Ulaganathan (Rajesh), a pragmatic politician whose daily compromises eventually lead to provoking communal riots and callous corruption. A strong and lively woman, Thenmozhi ends up killing her corrupt husband. The film repeatedly evokes, in its political references, the old tradition of political propaganda in Tamil film, with numerous symbols and clear distinctions between good and evil: most notably in the climactic sequence when the wife, stepping on to a dais to garland her husband, has a knife hidden in the garland with which she publicly stabs him. Sridhar Rajan described the film's opening as 'a stunning surrealist streetside strewn with corpses [and, later, we see the evocative visuals of men with loudspeakers growing out of their throats, each vying democratically to down the other vocally in the battle of the ballot'. The grotesque side of the story is evident in e.g. Thenmozhi's deformed brother born on Independence Day and named Swatantram (i.e. Independence) and in her blind father, a former freedom fighter who is corrupted by Ulaganathan's promise to pay for an operation to restore his sight.

Admi Aur Aurat

aka Man and Woman

1984 56' col Hindi

d/sc Tapan Sinha pc Doordarshan st Prafulla Roy c Kamal Nayak m Ashish Khan

lp Amol Palekar, Mahua Roy Choudhury, Kalyan Chatterjee, Nirmal Ghosh, Parimal Sengupta, Sudhir K. Singh, Dipak Sanyal, Samir Mukherjee

A simple TV drama about a young, pregnant Muslim woman who walks 20 miles through the Vakilgunga hills to a hospital to deliver her baby. A kind Hindu poacher helps her to overcome geographical obstacles and inclement weather. In the end, when the child is born, the hunter learns that the woman is a Muslim, but he nevertheless takes the news of her son's birth back to the woman's husband.

Al koottathil Thaniye

aka Alone in the Crowd

1984 139' col Malayalam

d I.V. Sasi pc Century s M.T. Vasudevan Nair

lyr Kavalam Narayana Panicker c Jayanan

Rajesh (left) and Saritha in Achamillai Achamillai

Vincent m Shyam

Ip Balan K. Nair, Mammootty, Seema, Shubha, Sumitra, Unni Mary, Mohanlal, Pappu, Lalu Alex, Adoor Bhasi, Prashab

A film from a prolific sexploitation director advocating adherence to old-style family values and unconditional submission to patriarchy. A dying father's three children rush to his bedside but, as the old man clings on to life, his two daughters return to their busy urban lives and his son's wife leaves for fear of missing out on her Harvard fellowship. The son, Rajan (Mammootty), stays and the old man's niece Ammukkutty (Seema), a schoolteacher who helped Rajan in his education but was not allowed to marry him, is summoned to come and look after the men. With exemplary devotion Ammukkutty tends to their needs while reconciling all members of the family with each other. The happy ending demonstrates the transcendent value of filial piety.

adapted from a noted experimental play.

Nandu's (Palekar) father (Lagoo) is an astrologer who stoically lives with the knowledge that his predictions mostly come true. Nandu resents his father's fatalistic attitude and rebels when his father predicts that Nandu's first wife will die in childbirth, which puts a damper on Nandu's marriage plans with Sushma, a rational woman prepared to take the risk. Instead, Nandu marries the retarded but curable Indu (Naval), hoping to circumvent his father's prediction. Indu is taken to hospital to give birth and she survives, but Sushma commits suicide to assert her right to determine her own destiny.

Andhi Gal i

aka Blind Alley aka Dead End

1984 152' col Hindi

d/sc/m Buddhadev Dasgupta pc K.B.S. Films st Dibyendu Palit's novel Ghar Bari dial/lyr Gulzar c Kamal Nayak Ip Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Deepti Naval, M.K. Raina, Anil Chatterjee, Mahesh Bhatt, Satya Bannerjee, Shyamanand Jalan, Anuradha Tandon

The final part of the director's trilogy dealing with contemporary middle-class Bengali politics (Dooratwa, 1978; Grihajuddha, 1982) is his first film in Hindi. Set in Calcutta in the early 70s, the central figure is a left activist and school teacher, Hemanta. Narrowly escaping being murdered by the police, Hemanta finds his political organisation in disarray and flees to Bombay where he leads a quiet life though his nerves are still shattered by his Calcutta experiences. Through a friend, Rakesh, Hemanta meets Jaya and they marry. To help raise money to buy a flat, Jaya reluctantly becomes a model for advertisement photographs. Obsessed with the desire to secure a middle-class lifestyle, Hemanta forces Jaya to take on demeaning photographic assignments and, to impose his will on her, he rapes her. Jaya commits suicide and Hemanta finds himself facing the police again.

Ankahee

aka The Unspoken

1984 135' col Hindi

d/p Amol Palekar pc Suchimisha sc Jayant Dharmadhikari, Vasu Bhagat, S.G. Akolkar st C.T. Khanolkar's play Kalaya Tasmeya Namaha dial Kamalesh Pandey c Debu Deodhar m Jaidev Ip Amol Palekar, Deepti Naval, Shriram Lagoo, Anil Chatterjee, Dina Pathak, Devika Mukherjee, Vinod Chopra, Seema, Vinod Mehra

Palekar follows his Marathi film Aakriet (1981) with this Hindi melodrama about fatalism,

Anubhava

1984 135' col Kannada/Telugu/Hindi

d/co-p/s Kashinath pc Shri Gayatri Arts co-p Satyanarayana, Thotayya, Dattatreya, Umapathi dial/lyr[Te] Rajashri

lyr[K] V. Manohar c K. Sundaranath Suvarna m L. Vaidyanathan

Ip Kashinath, Umashree, Master Vasanth, Dinesh, Arvind, Kaminidharan, Shivraj, Sivan Kumar, Venkatapathy, Prasannakumar, Mohammed Asha, Sarojamma, Bhagya

The village girl Gauri (Bhagya) is to marry Ramesh, an urban office clerk (Kashinath), who builds up his physique and reads sex manuals while she clings to her adolescence and plays with little boys. Arriving in the village with a large supply of contraceptives, Ramesh is frustrated by Gauri's behaviour and allows himself to be seduced by Padmi (Umashree). He returns to the city with Padmi, who then takes off with a criminal, which gets Ramesh in trouble with the police. Eventually, a transformed Gauri arrives with her family, and Ramesh, in all sorts of trouble, gratefully accepts her. Starting off as a rural sex comedy, the film runs out of ideas in its effort to prolong the narrative. It introduced future actor-director Kashinath, an unlikely hero with few star qualities but possessing a wry sense of humour and an intimate familiarity with the details of lower middle-class urban life.

April 18

aka April Pathinettu

1984 153' col Malayalam

d/s Balachandra Menon pc Sathosh Films lyr Bichu Thirumala c Vipin Mohan

m A.T. Ummar

Ip Balachandra Menon, Venu Nagavalli, Adoor Bhasi, Gopi, Shobhana, Jose Prakash, Raju, Santosh, Shankaradi, Srinath, Unnimary, Adoor Bhawani, Sukumari, Srilatha

A melodrama about a conscientious policeman, played by the director, whose visits to a convict's wife (Unnimary) are misunderstood by his wife (Shobhana) who leaves home in protest. His father-in-law (Bhasi), who never liked his daughter's choice for a husband, pushes for divorce. However, the unpleasant nature of the legal proceedings plus the nostalgic memories of their first meeting reconcile the couple.

Chal I enge

1984 152' col Telugu

d A. Kodandarami Reddy pc Creative Commercials p K.S. Rama Rao st Yandamuri Veerendranath, based on his novel Dabbu-Dabbu sc Sainath dial G. Satyamurthy lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c H. Loksingh

m Ilaiyaraaja

Ip Chiranjeevi, Sahasini, Vijayashanti, Ravu Gopala Rao, Rajendra Prasad, Gollapudi Maruti Rao, Smita

Based on Veerendranath's novel (cf.

Abhilasha, 1983), the unemployed Gandhi (Chiranjeevi) claims that human relationships are more important than money and bets the rich Ram Mohan Rao (Rao) that he can earn Rs 50 lakh in five years. With Laxmi's (Sahasini) help he starts earning money, initially by selling ideas, then in partnership with the unemployed engineer Vidyarthi (Prasad), becoming a successful industrialist. Rao tries to destroy Gandhi's business, but fails mainly because Rao's daughter Harika (Vijayashanti) helps Gandhi. Laxmi sides with the workers when they have a dispute with Gandhi and eventually Gandhi, having proved his point, throws it all away, rejects Harika, who was to have been his reward, and returns to Laxmi.

Chirai

aka Sirai

1984 143' col Tamil

d/sc/dial R.C. Sakthi pc Ananthi Films p Mohan st Anuradha Ramanan lyr Pulamai Pithan, Muthulingam, Piraichoodan c Vishwam Nataraj m M.S. Vishwanathan

Ip Rajesh, Prasanna, Pandian, Laxmi, Ilavarasi, S.S. Chandran, A. Shakuntala, S.N. Parvathi

The drunken landlord Anthony (Rajesh) rapes Bhagirathi (Lakshmi), wife of the village Brahmin priest. When her husband (Prasanna) rejects her, encouraged by a kindly policeman she moves in with her rapist and eventually develops an attachment to him. When he dies she prefers to be known as the man's widow and refuses to rejoin her husband. A parallel story has a farm-worker (Pandian) courting a local politician's daughter (Elavarasi), providing an opportunity to show the corrupt relationships between politicians and police. The story's impact is diluted by gross comedy, cabarets, and a fight sequence inserted for box-office reasons. Laxmi gives an accomplished repeat performance of a rape victim (cf. Sila Nerangalil Sila Manithargal, 1976). The film upset Brahmin organisations, which campaigned against it.

Damul

aka Bonded until Death

1984 141'(125') col Hindi

d/p/sc Prakash Jha pc Prakash Jha Prod. dial/st Shaiwal based on his story Kaabutra c Rajan Kothari m Raghunath Seth Ip Manohar Singh, Sreela Majumdar, Annu Kapoor, Deepti Naval, Pyare Mohan Sadhay, Braj Kishore, Gopal Sharan, Om Prakash

Melodrama set in Bihar addressing poverty, rural exploitation and the politics of Untouchability. Madho (Manohar Singh), the village head, uses the conventional system of bonded labour (i.e. labourers have to sign a paper assuming the debts of their ancestors) to subjugate the Harijan labourer Sanjeevan (Kapoor). Madho also runs an extortion racket based on stealing cattle and then requiring the owners to buy them back. Sanjeevan's story is intercut with Madho's multifarious misdeeds and the equally nefarious doings of Madho's rival, the politician Bachcha Singh. Madho's younger brother heads the gang of thugs who enforce the headman's will, including rigging the elections, raping and killing the widow Mahatmeen when she threatens to expose him in court, framing Sanjeevan for the crime, etc. In the end, Sanjeevan's wife Rajuli kills Madho. Jha's 2nd film uses a continuously circling camera, converting the melodrama into a frontier tale of crime, sex and revenge, with colourful clothes and exotic accents.

☞ Dhare Aal ua

aka Ray of Light
1984 162' b&w Oriya
d/sc Saghir Ahmed pc Garuda Cinemagraphics st Manorama Das dial Sanjide Tayab lyr Suryamani Tripathi c Bidushree Bindhani m Harihar Panda
lp Prithviraj Mishra, Soumitra, Hemanth, Purna Bindhani, Dipen Ghosh, Soumendu Tripathi, Amrita Ahmed, Shivani Mahapatra

A courageous low-budget feature by Saghir Ahmed who teaches script writing at the FTII. The film addresses questions of rural oppression in ways markedly different from its usual treatment in Oriya cinema (cf. Manmohan Mahapatra). A joint family is partially fragmented when the patriarch's only son (Mishra), a political activist, has to spend much of his time avoiding the police. The family informally adopts two children and is then blamed when one of them commits suicide while escaping from Panchanan (Ghosh), the children's oppressive legal guardian. The children's mostly absent journalist father (Mahapatra) causes the activist to be arrested, but eventually all the players of the drama come together. The director's daughter Amrita Ahmed played one of the two children.

☞ Ghare Baire

aka Home and The World
1984 140' col Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray pc NFDC st Rabindranath Tagore's novel c Soumendu Roy lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Victor Bannerjee, Swatilekha Chatterjee, Gopa Aich, Jennifer Kendall, Manoj Mitra, Indrapramit Roy, Bimal Chatterjee

Twenty years after Charulata (1964) Ray returned to Tagore, in colour, adapting a controversial novel that had increased in stature over the years. Set during the terrorist movements following the first communal partition of Bengal (1905), the book tells a triple story, interweaving the diaries of the zamindar Nikhilesh (V. Bannerjee), a critic of nationalism, with the stories of the man's wife Bimala (Sw. Chatterjee) and of their guest, the fiery activist Sandeep (So. Chatterjee). Sandeep and Bimala become involved with one another, which for her leads to a sense of liberation. In the end Nikhilesh dies, and Bimala is widowed, punished for her transgression (the novel ends differently, with Nikhilesh accepting Bimala back). Ray played down the novel's political overtones in favour of a straight love triangle enacted in a meticulously researched period setting. The film, which Ray had intended as his debut work, recalls Charulata in some ways. Ray's son, Sandeep, completed the post-production after Ray suffered his first heart attack.

☞ Kaanamarayathu

aka The Invisible One
1984 137' col Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi pc Vici Films s P. Padmarajan lyr Bichu Thirumala c Jayanan Vincent m Shyam lp Mammootty, Lalu Alex, Rehman, Bahadur, Shobhana, Sabitha, Seema, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Sukumari, Noorjehan, Unnimary

Best known for starting the sexploitation genre in Malayalam cinema, Sasi adapts a script of the novelist and director Padmarajan (Koodevide?, 1983), a story of an aging, brutally practical businessman who reluctantly pays for the education of an orphaned girl originally sponsored by his father. The schoolgirl falls madly in love with the middle-aged businessman who, when the girl is about to be sent to a nunnery, allows himself to accept her love.

☞ Kony

1984 131' col Bengali
d/sc/co-dial Saroj De pc West Bengal Govt co-dial Jayanta Bhattacharya st Moti Nandy lyr Rabindranath Tagore c Kamal Nayak m Chinmoy Chatterjee lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Sreeparna Bannerjee, Moushumi Roy, Sarmishta Mukherjee, Subrata Sen, Swaroop Dutta

A sporting melodrama about a wayward but determined swimming coach, Kshitish Sinha (Chatterjee), and his star disciple, the female street urchin Kony (Bannerjee). Under her coach's tutelage, Kony overcomes all adversities, including hostile sports administrators, and wins her race. Adapted from a story by the noted sports journalist and novelist Moti Nandy (cf. the novel Striker, filmed in 1978). Both the realism and the political references mandatory in Bengali cinema (club rivalry, Sinha becoming a speechwriter for a politically ambitious industrialist) are present, and Kony's general defiance of both gender and class oppression keeps the sentimentalism within bounds. Director Saroj De was associated with the famous Agradami collective.

☞ Lakshmana Rekha

1984 113' col Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi pc Murali Movies s P.V. Kuriakose
lyr Bichu Thirumala c Jayanan Vincent
m A.T. Ummer lp Mammootty, Mohanlal, K.P. Ummer, P.K. Abraham, Adoor Bhasi, Seema, Kalaranjini, Kaviyoor Ponnamma

Bizarre Sasi melodrama exploiting the Kerala convention of marriage between cousins. Two brothers, Sukumaran and Sudhakaran both love their cousin Radha. She marries one of them, but her husband has an accident on their wedding night and is paralysed for life. A psychiatrist recommends that the wife has sex with her brother-in-law to solve her emotional problems. The paralysed husband, unable to handle this new development, is then killed by his father in order to end his misery. The father is arrested.

☞ Manik Raitong

aka Manik the Miserable 1984 149' col Khasi
d/sc Ardhendu Bhattacharya p/st Rishan Rapseng pc Neo Cine Prod. dial Humphrey Blaah lyr Skendrowel Syiemliih c Bijoy Anand Sabharwal m Kazu Matsui lp William Rynjah, Sheba Diengdoh, Gilbert Synnah, Veronica Nongbet, Benjamin Khongnor, Diamond Matthew

Documentarist Bhattacharya's feature debut is the first film in the North-Eastern language of Khasi. It is a folk-tale about a poor man, Manik, and his beloved Lieng who is forced to marry the tribal chief Syiem. She refuses to live with her husband and at one time has a sexual encounter with Manik which leaves her pregnant. She raises the child, but her lover is condemned to death. She jumps into Manik's funeral pyre and dies with him. Reputed to be one of Meghalaya's most ancient legends, relating to the origins of the region when seven of the sixteen families with privileged access to heaven decide to live on earth. In spite of some awkward acting, the film evokes the sad fatalism of marginalised people's folk idiom in India.

☞ Mati Manas

aka Mind of Clay aka Terracotta
1984 92' col Hindi
d/p/co-s Mani Kaul pc Infrakino Film Prod. co-sc Kamal Swaroop c Venu
m T.R. Mahalingam lp Anita Kanwar, Robin Das, Ashok Sharma

Episodic film about the ancient Indian tradition of terracotta sculpture and pottery and the several legends associated with this tradition. The artefacts involved include some of the oldest items of Indian civilisation (from the Indus Valley, 2500BC) and have been, together with the legends associated with terracotta techniques, central to historical research into e.g. the origins of patriarchy, the shift from pastoral to agrarian systems, etc. The film enacts a series of such legends. The first is of the Sariya Mata or cat mother whose kittens remained safe in the interior of the baked pot, a legend associated with Harappan archaeological sites which had human skeletons buried in womb-like pots. The second legend revolves around the Kala-Gora (Black-White) icon produced in the village of Molella, Rajasthan, and features the witch Gangli who transforms Gora into a bull by day, making him work in her oil-press, until finally Kala beheads Gangli. The film connects this tale with the Mesopotamian legend of Gilgamesh and Enkidu. The third, and best-known, legend features Parashuram who beheads his own mother Renuka with his axe. Interwoven with these tales are stories narrated by the potters themselves and fictional sequences featuring three contemporary historians who recall the legends while looking at the terracotta artefacts, often through the eyepiece of a camera or from behind glass panes in a museum. Shot throughout Central, South and Eastern India, the film deliberately suppresses its variety of locations to achieve the idea of an integrated civilisation endowed with a sense of immortality through cultural (pro)creativity. At the same time, the technological process of film-making is presented as an extension of similar craft traditions.

(Pathak) in an old Bombay tenement. Joshi sues his landlord, the evil property developer Kundan Kapadia (Khan), which starts a complicated and expensive legal procedure conducted by the slick lawyer Malkani (N. Shah). Eventually Joshi realises that one cannot win against entrenched economic powers. In the end, when the judge comes to see the condition of the building for himself, Kapadia's men quickly cover its rickety walls with a coat of paint and Joshi, unable to control his anger, goes berserk and demolishes the place, making it collapse on to his own head. Mirza's allegorical approach, using a crudely Brechtian idea of surface realism, allows him to cast the noted screen villain Amjad Khan (cf. Sholay, 1975) as the property developer with lather dripping from his chin or eating a leg of mutton.

☞ Mukha Mukham

aka Face to Face
1984 106' col Malayalam
d/s Adoor Gopalakrishnan
p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc General Pics c Ravi Varma m M.B. Srinivasan
lp P. Ganga, Balan K. Nair, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Krishna Kumar, Karamana Janardanan Nair, Thilakan, Vishwanathan, Ashokan, Lalitha, Vembayam, Krishnankutty Nair, John Samuel, Shanmugham Pillan, Thambi

Gopalakrishnan's melodrama that opened up a new direction in the genre in Malayalam film while looking at the unpalatable aspects of radical populism in Kerala. The first part is set in the 1945-55 period just prior to the short-lived 1957 CPI electoral victory in the State. The 2nd part is ten years later, after 1964, when the CPI split in two, later fragmenting even further. The central character is Sridharan (Ganga), a trade union leader who plays a key role in winning a strike against mechanisation. He is mercilessly beaten by thugs and has to go underground. This episode is told from the point of view of an idealist radical, Sudhakaran (Vishwanathan as a boy, Ashokan as a man).

☞ Mohan Joshi Haazir Ho!

aka A Summons for Mohan Joshi
1984 123' (130') col Hindi
d/p/co-st/co-sc/co-dial Saeed Akhtar Mirza pc Saeed Akhtar Mirza Prod. co-st/co-sc Yusuf Mehta co-dial Ranjit Kapoor co-st/co-sc Sudhir Mishra lyr Madhosh Bilgrami c Virendra Saini m Vanraj Bhatia lp Naseeruddin Shah, Deepti Naval, Bhisham Sahni, Dina Pathak, Rohini Hattangadi, Amjad Khan, Mohan Gokhale, Satish Shah, Pankaj Kapoor, Arvind Deshpande

Mirza's parody on housing legislation tells of Mohan Joshi (Sahni, the well-known novelist and brother of Balraj Sahni in his screen debut), a retired clerk who lives with his wife Bhisham Sahni in Mohan Joshi Haazir Ho!

Years later, the old radicals have made their compromises and Sridharan has become a legendary emblem of integrity on whom the defeated survivors have projected their erstwhile radicalism. When he returns, there follows bitter disappointment at the discovery of the legendary hero's human weaknesses. His name is invoked by all factions as a rallying cry, making his presence all the more embarrassing. One day, he is found killed. With the man safely out of the way, his image can once again be mobilised, untarnished by the complexities of real life. Violently attacked by the CPI(M) establishment in Kerala, the film works on several layers: in critiquing the state's left establishment it also critically evokes a tradition of political melodrama in Kerala (cf. Thoppil Bhasi's scripts). It suggests that its protagonist in all his roles - fiery leader, spent force, political legend - is inescapably reduced into stereotypical functioning, in the popular melodramatic sense, of one kind or another. The film thereby shifts the entire critique into one where the mass culture generated by incomplete capitalist growth merges with the rhetoric of left activism, the whole masking what the director suggests to be the major problem: the absence of a valid indigenous culture able to define the terms of its engagement with capitalist systems.

☞ My Dear Kuttichathan/Chhota Chetan

1984 96' col Malayalam/Hindi/Tamil d Jijo pc Navodaya sc Raghunath Paleri st Navodaya's script team lyr Bichu Thirumala c Ashok Kumar m Ilaiyaraaja lp Kottarakkara Sridharan Nair, Alumoodan, Dalip Tahil, Arvind, Mukesh, Suresh, Sonia

Made by the veteran director Appachan's son, this box-office hit is a fantasy film designed to show off its special effects in India's first 3-D movie. Kuttichathan is a mischievous genie living in an abandoned house. He is accidentally summoned by a group of children and appears in the guise of a boy who carries out all their wishes. This allows the director to stage scenes of children walking on the ceiling, speeded-up rickshaw rides and various other spectacular episodes. Sentiment is catered for by having the genie cure one child's father of alcoholism. The genie eventually changes into a fox-bat and flies off. A dubbed Hindi version, Chhota Chetan, was also successful.

☞ Neer ab Jhada

aka The Silent Storm
1984 119' b&w Oriya
d/sc Manmohan Mahapatra pc Chayadhwani Prod. st Nandlal Mahapatra c Raj Sekhar, B. Bindhani m Shantanu Mahapatra lp Hemanta Das, Niranjana Patnaik, B. Tripathi, R. Das, Jaya Swami, Manimala

Mahapatra's melancholic rural realism, deployed on an expanded canvas, tells of three peasants confronting a dastardly landlord. One of the friends goes crazy trying to find buried treasure in order to recover his land; another goes to the city where he finds even worse forms of exploitation; the third has a more complicated problem: his daughter falls in love with an employee of the landlord. He too loses his land and has to migrate, but in the process delivers the film's 'voice of hope', suggesting that if sufficient numbers of people feel the way he does, the future might still be bright.

☞ Nokketha Dhoorathu Kannum

Nattu

aka Looking at Infinity

1984 130' col Malayalam

d/s Fazil pc Bodhi Chitra lyr Bichu Thirumala
c Ashok Kumar m Jerry Amaldev lp Padmini, Nadia Moidu, Sukumari, Mohanlal, Nedumudi Venu, Thilakan,

K.P. Ummar, Fazil, Raju

Contemporary melodrama about a young girl incongruously called Girly (Moidu) who brightens the life of her embittered grandmother, Kunjooamma Thomas (Padmini). As the girl requires a critical operation, the grandmother finds that once more the story of her life repeats itself: the people she loves are invariably taken away from her. Actress Padmini, who had been living in the USA for many years, made her comeback with this film. Mohanlal played the relatively minor role of a neighbourhood youth who loves Girly.

☞ Nooravathunaal

aka 100th Day

1984 134' col Tamil

d/s Manivannan pc Thirupathi Samy Films

p S.N.S. Thirumal lyr Vairamuthu, Muthulingam, Pulamai Pithan c A. Sabapathy
m Ilaiyaraja

lp Mohan, Vijayakanth, Thengai Srinivasan, Sathyaraj, Nalini, Ponni, Y. Vijaya, Janakaraj, Anuradha, Kovai Sarala

An efficient crime thriller notable as the film which the unemployed psychotic murderer Jayaprakash cited as the inspiration for his slaughter of a large family in Madras. The claim hit the headlines and ensured the film's box-office success. The plot concerns a wayward son, Kumar, of an equally wayward father. Kumar steals museum pieces with the help of a security officer. He kills a young woman (shown before the credit titles) and marries the victim's sister, Devi (Nalini), who finds out about her husband's criminal activities and, with the help of her brother-in-law, exposes Kumar to the police.

☞ Paar

aka The Crossing

1984 141'(120') col Hindi

d/co-sc/c/m Gautam Ghose pc Orchid Films co-sc Partha Bannerjee st Samaresh Bose's short story Paarhi dial S.P. Singh.

lp Naseeruddin Shah, Shabana Azmi, Utpal Dutt, Om Puri, Mohan Agashe, Anil Chatterjee, Ruma Guha-Thakurta, Sunil Mukherjee, Kamu Mukherjee

One of the former photo-journalist and documentarist Ghosh's best-known films, it features a familiar New Indian Cinema cast: Shah, Puri and Azmi. A fable of exploitation in rural Bihar, in which the landlord's (Dutt) men wreck a village and kill the benevolent schoolmaster (Chatterjee) who was its progressive force. The labourer Naurangia (Shah) breaks with a tradition of passive resistance and retaliates by killing the landlord's brother. Naurangia and his wife Rama (Azmi) become fugitives from justice. After many efforts to find sustenance elsewhere, the two decide to return home. To earn the fare, they agree to drive a herd of pigs through a river, causing the pregnant Rama to believe she has lost her baby. At the end of the film Naurangia puts his ear to her belly and listens to the heartbeats of the unborn child. The original short story dealt mainly with the river crossing and the film was criticised for not adequately integrating this episode with the others. With this film Ghosh joined the trend of 70s ruralist realism, although the river-crossing episode achieves a wider metaphoric resonance.

☞ Panchavadippalam

1984 140' col Malayalam

d/sc K.G. George pc Jansuk Gandhimati Films

st/lyr Velloor Krishnankutty dial Yesudasana

c Shaji N. Karun m M.B. Srinivasan

lp Gopi, Nedumudi Venu, Thilakan, K.P. Ummar, Jagathi Srikumar, Venu Nagavalli, Alumoodan, Srinivasan, V.D. Rajappan, Innocent, Chandran Nair, Sukumari, Shubha, Srividya, Kalpana

A satirical comedy about political corruption and vanity. A henpecked politician (Gopi) wants his name attached to a new bridge, even if that means destroying another, perfectly serviceable bridge. The new bridge collapses during its official opening and kills a bystander.

☞ Party

1984 118'(155') col Hindi

d/c Govind Nihalani pc NFDC s Mahesh

Elkunchwar from his Marathi play lp Rohini Hattangadi, Manohar Singh, Vijaya Mehta, Deepa Sahi, K.K. Raina, Soni Razdan, Shafi Inamdar, Om Puri, Amrish Puri, Akash Khurana, Naseeruddin Shah, Gulan Kripalani, Pearl Padamse

An exemplary tale set in a middle-class artistic milieu inaugurating Nihalani's long-term project of filmed theatre. Mrs Rane (Mehta) hosts a party for the recipient of a literary prize (Singh). The gathered 'intelligentsia' are revealed to be shallow hypocrites compared with the absent poet Amrit (Shah), who abandoned his literary career to become an activist among the tribals. The original Marathi play was criticised for its superficial depiction of the Bombay intelligentsia and the film does not really improve matters. Nihalani commented about the differences between the play and the film: 'There is a major difference in the thrust. The play is concerned with the question of art versus life. The film goes a bit further and tries to see whether a person can have two contrary sets of morality: one as an artist and the other as a human being.'

☞ Saaranash

aka The Gist

1984 137' col Hindi

d/st/co-sc/co-dial Mahesh Bhatt pc Rajshree

Prod. co-sc Sujit Sen co-dial Amit Khanna

lyr Vasant Dev c Adeep Tandon m Ajit Varman lp Rohini Hattangadi, Anupam Kher, Soni Razdan, Madan Jain, Suhas Bhalekar, Nilu Phule

Bhatt follows his successful Arth (1982) with this expressionistic psychodrama about old age, fading idealism and political corruption. Old Pradhan (Kher, in his debut performance), a retired headmaster, and his wife Parvati (Hattangadi) learn that their son, studying in New York, has been mugged and killed. Pradhan goes through the trauma of bureaucratic corruption to receive his cremated son's ashes at the airport. Their tenant Sujata (Razdan), a young actress, is in love with Vilas (Jain), whose father is the corrupt politician Chitre (Phule). When Sujata finds herself pregnant, Pradhan and Parvati believe that it is their son reborn and protect Sujata from Chitre's threats. The problem of bureaucratic ineptitude is solved when Pradhan goes to meet a minister who turns out to be his former student and still retains his old teacher's sense of integrity. In the end, the old couple are reconciled to the loss of their son. The film has an oppressive soundtrack, with heavy music and effects underlining the states of loneliness, fear and frustration.

☞ Shravana Banthu

1984 158' col Kannada

d/st/co-sc Singeetham Srinivasa Rao

pc Chandrakala Art Ent's. p Ekamreshwararao co-sc/dial/lyr Chi. Udayashankar c S.V. Srikanth

m M. Rangarao

lp Rajkumar, Srinath, Urvashi, Vishwanath, Uma Shivakumar, Leelavathi, K.S. Aswath, Thoogudeepa Srinivas, Shivaram, Umesh

Reincarnation plot with a dubiously 'secular' message. The singer Kumar (Rajkumar), on a pilgrimage to a temple he saw in his dreams, meets the spirit of his friend Vishwa (Srinath), unrequited from an earlier birth. The friend recalls their previous lives in which they had been in love with the same woman (Urvashi). She loved Kumar and Vishwa had ordered his men to kill his rival, unaware that this was his friend Kumar. Realising his mistake, he committed suicide and his spirit was condemned to wander until redemption had been achieved. The woman from their earlier life, now reborn as Mary, a Christian, is courted by Kumar with the assistance of the spirit. The two eventually marry after overcoming the resistance of Kumar's caste-conscious father. This segment involves a comic turn when Kumar pretends to have lost his memory and become 'Peter from Petersburg'.

Sitara

aka A Star

1984 144' col Telugu

d/s Vamsy pc Poornodaya Movie Creations
p Edida Nageshwara Rao dial Sainath lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c M.V. Raghu

m Ilaiyaraja

lp Sudhakar, Suman, Sarath Babu, Sriram, Prabhakar Reddy, Bhanupriya, Chamundeshwari, Saroja, J.V. Somayajulu,
'Sakshi' Ranga Rao

Sexual fantasy in the Vishwanath style made by the producers of Sagara Sangamam (1983). The photographer Devadas (Sudhakar) offers shelter to a mysterious woman he names Sitara (Bhanupriya). She later becomes a film star and he her manager. Her secretiveness about her past is broken when she shows she is terrified by caged birds and cannot bear to work in an abandoned palace. It turns out that she used to live in that palace, a virtual prisoner of her impoverished but proud zamindar brother (Sarath Babu), until she was rescued by a group of travelling performers. At the end of the film, the cynical manager writes an unauthorised biography of Sitara and she once again has to abandon her home and seek her future elsewhere.

Swati

aka The Pearl

1984 144' col Telugu

d/s Kranthi Kumar pc Shri Kranthi Chitra dial Ganesh Patro lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c Hari Anumolu m Chakravarty lp Suhasini, K. Jaggaiah, Bhanuchander, P.L. Narayana, Sarath Babu, Rajendra Prasad, Subhalekha Sudhakar, Sharada, Samyuktha, Ramaprabha, Anuradha

Kranthi Kumar's directorial debut is an episodic melodrama about an aggressive young woman, Swati (Suhasini), who looks after her divorced mother (Sharada) while defending herself against predatory males in the street. Having arranged her mother's second marriage with an old widower (Jaggaiyah), Swati has problems with her new stepsister. When one of Swati's friends is raped, local gossip blames the victim's husband for failing to prevent the attack and the couple commit suicide. In the end, Swati's father turns up wanting to meet his former wife once more before his death. He is allowed only to see her from a distance, while she is not told that he is still alive. One of Tamil star Suhasini's best-known Telugu films. The director remade the film in Hindi in 1986 with Shashi Kapoor, Sharmila Tagore and Madhuri Dixit, with a score by Laxmikant-Pyarelal.

Tarang

aka Wages and Profit aka The Wave

1984 171' col/scope Hindi

d/co-sc Kumar Shahani pc NFDC

co-sc Roshan Shahani dial Vinay Shukla lyr Raghuvir Sahay, Gulzar c K.K. Mahajan
m Vanraj Bhatia

lp Smita Patil, Amol Palekar, Shriram Lagoo, Girish Karnad, Om Puri, Jalal Agha, Rohini Hattangadi, Kawal Gandhiok, M.K. Raina, Sulabha Deshpande, Arvind Deshpande, Jayanti Patel

Made 12 years after Maya Darpan (1972), Shahani's biggest film to date is an elaborately plotted melodrama precisely realising his theory of epic cinema. An industrial family headed by the patriarch Sethji (Lagoo) is split when his son-in-law Rahul (Palekar) falls out with the industrialist's nephew Dinesh (Karnad). Sethji, who became rich as a war profiteer, regards 'wealth creation' as a goal in itself and ruthlessly administers his personal fiefdom accordingly. Rahul, regarded by the family as a mere caretaker until Sethji's grandson is ready to take over, is a more modern 'nationalist' capitalist committed to developing indigenous technology and minimum welfare arrangements for his workers. Dinesh, on the other hand, acts (illegally) on behalf of transnational interests which stand to profit by destabilising India's sovereignty. These conflicts are mirrored in ironically identical ways within the working class: the corrupt Patel (Patel) is a trade union leader presumably aligned to the Congress Party who sells out to the management; the worker Namdev (Puri) finds his more radical union leader Kalyan (A. Deshpande) equally inclined to opportunism while another worker, Abdul (Raina), believes the established forms of political struggle to be inadequate and joins a more extreme left group which is also betrayed by his erstwhile leader. The only figure transcending these mirrored divisions is the remarkable Janaki (Patil). Widowed when her activist husband is killed, her commitment to the nurturing of a progressive force is repeatedly exploited by different factions and conflicting ideologies: reduced to prostitution, she is manipulated by Rahul's sexually frigid wife Hansa (Gandhiok) into becoming her husband's mistress. The money she thus obtains from Rahul is used to support the working-class movement. Forced by Rahul to become his accomplice in a plot to kill his father-in-law, she is made the scapegoat when the family conflict escalates into virtual gang war. At the end, the film shifts into a mythic discourse and Janaki becomes the elusive voice of history. Accusing Rahul of trying to manipulate what he never understood, she claims the forces of change to be 'faster than the fleeting wind'. This sequence replays lines from the Urvashi-Pururavas legend from the Rig Veda as analysed by the historian D.D. Kosambi in his book Myth And Reality (1962/1983). The film adheres to Kosambi's view that in India, the epic has often been the most precise language available for history itself, and much of the plotting is informed by the structure of the Mahabharata. In a narrower sense, however, the film is also a definitive comment on India's nationalist enterprise, and on the tradition of cinematic melodrama that saw itself, and its formal assimilations, as the cultural vanguard of a modernising nation-state.

Tasveer Apni Apni

Their Own Faces

1984 66' col Hindi

d/p/s Mrinal Sen pc Doordarshan c Sambit Bose

lp M.K. Raina, K.K. Raina, Shyamand Jalan

A minor work made for TV about an employee (K.K. Raina) who desperately tries to persuade the office manager (M.K. Raina) not to sack him. The story is interrupted by dialogues between the narrator (Jalan) and the character

Smita Patil and M.K. Raina in Tarang suggesting that we are all playthings in games beyond our control.

Thirakkil Al pa Samayam

1984 134' col Malayalam
*d*P.G. Vishwambaran pc Vijaya and Vijaya st Kanam E.J. sc Pappanamcode dial Sharief lyr Chunakkara c C.E. Babu m Shyam lp Madhu, Thilakan, Mammootty, Shankar, T.G. Ravi, Seema, Menaka, Shubha, Meena

Communal melodrama about a conflict of generation and class that also involves three religions. The Hindu Shankaran Nair falls out with his friend, the Muslim Khadir Haji, when the latter arranges a marriage between Nair's daughter Sarala and her poor Christian lover Anthony (Mammootty). The ensuing battle, which splits the village, escalates when Haji pulls his daughter out of school and virtually forces her into an arranged marriage; the daughter eventually marries a man of her choice with the help of Sarala and Anthony. Playing a major role as a social force is Anthony's working-class trade union of rickshaw-drivers, which helps re-establish amity.

Utsav

aka The Festival
 1984 145' col Hindi
d/co-sc Girish Karnad p Shashi Kapoor co-p Dharampriya Das pc Film Valas st Sudraka's play Mrichchakatikam aka The Little Cart and Bhasa's play Charudatta co-sc Krishna Basur dial Sharad Joshi lyr Vasant Dev c Ashok Mehta m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Shashi Kapoor, Rekha, Anuradha, Shankar Nag, Shekhar Suman, Amjad Khan, Kunal Kapoor, Annu Kapoor, Neena Gupta, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Anupam Kher

An exuberant but unsuccessful picaresque film set in the 4th C., when Sudraka is supposed to have written one of the most famous plays in Indian history, a love story between the Brahmin merchant Charudatta (Suman) and the beautiful courtesan Vasantsena (Rekha). Karnad also introduced Vatsyayana (Amjad Khan) as a voyeuristic lecher peeking into various brothel chambers to write his famous Kama Sutra. Vasantsena, a beautiful prostitute of Ujjain, runs away from the villain Samasthanaka (S. Kapoor), the libidinous brother-in-law of the king, and hides in the house of Charudatta, a music-lover, with whom she falls in love. She loses her golden necklace in Charudatta's house and when it is stolen, Charudatta's affair with the prostitute is exposed. Samasthanaka, who believes he killed Vasantsena when he tried to rape her, accuses Charudatta of the deed. When Charudatta is sentenced to hang for Vasantsena's murder, she turns up, alive and well, to try to save her lover's life. Just then, a horseman arrives to declare that a new king has been crowned and has pardoned all prisoners. Charudatta is reunited with his wife while the populace turns on the villainous Samasthanaka. He drags himself to Vasantsena's house who, this time, accepts him. Karnad uses the conventions of the Hindi movie to explore the rasas of Shringar (the erotic) and Hasya (the comic), on which India's classical aesthetic theory of performance is based, and intended the film as a celebration of life and love. The location scenes, filmed in Karnataka and Bharatpur because of the traditional architectural styles available there, were completed by studio scenes shot in Bombay. Apparently a more explicitly erotic version of the film was created for the Western market. This expensive film was producer Shashi Kapoor's last effort at an art-house production.

Aakhri Raasta

1985 164' col Hindi
d/st/sc K. Bhagyaraj pc Lakshmi Prod.
p A. Poornachandra Rao dial Rahi Masoom Raza lyr Anand Bakshi c S. Gopal Reddy
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Amitabh Bachchan, Sridevi, Jayaprada, Om Shivpuri, Sadashiv Amrapurkar, Bharat Kapoor, Dalip Tahil

Action movie featuring Bachchan in a double role, adapted from Bhartirajaa's Oru Kaithiyin Diary (1984) with Kamalahasan. David (Bachchan) is a loyal trade union worker and follower of the crooked politician Chaturvedi (Amrapurkar). The politician rapes and kills David's wife Mary (Jayaprada) and frames David with the murder. Released from prison 24 years later and determined to avenge the injustice, David discovers that his son Vijay (Bachchan again), has become a police officer. The film features a number of encounters between the two as its main highlight as the policeman-son chases the criminal father and eventually arrests him, but David in his dying moments shoots the politician dead.

Agnisan

aka Ordeal
 1985 186' col Assamese
d/p/s Bhabendranath Saikia c Kamal Nayak lyr/m Tarun Goswami lp Malaya Goswami, Biju Phukan, Arun Nath, Kashmiri Barua, Sanjib Hazarika, Ananda Mohan Bhagawati, Arun Guha-Thakurta, Nilu Chakraborty, Indra Bania, Ashok Deka

The Assamese physicist and writer Saikia used one of his own novels, set in 30s feudal-colonial Assam, for this extended film about a woman's emancipation. The well-off and British-supported rice mill owner Mohikanta (Phukan) is married to the quiet Menoka (Goswami) and has four children by her. When Mohikanta takes a second wife, Kiran (Barua), and makes her pregnant, the angry Menoka starts a secret affair with the village thief, Madan, and becomes pregnant. Unaware of his double standards, Mohikanta feels betrayed and demands an explanation for Menoka's refusal to have sexual relations with him ever since Kiran moved into their home. Menoka simply points out that since Mohikanta had expected her to put up with his infidelities, so he must accept hers. The final confrontation between husband and wife, set in the rice mill, provides an unusual ending to this tale about patriarchal hypocrisy as the initially submissive Menoka self-confidently affirms her right to fully equal status with her husband.

Akal athe Ambil i

1985 157' col Malayalam
d Jesey pc Centaur Art Prod. s S.N. Swamy lyr M.D.R. c Vipin Das m Shyam lp Mammootty, Mukesh, Manian Pillai Raju, Supriya Pathak, Rohini, Mala Aravindan, Santosh, Thilakan

Standard Mammootty adventure movie. He plays Ajayan, a successful businessman with a rags-to-riches background, in love with his secretary Ambili. His rival in love, Ashok, is kidnapped by their mutual enemies, but Ajayan rescues Ashok and eventually (in characteristic Mammootty style) sacrifices his own happiness for that of his friends.

Angadikkapurathu

1985 155' col Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi pc Jeyemje Arts s T. Damodaran lyr Bichu Thirumala m Sathyam lp Mammootty, Mohanlal, Rehman, Mahalakshmi, Lily

Early instance of the fast-paced satires of director Sasi and writer Damodaran, also featuring the combined presence of Malayalam megastars Mammootty and Mohanlal. Babu (Mohanlal), a poor orphan, wins a rigged lottery ticket by accident, and encounters a new world of crime, double-dealing and dishonesty. He eventually realises that he has no use for the money, and prefers to get rid of it and return to his earlier lifestyle. Mammootty plays a political activist in a film liberally peopled with gangsters, crooked lawyers with dubious morals, drug addicts and (Sasi's regular feature) cabaret dancers.

Ankush

1985 149' col Hindi
d/sc/co-dial N. Chandra pc Shilpa Movies st Debu Sen co-dial Sayyad Sultan lyr Abhilash c H. Lakshminarayan m Kuldeep Singh lp Madan Jain, Nana Patekar, Arjun Chakraborty, Suhas Palshikar, Nisha Singh, Ashalata, Dinkar Kaushik, Mahavir Shah, Rabia Amin, Ravi Patwardhan, Master Bobby, Raja Bundela, Sayyed

Chandra's debut film propagates the cause of the Hindu Shiv Sena, a link emphasised by the first major Hindi film of Nana Patekar. A gang of four educated but unemployed men are a law unto themselves. Reformed by a female guardian angel (Singh), the four briefly attempt an entrepreneurial life until the woman is raped by the very gang leader (and his masters) against whom the youths are fighting. Revenge is swift, as is their repentance, creating a cyclical story of violence and regret. The film unashamedly rehearses Bombay's Shiv Sena ideologies: unemployment is the devil's workshop, industry is controlled by 'rootless outsiders' (North Indians, mainly) who persecute and exploit 'the natives'. The relentless violence culminates in the four thugs, presented as 'heroes', being martyred as they are hanged in a manner reminiscent of India's nationalist freedom fighters.

Chidambar am

1985 102' col Malayalam
d/sc Govindan Aravindan pc Suryakanthi Film Makers st C.V. Shriraman c Shaji N. Karun m P. Devarajan
lp Gopi, Smita Patil, Srinivas, Mohan Das, Murali, Chandran Nair

Unfolding in exquisitely photographed poetic rhythms and coloured landscapes, this is the simple but cynical tale of Muniyandi (Srinivas), a labourer on the Indo-Swiss Mooraru farm in Kerala. He brings a wife, Shivagami (Patil), from the temple town of Chidambaram. She befriends Shankaran (Gopi), the estate manager and amateur photographer with a shady past. Their friendship transgresses the hypocritical but deeply felt behavioural codes the local men inherited from previous social formations: i.e. that women are to be denied what men are allowed to enjoy. The tragedy that ensues (Muniyandi's suicide, Shankaran's descent into alcoholism and Shivagami's withering into a worn-out old woman) condenses the tensions between socio-economic change (as tractors and machinery invade the landscape) and people's refusal to confront the corresponding need to change their mentality. The tension is, however, most graphically felt in the way Shivagami's life-force is extended into the naturescape, which is shot around her with garish colour (e.g. purple flower-beds) suggesting that the very nature of Kerala's beauty and fertility, as she represents it, has been irredeemably corrupted from within. The film then shifts to the equally oppressive cloisters of the Chidambaram temple, as Shankaran and Shivagami meet once more: he is there to purify himself through religious ritual while she is now employed to look after the footwear of devotees and tourists. The nihilist film ends with a rising crane shot as the camera can only avert its gaze and escape, tilting up along a temple wall towards an open sky.

Debshishu

aka The Child God
 1985 100' col Hindi
d/s/m Utpalendu Chakraborty pc NFDC
c Soumendu Roy
lp Smita Patil, Sadhu Meher, Rohini Hattangadi, Om Puri, Shyamanand Jalan, Sushant Sanyal

Intended as an indictment of religious intolerance, the film is set on the frontier between West Bengal and Bihar. In a fairground, a child with three heads is exhibited as a miracle-performing child god. A poor peasant, Raghubir (Meher), and his wife Seeta (Patil) hope that the child will alleviate their suffering. However, Raghubir then discovers that the misshapen child was borne by his own wife who sold the infant for 30 rupees. Raghubir indignantly demands to be given half of that sum and, when he cannot get it, he beats Seeta in the hope that she will give birth to another misshapen child.

Ghul ami

1985 199' col/scope Hindi
d/s J.P. Dutta pc Habib and Faruq Nadiadwala dial O.P. Dutta lyr Gulzar c Ishwar Bidri
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Dharmendra, Reena Roy, Smita Patil, Om Shivpuri, Mazhar Khan, Bharat Kapoor, Anita Raj, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Raza Murad, Mithun Chakraborty, Naseeruddin Shah

Violent ruralist melodrama about Rajput oppression in the desert of Rajasthan. The hero Ranjit Singh (Dharmendra), son of a Jat farmer, leads a popular rebellion against the corrupt zamindar (Shivpuri) and his three nephews. The hero is aided by a policeman (Kharbanda) whose son had been killed by the nephews, and an army officer from a Jat regiment (Chakraborty) who decides to use his military skills to defend his community from the rapacious Thakurs. On the side of the zamindar is his son-in-law, the police officer Sultan Singh (Shah). However, the cop's wife Sumitra (Patil) is sympathetic to Ranjit Singh's cause. The Jats' objective is to capture and burn the account ledgers of the moneylending thakur community to free themselves from bonded labour. They eventually succeed though the hero dies, leaving his wife Moran (Reena Roy) and infant son to continue the struggle. Rajasthan's arid desert landscape, its vultures and shots of the famous folk fair at Pushkar (a major tourist attraction) give the film both an exotic and a primitivist atmosphere. However, it went beyond poetic metaphor in several inflammatory scenes addressing the region's charged communal situation. The scene where the hero's mother rushes into the villain's house to save her son without taking off her slippers, and is then humiliated by being forced to put the slippers on her head and walk out, led to riots in several small cities in Rajasthan.

Hakim Babu

1985 163' col Oriya
d/sc Pranab Das p Amiya Patnaik st Bibhuti Patnaik dial Bijoy Mishra lyr Sibabrata Das
c Rajan Kinagi m Saroj Patnaik lp Ajit Das, Dolly (Bijoya) Jena, Bijoy Mohanty, Jaya, Jayi, Hemant Das, Sujata Anand

Sidhu Majhe, former bonded labourer and murdered and member of a 'scheduled' tribe, gets a much-covered job in the Indian Administrative Service following the government's policy of 'positive discrimination' (better known as the Mandal Commission recommendations). In the process he is forced to marry a sophisticated urban woman and loses contact with his social origins. The loss is emphasised when members of his community are evicted from their land. The film was attacked for its anti-tribal and anti-reservation biases.

Hamara Shaheer

aka Bombay Our City 1985 82' col Hindi/Tamil/English/Marathi
d/p/s/co-c Anand Patwardhan co-c Vijay Khambati, Pervez Mehrwanji, Venugopal Thakker Hindi voice-over Deepa Arora, Rita Bhatia, Supriya Pathak, Om Puri, Naseeruddin Shah, Rahul Varma

Patwardhan's most acclaimed documentary, made on 16mm, tells of Bombay's millions of pavement-dwellers. Throughout the early 80s there were several brutal efforts to evict families who lived in illegal tenements and on pavements although they provided the city with the casual (esp. construction) labour crucial to its economy. The film looks at the culture of Bombay's elite, often contrasting what they say with the physical conditions in which they say it: the former municipal commissioner bemoans the lack of space in the city while his pet dog trots around his spacious garden; the Police Commissioner Julio Ribeiro, in a speech at the Advertising Club, talks about the poor as 'low-quality, low-intelligence' people. The pavement-dwellers work in the construction industry in the city's expensive Nariman Point area on land reclaimed from the sea, while massing clouds on the horizon evoke the possibility of an unbalanced environment which may cause tidal waves to wash away their seaside huts. The film achieves epic dimensions in three remarkable sequences. Street urchins sell the Indian flag on a rainy Independence Day, keeping their precious commodities dry while the huge Gothic facade of the Victoria Terminus presides over a police march-past; in the thick of the monsoon, a child in one of the homeless families dies; a woman pavement-dweller's angry outburst at the film-makers, all highlight the issues involved in the making of this type of documentary.

Hamara Shaheer

Irakal

aka Victims
1985 142' col Malayalam
d/s K.G. George pc M.S. Prod. p M. Sukumaran c Venu m M.B. Srinivasan lp Ganesan, Srividya, Thilakan, Chandran Nair, Gopi, Ashokan, Nedumudi Venu, Venu Nagavalli, P.E. George

A ruthless rubber baron, Mathukutty (Thilakan), disregards the prevailing moral standards and spawns criminal sons as well as a sexually wayward daughter, Annie (Srividya). His son, called Baby (Ganesan), is a psychotic strangler using a nylon wire and is eventually brutally shot dead by his repentant father.

Jeevana Chakra

1985 157' col Kannada
d/sc H.R. Bhargava pc Kalakrithi st Prabhakara Reddy dial/lyr Chi. Udayashankar c D.V. Rajaram m Rajan-Nagendra lp Vishnuvardhan, Radhika, Vijayakashi, Saroja, Ramesh Bhatt, C.R. Simha, Sudhir, Chi. Udayashankar, Shankar Rao, Jayamalini, Anuradha, Janaki, Jayashree, Bharani, Sivaprakash, Suryakumar, BEML Somanna, Janardan, Ramdas

Melodrama about a loyal subaltern's selfless service to his master. Ranga (Vishnuvardhan), a 'rowdy', is reformed by a woman (Radhika) who materialises out of nowhere in order to take charge of his life. Employed in a factory, Ranga demonstrates his loyalty by forming a pro-management union and persuading workers to discard their red flags, thus saving the company from bankruptcy. The proprietor dies, leaving his wealth as well as his wife and son to Ranga's care. In old age, Ranga faces the resentment of the proprietor's grown-up son as well as his own daughter's ingratitude. When his own wife dies, he hands over his wealth to the proprietor's son and leaves. The heroine's relation to the hero is structured as resembling a female fan's fantasy for her favourite star, not uncommon in star-centered films.

Kil ippattu

aka Song of the Parrot
1985 121' col Malayalam
d/sc Raghavan pc Revathy Chitra st/dial/lyr K.M. Raghavan Nambiar c Vipin Das m M.B. Srinivasan lp Nedumudi Venu, Sukumaran, K.P. Ummer, Sabitha Anand, Balan K. Nair, Adoor Bhasi, Chandran Nair, Philomina, Manavalan Joseph

The prolific actor Raghavan's directorial debut is set at festival time in a North Kerala village. The corpse of a young woman, presumed to be the temple-keeper's daughter, is found in a well. A trade union activist is arrested and dies in police custody, after which the temple-keeper's daughter turns up alive to everyone's embarrassment. However, she is later killed and her body found in the well during the next festival. In an ending reminiscent of Nirmalaya (1973), the distraught temple-keeper frenziedly strikes himself with a sacred sword during the performance of his ritual duties.

Ki anta Aparanha

aka Tired Afternoon
1985 93' col Oriya
d/sc Manmohan Mahapatra pc Dynamic Studios st Nandlal Mahapatra c Ranajit Roy m Shantanu Mahapatra lp Sachidananda Rath, Kanak Panigrahi, Madhukar, Kishori Devi, Master Sushil

Two parallel tragic love stories continue Mahapatra's bleak portrayal of rural Orissa. Two local schoolteachers, Niru and Sandhya, see their respective marriage proposals break down. Niru is the daughter of the poor landowner Adikanta, who mortgages his land to raise the dowry for his daughter's marriage to an urban youth; however, the dowry offered is not enough. Sandhya loves Ashok who moves to the city, but she cannot move with him since her family depends on her income for its survival. The best moments are with Niru's ancient grandmother (Kishori Devi), esp. in the film's most spontaneous sequence when she is presented with a pair of spectacles.

Mard

1985 177' col Hindi
d Manmohan Desai pc MKD Films, Asia Films st Prayag Raj sc K.K. Shukla dial Inder Raj Anand lyr Rajinder Krishan c Peter Pereira m Annu Malik lp Amitabh Bachchan, Amrita Singh, Nirupa Roy, Dara Singh, Prem Chopra

The son, Raju Tangewala (Bachchan), of a dispossessed rajah is given the name 'Mard', i.e. Man, and has it tattooed on his chest as a sign of virility. Mard rebels against the British who are presented as robbers and property developers, the favourite Hindi film villains of this period. In keeping with a characteristic Desai plot device, Raju is raised by foster-parents who, just before dying, inform their adopted son of his 'real' ancestry. The leather-clad daughter (Amrita Singh) of a doctor in the service of the British first whips the hero and then falls in love with him. The British villains are called Dyer and Simon, names still associated with the general responsible for the Jallianwala Bagh massacre (referred to in the film) and the leader of the Simon Commission. Desai juxtaposes these references with the more arbitrary introduction of Roman gladiators and Mexican bandits. Made immediately after Coolie (1983), marked by Bachchan's near fatal accident, Mard went to unusual lengths to demonstrate the invincibility of the hero, invoking colonialism and feudal oppression to affirm that he whom the gods protect cannot be destroyed.

Mayuri

1985 142' col Telugu
d/co-sc Singeetham Srinivasa Rao pc Usha Kiron Movies st Usha Kiron Movies Unit co-sc/dial Ganesh Patro lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c A. Hari
m S.P. Balasubramanyam lp Sudha Chandran, Subhakar, P.L. Narayana, Y. Vijaya, Nirmala

Melodrama about a classical dancer who, after an accident, has a leg amputated. With an artificial leg known as the Jaipur foot, she returns to dancing and regains her earlier reputation. The film was promoted as a fictionalised version of the real-life story of its lead actress, Sudha Chandran. Other characters include a henpecked father, a cruel stepmother and a boyfriend who is the cause of the accident and promptly abandons Mayuri when she becomes a cripple, adding to her determination to regain her lost self-respect.

Meenamasathil e Sooryan

aka Midsummer Sun
1985 117' col Malayalam
d/s Lenin Rajendran p C.G. Bhaskaran pc Sauhudra Chitra c Shaji N. Karun
m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Gopi, Venu Nagavalli, Vijay Menon, Murali, Ravi, Shobhana

Told in flashback, this is the story of how four fine young men achieved communist political consciousness in a peasant rising against a villainous landlord in 1943 in Kerala. The men, played by Menon, Murali, Nagavalli and Ravi, receive the revolutionary word from the schoolteacher (Gopi) and spread the message among the ignorant villagers. They end up as revered heroes condemned to be hanged by the British for treason. When asked for their last wish, they all ask to see their beloved teacher once more. The story was adapted, without credit, from Niranjana's epic novel Chirasmrane (1955). Director Rajendran later contested two general elections backed by the Kerala CPI(M), from whose viewpoint he tells this tale.

☞ Mirch Masala

aka Spices

1985 128' col Hindi

d Ketan Mehta pc NFDC st Chunilal Madia sc Hriday Lani, Tripurari Sharma lyr Babubhai Ranpura c Jehangir Choudhury m Rajat Dholakia

lp Naseeruddin Shah, Smita Patil, Om Puri, Suresh Oberoi, Deepti Naval, Benjamin Gilani, Raj Babbar, Mohan Gokhale, Supriya Pathak, Dina Pathak, Ratna Pathak, Ram Gopal

Following its commercial release in New York this became Mehta's best-known film outside India. Intended as an allegory of colonial oppression but presented as a sex-and-violence drama, the film is set in pre-Independence Saurashtra. The despotic tax collector Subedar (Shah), dressed in a way that evokes British 19th C. catchpenny prints and Daumier's cartoons, imposes his rule on a village. All the villagers try to satisfy his every whim, except for the protesting schoolteacher (Gilani). The drama starts when the beautiful Sonbai (Patil) is to be surrendered to the lecherous Subedar. She takes refuge in the courtyard of a spice factory run entirely by women and is protected by an aged watchman (Om Puri) who closes the gates to Subedar's men. Although made in Hindi, the film draws on Gujarati verbal and performative idioms. Mehta explicitly deployed stock literary melodrama characters, but these clichés from contemporary popular culture lack the historical resonance achieved by the more complex figures Mehta used in his extraordinary Bhavni Bhavai (1980).

☞ Muhurtam At 11.30

1985 138' col Malayalam

d Joshi pc Saj Prod. s Kalloor Dennis lyr Poovachal Khader c N.A. Tara m Shyam lp Mammootty, Ratheesh, Prathap Chandran,

Saritha, Baby Shalini, Surekha, Lalitha, Lalu
Alex, Kunjan, V.D. Rajappan, Jagathi Srikumar

Melodrama by one of Malayalam cinema's foremost practitioners in the art. Love triangle featuring the good doctor Haridas (Mammootty), his new receptionist and ex-wife Indu and his rival (and Indu's cousin) Jayan. The doctor believes that the child born to Indu is not his. Jayan dies of a heart attack, shortly after a major operation, followed by Indu: the doctor realises his suspicions were groundless, but is too late to prevent the tragedy.

☞ Muthal Mariyathai

aka A Matter of Honour aka Prime Honour

1985 161' col Tamil

d/p/sc P. Bharathirajaa pc Manoj Creations st/dial R. Selvaraj lyr Vairamuthu c B. Kannan
m Ilaiyaraja

lp Sivaji Ganesan, Radha, Vadivukkarasi, Ranjini, Sathyaraj, Janakaraj, Deepan, Veeraswamy, Aruna, Soorya, Ilavarasi, Ramanathan, Senapati, Muthaiah, Kanchana

A relentless melodrama told in flashback as the saintly landlord Malaichami (Ganesan) lies dying. Beset by a shrewish wife, Ponnatha (Vadivukkarasi), who cannot cook and who was pregnant by another man (Sathyaraj) when she married the hero, Malaichami falls in love with a fisherman's young daughter, Kuyil (Radha). She kills Ponnatha's lover and goes to jail, emerging under police escort to meet a dying Malaichami, who clings to life until she returns. A second tragic love story involves Malaichami's evil son-in-law who is a rapist and a murderer. The 'matter of honour' that the title suggests was however Bharathirajaa's first film with Ganesan, and it opens with a documentary homage to the star.

☞ Nanand Bhojai

1985 161' col Rajasthani

d/sc Prabhakar Mandloi pc Kamal Kala Mandir st Ansuya Vyas dial Madhukar Mandloi, Kundan Kishore lyr B.L. Vyas c Arvind Dave m Jugalkishore-Tilakraj

lp Neelu, Dhiraj Kumar, Gouri, Sunil Pandey, Adi Irani, Satyen Kappoo, Shubha Khote, Ramesh Deo, Bharat Bhushan, Aruna Irani

Neo-traditionalist melodrama pivoting on the relationship between sisters-in-law, but also including brotherly and parental relations. Poonam (Neelu), with the financial help of her Muslim friend Rasool, marries Vijay (Dheraj) despite the evil machinations of her rejected suitor Rocky. When Vijay goes to look for work in the city, Vijay's sister, manipulated by the villainous Rocky, persecutes the heroine. The familiar theme (esp. in Gujarati cinema: cf. Punatar's bilingual of the same title, 1948) confirmed Rajasthani star Neelu's image of 'goodness' in family melodramas (cf. Supattar Binani, 1981, and Bai Chali Sasariye, 1988). Made with mainly Bombay film actors and modelled on Hindi cinema except for some narrative emphases such as the approach to the dowry problem: in Hindi films, dowries are increasingly seen as anti-modern and assigned to oppressive feudalism, whereas it is a more urgent issue in Rajasthan.

☞ Nanu Nanna Hendthi

1985 145' col Kannada

d/s D. Rajendra Babu pc Eshwari Prod. co-dial N.S. Rao co-dial/lyr Hamsalekha

c R. Madhusudhan m Shankar-Ganesh lp Ravichandran, Urvashi, Leelavathi, N.S. Rao, Umashree, Chandru, Somu, Krishnagowda,
Anuradha

A fantasy scenario of a female fan's encounter with her favourite hero (cf. Jeevana Chakra, 1985). A singing star (Ravichandran) claims to be married when renting a house and now has to produce a wife. A strange woman comes into his life and takes charge. Although her behaviour is eventually provided with a motivation, the nurturing role she adopts and the liberties she takes with him are mainly part of the genre's fantasy structure designed to boost the male star's image. The film, probably future composer Hamsalekha's debut as songwriter, announces the megahit Premaloka (1987), also a collaboration with Ravichandran.

☞ New Delhi Times

1985 123' col Hindi

d/co-st Ramesh Sharma

pc P.K. Communications co-st K. Bikram Singh co-st/sc Gulzar c Subrata Mitra m Louis Banks lp Shashi Kapoor, Sharmila Tagore, Om Puri, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, A.K. Hangal, Manohar Singh, M.K. Raina, Farrokh Mehta

A political thriller examining the links between crime and politics in a north Indian state. The editor of the English-language New Delhi Times, Vikas Pande (Kapoor) has to confront the politician Ajay Singh (Puri) who is associated with a powerful lobby of illicit liquor manufacturers. The trail of murders, sequestrations in insane asylums, beatings and the instigation of communal riots by political henchmen eventually leads to the corrupt chief minister, D.N. Trivedi. Made in the style of Costa-Gavras's films and of Pakula's All the President's Men (1976), the film is inspired by the case of the Indian Express whose editor Arun Shourie exposed the criminal links of Maharashtra's chief minister, A.R. Antulay. The owner of the Indian Express, R.N. Goenka, is the figure evoked in the film by Vikas's boss, the publisher Jagannath Poddar (M. Singh). The film faced official censorship when Doordarshan initially refused to broadcast it.

Aruna (left) and Sivaji Ganesan in Muthal Mariyathai

Paroma/Parama

1985 134'[B]/138'[H] col Bengali/Hindi
d/s Aparna Sen pc Usha Ents lyr Gulzar
c Ashok Mehta m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Raakhee, Sandhya Rani Chatterjee, Aparna Sen, Mukul Sharma, Dipankar De, Anil Chatterjee, Bharati Devi, Chitti Ghosal, Manas Mukherjee Jr, Arjun Guha-Thakurta

Sen followed up her directorial debut, 36 Chowringhee Lane (1981) with this story about a 40-year-old married woman, Parama (Raakhee) who falls in love with Rahul (Sharma), an expatriate photo-journalist working for glossy magazines who photographs her making her look glamorous. Their affair, and the invasion of the glamour machine into her life, becomes a problem when some of the photographs, earlier admired by the family, are published in a journal. Parama is rejected by her husband and has a mental breakdown. In the end, a doctor suggests prescribing psychiatric treatment and when Parama adamantly refuses any sense of guilt, her young daughter comes and gives her mother moral support. The film is notable mainly for its emancipatory thrust, undermined by a class-inflected sense of nostalgia for 'belonging', rather than for its cinematic qualities which are akin to the kitschy style of glossy consumer magazines. The Bengali version, shown in Calcutta amid much controversy, was successful; the Hindi version received a fitful release.

Ram Teri Ganga Mail i

1985 178' col/scope Hindi
d/st/ed Raj Kapoor pc RK Films and Studios p Randhir Kapoor co-sc/dial K.K. Singh co-sc Jyoti Swaroop, V.P. Sathe co-lyr/m Ravindra Jain co-lyr Hasrat Jaipuri, Ameer Qazalbaksh c Radhu Karmakar lp Rajiv Kapoor, Mandakini, Divya Rana, Saeed Jaffrey, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Raza Murad

The last film Raj Kapoor directed (his elder son Randhir directed Henna which was released in 1991 under Raj Kapoor's name). The son of the evil industrialist Jiwababu (Kharbanda), Naren (Rajiv Kapoor, Raj's youngest son making his debut) falls for Ganga (Mandakini), a country girl from the mountains, but is forced by his family to abandon her when she becomes pregnant. Much of the rest of the film is an elaboration of the metaphor of the 'purity' of

Mandakini in Ram Teri Ganga Maili

'Ganga' - the Indian name of the holy Ganges river, originating in the girl's native village and the setting for the narrative, Gangotri - who has been 'soiled' by the corrupted political leaders of modern India, exemplified mainly by Bhagwat Choudhury (Murad), a vile politician whose daughter Radha (Rana) is to marry Naren. Ganga, now an abandoned single mother, falls prey to a brothel madam who tries to sell her and a temple priest who tries to rape her. In Varanasi she is sold to a 'kotha' and, eventually, is bought by Choudhury to be his mistress. The final reunion of the lead couple takes place with the support of Naren's canny Uncle Kunjbehari (Jaffrey). Kapoor's obsessive preoccupation with the soiling of 'pure' womanhood extends his 70s explorations of the same theme (cf. Satyam Shivam Sundaram, 1978).

Sagar

aka Saagar
 1985 215' col/scope Hindi
d Ramesh Sippy pc United Producers, Sippy Films p G.P. Sippy s/lyr Javed Akhtar
c S.M. Anwar m R.D. Burman lp Rishi Kapoor, Kamalhasan, Dimple Kapadia, Nadira, Saeed Jaffrey, Madhur Jaffrey, A.K. Hangal, Shafi Inamdar

Sippy pays homage to Raj Kapoor's Bobby (1973) in recasting its famous teenaged lead pair while celebrating Dimple Kapadia's return to films. Set in a coastal fishing community, Raja (Kamalhasan) loves childhood sweetheart Mona (Kapadia), but she falls for Ravi (Kapoor), heir to the industrial house controlled by his autocratic grandmother (M. Jaffrey, noted author of Indian cookbooks). The family's trawler business is set to ruin the fisherfolk, mapping a love triangle onto class differences. In the end, Raja sacrifices himself. Kamalhasan, in his last major film appearance in a Bombay-production, often quotes Chaplin in a tragi-comic performance.

Samandar am

aka Parallel
 1985 117' col Malayalam
d/sc John C. Shankaramangalam pc Sudarshan st Ms M. Shankaramangalam c Prabhat Parida, Santosh Sivan m Jerry Amaldev lp Soorya, Babu Namboodiri, Sai Das, Balan K. Nair, T.R.K. Menon, Mathews, Leela Panicker

A film by the dean of the FTII warning against student romances. The university student Susan notices disturbing signs of cowardice in her boyfriend Jose but marries him anyway. He turns into a brutal business executive and a wife-beater. The husband's deterioration is further emphasised in contrast with communist radical Mohan, Susan's former hero. After suffering her husband's brutalities as long as she can bear, she finally plucks up the courage to leave him on Christmas Eve.

☞ Sindhu Bhairavi

1985 159' col Tamil

d/s K. Balachander p Rajam Balachander, V. Natarajan pc Kavithalaya Prod.

lyr Vairamuthu c Raghunatha Reddy

m Ilaiyaraaja

lp Sivakumar, Delhi Ganesh, Janakaraj,

T.S. Raghavendran, Prathap Pothan,

Suhasini, Sulakshana, Manimala,

Sivachandran, Indira, Meera

Musical melodrama in the genre of Dasari Narayana Rao's Megha Sandesam (1982) and K. Vishwanath's revivalist stories advocating 'traditional' notions of 'classical' artistry. The classical singer J.K. Balaganapathi (Sivakumar) falls in love with Sindhu (Suhasini in one of her best known screen roles), a folk-music teacher. His barren wife Bhairavi (Sulakshana) attempts suicide and he renounces his affair, only to seek refuge in drink, which entails degrading scenes such as a forced strip tease and the singing of non-classical folk songs in exchange for alcohol. Bhairavi then sacrifices herself for the sake of her husband's music and asks Sindhu to help save the artist. Nevertheless, the film follows the convention of passing off male infantilism as evidence of a commitment to 'traditional values'. Women sacrificing themselves for the sake of an immature man's singing ability can be seen, against the grain of the film, as raising critical questions about arrogantly patriarchal fantasies, mainly through the performances of the two main female protagonists.

☞ Thinkal azhcha Nal I a Divasam

aka Monday the Good Day

1985 126' col Malayalam

d/s P. Padmarajan pc Sunitha Prod. c Vasant Kumar m Shyam lp Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Mammootty, Karamana Janardanan Nair, Sasangan, Srividya, Unnimary, Ashokan, Kukku Parameswaran, Madhavi, Achakunhu

A family gathers in its spacious ancestral home to celebrate their lonely mother's (Ponnamma) 60th birthday. Jealousies and rivalries erupt focusing on who will inherit the house. The old mother is placed in an institution for geriatrics and dies, leaving the next generation guilt-ridden, but her grandchildren nevertheless appreciate living in the big house.

☞ Trikaal

aka Past, Present and Future

1985 137' col Hindi

d/sc Shyam Benegal p Lalit M. Bijlani, Freni M. Variava pc Blaze Film Ents dial Shama Zaidi

lyr Ila Arun c Ashok Mehta m Vanraj Bhatia

lp Leela Naidu, Naseeruddin Shah, Neena Gupta, Anita Kanwar, Dalip Tahil, Soni Razdan, Sushama Prakash, K.K. Raina, Keith Stevenson, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Maqsoom Alie, Sabira Merchant

Ruiz Pereira (Shah) returns to his native Goa and visits the old mansion where he spent his youth. The film nostalgically evokes in flashback the hybrid Portuguese-Indian colonial world in terms of adolescent passions and complicated wedding arrangements. Intended as a Bergman-like saga of a family, using extensive quotations from his film-making style including candle-lit sequences as the entire family sits down to a festive dinner. Goa's best-known pop singer Remo Fernandes wrote the number Panch vorsam in Konkani for this film, but it was actually used in an adapted Hindi version.

☞ Yathra

1985 124' col Malayalam

d/sc/c Balu Mahendra pc Prakkat Films

st/dial John Paul lyr O.N.V. Kurup

m Ilaiyaraaja

lp Mammootty, Shobhana, Adoor Bhasi, Thilakan, Kunjan

Tragic love story between a forest officer (Mammootty) and village belle Tulsi (Shobhana). Arrested for the murder of his best friend, a crime he did not commit, the forest officer goes to jail while freeing his fiancée from any commitment to their planned marriage. However, when he is finally released she is waiting for him. Apparently inspired partly by Alan Parker's Midnight Express (1978), Yoji Yamada's Shiwase No Kiroi Hankuchi [Yellow Handkerchief of Happiness] (1978) and The Sound of Music (1965) the love story reinforces much of the fatalism often associated with Mammootty's screen persona.

☞ Amma Ariyan

aka Report to Mother

1986 115' b&w Malayalam

d/s John Abraham pc Odessa Movies c Venu m Sunitha

lp Joy Mathew, Maji Venkitesh, Nilambur Balan, Harinarayanan, Kunhulakshmi Amma, Itingal Narayani, Nazim, Ramachandran Mokeri, Kallai Balan, Thomas, Venu C. Menon

Abraham's last and most complex film is told in the form of an open letter from a son, Purushan (Mathew), to his mother (Kunhulakshmi) while interweaving fact and fiction with fragments of memory. Purushan sets out for Delhi with his friend Paru (Venkitesh), who is researching a thesis on Durga, the mother goddess, a figure traditionally though ambiguously representing the cohesive forces of nature. Along the way they find a hanged man (Harinarayan) who seems hauntingly familiar, a suicide. Reconstructing the identity of the corpse takes Purushan, and a growing body of young men who all have a stake in the youth's history, from the northern highlands of Kerala to Southern Cochin and ends with a re-evaluation of a generation's radical past. Along the way, Abraham filmed an actual quarry workers' strike, echoing Kerala's troubled 70s, and manages to endow both the journey and the central character with broader historical resonances in a manner reminiscent of the director's master, Ritwik Ghatak's Jukti Takko Aar Gappo (1974): a style full of irony and with a free-wheelingly innovative approach to sound and to narrative structures. The first production of the Odessa group, it was made entirely through raising funds from public contributions, supported by the Kerala

State Film Development Corporation. Abraham's death, shortly after the film was made, elevated it to cult status while also merging together the fate of the director with that of the main protagonist, both strongly inflected with Christian themes of innocence and martyrdom.

☞ Anjuman

1986 140' col Hindi

d/s Muzaffar Ali p Shobha M. Doctor c Ishan Arya m Khayyam lp Shabana Azmi, Farouque Shaikh, Rohini Hattangadi, Shaukat Kaifi, Mushtaq Khan

Social melodrama about the plight of chikan-embroiderers in decaying Lucknow, the setting of Ali's Umrao Jaan (1981). The sensitive Anjuman (Azmi) does chikan work to augment her extended family's income. She is courted by a phoney poet, Banke Nawab (Khan), who has control over the chikan workers, but she falls in love with her wealthy but weak neighbour Sajjid (Shaikh). Encouraged by her doctor friend Suchitra Sharma (Hattangadi), Anjuman demands fair treatment for the chikan workers but the pressure on her to marry the exploitative Banke grows. She finally says 'No' during the wedding ceremony and has to face the wrath of Banke who incites a riot among the Muslims in the town. Anjuman then becomes a feminist labour activist and earns the admiration of her beloved Sajjid.

☞ Avanazhi

1986 156' col/scope Malayalam

d I.V. Sasi pc Saj Prod. s T. Damodaran c V. Jayaram m Shyam lp Mammootty, Geetha, Nalini, Seema, Captain Raju, Paravoor Bharathan, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Janardhanan, Jagannath Varma, Sukumaran, Sattar

Sasi's demented melodrama repeating his theme of corruption in Kerala politics (cf. Eenadu, 1982; Vartha, 1986), and seminal text determining Mammootty's screen persona. He plays the police inspector Balaram, who is personally honest but not opposed in principle to corruption. Framed for the murder of the student Unni, who died in police custody, Balaram loses his girlfriend Usha (Nalini) and faces the enduring hostility of Unni's sister Radha (Seema). The film's key villain is the businessman and politician Vincent, whose partner, the corrupt lawyer Jayachandran, happens to be Usha's new husband. Completing the key ensemble is the prostitute Seeta (Geetha), who was forced by the bad guys into prostitution and now lives with Balaram. In a relentless series of brutal encounters, personal vendettas merge with political rivalries. In the end, the true killer of the student turns out to be the politically influential murderer Sathyaraj (Captain Raju). Balaram hunts him down, and in the process becomes responsible for the killing of the pregnant Seeta. The most notable aspect of the film is its view of corruption as something that has seeped into every aspect of Kerala society, to a point where even the film is unable to restrict its subject-matter. The hero is presented throughout as essentially unpleasant, who warns Usha not to take up a job as university lecturer, and later refuses to acknowledge having fathered Seeta's child. The film's plot in both instances vindicates the hero's stand (e.g. when Usha is attacked by a student) without making any effort to render it in any way morally palatable. Sasi's usual alternative is an enormous excess of plot, as the complicated roles of different characters merge and interconnect to the point of vertigo. Like his other films, here too there are no neat endings, as the hero's arrest (repeating an enhanced version of Don Siegel's Dirty Harry, 1971) leaves the futures of most of the characters largely unresolved.

Ek Pal

aka A Moment

1986 135' col Hindi

d/co-p/co-sc Kalpana Lajmi pc Atma Ram

Films co-p/m Bhupen Hazarika st Maitreyi

Devi co-sc/dial/lyr Gulzar c K.K. Mahajan lp Shabana Azmi, Naseeruddin Shah,

Farouque Shaikh, Shriram Lagoo, Dina Pathak, Sreela Majumdar

Kalpana Lajmi's directorial debut tells a story of extramarital sex in the tea gardens of Assam. Priyam (Azmi), married to the staid but loving Ved (Shah), has an affair with her former boyfriend Jeet (Shaikh) while her husband is away. She becomes pregnant. Having already had one miscarriage, she is determined to keep the baby despite her boyfriend's protests. On his return, Ved eventually accepts both his unfaithful wife and her baby. Lajmi explained that she set the story in Assam to link the heroine's innocence and later loneliness with the environment, but the easier if less sympathetic explanation is reviewer Aloknanda Datta's (in Splice, July 1986) suggestion that the gardens merely provide an exotic backdrop. Famous Assamese singer-composer Hazarika contributes some fine compositions, overcoming the mandatory emphasis on regional folk-music in films set in exotic locales.

Gandhinagar 2nd Street

1986 137' col Malayalam

d/s Sathyan Andhikkad pc Casino Prod.

lyr Bichu Thirumala c Bipin Mohan m Shyam lp Mohanlal, Srinivasan, Seema, Mammooty,

Karthika, Thilakan

Mohanlal comedy and one of Andhikkad's biggest hits. The simpleton Sethu (Mohanlal) finds employment as a security guard, hired by a street neighbourhood. The first part of the film is a straightforward sit-com as his friend Madhavan (Srinivasan) masquerades as a thief to raise Sethu's stock with his employers; the plan misfires and Madhavan gets a sound thrashing. Things take a more serious turn as Sethu's former girlfriend Maya (Karthika) moves into one of the houses on the street with her police chief father (Thilakan). The lovers had parted when Sethu tried to seduce Maya, following misguided advice that the best way to get her father to agree to their marriage was to get her pregnant first. Sethu makes an enemy of the entire neighbourhood when he uses violence to rescue Maya from the unwanted attentions of one of the street denizens. He is protected by the schoolteacher Nirmala (Seema), leading to allegations of an illicit sexual relationship between them. However, her husband (Mammooty) arrives from the Gulf, and sorts everything out. The plot somewhat gratuitously reveals Maya at the end to be a widow, whose husband died a week after their wedding. It does so mainly to allow the film to end on a tragic note, as Sethu too leaves for the Gulf unable to make concrete promises to his reconciled girl. The film is dominated by Mohanlal's energetic performance and the comic dialogue (interspersing Hindi with Malayalam). Sequels with the same characters were Nadodikattu (1987) and Pattana Praveshanam (1988), both by Andhikkad.

Genesis

1986 109' col Hindi

d/co-p/sc Mrinal Sen pc Scarabee Films (Paris),

Mrinal Sen Prod. (Calcutta), Les Films de la

Drewe (Brussels), Cactus Films (Zurich)

co-pc Film Four (London), SSR (Berne)

co-p Marie Pascale Osterrieth, Palaniappan

Ramasamy, Eliane Stutterheim, Jean-Jacques

Andrien co-sc Mohit Chattopadhyay st Samaresh

Bose dial Surendra P. Singh, Umashankar

Pathik c Carlo Varini m Ravi Shankar

lp Shabana Azmi, Naseeruddin Shah, Om

Puri, M.K. Raina

Whereas Sen's best work derived much strength from being rooted in a specific time and place, giving historical resonances to the particular shapes of the conflicts he depicted, this international co-production mostly financed by European television channels is set in a purely symbolic and timeless space: some ruins in the middle of a desert. A farmer (Shah) and a weaver (Puri) exchange their products for goods provided by a regularly passing trader (Raina). A woman (Azmi) arrives, focusing the two men's desires but also urging them to obtain more recompense from the trader. After a visit to a village fair (exuberantly shot with telling details reminiscent of Sen's earlier work) the two men become more acquisitive and jealousies break out over the now pregnant woman who simply ups and leaves. As the two men fight each other, the trader's men attack and enslave the workers again. The film closes with shots of bulldozers and modern machinery clearing the ground. Sen's timeless parable about the genesis of capitalism, although acted with conviction by the cast, suffers from its abstraction, transforming the characters into stereotypes and reducing the complexities of history to simplified generalities. G. Chakravorty Spivak (1993) provides a postcolonial reading of the film.

Karma

1986 193' col/scope Hindi

d Subhash Ghai pc Mukta Arts lyr Anand

Bakshi m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

lp Dilip Kumar, Nutan, Dara Singh, Anupam

Kher, Jackie Shroff, Naseeruddin Shah, Anil

Kapoor, Tom Alter, Poonam Dhillon, Sridevi, Shakti Kapoor

Dirty Dozen (1967) -style film invoking 'terrorists' backed by 'neighbouring' states. Rana Vishnu Pratap Singh (Kumar) is a benevolent warden of a jail who feels that people become criminals either because they are forced into crime by a corrupt society (in which case they should get a second chance) or through greed (which is unpardonable). His main hatred is reserved for Dr Dang (Kher), head of the Black Star Organisation, a group of international terrorists. The obstreperous Dang arranges to bomb the jail, killing inmates, and during his escape bid Dang massacres Rana's family, except for his wife Seeta (Nutan), who goes dumb with shock, and his youngest son. Rana is put in charge of a special anti-terrorist squad comprising murderers condemned to death: Bajju Thakur (Shroff), Khairu (Shah) and Johnny (A. Kapoor). Rana trains them at a border post in the farmhouse of the former criminal Dharma (Dara Singh). The relationship between the condemned men and their leader forms the bulk of the film, interspersed with love affairs, until the quartet eventually overwhelms the villain's heavily guarded military retreat.

Love and God

1986 141' col Urdu

d K. Asif p K.C. Bokadia, Akhtar Asif s Wajahat

Mirza lyr Kumar Barabankvi, Asad Bhopali

c R.D. Mathur m Naushad

lp Nimmi, Sanjeev Kumar, Simi Garewal,

Jayant, Agha, Nasir Hussain, Pran

This often-filmed Arab love legend of Laila and her lover, released in 1986, could have been Asif's most formally ambitious film had it been completed during his lifetime. As with his Mughal-e-Azam (1960) and in keeping with his grandiose film style, it was in the making for over a decade. When Guru Dutt, who played the lead, died in 1964, the film had to be reshot with Sanjeev Kumar in the lead. When the director died as well, the film was abandoned, then revived by his widow, Akhtar Asif, and finally released in incomplete form. The composer Naushad contributes songs such as Hame kuch raahain khuda de de, Yeh nadanon ki duniya hai yeh diwanon ki mehfil hai. Cameraman R.D. Mathur, formerly of Bombay Talkies, developed his baroque style almost exclusively for Asif's period epics: his camera moves over elaborate desert vistas and complicated sets, including a bravura tracking crane shot lasting almost ten minutes when Qais is rejected by Laila and leaves, the whole town turning out to witness his departure.

Malaya Marutha

aka A Morning Melody

1986 180' col/scope Kannada

d/sc Lalitha Ravi pc Sastry Movies p C.V. Sastry st/dial/co-lyr Chi. Udayashankar co-

lyr Valampuri Somanathan c B. Purshottam

Gopinath m Vijayabhaskar

lp Vishnuvardhan, Madhavi, Saritha,

N. Shivaram, Dinesh, Umesh Kulkarni, Kodai

Lakshminarayana, Jari Venkatram,

Gopalakrishna, Jayamalini, Aswathnarayana, R.K. Suryanarayana, Veenavaruni

A revivalist melodrama in which the artistic soul of a music guru, killed in a road accident, migrates into the aspiring, but hopeless, musician Vishwa (Vishnuvardhan), turning him into a virtuoso capable of realising the guru's dreams. Vishwa is torn between the guru's daughter Sharada (Saritha) and Girija (Madhavi), a popular dancer whose father (Dinesh) exploits Vishwa's talent. Vishwa embarks on building a music college with Sharada's help. Girija donates all her money to the cause, but when Vishwa loses his voice, Sharada teaches him to regain it. An interesting twist to the story is that since Vishwa is the extension of Sharada's father, his relationship with her has incestuous overtones, which the film displaces by suggesting she might be a goddess and having Vishwa marry the self-sacrificing Girija.

☒ Massey Sahib

1986 124' col Hindi
d/sc/co-dial Pradip Krishen p Ravi Malik pc NFDC co-dial Raghuvir Yadav c R.K. Bose
m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Raghuvir Yadav, Barry John, Arundhati Roy, Jacqueline Garewal, Sudhir Kulkarni, Virendra Saxena, Madan Lal, Francis King, Lalloo Ram, Hemant Mishra, Vasant Joglekar, James Ure, David Maurice

Satirical comment on colonial India set in 1929 and featuring a government clerk named Francis Massey (Yadav). Because of his constant interactions with the British, Massey fancies himself to be just like an Englishman. However, he has to deploy extreme financial ingenuity to keep the wolf from the door. When Massey's boss Charles Adam (Barry John) lacks the funds to complete his dream project of building a road through the forest, Massey manages to get the scheme finished through financial skulduggery, persuasion and threats. To his surprise, an unofficial road tax he levies is considered to be corruption by the very boss who had condoned Massey's earlier shenanigans. Frustrated and humiliated, Massey attacks and kills his old friend Banaji when the latter refuses to help. Massey is arrested for murder and Adam advises him to plead guilty to accidental manslaughter, but Massey refuses, assuming that his colonial associations will get him off the hook. Krishen's feature debut reveals many technical inadequacies, but Yadav's fine performance inaugurated a screen image he has maintained ever since.

☒ Mouna Ragam

aka Silent Raga
 1986 145' col Tamil
d/s Mani Rathnam pc Sujatha Prod.
p G. Venkateswaran lyr Vali c P.C. Sriram
m Ilaiyaraaja
lp Mohan, Revathi, Karthik, Kanchana, Vani, Kamala Kamesh, Kalaichelvi, Shakila, Sonia, V.K. Ramaswamy, R. Shankaran, Bhaskar, Rani Patel, Suresh

Rathnam's art-house melodrama just prior to his big-budget breakthrough hit Nayakan (1987). Divya (Revathi) is unable to resign herself to a forced marriage living in Delhi with Chandra Kumar (Mohan). She recalls, in flashback, her carefree days with her first boyfriend, the gangster Manmohan (Karthik), who was shot dead in front of a temple even as she waited inside to marry him. She seeks a divorce, but as the law requires the couple to stay together for a year, they decide to live separately in the same house. After she has nursed her husband back to health following a murderous attack by an employee, the couple decide to stay together. The film inaugurates the Tamil love story genre set outside the state, associated with the director (cf. Roja, 1992), also featuring camerawork typically associated with Rathnam and Sriram: frontal and profile close-ups, set against long shots with fuzzy foreground. Not to be confused with Ambili's Malayalam Mouna Ragam (1983).

☒ Nakhakshathangal

1986 140' col Malayalam
d Hariharan pc Gayathri Cinema p Gayathri Parvathi s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr O.N.V. Kurup c Shaji N. Karun m Ravi lp Vineeth, Monisha, Saleena, Jagannatha Varma, Thilakan, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Jayachandran

The poor orphan Ramu (Vineeth), accompanied by his tyrannical uncle, visits the temple town of Guruvayoor where he falls in love with Gouri (Monisha). Ramu runs away to live near Gouri's village, where she works as a maid for a rich but generous lawyer. The lawyer pays for Ramu's education and employs him as his assistant. However, Lakshmi (Saleena), the lawyer's deaf-mute daughter, falls in love with Ramu. Unable to resolve what he sees as the conflicting demands of love and obligation, Ramu kills himself. The film, noted for its popular music and the presence of the singer Jayachandran, also featured the screen debuts of two University Art Festival discoveries, Vineeth and Monisha.

☒ Namukku Parkkan Munthiri

Thoppukal

1986 137' col Malayalam
d/sc/dial P. Padmarajan pc Ragom Movies p Mani Malliath st K.K. Sudhakaran lyr O.N.V. Kurup m Johnson lp Mohanlal, Shari, Thilakan, Vineeth, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Omana

Two Malayali Christian families settled near Mysore in Karnataka provide the setting for this tragic romance in verse, evoking the biblical 'Song of Solomon'. Solomon (Mohanlal) falls in love with Sofia (Shari), the illegitimate daughter of a nurse now married to an alcoholic railway mechanic (Thilakan). The lovers declaim verse riddled with biblical references as they drive around in a tanker lorry. Sofia's stepfather, priding himself for having married a single parent, is determined to get Sofia to marry his junior colleague and drinking partner. However, when Sofia's mother agrees to a marriage proposal from Solomon's family, the stepfather rapes Sofia and, at the end of the film, he is seen dragging her, still wearing her white bridal dress, towards his vineyards.

☒ Oomai Vizhigal

aka The Dumb Eyes
 1986 176' col/scope Tamil
d R. Aravindraj pc Thirai Chirpi s/p/lyr Aabavanan c A. Rameshkumar m Manoj Gyan lp Vijayakanth, Jaishankar, Karthik, Chandrasekhar, Arunpandian, Kokila, Saritha, Ilavarasi, Srividya

An exploitative expose film by a group of film students using hand-held camera, emphatic lighting and location sound techniques. A man with good political and criminal connections kills women who come and picnic near his mansion. After much bloodletting, the villains are eliminated by an honest cop and a fearless newspaper editor (Jaishankar) as the cop pumps his bullets, in slow motion, into the slasher's body. The gory film is leavened with song and dance numbers and references to violent incidents of Tamil Nadu political life: e.g. the storming of the newspaper office. A song, sung by the editor, later became famous as it was used at political and trade union demonstrations, and later became the theme song for the Tamil Eelam. The film's major impact however was to introduce alumni of the Madras Film Institute into the mainstream Tamil film industry.

☒ Oridathu

aka Somewhere aka And There Was a Village
 1986 112' col Malayalam
d/s G. Aravindan pc Suryakanti Film Makers c Shaji N. Karun lp Nedumudi Venu, Srinivasan, Thilakan, Vineeth, Krishnankutty Nair, Surendra Babu, Kunhandi, Chandran Nair, Soorya, Sitara

Set in the 50s in a remote part of Travancore Cochin, the story tells of a village, rather like the one in Aravindan's Thampu (1978), threatened by electrification. Although the absurdities and the small-minded hypocrisies of village life are depicted with humour, the film produces a strange impression since the conclusion it reaches, that life is better without electricity, also condemns the very existence of cinema as a legitimate means of expression. The key to the film can be found in Aravindan's statement that in the small village where he was born there was no electricity until he was ten years old, and that he felt nostalgic for those pre-pubertal times marked by the memory of people moving about with torches.

☒ Panchagni

aka Five Fires
 1986 141' col Malayalam
d T. Hariharan p G.P. Vijay Kumar, M.G. Gopinath pc Seven Arts Films
s M.T. Vasudevan Nair c Shaji N. Karun
m Ravi
lp Geetha, Mohanlal, Nadia Moidu, Thilakan

As in the romantic socialist realism of Meenamasathile Sooryan (1985), this film extols the virtues of radical political activists but, contrary to Rajendran's film, Hariharan exploits the unpleasant aspects of revolutionary violence. The central figure is Indira (Geetha), imprisoned for murder and on hunger strike. Allowed to visit her dying mother, a former activist in the Independence struggle, on a two-week pass, she encounters unmitigated hostility from some members of her family although her old mother welcomes her warmly. Persecuted by the villagers as well as by the police, Indira eventually turns to a journalist, Rashid (Mohanlal), to unburden herself, recounting the circumstances of her crime. In the politically turbulent 60s in Kerala, she had been a welfare officer who had led a group which hacked to death a particularly vicious landowner. Later, when she is released, she shoots the husband of her best friend for participating in a brutal gang rape of a servant girl. Then she calmly awaits being imprisoned again. The film was a commercial hit.

☞ Pandavapuram

1986 93' col Malayalam
d/p/co-sc G.S. Panicker pc Neo Films st/co-sc Sethu c Diwakar Menon m Mohan lp Jamila, Appu, James, Master Deepak

Based on Sethu's magic-realist novel adapted by the author to the screen, the film refuses to make clear distinctions between quasi-realist, fantastic and symbolic registers of fiction. It tells of a woman teacher in her 30s, Devi (Jamila), whose young son keeps asking questions about his absent father. Devi often loses herself in fantasies which appear to come true. She spends much time on the station platform of the small village, awaiting the arrival of a man from Pandavapuram (it is left unclear whether such a place exists). Someone turns up called Jaran (Appu), meaning 'lover'. Jaran claims to know her and to want to renew their friendship. As the villagers, and especially Devi's friend Unni (James), put pressure on Jaran to leave, Devi locks him in her house. One night, dressed in red, she frenziedly rapes him claiming to be the avenging goddess Durga. The morning after, Jaran vanishes and everybody claims no such man ever arrived in the village. Devi then recommences her ritual of waiting on the station platform.

☞ Papor i

1986 144' col Assamese
d/sc Jahnu Barua pc Patkai Films st Heu-En Barua c Binod Pradhan m Satya Barua, P.P. Vaidyanathan lp Biju Phukan, Gopi Desai, Sushil Goswami, Dulal Roy, Runjun, Amulya Kakoti

Grim melodrama set in the context of the All-Assam Students' Union agitations during the 1983 elections, a familiar setting for mainstream Assamese cinema of the period (cf. Hem Bora's Sankalpa, 1986). Papor i's (Desai) husband Binod (Goswami) is falsely arrested for murder. Her daughter is in hospital, where she eventually dies. Papor i's only support, a police inspector (Phukan), finds the true murderer but cannot arrest him because the killer enjoys political protection. Papor i is raped by a smuggler, her husband is convicted of murder and only an arbitrarily added epilogue, claiming that the husband is eventually freed and the good inspector promoted, brings a glimmer of relief. In his later Halodiya Choraye Baodhan Khaye (1987), Barua again weaves contemporary political events into a melodramatic plot.

☞ Phera

aka The Return
 1986 94' col Bengali
d/sc/p Buddhadev Dasgupta st Narendranath Mitra c Dhruvajyoti Basu m Jyotish Dasgupta lp Subrata Nandy, Alaknanda Dutt, Alaknanda Dasgupta, Aniket Sengupta, Sunil Mukherjee, Devika Mukherjee, Biplab Chatterjee, Kamu Mukherjee, Pradeep Sen

The story of Sasanka (Nandy), a lonely, misanthropic playwright who finds his talent for writing, producing and starring in Bengali jatra theatre waning. His wife Jamuna (D. Mukherjee) leaves the crotchety artist and only his servant RASHU (S. Mukherjee) keeps him company. Into his desiccated environment comes his widowed sister-in-law Saraju (A. Dutt) and her small son Kanu (A. Sengupta). Sexual desire and the friendship of the child restore Sasanka's creative powers.

☞ Rao Saheb

1986 123' col Hindi
d/s Vijaya Mehta p Pahlaj Bajaj st Jaywant Dalvi c Adeep Tandon m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Anupam Kher, Vijaya Mehta, Nilu Phule, Tanvi, Mangesh Kulkarni

Based on the popular play Barrister (1977) by Dalvi, Mehta's film is set in the 20s in a small Maharashtrian town. Rao Saheb (Kher), an English-educated but orthodox barrister, lives with his elder brother and his widowed but vivacious aunt Mausī (Mehta) in an old mansion. Mausī befriends the equally lively young bride living next door, Radhika (Tanvi), who also becomes a widow. Radhika rebels against her bigoted father's attempt to make her conform to the orthodox Brahmin rituals imposed on widows and she becomes a close friend of Rao Saheb. However, he cannot break free from Brahmin custom and marry her. Instead, unable to act according to his convictions, he goes insane while Radhika resigns herself to the cruel existence of a Brahmin widow. The (like all Mehta's cinema) stagey film evokes the plight of progressive liberals who support reform movements regarding widow remarriage but are themselves unable to overcome the social and moral pressures exerted by orthodox traditions.

☞ Samsaram Athu Minsaram

aka Married Life is like Electricity
 1986 145' col Tamil
d/s Visu pc AVM Prod. p M. Saravanan, M. Balasubramanyam lyr Vairamuthu
c N. Balakrishnan m Shankar-Ganesh lp Visu, Raghuvaran, Chandrasekhar, Manorama, Laxmi, Ilavarasi, Madhuri, Kamala Kamesh, Delhi Ganesh

Visu's caste-conscious urban middle-class family drama. Here he plays Ammaiyappa Mudaliar, a salaried employee with a wife, a daughter and three sons, making for four couples in a single household. The daughter, who aspires to a measure of freedom in her marriage, is contrasted with an obediently traditional daughter-in-law (Laxmi). The story approves of Christian-Hindu marriage, clearly features caste identities (e.g. the trouble-shooter figure of the servant Kannamma, played brilliantly by Manorama) and refuses to hide reactionary family ideologies under a progressive cloak. Manorama, the legendary Tamil comedienne, had debuted in the 1950s and has reputedly done over a thousand Tamil films. This film was remade in Hindi as Sansar (T. Rama Rao, 1987) with Aruna Irani in the role. The major hit extended the AVM studio's successes into the 80s.

☞ Sul tanat

1986 153' col/scope Hindi
d/s Mukul S. Anand pc Kapleshwar Films, Arjun Hingorani dial Kadar Khan lyr Anjaan, Hasan Kamal c Pravin Bhatt m Kalyanji-Anandji lp Dharmendra, Sunny Deol, Amrish Puri, Sridevi, Shakti Kapoor, Tom Alter, Karan Kapoor, Dalip Tahil, Juhi Chawla, Padma
 Khanna

Spectacular Arabian Nights revenge fantasy set in a vaguely identifiable Middle East and deploying the exoticism associated with Spielberg's adventure films. The shah's General Khalid (Dharmendra) thwarts the coup for the throne attempted by Razaulli (Puri). Razaulli kidnaps Khalid and his pregnant wife on their way to the hospital. Khalid's wife dies in childbirth and Razaulli proclaims Khalid's son as his own, swapping the infant for his stillborn daughter. Khalid remarries and has another son, Samir (Karan Kapoor), whom he sends abroad vowing never to set eyes on him until Khalid has avenged the death of his first wife. Razaulli's secretly adopted son Sultan (Deol) grows up and falls in love with the shah's daughter, Princess Yasmin (Sridevi). In a complicated denouement, Khalid kills Razaulli and recalls Samir; Shakkir, an ambitious vassal, kills the shah and intercepts the returning Samir and imprisons him. Khalid is taken prisoner by Sultan and they engage in a bloody duel till Razaulli's wife tells them that Khalid is Sultan's real father. Khalid, Sultan and Samir then kill Shakkir. Only then can Khalid die in peace surrounded by his sons. Anand does not shrink from spectacular anachronisms which have become his trademark (cf. his Khuda Gawah, 1992), as he mixes contemporary scenes into this commercially unsuccessful period movie tale.

☞ Susman

aka The Essence
 1986 140' col Hindi
d/p Shyam Benegal pc Association of Co-operatives and Apex Society of Handloom, Sahyadri Films sc Shama Zaidi c Ashok Mehta
m Sharang Dev, Vanraj Bhatia lp Om Puri, Shabana Azmi, Neena Gupta,

Kulbhushan Kharbanda, K.K. Raina, Annu Kapoor, Harish Patel, Mohan Agashe, Ila Arun

A tribute to the 'Ikat' handloom weavers of Pochampally in AP. The film tells of Ramulu (Puri), a master of silk weaving, his family and their tribulations with the co-operative they work in. The drama is sparked off by internal rivalries and the arrival of a government official, a woman (Gupta) looking for items to send to an exhibition in Paris. Complications are provided by Ramulu, who secretly uses some of his allotted silk to make a wedding sari for his daughter, leading to his temporary disgrace. The contrast between artisanal craftsmanship and mass-production techniques is illustrated by the life of Ramulu's son-in-law, who moves away from the family and finds work in a textile factory. The moral of the story is underlined in an interview between a French journalist and Ramulu, the latter trying to explain that a craftsman pours the essence of his soul into his craft. Unlike e.g. Mani Kaul (cf. Mani Manas, 1984) whose 80s work is also animated by similar concerns for dying craft traditions, Benegal's cinema makes no effort to mediate, demystify or even understand the nature of that 'essence'. Produced, like his earlier Manthan (1976), by a marketing co-operative, the film also capitalised on a specifically 80s orientalism brought about by the several Festivals of India and trade fairs of traditional craft in Europe and the USSR.

Tabarana Kathe

aka Tabara's Tale

1986 179' col Kannada
d/sc Girish Kasaravalli pc Apoorva Chitra dia/Poornachandra Tejasvi from his short story
c Madhu Ambat m L. Vaidyanathan lp Charuhasan, Nalina Murthy, Krishnamurthy, Jayaram, Master Santosh

Kasaravalli's multiple-point-of-view melodrama tells the story of Tabara (Charuhasan), a low-ranking worker in a municipal office who espouses colonial views despite his obvious pride in his job in a post-Independence government. Tabara gets into financial trouble when his honesty causes enmity among the coffee planters, and his pension is held up because he has not remitted some taxes that he was supposed to have collected. His wife falls ill and his 'case' becomes a mere file number in a bureaucratic office. The film is narrated from different points of view: the colonial point of view, the bureaucratic one, the view of those who believe Tabara to be mentally deranged and, mainly, the view of the orphan Babu through whose eyes the steel and concrete urban future is presented. Although primarily told in a realist idiom, at times (e.g. the shots of Bangalore and in the municipal office) the camerawork anticipates the surrealism of the sequel, Mane/Ek Ghar (1989).

Thalavattam

1986 147' col Malayalam
d/s Priyadarshan pc Seven Arts Prod.
lyr Poovachal Khader, Pantalam Sudhakaran
c S. Kumar m Raghukumar, Rajamani, Johnson lp Mohanlal, Karthika, Nedumudi Venu, M.G. Soman

Priyadarshan's highly adapted version of Asit Sen's Deep Jewelej Jai (1959) and Khamoshi (1969) following also in the wake of Milos Forman's successful One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest (1975). Mentally deranged hero Vinu (Mohanlal) is admitted to an asylum, where he is befriended by one of the doctors (Venu) who happens to be a childhood buddy. Heroine Savithri (Karthika), also employed in the hospital, falls for the hero in the process of curing him. However, Savithri's tyrannical father (Soman), who owns the asylum, cruelly performs a lobotomy operation on the hero because he fears for his daughter's future. Like all Priyadarshan films, this one too works extensively with flashbacks, using the various drastic shock treatments meted out to the hero as an excuse for some psychedelic musical effects.

Uppu

aka Salt
1986 115' col Malayalam
d Pavithran pc Eranadan Films
s/p K.M.A. Rahim c Madhu Ambat
m Saratchandra Marathe lp P.T. Kumhumohammad, Vijayan Kottarathil, C.V. Sriraman, Madhavan, Jayalalitha, Sadiq, Renu Nair, Bharati, Valsala Menon, Mullenezhi

The wealthy Meleri Moosa (Kottarathil) ruins himself with obsessive litigation. With his daughter Amina (Jayalalitha) and her husband Abu (Kunhumohammad), Meleri crosses the Bharathapuzha river to settle in a new area. There, the wealthy Moidutty Mudalali (Madhavan), with the benediction of the local kazi (religious leader, played by Sriraman), sends his own wife away, lays claim to Amina and marries her, ignoring Abu's protests. Twenty years later, Amina lives alone in a tomb-like mansion while her father happily indulges in civil litigation cases. In addition, her son leads a dissolute life and her daughter elopes with the chauffeur. Scenarist Rahim claimed the film to be a critique of the controversial Muslim personal law in India.

Vartha

1986 163' col/scope Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi pc Grihalakshmi Prod.
s T. Damodaran lyr Bichu Thirumala c Jayanan Vincent m A.T. Ummar, Johnson lp Mammootty, Mohanlal, Seema, Rehman, Nalini

The fearless newspaper editor Madhavan Kutty (Mammootty) takes on Kerala's corrupt political establishment in order to vindicate his sweetheart Radha (Seema), the district collector accused of illegal practices. The villain is the owner of the Manikyam financial group, who appears to control the state's entire bureaucratic and political apparatus. Personal rivalries weave into political conflict as Manikyam implicates Radha's kid brother Unni in a smuggling operation. Eventually, when all legal means fail, the editor, the kid brother and Vasu (Mohanlal), a reformed gangster formerly in Manikyam's employ, establish a secret hideout where they assemble the documents that would appear to indict virtually everybody in power of criminal conspiracies. The film's dramatic and wholly unexpected end has all the good guys gunned down by corrupt cops, making the fight for justice a virtually hopeless cause.

Anantaram

aka Monologue
1987 125' col Malayalam
d/s Adoor Gopalakrishnan
p K. Ravindranathan Nair pc General Pics c Ravi

Mammootty (right) in Anantaram

Varma m M.B. Srinivasan

Ip Ashokan, Mammooty, Shobhana, Balan K. Nair, Bahadur, Vempayan, Sooraj, Sudheesh, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Chandran Nair

Gopalakrishnan's experiment with subjective storytelling. The film centres on a young man Ajayan (Ashokan) who narrates two stories about himself in the first person. He was abandoned by his mother, raised by a doctor, and proved himself a consistent misfit. Much of his fantasy, into which the 'reality' of his second story merges, revolves around the figure of his foster-brother's (Mammooty) wife (Shobhana). The film marks a major shift from the director's previous Mukha Mukham (1984) which, despite its critical depiction of politics, retained Gopalakrishnan's commitment to developing a tradition of Kerala melodrama. Anantaram is much more cynical, descending into a subjectivity bordering on the paranoid. Gopalakrishnan says that the film attempts to 'relate an experience', nothing more, of a 'state of intense despair and angst'.

assembled something like a coherent story. Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak (1992) contrasts the book with the film, suggesting that Majumdar's novel 'takes as understood a fully formed ideological subject (and thus) a question that can only be asked by us, as Hindus, of ourselves. This text is exactly not for the outsider who wants to enter with nothing but general knowledge, to have her ignorance sanctioned'. The film, on the other hand, 'shatters this project by staging the burning ghat as a realistic referent carrying a realistic amount of local colour, a stage for a broadly conceived psychodrama played out by easily grasped stock characters.' She accuses the film of being 'an abdication of the responsibility of the national artist, trafficking in national identity (in the name of woman) for international consumption'. Ghosh used another, and equally difficult, literary text for his next film Padma Nadir Majhi (1992), this time by Manik Bandyopadhyay.

music band (Srinath) and tries to rape the band-leader's wife. The film shifts into a second generation as the band-leader's widow brings up her son Raja (Vinodraj) and a music manager (Sundarraj) makes him into a rock star. The villain's daughter (Divya) is the film's female lead, while Uncle Andrew, a former drummer and now a legless beggar, seeks revenge against J.K. Among the film's highlights is Raja being forced to dance on broken glass to save his mother's life, a distant echo of Pakeezah (1971). Others include Raja's somewhat inept breakdance numbers.

Antarjali Jatra/Mahayatra

aka The Voyage Beyond

1987 140'[B]/123'[H] col Bengali/Hindi
d/sc/c/m Gautam Ghose p Ravi Malik, Debashish Majumdar pc NFDC st Kamal Kumar Majumdar's novel Antarjali Jatra (1960)
Ip Shatrughan Sinha, Promode Ganguly, Robi Ghosh, Mohan Agashe, Shampa Ghosh, Basanta Choudhury, Sajal Roy Choudhury, Kalyan Chatterjee

In 1829, in the context of various reform movements associated with Raja Rammohan Roy, sati (the widow immolating herself on her husband's funeral pyre) was outlawed by the British. The film, based on the noted Bengali writer Kamal Kumar Majumdar's best-known fiction, is set after that date and addresses the cruelty of a patriarchal practice which continues even today. The Brahmin Seetaram (Ganguly) is dying and an astrologer (Robi Ghosh) assures the dying man and his relatives of finding happiness after death on condition that his wife commits sati on his death. The villagers defy the law and persuade an impoverished Brahmin (Choudhury) to marry his daughter Yashobati (Shampa Ghosh) to the dying man so that she may commit Sati. The only dissident is Baiju (Sinha), a drunken Untouchable who tends to the cremation grounds. Baiju persuades Yashobati to flee. In the end, on a moonlit night, Baiju tries to kill old Seetaram. The superstitious Yashobati tries to prevent the deed and the two struggle on the muddy banks of the Ganges. The struggle changes into lovemaking but the river in spate eventually carries away both Seetaram and Yashobati. The film's end sums up a major controversy surrounding Ghosh's filming of a difficult text. Yashobati's death, which in effect constitutes the act of sati, is shown as a combination of accident and desire, further contrasting her 'holy' condition with Baiju's traditionless bestialism. Much of this is revealed in the original novel through broken syntax, interior monologue and a dense, graphic style of disjointed phrases, from which Ghosh

Chinna Thambi Periya Thambi

1987 145'(124') col Tamil
d/sc/dial Manivannan pc Chamba Creations st Shanmughapriyam lyr Vairamuthu, Gangai Amaran, Sivakumar c A. Sabhapathy m Gangai Amaran Ip Sathyaraj, Prabhu, Nadia, Sudha Chandran, Nizhalgal Ravi, Vijayan, V.M. John, Thirupur Ishwar, S. Varalakshmi

Melodrama about good and evil in a country/city conflict. The brothers (Prabhu and Satyaraj) live in a village. They are deliberately insulted by their haughty urban cousin Kavitha (Nadia) who is to marry the villain, a rich, America-returned millionaire. When Kavitha's parents die, creditors take all her wealth and her fiance now refuses to marry her. She is forced to find a job in the factory of the villain (Ravi) who tries to make her his mistress. Both brothers love their cousin (by Indian convention, one of them should have married her) and try to court her. When one of the twins is charged with theft by the villain, the other kills him and goes to jail, from where he emerges white-haired to see the other twin married to the cousin. The film reiterates, in the words of a Deep Focus review, the conventional commitment to relationships of a 'familiar and communal nature as against secular relationships between individuals'.

Donga Mogudu

1987 168' col Telugu
d/sc A. Kodandarami Reddy pc Maheshwari Movies p S.P. Venkanna Babu st Yandamuri Veerendranath dial Satyanand lyr Kosaraju Raghavaiah Choudhury, Seetharama Sastry, Rajashri c H. Loksingh m Chakravarthy Ip Chiranjeevi, Madhavi, Radhika, Bhanupriya, Ravu Gopala Rao, Giribabu, Charan Raj, Allu Ramalingaiah, Gollapudi Maruthi Rao, Ranganath, Jayanthi, Rajasulochana, 'Sutti' Velu

Telugu star Chiranjeevi plays the double role of the industrialist Ravi Teja and the stuntman Nagaraju. The industrialist's major problem is his snobbish and uncaring wife Lalita (Madhavi). The stuntman supports his sister (Jayanthi) who believes her husband (Ranganath) and daughter (Bhanupriya) to be dead. The two lookalikes meet accidentally, but later exchange roles when Ravi Teja wants to go on a holiday with his secretary. Ravi Teja is accused of having murdered his secretary, but Nagaraju eventually solves all the problems, including the one with Teja's wife whom he beats into submission. The most successful Chiranjeevi effort at multiple roles (cf. also Mugguru Monagallu, 1994, where he played a triple role). The film was later remade as Rowdy Alludu (1991).

Guru Dakshina

1987 ?' col Bengali
d/sc Anjan Choudhury p/st Bhabesh Kundu c Girish Padidhar m Bappi Lahiri Ip Tapas Paul, Ranjit Mullick, Shatabdi Roy, Kali Bannerjee, Shaktimala Barua, Soumitra Bannerjee, Bhabesh Kundu, Ishani Bannerjee

Major hit by the most successful Bengali director of the 80s. The poor Jayanta (Paul) loves Rupa, the rich daughter of the local zamindar, but is also indebted to his music teacher. When Jayanta upstages Rupa in a music contest, the zamindar uses his financial hold over the music teacher to extract a promise that Jayanta will never sing again. Eventually, when Jayanta shows he wants to keep his promise come what may, the zamindar relents and allows his daughter to marry Jayanta. The film borrows from a bawdy latter-day version of the folk jatra with its often lewd speech (an idiom associated particularly with this director), cueing the editing to the dialogue. Lahiri departed from his usual electronic rock score and composed several hits in a 'classical' style.

Dance Raja Dance

1987 140' col Kannada
d/p/s Dwarkeesh pc Dwarkeesh Chitra dial/co-lyr Chi. Udayashankar co-lyr R.N. Jayagopal c R. Deviprasad m Vijayanand Ip Vinodraj, Divya, Sangeeta, Srinath, Sundarraj, Devaraj, Kirtiraj, Ravikiran, Master Ravi Shankar, Narasimhraj, Ratnakar, Chetan Ramarao, Sundaresh Singh, Negro Jani

An attempt at a Hollywood-type dance movie (mediated by the B. Subhash style, cf. Dance Dance, 1987) interspersed with more conventional melodrama. The villain J.K. (Devaraj) kills the popular leader of a

Hal odiya Chor aye Baodhan Khaye

aka The Catastrophe

1987 120' col Assamese

d/sc Jahnu Barua pc Patkai Films st Hemen Borgohain c Anup Jotwani m Satya Barua lp Indra Bania, Purnima Pathak Saikia, Badal Das, Hemen Choudhury, Pabitra Kumar Dekha

A happy, innocent farmer (Bania) is conned out of his landholding by an evil landlord. Forced to sell his cattle and to make innumerable trips to sort out bureaucratic problems, the farmer eventually meets that ultimate rarity, a 'good' bureaucrat who helps him get his land back. This story is set amid the din and cacophony of Assamese politics, leading at one point to the protagonist literally going berserk. Barua's best-known film, renowned for Bania's performance.

Mr India

1987 179' col/scope Hindi

d Shekhar Kapur pc Narsimha Ents st/dial/lyr Javed Akhtar c Baba Azmi
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

lp Anil Kapoor, Sridevi, Amrish Puri, Sharat Saxena, Bob Christo, Ashok Kumar, Satish Kaushik

Shekhar Kapur's biggest movie tells an 'invisible man' story. One of Indian film's most exotic villains yet, the blond dictator Mogambo (Puri, resembling Marty Feldman in Nazi uniform) is defeated by a common-man hero (Kapoor) who can render himself invisible. The film moves through a series of sketches: break-dancing kids, heroine Sridevi playing a journalist while performing her famous Hawa Hawaii routine (quoted in Salaam Bombay, 1988) and her popular Chaplin imitation.

Nadodikattu

1987 158' col Malayalam

d Sathyan Andhikkad pc Casino st Siddique-Lal sc/dial Srinivasan lyr Yusuf Ali Kacheri c Vipin Mohan m Shyam lp Mohanlal, Srinivasan, Shobhana, Thilakan, Innocent, Mamu Koya

The first of a crazy comedy series featuring the enterprising down-but-not-out friends Ramdas (Mohanlal) and Vijayan (Srinivasan). The two friends attack each other constantly while getting into a series of tragi-comic scrapes: they lose their jobs as peons and then come to grief as they try to start a dairy business. They finally give all their money, as well as all they can borrow, to a shifty employment agent who promises them jobs in the Gulf but dumps them in Madras. Things end happily when their misadventures unintentionally lead the police to arrest a major smuggling ring, after which they are rewarded with jobs in the police department. The well-known filmmaker I.V. Sasi and his actress-wife Seema appear briefly as themselves. The enormous success of this comedy spawned two sequels, Pattana Pravesanam (1988) and Akkareakkareakkare (1990).

Nayakan

aka Hero

1987 155' col Tamil

d/s Mani Rathnam pc Sujatha Films, Mukta Films dial Balakumaran co-lyr Pulamai Pithan
c P.C. Sriram co-lyr/m Ilaiyaraaja lp Kamalhasan, Saranya, M.V. Vasudeva Rao, Janakaraj, Delhi Ganesh, Karthika, Nizhalgal Ravi, Tinnu Anand, Nasser, Vijayan

Rathnam's controversial breakthrough film is a version of The Godfather (1972), based on the life of the Bombay gangster Varadarajan Mudaliar, played by Kamalhasan (at times explicitly imitating Brando). Seeing his father, a trade union activist, brutally murdered by the police in Tuticorin, the son runs away to Bombay and becomes Velu Naicker, the ruthless Godfather with a Robin Hood streak in the Dharavi slums, assisted by Ganesh in the Robert Duval role. Velu becomes Bombay's minority Tamil population's 'Nayakan' (hero/star/leader) and saviour. His daughter Charu (Karthika) walks out and marries the assistant chief of police. Velu is eventually shot by a mentally retarded youth (Anand) he had taken into his care. Although Kamalhasan's performance was widely lauded, critics like K. Hariharan noted that the degree to which the star monopolises the film made 'other characters seem either underdeveloped or perfunctory'. The cinematography takes its cue from Gordon Willis while Thotha Tharani's art direction follows the conventions of Hollywood gangster films and concentrates on cars and decors. However, the film is more than a Hollywood pastiche: it draws on 30 years of Tamil Nadu's star/politician images (including the spotless, all-white uniform of the Tamil politician, chewing betel-leaf) and directly plays to Tamil people's anti-Hindi feelings when Velu, beaten up, gives the hugely popular reply in Tamil to a Hindi-speaking Bombay cop: 'If I ever hit you, you will die.' The latter half of the film virtually abandons Bombay as a location in favour of studio interiors and goes to Madras for the climax. The success of the film was crucial to Mani Rathnam's career, establishing him as the leading Tamil director of his time.

Oru Maymasappul arayil

1987 151' col Malayalam

d/sc V.R. Gopinath p Alex Kadavil st Ranjith c Santosh Sivan m Ravindran lp Sari, Balachandra Menon, Nedumudi Venu, Ashokan, Murali

Gopinath's 2nd film tells of two men who try to understand why a woman (Sari) threw herself under a train: the cricket star (Ashokan) she loved believes that marrying her was a bad career move. As in his first feature, Greeshamam (1980), the men are still incapable of forming a relationship with a living woman but this time, by the end of the film, they have gained some understanding of a dead one.

Ore Oru Gramathil e

aka Once Upon a Time in a Village

1987 138' col Tamil

d K. Jyothi Pandian pc Aries Enterprises p S. Rangarajan s/lyr Vali c Ranga m Ilaiyaraaja lp Laxmi, Poornam Vishwanathan, Delhi Ganesh, Arundhati, Nizhalgal Ravi, Beena Chakravarthy, V.K. Ramaswamy, Senthil Charlie

Controversial anti-government film in the tradition of the DMK propaganda melodrama, evoked e.g. in the opening cyclone scenes recalling Thyagabhoomi (1939). Produced in association with the publishers of Madras's mainstream daily The Hindu, the film anticipates the attacks on the government's positive discrimination policy in favour of 'scheduled' castes, better known as Mandal Commission Recommendations, which helped bring down the Janata Dal government (1990). The impoverished upper-caste Brahmin woman Karupayi (Laxmi) masquerades as a low-caste Harijan in order to receive a good education and a good job. She is blackmailed by a tramp-like figure and eventually arrested and brought to court. As in the DMK genre, the trial becomes the place to expound the pros and cons of the policy and for the heroine to make her fervent plea that it is unfair to ask talented upper-caste people to suffer so that low-caste people may get decent jobs. In addition, the script places feminist ideas in its heroine's speech to bolster its elitist message. The film uses several folk-music tunes as part of the rural drama and has a convincing performance by Laxmi. It was briefly banned but the Supreme Court eventually cleared it for public screening.

Pestonjee

1987 110' col Hindi

d/co-sc Vijaya Mehta pc NFDC st/co-sc B.K. Karanja c A.K. Bir m Vanraj Bhatia lp Anupam Kher, Naseeruddin Shah, Shabana Azmi, Kiran Thakur Singh Kher

Melodrama about two old Parsee friends, the extrovert Pesi (A. Kher) and the shy Piroj (Shah), both in love with Jeroo (Azmi). Pesi marries Jeroo and also draws close to the widowed lawyer Soona (K. Kher). Piroj is transferred away from Bombay for five years and returns to find Jeroo had a miscarriage and that Pesi now prefers Soona's company. When Pesi dies, his funeral is paid for by Soona who has borne him a son. Based on a short story by Karanja written in the early 50s, the film is set among the Bombay Parsees. The acting, speech, decor and much of the storyline adheres to popular perceptions of a community often caricatured as idiosyncratic. The film often slips into flashbacks, usually from Piroj's point of view.

Pratighaat

1987 164' col Hindi

d/ed/co-sc N. Chandra pc Usha Kiron Movies p A. Rama Rao, Ramoji Rao st/co-sc T. Krishna dial Jalees lyr/m Ravindra Jain c H. Laxmi

Narayan

Ip Sujata Mehta, Arvind Kumar, Charan Raj, Rohini Hattangadi, Mohan Bhandari, Ashok Saraf, K. Srinivasa Rao, A. Rama Rao, Nana Patekar

Continuing on a more ambitious scale his contributions to lumpenised political activity in India (cf. Ankush, 1985), Chandra pits a violent criminal-political gang against a small group of morally upright citizens in the fictional town of Dharampura. The bad guys are led by the dreaded gangster Kali Prasad (Charan Raj), who runs his own court and police with the help of a crooked lawyer (Saraf). On the side of the good is the young college lecturer Laxmi (Mehta), the fiery Durga (Hattangadi) whose husband was killed by Kali, and former policeman Karamveer (Patekar), who goes mad when his wife is raped by the gangster. Laxmi is stripped in public by Kali, after which - having reformed her unruly students - she contests a local election with their help in an effort to defeat the villain. Kali wins the election through booth capturing and terror. In the end Laxmi kills the gangster in a public gathering, using his election symbol of the axe, invoking in the process the legend of Parashuram.

⊗ Premal oka

1987 154' col/scope Kannada
d/p/st/sc V. Ravichandran pc Sri Eswari Prod.
c R. Madhusudhan dial/lyr/m Hamsalekha lp V. Ravichandran, Julie (Juhi Chawla), Ambareesh, Prabhakar, Srinath, Lokesh, K. Vijaya, Urvashi, Jayachitra, Leelavathi

The actor Ravichandran's directorial debut was a big hit bringing disco and rock music into Kannada film. A rich but timid young man (Ravichandran), oppressed by dominating parents, is transformed when he falls in love with an independent-minded university colleague (Chawla). Composer Hamsalekha established himself with a series of major hit songs e.g. Nimbeyanta hudugi bantu nodu nee nodu. The film introduced Juhi Chawla, who later became the emblem of the teen love-and-rock formula with the Aamir Khan hit Qayamat Se Qayamat Tak (1988).

⊗ Purushartham aka Purge

1987 111' col Malayalam
d/sc/dial K.R. Mohanan p P.T.K. Mohammed st C.V. Sriraman's Irikkapindam c Madhu Ambat m M.B. Srinivasan lp Sujata Mehta, Adoor Bhasi, Madampu Kunjukuttan, Jebin George, Dr Rama, Rana Muttalali, Bhargaviyamma, Baby Nandita

After his directorial debut with Ashwathama (1978), Mohanan had to wait almost a decade for his 2nd feature to be finished. It tells of an upper-class widow, Bhadra Vasudev (Mehta), who, with her son (George), returns to her dead husband's village to perform the ritual that will free her from the turbulent corpse that seems to persecute her and whose death she may have caused. The husband was an urban middle-class executive. The story unfolds from her son Vineet's point-of-view as he becomes progressively estranged from his mother, ending up throwing sacrificial rice balls at her and her new friend Ninan (Muttalali). The title refers to the four purusharthas, the goals of mankind according to Hindu ethical philosophy.

⊗ Pushpak/Pushpaka Vimana/ Pesum padum

aka The Love Chariot 1987 131' col Wordless (Hindi/Kannada/Tamil) d/s/co-p Singeetham Srinivasa Rao co-p Srinagar Nagaraj pc Mandakini Chitra
c B.C. Gowri Shankar m L. Vaidyanathan lp Kamalahasan, Amala, Tinnu Anand, Samir Khakhar, K.S. Ramesh, Loknath, Prathap Pothan, P.L. Narayana, Farida Jalal, Ramya

Apparently taking its cue from Mel Brooks's Silent Movie (1976), this wordless comedy helped change Kamalahasan's screen image. An unemployed youth (Kamalahasan) sees a drunken man (Khakhar) with a fancy hotel's room key dangling from his pocket. The youth kidnaps the drunk and ties him up in his own tenement room, making elaborate arrangements to allow his prisoner to perform his daily toilet (he cuts a hole in the prisoner's chair and gift-wraps the excrement). The youth then checks into the hotel where he immediately becomes the target of a hoodlum (Anand) who tries to murder him with knife-shaped ice cubes (when the ice melts, the murder weapon would vanish).

⊗ Ruthubhedam

aka Hrithubhedam aka Change of Seasons
1987 126' col Malayalam
d Prathap Pothan p Verghese Abraham s M.T. Vasudevan Nair c Ashok Kumar lyr Thakazhy Shankaranarayanan m Shyam lp Balachandra Menon, Nedumudi Venu, Murali, Shankaradi, Vineeth, Geetha, Monisha, Manimala

Echoing aspects of Gopalakrishnan's Elippathayam (1981), Vasudevan Nair's script tells of the decline of a family of former Nair rent collectors as various members give way to greed and other weaknesses. The dramatic trigger is provided by a government compensation payment for confiscated forest lands, and the rapacious members of the family go to extraordinary lengths to appropriate as much compensation money as they can get by means both fair and foul. The story is told mainly through the eyes of a poor village lad, Keshu, returning from the city. The well-known director, B. Menon, can here be seen as an actor.

⊗ Sacrifice of Babul al Bhuiya, The aka Babulal Bhuiya Ki Qurbani

1987 63' col Oriya
d Manjira Dutta pc Media Workshop c Ranjan Palit

A poetic documentary about the tribals around

Bihar's Mailgora collieries who survive by recycling the pits' coal slurry. In February 1981, Babulal Bhuiya, one of the workers, was shot dead by the Industrial Security Force. The film goes into the circumstances of his death via covering Communist Party rallies in the area. Much of the story is intercut with painterly shots on the body of an anonymous male worker in the quarry.

⊗ Swathi Thirunal

1987 133' col/scope Malayalam
d/co-s Lenin Rajendran p G.P. Vijay Kumar pc Seven Arts Films co-s Varaham Balakrishnan
c Madhu Ambat m M.B. Srinivasan
lp Anant Nag, Srividya, Ambika, Ranjini, Nedumudi Venu

Biographical fantasy about Swathi Thirunal, best-known of the 19th C. Travancore kings. The British treaty (1795) established Travancore as an independent state figureheaded by its royalty. As with e.g. the Mysore state and other capitals of former rulers reduced to ceremonial function, this period saw a major revival of classical music and performing arts. However, Swathi Thirunal's reign has received special attention, as a relatively uncomplicated era preceding Travancore's decline into the 20th- C. rule of the despotic Diwan C.P. Ramaswamy Aiyer against whom the 1940s communist uprising was directed. The big-budget CinemaScope film, by a director noted for his CPI(M) sympathies, appropriates what it presents as a 'golden age' in Travancore history. Its resemblance to G.V. Iyer's Hamsa Geethe (1975) in this regard is further heightened by the presence of leading man Nag, whose naturalist underplaying of the king contrasts with the elaborate period decor. After establishing the king's credentials as lover and patron of art and music, and as staunch anti-imperialist, the film devolves into a love story with the Tanjore dancer Sugandhavalli (Srividya). The escalating political crisis is represented by the arrival of a new general, and ends with the king's death.

⊗ Swayamkrushi

1987 164' col Telugu
d/s K. Vishwanath pc Poornodaya Movie Creations p Edida Nageshwara Rao lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Seethatama Sastry
c H. Loksingh m Ramesh Naidu lp Chiranjeevi, Vijayashanti, Sumalatha, Bannerjee, Charan Raj, P.L. Narayana, Master Arjun, Master Suresh

Elaborate melodrama with Chiranjeevi as the illiterate cobbler who raises his dead sister's son Chinna (Arjun/Suresh) while also financing the education of the orphaned Sharada (Sumalatha). When Sharada marries, Sambaiah's lover Ganga (Vijayashanti) is sterilised so that nothing will interfere with Chinna's growth. Ganga assists Sambaiah in becoming enormously wealthy, but this causes several problems: Chinna's biological father Govind (Raj) teams up with Sharada's no-good husband Bhaskar (Bannerjee) to make a series of demands on Sambaiah and to claim Chinna's guardianship. Eventually, Chinna rebels against his father and both he and Sambaiah return to the latter's modest original profession of cobbler. The film was a critical success, notably for recasting action star Chiranjeevi in an unusual role, which also constituted his influential effort to transform his screen image by entering what is known in Telugu cinema as the 'class film'. Less than two years after the formation of the Dalit Mahasabha in A.P. (1985), the film posits a conservative resolution to an important political movement in its evacuation of all caste conflict in favour of a fictional conflict between 'good' and 'bad' Dalits.

⊗ Tamas

aka Darkness

1987 297' col Hindi

d/sc/co-c Govind Nihalani pc Blaze Ents st Bhishm Sahni's novel co-c V. K. Murthy
m Vanraj Bhatia

lp Om Puri, Deepa Sahi, Dina Pathak, Bhishm Sahni, Amrish Puri, Uttara Baokar, Surekha Sikri, Saeed Jaffrey, Ila Arun, K.K. Raina

Nihalani's controversial five-hour TV series deals with the Partition of India and led to major communal confrontations when the Hindu BJP organisations threatened to set TV stations afire and caused rioting in Hyderabad and Bombay. Based on one of Hindi author Bhishm Sahni's best-known recent novels, the epic tale is seen mainly through the eyes of a tanner named Nathu (Om Puri) and his pregnant wife Karmo (Sahi). An effort to cause a communal conflict (one of the commonest strategies is to place a dead pig in a mosque) escalates into the pre-1947 conflagration throughout Punjab. The film effectively lumps together the activities of all the various political groups involved, including the British colonial powers and Hindu as well as Muslim communal fronts, which it contrasts with individual expressions of human concern that serve sometimes to dilute a notoriously complex historical episode into no more than a conflict between common good and politically motivated bad.

⊗ Thoranam

1987 103' col Malayalam

d/s Joseph Madapally p V. Rajan c Ravi Varma
m P. Devarajan
lp Nedumudi Venu, Soman, Janardhanan, Jamuna, Kunjandi

Directorial debut of a journalist and novelist with a film about a crippled soldier who settles in a village in Kerala. He adopts a little Muslim boy and befriends a woman (Jamuna) relentlessly pursued by misfortune. The old soldier's benevolence is misconstrued by the villagers but the woman repays his kindness and a kind of family situation is maintained.

⊗ Vedham Pudithu

aka New Vedas

1987 144' col Tamil

d/sc P. Bharathirajaa pc Janani Art Creations st/dial K. Kannan from his play Jatikal Illayadi Papa lyr Vairamuthu c B. Kannan m Devendran

lp Sathyaraj, Saritha, Raja, Nizhalgal Ravi, Charuhasan, Amala, Master Dasarathi, Janakaraj, Veeraraghavan, Srilatha

Melodrama supposedly critiquing Tamil Brahminism and a major censorship case when the Madras Tamil Brahmins' Association's call to have it banned was apparently supported by the then-President of India, R. Venkatraman. Balu Thevar (Satyaraj), a non-Brahmin atheist and the village chief, has a feud with the Brahmin Neelkanth Sastry (Charuhasan) who teaches the Vedas, including their erotic descriptions in Shankara, to Thevar's son Sankara Pandi (Raja), the latter also being in love with Sastry's daughter Vaidehi (Amala). Pandi gets killed, as does Sastry. Vaidehi pretends to be dead, and escapes, allowing another character to emerge: a widowed forest ranger (Ravi) who confronts the girl's Brahmin suitor (Janakaraj) as well as the film's villain. Bharathirajaa's practice of setting a love story in the context of village ritual yields an unusually violent story in a film purporting to merge humanist values into religious ritual.

⊗ Veedu

aka The House aka Home and the World

1987 110' col Tamil

d/sc/c Balu Mahendra p Kala Das pc Shri Kala Int. st Ahila Balu Mahendra m Ilaiyaraja
lp Archana, Bhanuchander, M.A. Chokkalinga Bhagavathar, Sathya, Indu

Released in the International Year of Shelter, the film tells of Sudha (Archana), a government clerk in Madras, who lives with her sister and grandfather Murugesan (Bhagavathar), a retired music teacher. They look for a new home and are advised to build one instead. Helped by her friend Gopi (Bhanuchander), she encounters harassment, corruption and obstruction wherever she turns until, in the end, the Water Authority appropriates her new house and she is last seen in a freeze-frame seeking redress through the courts. The director claimed it to be a true story, inspired by the experiences of his mother. As his own cinematographer, Mahendra uses hand-held techniques and atmospheric source lighting to great effect. There are no song and dance sequences but the movie lovingly shows the old man singing beloved Tamil songs. The music is taken largely from Ilaiyaraja's album How to Name It. Archana's and especially Bhagavathar's performances stand out, while the overly emphatic figure of building worker Mangatha strikes a false note.

⊗ Agni Nakshatram

1988 146' col Tamil

d/s Mani Rathnam pc Sujatha Prod.

p G. Venkateshwaran lyr Vali c P.C. Sriram

m Ilaiyaraja

lp Karthik, Prabhu, Amala, Nirosha, G. Umapathi, Janakaraj, V.K. Ramaswamy, Jayachitra, Sumitra, Vijayakumar, Tara

Rathnam's hit follow-up to Nayakan (1987) is a music video-type fantasy with rapid cutting, hazy images and flared lights. It also boasts one of the most sexually explicit song picturisations to date: the camera slithers along, peeking at a woman autoerotically engaged in an indoor swimming pool. The plot involves two half-brothers, one a cop (Prabhu) and the other a streetwise hood (Karthik), the two mothers (Jayachitra, Sumitra), and the shared father (Vijayakumar) who runs separate family establishments for them. The end, adapted from the Godfather (1972) hospital sequence, has the two brothers uniting to reinforce, literally, the law of the father (who is a Judge). After the unsatisfactory conflict between the brothers, one realises, in the critic K. Hariharan's words, 'that the real hero of the film is actually behind the camera [pulling out every gimmick available in the ad-man's repertoire].

Tamas

⊗ Aparan

1988 115' col Malayalam
d/s P. Padmarajan pc Supriya International c Venu m Johnson
lp Jayaram, Shobhana, Parvathi, Jalaja, Madhu, Soman

A story of mistaken identity: an innocuous good guy (Jayaram) is mistaken for a gangster boss who may well have been his twin brother. Most Western versions of this plot e.g. featuring Jerry Lewis or Fernandel, explore the situation's comic potential. However, Padmarajan sees the plot as a psychological drama.

⊗ Aryan

1988 181' col Malayalam
d Priyadarshan pc Cheers s T. Damodaran c S. Kumar m Raghukumar lp Mohanlal, Ramya Krishna, Goga Kapoor, Balan K. Nair, Shobhana

Vendetta movie featuring wronged upper-caste Brahmins in the context of the Mandal Commission's advocacy of employment rights for lower-caste people. The stereotypically honest Namboodiri (i.e. upper-caste) youth Devanarayan (Mohanlal) is forced by poverty to live in bad and distant Bombay where he makes a living as a member of a Muslim crime gang. He returns home with a girl (Ramya) all set to restore the lost honour of his family. However, non-Brahmin rogues prevent this ambition from being realized, providing numerous occasions for the filmmakers to vilify non-Hindu and lower-caste people, culminating in a virulent courtroom denunciation of such inferior specimens of humanity.

⊗ Aval e Nanna Hendthi

1988 145' col Kannada
co-d/co-sc S. Umesh co-d/st/co-sc/p K. Prabhakar pc Vijay Films dial/lyr/m Hamsalekha c Mallikarjuna lp Kashinath, Bhavya, Mukhyamantri Chandru, N.S. Rao, Gora Bhima Rao, Thyagaraja Urs, Tara, Kaminiharan, Lalithamma, K.N. Bharati, Raviraj

Comedy that sometimes verges on the tragic, notable mainly for Kashinath's wry, self-deprecating humour. Vishwanath (Kashinath) falls in love, but he first has to arrange his sister's marriage in the traditional manner, which includes the iniquitous dowry system. A series of tragedies later, his greedy mother as well as his sister's in-laws are reformed in a sharp critique of the dowry system.

⊗ Ayarthi Thol I ayirathi

Irupathonnu
 aka 1921
 1988 197' col/scope Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi p Mohammed Mannil pc Mannil Films

s T. Damodaran c V. Jayaram m Shyam lp Mammootty, Madhu, K.P. Ummar, Suresh Gopi, Bahadur, Parvathy, Jagannath Varma, Janardhanan, T.G. Ravi, Seema, Balan K. Nair, Tom Alter, Rohini, Bhaskaran, Urvashi

Designed as an action melodrama blockbuster to follow the successful Eenadu (1982). The film addresses the 1921 Moplah rebellion when poor peasants, mostly Muslim, rose against the landowning aristocrats, mostly Hindu, while the British operated their characteristic divide-and-rule policy after the defeat of Tipu Sultan. The historical and political contexts of the rising are treated in terms of a catalogue of cartoon-like clichés and stirring nationalist speeches. The meat of the movie is in the rapes, battles and other nastiness perpetrated upon the innocent. The film-makers explicitly stated their wish not to support nor to contradict any possible interpretation of the historical events to which they allude.

⊗ Bai Chal i Sasariye

1988 151' col Rajasthani
d/sc/co-dial Mohansingh Rathod pc Sundar Films st Keshav Rathod co-dial Mahendra Singh Jodha co-dial/co-lyr Kundan Kishore co-lyr Diwakar c Chandu Desai m O.P. Vyas lp Alankar, Neelu, Gnan Shivpuri, Priyanka, Ramesh Tiwari, Bhairavi Shah, Devyani Thakkar, Prahlad Pawar, Lalita Pawar, Jagdeep

Rajasthani star Neelu reprises her familiar role as a virtuous victim in a neo-traditionalist melodrama. Lakshmi's (Neelu) mother dies giving birth to her; when her millionaire father remarries, she is raised like an outsider in her own family. Her only support (in an unusual twist) is her stepbrother, who assumes the familial responsibility in arranging her marriage. However, her misfortunes continue as her in-laws heap more suffering on her and eventually cause her death. The film purported to be against feudalism and superstition.

⊗ Bannada Vesha

1988 110' col Kannada
d/s Girish Kasaravalli pc Doordarshan (Bangalore) c G.S. Bhaskar m B.V. Karanth lp Sridhar, Smitha Kasaravalli, A.B. Jayaram, Narayana Bhatt, Shantamma, Loknath, Shankar

Folk-theatre-derived melodrama set in the famed Karnataka tradition of the Yakshagana, a variant of the Kathakali style involving complicated make-up and rigorous dance codes, patronised mainly by temples which invite groups to perform for worship and to raise revenue. The central character, Shambhu (Shankar), a member of such a group, is a traumatised and guilt-ridden figure usually relegated to minor roles but with the driving ambition of playing the male lead by displacing the arrogant Sheshappa. When he is allowed to play the demonic Jhunjhutti, he pretends to be possessed by the demon and uses his new-found reputation to start an alternate theatre group sponsored by the financially ailing Kapileshwara temple. His performative limitations, and the secondary problems caused by his having to live a fake identity, intensify his emotional crises and the film ends on a tragic note after he is revealed to be a fraud. Kasaravalli's stylised idiom, the film's most attractive aspect, is restricted to the performances while routine realism prevails in the rest of the story.

⊗ Chithram

1988 171' col Malayalam
d/s Priyadarshan pc Shirdi Sai Creations p P.K.R. Pillai lyr Shibu Chakravarty c S. Kumar m Kannoor Rajan, Johnson lp Mohanlal, Nedumudi Venu, Ranjini, Raju, Srinivasan

Along with Kilukkam, the same year, Mohanlal established his collaborations with director Priyadarshan as among the most infallible in the commercial Malayalam cinema. When Kalyani's (Ranjini) rich father returns from abroad on a brief holiday to settle the inheritance of his property, Kalyani's uncle (Venu) hires a thief and con man, Vishnu (Mohanlal), to masquerade as her husband. The reason for this impersonation is to keep the father's property from falling into the hands of a bunch of baddies (Srinivasan, Raju) who run the estate. Most of the film exploits the several comic possibilities of a spirited woman and a crazy hero being forced to pretend to be married. The story takes a tragic turn when Mohanlal is revealed as a murderer facing a death sentence, and he tells his tale in flashback. He had killed his deaf-mute girlfriend Revathi, when he mistook her Naxalite brother as being her lover. His child by Revathi was put into an orphanage when he was arrested. At the end, Vishnu and Kalyani, having fallen in love, are parted by the law, as he goes off to his death sentence while she is saddled with the responsibility of raising his orphaned child. The film adheres to the sometimes inexplicable tendency, for viewers unfamiliar with its generic codes, of 80s Kerala melodrama to end in tragedy.

⊗ Daasi

aka Bonded Woman
 1988 94' col Telugu
d/s/m B. Narasinga Rao pc Little India
c A.K. Bir
lp Archana, Roopa, Bhopal Reddy, Sidappa Naidu, Shilpa

Political melodrama set in the 20s addressing the practice of purchasing slave girls, often given as dowry in a marriage, by zamindar families under the rule of the Nizam of Hyderabad. Kamakshi (Archana), a daasi bonded to Jayasimha Rao, becomes pregnant by her owner. At the command of the zamindar's self-indulgent and childless wife, Kamakshi is forced to have an abortion. The film uses a neo-expressionist style e.g. the dark servants' quarters, the drumbeats announcing the pregnancy of the landlord's sister counterpointed with the daasi's screams as the midwife terminates her pregnancy, etc.

Ek Din Achanak

aka Suddenly One Day

1988 105' col Hindi

d/sc Mrinal Sen pc NFDC, Doordarshan

st Ramapada Choudhury c K.K. Mahajan

m Jyotishka Dasgupta

lp Shriram Lagoo, Uttara Baokar, Shabana

Azmi, Aparna Sen, Roopa Ganguly, Anjan

Chakraborty, Anil Chatterjee, Manohar Singh,

Lily Chakraborty, Anjan Dutt

Closely echoing the plot of Kharij (1982), Sen tells of a retired professor (Lagoo) who suddenly disappears. His wife, children and friends start to worry when he does not return and wait months for him. Their memories, as each tries to reconstruct their view of the man, provide the film with a patchwork of fragments building into a composite but never quite coherent picture of the professor. Some critics saw it as Sen's most autobiographical film.

Idu Namma Al u

1988 166' col Tamil

d Balakumaran pc Saranya Cine Arts

s/m K. Bhagyaraj lyr Vali, Pulamaipithan, Muthulingam c K. Rajpreeth lp K. Bhagyaraj, Shobhana, Manorama,

J.V.V. Somayajulu, Kumarimuthu

Gopalasami (Bhagyaraj), an unemployed graduate and son of a barber, pretends to be a brahmin when he becomes the tenant of conservative temple priest Srinivasa Sastry (Somayajulu). He falls for the priest's daughter Banu (Shobhana) and they marry. At the marriage the arrival of Gopalasami's parents exposes his true caste identity and he, as well as his wife, are evicted by the priest. In the end Banu solves the problem, and Gopalasami is readmitted into the brahmin household after he saves Sastry from a suicide attempt. Credited to the novelist Balakumaran, the comedy belongs to the established actor-director Bhagyaraj.

In Which Annie Gives It Those Ones

1988 112' col English

d Pradip Krishen pc Grapevine Media

s Arundhati Roy c Rajesh Joshi

lp Arjun Raina, Arundhati Roy, Rituraj, Roshan

Seth, Isaac Thomas, Divya Seth, Idres Malik,

Moses Uboh, Himani Shivpuri

TV film comedy about college life in Delhi. Set in an architecture college, the hero, Anand Grover aka Annie keeps failing his exams because he made fun of his college head. Nevertheless he retains his idealist vision of planting fruit trees to prevent people defecating near railway lines. Other characters are Annie's Ugandan room-mate and the outrageously dressed Radha. In the end, Annie manages to pass his exams thanks to a trick played by the students. The film suggests the hero goes on to become the head of the department.

Kadal Theerathu

aka On the Seashore

1988 83' col Malayalam

d/p/sc T. Rajeevnath pc Rasika Films

st O.V. Vijayan c Santosh Sivan

m G. Aravindan, Kavalam Narayana Panicker lp Amir Abbas, Leelamma Verghese, Gopalakrishnan

With stylised images and the familiar flashback structure, Rajeevnath uses the writer and cartoonist Vijayan's story to show the journey and the memories of a father, Vellayiappan (Gopalakrishnan), on his way to the coast to visit his imprisoned son Kandunni, condemned to death for killing a gangsterish landlord.

Khaidi No. 786

1988 ? col Telugu

d/sc Vijaya Bapineedu pc Shyam Prasad Arts

p Maganti Ravindranath Choudhury st Shyam

Prasad Arts Unit dial G. Satyamurthy lyr Veturi

Sundara Ramamurthy, Bhuvana Chandra

c H. Loksingh m Raj-Koti lp Chiranjeevi, Bhanupriya, Satyanarayana,

Nutan Prasad, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Mohan

Babu, Nirmala, Allu Ramalingaiah, Smita

Gopi (Chiranjeevi), orphaned when his parents were killed by a maternal Uncle, Suryachandra Rao (Rao), becomes a police constable. He quits his job to assault a cruel cop who abuses a poor, hunger-striking teacher. Accused of trying to rape the villain's arrogant, city-bred daughter Radha (Bhanupriya), who whips him in public, he forces her to marry him in order to teach her a lesson (cf. Alluda Majaaka, 1995, for the common theme of 'marriage as punishment' for a woman). Having 'tamed' her, he is next framed for a murder, another common narrative device in Chiranjeevi films. In the latter story, the corrupt cop Achaiah (Babu) feeds the villain to crocodiles to forestall a confession. The hero is eventually freed when the police overhear Achaiah boasting about his deeds.

Khayal Gatha

aka Khayal Saga

1988 103' col Hindi

d/s Kumar Shahani pc Madhya Pradesh Film Dev. Corp., Bombay Cinematograph

dial Ashmaki Acharya, Kamal Swaroop

c K.K. Mahajan m supervision Roshan Shahani lp Mita Vasisth, Birju Maharaj, Alaknanda

Samarth, Rajat Kapoor, Navjot Hansra, Mangal

Dhillon

Rather than imbuing stories about contemporary conditions with epic dimensions (cf. Maya Darpan, 1972; Tarang, 1984), Shahani here addresses the epic forms directly in a film about the Khayal, a form of classical music established in the 18th C., based on the earlier Dhrupad which it then adapted, mobilising elements of other classical and folk literatures and music. For Shahani, the crucial relevance of this music to the cinema resides in its theory of the shruti, the subdivisions between given notes in a raga which eventually yield a continuous scale and prove that 'you can only name approximations, never absolutes' (1986). By emphasising sequence rather than discrete notes or the rhythmic cycle, musical elaboration could be based on improvisation so that, like jazz or other musical forms emerging from oppression, it was able to resist all efforts at encoding while remaining free to assimilate the widest range of musical elements from as far as Central Asia, Turkey and Persia. The film merges the history of the Khayal form with several legends associated with it: e.g. the legends of Rani Rupmati (Vasisth) and Baaz Bahadur (Dhillon), Heer-Ranjha, Nala-Damayanti and others (some invented for the film). These legends are then worked into some of the key figurations determining the Khayal narrative, such as the nayika and the object of the address, and the sakhi. A music student (Kapoor) moves through these epochs and legends. The result is a visually stunning narration condensing legend, history and poetry, emphasising hybridity in all cultural practices. The key musical contributions are by some of the foremost musicians from the Gwalior gharana, the oldest of the several that exist, including Krishnarao Shankar Pandit, Sharatchandra Arolkar, Jal Balaporia and Neela Bhagwat. Shahani also uses the dance of Birju Maharaj, India's top Kathak dancer.

Meeta Vasisth and Pushpamala in Khayal Gatha

Kil ukkam

1988 ? col Malayalam

d/sc Priyadarshan pc Goodknight Films p R. Mohan st/dial Venu Nagavalli lyr Bichu Thirumala c S. Kumar m S.P. Venkatesh lp Mohanlal, Jagathi Srikumar, Revathi, Thilakan, Innocent

Priyadarshan's follow-up to his successful Chithram (1988). Two down-and-out friends, the tourist guide Jojo (Mohanlal) and the photographer Nischal (Jagathy), encounter Nandini (Revathi) whom they recognise from an advertisement offering a reward for finding her. They discover that she is trying to escape from her tormentor and is in search of her father. After scenes of romance and some remarkable song picturisations, interrupted by Nischal's comically inept attempt to turn her in, Jojo defeats the terrifying villain, a Hindi-speaking Muslim (often presented as the height of evil in Priyadarshan films) and wins the girl. Among the film's best moments are the comic scenes between the retired Judge Nambiar, played by the veteran Malayalam character actor Thilakan, and his bungling servant Kittunni (Innocent). Priyadarshan remade the film in Hindi as Muskurahat (1992), with less success.

Kol ahal

aka The Turmoil

1988 118' col Assamese

d/p/s Bhabendranath Saikia c Kamal Nayak
m Mukul Barua lp Runu Devi Thakur, Arun Nath, Bibhu Ranjan Choudhury

Realist melodrama based on an original radio play by the director. The child Moti keeps himself and his mother from starvation by stealing rice from trucks. His mother Kiran tries to work in a warehouse with a little support from her neighbours. Moti is killed when a truck capsizes and the driver tries to bribe Kiran's mother with a sack of rice marked by the blood of her son. When later she discovers that her long-absent husband is living with another woman in the city, she succumbs to the advances of Badal, the truck-cleaner.

Manu Uncle

1988 123' col Malayalam

d/sc Dennis Joseph pc Jubily Prod p Joy Thomas st/dial/lyr Shibu Chakravarthy c Jayanan Vincent m Shyam lp Mammootty, Soman, Pratapchandran, Suresh Gopi, Kuriatchan, Sandheep, Anoop, Kareem, Mohanlal

Children's adventure story adapting the 'kids on vacation' plot still associated amongst Indian children with Enid Blyton and Margaret Bhatty. Four school children trail a gang of museum thieves. On the way, they take part in bicycle chases, befriend a runaway delinquent and have a lavish lunch paid for by Malayalam superstar Mohanlal, in a brief guest appearance. In the end the kids overwhelm the gangsters' hideout and fight it out with cricket balls and a little help from their beloved Manu Uncle (Mammootty), a scientist and secret agent. Suresh Gopi, as the bungling police chief, dominates the climax.

Marattam

aka Masquerade aka Faces and Masks

1988 90' col Malayalam

d G. Aravindan pc Doordarshan
s/lyr Kavalam Narayana Panicker based on his own play c Shaji N. Karun lp Sadanandan Krishnamurthy, Kalamdalam Keshavan, Urmila Unni, Krishnankutty Nair

Panicker's one-act play deals with the relation of identification between an actor and his or her role. Aravindan put the stress on the relations between the viewer and the actor/role dualities. The action takes place on the eve of the last act of the Kathakali piece Keechakavadham (The Killing of Keechaka). The events surrounding the performance uncannily echo events in the play. One character even claims to have killed the lead actor of the play because he detested the character the man portrayed. However, the three different accounts that are presented of the same plot are never resolved or reconciled with each other. Each version is accompanied by a different style of folk-music: the tune and rhythm of southern Kerala's thampuran pattu, the pulluvan pattu and the ayappan pattu. The performers were drawn from the theatre and from Kathakali. In southern India, with its plethora of politicians using their film images to acquire inordinate wealth and power, Aravindan's TV film bears on an eminently sensitive political as well as aesthetic issue.

Om Dar-b-dar

1988 101' col Hindi

d/p/s/lyr Kamal Swaroop pc NFDC c Ashwani Kaul, Milind Ranade m Rajat Dholakia lp Anita Kanwar, Gopi Desai, Lalit Tiwari, Aditya Lakhia, Bhairav Chandra Sharma, Lakshminarayan Shastri, Ramesh Mathur, Manish Gupta, Peter Morris

One of the most unusual independent films of the 80s, Kamal Swaroop's debut briefly suggested the possibility of an avant-garde. Set in a mythical small town in Rajasthan, akin to the Jhumri Talaiya whence stem the largest number of requests for film music singles addressed All India Radio's commercial channel, the film tells of a boy, Om, growing into adolescence (Manish Gupta plays the young Om, Aditya Lakhia the older boy). The son of a fortune teller (Shastri) and the younger brother of Gayatri (Desai), Om's major problem is that, riddled with guilt about his voyeurism, he believes himself to be responsible for everything that happens around him. Gayatri is courted by Jagdish (Tiwari) as she dreams of a future that would allow her to ride a bicycle or to sit in the men's section of a movie theatre. Many of Om's fantasies about sexuality and death are graphically realised in remarkable song sequences: a science teacher dissecting a frog expands into the Felliniesque Rana Tigrina number, or the moonwalk on a terrace on the night that Neil Armstrong landed on the moon. This double-edged satire acquires a further dimension with the entry of Phoolkumari (Kanwar), whose sexuality sends out beguiling and horrifying messages evoking, for Jagdish, the world of cheap Hindi novelettes. Then war is declared as the Diwali firecrackers become real explosions, the father's (Shastri) diamonds hoarded for black-market purposes are lost on the sethji's property where they are swallowed by frogs. In the end, Om atones by enacting the traditional legend of Brahma's descent to earth, the origin of the Pushkar fair which today is a major tourist attraction in Rajasthan. Om learns the art of breathing underwater and turns into a tourist exhibit. The jerky, fast-moving and witty film proceeds by way of symbolic imagery including tadpoles, skeletons and fantasies derived from Hindi movies, advertising, television and the popular Hindi novel. The music and soundtracks are remarkably inventive (e.g. the transformation of Come September into the number A-a-a mohabbat humsafar ho jaye).

Oru CBI Diary Kuruppu

1988 137' col Malayalam

d K. Madhu pc Sunitha Prod. p M. Mani s S.N. Swamy c Vipin Das m Shyam lp Mammootty, Urvashi, Suresh Gopi, Janardhanan, Sukumaran

Among the best known (with Avanazhi, 1986) of Mammootty's cop movies. Omana, the daughter-in-law of prominent businessman Ouseph, dies under mysterious conditions. The officer investigating the crime is transferred when he rejects the official conclusion of suicide. Omana's father and sister (Urvashi) petition the Supreme Court, which orders the CBI (Central Bureau of Investigation) to re-examine the case. CBI officer Sethuraman (Mammootty), with crack lieutenants Vikram and Harry, unearths the truth. Much of the film deals with the illegal financial activities of Ouseph and his gang, their extensive political contacts and their control over the local police (who consistently oppose the CBI officers). The end, however, develops from a relatively less explored aspect of the script: Omana's sexual oppression in an all-male household. The criminal is revealed as one of Ouseph's henchmen, and the pretence of suicide is meant to cover up a rape.

Padamudra

1988 144' col Malayalam

d/s R. Sukumaran pc Noble Pics. p Augustin Elanjipilli lyr Kuttappanakkur Hari, Edamon Thankappan c Saloo George m Vidyadharan lp Mohanlal, Nedumudi Venu, Seema, Urvashi, Sitara, Master Sreekumar

Existential fable designed to show off Mohanlal's acting skills. He plays both a part-time theyyam dancer and travelling salesman as well as his guilt-ridden son. The son eventually 'ascends' into insanity. The film works with numerous allusions to both biblical and folk sources as it investigates the meaning of fatherhood, the youth's main problem. Noted for George's camerawork and for Mohanlal's repeated efforts to extend his performative abilities to dance (cf. also Kamalathalam, 1992).

✪ Piravi

aka Birth

1988 110' col Malayalam
d/co-sc Shaji N. Karun pc Filmfolk co-sc/st S. Jayachandran Nair co-sc Raghu c Sunny Joseph m Mohan Sitara, Aravindan lp Premji, Archana, Lakshmiamma, C.V. Sriraman, Mullenezhi, Chandran Nair

A visually engrossing yet austere directorial debut by Kerala's leading cinematographer. The plot is taken from actuality and concerns a frail but dogged old man, Chakyar (Premji), who obsessively searches for his vanished son, Raghu, venturing even into bewildering Trivandrum to seek an audience with the Home Minister. The man's daughter learns that her brother probably died in police custody after being tortured, but she cannot bear to tell her father who continues to hope and to search. However, the old man's grip on reality is slipping fast and he begins dreaming that his son is with him. The story is based on the disappearance of Rajan, a Naxalite sympathiser, during the Emergency. Rajan's father later sued the Congress-I Government. The film's force comes from its skilful orchestration of time and space into fascinating rhythmical patterns interacting with land and cityscapes, drawing the viewer into the father's obsessive search in everyday, indifferent surroundings. It is also highly mystical, and deflects a major real-life incident with direct political repercussions into a brand of orientalist fatalism.

✪ Qayamat Se Qayamat Tak

1988 162' col/scope Urdu
d Mansoor Khan p/s Nasir Hussain lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Kiran Deohans
m Anand-Milind
lp Aamir Khan, Juhi Chawla, Ravinder Kapoor, Goga Kapoor, Dalip Tahil, Aloknath, Asha Sharma, Reema Lagoo, Beena, Ajit Vachhani, Raj Zutshi

The biggest box-office hit of 1988 relaunched its producer/writer (and some sources claim also director), and gave new life to glossy teen romances shot in advertising styles (cf. Maine Pyar Kiya, 1989). It also established the 90s star Aamir Khan. The film combines a Romeo and Juliet theme with the standard Nasir Hussain pop musical. Raj (Khan) and Rashmi (Chawla) fall in love, defying a major ancestral conflict between their families. They elope and create a kind of utopia in an abandoned temple on an isolated mountain, living on love, fresh air and burnt food. Having to buy provisions in a nearby town (the 'real' world), they are betrayed and die. The film presents the act of falling in love as an illusory individuation, but perhaps the only form of culturally acceptable rebellion available. Its strongly neo-traditional thrust is underlined by Khan's nostalgic evocation of classic Nasir Hussain heroes (e.g. Shammi Kapoor, Dev Anand), in the teenage hero's dilemma: whether to follow the idolised father, incarnated in the film's hit song Papa kehte hain, or to follow a different heroic vocation and fall in love. The film rapidly became a cult, fondly referred to by teenagers as 'QSQT'. Khan starred again in the follow-up, Dil (1990).

✪ Raakh

1988 153' col Hindi
d/st/co-sc Aditya Bhattacharya pc Emotion Pics, Second Image Ents co-sc/dial Nuzhat Khan
c Santosh Sivan m Ranjit Barot lp Aamir Khan, Pankaj Kapoor, Supriya Pathak, Naina Balsavar, Homi Wadia, Chandu Parkhi

Aamir Khan's first starring role prior to his breakthrough with Qayamat Se Qayamat Tak later in the year. The story, told in flashback, focuses on a young man whose interior monologue accompanies the film. The hero (Khan) helplessly watches his girlfriend (Pathak) being gang-raped. To refurbish his male pride (the woman's suffering is trivialised in the film), he spends the rest of the film, aided by a good cop (Kapoor), avenging the slighting of his manhood by the gangster and his henchmen responsible for the rape. The revenge story is presented as a fatalist meditation on 'meaning of life'. Using close-ups, flashing lights and throbbing music (composed by the rock drummer Ranjit Barot) under the dialogue, the film tries to induce the viewer to wallow in the choreography of violence.

✪ Ranadheera

1988 153' col Kannada
d/p/s Ravichandran pc Eswari Prod.
dial/lyr/m Hamsalekha c R. Madhusudhan lp Ravichandran, Umashree, Anant Nag, Khushboo, Lokesh, Jaijagadish, Master
 Manjunath

Complicated crime narrative dedicated mainly to star/director Ravichandran's self-promotion. The confrontation between the gangster Ranadheera (Ravichandran) and the Police Inspector General (Lokesh), as well as a love story featuring the Police Chief's daughter (Khushboo), both of which lead to the reform of the hero, form the main plot. The film, however, works with several other 'reflexive' devices, including references to Ravichandran's earlier hit Premaloka (1987), direct address to the audience and a scene in which the hero narrates the film to school children.

✪ Rihae

1988 158' col Hindi
d/s Aruna Raje pc Gaahimedia dial Suraj

Sanim lyr Babu Rangpura, Suraj
c S.R.K. Moorthy m Sharang Dev lp Hema Malini, Naseeruddin Shah, Vinod Khanna, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Ila Arun

First solo feature by Aruna Raje whose previous films were co-directed with Vikas Desai and signed jointly as Aruna-Vikas. It is set in a Rajasthan village where the men migrate to Bombay to seek work (and visit prostitutes) while their wives at home become victims of rapacious outsiders like Mansukh (Shah). Mansukh seduces the virtuous Taku (Malini) who becomes pregnant. When her husband (Khanna) returns, she informs him of her decision to defy the village elders' diktat and to have her child. The husband supports her against a group of villagers determined forcibly to terminate her pregnancy. Addressing the still unexplored theme of female sexuality, the film allows itself to be derailed into a conventional morality tale.

✪ Rudraveena

1988 170' col Telugu
d/s K. Balachander pc Anjana Prod.
p K. Nagendra Babu dial Ganesh Patro lyr Seetharama Sastry c P. Raghunanda Reddy
m Ilaiyaraaja
lp Chiranjeevi, Shobhana, Gemini Ganesh, P.L. Narayana, Brahmanandam, Satyanarayana

Reformist Chiranjeevi movie addressing caste in a calculated effort to achieve greater critical respectability for the star (cf. Swayamkrushi, 1987; Apathbandhavudu, 1992). The Brahmin Suryam (Chiranjeevi) is trained in music by his father, the reputed Carnatic musician Ganapathi Sastry (Ganesh). However, the father believes that music constitutes an end in itself, while the son is committed to uplifting the masses. Suryam falls for the Dalit woman Lalitha (Shobhana), but his father's disapproval forces him to leave home. Suryam becomes a political figure leading campaigns advocating prohibition and starts local cooperative movements. The father is betrayed by his new disciple, who demands to learn a rare raga as a dowry for marrying his daughter. The end has the Prime Minister of the country publicly congratulating Suryam for his actions while the father recants and publicly acknowledges that his son's ideals were the better ones. The film was awarded the 'Nargis Dutt National Integration' award from the national film jury.

✪ Sangliana

1988 141' col Kannada
d/co-p/st P. Nanjundappa pc Pushpagiri Films co-p J. Rameshlal, S.V. Ganesh, M.R. Kashinath sc K.V. Raju dial Ku. Nagabhushan co-lyr/m Hamsalekha co-lyr Doddarange Gowda, Manohar c Mallikarjuna lp Ambareesh, Shankar Nag, Bhavya, Tara, Srinath, Vajramuni, Devaraj, Sudhir, Master Manjunath, Disco Shanti, Lohiteshwara, Doddanna, Lakshman, K.V. Manjaiah, Gayatri Prabhakar, S. Varalakshmi, Pratibha

Although the film's title refers to a famous real-life Police Chief in Bangalore, T.S. Sangliana, the film bears no relation to actual events. Shankar Nag plays the cop assigned to bust a notorious gang. After several successful raids and a series of disguises, the plot thickens when Sangliana is charged with inhuman behaviour. The film's villain Vikram (Devaraj) is a criminal backed by his politician father (Vajramuni), while the voice of morality is provided by honest journalist Mahesh, whose daughter (Bhavya) is the film's female lead. Mainly a vehicle for action hero Nag, whose star-entry is enhanced by an unusual and relatively autonomous narrative device when fellow megastar Ambarish first appears pretending to be Sangliana.

Tezaab

1988 173' col/scope Hindi
d/s/p N. Chandra pc Aarti Ents Bombay, N. Chandra Prod. lyr Javed Akhtar c Baba Azmi m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Anil Kapoor, Chunky Pandey, Madhuri Dixit, Anupam Kher, Kiran Kumar, Suresh Oberoi, Mandakini, Annu Kapoor

Chandra, the maker of the Shiv Sena propaganda film Ankush (1985), had his first hit with this Bombay low-life crime movie. Munna (Anil Kapoor) is in love with the dancer Mohini (Dixit). Mohini's father (Kher) is an alcoholic gambler who lives off his daughter's earnings. To prevent the lovers marrying, he helps Lotiya Khan (Kumar), a criminal hostile to Munna. Lotiya Khan's brother tries to rape Munna's sister and Munna kills him, earning himself a year in jail. On his release, Munna is persecuted by Lotiya Khan, Mohini's father and the police. Forced by his bail conditions to remain outside Bombay's city limits, Munna becomes a noted criminal. Mohini's father and Lotiya Khan quarrel and Mohini is kidnapped by Khan. Munna rescues her and defeats the villains. Most of the film is told in flashback, narrating the romance between Munna and Mohini and the violence it engenders (the film is subtitled 'A violent love story'). The main title, meaning 'Acid', refers to the way Mohini's father disfigures his wife and causes her to commit suicide, threatening to assault his daughter in the same way. Chandra places much of the action in recognisable parts of the city. However, the film's spectacular opening sequence at a rock concert, featuring the hit song Ek do teen showing Mohini's kidnap by a bunch of motor-cyclists weaving through the crowded streets, is shot in a studio and presents a fantasy version of New York's Times Square. The fanatic communalism evident in Chandra's Ankush is echoed here: the hero, identified as a Maharashtrian, disposes of several 'outside' thugs suggesting that 'local' Maharashtrian criminals are revered by the people who dislike outsiders interfering with their home-grown racketeers.

Yateem

1988 173' col/scope Hindi
d/s J.P. Dutta pc Bikramjeet Films, Dharmendra dial O.P. Dutta lyr Hasan Kamal
m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

lp Sunny Deol, Farha, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Amrith Puri, Sujata Mehta, Danny Denzongpa, Dina Pathak

Dutta returned to his favourite Rajasthan desert locale with camerawork placing people in huge spaces for this revivalist tale of a policeman, Shivkumar Yadav (Kharbanda). Responsible for the death of Krishna's bandit parents, he adopts the boy (Deol) who goes to a police academy and returns home a commissioned officer to find his foster-father remarried. Yadav's new wife Chanchal (Sujata Mehta) mistreats her stepdaughter Gauri (Farha), Krishna's lover, while lusting for Krishna and having an affair with a junior officer, Girivar Mathur (Denzongpa). Rejected by Krishna, Chanchal accuses him of attempted rape and has him jailed. Krishna escapes and lives as a fugitive with Gauri until he is captured by a bandit. Escaping again, Gauri gives birth to a child which forces Krishna to surrender to his foster father. Earlier, Chanchal had been shot by Girivar, who blamed Yadav for the killing and is later killed himself by Krishna. Yadav dies protecting Krishna who then kills the bandits.

Ajal a Kokai

1989 ? col Assamese
d/s Bibhan Barua (aka Dwibon Barua) p Dulu Saikia c Dindayal Bajaria m Ramen Barua lp Thaneshwar Sarma, Mridula Barua, Maushumi Debi, Tulsi Das, Bibhuti Bhattacharya, Sadhan Hazarika, Bijoya Devi, Jayanta Das

Story of a simple but wise man who gets branded as a simpleton by the people around him. Made by one of Assam's better known 'mainstream' directors committed to popularising quality cinema among local audiences.

Al icinte Anveshanam aka Alice's Search, aka The Search of Alice

 1989 122' col Malayalam
d/s T.V. Chandran pc Neo Vision, NFDC
c Sunny Joseph m Ouseppachan lp Jalaja, Ravindranath, Nedumudi Venu, C.V. Sriraman, Nilambur Balan, P.T.K. Mohammed

Set in a northern Kerala Catholic milieu, the film tells of a college lecturer's wife, Alice (Jalaja), who searches for her vanished husband and slowly discovers disturbing aspects of the man's life including his descent from his earlier radicalism into 'bourgeois' degeneracy. In the end, she abandons the search and decides to take responsibility for her own life. Third and best-known film by former actor (Kabani Nadi Chuvannappol, 1975) and assistant to Abraham and Backer.

Andha Diganta

1989 ? col Oriya
d Manmohan Mahapatra s Prakash Patra m Ajoy Ghosh
lp Arun Nanda, Jaya Swamy, Manimala Devi, Sarat Pujari

Rural melodrama by the master of the genre in Oriya. The film tells of the travails of its protagonist Radha, battling her past and a hostile society, to carve out a dignified life for herself.

Ankusham

1989 139' col Telugu
d/sc Kodi Ramakrishna pc M.S. Art Movies
p M. Shyamaprasad Reddy st M.S. Art Movies Unit lyr Mallemla c K.S. Hari m K. Satyam lp Rajasekhar, Jeevitha, M.S. Reddy, G. Rami Reddy, Gopi, Baby Mohan

Major hit pioneering Kodi Ramakrishna's vendetta series of honest man-against-corrupt-system (cf. Shatruvu, 1990). The honest cop (Rajasekhar) tries to bring a crook (Rami Reddy) to justice, but the criminal - in an extended set of encounters - kills the cop's pregnant wife (Jeevitha). Both the hero and villain die in the end, but the hero manages to save his former teacher and Chief Minister of the State, played by the film's producer and scenarist, Reddy aka Mallemla. Rajasekhar's voice was dubbed by Saikumar, a regular feature for this particular star.

Apoova Sahodar ar gal

aka Appu Raja
 1989 157' col Tamil
d Singeetham Srinivasa Rao pc Rajkamal International p/sc Kamalhasan st Panchu Arunachalam dial 'Crazy' Mohan c P.C. Sriram lyr Vali m Ilaiyaraja lp Kamalhasan, Jaishankar, Nagesh, Nasser, Delhi Ganesh, Janakaraj, Mouli, Roopini, Gauthami, Manorama, Srividya

A successful remake of the familiar story with Kamalhasan in a sensational triple role following in Lon Chaney's footsteps as he physically transforms himself into a dwarf. In a prelude shot in an Italo-Western style reminiscent of Sholay's (1975, Inspector Sedupathi (Kamalhasan) captures and publicly humiliates four villains. On their release, they murder Sedupathi and try to poison his pregnant wife, who manages to escape with the twins she eventually bears. Chased by the villains, the mother and a female friend escape with one child each, believing the others to have been killed. The real mother and her son Appu, a dwarf (Kamalhasan), join a circus where he has a Chaplinesque romance with the manager's daughter. Learning the truth about his past, Appu tracks down the four villains and kills three of them. The killings are attributed to a certain Raja (Kamalhasan again) who turns out to be the missing twin now working as a garage mechanic and the lover of the remaining villain's daughter. Raja, pursued by the police, is rescued by Appu and happy ending consists of the twins murdering the last villain.

Attaku Yamudu Ammayiki Mogudu

1989 140' col Telugu
d/sc A. Kodandarami Reddy pc Geeta Arts p Allu Aravind dial Satyanand lyr Veturi

Sundara Ramamurthy, Bhuvana Chandra c H. Loksingh m Chakravarthy Ip Chiranjeevi, Vijayashanti, Vanisree, Ravu Gopala Rao, Giribabu, Allu Ramalingaiah, Satyanarayana

Kalyan (Chiranjeevi) marries Rekha (Vijayashanti) but comes up against her arrogant and dominating mother-in-law Chamundeshwari Devi (Vanisree). Most of the plot deals with complicated familial tribulations and ends with the hero getting even with his mother-in-law, whom he eventually rescues and humanises when her evil accomplices frame her for murder. The enormous success of the film led to both Chiranjeevi and Vanisree repeating aspects of their roles in several later films, also spawning a new genre of 'mother-in-law' films in which class antagonisms are often played out with a lower-class son-in-law (cf. Alluda Majaaka, 1995).

Bagh Bahadur

aka The Tiger Dancer, The Tigerman

1989 91' col Hindi

d/p/sc Buddhadev Dasgupta pc Doordarshan st Prafulla Roy c Venu

m Shantanu Mahapatra

Ip Pawan Malhotra, Archana, M.V. Vasudeva Rao, Biplab Chatterjee, Rajeshwari Roy Choudhury, Masood Akhtar

Inspired by the atmosphere of folk-tales, the film tells of Ghunuram (Malhotra), a quarry worker who returns to his native village of Nonpura to participate in its annual festival as the celebrated Tiger Dancer and to marry Radha (Archana), the daughter of the drummer Sibal (Rao, referring to his earlier role in Chomana Dudi, 1975). However, Ghunuram's dance is eclipsed by a real-life leopard show staged by a circus. In addition, Archana falls in love with a circus performer. In desperation and encouraged by Sibal's drumming, Ghunuram enters the leopard's cage and challenges it to a duel, which he loses.

Banani

aka The Forest

1989 108' col Assamese

d Jahnu Barua pc Purbanchal Film Co-op s Sushil Goswami c Anoop Jotwani m Satya Barua, Prasanta Bordoloi

Ip Mridula Barua, Sushil Goswami, Bishnu Kharghoria, Golap Datta, Lakshmi Sinha, Munim Sharma, Jyoti Bhattacharya, Shasanka Debo Phukan

With this ecological drama, Assam's leading director Jahnu Barua continues exploring the conflict between corrupt state politics and a determined individual (cf. Halodiya Choraye Baodhan Khaye, 1987). The forest ranger (Goswami) confronts illegal timber merchants and contractors on behalf of impoverished tribals. The honest ranger's activities get him into trouble and he is constantly transferred from one post to another, to the annoyance of his wife who wants him to settle down and look after their ailing child. Eventually she supports her husband's fight and the tribals realise they need weapons to defend themselves against rapacious outsiders. The film's simple plot is interrupted by long didactic speeches.

Batwara

1989 201' col/scope Hindi

d/s J.P. Dutta pc 786 Aftab Pics dial O.P. Dutta
lyr Hasan Kamal c Ishwar Bidri m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

Ip Dharmendra, Vinod Khanna, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Vijayendra Ghatge, Neena Gupta, Dimple Kapadia, Shammi Kapoor, Asha Parekh, Poonam Dhillon, Mohsin Khan, Amrishi Puri, Amrita Singh

Amitabh Bachchan's celebrated baritone introduces in voice-over the film's political context: new laws limiting land ownership introduced after Independence threaten the zamindar class. One of them, Bade Thakur (Kapoor), has a son, Vikram Singh aka Vicky (Khanna) who is friendly with Sumer Singh (Dharmendra), a member of the hated Jat community. Vicky's younger brother, the arrogant Devan (Ghatge), is killed by irate villagers and Vicky in turn murders several villagers, including the brother of Sumer's girlfriend (Dimple). The friends turn into mortal enemies as Sumer becomes the farmers' leader. Both Sumer and Vicky are sought by the police, especially by Rajendra Pratap Singh (Khan), a principled officer despite being the youngest son of Bade Thakur. Rajendra Pratap's disdain for caste differences irks his junior officer Hanumant Singh (Puri), who plans to kill him. The film continues J.P. Dutta's concern with Rajasthan's communal and caste wars, the feudal lifestyle of the zamindars, their scant respect for human life and the image of a powerful, charismatic leader who unites the people against the oppressive thakurs. The visuals are replete with horses racing across the desert, camels, palaces, elaborate costumes, sand-dunes, ravines and the mandatory vultures.

Bhookha

1989 ? col Oriya

d Sabhyasachi Mahapatra pc NFDC/Doordarshan s/c Satish Kumar m Kapila Prasad

Ip Sarat, Swati Roy, Sadhu Meher

Rural melodrama featuring a community of impoverished Dalits from the Bajania community, known for their popular traditional music. The community faces famine, and competition from an urban musical band threatens their livelihood. The film emphasises their music, as a means of their self-expression and their effort to comprehend their historically oppressed conditions.

Chandni

1989 186' col Hindi

d Yash Chopra pc Yash Raj Films st Kamna Chandra sc Unmesh Kalba, Arun Kashyap lyr Anand Bakshi c Manmohan Singh
m Shiv-Hari

Ip Vinod Khanna, Rishi Kapoor, Sridevi, Waheeda Rehman, Anupam Kher, Mita Vasish

Yash Chopra returns to his familiar brand of romances (cf. Silsila, 1981) in exotic locations with this tale of Chandni (Sridevi). She is seen - and for a large part of the film, also imagined - only through the eyes of her lover Rohit (Kapoor), who decorates the walls of his room with the countless snapshots he takes of her. Later, while showering his beloved with flowers from a helicopter, he falls and is partially paralysed, prompting him to break off the relationship. However, his sexually charged fantasies of Chandni eventually rekindle his desire to live. After an expensive operation in a hospital abroad, he is cured and re-enters Chandni's life just when she is about to marry her boss, Lalit (Khanna). The film and its marketing campaign revolve entirely around Sridevi, confirming her as India's top female star. Arguably, the whole film can be seen as an extended advertisement promoting Sridevi as the Indian film consumers' ideal fantasy of womanhood, including the popular song by Lata Mangeshkar, Mere haathon main nau nau churiyan.

Chhandaneer

aka The Nest of Rhythm

1989 130' col Bengali

d/s/m Utpalendu Chakraborty pc Abhishek Prod. c Girish Padidhar

Ip Anjana Bannerjee, Dipak Sarkar, Madhabi Chakraborty, Satya Bannerjee, Anup Kumar, Sreela Majumdar, Gyanesh Mukherjee, Ratna Ghoshal, Kanika Majumdar

A classical dance film focusing on the performance skills of Anjana Bannerjee who plays the central character, Seema, an internationally acclaimed Bharat Natyam dancer with a comfortable middle-class background. Rejecting the man her parents chose as her husband, she marries a wonderful but blind musician, Anyan, and they stage shows together. However, to earn more money, Anyan compromises his talent and works for pop singers and commercial film producers, causing Seema to walk out on him so as to remain devoted to the purity of her classical dance tradition.

Dasharatham

1989 154' col Malayalam

d Sibi Malayil pc Saga Films

st/sc/dial A.K. Lohitadas lyr Ouppachan Vabar
c Venu m Johnson

Ip Mohanlal, Rekha, Muralee, Karamana Janardanan Nair, Sukumari, Nedumudi Venu, Sukumaran

The rich bachelor Rajiv Menon (Mohanlal) resolves to stay single when his mother deserts his father. However, when a friend (Venu) brings his family over for the vacation, Rajiv discovers that he likes the company of children and asks his friend to let him adopt one of his. When the friend refuses, Rajiv, wanting to avoid marriage at all costs, advertises for a womb that he might artificially inseminate. Annie (Rekha) agrees to mother a child, mainly to pay for the medical expenses of her paralysed sportsman-husband. However, when the baby is born, she refuses to hand it over, although her now recovered and jealous husband insists that she do so. Annie now has a trilemma as she has to face her husband's feelings, her responsibilities to the child and her contract with Rajiv. Eventually Rajiv surrenders his rights to the child. The often witty situations and fine performances do not compensate for the oppressive representations of a woman's 'duty' and 'instinct'.

at the same time suggesting how social elements constrained as well as nourished her life and her art.

En Uyir Thozhan

1989 150' (121') col/scope Tamil
d/sc Bharthirajaa pc B.R. Art Films p P. Jayaraj, S.P. Sivamani st P. Kalaimani c/dial B. Kannan co-lyr Gangai Amaran co-lyr/m Ilaiyaraja lp Babu, Ramesh, Rama, Vadivukkarasi, Ranjan, Charlie, MLA Muruges, Senapati, Ranganath, Jayapal, Sundaramurthy, Muthukumar, Master Prabhu, Satya, Srilatha, Ramila, Kunjaramma, Vijayapriya, Rajathi, Premalatha, Thenmozhi

A film blaming professional politicians for exploiting their well-meaning and dedicated party activists and officials. A party activist from the slums, Dharman (Babu), uncritically devoted to his leader, shelters a young girl, Chittu (Roma) who was jilted by her lover Thennavan (Ramesh). The two fall in love and, come election time, Dharman is assigned to work for the area's party candidate Ponnambalam (Ranjan). In a bid to win the voters' sympathy, the party boss and Ponnambalam have Dharman assassinated, blaming the murder on their political opponents. The ruse is successful and after the elections have been won, the party boss stages an elaborate public tribute to the faithful Dharman. The strident, fake-documentary effects further emphasise the film's commentary on contemporary Tamil politics.

Fl ying Bird, The

1989 90' col English
d/co-s Vishnu Mathur p/co-s C.S. Lakshmi c K.K. Mahajan lp Savithri Rajan

A beautifully crafted and meditative documentary portrait shot on 16mm of the 80-year-old Madras-based Savithri Rajan, a virtuoso veena player who never performed in public. She was the disciple of the legendary musicians Tiger Varadachari and Veenai Dhanammal. The film is built around her music and family memories with K.K. Mahajan's sensuous camera gliding through the spaces of her life or simply recording the aged but lively Rajan's voice and music. Savithri Rajan's extraordinary presence is the film's focus, but Mathur manages to convey the complex interrelations between personal, familial, artistic and social rhythms of change, achieving the rare feat of doing justice to the accomplishments of the individual artist while

Ganashatru

aka An Enemy of the People
 1989 99' col Bengali
d/sc/m Satyajit Ray pc NFDC st Henrik Ibsen's play c Barun Raha lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Ruma Guha-Thakurta, Mamata Shankar, Dhritiman Chatterjee, Dipankar Dey, Subhendu Chatterjee, Manoj Mitra, Vishwa Guha-Thakurta, Rajaram Yagnik, Satya Bannerjee, Gobinda Mukherjee

Having suffered a heart attack, Ray returned to cinema, extensively assisted by his son Sandeep, with a short documentary on his father, Sukumar Ray (1987), and with this first of three features set in contemporary Bengal, addressing, like his earlier trilogy, the theme of corruption. For his first contemporary story since Jana Aranya (1975), Ray transposes the Ibsen play into the story of Dr Ashok Gupta (Soumitra Chatterjee) who protests when the holy water in a temple turns out to be contaminated by bad plumbing and produces a jaundice epidemic. The doctor meets with powerful opposition from the temple trustees and the villagers. The plot device of making the holy water in a temple the cause of disease evoked the rise of the Hindu religious right wing in Indian politics. The film is shot predominantly in close-ups and mid-shots and seems to bear the stamp of Ray's continuing ill health.

Geetanjal i

1989 142' col Telugu
d/s Mani Rathnam pc Bhagyalakshmi Ents dial Rajashri lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy
c P.C. Sriram m Ilaiyaraja lp Nagarjuna, Girija, Vijayakumar, Vijayachander, Sumitra, Velu, Disco Shanthi, Chandramohan, Sowcar Janaki, Smita

Rathnam's first Telugu film was the biggest hit of the year in Telugu as well as in Tamil (in a dubbed version, Idhayathe Thirudathe). It tells an unusual love story about a young collegiate gangster (Nagarjuna) who meets the wild Geetanjali (Girija). Both are terminally ill, he with leukaemia and she with heart disease. These afflictions appear to liberate the duo from social constraints. Most of the film is shot in exotic, fog-bound locations and includes several rock numbers (e.g. Om Namaha which uses an amplified heartbeat as background rhythm). The critic Tejaswini Niranjana (1991) points out that the heroine is the 'new woman, the strong heroine, the inheritor of a refracted modernity in a context where femininity is once again being redefined [placing on her] the burden of saviour and teacher [w]ho has to be the one to provide support, when the hero in a similar situation [sings] sad songs. However, [s]he is allowed to take the initiative in the relationship because in spite of her shoulder-length hair she is 'Indian' and a signifier of the good modernity.'

Hathyar

1989 186' col/scope Hindi
d/st J.P. Dutta p H.A. Nadiadwala dial O.P. Dutta
lyr Hasan Kamal c Ishwar Bidri m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Dharmendra, Rishi Kapoor, Sanjay Dutt, Amrita Singh, Sangeeta Bijlani, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Paresh Rawal

One of Sanjay Dutt's early hits in his current loner mould. In distant Rajasthan, Avinash (Dutt) and Suman (Singh) are married as children. As they grow up, feudal clan rivalry between their families causes Avinash to leave his wife and to move to Bombay with his pacifist parents (Kharbanda and Rawal) where he becomes involved in gang violence. The fearsome Khushal Khan (Dharmendra), protector of Avinash's family, has a weakness: his good younger brother Samiulla Khan (Kapoor) will not talk to him. Eventually, a third storyline emerges as the 'real' villain comes on the scene: a Tamil gangster (Rawal) who caused Khushal Khan to become a criminal. All the characters struggle to achieve a degree of control over their circumstances while the director undercuts their efforts by resorting to 'mythic', overpowering Bombay locations (N. Chandra and Mukul S. Anand territory) which nevertheless give the impression of being sets because of the patchy lighting, the overbearing soundtrack or the relentless shot-reverse-shot editing pattern.

Indrudu Chandrudu

1989 158' col Telugu
d Suresh Krishna pc Suresh Prod. p D. Rama Naidu st/dial Parachuri Bros. sc Kamalahasan lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Seetharama Sastry c P.S. Prakash m Ilaiyaraja lp Kamalahasan, Vijayashanti, Srividya, Charan Raj, Jayalalitha, Maruthirao

City Mayor Rayudu (Kamalahasan) is killed by his secretary (Raj), who replaces him with a lookalike, Chandran (Kamalahasan again). The youth agrees mainly because the money will help pay for his ill mother's treatment. Much of the film depends on the comedy situations that follow from Kamalahasan's double role.

Innal e

aka Season
 1989 137' col/scope Malayalam
d/sc/dial P. Padmarajan pc ABR Prod p Ashraf, Rasheed st Vasanthi lyr Kaithapram c Venu
m P.G. Ravindranath lp Shobhana, Jayaram, Suresh Gopi, Srividya, Sudhakaran

Gauri (Shobhana), the sole survivor of a tragic bus accident, loses her memory. Admitted to a private nursing home, where she is diagnosed as suffering from 'hysterical amnesia', she falls for the doctor's son Sarat (Jayaram). However Narendran (Gopi) arrives from the USA and, to the lovers' consternation, claims to be her husband. When Gauri's amnesia appears incurable and she still refuses to recognise Narendran, he returns to the US wishing the new couple well.

⊗ Kaal Abhirati

aka Time Addiction

1989 120' col Bengali

d/co-p Amitabh Chakraborty co-p Mandira Mitra pc Ayonija Films dial Moinak Biswas
c Shashikant Anantachari m Prasun Mitra lp Somo Dev Basu, Badal Sircar, Jogesh Datta, Ranjabati Sircar, Rita Chakraborty, Sunil Mukherjee

Experimental feature debut by a young FTII graduate. The opening shot sets the tone, holding for nearly 10' a static frame with an outstretched palm and occasional passers-by seen through a door in the distance. The film has four main characters, an artist-hero, his girlfriend, a garrulous and cynical avuncular figure (played by Badal Sircar), and a sound technician who records their conversation (and sometimes represents the film-maker). The occasional stretches of dialogue between the man and woman in a partially constructed building and in the zoo, or the rowdy drunken conversation in a bar, serves to heighten the surreal effects arrived at with immense Kali figures on Calcutta's streets, clouds of smoke and ghostly figures wandering through cavernous 19th C. mansions. At the end of the film, in a dawn shot, the hero sets his works of art afire, and joins the other characters in a Dionysian dance. The highly theatrical film depends mainly on a rigorous symmetry of volumes and long duration shots that are either static or move in a slow track. Remarkably, the main set, the city of Calcutta, is physically drained of all human presence other than the actual actors. The presence of Badal Sircar, one of Bengal's best-known playwrights (Evam Indrajeet) and proponent of a Grotowskian 'Third Theatre' concept, serves partially to contextualise the theatrical origins of the language.

⊗ Mahisagarne Aare

1989 148' col Gujarati

d/s/lyr Girish Manukant pc R.J. Pics p Ramjibhai J. Patel c Latif Mangal m Dhiraj Dhanak lp Ranjit Raj, Sneha, Malay Chakraborty, Mahua Chakraborty, Phiroze Irani

A conventional love story between Phoolkunwar and Kisan forms the framing device for a special effects-derived action movie. The evil Malubha persuades the heroine's step-mother to destroy the marriage which symbolically held together the financial merger of two elite feudal families. The cast demonstrates the growing influence of non-Gujarati actors in the cinema of this region.

⊗ Mai

1989 ?' col Bhojpuri

d/co-sc Rajkumar Sharma pc Shiv Ganga Prod.
st Ashok Sinha co-sc Narayan Bhandari dial Shiv Munjal lyr Shaktikishore Dubey
c Surjeet Cheema m Ram Babu lp Padma Khanna, Sheila David, Pankaj Sharma, Vijay Khare, Hari Shukla, Brijkishore, Narayan Bhandari, Shraddha Sinha

Bhojpuri hit melodrama invoking a Gorky-type mother figure in the village of Karitpur in Central India. She and her family, notably her younger brother-in-law Kundan and her sister-in-law Radha, come up against the evil violence of the young local zamindar who tries to appropriate the village land. One-time Hindi actress Padma Khanna, now a major Bhojpuri star, plays the lead.

⊗ Maine Pyar Kiya

aka I Have Fallen in Love aka When Love Calls
1989 192' col/scope Hindi

d/sc Sooraj Barjatya pc Rajshri Prod.
st S.M. Ahale lyr Asad Bhopali, Dev Kohli
c Arvind Laad m Ram-Lakshman lp Salman Khan, Bhagyashree, Alok Nath, Rajiv Verma, Rima Lagoo, Ajit Vachhani, Harish Patel, Deep Dhillon, Huma Khan, Pervin Dastur, Mohnish Behl, Laxmikant Berde

A typical, very successful rich-boy/poor-girl romance launching the career of 90s star Salman Khan as a teenage hero. The hero, Prem (Khan), falls in love with Suman (Bhagyashree). Obstacles are provided by Krishen (Vachhani), Prem's businessman father who is also Suman's guardian. Suman is the daughter of a village motor-mechanic (Nath), which evokes suggestions of class as well as city/country divisions in the love story which initiated the now-popular convention of the slow fade-out on the embrace of the couple's fathers. The film's novelty is due mainly to its adoption of advertising imagery: rich, saturated colour effects constantly emphasising surface, trendy costumes (the cooks wear red-check coats), green fields full of footballs, mountainsides of red apples, neon signs, ice falling into glasses of Coke, a heroine with fluffy toys and a leather-jacketed hero who loves motor-bikes, posters of American pop icons (including a poster of Salman Khan himself). The soundtrack, which uses an 'I love you' refrain throughout the film, includes the hit song Kabutar ja ja with a carrier pigeon hitching a ride in a car to convey a love letter. The film's songs broke all sales records. It was dubbed into several languages e.g. Inaprawugal (Malayalam, 1991).

⊗ Mane/Ek Ghar

1989 137' col Kannada/Hindi

d/sc Girish Kasaravalli pc Apoorva Chitra
c S. Ramchandra m L. Vaidyanathan lp Naseeruddin Shah, Deepti Naval, Rohini Hattangadi, Mico Chandru, B.S. Achar

Rajanna (Shah) and Geeta (Naval) move into their newly rented house, a badly built room in a compound also housing a noisy motor-mechanic's shop, allowing no sleep. The couple seek the help of Geeta's aunt (Hattangadi), who knows a senior police officer. When the mechanic's shop is closed down, it is replaced by the policeman's nephew's equally noisy video games parlour. Rajanna works in a factory building large earth-moving vehicles: in the end, when the couple decide to move into a slum, these vehicles are seen in a slum-clearance drive led by the police. The film lavishly deploys surreally symbolic images: a giant four-poster bed in a small room, colour continuities between tractors, large metal drums in the street and the haldi (saffron) which the couple put on the walls to keep pests away, the yawning vehicles in the garage and the destructive imagery of the video games. Kasaravalli's first explicitly urban film.

⊗ Marhi Da Deeva/Deep

aka The Lamp of the Tomb

1989 115' col Punjabi/Hindi

d/sc Surinder Singh pc NFDC, Doordarshan
st Gurdial Singh c Anil Sehgal m Mohinderjit Singh lp Raj Babbar, Deepti Naval, Kanwaljeet, Parikshit Sahni, Asha Sharma, Pankaj Kapoor

Deepti Naval and Raj Babbar in Marhi Da Deeva

The first Punjabi art-house film is a melodrama about feudalism based on a popular novel, also adapted to the stage, by Gurdial Singh. The story chronicles the shift from feudal sharecropping to capitalist farming over two generations of the region's rural elite. Hero Jagsir, the son of the sharecropper Thola, is treated as a brother by landlord Dharam Singh. The landlord's son, however, does not continue this family tradition. As Jagsir's mother belongs to a nomad caste (preventing the son, by custom, from ever marrying), the hero's love for the bride of the impotent barber Nika is fraught with problems. Symbolically, the building of Jagsir's father's tomb (also a means of marking out the land that rightfully belongs to the family) and then of his own tomb precedes Jagsir's physical deterioration and death. Insightful links between masculinity and land ownership provide a good example of how melodrama can address difficult political realities.

⊗ Muddul a Mamaiah

1989 142' col Telugu
d/sc Kodi Ramakrishna pc Bhargav Arts Prod.
p S. Gopala Reddy st Vasu dial Ganesh Patro lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Vennelakanti c K.S. Hari
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Balkrishna, Vijayashanti, Seeta, Eeshwara Rao, Gollapudi Maruti Rao, Ravikiran, Raja Krishnamurthy, Aahuti Prasad, Ananta Raj, Master Amit

Hugely successful film casting Balkrishna in the role of Raju, the village pickpocket who also fights on behalf of the community against feudal oppression. Raju's city-educated sister Lakshmi (Seeta) returns to the village and challenges the authority of the local landlord, Raja Rao. The landlord's son marries Lakshmi, later abandons her and kills her shortly after she delivers a baby. The baby is raised (Master Amit) by the heroine Radha (Vijayashanti), while the hero, Raju, kills his brother-in-law, goes to jail, and returns to demolish the evil landlord. The film was remade by K.C. Bokadia with Amitabh Bachchan (Aaj Ka Arjun, 1990).

⊗ Nazar

aka The Gaze
 1989 124' col Hindi
d/p Mani Kaul pc Infrakino st Dostoevsky's The Meek Creature sc Sharmistha Mohanty
c Piyush Shah m D. Wood, Vikram Joglekar lp Shekhar Kapur, Shambhavi, Surekha Sikri

Kaul's first fiction film since Duvidha in 1973 is based on both Dostoevsky's story and Bresson's version of it, Une Femme douce (1969). Set in Bombay but effacing its geographic location, the film starts, like Bresson's film, with the suicide of a young bride (Shambhavi, the director's daughter). Then we learn of her marriage to a middle-aged antique dealer (Kapur) and her growing estrangement. The only other major character in the film is the heroine's impoverished relative (Sikri), initially a go-between before the couple's marriage, and later a crucial third figure from whose perspective the disintegrating marriage can be viewed. The major part of the film chronicles the young wife's alienation, as she first resists and then succumbs to the order of things in a world in which her place is determined regardless of her efforts to intervene. This aspect of the narrative is elaborated in terms of an orchestration of cinematic space, including the construction of 'virtual', unsuspected spaces within the frame. This device makes the narrative space itself dramatic, as claustrophobic situations are juxtaposed with 'a reality' within which spaces can suddenly acquire extra dimensions. The fragmented dialogue, often functioning as an interiorised soliloquy, is counterpointed by the extraordinary use of the camera's focalisations which at times take the place of editing. Kaul continued his exploration of Dostoevsky with a vastly enlarged canvas in Idiot (1991).

⊗ Oru Vadakkan Veeragatha

aka A Northern Ballad
 1989 168' col Malayalam
d T. Hariharan pc Grihalakshmi Pics.
s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr K. Jayakumar, Kaithapram c K. Ramchandra Babu mus Ravi lp Mammootty, Suresh Gopi, Balan K. Nair, Madhavi, Captain Raju, Geetha, Sanjay, Prashant

Critically acclaimed and commercially successful adaptation of Kerala's well-known legend, set in the 16th century, of the brave Aromalunni, his beautiful sister Unniyarcha and their poor adopted relative Chandu. Scenarist Nair filled in the story's 'silences' and emphasised important, but traditionally marginalised, characters, making Chandu (Mammootty) a misunderstood victim of jealousy and betrayal. Aromal (Gopi) is transformed into a brash, arrogant and devious warrior, less skillful than Chandu but promoted because of his caste pedigree. When Aromal dies accidentally in a fight, Chandu is accused of treachery. Unniyarcha (Madhavi) is shown as a fickle woman with a flexible notion of morality who repeatedly betrays Chandu. In flashback, Chandu narrates the facts omitted from the public version to a young woman in a closed arena, while Unniyarcha's sons wait outside to challenge him to a duel. One of the most expensive Malayalam films to date, it is famous for its reconstruction of the famed martial arts form of kalaripayattu and for Mammootty's remarkable performance (which the actor regards as his best film work). Following on from his novel Randaamoozham, the film continues Nair's efforts to make the silences in our epics 'speak' the caste and kinship aspects traditionally glossed over in the narration.

⊗ Parinda

1989 154' col/scope Hindi
d/p/st Vidhu Vinod Chopra pc Vidhu Vinod Chopra Films sc Shivkumar dial Imtiaz Hussain lyr Khursheed Hallauri c Binod Pradhan
m R.D. Burman
lp Anil Kapoor, Jackie Shroff, Madhuri Dixit, Nana Patekar, Anupam Kher, Kader Khan, Suresh Oberoi, Tom Alter

Chopra's biggest mainstream movie, known mainly for his thrillers (Sazaaye Maut, 1981; Khamosh, 1985) and the famous Pepsi commercial announcing the multinational's entry into India. A spectacular, lyrical opening introduces the viewer to Bombay in this postmodern variation of the Hindi crime movie. With low-angle tracking shots and swiftly changing volumes in the image, the film tells of a mentally unbalanced villain, Anna (Patekar) and his henchman Kishen (Shroff) who supports his innocent brother Karan (Kapoor). Karan is used as a bait to trap the cop (Kher) and is eventually killed on his wedding night. Elder brother Kishen, until then divided between his responsibilities to his brother and to Anna, finally turns against his employer and sets him on fire. The film flopped but was critically acclaimed for its soundtrack, its use of CinemaScope and for Patekar's streetwise performance.

⊗ Mathil ukal

aka The Walls
 1989 119' col Malayalam
d/p/sc Adoor Gopalakrishnan pc Doordarshan st Vaikom Mohammed Basheer c Ravi Varma m Vijayabhaskar lp Mammootty, Thilakan, Murali, Ravi Vallathol, Karamana Janardanan Nair, Srinath, Babu Namboodiri, Jagannath Varma, Vempayan, Aziz, P.C. Soman

Based on an autobiographical novelette by the well-known Kerala writer Basheer, this is a love story, set in a prison cell the 40s, between the imprisoned Basheer (Mammootty) and a woman from the neighbouring prison compound. They are separated by a high wall so that they never see each other and have to devise ingenious ways of communicating. Produced for TV, the story is played out in confined spaces with a sense of claustrophobia and suppressed violence which enhances the emotional impact of the moving love story.

⊗ Mazhavil Kavadi

1989 143' col Malayalam
d Sathyan Andhikkad pc Kokers Films p Siyad Koker s Raghunath Paleri lyr Kaithapram
c Vipin Mohan m Johnson lp Jayaram, Sitara, Urvashi, Innocent

Velayudhankutty (Jayaram) loves Ammini (Sitara) and she being his 'murappennu' - his uncle's daughter and therefore by custom his bride-to-be, all should have been well, except that the Uncle (Innocent) has different plans for his daughter. The comedy tells how poor Velayudhan goes to Palani in Tamil Nadu and becomes a barber tonsuring the heads of thousands of pilgrims, which prompts him to write home claiming to have become the 'head cleaner' in a large electronics factory. Anandavalli (Urvashi), his employer's daughter, falls for him but sportingly steps aside to enable the happy ending to take place.

Percy

1989 128' col Gujarati
d Pervez Mehrwanji pc NFDC st/co-sc Cyrus Mistry co-sc Jill Misquitta c Navroze Contractor m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Ruby Patel, Hosi Vasunia, Kurush Deboo, Sharad Smart, Zenobia Shroff, Roshan Tirandaz

The only feature by Pervez Mehrwanji, a noted documentary and TV director who died shortly afterwards, is a melodrama set among Bombay's minority Parsee community. Percy (Deboo) is an awkward youth dominated by his mother (Patel) and emasculated by the memory of a gross, pleasure-loving father (Vasunia). Employed by a small pharmaceutical business, he is tormented by a lumpenised Maharashtrian (through whom the film refers to Maharashtra's Hindu Shiv Sena Party). When the hero causes the other man to be sacked, he is beaten up on the street. He finds some solace for his loneliness by joining a motley bunch of Western classical music enthusiasts. The film intercuts his actual experiences with his dreams and fantasies, the last one (in which he resurrects a dead school friend, Dara) urging him to jettison his pervasive sense of guilt. The two realities are separated and merged mainly via Contractor's masterful camerawork. The film has several well-known actors from Bombay's Parsee theatre and deploys the characteristic self-mocking idiom of Parsee popular plays.

Purappad

1989 158' col Malayalam
d Joshi pc MAK Prod. st Poulouse sc/dial John Paul lyr O.N.V. Kurup c Vipin Das m Ouseppachan lp Mammootty, Saikumar, Parvathi, Sitara, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Innocent, Balan K. Nair, Jagathi Srikumar, P.E. George, Adoor Bhawani

Big budget film with a massive cast chronicling the journey of an entire village, uprooted by a bursting dam, to a hilly terrain 160 km away. Starting with the depiction of a communal riot between Hindus and Muslims, the film repeatedly proclaims its anti-sectarian message exemplified by the principal character Vishwam (Mammootty). Locations and studio settings are both used effectively, esp. the hilly landscape where the villagers resettle, but the film's scale, both technical and rhetorical, sometimes leads to a loss of directorial control.

Ram Lakhan

1989 186' col Hindi
d/st Subhash Ghai p Ashok Ghai pc Suneha Arts sc Ram Kelkar lyr Anand Bakshi c Ashok Mehta m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Raakhee, Jackie Shroff, Anil Kapoor, Amrith Puri, Gulshan Grover, Madhuri Dixit, Dimple Kapadia, Paresh Rawal, Annu Kapoor, Anupam Kher, Saeed Jaffrey, Satish Kaushik, Raza Murad, Sonika Gill, Dalip Tahil

A family feud mixed with large-scale villainy. Thakur Pratap Singh is killed by his own cousin and his family loses its ancestral home. His wife Sharda (Raakhee) swears that she will immerse his ashes in the Ganges only when her sons Ram (Shroff) and Lakhan (Anil Kapoor) have avenged their father. Ram becomes an honest cop, Lakhan a corrupt one who wants to get rich quick. Both have totally different notions of revenge. Lakhan eventually repents when his mother almost destroys his house accusing him of betraying his primary duty, to avenge his father. The story refers to the Ramayana via the names of the brothers (Ram and Lakshman) and labelling the villains 'a set of Ravana's'. Sharda, dressed in black whenever she confronts the villains, refers to the myth of the female black cobra who avenges the death of her mate. The film was a big success.

Salim Langde Pe Mat Ro

aka Don't Cry for Salim the Lame
 1989 111' col Hindi
d/s Saeed Akhtar Mirza pc NFDC c Virendra Saini m Sharang Dev lp Pawan Malhotra, Makarand Deshpande, Ashutosh Gowariker, Vikram Gokhale, Surekha Sikri

Mirza's investigation ('My own self, split 500 times') of what it means to be a Muslim in a working-class Bombay neighbourhood controlled by criminals. Set in Bombay's Do Tanki area, the film features Salim, a petty thief, in a world peopled by policemen, smugglers and an assortment of crooks. Salim's father still suffers the after-effects of Bombay's famous textile strike (1982) and his mother earns some money as an outworker sewing, but Salim has to support both of them as well as his sister Anees. He reforms after meeting Aslam, Anees's poor but educated suitor, but is eventually killed in a fatalistic ending. Despite the film's technical excellence, the presentation of a doomed hero via a quasi-documentary, street-level realism makes the film a voyeuristic experience allowing viewers to feel sorry for the unfortunates in their city.

Sandhya Ragam

aka The Evening Raga
 1989 100' col Tamil
d/p/s/c Balu Mahendra pc Doordarshan
m L. Vaidyanathan lp Archana, Chokkalinga Bhagavathar, Santhanam Rajalakshmi

Emotional yet humorous tale of an old Company drama actor (Bhagavathar) who leaves his village after his wife's death and goes to live with his nephew in Madras. To spare his nephew the extra cost, he then moves into a home for the aged before being reunited with his nephew's family. As old age is akin to early childhood, the old man forms a special relationship with the child of the house and causes major problems of adjustment for the adults. A member of a well-known Boy's Company theatre group, the 83-year-old Bhagavathar came out of retirement to play the lead in only his second film appearance (cf. Veedu, 1987).

Sati

1989 140' col Bengali
d/co-s Aparna Sen pc NFDC co-s Arun Bannerjee c Ashok Mehta m Chidananda Das Gupta
lp Shabana Azmi, Kali Bannerjee, Pradip Mukherjee, Arindam Ganguly, Ketaki Dutta, Shakuntala Barua, Arun Bannerjee, Ajit Bannerjee, Bimal Dev, Manu Mukherjee, Dipankar Raha, Ratna Ghoshal

Primitivist melodrama set prior to 1829 when sati (a woman's religiously enforced immolation on her husband's funeral pyre) was made illegal by the British. Uma (Azmi), a mute and orphaned young Brahmin woman, is saddled with an ominous horoscope and is given in marriage to a tree. Seduced by a local schoolteacher, Uma becomes pregnant and is ostracised by the villagers. One night, while sheltering from a storm under her tree, lightning strikes them and she is found in the morning, blood on her forehead like bridal vermilion. The tree, the only sign of real virility in a society of cowardly superstition, protected its bride.

Shiva

1989 145' col Telugu
d/s Ram Gopal Varma pc Annapurna Cine Studios p Venkat Akkineni, Y. Surendra dial T. Bharani lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Seetharama Sastry c S. Gopal Reddy m Ilaiyaraaja lp Nagarjuna, Amala, Raghuvaran, T. Bharani, Murali Mohan, Chinna, Chakravarthy, Kota Srinivasa Rao

Varma's Telugu hit telling the story of a young college student who gets involved with gang rivalry and eventually becomes a crusader for justice. Shiva (Nagarjuna) gets the better of college bully J.D. (Chakravarthy) and has to confront the villainies of the dreaded gangster Bhavani (Raghuvaran). In a spectacular finale Shiva kills Bhavani. The cult movie, emphasising expressionist lighting and camerawork, also proved successful in its Hindi version, which departed in one detail from the original: the hero's wife, played by Amala, is killed, rather than his niece. The hit was sometimes seen as an autobiographical account of the director's experiences in engineering college in Vijaywada.

Siddheshwar i

1989 123' col/b&w Hindi
d/p/s Mani Kaul pc Infrakino Film Prod. Films Division c Piyush Shah lp Mita Vasisth, Ranjana Srivastava, Shravani Mukherjee, Mohor Biswas, Narayan Mishra, Anoop Mishra, Raman Shankar Pandey, Malviya, Manmohan Chibber

Kaul continues his interest in a cinema in between fiction and documentary with this magnificently shot feature about Siddheshwari Devi (1903-77) of the Benares gharana. She was the most extraordinary 20th C. singer in the classical thumri tradition which, according to legend, goes back to a eunuch at Indra's court, cursed for failing to return a lady's love. As a young woman, Siddhi silently absorbed the music listening to the artful performances of Siyaji Maharaj. Thrown out of her aunt's house for daring to ask questions, she painfully tries to survive in the streets of Benares, the city of rituals, suffering and death but also of passion, transformation and the sublime. Eventually, accepted as a disciple by Maharaj, she started performing at 16 years of age and became a uniquely popular singer condensing a lifetime of horror and joy in the grain of her voice, singing thumri music in addition to its variants in the Kajri, Chaiti and Jhoola folk idioms. The narrative is structured like a thumri piece: it presents key motifs (of Siddhi's life as well as of myths and locations) and elaborates on and around them with different songs, moods, camera movements, etc., until the whole becomes a moving tapestry celebrating the transfiguration of life into music. Shot in colour and monochrome, the film proceeds by means of metaphors, evoked rather than named: an ultramarine boat floats on the Ganges, a dropped metal utensil produces musical overtones, etc. The intoxicants mandatory to the euphoria of a (sexual) meeting are contrasted with the labour that went into practising the difficult art of music. There is something of Lewis Carroll's cat about the movie: as it evokes Siddhi's life, her physical presence becomes more and more elusive, even escaping the actress (Vasisth) who tries to embody her existence. Towards the end, archive footage of Siddheshwari's sole TV appearance offers a glimpse of the singer, an image which seems to recede into the technology of the recording until only the eerily intense voice remains.

Mita Vasisth in Siddheshwari

Thartharaat

1989 145' col 1989

d/st/co-sc Mahesh Kothare pc Shri Ashtavinayak Chitra p Arvind Samant co-sc Vasant Sathe dial Shivraj Gorle lyr Pravin Davane c Suryakant Lavande m Anil Mohile

lp Mahesh Kothare, Laxmikant Berde, Nivedita Joshi, Priya Arun, Dilip Shirke, Jairam Kulkarni, Rahul Sholapurkar

After the successful Dhumhadaka (1985), this is the best known of the comedies featuring the Kothare-Berde duo considered to have revived the declining Marathi film industry in the 1980s. Here Kothare plays the fearless Inspector Mahesh Jadhav, on the track of the dreaded Taklu Haiwan gang, while Berde plays Lakshya, the bumbling son of newspaper editor Zunzharrao Ghorpade. In order to raise the circulation of Ghorpade's newspaper, Lakshya publishes a fake news story that Haiwan has entered their village of Shrirangpur. When this is proved false, Lakshya finds himself in major trouble when Haiwan actually does arrive and nobody believes him. Nivedita Joshi plays a journalist and the inspector's girlfriend, while Priya Arun plays the daughter of the local policeman (Shirke) and with Berde comprises the film's second love interest. The film's rapid editing, its surfeit of unevenly choreographed action and lack of control over camerawork betrays the film's low budget and impoverished production context, a look it shares with many commercial productions from India's smaller film industries.

Thazhvaram

aka The Valley

1989 130' col/scope Malayalam

d/m Bharathan pc Anugraha Cine Arts

s M.T. Vasudevan Nair c Venu lp Mohanlal, Sumalatha, Anju, Shankaradi

A tale of revenge involving four characters in a small rural community. The remote stranger Balan (Mohanlal) arrives in a deserted valley to take revenge on the wily Raju, who is employed on a farm run by Nanu (Shankaradi) and his daughter Koochutti (Sumalatha). When Balan's effort to kill Raju is thwarted and Balan is injured, he is nursed by Koochutti. Raju, who had earlier robbed Balan and murdered his wife, now makes off with Koochutti's ornaments as well, adding to the satisfaction when the hero gets the villain in the end. The CinemaScope production excels in spacious long-shots, coupled with minimal dialogue, building Mohanlal into a brooding Leone-Eastwood 'man with no name'-type stranger.

Tridev

1989 173' col/scope Hindi

d/st/sc Rajiv Rai pc Trimurti Films p Gulshan Rai dial K.K. Singh lyr Anand Bakshi c Romesh Bhalla m Kalyanji-Anandji, Viju Shah lp Naseeruddin Shah, Sunny Deol, Jackie Shroff, Madhuri Dixit, Sonam, Sangeeta Bijlani, Anupam Kher, Amrish Puri

The major Hindi hit of 1989. Billed as a Naseeruddin Shah and Sonam in Tridev (1989)

'volcanic saga of three angry men', the story has renegade policeman Karan (Deol), Ravi (Shroff), the son of the police commissioner (Kher) and a Rajasthani villager Jaisingh (Shah), defeat the criminal Bhujang, aka Bhairav Singh (Puri). The often convoluted plot has Karan fall in love with Divya (Dixit, in an early film), who is abducted by the criminal, but rescued by her brother Ravi who in turn agrees to join Bhujang's gang. Bhujang had earlier killed both Karan's and Jaisingh's fathers. The film is remembered mainly for its mega-hit song Oye oye, and for Shah's enactment of the 'tirchi topiwala'. Its elaborate picturisation was an early success of the noted 90s dance choreographer Saroj Khan.

sets out for the city with Mallika and Shankar to be honoured for his services to the Independence struggle. He then disappears. An understated story performed by non-star actors, using Madras street noises and the ticking clock instead of songs. It is the best-known film by the noted writer (cf. his Oomai Janangal, 1984, about bonded labourers in the British Raj).

☞ Una Mitter andi Yaad Pyari aka In Memory of Friends 1989 60' col Punjabi/Hindi/English d/p/c Anand Patwardhan m Navnirman, Jaimal Singh Padda

Patwardhan's extraordinary 16mm documentary on terrorist activity in Punjab inaugurated a series of films (the second is Ram Ke Naam, 1992) addressing the growing communalism of Indian politics. The film follows a group of Hindi and Sikh socialists campaigning against both a repressive state government (which not long ago encouraged communalism as a divide-and-rule tactic) and communalist fanatics. The focus of their campaign is the legacy of Bhagat Singh, a young socialist hanged by the British (1931) and now claimed both by the state as a patriot and by the separatists as a Sikh militant. The film-maker includes his own interpretation of Bhagat Singh, emphasising his rationalist atheism. As in his earlier work, the director isolates the false rhetoric of professional politicians, contrasting it with images and sounds of ordinary people in their daily lives (e.g. the sound of the woman making chapatis). He also debunks the pompousness of official politics together with its representations: when a central government minister lands in a helicopter, the event is first shown with Patwardhan's own footage, which then cuts to a Doordarshan TV clip, including its declamatory voice track, presenting a glorious arrival. The film ends with noted communist leader Jaimal Singh Padda, who communicated his universalist message through speech and song in the film shortly before he was shot dead. The film has unforgettable images showing murderous stupidity blazing in the eyes of the fundamentalists as well as the astonishing courage of those trying to build a socialist politics in that situation.

☞ Varavel pu

1989 144' col Malayalam
d Sathyan Andhikkad pc K.R.G. Movies p K. Rajagopal s Srinivasan lyr Kaithapram
c Vipin Mohan m Johnson
lp Mohanlal, Revathi, Janardhanan, Oduvil Unnikrishnan, Innocent, Mamu Koya, Murali

Having worked hard in the Gulf for eight years, Muralee (Mohanlal) returns to his native Kerala with his savings, intent on starting his own business. However, his two brothers, who had lived off his earnings, try to get him to invest in their enterprises. Nevertheless, Muralee starts a bus service of his own, and the story recounts the tragic fate of his Gulf Motors Company, wrecked by an irresponsible family, unions and petty bureaucracy. Muralee's only consolation is his girlfriend (Revathi) as he is eventually forced to return to the Gulf. The film exemplifies Srinivasan and Andhikkad's view that Kerala is ruined by selfishness and corruption (cf. Sandesham, 1991)

☞ Aashiqui

1990 152' col/scope Hindi
d Mahesh Bhatt pc Super Cassettes/Visesh Films p Gulshan Kumar s Robin Bhatt, Akash Khurana lyr Sameer, Madan Pal, Ravi Mallick
c Pravin Bhatt m Nadeem-Shravan lp Rahul Roy, Anu Agarwal, Avtar Gill, Tom Alter, Reema Lagoo, Homi Wadia, Mushtaque
Khan, Javed Khan, Deepak Tijori

Produced by the man who is credited with pioneering the audio-cassette revolution in India, this hit anticipates a mid-90s low-budget genre with minor stars relying on music as its major selling factor. The pop singer Rahul (Roy) falls in love with the orphaned Anu (Agarwal) who lives in a hostel run by a tyrannical warden (Alter). The couple overcome this problem by eloping, but face a more serious crisis when Anu is selected by a multinational design company as a model and makes lots of money. Rahul's infantile masculine pride is saved when he makes a hit record and becomes wealthy too. The music was a major hit (notably Nazar ke saamne sung by Anuradha Poudwal and Kumar Sanu) establishing its composers and the lyricist Sameer. Bhatt later made Papa Kehte Hain

☞ Uchi Veyil

aka High Noon
1989 100' col Tamil
d/sc Jayabharati pc Jwala st Indira Parthasarathy
c Ramesh Vyas m L. Vaidyanathan lp Kuppuswamy, Uma, Delhi Ganesh, Vijay, Srividya, Usha, Preeta, Baby Rukmini, Rajamani, Saranath

A gentle village family drama shot in real time (emphasised by a ticking clock). An old grandfather and former Gandhian freedom-fighter, Doraiswamy (Kuppuswamy), lives with his impecunious married son and granddaughter Mallika. To make a little money they take a lodger, a young executive, Shankar (Vijay). The old man falls ill but nevertheless (1995), the debut production of Plus Channel, a manufacturer of TV software which converted the Gulshan Kumar low-budget musicals into its most consistent mid-90s formula, aided by the entry of satellite TV and numerous top hit Countdown-type programmes which now form the major publicity outlet for such films.

Agneepath

1990 174' col Hindi

d Mukul S. Anand p Yash Johar pc Dharma Prod. s Santosh Saroj lyr Anand Bakshi c Pravin Bhatt m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Amitabh Bachchan, Mithun Chakraborty, Danny Denzongpa, Neelam, Madhavi, Rohini Hattangadi, Tinnu Anand, Archana Puran Singh, Alok Nath

The hero Vijay Chauhan aka 'Bhai' (Bachchan) witnesses his schoolmaster father (Nath) being falsely implicated in a scandal with a prostitute and lynched by the villagers. Bhai grows up to become a gangster and encounters the main villain Kancha Cheena (Denzongpa) in a luxurious place in Mauritius. He joins the villain's gang only to have him arrested by the police. When Cheena is released (by arranging to have a key eyewitness killed), the hero murders Cheena after negotiating the 'path of fire' referred to in the film's title. The most violent of Bachchan's recent films, it was also the most sustained effort to rehabilitate the politically discredited star. The title and opening sequences borrow from a poem by Bachchan's father Harivanshrai Bachchan, and show today's New Man walking through the fires of hell to redeem a brutalised world and make it into a new utopia. The mother obsession of Bachchan's previous films is still in evidence. In spite of Mukul Anand's usual fast-moving camera and distorted perspectives, the film occasionally lapses into earlier cinematic idioms (e.g. the foot-stomping song picturisation of Archana Puran Singh's Alibaba song). Anand's familiar anachronisms suggest that very different historical epochs are 'actually' very similar: an exotic James Bond-type tourist resort and the blood and stench of Bombay's gang wars. Although still playing the vigilante hero, Bachchan initially abandoned his well-known baritone voice to suggest an older man speaking in a heavy 'Bombay Hindi' accent, but he later had to re-dub the voice when the experiment proved unpopular. The film was not a major hit.

Agni Veena

1990 ? col Oriya

d/s Manmohan Mahapatra st Nandalal Mahapatra c Jehangir Mahapatra m Shantanu Mahapatra lp Hemanta Das, Bijoy Samal, Brindaban Barik, Ashim Basu, Jaya Swamy, Namrata Das, Pushpa Panda

Mahapatra expands his scale, usually featuring a small number of protagonists, to address the condition of a community of villagers in Orissa. Portrayed as an easygoing people with few needs, the villagers are unable to make sense of greater adversity which forces them either to pawn their belongings or to move to cities and work as contract labourers.

Akkareakkareakkare

1990 156' col Malayalam

d Priyadarshan pc Seven Arts, Geepes Films p G.P. Vijayakumar s Srinivasan c S. Kumar m Ouseppachan lp Mohanlal, Srinivasan, Parvathi, Soman, Nedumudi Venu

After Nadodikattu (1987) and Pattana Pravesanam (1988), this is the final comedy in the series featuring the bumbling duo Vijayan (Srinivasan) and Dasan (Mohanlal). Priyadarshan took over as director from Anindhikkad, but the film showed a marked decrease in popularity in spite of its increased budget. The two bungling friends, now in the CID, are sent to the USA to recover a crown stolen by an American named Paul Barber. Arriving in the US with an informally allotted grant of Rs 5 lakh, cleared by their Police Commissioner (Soman) and delivered by an Indian embassy official (Venu), they decide to settle down there and abandon their investigations. When the Police Commissioner back home gets sacked as a result, he too arrives in the US intent on revenge. The two friends, who spend much time outsmarting each other while romancing a nurse (Parvathi), eventually get embroiled in conflict with the dreaded Brunton gang and return home, having successfully recovered the crown.

Alidugaru

1990 144' col Telugu

d K. Raghavendra Rao pc Lakshmi Prasanna Pics. p Mohan Babu st Priyadarshan dial Satyanand lyr Jaladi, Jonnavittula, Gurucharan, Rasaraju c K.S. Prakash m K.V. Mahadevan lp Mohan Babu, Shobhana, K. Jaggaiah, Chandramohan, Ramya Krishna, Satyanarayana, Gollapudi Maruti Rao, Saraswati, Sudhakar

Vishnu (Mohan Babu), facing a death sentence for murder, escapes from jail and is hired by Anand (Chandra Mohan) to pretend to be married to Kalyani (Shobhana). This charade is necessary to protect Kalyani's ailing non-resident Indian father Ramachandra Prasad (Jaggaiah) from facing up to the crisis caused by the break up of Kalyani's love affair. In the process, however, Kalyani falls in love with Vishnu. It is later revealed that Vishnu was previously married with a son, and had been imprisoned for having unintentionally murdered his wife. In fact, he had attempted to kill his Naxalite brother-in-law believing him to be having an affair with his wife. Vishnu had agreed to Anand's offer mainly because he needed the money to pay for his son's medical expenses. His jailer (Satyanarayana) catches up with him but allows him to continue with the masquerade until the ailing Prasad returns to the USA. The film ends with Vishnu returning to prison to be hanged. This melodrama had a tragic ending, contrary to the norm, and was moderately successful with popular musical scores.

Anjali

1990 136'(123') col/scope Tamil/Hindi

d/s Mani Rathnam pc Sujata Films p G. Venkateshwaran lyr Vali c Madhu Ambat m Ilaiyaraaja lp Raghuvaran, Revathi, Baby Shyamali, Prabhu, Master Tarun, Baby Anthony, Saranya, Nishanti, Shruti

Anjali (Shyamali) is a mentally handicapped girl who, after her father (Raghuvaran) sends her away for a few years, is brought home to live with her parents and two healthy siblings. The movie chronicles the love given and received by the little girl until she dies just after calling out to her mother (Revathi) for the very first time. The family is helped by a mysterious stranger (Prabhu) who appoints himself their guardian angel. The high points of the film are the numerous songs, mainly featuring the neighbourhood children, elaborately choreographed and including some fantasy numbers. The film shows the extent to which Rathnam absorbed the influence of music videos. The story is sourced in a novel by Fynn entitled Mr God This is Anna (1974).

Aparahnam

aka The Late Afternoon

1990 116' col Malayalam

d/s M.P. Sukumaran Nair pc Rachana Films c Ashwani Kaul m Jerry Amaldev lp Babu Anthony, Jalaja, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Babu Namboodiri

An elegy for a defeated middle-class radical and veteran of the Naxalite rising. Released from prison, Nandakumar remains a suspect and is unable to settle into a job. He refuses advice to emigrate to the Gulf and suffers harassment both from the police and from his erstwhile comrades. During the Emergency in the mid-70s, he is imprisoned again. In the end, all he has left are his increasingly fanciful memories of his days as a young radical. Much of the film's storytelling, performance and lighting evokes the elegaic naturalism of the director's mentor, Adoor Gopalakrishnan.

Aye Auto

1990 137' col Malayalam

d/st/sc/dial Venu Nagavalli pc Saraswathi Chaithanya p Raju lyr Bichu Thirumala c S. Kumar m Ravindran lp Mohanlal, Rekha, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Jagadish, Raju, Pappu, Murali, Srinivasan

Love story and commercially successful comedy featuring the orphaned Minu (Rekha) and an auto-rickshaw driver Sudhi (Mohanlal). When her parents died in an airplane crash, Minu was raised by her grandparents. She falls for Sudhi, who drives her to college every day. Her grandmother wants her to marry a rich financier, but her resourceful grandfather, who supports the couple, ensures the happy end. Much of the film is told from the point of view of Sudhi's daily routine as a public conveyance driver: his encounters with irate customers, traffic police and turf-wars between rival drivers.

Bobbili Raja

1990 155' col Telugu

d/sc B. Gopal pc Suresh Prod. p D. Rama Naidu st/dial Parachuri Bros. lyr Seetharama Sastry c Ravindra Babu m Ilaiyaraaja lp Venkatesh, Divya Bharati, Vanisree, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao

Continuing motifs familiar from Chiranjeevi's hits (e.g. Attaku Yamadu Amayiki Mogudu, 1989), Raja (Venkatesh) first 'tames' the aggressive heroine (Bharati) and then her mother (Vanisree). When the mother has Raja's father killed, Raja grows up in a forest where, later, he meets the heroine. The mother arrives there too and has the hero beaten up, but he eventually gets his revenge. Future Hindi star Divya Bharati (who later committed suicide) makes her Telugu debut in this hit, which depended on Ilaiyaraaja's music for its success.

Dil

1990 172' col/scope Hindi

d Indra Kumar pc Vinod Doshi, Maruti Int. s Rajiv Kaul, Praful Parekh dial Kamlesh Pandey lyr Sameer c Baba Azmi m Anand-Milind lp Aamir Khan, Madhuri Dixit, Saeed Jaffrey, Anupam Kher, Deven Verma

The top Hindi hit of 1990 reprises the classic dilemmas of Aamir Khan's earlier Qayamat Se Qayamat Tak (1988): a love story leading to the estrangement between the families of a loving couple, thus gradually replacing the problems of individual romance with those of interfamilial relationships. Hero Raja (Khan) has a miserly father Hazari Prasad (Kher) who plans to increase his wealth by persuading the millionaire Mehra (Jaffrey) to allow his daughter Madhu (Dixit) to marry Raja. Madhu and Raja are in love anyway and indulge in high-school squabbles, a popular plot motif since Grease (1978). The marriage plans come unstuck when Mehra discovers that Hazari Prasad is not the industrialist he claims to be, but the young lovers defy their respective families and marry anyway. Raja becomes a labourer and has a major accident, allowing the two rich fathers to make their peace with each other. The ending replays the end of Guru Dutt's Mr And Mrs '55 (1955) at the airport. One of the many disco numbers, Ladki hai ya chhadi hai, is a version of Elvis Presley's Blue Suede Shoes, while another adapted Ilaiyaraaja's O Priya Priya number from Geetanjali (1989). Like Maine Pyar Kiya (1989), the film deploys an advertising film style, esp. for the soundtrack and the editing, several sequences winding up with a direct address to the audience. Following the success of his next film, Beta (1992), Indra Kumar became the top-grossing director of 90s Hindi cinema.

Disha

aka The Uprooted Ones

1990 135' col Hindi

d/p/s Sai Paranjpye pc Sai Paranjpye Films c Madhu Ambat, G.S. Bhaskar m Anand Modak

lp Shabana Azmi, Nana Patekar, Raghuvir Yadav, Om Puri, Nilu Phule, Rajshree Sawant

Paranjpye's sentimental tale of migrant workers in Bombay, caught between urban displacement and a changing rural reality. Farm labourers Vasant (Patekar) and Soma (Yadav) move to Bombay following drought in their village. Soma becomes a millhand. Vasant, who has come mainly to pay off his marriage debts, returns to find his wife having an affair with her employer, the owner of a bidi (reed) factory. Soma also plans to go home, because his brother (Puri) has finally dug a well which yields water. The film uses extensive tracking shots presenting panoramic views of the Dadar region in central Bombay with its textile mills and apparently Asia's most populated square mile. Location shots taken in the textile mills provide a quasi-documentary background for the fiction.

Drishti

aka Vision

1990 171' col Hindi

d/co-s/c Govind Nihalani pc Udbhav co-s Shashi Deshpande m Kishori Amonkar lp Shekhar Kapur, Dimple Kapadia, Mita Vasisth, Vijay Kashyap, Irfan

Marital melodrama informally adapting Ingmar Bergman's Scener ur ett Aktenskap (Scenes from a Marriage, 1974). Sandhya (Dimple), employed by a children's publisher, and her husband Nikhil (Shekhar Kapur), a research scientist, celebrate their 8th wedding anniversary. Sandhya feels attracted to the singer Rahul. Nikhil has an affair with Vrinda (Mita Vasisth) and, amid some unexpressed doubt about whose child the pregnant Sandhya is bearing, the couple agree to a divorce. A year later, when Nikhil's affair with Vrinda is over, the couple meet again and Sandhya convinces Nikhil that her aborted child was his. This is the first of several theatre-derived dialogue movies Nihalani made after Party (1984). Nihalani says the film is constructed in eleven movements, each signalled by a song by its composer, the noted Jaipur gharana Khayal singer Kishori Amonkar.

Figures of Thought

1990 33' col English

d/p/s Arun Khopkar c Piyush Shah m Rajat Dholakia

Remarkable documentary about the paintings of Bhupen Khakhar, Nalini Malani and Vivan Sundaram. The three artists had participated in the landmark show Place for People (1981, cf. Chronicle) which helped transform the notion of contemporary art in India. The film takes off from a mural they jointly made on commission from a Bombay industrialist and represents the paintings of the three artists, innovatively using reframing and lighting effects while interweaving shots of the artists's working environment. Khopkar is well known as a teacher of film theory and an authority on Eisenstein.

Ganeshana Madhuve

1990 141' col Kannada

d/sc H.S. Phani Ramchandra pc Kalapriya st Malladi Venkata Krishnamurthy sc Rajachandur lyr Geethapriya, Shyamsundar Kulkarni, Doddarange Gowda, Su. Rudramurthy Sastry, M.N. Vyasa Rao c R. Manjunath m Rajan-Nagendra
lp Anant Nag, Vinaya Prasad, Vaishali, Mukhyamantri Chandru

A vathara (tenement) comedy dealing with landlord-tenant relations, providing opportunities for action as well as romance. This is part of a popular 80s 'Ganesh' series by Phani Ramchandra, based on Telugu stories and dealing with lower middle-class characters (cf. Gauri Ganesh, 1991; Ganesh Subramanya, 1992). Principal characters in the series include the bachelor Ganesh (Nag), his cricket-loving mother (Vaishali), his landlord Ramanamurthy (Chandru) and the landlord's daughter Adilakshmi (Prasad). Adilakshmi, a cantankerous landlady, much cursed along with her father by all the inmates of the tenement, has an alter ego: the radio singer Sruthi. Ganesh hates Adilakshmi, but falls for Sruthi's voice on the radio. An important character in the genre is a man who provides ideas to various characters and demonstrably helps to extend the plot. An unusual opening appeals to popular notions of creativity and artistic achievement: simulating a press conference, the filmmaker 'presents' his film and introduces key technicians to his audience who then ask questions about the production.

Ghayaal

1990 163' col Hindi

d/s Raj Kumar Santoshi p Dharmendra pc Vijayta Films dial Dilip Shukla lyr Anjaan, Indivar c Rajen Kothari m Bappi Lahiri
lp Sunny Deol, Meenakshi Sheshadri, Amrish Puri, Raj Babbar, Moushumi Chatterjee, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Om Puri, Shabbir Khan, Sudesh Berry, Mitwa

Produced by Dharmendra, Deol's father, and designed to create a definitive screen image for Deol as the urban Rambo-type vigilante (like Stallone, Deol has in every film, at least once and sometimes on several occasions, a scene where he is chained, insulted and physically tortured as the camera lingers over his sweating and bulging muscles). Here Deol plays Ajay, whose elder brother Ashok (Babbar) becomes involved with drug-dealing villains led by the politician Balwant Rai (A. Puri). When the politician collaborates with legal top brass to convict Ajay for murdering his own brother, Ajay becomes a one-man army against the state. He kidnaps the police commissioner (Kharbanda), informs Balwant Rai that the day of judgement is at hand and finally gets his man in a huge Coney Island-style amusement park. The film established Raj Kumar Santoshi, the son of P.L. Santoshi, song-writer and director of C. Ramchandra musicals, as a director in his own right.

His Highness Abdul I ah

1990 156' col Malayalam

d Sibi Malayil pc Pranavam Arts p Mohanlal
s A.K. Lohitadas lyr Kaithapram
c Anandakuttan m Ravindran lp Mohanlal, Nedumudi Venu, Gauthami, Shankaradi, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair

The rich nobleman and patron of classical music (Venu) is surrounded by greedy relatives who want to kill him for his wealth. They hire the Bombay-based contract killer Abdullah (Mohanlal), who also happens to be a ghazal singer. Assuming the identity of Ananthan Namboodiri, he befriends the nobleman, but he then changes sides and saves the old man instead of killing him. Following the conventions of classic romances, it turns out that Abdullah merely agreed to the scheme because he wanted money to recover his own ancestral property. The first hit of a series based on classical music by Mohanlal's own production company (followed by Bharatham, 1991, and Kamalathalam, 1992), the well-shot film makes good use of its major location, the famous Padmanabhapuram palace. The music allows for several singing bouts where the young playback singer M.G. Sreekumar holds his own against the vastly more experienced Yesudas.

Ishanou

aka The Chosen One

1990 94' col Manipuri

d/p/m Aribham Syam Sharma pc Aribham Syam Sharma Prod. s M.K. Binodini Debi
c Girish Padidhar

lp Kiranmala, Tomba, Manbi, D. Hiren, Baby Molly, Baby Premita

Manipuri family melodrama combining upward mobility with the strange ritualism of the matriarchal Meitei cult. This cult, according to the film, claims its female adherents through a series of mystical signals which the chosen woman cannot ignore. A small and happy family lives in the Manipur Valley under the care and protection of an old woman. Suddenly the young wife Tampha (Kiranmala) becomes possessed by the divinity Maibi and leaves her home to be initiated by the guru of the Maibi sect. Much of the film's second half features the exotic dance rituals, ending with a brief encounter between Tampha, her now estranged husband and grown-up child.

Jagadeka Veerudu Atil oka

Sundari

1990 153' col Telugu

d/sc K. Raghavendra Rao pc Vyjayanthi Movies p Ashwini Dutt st Jandhyala lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c K.S. Prakash
m Ilaiyaraja

lp Chiranjeevi, Sridevi, Amrith Puri, Kannada Prabhakar, Rami Reddy, Tanikella Bharani, Baby Shalini, Master Amit, Master Richards

Major success featuring Chiranjeevi and Sridevi after a long gap, giving a new lease of life to the famous folklore genre in Telugu cinema.

Indraja (Sridevi), daughter of Indra, descends to earth but is stranded there when she loses her magic ring. She falls in love with a tourist guide, Raju (Chiranjeevi), a guardian of orphaned children. The couple cause problems for the gambling activities of the evil K.P. (Prabhakar), who hires the magician Mahadrashta (Puri). The magician kidnaps Indraja in his efforts to rule the universe, but she is rescued by Raju and decides to stay on earth. Ilaiyaraja's music and dances choreographed by Sundaram, as well as several special effects contributed to its success.

Kar tavyam

1990 152' col Telugu

d/sc A. Mohan Gandhi pc Surya Movies
p A.M. Rathnam s Parachuri Bros. lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c D. Prasad Babu
m Raj-Koti
lp Vijayashanti, Vinod Kumar, Babu Mohan, Charan Raj, Nirmalamma, P.L. Narayana, Saikumar

The definitive female cop movie featuring Vijayashanti. Apparently based on exploits of the real-life policewoman Kiran Bedi, the film stridently advocates a traditional Indian feminism as the female cop fights corrupt politicians, is attacked and injured, almost loses her job and survives mainly through her own will power. It won Vijayashanti an acting award along with an enduring screen image, repeated in eg. Surya IPS (1991), making stunt sequences mandatory in most of her subsequent films. The film was also seen as a kind of feminist version of Ankusham (1989).

Kasba

1990 121' col Hindi

d/co-sc Kumar Shahani pc NFDC, Doordarshan st Anton Chekov's In The Ravine co-sc Farida Mehta c K.K. Mahajan
m Vanraj Bhatia

lp Shatrughan Sinha, Mita Vasisth, Manohar Singh, Alaknanda Samarth, Navjot Hansra, Raghuvir Yadav

Shahani's melodrama, based on Chekov's little-known short story, tells of Maniram (Sinha), an old-style entrepreneur in a small township in the mountains of Kangra, who made his fortune adulterating food. His business is run by the canny Tejo (Vasisth), the wife of his mentally retarded younger son (Yadav) and the Shakespearean fool in the story. His elder son Dhani (Sinha) is doing well in a government-related business in Delhi which turns out to be the printing of counterfeit currency. Dhani is brought back and married, in local style, to Tara (Hansra); however, he gets drunk on his wedding night, scatters some counterfeit notes and leaves for the city, his marriage still unconsummated. Tara is impregnated by a local fixer (Raina) and gives birth to a son who stands to inherit the family property. News of Dhani's arrest and the police crackdown on Maniram's corrupt enterprise is accompanied by Tejo's ruthless take-over of local power. She kills Tara's child, builds an electric substation on her father-in-law's land and seduces the vacuous son of a local industrialist into becoming her partner. Her machinations are intercut with the aimless travels of a benumbed Tara holding her dead child, finding solace among the wandering minstrels and the hill tribes. Much of the film deploys a savage irony, as e.g. Shatrughan Sinha, a major Hindi star effectively playing 'himself', is presented as a small-town braggart trying to imitate his own swaggering style, or the poignant 'budha bhangda' (dance for elderly Sikhs) playing over a drunken Maniram among the flashing lights of his son's ostentatious marriage. The melodrama verges repeatedly on the satirical, chronicling a decaying nationalism and the end of modernist dreams of self-reliance, epitomised by Maniram's manic second wife (Samarth) spouting religious mumbo-jumbo, which in no way detracts from these ideologies' political power. The only characters who find their way out of the cultural quagmire are the 'moonstruck' younger son and the nameless fixer, in the song at the end when he clutches a tree in the nude. The film's main generic achievement is to recall to the melodrama its original function, of integrating marginalised peoples and their languages into a mainstream culture. It also provides the film's most crucial ironic edge in its implicit suggestion that in order to do so melodrama has to first invent a mainstream.

Alaknanda Samarth and Shatrughan Sinha in Kasba

his wife who is harassed sexually and financially until she dies a pauper, leaving her orphaned child behind.

Sati and Anup get together after all. The film mainly showcased an ageing Madhu playing the tearful judge. The director, educated as a scientist, is best known as a novelist.

Kutty Japanin Kuzhandaigal

aka Children of Mini-Japan
1990 63' col Tamil
d/s Chalam Bannurkar pc Janamadhyaam
c R.V. Ramani

Documentary about the Sivakasi region known for its artisanal industries and for providing the national supply of matchboxes, fireworks and gaudy calendars. Known locally as 'Mini-Japan', Sivakasi is also one of the worst exploiters of child labour anywhere in India: 70% of its workforce are pre-puberty girls. The film juxtaposes these unsavoury labour conditions with Sivakasi's association with 'popular art'.

Rajendra Singh's big-budget war film has the brave hero (Vishnuvardhan) fight a series of wars, starting with WW2 in Burma, then with China and Pakistan after Independence, before losing his life protecting his fellow soldiers. His wife (Sahasini), enlisted as a nurse, eventually makes a fervently pacifist plea.

Pel i Pustakam

1990 151' col Telugu
d Bapu pc Sri Sitarama Chitra p/sc/dial Mullapudi Venkataramana st Ravi Kondala Rao lyr Arudra c R.K. Raju
m K.V. Mahadevan
lp Rajendra Prasad, Divya Vani, Sindhuja, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Jhansi, Sudhakar, Ravi Kondala Rao, 'Sakshi' Ranga Rao, Dharmavarapu Subramanyam

Inverting the plot of the famous Vijaya studios' hit Missamma (1955), a young couple, Krishna Murthy (Prasad) and Satyabhama (Vani), have to pretend to be unmarried in order to get jobs. The story revolves around the couple trying to maintain their secret, because their employer (Gummadi) believes that only one person from a family should be working. Finally, the boss has a change of heart and relaxes the rule when their secret is revealed. A parallel narrative, more directly quoting Missamma, also features a second couple, Sindhuja, daughter of the boss, and Sudhakar, pretending to be married. The film introduced Divya Vani, and saw Bapu working with noted humourist Mullapudi Venkataramana (cf. Muthyala Muggu, 1975) after a long gap.

Lekin ...

aka But ...
1990 171' col Hindi
d/s/lyr Gulzar pc Dinanath Kala Mandir, Lata Mangeshkar c Manmohan Singh
m Hridaynath Mangeshkar
lp Vinod Khanna, Dimple Kapadia, Amjad Khan, Alok Nath, Manohar Singh, Beena, Hema Malini

Story of an unhappy ghost, Rewa (Kapadia), who haunts the palace of Raja Param Singh of Jasod which is now government property. Samir (Khanna), the curator of a government museum, is sent to salvage the valuables in the sealed palace where he encounters the ghost. Rewa's ability to recreate the past brings alive her tragic story, making Samir determined to liberate her even at the risk of own life. Parapsychology is touted as proof of the reality of the encounter and his 'Why me?' is answered by a possible encounter in their previous lives. Rewa is finally liberated when, with his help, she completes the journey through a desert that claimed her life on earth. The film adds to the horror iconography (ruins, dungeons, suggestive music and fluttering pigeons) several sequences involving the tribal Banjaras, a community presented as practising witchcraft.

No. 20 Madras Mail

1990 177' col Malayalam
d Joshi pc Tharangini Films st Hari Kumar sc/dial Dennis Joseph lyr Shibu Chakravarthy c Jayanan Vincent m Ouseppachan, S.P. Venkatesh
lp Mohanlal, Jagadish, Manianpillai Raju, Ashokan, Soman, Suchitra, Mammooty

Fast-paced comedy thriller in which three innocent murder suspects are on the run until they are rescued by the Malayalam megastar Mammooty (as himself in a cameo appearance). Tony (Mohanlal), Hari (Jagadish) and Hitchcock (Raju), wild but warm-hearted friends, are on the train to Madras. On the way, they get drunk and have an argument with an arrogant industrialist R.K. Nair (Soman) and annoy both the man's wife and daughter Devi (Suchitra). Arriving in Madras, Devi appears to have been murdered in a bathroom cabin. Fearing that they might be suspected, they try to run from the police, but Mammooty, who happens to be a fellow passenger, intervenes and together they find the real murderers.

Perumthachan

1990 141' col Malayalam
d Ajayan pc Bhavachitra s M.T. Vasudevan Nair c Santosh Sivan m Johnson lp Thilakan, Prashant, Monisha, Nedumudi Venu, Manoj K. Jayan

Noted Malayalam author Nair skilfully elaborates a minor Puranic legend from Kerala into a complex tale of violent customs, parenthood in crisis and professional rivalries. Raman (Thilakan), the 'perunthachan' or chief carpenter/architect in Kerala's feudal system, is the most accomplished craftsman of his time until his son Kannan Vishwakarma (Prashant) surpasses his father's skill and fame. Kannan also dares to fall for the daughter (Manisha) of his father's chief Namboodiri (Brahmin) patron and friend (Venu). Hurt and angered by his son's success and consequent arrogance, Raman 'accidentally' drops a chisel and kills his son. The murder is presented as a question to viewers: was it the father's honourable defence of traditional values that caused him to kill his son, or merely envy? Ajayan's debut film shows him to be a fine director of actors.

Matti Manushulu

1990 87' col Telugu
d/s/m B. Narasinga Rao pc Little India
c A.K. Bir
lp Archana, Moin Ali Beg

The story of a peasant couple who migrate to the city following drought in their Telangana village and become construction workers. The husband becomes an alcoholic and abandons

Ottayadi Paathakal

aka The Narrow Footpaths
1990 96' col Malayalam
d/s C. Radhakrishnan p Vincent Chittilapally pc St Vincent Movies c Sunny Joseph m Mohan Sitara lp Madhu, Sreenath, Revathi, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Isaac Thomas, Somasundaran, Chandran Nair, Paul Neelankavil, Rahim

A heavy-handed, NFDC-financed melodrama shot in Trichur and featuring a group of characters: an old judge, Bhaskara Menon (Madhu), his daughter Sati and his mentally retarded son, and the nephew, Anup Kumar, who covets the daughter. However, Sati refuses to marry Anup and devotes herself to mothering her father and brother. The dramatic event is the death of the son, Suku, a mercy-killing by electrocution by his father, the judge. The latter goes crazy (indicated by e.g. the fact that he makes an abstract painting) and, apparently sleepwalking, jumps to his death.

Pol icena Hendthi

1990 155' col Kannada
d/sc Saiprakash pc Dynamic Film Makers p Hariprasad, Raghubabu, Sudhakar, A.J.V. Prasad st Omkar dial Ku. Nagabhushan lyr R.N. Jayagopal c Krishna m M. Ranga Rao lp Malashree, Shashi Kumar, Devaraj, Mukhyamantri Chandru, Jaijagadish, Mysore

Lokesh, Umesh, Anjana, Tara, Srinivasa Murthy, Sitara, Vinaya Prasad

This propaganda attack on lower-caste people tells of Vanaja (Malashree), a television news reader who provides for her brother Avatari Lokayya (Devaraj) and his wife. The unemployed brother makes his money by putting on various disguises until he is caught trying to masquerade as a lower-caste person in order to obtain state benefits. He later delivers a speech about the evils anti-caste discrimination laws. Vanaja marries a timid cop and transforms him into a 'real man'. She also arranges the cop's sister's marriage while herself getting through a tough civil service examination. The woman's achievements are connected with her devotion to her husband and family, exemplifying Brahminical morality.

Pratibandh

1990 159' col/scope Hindi
d/sc Ravi Raja (aka Raviraja Pinisetty) pc Geeta Arts p Allu Aravind s Anees Bazmee lyr Anand Bakshi c K.S. Hari m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Chiranjeevi, Juhi Chawla, J.V.V. Somayajulu, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Shafi Inamdar, Sumalatha, Rami Reddy, Harish Patel Telugu superstar Chiranjeevi's Hindi debut and, like his later Hindi films Aaj Ka Goonda Raj (1991) and Gentleman (1994), a remake of an earlier Telugu hit (Ankusham, 1989). Violent even by Chiranjeevi's standards, it tells of an 'honest' cop Siddhanth (Chiranjeevi) who frequently breaks the law in order to punish criminals. He offers protection to and later marries Shanti (Chawla), an eyewitness to the murder of a politician. Pitting himself against the might of a liquor baron (Patel), a gangster (Reddy), a corrupt police official (Inamdar) and the State Home Minister (Kharbanda), he loses his wife, his job and eventually his life in the service of the Gandhian Chief Minister Satyendra (Somayajulu). Much of the rhetoric, apparently in defence of an honest police force, seeks to defend individual vigilantism.

Santha Shishunala a Shareefa

1990 131' col Kannada
d/co-st/co-sc T.S. Nagabharana pc Yajamana Ents. co-st/co-sc/co-dial S. Basavaraj co-dial Pal Sudarshan c S. Ramachandra lyr Santha Shishuneela Shareefa co-st/co-sc/m C. Aswath p Sridhar, Girish Karnad, Suman Ranganath, Dattatreya, Hema Choudhury

Hagiography of Shishunala Shareefa, a 19th C. mystic poet and singer from North Karnataka, whose songs, addressing both the everyday and mystical experience, were rediscovered in the 20th C. and remain popular among urban Kannadigas. The film emphasises Shareefa's semi-divine status and adopts the conventions of the devotional film. Shareefa is apprenticed as a boy to Govindabhatta (Karnad), an unorthodox Brahmin teacher who defies several of the conservative tenets of his caste. Shareefa, a Muslim, is excommunicated by his own community, while the Brahmins object to Govindabhatta's conversion of Shareefa to Hinduism. When he grows up (Sridhar), he marries, but his wife (Ranganath) dies in childbirth. In a long sequence, Shareefa and his guru, with divine assistance, defy Brahmin plots. When his teacher dies, Shareefa has a vision shortly after he is evicted from a mosque, signalling his ascent to the status of a visionary. Like other films of the genre (cf. Shri Venkateshwara Mahatyam, 1960), the end is a documentary with footage of pilgrims visiting Shareefa's birthplace.

Shakha Proshakha

aka Branches of the Tree
 1990 130' col Bengali
d/s/m Satyajit Ray p Daniel Toscan du Plantier, Gerard Depardieu pc Erato Films, DD Prod, Soprofilms c Barun Raha lp Ajit Bannerjee, Haradhan Bannerjee, Soumitra Chatterjee, Dipankar Dey, Ranjit Mullick, Lily Chakraborty, Mamata Shankar

Following the unsatisfactory Ganashatru (1989) and his critique of contemporary corruption, Ray's first international co-production looks more like a TV movie and continues the realist Ibsenite idiom with this story about a Bengali joint family. The honest old patriarch Ananda Majumdar (A. Bannerjee), who rose from government clerk to real-estate developer building a small township, has a heart attack on his 70th birthday, causing the large family to gather: his four sons, their wives and children. The eldest son, Probodh (H. Bannerjee), is a corrupt businessman, to the great disappointment of the old man who finds he is closest to his mentally retarded second son, the music-loving Prashanto (S. Chatterjee).

Shatruvu

1990 138' col Telugu
d Kodi Ramakrishna pc Sumanth Prod s Satyamurthy lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, C. Narayana Reddy, Seetharama Sastry
c S. Gopal Reddy m Raj-Koti lp Venkatesh, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Vijayashanti, Babu Mohan, Nagesh, Vijay Kumar, Sangeetha, Brahmanandam

Melodrama about an honest lawyer's fight for justice against corrupt politicians. The lawyer-apprentice Ashok (Venkatesh) falls for, and later teams up with, the courageous female cop Vijaya (Vijayashanti) in her trademark role, cf. Pelli Pustakam (1990). Ashok's mentor, an honest lawyer (Vijayakumar), is killed by the evil gangster Venkatarathnam (Srinivasa Rao). The hero takes the law into his own hands since legal systems are unable to trap the real villain. Ashok's cop girlfriend initially opposes this, but the hero eventually succeeds in eliminating the entire gang of crooks. The film is known mainly for having established 90s Telugu star Venkatesh and for Srinivasa Rao's acclaimed performance as the comic villain.

Thalayana Manthram

1990 135' col Malayalam
d Sathyan Andhikkad p Mudra Arts s Srinivasan lyr Kaithapram c Vipin Kumar m Johnson lp Urvashi, Srinivasan, Jayaram, Parvathi, KPAC Lalitha, Sukumari

One of Andhikkad and Srinivasan's comedies about middle-class Kerala, usually (e.g. Nadodikattu, 1987) but not always (eg. Sandesham, 1991) associated with the performances of Mohanlal. This one lampoons meek husbands who cannot control their spouses' insatiable desire for consumer goods. Sukumaran (Srinivasan) is an honest construction supervisor, but his wife Kanchana (Urvashi) suffers from an inferiority complex vis-à-vis her brother-in-law's educated daughter-in-law, a bank employee. Kanchana forces her husband to separate from the joint family and move into an unaffordably expensive residence where they spend all his savings on a car, a television set, jewellery, etc. Eventually Sukumaran is arrested for embezzlement.

Thodasa Rumani Ho Jaye

aka Let there be a Wee Bit of Romance aka Let's Get Romantic
 1990 160' col Hindi
d/p Amol Palekar pc Doordarshan sc Chitra Palekar c Debu Deodhar lyr Kamlesh Pandey
m Bhaskar Chandavarkar
lp Anita Kanwar, Vikram Gokhale, Nana Patekar, Dilip Kulkarni, Arun Joglekar, Deepa Lagoo, Aparajita Krishna, Riju Bajaj, Shashank Shanker, Vijay Shirke, Hemant Desai

Palekar's musical derived from Joseph Anthony's The Rainmaker (1956) featuring Binny (Kanwar), an unmarried woman whose condition is reflected by the barren and rainless town in which she lives with her family. A stranger comes, bringing rain and romance into her life. The film uses music extensively, often weaving spoken words into songs.

Vastuhara

aka The Dispossessed
 1990 103' col Malayalam
d/sc G. Aravindan pc Paragon Movie Makers st C.V. Sriraman c Sunny Joseph m Salil Choudhury lp Mohanlal, Shobhana, Neelanjana Mitra, Neena Gupta, Padmini

Aravindan's last film is based on a story by the author of Chidambaram (1985). Making a virtually unprecedented, and deeply moving, departure from a cinematic tradition that has always emphasised regional identity, the film is set in Calcutta. The story tells of Venu (Mohanlal), a Malayali officer in the rehabilitation ministry of the Andaman Islands, who selects candidates for a refugee aid programme enabling them to settle in the islands with state assistance. He meets an old Bengali widow (Mitra) who is not eligible for the programme, but he discovers that she is the abandoned wife of his uncle from Kerala. Re-establishing family links, he also befriends her hostile daughter (Gupta) and her son, a political refugee. Their brief acquaintance ends at a shipyard where he hoards his emigrant

Shobhana in Vastuhara

refugees on deck and leaves for the islands once more. From its remarkable opening sequence, as the camera tracks through abandoned refugee shelters built during the 1943 famine and Partition, with a voice-over in Malayalam recapitulating that tragic history and the Kerala peoples' commitment to the plight of the Bengalis, Aravindan makes clear his intention to transcend a localised and increasingly cynical view (cf. Chidambaram and Oridathu, 1986) and to move towards something like a national perspective on the contemporary. In the process he also abandons much of his early pictorialism in favour of e.g. the remarkable shots of Mohanlal walking through the crowded Calcutta streets, or standing on the terrace of his cheap hotel, and especially in the last sequence aboard an ancient and grossly overcrowded ship overrun with impoverished refugees, as Venu tries to bring some order into the chaos. Several well-entrenched naturalist conventions, however, prevent a further formal elaboration of the style, such as the dialogue problems (Mohanlal speaks in Malayalam and English, Neelanjana Mitra in Bengali, highly accented Malayalam and English, and Neena Gupta only in English), but the acting is uniformly in tune with Joseph's deliberately rough-edged camera.

⊗ Vembanad

aka A Lake in Central Kerala

1990 91' col Malayalam

d/s Sivaprasad pc Anna Cine Creations

c Ashwani Kaul m Louis Banks

lp Aziz, Ranjini, Jayabharati, Babu Namboodiri

An obsessive tale of incest, either consummated or desired, on an island community of fisherfolk. A fisherman rescues a teenage girl from drowning, and is obsessed by her. He rapes her, and in the end, repeating the opening sequences, watches her drown. The narrative strategy is both engrossingly ambiguous and alienating as sequences with images of uncertain status (fantasy, desire, dream, reality) coalesce to form an undifferentiated discourse of a father's desire for his teenage daughter together with his denial of that desire.

⊗ Wosobipo

aka The Cuckoo's Call

1990 138' col Karbi

d/s Gautam Bora pc Wojaru Cine Trust Karbi

Anglong c Vivek Bannerjee m Sher Choudhury

lp Elsie Hanse, Bubul Terang, Raman Rongpi, Langbiram Engti

The first film in Karbi, a north-eastern dialect, traces the gradual politicisation of a native schoolteacher, Sarthe Ronghang, who moves beyond a romantic and nostalgic sense of his land into an awareness of the region's real contemporary problems. The director is a graduate of the Konrad Wolf Institute (Potsdam), a documentarist and former assistant to Bhabendranath Saikia (Agnisnan, 1985)

Aditya 369

1991 ? col Telugu
d/s Singeetham Srinivasa Rao pc Sridevi Movies p Anita Krishna dial Jandhyala lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, 'Sirivenella' Sitarama Sastry, Vennelakanti c V.S.R. Swamy, Kabirral m Ilaiyaraja
lp Balakrishna, Mohini, Tinnu Anand, Sudhakar, Velu, Brahmanandam, Ravi Kondala Rao, Babu Mohan, Gollapudi Maruti Rao, Silk Smitha

Comic science fiction fantasy partly inspired by Robert Zemeckis' Back to the Future (1985). An eccentric scientist (Anand) invents a time machine with which the hero (Balakrishna) returns to the 16th C. Vijayanagara empire and meets King Krishna Deva Raya (Balakrishna again). He then travels into a post-nuclear holocaust future. A rare excursion into the science fiction genre in Telugu film, the film was not well received. The director and his lead star teamed up again later for the even more elaborately mounted fantasy Bhairava Dweepam (1994).

Advaitam

1991 181' col Malayalam
d Priyadarshan pc Grihalakshmi Prod.
s T. Damodaran lyr Kaithapram c S. Kumar
m Johnson
lp Mohanlal, Jayaram, Revathi, Thikkurisi Sukumaran Nair, Chitra, Soman, Innocent

A Hindu chauvinist film set in contemporary Kerala. Shivaprasad (Mohanlal), disowned by his Brahmin Namboodiri father, becomes a pawn of power-hungry Communists. Having committed several violent crimes at their behest, he is jailed but 'rewarded' when the Communists come to power and appoint him chairman of a rich temple trust. The hero's 'redemption' is prepared by presenting his efforts at embezzlement - part of his job's privileges - as an attempt to finance the recovery of his feudal rights and to restore his now-politically sanitised joint family. However, opposing him are the honest leader of the temple workers, the good administrator Lakshmi (Revathi) who is also his estranged former lover, and Vasu (Jayaram), a reformed ex-accomplice. When the Communists have Vasu murdered, Shivaprasad sees the light and turns into a saffron-clad sanyasi, soon gaining fame as a peace-preaching godman. In this role, he is invited to mediate in a religious dispute over a mosque (a direct reference to the violent attack on the mosque at Ayodhya). His honesty now makes him an enemy of all the political factions in the dispute, who collectively plot to kill him, but he is rescued by his now-repentant former girlfriend, Lakshmi. Shivaprasad then massacres the corrupt politicians and the film ends with him addressing Hindu devotees, asking them to 'judge' whether slaughtering one's opponents is wrong. The film also recalls the heroic and, in Kerala, controversial figure of the former Naxalite Ajitha, who, according to legend would kill landlords and policemen leaving her bloodied palm print on the wall as a signature.

Agantuk

aka The Stranger
 1991 120' col Bengali
d/s/m Satyajit Ray pc NFDC c Barun Raha lp Dipankar Dey, Mamata Shankar, Bikram Bhattacharya, Utpal Dutt, Dhritiman
Chatterjee, Robi Ghosh, Subrata Chatterjee, Promod Ganguly, Ajit Bannerjee

Ray's last film continues his critique of decaying values in the Bengali middle class (cf. Ganashatru, 1989; Shakha Proshakha, 1990). Into the lives of Sudhindra Bose (De) and his wife Anila (Shankar) arrives Anila's uncle whom she last met 35 years ago. This stranger, Manomohan Mitra (Dutt), lived abroad and worked with tribal communities in various parts of the world. When Sudhindra's lawyer, who does not care about tribals, accuses Mitra of coveting Anila's inheritance, Mitra leaves, having donated his share of the family property to his niece.

Amaran

1991 150' col Malayalam
d Bharathan pc MAK Prod p Babu Thiruvalla
s A.K. Lohitadas lyr Kaithapram c Madhu Ambat m Ravindran lp Mammooty, Madhu, Ashokan, Murali, Chitra, KPAC Lalitha

Shot on location, the film tells of relationships in a fishing village. Achuthan (Mammooty) had watched his wife die in childbirth for want of medical aid and is determined to make his daughter (Madhu) into a doctor. She loves her childhood friend (Ashokan), but he disapproves of her education as well as of her possessive father. Although much of the film faithfully adheres to the dialect of the fisherfolk, the realism lies mainly in Ambat's fine camerawork.

Beder Meye Jotsna

1991 ? col Bengali
p Jai Khemka st/sc/lyr Tojamul Haque Bokul
c Rafiqul Bari Choudhury m Abu Taher lp Chiranjeet, Anju Ghosh, Saifuddin, Dildar, Nasir, Abbas, Anamika, Asha Mukherjee, Kaushik, Shubhendu, Sombhu

Drawing on a popular Bangladeshi theatrical version of the Rupban Kavya fable, the gaudy production mixes elements from the devotional, the social and the historical genres while invoking both the Laila-Majnu and the medieval Bengali Behula-Lakhindar love stories. A girl snake charmer cures a Prince and they fall in love, triggering court intrigues to forestall a marriage and numerous adventures delaying the happy ending. The Prince is represented as a weakling and the film's most spectacular sequence shows the heroine braving impossible odds to support him. A rare Indo-Bangladeshi co-production and a megahit, especially with women in rural areas, in spite of its largely unfamiliar cast, low budget and consistently over-the-top performances.

Bharatham

aka Symphony
 1991 147' col Malayalam
d Sibi Malayil pc Pranavam Arts p Mohanlal
s A.K. Lohitadas lyr Kaithapram
c Anandakuttan m Ravindran
lp Mohanlal, Nedumudi Venu, Urvashi, Laxmi, Murali

The team responsible for the hit His Highness Abdullah (1990) followed on with a story about a well-known Carnatic singer Raman (Venu) whose popularity wanes because of his addiction to drink. His protegee and younger brother Gopi (Mohanlal) is forced to substitute for him when, during a performance, Raman is booed off. This causes a rift between the brothers and Gopi gives up singing until a now-chastened Raman persuades him to make a comeback at an important music festival. However, Raman is killed by a truck and Gopi has to keep this a secret in order not to ruin the marriage changes of his mute sister. Gopi is later accused of having murdered his brother. The film was known mainly for its music and for the songs by star playback singer Yesudas.

Bhavantarana

1991 63' col Oriya
d/s Kumar Shahani pc Bombay Cinematograph c Alok Upadhyay

A spectacular part-fictional documentary on India's famous Odissi dance, seen via its foremost living exponent, Guru Kelucharan Mahapatra. The film shows how living traditions and modes of social initiation can turn into classical forms. Described by the director as a film 'about hunger', it returns the dance to both the labour that it celebrates and the improvisations that continue to defy codification and control. Many of the dances, including the spectacular Navarasa sequence at the end, were choreographed specially for the cinema.

Chinna Gounder

1991 150' col Tamil
d/sc R.V. Udayakumar pc Anandhi Films st/dial R. Selvaraj c A. Karthik Raja
m Ilaiyaraja
lp Vijaykant, Sukanya, Manorama, Goundamani, Senthil, Saleem Ghouse

Chinna Gounder (Vijaykant), the popular village headman, marries the poor shepherd girl Devayani (Sukanya). His evil brother-in-law Sakare Gounder (Ghouse) causes a series of problems that culminate in Devayani being arrested for murder. Chinna Gounder, in order to protect Devayani's pregnant sister Valli, claims responsibility for the pregnancy. The mess is eventually resolved and the villagers drive the villains out.

Chinna Thambi

1991 144' col Tamil
d/s P. Vasu pc K.B. Films lyr Vairamuthu
c Ravindra Babu m Ilaiyaraja lp Prabhu, Khushboo, Manorama, Radharavi, Goundamani, Sulakshana

When it is predicted that Nandini, the first female child to be born after three generations in the richest family of the village, will grow up to marry a man of her choice, her brothers decide to bring up the girl in complete seclusion. When she grows up (Khushboo), the only male she is allowed to see is Chinna Thambi (Prabhu), the idiot son of Kannamma (Manorama). To escape, she forces Chinna Thambi to ritually 'marry' her by tying a mangalsutra (necklace) to her. This leads the brothers to retaliate, but eventually the idiot/rescues Nandini.

Dharavi

aka Quicksand

1991 116' col Hindi

d/s Sudhir Mishra pc NFDC/Doordarshan
dial Atul Tiwari, Pranay Singh c Rajesh Joshi
m Rajat Dholakia

lp Om Puri, Shabana Azmi, Raghuvir Yadav, Chandu Parkhi, Virendra Saxena, Pramod Bala, Satish Khopkar, Mushtaq Khan, Shakti Singh, Madhuri Dixit

Om Puri plays Rajkaran Yadav, an emigré taxi driver from U.P. living in Bombay's notorious Dharavi slum. His wife Kusum (Azmi), living in a one-room tenement with his mother, works to contribute to her husband's ambitious dream of owning a factory. However, the business enterprise is a disaster as the taxi driver gets embroiled with gangsters, forcing his wife to return to her first husband. The ending shows Yadav as boundlessly optimistic as he was at the outset. The film tries to transform the conventions of realism usually deployed for such stories (cf. Chakra, 1980) with surreal effects including the hero's oscillations between fact and fantasy (the latter with Hindi superstar Madhuri Dixit). The opening sequence announces the film's intentions as a Hindi movie being screened to slum dwellers in the open air is abruptly ended when the screen catches fire and the audience riots.

En Rasavin Manisil e

1991 143' col Tamil

d/sc Kasturiraja p Rajkiran pc Red Sun International c Kichaas lyr Pirachudan

m Ilaiyaraaja

lp Rajkiran, Meena, Srividya, Saradha, Preetha, Vadivelu

Based on a Madurai folk narrative, the melodrama claims to address the downside of marriages arranged in the cradle, but actually solicits our sympathy and understanding for callously brutish men. The crude drunkard Mayandi (Rajkiran) marries and rapes his fearful young niece Cholaiamma (Meena), making her pregnant. The girl eventually realises that Mayandi is a nice man whom she should have loved all along, but it is too late and she dies in childbirth. Undeterred, Mayandi then turns his attentions to Cholaiamma's sister Kasturi (Preetha) and, recognising that only truly brutish men are irresistible, she challenges him to try and take her away from the man who loves her. The latter, in contrast to the sterling masculine qualities of Mayandi, is represented as a weakling who actually loves Kasturi. Mayandi eventually realises that he has to curb his notions of 'masculinity'. Unfortunately, he pays the price for this change of heart and he dies in the arduous process of helping Kasturi to get together with her beloved weakling, whereupon Kasturi adopts her sister's orphaned child.

Gang Leader

1991 155' col Telugu

d/s Vijaya Bapineedu pc Syamprasad Arts p Maganti Ravindranath Choudhury dial Parachuri Bros. lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Bhuvana Chandra c H. Loksingh m Bappi Lahiri

lp Chiranjeevi, Vijayashanti, Sarath Kumar, Ravu Gopala Rao, Sumalatha, Murali Mohan, Sharat Saxena, Nirmala, Sudha, Allu Ramalingaiah, Satyanarayana, Nutan Prasad

Raghupati (Mohan), Raghava (Kumar) and Rajaram (Chiranjeevi) are brothers in a lower-middle class family. Only the eldest, Raghupati, is employed. Rajaram earns some money to pay for Raghava's studies by agreeing to go to prison for a road accident caused by the daughter of a jailor (Satyanarayana). While he is in jail, Raghupati is killed by the villain Ekambaram (Rao), a crime for which photographic evidence is available but withheld from Rajaram. Further problems are caused when Raghava's new wife (Sumalatha) and her corrupt father, a police officer, force a split between the brothers. Rajaram is arrested once again, this time for murder, but eventually, with the help of Ekambaram's illegitimate daughter Kanyakumari (Vijayashanti), he rescues and reunites his entire family and kills the villain's brother (Saxena) while Kanyakumari kills the villain. The film was remade as Aaj Ka Goonda Raj (1991) and includes all the standard narrative conventions of a Chiranjeevi film, such as a 'solo' song number and an elaborately choreographed fight sequence early in the story.

Gauri Ganesha

1991 148' col Kannada

d/sc H.S. Phani Ramchandra pc Kalasindhu p Vishwa Sagar st Malladi Venkata Krishnamurthy dial Ku. Nagabhushan lyr Shyamsundar Kulkarni, Su. Rudramurthy Sastry, M.N. Vyasa Rao, V. Manohar
c R. Manjunath m Rajan-Nagendra lp Anant Nag, Vinaya Prasad, Shruti, Master Anand, Mukhyamantri Chandru, Ramesh Bhatt, Sihikahi Chandru, Umesh Navale, Ratnakar, Bangalore Nagesh, Bank Janardan, Sivaprakash, M.S. Umesh, B.K. Shankar, Vaishali, Shobha Raghavendra, Malathi, Kamalashree

Continues director Ramchandra's popular 'Ganesha' series (cf. Ganeshana Madhuve, 1990). The confidence trickster Lambodhara (Nag) discovers from a dead woman's diary the three men in her life, each of whom mistakenly believed they had sex with her. He blackmails each of the three men with the claim that he possesses the child that was born of that sexual encounter, but he then gets into trouble.

Guna

1991 167' col Tamil

d Santhana Bharathi p Alamelu Subramaniam sc Sabu John dial Balakumaran lyr Vali
m Ilaiyaraaja

lp Kamalahasan, Janakraj, Girish Karnad, S.P. Balasubramaniam, Kaka Radhakrishnan, Roshini, S. Varalakshmi, Rekha

Guna (Kamalahasan) is a mentally disturbed youth whose mother Mannonmani (Varalakshmi) runs a brothel. He is obsessed with fantasies in which he casts himself as Siva, expecting Abirami to come and redeem him. Having been persuaded by his uncle to break into a temple, Guna sees the beautiful heiress Roshni (Roshni) and takes her to be Abirami, abducting her first to the brothel and, when he cannot stay there with her, to Kodaikanal. Roshni eventually realises that the madman who kidnapped her is really a kind person and she gets him to betray their whereabouts to the police. When the cops arrive, Roshni begs Guna to surrender, promising that she will take care of him. However, when her evil guardian kills her, Guna retaliates and kills the villain before leaping to his death off a bridge, holding his beloved 'Abirami' in his arms, thus proving that nothing can separate Siva from Abirami.

Hum

1991 184' col/scope Hindi

d Mukul S. Anand pc Romesh Films s Ravi Kapoor, Mohan Kaul dial Kader Khan
lyr Anand Bakshi c W.B. Rao m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Amitabh Bachchan, Kimi Katkar, Rajnikant, Anupam Kher, Danny Denzongpa, Kadar Khan, Govinda, Deepa Sahi, Shilpa Shirodkar, Romesh Sharma, Annu Kapoor

Beginning with silhouetted scenes (cf. Sam Fuller's Underworld USA, 1960) in the Bombay dockyards recalling Deewar (1975) and ending with the star's bloodshot eyes advancing towards the quivering villain, Mukul Anand's hit provides a lexicon of Bachchanalia. Tiger (Bachchan), a petty collector of protection money, changes sides when his friend Gonsalves (Sharma) leads the exploited dockers against Mr Big, Bakhtawar (Denzongpa). The perfidious Inspector Giridhar (Kher) and his sidekick (Kapoor) manipulate the bloody confrontations so that Bakhtawar is jailed for Gonsalves' murder, his family is exterminated and Tiger, together with his two brothers (Rajnikant and Govinda) and their families, is banished from the city. Years later, after idyllic family scenes and a complicated plot involving high-level scams in the Indian Army, the Bachchan clan has to go into action against a bunch of terrorists in pseudo-hippy costumes and equipped with an assortment of armaments. The high point of the film, refurbishing an ageing Bachchan image, is the big musical number Jumma chumma (taken from Mori Kante's Akwaba Beach album) with Kimi Katkar performing in a bar filled with sweaty, beer-swilling and foot-stomping dockers whose collective ejaculation takes the form of spraying the star with whatever liquid is available. The scene is repeated, as the gang-rape connotations are replaced by those of movie-star mania, when Katkar becomes a star and both she and Bachchan are mobbed by crazed fans. The film received an unprecedented saturation release in over 400 cinemas.

Idiot

1991 180' col Hindi
d Mani Kaul pc Doordarshan st Fyodor Dostoevsky's novel sc Anup Singh dial Hemendra Bhatia, Rajeev Kumar c Piyush Shah m D. Wood, Vikram Joglekar lp Ayub Khan Din, Shah Rukh Khan, Mita Vasisth, Navjot Hansra, Vasudeo Bhatt, Deepak Mahan, Babulal Bora, Meenakshi Goswami, Zul Velani, Amritlal Thulal

With this tour de force of control over a bewilderingly complex narrative and a massive cast of characters (more than 50 key roles) constantly shifting about in both geographic and cinematic spaces, Mani Kaul continues exploring Dostoevsky's fiction (cf. Nazar, 1989), faithfully following the novel's original plot transposed into a scathing depiction of a feudal elite, largely bypassed by history, located in Bombay and Goa. The story begins with the return of Myshkin (Ayub Khan), having spent many years in London undergoing treatment for epilepsy. He encounters the beautiful Nastasia (Vasisth), a femme fatale pursued by the rich Pawan Raghujan (Shah Rukh Khan) and the ambitious Ganesh (Mahan). The wealthy milieu seems to live in a vacuum, alongside a formerly productive generation, such as the businessman Mehta (Velani) and his proud daughter Amba (Hansra) or the retired, drunken colonel (Bora) who is accompanied by characters like Killer and the cynical and suicidal Shapit (Thulal) on the beaches of Goa. At Nastasia's party both Ganesh and Myshkin propose to her, but she leaves with Raghujan who throws a bundle of banknotes at her which she proceeds to burn. After the central sequence in Goa, the colonel leaves home and dies, and Myshkin becomes engaged to Amba. However, he suffers an epileptic fit and the next day Nastasia breaks the engagement, claiming Myshkin for herself. Just before their wedding she again runs away to Raghujan who eventually kills her, after which he spends the night with Myshkin awaiting the police. In the end Myshkin is revealed to have gone mad. Kaul coolly orchestrates with great virtuosity the continuously mobile, elusive points of 'stress' (in Kaul's phrase) as they shift from geographic location to cinematic space and back again, from the editing and gestural rhythms to the discontinuous soundtrack, achieving a multi-layered cinematic texture that at times threatens to stretch beyond the boundaries of the frame. The innovative approach to plot and narration keeps the film on a precarious edge between formal control and random collisions of speech and identity. Much of the film's successful use of characters as 'independent vertices' (as the director describes them) follows the extraordinary performance of British Asian actor Ayub Khan who uses his difficulties with Hindi to considerable advantage as the nervous and culturally dislocated epileptic. The director commented: 'Whereas for years I dwealt on rarefied wholes where the line of the narrative often vanished into thin air, with Idiot I have plunged into an extreme saturation of events. [P]ersonally, I find myself on the brink, exposed to a series of possible disintegrations. Ideas, then, cancel each other out and the form germinates. Content belongs to the future, and that's how it creeps into the present'. The film was made as a four part TV series running 223' and edited down to feature length.

Inspector Balram

1991 88' col Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi pc Liberty Prod.
st/sc/dial T. Damodaran c J. Williams m Shyam lp Mammootty, Urvashi, Murali, Kiran Kumar, Soman, Geetha

The sequel of Avanazhi (1986) chronicles the further adventures of vigilante cop Balram (Mammootty) and Damodaran-Sasi's investigations into corruption, violence and impotent liberal State institutions. Preethi (Urvashi), daughter of a rich jeweller who is murdered by a criminal nexus of smugglers and politicians, dares the incorruptible Balram to secure justice. When it turns out that this group of villains was also responsible for the killing of Balram's wife, he takes the law into his own hands. Preethi proposes to Balram and he eventually agrees to marry her when he sees her motherly devotion to his daughter. Providing 'comic relief' is the parallel story of Constable Sudhakaran and his wife Leelamma who work in the same police department where she is his superior. He tries to establish his superiority in their domestic domain and threatens to hang himself because he has to salute his wife on duty. Hindi star Kiran Kumar plays Shah, the formulaically evil international drug trafficker, with aplomb.

Jnan Gandharvan

1991 142' col Malayalam
d/s P. Padmarajan pc Goodknight films p R. Mohan lyr Kaithapram c Venu m Johnson lp Nitish Bhardwaj, Aparna, Ganesh, Philomena

Padmarajan's last film is a fantasy featuring the college-going Bhama (Aparna) and her passion for a celestial lover (Bhardwaj, better known as a Hindi TV star) who keeps appearing from a wooden statue that she found on a beach but is invisible to others. Eventually they are separated as he is punished by higher celestial powers.

Kshana Kshanam

1991 158' col/scope Telugu
d/st/sc Ram Gopal Varma pc NRP Films p K.L. Narayana, Y. Lakshmana Choudhury dial Satyanand lyr Seetharama Sastry, Vennelakanti c S. Gopal Reddy
m M.M. Keeravani lp Venkatesh, Sridevi, Paresh Rawal, Rami Reddy, Brahmanandam, Krishna Rao

When the sexy working woman Satya (Sridevi) happens upon a clue to some hidden loot, she is targeted by a gang led by the villain Nayar (Rawal). Teaming up with a petty crook Chandu (Venkatesh), the pair are chased through the film by both the criminals and the police. This megabudget chase film opens with a suspenseful bank raid, moves to surreal forest scenes as the couple rough it beside a camp fire, and climaxes as the hero fights the gangsters atop a moving train. Director Varma shows himself able to assimilate recent Hollywood styles influenced by TV advertising and music clips (cf. John Badham's Bird on a Wire, 1990). Most of the songs are inserted with no connection whatever to the plot, unusual even in a tradition noted for the autonomy of its song picturisations. Film critic Rajeev Velicheti (1992) used the film to identify a recent trend of consumerist cinema in AP calibrated on the linguistic-regional attitudes of a Hyderabad-based middle-class. The film was dubbed in Hindi as Hairaan.

(From left) Ayub Khan Din, Navjot Hansra, Mita Vasisth in Idiot

⊗ Mahapritibi aka World Within, World Without

1991 105' col Bengali

d/sc Mrinal Sen pc G.G. Films st Anjan Dutt
c Shashi Anand m B.V. Karanth, Chandan Roy Choudhury

lp Victor Bannerjee, Soumitra Chatterjee, Anjan Dutt, Aparna Sen, Geeta Sen, Anasuya Majumdar

With this film Sen returned to his most congenial setting, Calcutta, and to one of his favourite plot formulas: the sudden disappearance of a family member causes the others to reflect on themselves and their lives. Here Sen considers the lives of a Bengali middle-class family against the background of 'the new world order' with the defeat of the USSR in the cold war and the unification of Germany. When the elderly mother (G. Sen) of a Calcutta family hangs herself, her husband (S. Chatterjee), her youngest son (Dutta), her mentally unbalanced daughter (Majumdar) and her widowed daughter-in-law (A.Sen) are distraught but do not have the courage to read the old woman's diary. When the eldest son (Bannerjee) returns from Germany, his anxious questioning brings to light the disorientation experienced by the family and the way world history penetrates into the fabric of individual lives. In the end the daughter, with silent anger and resentment, burns the mother's diary, unread.

⊗ Mamagaru

1991 158' col Telugu

d/sc Muthyala Subbaiah pc M.M. Movie Arts p A. Mohan Krishna st V. Sekhar dial Totapalli Madhu lyr 'Sirivennela' Seetharama Sastry, Vennelakanti, D. Narayana Varma, Vedavyasa
c R. Rama Rao m Raj-Koti

lp Dasari Narayana Rao, Vinod Kumar, Aishwarya, Nirmalamma, Yamuna, Kota Srinivasa Rao

Vijay (Vinod Kumar), the president of a village panchayat, rescues the simple Satheyya (Dasari), from an attack by thieves. Vijay later marries Satheyya's daughter Lakshmi (Yamuna) against the parental wishes of Kanthamma (Nirmalamma), who wants him to marry his niece Rani (Aishwarya). Vijay also brings his father-in-law to live with him. These decisions anger his brother-in-law Pothuraju (Kota Srinivasa Rao) who plots to discredit Vijay's family. Lakshmi dies in an accident and Satheyya is driven out of Vijay's house after Pothuraju accuses the old man of being a womaniser. Vijay finally sees through Pothuraju's evil designs but not before Satheyya commits suicide. The low-budget melodrama revolves the performance of Dasari, being directed by the noted filmmaker's former assistant.

⊗ Narasimha

1991 214' col Hindi

d/p/s N. Chandra pc N. Chandra Prod.

lyr Javed Akhtar c Binod Pradhan

m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

lp Sunny Deol, Dimple Kapadia, Om Puri, Urmila, Ravi Behl, Babban Yadav, Satish Shah, Guddi Maruti, Sharat Saxena, Usha Nadkarni, Shafi Inamdar, Om Shivpuri, Nivedita Joshi, Brij Gopal, Shail Chaturvedi

Baapji (Om Puri) is the self-styled king of a township. His loyal lieutenant Narasimha (Sunny Deol) commits the crimes for him. Baapji kills the only honest policeman who attempts to arrest him, and the cop's son, who is in love with Baapji's daughter, is severely beaten. Baapji's daughter drives off a mountainside and declares that she will do worse if her father does her boyfriend any more harm. When Baapji asks Narasimha to expel the policeman's family from the town, Narasimha recalls his own homeless past, reforms and turns against his mentor. The film updates Vishnu Purana's legend: Narasimha, half man and half lion, bursts out of a pillar to destroy the evil Hiranyakashapu. Sunny Deol, acting in the Rambo-style, performs the mythological act shortly after he has been chained and whipped, and then goes on almost single-handedly to destroy Baapji's mansion, allowing the young lovers to be united. The villain is killed through divine intervention as he is impaled by the falling hand of a giant clock. Chandra's visceral camerawork matches the performance of the muscular Deol and together they amount to a savage argument in defence of a revivalist mass culture.

⊗ Nirnayam

1991 170' col Telugu

d/s Priyadarshan pc Shri Jayabheri Art Prod

dial Ganesh Patro lyr Ganesh Patro c Kumar

m Ilaiyaraaja

lp Nagarjuna, Amala, Murali Mohan, Sudhakar, Sharat Saxena, Annapoorna

Based loosely on John Badham's Stakeout (1987), a police officer (Nagarjuna) leaves his job to avenge the humiliation of a dying man (Mohan). Announcing a new professionalism in 90s filmmaking (cf. Mani Rathnam, Ram Gopal Varma, also the director's own Thennavin Kombath, 1994), the technical sophistication was best demonstrated in the replication of Abid's, a well-known Hyderabad business locality, as a set for some of the action.

⊗ Prahaar

1991 166' col/scope Hindi

d/co-s Nana Patekar pc Divya Films Combine co-s Sujit Sen dial Hriday Lani lyr Mangesh

Kulkarni c Debu Deodhar m Laxmikant-

Pyarelal

lp Nana Patekar, Dimple Kapadia, Madhuri Dixit, Habib Tanvir

Patekar's weirdly fascist fantasy of a military Pied Piper followed by naked boys about to be transformed into a glorious army of bullies which will sort out the mess created by 'emasculated' people in the real world. The first half of the film lovingly portrays a dictatorial Major Chouhan (Patekar himself) subjecting the youthful male bodies to some gruelling tests. We learn that the major's Messianism is rooted in a tragic childhood: his mother was sold as a prostitute and he spends the rest of his life compensating for the helplessness he felt then. When one of the major's wards is killed by gangsters extracting protection money from his father, the local baker, Patekar confronts the thugs, but the ordinary folk in the area do not understand the need for drastic action and the hero is forced to massacre the villains in the dead of night, watched only by the widow of one of their former victims. The climax is, in the light of subsequent events in Bombay, a chillingly deliberate orgy of violence. The ensuing court case sentences Patekar to a lunatic asylum, where he fantasises about his naked, pubescent army.

⊗ Sandesham

1991 146' col Malayalam

d Sathyan Andhikkad pc Evershine Prod.

s Srinivasan lyr Kaithapram c Vipin Mohan

m Johnson

lp Thilakan, Jayaram, Srinivasan, Siddique, Madhu, Kaviyoor Ponnamma

Popular social satire by the leading Malayalam genre practitioners addressing political parties and slogan-shouting activists. Having retired as a stationmaster in Tamil Nadu, the hero (Thilakan) returns to Kerala after 30 years to find his two unemployed sons (Srinivasan and Jayaram) have become full-time hangers-on in opposing political parties, asserting their strident political rhetoric both in and out of the house. The two sons try in vain to put 'service before self' until their harassed father, on the verge of ruin, makes them see sense. The positive contrast is provided by the enterprising and prudent agricultural officer (Siddique) who marries their sister and represents the film's plea on behalf of apolitical, small businesses. The typically hilarious dialogue by Srinivasan bolsters this message.

⊗ Saudagar

1991 213' col/scope Hindi

d/st Subhash Ghai pc Mukta Arts sc Sachin

Bhowmick dial Kamlesh Pandey lyr Anand

Bakshi c Ashok Mehta m Laxmikant-

Pyarelal

lp Dilip Kumar, Raaj Kumar, Vivek Mushran, Manisha Koirala, Anupam Kher, Gulshan Grover, Dina Pathak, Jackie Shroff, Deepti Naval, Dalip Tahil, Mukesh Khanna, Anand Balraj, Amrish Puri

Billed as a clash of titans between the 60s stars Raaj and Dilip Kumar, the conflict between two ageing patriarchs is told as a parable by Mandhari (Kher). The two are bosom buddies in their youth and Bir Singh aka Biru (Dilip Kumar) is supposed to marry Thakur Rajeshwar Singh's (Raaj Kumar) sister. However, he has to abandon her because honour requires him to save a woman who has been rejected on the eve of her wedding. The thakur's sister commits suicide and the buddies become bitter enemies, pursuing their feud over two decades while their respective families proliferate on either side of the Beas river. Each maintains a private army to counter the other's threat. The real villain, Rajeshwar Singh's brother-in-law Chuniya (Puri), has Biru's eldest son Vishal (Shroff) killed when he tries to make peace. Vishal's son Vasu (Mushran), sent to an ashram to prepare for joining his grandfather's army, now falls in love with the enemy's granddaughter Radha (Koirala) and the two eventually bring the warring clans together. The patriarchs die in each other's arms. Dialogue reigns supreme in the film but the love interest between Vasu and Radha (played by newcomers, this being Koirala's debut) culminates in the hit song Ilu ilu.

Seeta Ramaigari Manavarulu

1991 145' col Telugu
d/p/s Kranthi Kumar pc Shri Krishna Chitra lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c Hari Anumolu m M.M. Keeravani lp A. Nageshwar Rao, Rohini Hattangadi, Meena, Dasari Narayana Rao, Murali Mohan

The old man Seetharamaiah's (ANR) granddaughter (Meena) returns from the USA with news that his son has died in an accident. The problem is how to tell the tragic news to the old man with a weak heart. The film deals mainly with the relationship between the old man and his grand-daughter, also forming a showpiece for 'Telugu culture' - extended into a conspicuous use of dress, custom, festivals and ritual - as the foreign-educated granddaughter turns more 'traditional' than even the local people.

Something Like A War

1991 63' col English
d Deepa Dhanraj pc D&N Prod, Equal Media
c Navroze Contractor

Noted feminist documentary addressing the Indian government's controversial family planning programme. After the infamous Sanjay Gandhi-led forced sterilisation programmes during the Emergency (1975-6), the programme ran into trouble again promoting injectable contraception, hormonal implants and abortifacient pills, often on the recommendation of international population control agencies dominated by multinational corporate interests. The film concentrates on the experience of the women subjected to the programme, contrasting this with the official discourse and the well-known government-sponsored advertising jingles ('small family happy family'). The women speak with, for Indian film, unprecedented candour. The rapid TV-style editing sometimes undoes the fine camerawork but the film manages to convey that the invocation of Western-style notions of individual freedom in the very different context of Indian women's lived conditions can be oppressive, esp. when women are socially denied the right to control their fertility and do not have access to appropriate post-operative health care systems.

Surya Tejor Anya Naam

1991 ? col Assamese
d/s Dinesh Gogoi pc Udaygiri Films p Mrinal Kumar Saikia c Ajan Barua m Gagan Gogoi lp Mihir Bordoloi, Alok Nath, Violet Nazir, Mridul Sutiya

Made in a 'mainstream' fashion deliberately adapting Hindi film conventions, this melodrama however attracted attention for being one of the first to consciously address the problem of political insurgency in Assam.

Veerappan

1991 151' col Kannada
d/s Raveendranath pc Jain Movies p Chandulal Jain lyr Doddarange Gowda c Mallikarjuna m Guna Singh lp Devaraj, Lokesh, Vanita Vasu, Sivakumar, Manu, Girish, Rajaram, Avinash, Thoogudeepa Srinivas, Sundarakrishna Urs, Mukhyamantri Chandru, Mysore Lokesh, Triveni, Chandrakumari, Leela Basavaraj, Ratnamma, Sumalatha, Radha, Vijay, Seema, Ravivarma, B.M. Venkatesh

Topical film referring, in part, to notorious real-life sandalwood smuggler Veerappan, operating on the Karnataka-Tamil Nadu border, who hit the news following a series of violent encounters with the police in the early 90s. Like crime journalism dramatising the confrontations between the good and bad while retaining a veneer of support for the legal system, the film is formally dedicated to the police who lost their lives in their efforts to capture Veerappan. However, it begins with a scene in which Veerappan (Devaraj) discusses and gives his approval to the production. A priest then explains Veerappan's life as being a consequence of his impoverished childhood. This leads to the next character, Nayakan (Lokesh), formerly Veerappan's employer, but now his enemy, who points to the latter's Robin Hood-type inclinations. Veerappan's revenge for the rape of his sister and his encounters with the police then follow. The film ends with a pair of brave police officers setting out to get him, but he eludes them.

Ankuram

1992 131' col Telugu
d/s Uma Maheshwara Rao pc Film India Art Creations p K.V. Suresh Kumar dial Tanikella Bharani lyr Seetharama Sastry c Madhu Ambat m Hamsalekha lp Revathi, Om Puri, Sarath Babu, Charuhasan, Madhuri, P.L. Narayana

An unidentified man (Puri) in a train leaves his infant child in the care of a fellow passenger (Revathi) when he is arrested for being a suspected Naxalite. Much of the film deals with Revathi's struggles with numerous government agencies as she tries to trace the man. Shot on location, and evoking a political genre attacking State repression in Andhra Pradesh, the commercial hit was a somewhat deliberate, though technically limited, effort to translate the New Indian Cinema into Telugu.

A Okati Adakku

1992 155' col Telugu
d/sc E.V.V. Satyanarayana pc AVM Film
p M. Saravanan, M. Balasubramanyam st Kalaimani dial L.B. Sriram lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Bhuvana Chandra c V. Srinivasa Reddy m Ilaiyaraaja lp Rajendra Prasad, Rambha, Ravu Gopala Rao, Brahmanandam, Babu Mohan

Story of a man (Prasad) who cannot consummate his marriage until he earns the money he had promised in order to prove his worthiness to his wicked father-in-law (Gopala Rao). Much of the dialogue works with double-entendre, and the film is remembered mainly for Gopala Rao's performance. Attacked for obscenity, this was one of Satyanarayana's early encounters with controversy around sexual explicitness (cf. Alluda Majaaka, 1995).

Apathbandhavudu

aka The Saviour
 1992 173' col Telugu
d/s K. Vishwanath pc Poornodaya Movie Creations p Edida Nageshwar Rao dial Jandhyala lyr C. Narayana Reddy, 'Sirivennela' Seetharama Sastry c A. Vincent, Ajayan Vincent m M.M. Keeravani lp Chiranjeevi, Meenakshi Sheshadri, Sarath Babu, Geetha, Allu Ramalingaiah, Nirmala, Brahmanandam, Satyanarayana, Jandhyala

Madhava (Chiranjeevi), a member of the 'backward' Yadava caste, is raised by a benevolent Brahmin school teacher (Telugu scenarist/filmmaker Jandhyala) and dedicates his life to the support of the teacher's family. He raises the money for the marriage of Lalitha (Geeta), the man's eldest daughter. The second daughter, Hema (Sheshadri), falls for him, although she is to marry her cousin Sripathi (Babu). Lalitha's husband tries to rape Hema and kills his own wife. Hema goes mad and is admitted to an asylum, which Madhava also enters pleading insanity, and he rescues her. The two eventually marry, transcending caste differences with the support of Sripathi and his father (Ramalingaiah). As with other Vishwanath protagonists, the hero is a model of selfless virtue (cf. Swayamkrushi, 1987) and Chiranjeevi's performance won much critical acclaim. The film's unusually explicit references to caste (cf. Rudraveena, 1988) can be read as upper caste unease within the context of major backward-caste mobilisation in the wake of the anti-Mandal Commission agitations. This is seen especially in the space occupied by the lead character, whose withdrawal from the public arena and dedication to his mentor's family consciously evacuates all questions of his political rights, an issue made explicit by the Dalit movements of the time.

Aranya Rodana

aka A Cry in the Wilderness

1992 87' col Oriya

d/sc Biplab Roy Choudhury pc Gouri Pics st Satkadi Hora c Raju Mishra m Shantanu
Mahapatra

lp Priyambada Roy, Master Ramdas Murmu, Laltendu Rath, Raicharan Das, Sarat Pujari

Kalyani (Roy), an intrepid journalist, investigates the rape and murder of a tribal woman by a politician in rural Orissa. Later, she also investigates the criminal activities of a moneylender, becoming increasingly involved in the lives of the tribal people, adopting the child of the dead tribal woman. However, her editor either suppresses or publishes distorted versions of her stories. This is intercut with the journalist's own troubled married life.

Bal aram Krishnu

1992 142' col Telugu

d/s Raviraja Pinisetty pc Vineela Art Prod.

p Sankara Madhu Murali dial T. Bharani lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Seetharama Sastry c Vijay m Raj-Koti lp Shobhan Babu, Rajasekhar, Ramya Krishna, Jagapathi Babu, Srividya, Gollapudi Maruti Rao, T. Bharani, Babu Mohan, Brahmanandam, Rajivi, Kalpana

Feudal family drama with a rural background. Balaramaiah (Shobhan Babu) and Krishna Murthi (Rajasekhar) are step-brothers who become sworn enemies as a result of a misunderstanding caused by the film's villain (Gollapudi). Balaramaiah is the village head and temple trustee, and holds his half-brother in contempt for having been born to a lower-caste 'untouchable' woman. Krishna Murthi however saves the former's daughter from an attempted rape. Later Krishna Murthi's sister dies trying to prevent the same woman from being kidnapped. The brothers finally reunite after Balaramaiah's wife reminds him of his debts to Krishna Murthi and his family. The two half-brothers, depicted as rival feudal patriarchs, allow the caste aspect to surface only towards the film's end, although hints are presented throughout the plot.

Beta

1992 171' col/scope Hindi

d/co-p Indra Kumar pc Maruti International co-p Vinod Doshi, Ashok Thakeria

st K. Bhagyaraj sc Gyandev Agnihotri dial Kamlesh Pandey lyr Sameer c Baba Azmi m Anand-Milind, Vanraj Bhatia lp Anil Kapoor, Madhuri Dixit, Aruna Irani, Laxmikant Berde, Akash Khurana, Ajitesh, Anupam Kher, Rita Bhaduri

A rich widower (Khurana) marries Laxmi (Irani) to provide a mother for his infant son Raju. However, she is an evil woman who schemes to appropriate her husband's property by having him locked away, making her stepson emotionally dependent on her and moving in with her equally villainous brother (Kher). Raju (Kapoor) grows up an illiterate peasant, but when he marries Saraswati (Dixit),

Aruna Irani and Madhuri Dixit in Beta (1992)

the new daughter-in-law sets things right. The major dramatic pivot constitutes the assembling of a new patriarchy around Raju and around the contradiction of 'bad' characters being positioned in positive roles: e.g. the daughter-in-law must persecute the evil Laxmi without tarnishing Laxmi's authority as her mother-in-law, and Raju himself has to accede to new notions of morality - including economic independence from the joint family - while the narrative must sustain his symbolic regard for his stepmother. After his second success (Dil, in 1990, was his first) Indra Kumar went on to make it three-in-a-row with Raja (1995), all starring Madhuri Dixit. The film is notorious mainly for its erotic picturisation of the Dhak dhak number (Anand Patwardhan later refers to the song in Father Son and Holy War, 1994, as epitomising male fantasy).

Brindavanamu

1992 153' col Telugu

d/sc Singeetham Srinivasa Rao

pc Chandamama-Vijaya Combines

p B. Venkata Rama Reddy

st/dial D.V. Narasaraju lyr Vennelakanti

c R. Deviprasad m Madhavapeddi Suresh lp Rajendra Prasad, Ramya Krishna, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Anjali Devi, Satyanarayana, Sudhakar

Produced by the Vijaya studio and reviving their tradition of the rural family melodrama (cf. Shavukaru, 1950), the story has Satyanarayana playing a character who tries to cheat an old couple (Rao and Anjali Devi) out of their house. The film's hero (Prasad) is the couple's grandson, the heroine (Ramya) the villain's grand-daughter. The lead pair teach the villain a lesson.

Chaitrada Premanjali

1992 159' col/scope Kannada

d/s S. Narayan pc M.C. Prod p M. Shashikala

c P.K.H. Das lyr/m Hamsalekha

lp Raghuv eer, Shweta, Lokesh, Srinivasa Murthy, Rajanand, Satyajit, Abhijeet, Swastik Shankar, Shobharaj, Jyothi, S. Narayan, Ashalata

'Fresh faces' romance with a tragic end. Karate champion Prem (Raghuv eer) goes to the family country retreat to practice for a tournament and falls for village girl Anju (Shweta). Her father (Lokesh), however, prevents the marriage and tries to force her to marry a womaniser with an obliging father. Prem wins his trophy and rescues Anju, but the couple are killed by the bad guys.

Chel uvi

aka The Flowering Tree

1992 102' col Hindi

d/s/co-dial Girish Karnad pc Sadir Media,

Doordarshan p B.V. Ramachandra

co-dial Padmavati Rao lyr Vasant Dev c Rajiv

Menon m Bhaskar Chandavarkar lp Sonali Kulkarni, Gargi Yakkundi, Prashant

Rao, Geetanjali Kirloskar, B. Jayashree,

Sushma, Poornima Chikkerur, Girish Karnad,

Padmavati Rao, Appayya, Sivdasan, Suresh

Kulkarni, Vijaya Yakkundi

Karnad retells a Karnataka folk-tale, dubbed in Hindi, usually told by women while feeding children or putting them to bed, a time when other women would also be present. A young woman, Cheluv i (Kulkarni), living in abject poverty with her mother and sister, can turn herself into a tree yielding an endless supply of blossoms as long as they are picked very carefully. The son, Kumar (Prashant Rao), of the village headman (Karnad), seduced by the scent of the flowers, marries Cheluv i and they enjoy her flowering in strict privacy. During Kumar's absence, the headman's young daughter Shyama (G. Yakkundi) forces Cheluv i to disclose her secret. Unable to comprehend the delicacy and beauty of the event, the children destroy the tree, leaving Cheluvi's body as a mutilated tree-stump. In the end, Kumar disconsolately leaves carting off the Cheluvi-stump. The folklorist A.K. Ramanujan pointed out that in Sanskrit and in Kannada the same word is used for 'flowering' and 'menstruation'. Art direction is provided by Jayoo and Nachiket Patwardhan.

Daivathinte Vikrithikal

1992 108' col Malayalam
d/sc Lenin Rajendran pc Souparnika Movie Arts st M. Mukundan lyr O.N.V. Kurup
c Madhu Ambat m Mohan Sitara lp Raghuvaran, Srividya, Thilakan, Vineeth, Sudheesh, Siddique

Based on the writings of noted author Mukundan, the film is set near the river Mayyazhi (Mahe) in an ex-French colony with continuing cultural links to its former colonial power. Father Alphonse (Raghuvaran), a French-speaking priest, amateur magician and alcoholic, decides to stay when Independence comes and the colonial functionaries depart on the last ship to Paris, much to the despair of his Francophile wife Maggie (Srividya). Years later, when their son Michael leaves for France in search of the 'good life', he shatters Maggie's hopes for redemption. Their daughter Elsie becomes pregnant by her childhood friend (Vineeth), the son of a landlord and former Congress Party worker (Thilakan), and Alphonse's only remaining acquaintance. The younger son of this landlord quits a potentially successful career at University in order to join a radical Naxalite group. The original novel attempted to investigate the conditions of culturally marginalized communities in Independent India. Rajendran, who contested elections supported by the CPI(M), proposes a critique of the ruling Congress Party, presenting it as a once-radical movement now infested with corruption and challenged by the progressive Left. The cinematographer Ambat's work is, as usual, outstanding, especially in its creation of claustrophobic spaces.

Gauravar

1992 157' col Malayalam
d Joshi pc Chandini Films s A.K. Lohitadas lyr Kaithapram c Jayanan Vincent
m S.P. Venkatesh
lp Mammootty, Thilakan, Murali, Anju, Babu Anthony

Anthony (Mammootty) and Aliyar (Thilakan) are two ex-convicts whose families have been exterminated by the police. When they are released, they team up to destroy, in revenge, the family of Haridas, the honest policeman responsible for the original killing but now retired. Haridas, in his dying moments, confesses to Anthony that one of his three daughters is in fact Anthony's illegitimate daughter, whom Haridas had rescued and adopted many years ago. Anthony now changes sides and turns into the protector of Haridas's family against the attacks of his former prison-mate Aliyar. He eventually kills Aliyar and his entire gang.

Gharana Mogudu

1992 149' col Telugu
d K. Raghavendra Rao pc Devi Film Prod.
p K. Devi Varaprasad st P. Vasu dial Parachuri Bros. co-lyr Bhuvana Chandra c Ajayan Vincent
co-lyr/m M.M. Keeravani
lp Chiranjeevi, Nagma, Vani Vishwanath, Rao Gopala Rao, Satyanarayana, Sharat Saxena, Aahuti Prasad, P.L. Narayana, Chalapathi Rao, Brahmanandam, Ramaprabha, Disco Shanti

Unemployed dock worker Raju (Chiranjeevi) saves the life of industrialist Bapineedu (Gopala Rao) who, in return, offers him a job. Raju's efforts to organise the workers lead to a clash with Bapineedu's daughter Uma Devi (Nagma), who runs the company. Raju becomes the president of the workers' union, defeating Sarangapani (Prasad) who, it turns out, is actually in league with Uma Devi's chief rival Ranganayakulu (Satyanarayana). Uma Devi marries Raju shortly after he has saved her life following the rivals' plan to have her murdered, but this, it is later revealed, is only in order to 'tame' the otherwise invincible union worker. Raju moves into Uma Devi's mansion where he continues his union work, leading a strike when Bhawani (Vishwanath), the woman who originally loved him, is dismissed by Uma Devi. In the end, when the true villains Ranganayakulu and his son (Saxena) try to destroy Uma Rani by burning the factory, Raju saves his wife again and 'forgives' her. Taming the wild and arrogant (i.e. independent) woman is a major preoccupation of several Chiranjeevi films, his adolescent machismo being boosted as much by thrashing dozens of villains as by putting women in their place (cf. Donga Mogudu, 1987; Rickshavudu and Alluda Majaaka, both 1995). One of Chiranjeevi's most successful film, its release coincided with the brutal repression of a Naxalite-led workers' movements, in this instance making reference to the Patancheru industrial area in Hyderabad. Several notorious 'encounters' between the police and political activists in this period of extreme State repression when Janardhana Reddy was the State Chief Minister, also led to a genre of worker-centered films featuring and made by R. Narayanmurthy (eg. Erra Sainyam, 1994). The film was a remake of the Rajnikant film Mannan (1991).

Hal adhar

aka The Yeoman
 1992 ? col Assamese
d Sanjib Hazarika pc Prahar Chitram p Geeti Barua, Dwijen Hazarika s Apurba Sharma
c Ajan Barua m Sher Choudhury lp Nayan, Hiranya Deka, Indra Bania, Atul Pachani

The honest farmer Boloram (Nayan) has his newly made plough stolen by the local moneylender (Bania). Boloram had promised it to someone else and his honour is at stake. Told mainly as a reformist fable, attaching the plough with symbolic overtones, the film inaugurates Hazarika's now well known style of realist melodrama (cf. Meemanxa, 1994).

Halli Mestru

1992 162' col Kannada
d Mohan-Manju pc Eswari Prod. p M. Veeraswamy s K. Bhagyaraj
dial/lyr/m Hamsalekha lp Ravichandran, Bindiya, Balkrishna, Silk Smitha, Thoogudeepa Srinivas

Pop star Ravichandran plays a village school-teacher in this Kannada adaptation of the Tamil 'drumstick' comedy genre (sex comedies named after a vegetable widely believed to be an aphrodisiac). The sexy village girl Parimala (Bindiya) is attracted to the widowed teacher. In the end, after a bizarre chain of events, Parimala is saved in the nick of time from undergoing a tubectomy. Silk Smitha's adult education classes in the film provide most of the sex comedy.

Hun Hunshi Hunshilal

aka Love in the Time of Malaria
 1992 140' (133') col Gujarati
d Sanjiv Shah pc Karanar Prod. s/lyr Paresh Naik c Navroze Contractor m Rajat Dholakia lp Dilip Joshi, Renuka Shahane, Manoj Joshi, Mohan Gokhale, Arvind Vaidya

Gujarati musical allegory about politics. The middle-class scientist Hunshilal (Joshi), mainly through the actions of his scientist-girlfriend Parveen (Shahane), is pitted against a despotic politician, King Bhadrabhoop II of Khojpur (Gokhale) whose subjects are bitten by a mysterious breed of mosquitoes and become restless. Hunshilal is employed by the Queen's Laboratory to eradicate the mosquitoes but he defects, with Parveen, to the side of the bugs. He is caught and brainwashed but Parveen escapes the kingdom and sets out for the land of the mosquitoes beyond the Black Hills. The rulers are portrayed as indolent oppressors who spend their time playing with toy guns and toy trains. The film's somewhat forced effort to assimilate a postmodernist aesthetic is mainly evidenced in an unprecedentedly large number of songs cut into an already overcrowded soundtrack.

Jathi Mal i

1992 159' col Tamil
d/co-sc K. Balachander p Kavithalaya co-sc Ananthu c Raghunatha Reddy lyr Vairamuthu m Maragatha Mani lp Mukesh, Kushboo, Yuvarani, Vichitra, K.S. Gajalakshmi, Vineeth, Nasser, Madan Bob, Delhi Ganesh, Charlie

A confused film abstractly bemoaning communal violence but actually more concerned with the victims of police violence. After losing her parents in communal riots, Sriranjani (Kushboo) seeks refuge in Ooty where she meets Kesavan (Mukesh), who is recovering from being jilted. Kesavan is involved in a car crash and Sriranjani is abducted by a stalker, Reddy (Nasser), a fan of her music. Kesavan eventually manages to get to Hyderabad, searching for Sriranjani, while a pair of young lovers they befriended obtains parental permission to stay together, allowing them to join in the search for Sriranjani amidst the communal riots besetting the city. Sriranjani and Kesavan, eventually united, witness how the police, mistaking the young lovers for rioters, brutally murder them, allowing the film to end badly while detracting attention from the issues involved in communal violence. The title refers to the jasmine flower, but its design in the film and on posters scored off the word 'jathi' (caste).

Jo Jeeta Wohi Sikandar

1992 174' col/scope Hindi
d/s Mansoor Khan pc Nasir Hussain Films p/dial Nasir Hussain lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri
c Najeeb Khan m Jatin-Lalit lp Aamir Khan, Ayesha Julka, Deepak Tijori, Pooja Bedi, Kulbhushan Kharbanda

Successful teen musical follow-up by the makers of Qayamat Se Qayamat Tak (1988). Set in Dehradun in the colonial public schools, the story features the traditional sports rivalry between the rich Rajput College and the more middle-class Modern School. The hero Sanju (Khan) leads a gang of no-hopers while his sincere elder brother Ratan tries to win the annual cycling race, trained by his father Ramlal (Kharbanda) who also runs the local tea shop and student hang-out. The rivalry spills over into other areas when the rich and sexy new girl in town (Bedi) is wooed by both hero and villain (Tijori), the dance and sports star of the rival Rajput College. Sanju pretends to be rich, but is eventually ditched by the girl when the truth comes out, after which he accepts his childhood sweetheart Anjali (Julka) and wins the cycle race. The film loosely adapts the Archie comics idiom, still popular among Indian teenagers, and that of Randal Kleiser's Grease (1978), furthering Aamir Khan's familiar 'boy next door' image.

Kamal abai

1992 46' col Marathi/Hindi
d/p Reena Mohan c Ranjan Palit, K.U. Mohanan

Documentary about the Marathi theatre and screen actress Kamalabai Gokhale who also played the lead in Phalke's Mohini Bhasmasur (1914). Based on interviews with the octogenarian in her Pune flat and with several clips from Phalke films, Mohan captures some revealing moments with complex cinematic reverberations: e.g. Kamalabai informally re-enacts roles she played in the 20s and, at the end of the film, she suddenly realises that the camera has been filming her all that time. Made over a three-year period, the film chronicles changing seasons and times of day with a finely tuned soundtrack and innovative camerawork.

Kamal athal am

1992 154' col Malayalam
d/Sibi Malayil pc Pranavam Arts
s A.K. Lohitadas lyr Kaithapram
c Anandakuttan m Ravindran
lp Mohanlal, Monisha, Parvathi, Vineeth, Nedumudi Venu

Nandagopal (Mohanlal) is a respected dance teacher at the Kerala Kala Mandiram (alluding to the famed Kalamandalam repertory which performs Kerala's temple arts). However, his wife (Parvathi) commits suicide, causing the hero to turn into an alcoholic and compulsive rule-breaker. He is suspected of having killed his wife and is suspended from his job for drunken misbehaviour. The new secretary of the institute (Venu) wants him to be sacked, but his former reputation gives him a reprieve. He trains the talented student Malavika (Monisha) to perform in his ambitious composition of the Sita Kalyanam, but her jealous young lover (Vineeth) poisons him. The predictable ending sees Nandagopal reuniting with his wife in death. The film continues the well-known Lohitadas-Malayil team's neo-traditional musicals for Mohanlal's production outfit, but lacks the taut storylines of its predecessors (His Highness Abdullah, 1990; Bharatham, 1991). It also continues Mohanlal's endeavours to display the full range of his talents as he performs Bharata Natyam dance.

Khuda Gawah

1992 193' col/scope Hindi
d Mukul S. Anand pc Glamour Films s/co-dial Santosh Saroj co-dial Rajkumar Bedi
lyr Anand Bakshi c W.B. Rao m Laxmikant-Pyarelal
lp Amitabh Bachchan, Sridevi, Danny Denzongpa, Nagarjuna, Vikram Gokhale, Shilpa Shirodkar, Kiran Kumar

Bachchan and the successful team that had made Hum (1991) went on to make this film which starts in an unspecified period in tribal Afghanistan. The hero Badshah Khan (Bachchan) goes to India to avenge the killing of heroine Benazir's (Sridevi) father. He does so, but in the process becomes involved in an honour pact with a Rajput police officer (Gokhale), which eventually forces Badshah to take responsibility for the cop's death when the latter is murdered by a drug-smuggling bandit (Kumar). Later, when an old Badshah is released from jail, his daughter, whom he has never seen, has grown into a second Benazir (Sridevi again), forcing Badshah to come to terms with his past. He overwhelms the narcotics bandit with the help of two young police officers (Nagarjuna and Shirodkar) who are more or less his wards by virtue of the old honour pact. Badshah's action also reconciles him with his by-now nearly demented wife Benazir. The complicated plot is told via an extravagant camera style including numerous shots, often from a helicopter, of deserts and mountain vistas. The film is dedicated to Manmohan Desai.

Killer

1992 160' col Telugu
d/s Fazil pc Jagapathi Art Pics. p V.B. Rajendra Prasad dial Jandhyala lyr Veturi Sundara Raramurthy c Anandakuttan m Ilaiyaraaja lp Nagarjuna, Nagma, Annapurna, Shyamali, Sharada

The hero (Nagarjuna), orphaned when his mother is killed by local thugs, is raised by a nurse (Annapurna), but grows up into a loner and professional hitman with sophisticated weaponry, reflecting the character's origins in the TV serial Streethawk (1985-6). Hired to assassinate a rich little heiress (Shyamali), he discovers that he is related to the heiress and to her guardian (Sharada) as well as to his evil client who is after their property. He eliminates the villains and also restores the fractured family. The film's music proved popular, notably the hit Priya Priyatama Ragalu. Although appreciated for its technical qualities, the film was only moderately successful. Nagma, as the hero's girlfriend, has a purely decorative role.

Maya Memsaab

aka The Enchanting Illusion
 1992 127' col Hindi
d/co-sc Ketan Mehta pc NFDC, Channel Four, Film Four International (UK), Video Cinema 13 Prod (France) st Flaubert's Madame Bovary
co-sc Sitanshu Yashahchandra dial Hriday Lani, Gulan Kripalani lyr Gulzar c Anup Jotwani
m Hridaynath Mangeshkar
lp Deepa Sahi, Farouque Sheikh, Shah Rukh Khan, Raj Babbar, Shreeram Lagoo, Sudha Shivpuri, Paresh Rawal, Raghuvir Yadav, Om Puri, Satyadev Dubey

Maya (Sahi), the beautiful but extravagant wife of a country doctor (Sheikh), craves a glamorous life and has a series of love affairs (Khan, Babbar) while becoming indebted to Lalaji (Rawal). The film ends tragically when her house is auctioned and she appears to be engulfed by her fantasy life. The story is narrated in flashback as a reconstruction of the life of Maya (also meaning 'illusion'). An Indo-European co-production, the film is formally and thematically ambitious, adapting Flaubert while revisiting a range of Indian film and television genres which are shown to shape Maya's fantasies.

Mutha Mestry

1992 163' col Telugu
d A. Kodandarami Reddy pc Kamakshi Devi Kamal Combines p K.C. Shekhar Babu,

D. Sivaprasad Reddy st Bhupati Raja sc/dial Parachuri Bros. c S. Gopal Reddy
m Raj-Koti
lp Chiranjeevi, Meena, Roja, Sharat Saxena, Srihari, Brahmanandam, Allu Ramalingaiah,
J.V.V. Somayajulu, Gummadi Venkateshwara
Rao, Sunita

A vegetable market worker with the unlikely name of Subhash Chandra Bose (Chiranjeevi) protects its denizens when the city Mayor and other politicians support the villain Atma Ram (Saxena) in his effort to convert the marketplace into real estate. Bose's honesty and efficiency leads the good Chief Minister (Rao) to offer him a State Assembly seat on behalf of the ruling party. A reluctant politician, forced to embark on his new career by his lover Buchamma (Meena), Bose initiates reforms in favour of the landless poor and even leads a commando-type raid on Atma Ram's men. When his sister commits suicide after being accused of prostitution by the villain, the hero resigns his ministerial post and launches a vigilante attack that ends with the extermination of the villains. Having generally cleansed society, he returns to his earlier profession, spurning the offer to become the political leader of the state's ruling party. Although only moderately successful by Chiranjeevi's standards, the film fuelled intense speculation about the star's potential entry into Andhra politics. Aspects of his performance as the minister evoke the popular Bihar Chief Minister Laloo Prasad Yadav.

⊗ Pachani Samsaram

1992 157' col Telugu
d/sc Tammareddy Bharatwaja pc Powmax Films p G. Haribabu st/dial Aakella lyr Bhuvana Chandra, Mallemala c Sarath m Vidyasagar lp Krishna, Aamani, Nirosha, Raj Kumar, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Babu Mohan, Sudhakar, Rama
Raju, Chandrakant

Successful melodrama re-establishing erstwhile superstar Krishna. He plays the sacrificing hero who educates his step-brothers, but is abandoned by them. He then single-handedly cultivates a piece of arid land on the outskirts of a village while his step-brothers recognise their mistake and reunite. Srinivasa Rao played a typical villain, who had killed their father and destroyed the family.

⊗ Padma Nadir Majhi

aka Boatman of the River Padma
1992 126' col Bengali
d/c/s/co-m Gautam Ghose pc West Bengal Film Development Corp. st Manik Bandyopadhyay's novel co-m Alauddin Ali lp Asaad, Champa, Roopa Ganguly, Utpal Dutt, Robi Ghosh, Abdul Khader, Hasan Imam, Sunil Mukherjee

Set in pre-Partition Bengal in 1947, Ghosh used Bandyopadhyay's classic novel to tell the story of a man's struggle against the oppressive forces of nature, society and of his own desires.

The spectacularly beautiful banks of the Padma, functioning as the metaphor for 'the river of life', form the backdrop. The main character in the fishing village is the boatman Kuber (Asaad), and the episodic film chronicles his tension-ridden encounters with the wealthy Muslim trader Hussain (Dutt) who wants to transform an island in the Padma delta into a haven free from communal strife. The women in the film are mainly metaphors for the eternally mysterious forces of nature.

⊗ Papayude Sontham Appoose

1992 146' col Malayalam
d/s Fazil pc Khais Prod. lyr Bichu Thirumala c Anandakuttan m Ilaiyaraja lp Mammootty, Shobhana, Master Badusha, Suresh Gopi, Zeenat Dadhi

When Appu's (Badusha) mother (Shobhana) dies, his rich businessman father Balu (Mammootty) drowns his grief in drink. During a vacation, a temporary governess brings Appu some solace until he sustains a serious head injury. It appears that only the dead mother can cure the boy's medical condition by patting him on the head. This rekindles the relationship between father and son. The enjoyable first half of the movie, with its lively and mischievous scenes and several lullabies, is aimed at children.

⊗ Peddar ikam

1992 134' col/scope Telugu
d/p/sc A.M. Rathnam pc Surya Chitra st Siddique-Lal dial Parachuri Bros. lyr Bhuvana Chandra, Vaddepalli Krishna
c S. Gopala Reddy m Raj-Koti lp Jagapathi Babu, Sukanya, N.N. Pillai, P. Bhanumathi, Vijaya Kumar, Sudhakar, Rami
Reddy, Chandramohan, Balaiah, Kavitha

Story of two feuding families from the politically powerful kamma caste. One is led by the patriarch Parvataneni Parasu Ramayya (Pillai), the other by the voluble Adusumilli Basavapunnamma (Bhanumathi). The four sons of the former (Kumar, Chandramohan, Reddy and Babu) are deeply loyal to their father, but trouble starts when the youngest son (Babu) falls for Basavapunnamma's granddaughter (Sukanya). The young couple, after a long narrative, eventually get the two families to reunite. A generally loud film, the commercial hit was known mainly for Raj-Koti's music and for the performances of the two egotistic family heads.

⊗ Phool Aur Kaante

1992 173' col/scope Hindi
d Kuku Kohli p Dinesh Patel pc Sonu Films
s Iqbal Durrani lyr Sameer, Rani Malik c Thomas A. Xavier m Nadeem-Shravan lp Amrith Puri, Ajay Devgun, Jagdeep, Madhu Raghunath, Arif Khan, Aruna Irani, Satyen
Kappu, Raza Murad

The hit film that introduced Devgun as a new star for the 90s. The plot is a drama about machismo in which the orphaned Ajay (Devgun) battles the drug-peddling son of his college trustee. When violence breaks out, he is mysteriously saved by a mafia don (Puri) who, it turns out, is his unacknowledged father. Ajay marries and has a son who is kidnapped, first by the gangster-father and then again by the don's enemies. Ajay is reconciled with his father and together they eventually confront the real villains of the story. Much of the film's violence is choreographed more effectively than is usual in Hindi films (cf. the locker-room fight in the men's hostel and the hero's Mad Max-type motor-cycle stunts). The virtual absence of a romantic sub-plot is typical of the aggressive crime thriller, using extensive political references, that came to dominate 90s Hindi cinema (cf. Prahaar, 1991). The several musical hits confirmed the music directors Nadeem-Shravan as major film composers of the early 90s.

⊗ Ram Ke Naam

aka In the Name of God
1992 90' col Hindi
d/p/c Anand Patwardhan

The 2nd part of Patwardhan's investigation of communalism in contemporary India (Una Mitterandi Yaad Pyari, 1989). The film, shot on 16mm, addresses the rise of a fanatic Hindu right wing and its exploitation of the Ayodhya temple in its bid for power. The Ramayana suggests Ayodhya was the God Ram's birthplace. In 1528, one of the Mughal Emperor Babar's noblemen built the Babri Masjid mosque there. In the late 19th C., both Hindus and Muslims began claiming the site as a place of worship. Since 1984, the Vishwa Hindu Parishad, a militant Hindu organisation allied with the BJP, rekindled and converted the old dispute into a nationwide political programme, affirming that the very spot where the mosque was built marks Ram's birthplace. They called for the mosque to be demolished and for a Hindu temple to be erected instead. In 1990, the BJP's leader, L.K. Advani, went on a 'Rath Yatra', a chariot procession from Somnath to Ayodhya, inciting violent communal riots en route. Advani's arrest led to the downfall of V.P. Singh's minority Janata Dal government and, later that year, to the violent Kar Seva (reconstruction) programme that saw, amid several killings, VHP men take over the mosque. Since then the Hindu fanatics have used the issue as a bargaining ploy against the ruling Congress regime. Patwardhan follows some of the infamous Rath Yatra and documents the Kar Seva itself, exposing the link between the local police and the militant mobs. Interviewing his subjects while operating the camera, Patwardhan has most of his speakers address the camera directly, revealing, often indirectly, their actual motivations. Patwardhan also includes the confession of the man who was employed to aggravate communal strife by placing idols in the temple and the remarkable statements of the priest in charge of the temple (who was later assassinated for his anti-communalist position).

☞ Roja

1992 137' (114') col/scope Tamil d/sc Mani Rathnam pc Kavithalaya Prod.
p K. Balachander st/dial Sujata lyr Vairamuthu c Santosh Sivan
m A.R. Rehman
lp Aravind Swamy, Madhubala, Pankaj Kapoor, Janakaraj, Nasser

Unusually, Mani Rathnam's Tamil hit also became a success in its Hindi dubbed version. A politically controversial film set mainly in Kashmir, it recalls the real-life incident of a Kashmiri terrorist kidnapping of an Indian Oil official in 1993. In a spectacular opening the Indian army captures the dreaded Kashmiri terrorist Wasim Khan. In return, militants abduct the film's hero, the Tamilian cryptologist Rishi Kumar (Swamy). Roja (Madhubala) is Rishi Kumar's Tamil-speaking wife, left alone and unable to communicate in a land where nobody speaks her language. Eventually, just as she manages to convince a minister to agree to an exchange of prisoners, Rishi Kumar is released while the terrorist leader Liaqat (Kapoor) is 'humanised'. The lead couple's marriage in the sylvan surroundings of the cryptologist's native Tamilian village, evokes the rhetoric of Tamil nationalism, a contentious issue in the context of Rajiv Gandhi's assassination by Sri Lankan Tamils and the DMK's avowed past separatism. Rathnam then displaces this nationalism by inflating it to the dimensions of Indian and, more specifically, uncritically Hindu chauvinism contrasted with the presentation of the Kashmiris as religion obsessed, bellicose and profoundly 'unreasonable'. In one famous scene, the tied-up hero, offended by the Kashmiris' burning of the Indian flag, crashes through a window and tries to extinguish the flames with his body to the tune of a Subramanya Bharati lyric. In Hyderabad, the film's Telugu version sparked an outbreak of anti-Muslim slogans. Billed as a 'patriotic love story', India's election commissioner T.N. Seshan took the most unusual step of officially endorsing the film. The music was also a hit, esp. the rap number Rukmini sung in Hindi version by Baba Sehgal. Tejaswini Niranjana analysed the film's political address in her essay Integrating Whose Nation? (1994), which led to a major debate on the film in the Economic & Political Weekly.

☞ Roop Ki Rani Choron Ka Raja

1992 190' col/scope Hindi
d Satish Kaushik pc Narasimha Enterprises p Boney Kapoor s/lyr Javed Akhtar c Baba Azmi m Laxmikant Pyarelal lp Anil Kapoor, Sridevi, Anupam Kher, Jackie Shroff, Paresh Rawal, Johnny Lever, Bindu, Deepak Qazir, Ajit Vachhani, Dalip Tahil, Akash Khurana, Siddharth

Romeo (Kapoor), the handsome safecracker, encounters the sexy Seema (Sridevi), a rival in his profession. The two are hired by the criminal Chukran (Kher) to steal some diamonds. In return, Chukran promises to reveal the name of the man who killed Seema's father. Chukran himself had killed both Seema's and Romeo's fathers, and both had grown up together at an orphanage and were childhood sweethearts. Chukran, the criminal mastermind, had also killed his own good twin brother Manmohan (Kher again), which allows him to pose as a millionaire philanthropist. Jackie Shroff plays the honest cop, pursuing both Romeo and Chukran, who is revealed to be Romeo's long-lost brother. The film's mixture of elements from Hitchcock's To Catch a Thief (1955) with the penny-dreadful world of Spielberg includes the famous scene of Romeo and Seema hanging over a cauldron of acid before they are rescued by Romeo's pet pigeon Django. Made as a spectacular and touted as the most expensive Indian film ever, it was a financial disaster, a feat later trumped by Ghai's even more expensive Trimurti (1995). Most of the money was spent on spectacular sets and elaborate, sometimes innovative, song picturisations.

☞ Rudaal i

The Mourner
 1992 128' col Hindi
d/s Kalpana Lajmi pc NFDC/Doordarshan st Mahashweta Devi sc/dial/lyr Gulzar
c Santosh Sivan, Dharam Gulati m Bhupen Hazarika lp Dimple Kapadia, Raakhee, Raj Babbar, Raghuvir Yadav, Sushmita Mukherjee, Manohar Singh, Rajesh Singh, Meeta Vasisth, Usha Bannerjee, Mehnaz, Pramod Bala, Amjad Khan

Set in Rajasthan, the film tells in flashback the story of the slave woman Sanichari (Dimple). She was abandoned by her drunken husband (Ganju) and her son Budhwa (Yadav) left when she rejected his shrewish prostitute wife (Mukherjee). The Pandit (M. Singh) harasses her, but she finds sympathy from the famous professional mourner or rudaali, Bhikni (Raakhee), summoned by the local potentate in anticipation of his death. Bhikni, after she dies unexpectedly, turns out to have been Sanichari's long-lost mother. Sanichari, hardened by sorrow and no longer able to cry, becomes the mistress of Laxman Singh (Babbar). Eventually, mourning the death of Bhikni, she breaks down and becomes a rudaali like her mother.

☞ Seetharathnamgari Abbayi

1992 158' col Telugu
d/sc E.V.V. Satyanarayana pc Shri Venkateshwara Art Films st Shri Venkateshwara Art Films Unit dial L.B. Sriram lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Seetharama Sastry, Bhuvana Chandra c V. Srinivasa Reddy m Raj-Koti lp Vanisree, Vinod Kumar, Roja, Satyanarayana, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Brahmanandam, Babu Mohan

The foster-son (Kumar) of Setharathnamma, a domineering matriarch (Vanisree), falls for a girl (Roja) from a family that the matriarch considers an enemy. However, the couple get married, while the old woman dies a defeated and isolated person: a new twist to an otherwise familiar role for Vanisree in 90s Telugu film (cf. Attaku Yamudu Ammayiki Mogudu, 1989; Bobbili Raja, 1990).

☞ Shet Patharer Thal a

1992 157' col Bengali
d/sc Prabhat Roy pc Gope Movies p Shankar and Geeta Gope st Bani Basu c Girish Padidhar m R.D. Burman lp Aparna Sen, Sabhyasachi Chakraborty, Indrani Haldar, Rituparna, Bhaskar Bannerjee, Dipankar Dey, Dilip, Haradhan, Meenakshi, Lili Chakraborty, Monu, R.D. Burman

A successful melodrama about the dutiful wife and mother Bandara who becomes a widow (Sen). The subsequent conflict between her and her in-laws stems from her son's refusal to see his mother as a widow whereas the family insists on her adhering to all the traditional, oppressive trappings of widowhood. She has to leave the family home and take a job. After a while, she forms a new relationship with an artist (Dey), but the by-now adult son cannot accept his mother as an autonomous, sexual being either, encouraged in his reactionary attitudes by his girlfriend (Haldar) and her villainous mother. The film resolves the problems, not by focussing on the issue of a woman's right to her own identity, but by emphasising and glorifying motherhood.

☞ Sundara Kanda

1992 147' col Telugu
d K. Raghavendra Rao pc Saudamini Creations p K.V.V. Satyanarayana st K. Bhagyaraj dial Parachuri Bros. lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c Ravindra Babu m M.M. Keeravani lp Venkatesh, Aparna, Meena, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Maruthirao, Brahmanandam

The student (Aparna) falls for the university lecturer (Venkatesh) after students play a prank and forge a love letter seemingly written to her by the man. This leads to a brief triangle, made more mawkish by the fact that the lecturer's wife (Meena) is an orphan and the student terminally ill. Keeravani's music was successful.

☞ Suraj Ka Satwan Ghoda

aka The Seventh Horse of the Sun
 1992 130' col Hindi
d Shyam Benegal pc NFDC s Shama Zaidi from Dharamvir Bharati's novel c Piyush Shah m Vanraj Bhatia
lp Amrith Puri, Neena Gupta, K.K. Raina, Pallavi Joshi, Raghuvir Yadav

In Allahabad in UP, every evening, the bachelor Manek Mulla (Puri) tells stories to a group of friends gathering at his house. Over two evenings, he tells three stories: apparently about his own boyhood, adolescence and adulthood. Each centres on a relationship with a woman and they rehearse the notions of romance, love and separation. After the stories, the friends discuss them. This bitter-sweet comedy, shot by one of India's most outstanding cinematographers, about a man's smug but immature attitudes towards women also raises questions about the distinctions between memory, reality and fantasy.

Neena Gupta and K. K. Raina in Suraj Ka Satwan Ghoda

in expensive feuds with their neighbours. The star explained that this environment was part of his childhood experience. He plays Shaktivelu, the modern son of Peria-thevar (Ganesan), who returns to his ancestral home to introduce his girlfriend (Gauthami) to his family. He becomes involved in the bloody feuds between different members of the clan led by Maya-thevar (Nasser), and when his father dies he assumes the godfather's mantle. The rival family is eventually annihilated in a gory ending. Kamalahasan's performance, especially in the second half, pays tribute to the patriarchal figure of Ganesan, the focus of a neo-traditionalist discourse valorising fundamentalism along with the star's screen image.

Tara

1992 ? col Oriya
d/co-sc Bijoya (Dolly) Jena pc NFDC/Doordarshan st/co-sc Bimal Dutt c Neelabh Kaul m Bhubhaneshwar Mishra, Dhyanesh Khan
lp Bijoya Jena, Sunil Chourasia, Anit Das, Ashru Mohanty

Melodrama of a female protagonist mapped onto a story about tantric mysticism. Known mainly for sparse dialogue, especially for an extended wordless single-take sequence on lovemaking: the absence of words was sometimes seen as related to the fact that both the NFDC and the Censor Board require dialogue sheets to 'assess' the work.

Thevar Magan

1992 168' col/scope Tamil
d B.G. Bharathan pc Raajkamal Films p/s Kamalahasan lyr Vali c P.C. Sriram
m Ilaiyaraja
lp Kamalahasan, Sivaji Ganesan, Gauthami, Revathi, Nasser, K. Radhakrishnan,
 S.N. Lakshmi, Prasanthi

The Tamil megastar Kamalahasan produced and wrote this Godfather-type hit described by the star as 'a Sicilian drama', set in the feudal Madurai district controlled by big landlords who employ their own gangs and often indulge

Tiranga

aka Tirangaa
 1992 168' col/scope Hindi
d/p Mehul Kumar pc M.K. Pics s K.K. Singh lyr Santosh Anand c Russi Bilimoria
m Laxmikant Pyarelal
lp Raaj Kumar, Nana Patekar, Varsha Usgaonkar, Harish, Mamta Kulkarni, Suresh Oberoi, Sonika Gill, Manohar Singh, Deepak Shirke, Rakesh Bedi, Alok Nath

Of the many 'nationalist' films made since the late 1980s (cf. Roja, 1992; 1942: A Love Story and Sainyam, both 1994) this commercial success is arguably the most bizarre. In order to overthrow the dreaded anti-national terrorist leader Pralaynath Gendalswamy (Shirke), the government of India hires Brigadier Suryadev Singh (Raaj Kumar), providing him with a secret commando hideout, secret access to the Prime Minister (Nath) and legal carte blanche which includes a police massacre of innocent people simply in order to enable Singh to become a convict, a move apparently necessary for his plans. Singh in turn hires the renegade cop Shivajirao Wagle (Patekar) and, after various skirmishes with the bad guys, the two men invade the villain's hideout and scuttle his plan to destabilise the nation with rocket attacks on Independence day. The chillingly fascist arguments deployed in other Patekar-Mehul Kumar collaborations (cf. Krantiveer, 1994) are here partially undone by the surreal comic strip quality of the film, incarnated in Raaj Kumar's flashy dress and uniquely rhetorical dialogue style, but extended into the plot by a plethora of smaller characters and by the filmmaker's fascination with lethal gadgets with flashing lights (as in campy sci-fi effects). The plot extends into other areas as the villain's equally bad son Rasiknath impregnates Radha, daughter of the evil Central Minister Jeevanlal Tandel (Singh), who in turn accuses Sanjiv, son of the fearless cop Rudrapratap Chouhan (Oberoi), of having raped her, thus providing extra motivation for the good guys, as if the filmmakers obscurely realised that their brand of nationalism was not by itself up to the task. At least some of the comic strip effects appear to have been intentional, such as the character of Khabrilal (Bedi), a police informer who speaks like a Doordarshan news reader and whose entry is always accompanied by the signature tune of Doordarshan's news programme.

Vietnam Colony

1992 154' col/scope Malayalam
d/s Siddique-Lal pc President Movies p Appachan-Joy lyr Bichu Thirumala c Venu
m S. Balakrishnan lp Mohanlal, Innocent, Kanaka, KPAC Lalitha, Nedumudi Venu, Philomina, Kaviyoor
 Ponnamma

In this unlikely subject for a comedy, Krishnamurthy (Mohanlal), a poor but brainy Brahmin, is sent with an assistant (Innocent) to work as a site officer for the Calcutta Construction Company in a particularly grim place known as Vietnam Colony. This place, set in Kerala, is under the control of gangs and slumlords who protect a small bunch of illegal squatters on the company's land. The task of the two employees is to persuade the squatters to vacate the land so that the company can build on it. However, Krishnamurthy switches sides and helps the poor people assert their rights in the face of both the company and the gangs. The use of innovative dialogue (a Siddique-Lal trademark) and bizarre situations, the displacement of stereotypes (eg. the Muslim gangster and the dispossessed Muslim Seth) and the performances of Mohanlal, Innocent and Kanaka helped the film to achieve its popularity.

Aankhen

1993 177' col/scope Hindi
d David Dhawan pc Chiragdeep International p Pahlaj Nihalani s Anees Bazmee lyr Indivar
c Siba Mishra m Bappi Lahiri lp Govinda, Chunkey Pandey, Raj Babbar, Shilpa Shirodkar, Rageshwari, Ritu Shivpuri, Kadar Khan, Sadashiv Amrapurkar, Bindu, Shakti Kapoor, Gulshan Grover, Dina Pathak

Munnu and Bunu (Govinda, Pandey) form a slapstick comedy duo as the wayward sons of the jeweller Hasmukh (Khan). They become entangled in a plot to create via plastic surgery a double for the Chief Minister (Babbar in a dual role) in order to arrange the release of the criminal Natwar Shyam (Grover). The first half of the film consists solely of the duo's antics as they fall for Priya and Ritu (Rageshwari, Shivpuri). In the second half, Munnu is abducted by the criminals and loses his memory, whereupon the film produces two more character doubles, Hasmukh's long-lost twin (Khan again) and his son Gaurishankar (Govinda again). Gaurishankar is wrongly kidnapped along with his father and grandmother (Pathak), and eventually the two brothers, aided by a wayward policeman, Pyare (Amrapurkar), get the criminals. The film continued the enormous 90s success of lowbrow, rapidly cut action musicals with strident soundtracks featuring Govinda. However, the film's main feature is that it seems to be in the grip of a compulsion to repeat, obsessively doubling its characters.

Akshadhoodu

1993 145' col Malayalam
d Sibi Malayil pc Anupama Cinema s Dennis Joseph lyr O.N.V. Kurup c Anandakuttan m Ouseppachan lp Madhavi, Murali, Nedumudi Venu, Jose Prakash

Bleak but commercially successful melodrama about the breakdown of a poor Christian family. Annie's (Madhavi) husband (Murali) is killed and she has leukaemia. Assisted by a concerned priest, Father Vattappara (Venu), she tries to get her four children adopted into different homes before she dies. The relentlessly manipulative story is interesting in its depiction of the Church and its role in the life of Kerala's large Christian community. The film was also made in Telugu (Mathru Devo Bhava, 1993).

Allari Priyudu

1993 141' col Telugu
d K. Raghavendra Rao pc R.K. Film Associates p K. Krishna Rao s Satyanand co-lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Bhuvana Chandra, Vennelakanti c A. Vincent, Ajayan Vincent co-lyr/m M.M. Keeravani lp Rajasekhar, Madhubala, Ramya Krishna

Love triangle about an infantile romantic artist. The poet (Madhubala) writes lyrics which are set to music by a well-known singer (Rajasekhar) who falls in love with the poet's sister (Ramya), believing her to be the author of the poetry.

Antareen

1993 91' col Bengali
d/sc Mrinal Sen p NFDC, Doordarshan st Sadat Hasan Manto c/m Shashi Anand lp Anjan Dutt, Dimple Kapadia, Deepti Roy, Kajal Gupta, Amal Mukherjee, Satya Bandyopadhyay

A warmly lit, vividly coloured love story about a young writer in search of inspiration in an old country mansion. He strikes up a telephonic relationship with an anonymous woman caller, isolated in her lavish urban flat. The interaction provides the writer with materials for a new fiction. The viewer, however, is shown something of the woman's life: she is the mistress of a wealthy old man (who remains absent from the film) and thus supports her lower middle-class family. The ending deploys a device familiar from Bengali short stories as the two protagonists meet each other in a train compartment where the melody of his voice allows her a moment of recognition. Sen weaves allusions to Tagore's Kshudita Pashan into the narrative, but the film seems to hinge on an exploration of what is shown or voiced and what is unspoken or absent.

Baazigar

1993 185' col/scope Hindi
d Abbas-Mastan pc Venus Records/United Seven s Robin Bhatt, Akash Khurana, Javed Siddiqui lyr Nawab Arzoo, Gauhar Kanpuri, Rani Malik, Zameer Kazmi, Zafar Gorakhpuri, Dev Kohli c Thomas A. Xavier m Annu Malik, Shyam Surender lp Shah Rukh Khan, Kajol, Siddharth, Shilpa Shetty, Dalip Tahil, Johnny Lever, Raakhee, Anant Mahadevan

Ajay Sharma (Khan) becomes a 'baazigar', a gambler, in order to win over Priya (Kajol) and eventually to bring about the ruin of Priya's father, Madan Chopra (Tahil). Previously, Chopra had similarly ruined Ajay's father Vishwanath Sharma (Mahadevan) by appropriating Sharma's industries and forcing Ajay's family onto the streets. Ajay's revenge consists of seducing Priya's sister Seema (Shetty) and pushing her from a tall building. He then changes his identity and kills two more people while ingratiating himself into the Chopra household. In a violent ending Ajay dies in his mother's (Raakhee) arms after he has killed Madan Chopra. The commercial hit inaugurates Shah Rukh Khan's much-discussed playing of unusually vicious type of leading men (cf. Darr, 1993). Here, the depiction of his cold-blooded murder of Seema became especially controversial. Among the first of the several Khan-Kajol romances culminating in the smash hit Dilwale Dulhania Le Jayenge (1995), the main bulk of the film features the fresh and spontaneous performances of these still-new stars in song hits such as Bazigar o bazigar and Yeh kali kali aankhen.

Charachar

aka Shelter of the Wings
 1993 86' col Bengali
d/sc Buddhadev Dasgupta pc Gope Movies p Shankar and Geeta Gope st Prafulla Roy c Soumendu Roy m Biswadeb Dasgupta lp Rajit Kapoor, Laboni Sarkar, Sadhu Meher, Indrani Haldar, Manoj Mitra

As a result of his young son's death, Lakhinder, descending from a family of bird-catchers, develops a mania for releasing captive birds, estranging his wife in the process. He turns increasingly inwards, rejecting the cruelty of the bird market in Calcutta and eventually also releasing his wife. At the end of this lyrical movie with exquisite panoramic and tracking shots, he is 'saved' by the birds as they (in an ironic reversal of the end of Hitchcock's The Birds, 1963) enter his hut and offer him their protection.

Damini

1993 175' col/scope Hindi
d/sc Rajkumar Santoshi pc Cineyug p Karim Morani, Bunty Soorma, Aly Morani st Santanu Gupta dial Dilip Shukla lyr Sameer c Ishwar Bidri m Nadeem-Shravan, Vanraj Bhatia
lp Rishi Kapoor, Meenakshi Sheshadri, Sunny Deol, Amrish Puri, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Anjan Srivastava, Paresh Rawal, Tinnu Anand, Vijayendra Ghatge, Rohini Hattangadi

Damini (Sheshadri), the virtuous daughter of an impoverished father (Srivastava) who is worried about getting his two daughters married, achieves the impossible when the millionaire Shekhar Gupta (Kapoor) falls for her. Shekhar's family, including his mother (Hattangadi) and his mother's brother (Anand), are initially against Damini but finally accept her, until an incident disrupts the entire family. On the day of Holi, Damini witnesses her husband's younger brother and his three friends rape a maidservant. The entire family, including her husband Shekhar, conspire to hush up the scandal. When Damini refuses to keep silent, the family, aided by a scheming lawyer (Puri) and a corrupt police force, try to make her go insane. She is eventually helped by a down-and-out lawyer Govind (Deol) who defends her in court. For a remarkable essay on this extraordinary woman-centered melodrama and mild commercial success, see Madhava Prasad, 'Signs of Ideological Re-Form in Two Recent Films' (1996).

Shah Rukh Khan and Kajol in Baazigar

paralysed following some unusually violent scenes, but nursed to recovery by a Bharat Natyam dancer, Bhanu (Revathi), whose career he had ruined earlier. Her action demonstrates the redemptive powers of tradition and the hero can now do the right thing in the film's climax: in an orgy of violence at a temple festival, the restored hero is able to reassert his righteous manhood by battering his rivals into submission.

Gandharvam

1993 155' col/scope Malayalam
d/co-s Sangeet Sivan pc Sithara Combines p Suresh Balaji co-s Alex I. Kadavil lyr Kaithapram c Santosh Sivan
m S.P. Venkatesh
lp Mohanlal, Kanchana, Pratapchandran, Devan, Shantikrishna, Kaviyoor Ponnamma

Malayalam megastar Mohanlal plays Samuel Alexander, a poor but glamourized garage owner who falls for the rich and beautiful Sreedevi Menon (Kanchana). Having annoyed her with his attentions, he manages to make her realise the difference between 'gentlemen' like him and 'rogues'. They decide to live together, an act that forms the major moral pivot of the film, and she delivers their child even as he goes to jail. Eventually, in spite of her parents' opposition, the two nevertheless get married. The title refers to the phrase 'Gandharva Vivaham', which roughly means 'marriage blessed by the angels', an interesting Hindu ratification of cohabitation or 'unofficial' marriage.

Gayam

1993 140' col Telugu
d/co-st/sc Ram Gopal Varma pc S.S. Creations p Y. Surendra co-st Mani Rathnam dial Posani Krishna Murali lyr Seetharama Sastry c Rasool m Sri lp Jagapathi Babu, Revathi, Urmila Matondkar, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Sivakrishna, Charan Raj, Rami Reddy

Durga (Babu) loses his brother Mohan Krishna (Raj) in a gang massacre and vows revenge. In the process, he loses his girlfriend (Revathi) to an honest cop (Sivakrishna), who in turn is out to get Durga. The police authorities, however, have to seek the outlawed hero's help in order to get the real villain (Rao). A second love interest features Matondkar, made famous as the lead in Varma's Hindi film Rangeela (1995). An elaborately choreographed, violent hit known especially for Rao's performance as the liquor contractor villain. The film makes direct reference to the well-documented real-life gang wars in Vijaywada between the Devineni and Vangaveeti families.

Hum Hain Rahi Pyar Ke

1993 163' col/scope Hindi
d Mahesh Bhatt pc TV Films/Tahir Hussein Enterprises p Tahir Hussein co-st/co-sc/dial Robin Bhatt co-st Sujit Sen co-sc Aamir Khan lyr Sameer c Pravin Bhatt m Nadeem-Shravan, Shyam Surrender

lp Aamir Khan, Juhi Chawla, Mushtaq Khan, K.D. Chandran, Tiku Talsania, Javed Khan, Navneet Nishan, Dalip Tahil, Baby Ashrafa, Robin Bhatt, Veeru Krishna, Master Shahrokh, Kunal, Kammu

Rahul Malhotra (Khan) abandons his studies to become the guardian of his sister's three orphaned, but mischievous and undisciplined, children and to manage the family factory. The factory is in debt to the film's villain, the Sindhi businessman Bijlani (Tahil), whose daughter Maya (Nishan) loves Rahul. Unknown to Rahul, the children offer shelter to Vaidehi (Chawla), who has run away from her authoritarian and caste-conscious father Iyer (Chandran). Rahul hires her as a governess and falls in love with her. Maya's plot to exploit her father's control over Rahul's business to blackmail him into marrying her, fails when the children claim that Vaidehi is in fact their 'mother'. In the end, Bijlani's revenge, as he tries to have Rahul's house auctioned, is intercut with Rahul's effort to defeat some gangsters and deliver the factory goods that will enable him to pay off Bijlani. The low-budget 'family movie' was the unexpected hit of the year and reports circulated that Khan, who shares a script credit, had in fact directed the film which was produced by his family concern.

Indradhanura Chhrai

aka The Shadows of the Rainbows
 1993 112' col Oriya
d/co-s Sushant Misra pc Visual Link p Janapriya Debata co-s Devdas Chhotray c Jugal Debata m Vikas Das lp Robin Das, Vijaini Misra, Surya Mohanty, Muktabala Rautray, Bidyut Lata Devi

With hypnotic visual rhythms and a remarkable mise-en-scene of emotional tonalities, Mishra shows the lives of three women living in the modernising town of Bhubhaneshwar, its skyline still dominated by magnificent temple architecture. Vijaya's husband died a few days after their wedding and she does not know how a woman in her situation can cope with her tender feelings for a kind local teacher. Her friend Sonia provides a graphic example of a woman desperately torn between modernity and traditional notions of female virtue, while Aunt Nila has difficulty facing up to the ageing process. The film tells its tale by way of meditative sequence shots and framings which constantly remind viewers of the conflictual existence of the forces of life (luscious trees, plants and other signs of irrepressible life) with the dry, decaying monuments of an outdated but still suffocatingly dominant premodern society, its oppressiveness as well as its achievements graphically represented by the ever-present temple spires.

Karul ina Koogu

1993 149' col/scope Kannada
d/s D. Rajendra Babu pc Aditya Movie Makers p D.R. Umashankari, Raju lyr/m Hamsalekha c Ashok Kashyap lp Prabhakar, Umashree, Vinaya Prasad, Srinath

Darr

1993 178' col/scope Hindi
d/p Yash Chopra pc Yash-Raj Films st/sc Honey Irani dial Javed Siddiqui lyr Anand Bakshi c Manmohan Singh
m Shiv-Hari
lp Sunny Deol, Juhi Chawla, Shah Rukh Khan, Annu Kapoor, Tanvi Azmi, Raj Hans, Neena Softa, Pilo Wadia, Vikas Anand, Dalip Tahil, Anupam Kher

The valiant Naval officer Sunil (Deol) is to marry the beautiful Kiran (Chawla). The problem, contextualising most of the film, is that she is stalked by the shadowy figure of the psychotic Rahul (Khan). Complicating the problem is the fact that Rahul is the son of Sunil's superior in the Navy (Tahil). The film claims to introduce an emotion overlooked in the romance genre: fear. In the process it dwells, sometimes effectively, on numerous noir conventions including that of the murderous villain's gaze being replicated by the camera's POV, putting the viewer in the position of the murderous voyeur. The film continued Shah Rukh Khan's exploration of 'negative' roles considered taboo for leading men (cf. Baazigar, also 1993). It had one major song hit, Jadoo teri nazar.

Devasuram

1993 187' col/scope Malayalam
d I.V. Sasi pc Anugraha Cine Arts p V.B.K. Menon s Renjith lyr Girish Puthencheri c V. Jayaram m M.G. Radhakrishnan lp Mohanlal, Revathi, Innocent, Nedumudi Venu, Chitra, Napoleon

A film about a 'good' villain exemplifying and celebrating contemporary Hindu chauvinist brutality. Mangalassery Neelakandan (Mohanlal) is a drunk, a womaniser and the wealthy boss of a band of thugs available for disrupting public events. However, he is presented as essentially decent, donating money to a local temple and patronising classical music. His 'weaknesses' are not his fault but the unfortunate consequences of 'modern times' and the regrettable decaying of feudalism. Halfway through the film, he is

A Church-like Hindu order provides the spiritual context for this unusual story about the extinction of a lower-class alcoholic's family. The drunkard Mohan (Prabhakar, better known for villainous roles) is married to Sharada (Prasad), a cultured music teacher employed in a Hindu ashram, who tries to reform her husband. The villain in this allegory of a Hindu community is a Christian, Antony, who tries to rape Sharada and later kills Mohan shortly after Sharada is diagnosed as terminally ill with cancer. Sharada dies before she can find adoptive parents for her children, but the saintly head of the ashram (Srinath) does this for her. The film also has a few comic scenes, e.g. in a bar, where a series of jokes culminate in a song talking about the plight of Kannada-speaking people in Bangalore city.

☞ Khal nayak

1993 190' col/scope Hindi
d/p/s Subhash Ghai pc Mukta Arts sc Ram Kelkar dial Kamlesh Pandey lyr Anand Bakshi c Ashok Mehta m Laxmikant-Pyarelal lp Sanjay Dutt, Jackie Shroff, Madhuri Dixit, Raakhee, Anupam Kher, Ramya Krishna, Pramod Moutho, A.K. Hangal, Neena Gupta

Ghai's controversial hit presents the 'villain' Sanjay Dutt as exemplifying 'today's youth'. Dutt plays Ballu, a gangster and political criminal responsible for several assassinations, who is employed by the film's main villain, Roshi Mahanta (Moutho). When Ballu escapes from prison without divulging the name of his employer, the police inspector Ramkumar (Shroff) sends his colleague and girlfriend Ganga (Dixit) to infiltrate the gang masquerading as a dancing girl. The film capitalised on the off-screen history of Dutt who, shortly after its completion, was arrested and imprisoned for alleged involvement in the Bombay communal riots of 1993, an incident popularly seen as a 'real life' re-enactment of what remains his definitive screen role. It was also controversial for the accusations of vulgarity levelled against its megahit song Choli ke peeche, 'What's beneath the blouse', which, as a BBC report on the film put it, 'had all of India hot under the collar'. Ghai has argued that the song merely adapts a traditional Rajasthani folk lyric.

☞ Kizhakku Seemayil e

aka Kizhakku Seemai
 1993 147' col Tamil
d/sc Bharthirajaa p Kalaipuli S. Dhanu c Kannan m A.R. Rehman lp Vijayakumar, Radhika, Napoleon, Vadivelu, Pandian

Incest theme in the tradition of Bhimsingh's Pasamalar (1961). Siruvayi (Radhika) loves her brother Mayandidevan (Vijayakumar), and agrees to marry Sangilikuruppu (Napoleon) when her brother approves of the marriage. However Sangilikuruppu's sister Jayakkodi commits suicide, and her widowed husband uses this to alienate Mayandidevan from Siruvayi. A generation later, the feud between brother and sister continues when Sangilikuruppu's daughter is forbidden from marrying Mayandidevan's son Chinnamuthu. When the two young people marry anyway, Sangilikuruppu tries to kill Mayandidevan, but Siruvayi takes the blow and dies, sacrificing herself for her brother. The brother, rather than the husband, claims her dead body.

☞ Mahanadi

1993 162' col Tamil
d Santhana Bharathi p S.A. Rajkanna sc/co-dial Kamalahasan co-dial Ra. Ki. Rangarajan c M.S. Prabhu lyr Vali m Ilaiyaraaja lp Kamalahasan, Rajesh, V.M.C. Hanifa, Poornam Vishwanathan, Sukanya, Vijay, S.N. Lakshmi, Tulasi

Krishna (Kamalahasan), a widower with two children, lives with his mother-in-law (Lakshmi). Having been persuaded by a confidence trickster (Hanifa) to put all his money into a shady company that goes bankrupt, he is jailed, where his children come to visit him accompanied by their grandmother. His cellmate (Vishwanathan) receives visits from his daughter, the nurse Yamuna (Sukanya), and the latter becomes involved with Krishna's family and looks after them. Upon his release, Krishna finds that his mother-in-law has died, his son disappeared and his daughter Kaveri works in a Calcutta brothel, where Krishna and his former cellmate find and rescue her. Distraught by the destruction of his family, Krishna eventually tracks down the con man, whom he blames for all his misfortunes, and murders the man and his accomplices.

☞ Manichithratharazu

1993 169' col Malayalam
d Fazil (Unit 1), Priyadarshan, Sibi Malayil, Siddique-Lal (Unit 2) pc Swargachitra p Appachan s Madhu Muttam lyr Bichu Thirumala c Venu (Unit 1), Anandakuttan, Sunny Joseph (Unit 2) m M.G. Radhakrishnan lp Mohanlal, Suresh Gopi, Shobhana, Thilakan, Nedomudi Venu, Innocent

One of the most discussed Malayalam films in recent times and a major success. The young Calcutta couple Nakulan (Gopi) and Ganga (Shobhana) arrive for a vacation in their ancestral home, where they encounter a centuries-old legend of a Tamil devadasi dancer named Nagavalli. She had been abducted by a Nair chieftain and had subsequently returned to haunt the old house. The small room in the attic where she lived is kept permanently locked. Ganga inquisitively opens the room and becomes possessed by the ghost. Nakulan's friend, Sunny (Mohanlal), a USA-trained psychiatrist, arrives to help solve the problem: having suffered a troubled childhood, Ganga has become a murderously psychotic schizophrenic. Discarding psychiatry, Sunny turns to 'indigenous' methods and successfully effects a dramatic cure relying on a tantric cult redolent with caste prejudices. The film was shot at extraordinary speed by two units working simultaneously, one led by the veteran Fazil, the other by three younger directors (all became well known in Malayalam cinema), although still managing to achieve both narrative and technical coherence. Mohanlal makes a cameo appearance, but the main performance is Shobhana's chilling portrayal of the demented Nagavalli.

☞ Mathru Devo Bhava

1993 140' col Telugu
d/sc K. Ajayakumar pc Creative Commercials p K.S. Rama Rao st C.C. Unit, Dennis Joseph dial G. Satyamurthy lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c Chota K. Naidu m M.M. Keeravani lp Madhavi, Nassar, T. Bharani, Charuhasan, Subbaraya Sharma, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Allu Ramalingaiah, Brahmanandam, Nirmalamma

Sentimental melodrama about a woman (Madhavi) whose alcoholic husband (Nasser) is killed. The village's villain (Bharani) who was responsible for the death, also tries to rape her. Later, suffering from terminal cancer, she tries to get her children adopted. The film was an adaptation of the Malayalam Akashadhoodu (1993).

☞ Mayal odu

1993 149' col Telugu
d/sc/m S.V. Krishna Reddy pc Manisha Films p/st K. Aatchi Reddy lyr Jonavittula, Seetharama Sastry, Gudduru Vishwanatha Sastry, Bhuvana Chandra c Sarat lp Rajendra Prasad, Nirmalamma, Soundarya, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Babu Mohan

A poor magician (Prasad) fights the villain (Rao) and his comic son (Mohan) in order to save a blind girl and to restore her sight. The first in a series associated with director Reddy of 'healthy entertainers' in the tradition of fantasy socials.

☞ Mel eparambil Aanveedu

1993 160' col Malayalam
d Rajasenan pc Okay Prod. p Mani C. Kalpan st/co-lyr Girish Puthencheri sc/dial Reghunath Paleri co-lyr I.S. Kundoor, Kavinjar Kalidasan c Anandakuttan m Johnson lp Jayaram, Shobhana, Narendra Prasad, Jagathi Srikumar, Vijayaraghavan, Janardhanan, Meena

Meneparambil is a feudal peasant family consisting mainly of bachelor males committed to their caste identity. The only woman in the house is their ageing mother who laments the absence of decent female help in the kitchen. The two eldest sons, as well as an uncle, all bachelors 'past their prime', keep up appearances while awaiting suitably acceptable marriages. Youngest son Harikrishen (Jayaram) goes to Tamil Nadu for a job, falls for Pavizham (Shobhana) and marries her. When he brings her home, he seeks to avoid problems with caste difference by introducing her as a maid servant he brought from Pollanchi to help his mother. Several sequences follow, which are meant to be funny, showing all the men in the family turning into sexual predators. Eventually, when she has endeared herself to the family, a kidnap and rescue drama enables the truth to be told and ensures the happy ending.

☞ Money

1993 131' col Telugu
d/s Sivanageshwara Rao pc Varma Creations p Ram Gopal Varma lyr Sirivennela Seetharama Sastry c Teja m Sri Murthy lp Chakravarthy, Chinna, Renuka Shahane, Paresh Rawal, Jayasudha, Brahmanandam

Two unemployed youths (Chakravarthi and Chinna) kidnap a glamorous woman (Jayasudha) and demand a ransom from her husband (Rawal). However, the husband had intended to have his wife killed anyway. The woman teams up with her kidnapers to get even with her husband. Produced by Varma, the film partly spoofs his own previous hit, Shiva (1989) and generally the 90s gangster genre in Telugu. It established its director, a former assistant of Varma, in the Telugu industry as well as Brahmanandam in an acclaimed role.

☞ Munjaneya Manju

1993 154' col Kannada
d/co-p P.H. Vishwanath pc Sandesh Combines p Sandesh Nagaraj, Netravathi S. Nagaraj, S. Satish sc T.N. Narasimhan dial Kotiganahalli Ramayya lyr/m Hamsalekha c R. Manjunath lp Ambarish, Sudharani, Tara, Ashwath, Ramesh Bhatt, Tennis Krishna, Avinash, Honavalli Krishna, Anantaram Macheri, Ramakrishna, Rajendra Singh, Ashalatha, Kantha Purshottam, Chetana, Manjula, Baby Sowmya, Baby Kumuda, Baby Netravathi

Topical crime thriller wrapped around a domestic 'misunderstanding' melodrama. The film addresses real estate-related crime (a controversial subject in post-liberalisation Bangalore) as represented by a North Indian villain named Juneja. Madhav (Ambarish), a lawyer with a mission, makes an enemy of Juneja when he refuses to take him as a client. At home, his wife Meera (Sudharani), pathologically sensitive to disturbing news, gets Madhav to promise to refuse dangerous cases. They help Meera's friend (Tara) by hiring her for his office, but Meera suspects an affair and becomes jealous. Eventually, both the crime story and the domestic story find a joint resolution.

☞ Ponthan Mada

1993 119' col Malayalam
d/sc T.V. Chandran pc Horizon Cinema st C.V. Sriraman from his stories Ponthan Mada and Seema Thampuran c Venu m Johnson lp Mammootty, Naseeruddin Shah, Laboni Sarkar, Rashmi

Nostalgic movie set in the 40s about the irrational bonding of the low-caste Ponthan

Mammootty and Naseeruddin Shah in Ponthan Mada

Mada (Mammootty) with his colonial landlord Seema Thampuran (Shah), an aristocrat who spent his youth in England until he was expelled for supporting the Irish Republican Army. The two transcend class boundaries as they communicate through Thampuran's window, with Mada hanging from a palm tree. This past is excavated mainly by the arrival of a family, decades later, to live in Thampuran's abandoned mansion.

☞ Rajendrudu Gajendrudu

1993 152' col Telugu
d/s/m S.V. Krishna Reddy pc Manisha Films
p K. Aatchi Reddy dial Diwakar Babu lyr Bhuvana Chandra, Jonavittula, Seetharama Sastry c Sarath lp Rajendra Prasad, Soundarya, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Brahmanandam, Babu Mohan, Srilakshmi, Hanumantha Rao, Ali

Comic melodrama in which an animal plays the role usually reserved for the hero. Gajendra the elephant witnesses the murder of its master (Gummadi), a retired forest officer, and is later won by Rajendra (Prasad) in a lottery. Gajendra tracks down the killers and rounds up some thugs, in the process finding its new master a business, and is also instrumental in Rajendra finding a girlfriend, Alaka (Soundarya). The film continues Reddy's distinctive style of the fantasy melodrama with a moral message, invoking a genre associated with the AVM studio.

☞ Sardar

1993 175' col Hindi
d Ketan Mehta pc Foundation of Films on India's War of Independence p Shyam Benegal/Sahyadri Films s Vijay Tendulkar
c Jehangir Choudhury m Vanraj Bhatia lp Paresh Rawal, Annu Kapoor, Benjamin Gilani, Vallabh Vyas, Lalit Tiwari, Tom Alter

Big budget biographical on the last five years of nationalist leader Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel (Rawal). The film continues the trend launched by Attenborough's Gandhi (1982) of government-produced authoritative versions of India's freedom struggle, which have culminated in numerous Doordarshan productions in the 50th anniversary of Indian independence. The film's original version was scripted by Tendulkar, who later published his script as an independent work.

☞ Sir

1993 151' col/scope Hindi
d Mahesh Bhatt pc Visesh Films p Mukesh Bhatt s Jay Dixit lyr Qateel Shafi, Rahat Indori
c Pravin Bhatt m Annu Malik lp Naseeruddin Shah, Pooja Bhatt, Atul Agnihotri, Paresh Rawal, Avtar Gill, Soni Razdan, Sushmita Mukherjee, Gulshan Grover

Bhatt turns the plot of James Clavell's To Sir With Love (1967) into an action drama. The saintly college lecturer Professor Verma (Shah) takes on two gangsters, Jimmy (Grover) and Velji (Rawal), in order to support his students, particularly Pooja (Bhatt), Velji's daughter. Verma's infant son had been killed in a random drive-by shooting and now he first cures Pooja of her stammering - caused by the trauma of watching her mother commit suicide - and then offers his protection when Pooja and another student, Karan (Agnihotri), want to marry. The action features much gang rivalry as Jimmy tries to abduct Pooja in revenge for Velji's murder of Jimmy's brother. Bhatt manages the shift from melodrama to action movie with an impressive control over narrative momentum and pace.

☞ Sunya Theke Suru

aka A Return to Zero
 1993 128' col Bengali
d/s Ashoke Vishwanathan pc H.G. Films

p Madhumati Maitra, Hillol Das, Mrinal Das
c Vivek Bannerjee m Dipak Choudhury lp Dhritiman Chatterjee, Mamata Shankar, N. Vishwanathan, Lily Chakraborty, Anjan Dutt, Anuradha Roy, Ashoke Vishwanathan

Experimental, and controversial, debut feature set in the context of the 1960s Naxalite student movement in Calcutta. Resorting to a mix of colour and monochrome scenes to convey the persistence of the past in the present, the story tells of a professor of economics, Bhishmadev Sharma (Chatterjee), peripherally connected with and clearly sympathetic to the student movement, who is arrested, tortured and imprisoned for ten years. He emerges into a changed Calcutta, exemplified by the existential traumas of his now rich former student Samar Gupta, the writer Pragnya and the young activist Udayan, the latter unperturbably continuing to claim that the present is a revolutionary situation. The film's political passion derives from its refusal to forget a traumatic past, juxtaposing the interaction of temporal dimensions with a sophisticated mise en scene of spatial discontinuities.

Thiruda Thiruda

1993 169' col/scope Tamil
d/p/co-s Mani Rathnam co-s Ram Gopal Varma dial Sujata, Sahasini c P.C. Sriram lyr Vairamuthu m A.R. Rahman lp Prashant, Anand, Heera, Anu Agarwal, S.P. Balasubramaniam, Malaysia Vasudevan, Saleem Ghouse, S.S. Chandran

An unsuccessful comedy loosely inspired by George Roy Hill's Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969) telling of two petty village thieves, Azhagu (Prashant) and Kadir (Anand), who rescue Rajathi (Heera) from suicide and fall in love with her, as she does with them. On a train, the two thieves steal a woman's handbag which contains a computer card giving access to a case of freshly printed banknotes which also gets stolen. The petty thieves become involved in endless chases while their triangular love story remains unresolved. Made as a big-budget spectacular, the film consciously attempts to move out of the terrain of regional politics as seen in the director's better known, and notorious, hits Roja (1992) and Bombay (1995).

Varasudu

1993 158' col Telugu
d/sc E.V.V. Satyanarayana pc Shri Jayabheri Art Prod. p D. Kishore dial L.B. Sriram lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy
c Chota K. Naidu m M.M. Keeravani lp Nagarjuna, Krishna, Nagma, Gummadi Venkateshwar Rao, T. Bharani, Brahmanandam, Geetha, Baliah, Sharat Saxena

Lavish melodrama remaking the Hindi hit Phool Aur Kaante (1992) by a director known until then mainly for low-budget films. The teen love story laced with invocations to heroic machismo includes the parallel narrative of the hero's (Nagarjuna) relationship with his father (Krishna). The scene in which Nagarjuna holds Krishna by his collar led to major protests from the fan clubs of the former Telugu superstar, who placed large advertisements appealing to his audiences to recognise the importance of that scene to the story.

Vidheyan

The Servile
1993 112' col Malayalam/Kannada
d/s Adoor Gopalakrishnan pc General Pics p Ravi st Paul Zakaria's novelette Bhaskar Pattelar Ente Jeevitham [Bhaskar Pattelar and My Life] c Ravi Varma m Vijayabhaskar lp Mammootty, M.R. Gopakumar, Tanvi Azmi, Savita Anand, Babu Namboodiri, Ravi Vallathol, P.C. Soman, Aliyar, M.K. Gopalakrishnan, Krishnankutty Nair

Gopalakrishnan's exploration of the 'Hegelian' master-slave dialectic in a South Karnataka setting. Bhaskar Pattelar (Mammootty) is the aggressive, tyrannical, hard-drinking village landlord whose will is law, while Thomma (Gopakumar), a Christian migrant labourer from Kerala, is his timid and fearful but always loyal slave. Thomma resents the master's control, but is always there when required, whether it is to help murder Bhaskar Pattelar's kindly wife, Saroja, or to make his own wife, Omana, sexually available to the master or to dynamite the sacred fish in the temple pond, the temple being the only effective site of resistance to the landlord's tyranny. Thomma is unwilling to join the other villagers' plot to kill the tyrant, but exults in freedom when Pattelar is finally shot dead. The author of the original story objected to the film's interpretation of his work, renewing an old controversy about filmic adaptations of literary works.

Aaghata

1994 137' col Kannada
d/s Suresh Heblikar p/co-st K.A. Ashok Pai co-st Rajani Pai lyr M.N. Vyasa Rao c S.R. Bhat
m Vijayabhaskar
lp Srikant, Girish Karnad, Shruti, Suresh Heblikar, G.V. Shivananda

Kannada psychodrama based on the true-life case studies of the Pai couple, practicing psychiatrists and the film's producers. Usha (Shruti), daughter of a retired school teacher, turns down a marriage proposal from a progressive US-based engineer in favour of university colleague Vikas (Srikant). Vikas abandons Usha when his oppressive father demands a dowry she cannot pay. After psychiatric treatment, Usha joins a rural voluntary organisation where she falls for its leader, Francis (Heblikar). The demise of her second lover after local gossip takes on religious overtones causes a further psychological crisis. The psychiatrist in the film (Karnad), representing the producers, offers a sociological critique of the events.

Aatish

1994 155' col/scope Hindi
d Sanjay Gupta pc Sippy Films p G.P. Sippy

st/sc Robin Bhatt, Sujit Sen dial Kamlesh Pandey lyr Sameer c Najeeb Khan m Nadeem-Shravan

lp Sanjay Dutt, Aditya Pancholi, Raveena Tandon, Karishma Kapoor, Atul Agnihotri, Shakti Kapoor, Gulshan Grover, Tanuja, Ajit, Kadar Khan

Baba (Dutt) and Nawab (Pancholi) are hired thugs in the employ of a dreaded gangster (Ajit) and thus the sworn enemies of his rival (Grover). Baba's entire family, especially his mother (Tanuja) and his girlfriend (Tandon), become implicated and Baba's sidekick is maimed/castrated in the process. Baba's younger brother (Agnihotri) is a police officer who, in the film's gory end, shoots his elder brother. The film covers some of the terrain extensively visited in 70s Hindi films (e.g. Deewar; 1975), except for the unusually elaborate staging of graphic violence. The film features the hit song Dil dil dil/Main tere pyar mein khoya.

Adhar mam

1994 152' col Tamil
d/sc Ramesh Krishna pc G.K. Films st/dial Chandramohan Nag c V. Manikandan
m Ilaiyaraaja
lp Nasser, Murali, Ranjita, Vijay, Vadivelu, Ajay

The environmentally aware sandalwood smuggler Dharma (Nasser) plants a sapling for every tree he chops down in the forests of Gunderippalayam. When he is killed by forest rangers, his younger brother Arjuna (Murali) continues the smuggling business with greater violence. In the end Arjuna justifies his actions by arguing that the state itself is responsible for creating criminals. Some of the film works with mythological references.

Al Iari Premikudu

1994 147' col Telugu
d K. Raghavendra Rao pc Shri Satya Durga Arts p Suresh Satyanand s Satyanand co-lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Vennelakanti c Chota K. Naidu
co-lyr/m M.M. Keeravani
lp Jagapathi Babu, Soundarya, Rambha, Kanchan, Ramya Krishna, Brahmanandam, Nirmalamma

The hero (Babu) bets a friend that he can get three women to fall for him without any of them finding out about the others. He does this with the noble intention of raising money for his daughter's operation. Much of the film features song sequences with barely-concealed voyeurism, including scenes with actors rolling in flower beds and being pelted with apples and oranges.

Amidhi Padai

1994 ? col Tamil
d/s Manivannan pc M.R. Films Intl. lyr Vali, Pulamaipithan, Ponnadiyan c D. Shankar
m Ilaiyaraaja
lp Sathyaraj, Ranjita, Kasturi, Sujatha, R. Sundararaj, S.S. Chandran, Manivannan

Feudal drama set over two generations. Thangavelu (Sathyaraj), training to be a police officer, cannot marry Uchamma (Ranjita) because his grandparents reveal his past history as an illegitimate child. His father Nagaraja Cholan (Sathyaraj again), a Member of the State legislature, had been supported in his early career by the rebel political leader Manimaran (Manivannan), a reference to MDMK leader Vai Gopalswamy. Having become a successful politician, Nagaraja abandons the woman he is to marry, Thayamma (Kasturi), causing her to commit suicide leaving behind their illegitimate son. Nagaraja instead marries the princess Sivakami (Sujatha) who however sees through his evil designs. Later, the grown up son teams up with Manimaran and Sivakami, and eventually kills his father. The film was a major commercial success, seen as a comment on the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam's tendencies towards nepotism (cf. DMK Film).

the end, it is Raveena's friend Karishma who turns out to be the real heiress. The two actresses maintaining, and actually exchanging, their real names in the film also refers to a well-publicised feud between these two stars who at this time filled the gossip columns with interviews attacking each other. Director Santoshi (Ghayal, 1990; Damini, 1993) moved away from his familiar style to make this sitcom which depends mainly on Aamir Khan's flair for comedy.

⊗ Amodini

1994 101' col Bengali
d/s/lyr/m Chidananda Das Gupta pc NFDC
c Madhu Ambat
lp Piyush Ganguly, Rachana Bannerjee, Ashoke Mukherjee, Anusree Das, Tathagata Sanyal, Aparna Sen, Kankana Sen, Ashoke Basu, Dhiman Chakraborty, Sipra Basu, Devika Mitra

Noted critic Das Gupta's comedy is set in the 18th C. when Calcutta was being built and inviolable norms of Brahmin social hierarchy often led to absurd situations, e.g. when upper-caste brides, who could not marry below their class, ended up marrying infants or much-married males trading on their eligibility. The irascible Amodini, daughter of a Kulin Brahmin landlord, is forced to marry a servant in her house when her scheduled groom abandons her in favour of a more lucrative alliance. She promptly kicks the servant boy Pundu out of her house as soon as the rites are over. The servant moves to Calcutta (then Sultanuti) and returns years later having made his fortune in the British colonial economy, considerably wealthier than his former employers. Amodini, determined to get him back, unburdens her troubles to Pundu's latest wife and the threesome live happily ever after. Unlike the later films of Das Gupta's mentor Satyajit Ray, the plot itself becomes secondary to innovative camerawork, often using minimal light and high-speed stock, and to stylised references to popular Bengali artforms.

⊗ Andaz Apna Apna

1994 160' col/scope Hindi
d/s/co-dial Raj Kumar Santoshi pc Vinay Pics p Vinay Kumar Sinha co-dial Dilip Shukla lyr Majrooh Sultanpuri c Ishwar Bidri m Tushar Bhatia
lp Aamir Khan, Salman Khan, Raveena Tandon, Karishma Kapoor, Paresh Rawal

The adventurer Amar (A. Khan) sets out to woo the heiress Raveena (Tandon), but has to overcome his rival Prem (S. Khan). Their efforts to thwart each other are intersected by the villain Teja's (Rawal) efforts to kill Raveena. In

⊗ Aranyaka

1994 90' col Hindi
d/s/c/p A.K. Bir pc NFDC st Manoj Das
m Bhavdeep Jaipurwale lp Sarat Pujari, Navni Parihar, Mohan Gokhale, Sanjana Kapoor, Laltendu Rath, Subroto Mahapatra, Sunil Singh

The Raja Saheb, played by the noted Oriya actor Pujari, embarks on a hunting expedition in cannibal country accompanied by an anglophile businessman (Gokhale), his hysterical wife (Parihar), an Army Major (Singh) and his English wife (Kapoor). The two males are attracted to each other's wives. The only outsider to the culture of feudal-upper class hedonism is the Raja's adopted tribal son, who represents the land that the cultural elite set out to conquer and who is regarded by them variously as a wild sex-object, hunter and slave. The hysterical wife seduces and then claims to have been raped by the tribal, who is chained and tortured. An orgiastic feast follows as the group eat what they imagine to be the wild boar shot during the hunt. They discover the next day that the meat was the tribal's body. This discovery is left deliberately ambiguous (unlike in the novel), allowing for several interpretations. The film is noted mainly for Bir's stunning camerawork, enhancing the elements of fable and allegory.

⊗ Badsha

1994 ? col/scope Tamil
d/s Suresh Krishna pc Sathya movies dial Balakumaran lyr Vairamuthu
c P.S. Prakash m Deva lp Rajnikant, Nagma, Raghuvaran, Janakaraj, Anandraj, Kitti

When the honest autorickshaw driver Manickam (Rajnikant) falls for Priya (Nagma), daughter of the diamond smuggler Keshavan, the father recognises Manickam as the dreaded Bombay gangster Manik Badshah. In Bombay, Badsha ran a criminal gang mainly to fight arch rival Mark Anthony (Raghuvaran), who had killed his friend Anwar. After Badsha kills Anthony, he stages his own 'death' and finds himself a new identity. Badsha's past catches up with him when his own brother Siva, a policeman, reopens the old police file, and further when Keshavan, Anthony's former cashier, kills Anthony's wife and steals his wealth and his daughter Priya. Badsha eventually kills Keshavan and marries Priya. This enormous hit, along with Annamalai (1992) by the same director, was seen as the Tamil megastar's entry into state politics with numerous rhetorical devices announcing his opposition to the ruling AIADMK government (eg. lines like 'It is not important how we fight, what is more important is who we fight against').

⊗ Bandit Queen

1994 119' col Hindi
d Shekar Kapur p Ka-lei-doscope (India), Channel Four Films (London) sc Mala Sen from her biography of Phoolan Devi dial Ranjit Kapoor c Ashok Mehta, Giles Nuttgens
m Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan, M. Arshad lp Seema Biswas, Nirmal Pandey, Manoj Bajpai, Rajesh Vivek, Govind Namdeo, Saurabh Shukla, Raghuvir Yadav, Sunita Bhatt

The harrowing although in the end heroic story of Phoolan Devi, previously filmed in the form of a Hindi musical (Phoolan Devi, 1984), is represented by Kapur in an intensely emotional movie drawing on a wide variety of generic elements ranging from socialist realist posturing via action movies to lyrical and, at crucial moments, impressively reserved and elliptical scenes more commonly associated with the art cinema. The story starts with the young village girl (Bhatt), still a child, being sold by her impoverished parents as a bride. The ensuing rape of the child on her 'wedding day', conveyed by an agonised scream, sets the tone for much of what follows. The heroine (Biswas) grows up under a regime of caste banditry and terrorism, exercised mainly by the local thakurs, backed up by police terrorism, both involving the most brutish forms of sexual terrorism as one gang rape (by the police who arrested her for running away from a child-molesting husband) is followed by another perpetrated by the thakurs which lasts for three days and is conveyed by way of a relentlessly opening barn door as the upper-caste villains file in, including a symbolic rape by an entire village community who force her to strip naked in the village square. However, instead of allowing her cold fury to destroy herself, the heroine teams up with an outlaw gang and wreaks bloody revenge on her persecutors. Chased by the police, she evades capture long enough for the news of her exploits and ordeal to spark a nationwide interest in her fate, making it difficult for the local representatives of power simply to kill her off. Political expediency requires the government to negotiate with her and she eventually surrenders at a public ceremony to which masses of people flocked from far and wide. She is applauded by the assembled people, suggesting her rebellion found a deep echo in a population exploited and terrorised by the politically powerful thakur caste in that region. Predictably, the film became controversial, a phenomenon acquiring additional complexity when Phoolan Devi, released, remarried and harbouring political ambitions but still liable to prosecution for murder should the authorities decide to press the matter, repudiated the film. The newcomer Seema Biswas gives a performance of great intensity and conviction in the lead role.

✪ Bhairava Dweepam

1994 162' col Telugu

d/s/co-lyr Singeetham Srinivasa Rao pc Chandamama-Vijaya Ents. p B. Venkatrama Reddy co-lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Seetharama Sastry, Vaddepalli Krishna c Kabirlal m M. Suresh

lp Balakrishna, Roja, Vijaya Ranga Raja, K.R. Vijaya

Vijaya Studio pioneered the genre of the 'folklore' costume-fantasy film in the 50s and relaunched it in the 90s with larger budgets and computer-driven special effects. The King's second wife, and hero's (Balkrishna) mother, is rejected by her husband and finds shelter with some holy men. The son, separated from his mother, sets out in search of a magic potion when the King is afflicted with disease. Adding to the plot is the fact that the princess (Roja) too is cursed. The resemblance to e.g. Patala Bhairavi (1951) is heightened by the fact that N.T. Rama Rao's son Balakrishna plays the main role.

✪ Chukkan

1994 158' col Malayalam

d/sc Thampi Kannamthanam pc Juliya Prod. st/dial Babu Pallassery lyr O.N.V. Kurup c Ravi K. Chandran m S.P. Venkatesh lp Suresh Gopi, Gauthami, Jagathi Srikumar, Soman, Rajan P. Dev, Thilakan, Narendra Prasad

When the conscientious old worker (Thilakan) is sacked by the factory owner, the worker's Marxist son Gaurishankar (Gopi) changes his tactics for transforming society. Teaming up with Gayathri (Gauthami), the daughter of a once-famous Namboodiri writer, and Sreeraman (Jagathi), a loyal but minor political fellow traveller, the trio join a ruling political nexus of unscrupulous factory-owners, politicians and police chiefs, undermining and ruining them 'from within'. The film's aggressive advocacy of consumerism, featuring flashy clothes, cars and guns sometimes unintentionally substantiates its 'end-justifies-the-means' message. The camerawork, often using spectacular noir effects, and Gopi's performance, dominate.

✪ The City

1994 153' col Malayalam

d I.V. Sasi pc Seven Arts Intl. p G.P. Vijayakumar st Priyadarshan sc/dial T. Damodaran lyr Bichu Thirumala c Ravi K. Chandran m Johnson lp Suresh Gopi, Urvasi, Ahana, Lalu Alex, Anandaraj, Ratheesh, Nizhalgal Ravi

'Searing expose' of corruption in the metropolis, mainly providing a platform for Suresh Gopi to play the violent uniformed avenger. In a contemporary Kerala city ruled by drug traffickers, pornographers, smugglers and other assorted criminals, the cop Ravi (Gopi) avenges the murders of the Deputy Inspector General's daughter and of his journalist friend while enduring the marriage of his girlfriend to a formerly corrupt but now reformed Member of the Legislative Assembly. In the end, when two rival gangs, one from the South, the other based in Bombay, clash in a riot of machine gun-wielding villains, Ravi manages to exterminate both gangs. Sasi and his scenarist Damodaran revisit, on a larger scale, familiar territory from their 80s films (cf. Avanazhi, 1986, Inspector Balram, 1991).

✪ Commissioner

aka Police Commissioner

1994 175' col Malayalam

d Shaji Kailas pc Sunitha Prod. p M. Mani s Renji Panikkar c Dinesh Babu m Rajamani lp Suresh Gopi, Shobhana, Soman, Ganesh, Siddique, Ratheesh, Ravi Vallathol

Suresh Gopi's performance, embodying the fascist machismo of the honest and committed police officer, made him a Malayalam superstar. He plays the no-nonsense, seething, foul-mouthed IPS Bharatchandran, quite prepared to bend rules 'to get things done'. Both story and dialogue often powerfully invoke the widespread sense in Kerala that politics and society are so corrupt that only some ruthlessly authoritarian action can remedy the situation. The spectacular film's music enhances the authoritarian rhetoric while invoking J.-C. Van Damme-type heroics. It did well in a Telugu dubbed version entitled Police Commissioner.

✪ Drohkaal

1994 171' col Hindi

d/p/st/co-sc/co-dial Govind Nihalani pc Udbhav Cine co-sc Anjum Rajabali co-dial Atul Tiwari, Govind P. Deshpande m Vanraj Bhatia

lp Om Puri, Naseeruddin Shah, Meeta Vasisth, Ashish Vidyarthi, Milind Gunaji, Annu Kapoor, Kitu Gidwani, Amrish Puri

Nihalani returned to his familiar 80s genre (cf. Ardh Satya, 1983) of the fast-paced political thriller with this story about terrorist movements in Northern India. Abhay Singh (O. Puri), the emotionally insecure head of an elite anti-terrorist squad operating in a terrain made to resemble 1980s/90s Kashmir, sends two insurgents to infiltrate the terrorist group led by Commander Bhadra (Vidyarthi). Bhadra is captured and, for much of the film, matches wits with Singh using knowledge provided to him by his own informers within the police. When Singh's own senior officer (A. Puri) commits suicide after being revealed as a terrorist informer, Singh breaks down and turns informer to save his wife (Vasisth) and child from the all-pervasive terrorist menace. In the end he kills Bhadra, and succeeds at the cost of his own life in placing his own man (Gunaji) at the head of the terrorist gang. The rapid editing, extended use of close-up and tight dramatic control - Nihalani's hallmark - dominate the long and tortuous story.

✪ English, August

1994 116' col English

d/co-sc Dev Benegal pc Tropicfilm p Anuradha Parikh st/co-sc Upamanyu Chatterjee, based on his novel c Anoop Jotwani m Vikram Joglekar,

D. Wood

lp Rahul Bose, Salim Shah, Tanvi Azmi, Meeta Vasisth

Agastya, aka August (Bose), a member of India's urban English-speaking elite, fan of Bob Dylan and Marcus Aurelius, arrives in the small town of Madna, A.P., as a newly-commissioned Indian Administrative Service bureaucrat. Much of the largely comic film shows life in the Indian heartland through his eyes, including bureaucratic corruption, swaggering officials and people such as the cynical cartoonist Govind Sathe. This is interwoven with his own voyeuristic fantasies and memories of life in the big city. In the end, transferred to a Naxalite-dominated area where radicals have killed a similarly Westernised colleague, he takes time off to write his novel. The film begins with his unsuccessful effort to sell the novel to publishers. Mainly an ode to multiculturalism, presented as generational problem. The original novel, of the same title, was one of the better-received items of the post-Rushdie boom in Indo-Anglican fiction.

✪ Gal il eo

1994 92' col Malayalam

d/p/s James Joseph pc Galaxy Communications c Sunny Joseph m V. Chandran lp Narendra Prasad, Ramachandra Mokeri, M.R. Gopakumar, Leela Panicker, Mukundan

Joseph's feature debut is a low-budget costume biography of Galileo, unrelated to Brecht's play, rehearsing his well-known ethical dilemmas and conflicts with the Church. The theatrically staged film confines itself to minimal sets.

✪ Hkhgorol oi Bohu Door

aka It's a Long Way to the Sea

1994 106' col Assamese

d/co-sc/p Jahnu Barua co-p Sailadhar Barua pc Dolphin Communications co-sc/dial/ed Heu-En Barua c P. Rajan m Satya Barua lp Bishnu Khargaria, Susanta Barua, Arun Nath, Kashmiri Saikia Barua, Miral Quddus Barua's Assamese modernisation melodrama tells of the boatman Puwal (Kharghoria) who ferries people across the remote Dihing river. On the invitation of his son Hemanta (Nath), he goes to see him in the city, Guwahati. Hemanta invited the old man mainly to have him sign a legal document that would enable the sale of family land. The circumstances of the deal disillusion Puwal, who returns to his village. There, in the film's second half, a bridge is built over the river by corrupt politicians and bureaucrats, losing the boatman his ancestral employment. Constructed in two movements, the film is held together by the relationship between Puwal and his orphaned grandson, Hkhuman (S. Barua), which becomes the framing device representing the kind of modernity that encircles the uncomprehending old man. Elements of the plot resemble the director's earlier Halodiya Choraye Baodhan Khaye (1987), but even the symbolic revolt of the earlier film is now missing.

Hum Aapke Hain Koun...!

1994 206' col/scope Hindi

d/s/dial Sooraj Barjatya pc Rajshri Prod.
p Kamal Kumar Barjatya st Keshav Prasad Mishra, S.H. Athavale lyr Ravinder Rawal, Dev Kohli c Rajan Kinagi m Raamlaxman lp Madhuri Dixit, Salman Khan, Anupam Kher, Renuka Shahane, Reema Lagoo, Alok Nath, Satish Shah, Bindu, Mohnish Bahl, Laxmikant Berde, Ajit Vachani

Promoted as the most successful Indian film ever, the plot concerns the arranged marriage between Rajesh (Bahl), nephew and heir to the industrial empire of Kailashnath (Nath), and Pooja (Shahane), daughter of the equally rich Professor Choudhury (Kher). Most of the 3-hour film is devoted to a series of festivities with parties in the Ram temple and at the homes of the two families, one chronicling the marriage itself and another when Pooja is pregnant. Prem (Khan), Rajesh's younger brother, falls in love with Pooja's sister Nisha (Dixit). The elaborate entertainment of an ostentatious North Indian wedding with its enormous consumption of food is also the scene of the mandatory pranks played upon each other by the 'younger generation' led by Prem and Nisha, their sexual and voyeuristic overtones sanctioned, even at times replicated (e.g. in the song Saamne samdhan hai) by the older generation. Both families, including Kailashnath's cook (Berde), are free of any traces of class or gender conflict in the film's celebration of a fantasy in which unbridled consumerism and religiosity combine without problems. The especially dominant food motif is stressed by the song 'Ice Cream Chocolate', sung by Lata Mangeshkar, and illustrated by large advertising posters in Nisha's room. The only exception to the general religio-consumerist bliss is a fussy and generally disliked aunt (Bindu), who insists on mentioning issues such as the dowry and class differences, for which she gets slapped by her husband (Vachani). Pooja's moving into Kailashnath's home leads to utopia itself, blessed by her religiosity (she prays to the gods Krishna and Rama, both of whom actively intervene into the story). However, all this is interrupted when Pooja falls down a flight of stairs and dies. To restore the situation, the families decide that Nisha will marry the widowed Rajesh, but the happy ending, and a second marriage, arrives only when the dog Tuffy, an incarnation of Krishna, becomes the instrument for revealing that Nisha loves the younger brother, Prem. This remake of Rajshri's far from successful earlier Nadiya Ke Paar (1982) proved to be an astonishing success as has the effectiveness of its marketing as a 'clean' family film. It is arguable that the fantasy of a feudal elite that has successfully negotiated its transition to capitalism while retaining its allegedly 'traditional' religiosity underpins an appeal to the audience's voyeurism as well as to a devotional fervour hitherto reserved for explicitly religiously themes.

Kadhal an

1994 168' col/scope Tamil

d/s/co-lyr Shankar pc A.R.S. Films
p K.T. Kunjumon dial Balakumaran lyr Vairamuthu, Vali c Jeeva m A.R. Rehman lp Prabhu Deva, Nagma, Girish Karnad, Vadivelu, Raghuvaran, S.P. Balasubramanyam

Tamil megahit and trendsetter continuing the 90s phenomenon of big budget musicals, associated mainly with composer Rehman, reaching an audience far exceeding the traditional scope of 'regional' cinemas. The film established the breakdancing Prabhu Deva, known until then mainly as a choreographer (e.g. the Rukmini song in Roja, 1992). He plays Prabhu, the son of a policeman (Balasubramanyam) and a student leader who falls in love with Shruti (Nagma), daughter of Kakarla Satyanarayana, the corrupt Governor of Tamil Nadu (Karnad). The reference is evidently to Tamil Nadu's controversial governor M. Chenna Reddy, who had a public feud with the state Chief Minister Jayalalitha (to whom the film is dedicated). The love story develops alongside the Governor's nefarious plans to bomb various public places. From the opening number, 'Take it easy Urvashi', set partly in an illuminated glass vehicle, the film announces its 'postmodern' intentions using computer-aided animation and elaborate special effects as well as costumed dance numbers, all of which set the stage for numerous comments on contemporary politics and the new mass culture. The heroine, resembling sketches from a book on traditional norms of Indian beauty, falls out with her beloved when his breakdancing comes into conflict with her devotion to the Bharat Natyam dance form. During their motor-cycle escapade to the temple town of Chidambaram, they foil the Governor's plan to bomb the place, after which the hero is incarcerated and tortured by a female cop. His release triggers a wild west dance number and the film's megahit, Mukkala muqabala. The film makes several references to earlier Tamil hits (e.g. to the Roja star Aravind Swamy) and Prabhu on one occasion pretends to be N.T. Rama Rao (leading to an extract from the latter's Lavakusa, 1963).

Madhuri Dixit and Salman Khan in Hum Aapke Hain Koun...!

Dubbed versions of the film in Telugu (Premikudu, 1994) and Hindi (Humse Hai Muqabala, 1995) were also hits, esp. Rehman's songs. Hindi lyrics were by P.K. Mishra. Tejaswini Niranjana and Vivek Dhareshwar analysed the film in 'Kadhalan and the Politics of Resignification: Fashion, Violence and the Body' (1995).

Karuthamma

1994 153' col/scope Tamil
d/sc Bharthirajaa pc Vetrivel Art Creations st/dial M. Rathnakumar lyr Vairamuthu
c B. Kannan m A.R. Rehman lp Raja, Rajashree, Periyadhasan, Maheshwari, Rajina

Remarkable Bharthirajaa melodrama addressing the feudal practice of female infanticide in parts of Tamil Nadu. The school teacher Soosai secretly adopts the third daughter of the villager Mokkaian (Periyadhasan) when he learns that she is to die. The two elder daughters, Periyakanni and Karuthamma (Rajashree), grow up to a tragic fate. Periyakanni is unhappily married and sees her own daughter killed at birth. Karuthamma, however, gets her sister's evil husband arrested for the act, supported by the progressive veterinarian Stephen (Raja). In the end, when the evil husband is released from jail, Karuthamma kills him. A second plot has Karuthamma fall in love with Stephen to the envy of his urban girlfriend Rosy (Maheshwari), who eventually turns out to be the surviving third sister of Karuthamma. The film's opening sets the tone as an ancient nurse sings a lullaby in a cracked voice, preparing to feed poisoned cactus milk to girls who have to die. The director, enhancing his selfmade image of social reformer, introduces the film. Nevertheless, he occasionally achieves surprisingly tragic, primitive realism, strengthened by Rehman's extraordinary song Porale ponnu thayi.

Kochaniyan

1994 106' col Malayalam
d/co-s Sathheesh Venganoor p Itihas Films p Bushura Shahudeen co-s A. Shahudeen
c V. Aravindakshan m Mohan Sitara lp Master Vineeth, Narendra Prasad, Maya Uthradamthirunal, A. Shahudeen, Baby Surendran

Malayalam children's movie in which the young protagonist Kochunni (Vineeth) has problems with his disciplinarian father and sibling rivalry with elder sister Suma. He retaliates with some nasty pranks, while his grandmother's tales provide an escape into private fantasies. The grandmother dies and the boy's girlfriend, Nazima, moves away. He falls ill and, in the end, is reconciled with his distraught parents. Much of the film lovingly photographs the lifestyle of a traditional Nair family coming to terms with capitalist modernity, breaking out only with an elaborately shot dream sequence in which Kochunni imagines his tyrannical father in Kathakali costume.

Kottreshi Kanasu

aka Kottreshi's Dream
 1994 133' col Kannada
d/s Nagathi Halli Chandrasekhar pc Vishwapriya Films p G. Nandakumar st Veerabhadrapa lyr H.S. Venkatesha Murthy
c Sunny Joseph m C. Aswath lp Vijaya Raghavendra, Umashree, Kari Basavaiah, B. Jayashree

Sentimental story in which the Dalit (untouchable) Kottara (Raghavendra), the most intelligent boy in his class, struggles to overcome caste oppression. Most of the acting and narrative style is declamatory in line with the film's avowed reformist purpose.

Krantiveer

1994 159' col/scope Hindi
d/p Mehul Kumar pc Mehul Movies
s K.K. Singh lyr Sameer c Russi Bilimoria
m Anand Milind
lp Nana Patekar, Dimple Kapadia, Atul Agnihotri, Mamta Kulkarni, Paresh Rawal, Tinnu Anand, Danny Denzongpa, Farida Jalal

Local Maharashtrian 'anti-hero' Patekar expands his vigilante image (cf. Ankush, 1985; Prahaar, 1992) into his first big-budget, solo star vehicle. He plays Pratap, the wayward grandson of a Gandhian nationalist. Evicted from his house for dishonesty, which caused the death of his grandfather, he grows up and collects rent for a slum-owner (Rawal), maintaining a fervent contempt for legality and a belief in the basic rightness of taking the law into one's own hands, an ideology repeatedly endorsed in the film. From this perspective he takes on the might of the corrupt builder Yograj (Anand) and the gang boss Cheetah (Denzongpa). In the end, sentenced to death, he delivers, directly to camera, a spine-chilling harangue ostensibly in favour of communal harmony, but in fact directly invoking the language associated with the Shiv Sena leader Bal Thackeray (cf. Anand Patwardhan's Father, Son and Holy War, 1994). The film uses the fearless journalist Megha Dixit (Kapadia), raped in the film by Cheetah, to reinforce its basic message that Pratap's lumpen-brutalism, directly connected with Shiv Sena gangsterism, is the legitimate inheritor of the nationalist freedom struggle. It also continues director Mehul Kumar's previous odes to macho posturing (Tiranga, 1992). The song Love rap, picturised on romantic lead Agnihotri and Kulkarni, assisted the film's ominous success.

Kudumba Visesham

1994 150' col Malayalam
d Anil Babu p Habib Abdul Khader sc J. Palassery lyr Bichu Thirumala c Ramchandra Babu m Johnson lp Thilakan, Kaviyoor Ponnamma, Jagadish, Shanti Krishna

Middle-class melodrama showcasing two veteran Malayalam actors, Thilakan and Ponnamma. He is Madhavan Nair, an ageing taxi driver, head of a large joint family; she plays his wife. The complicated tale shows ingratitude and financial machinations, old feuds and fragmenting marital ties, ending when the old man's wife dies and he disowns his entire family.

Lubeidak

aka The Necklace
 1994 95' col Desia
d/s P.L. Das p Sushanta Kumar Adhikari lyr Ashok Mishra c Niranjan Dash m Satyanarayan Adhikari lp Hanu Dulari, Satya Mishra, Premalata Dash, Rabi Panda, Naba Panda

Ethnographic fiction film set among the Bondo tribals in the remote Malkangiri district of Orissa. The Bondos are still outside of the national mainstream, and believed (in the colonial classification of Indian tribes) to be homicidal savages. The film features several members of the tribe and tells the story of Lachhim, a tribal who has won a national reputation in archery, who returns to find his reformist efforts thwarted by the villain Mangla as political reform takes on the tones of sexual rivalry. The non-naturalism of the untrained actors (many of whom have been largely unexposed even to viewing cinema) clashes interestingly at times with a documentary-like camera style, but often appears simply awkward.

Magal ir Mattum

1994 132' col Tamil
d Singeetham Srinivasa Rao pc Rajkamal Film Intl., st Kamalhasan sc/dial 'Crazy' Mohan lyr Vali c Thirunavukkarasu m Ilayaraja
lp Urvashi, Rohini, Revathi, Nasser, Nagesh, Vijay, Sathya, Kamalhasan

Kamalhasan-scripted comedy based generally on Colin Higgins' 9 to 5 (1980) shows three working women in a garment factory take revenge on their tyrannical employer. Pandian (Nasser) makes repeated sexual advances to Janaki, the office typist (Urvashi in the Dolly Parton role) and Papamma, the maid servant (Rohini). On his side is Madhavi (Sathya). When a new costume designer Sathya (Revathi) arrives, she decides to put an end to this exploitation. The three of them get their employer in an accident, and later kidnap him in the company guest house while reforming the office with new facilities including a creche. In the end, the young boss from the head office (Kamalhasan) sacks Pandian and Madhavi, makes Sathya the new head and proposes marriage to her.

Mammo

1994 124' col Hindi
d Shyam Benegal pc NFDC st/co-sc Khalid Mohamed co-sc Shama Zaidi dial Javed Siddiqui lyr Gulzar c Prasann Jain m Vanraj Bhatia lp Farida Jalal, Surekha Sikri, Amit Phalke, Himani Shivpuri, Rajit Kapoor

Surekha Sikri in Mammo

Benegal's melodrama addresses the condition of Muslim refugees in Bombay, an issue made relevant by the Hindu Shiv Sena's attacks on minorities in the city as alleged 'Pakistanis'. Mammo, aka Mahmood Begum (Jalal), arrives in Bombay unannounced to stay with her sister Fayyazi (Sikri) and the latter's orphaned grandson Riyaz (Phalke). She was evicted from her marital home in Lahore after her husband's death. Arriving on a temporary visitor's visa, she tries legally as well as through bribery to convert the visa into one enabling permanent residence, asserting her right to stay on as an Indian national. The story is told through the eyes of Riyaz, who initially resents her arrival in their cramped Bombay flat. Mammo is deported, but returns in the end, hopefully for good.

Manathe Vel Itheru

1994 140' col/scope Malayalam
d/s Fazil pc Khais Prod. p Khais lyr Shibu Chakravarthy c Ananthakuttan m Johnson lp Shobhana, Vineeth, Mukesh, Srinivasan, Lalu Alex, Lakshmi

Malayalam star Shobhana plays pop singer Merlin Fernandes whose music combines rustic tradition with modern rhythms to entertain the Malayali diaspora throughout India. Ramesh (Vineeth), a psychotically devoted fan, follows her wherever she goes, investing all his time and his considerable wealth into attempts to seduce her. Desperate to escape her stalker, she marries a wealthy businessman. Ramesh now vows to kill the couple before committing suicide. Eventually, the cop (Mukesh) investigating the situation unearths Ramesh's tragic psycho-biography, enabling him - with assistance from Merlin and her husband - to cure the stalker of his 'mother fixation'. The film echoes Yash Chopra's megahit Darr (1993) with Vineeth doing a credible follow-up to Shah Rukh Khan's earlier portrayal of Ramesh.

Mayophy Gee Macha

aka Mayophy's Son 1994 92' col Meiteilon-Manipuri
d Oken Amakcham pc P.K. Films p Thouyangba, Thoungamba s M.K. Binodini Devi lyr Th. Kora c Sarat m N. Tiken lp Makhon Mani, R.S. Joycee, Narendra Ningomba, Pishak, Bimola, Master Nongyai

Melodrama about three women from the Tangkhul community in the Manipuri hills. The story is told in flashback after a young girl, the daughter of Mayophy raised by her widowed grandmother, writes to the narrator having been selected to represent India in the Asian Games. The three women evoke the pristine, mountainous landscape even as they encounter modernity and urbanisation. The language is a tribal dialect of Manipuri.

Meemanxa

aka The Verdict
 1994 122' col Assamese
d Sanjib Hazarika pc Nirmali Arts, Narayanpur p Jayanta Hazarika, Mahadeb Borkotoky st Nirupama Borgohain sc Ranjit Sharma
c Mrinalkanti Das m Sher Choudhury lp Monami Bezbarua, Arun Nath, Narmada Das Devi, Bidyut Chakraborty, Indra Bania, Tilak Das, Kuki Hazarika, Nikumani Barua

Monami Bezbarua in Meemanxa (1994)

Miserabilist tale set in the Assamese countryside of the widowed Sushila's (Bezbarua) futile search for justice when the evil Zamindar Harekrishna (Sharma) rapes her. Harekrishna in turn accuses her of arson. Her troubles continue when she is bailed out by the businessman Bishnu (Chakraborty) in return for becoming his sexual 'property'. Eventually, she is rescued by Harekrishna's weak assistant (Nath), who loved her but was unable to stand up to his evil master. The director is a former playwright and actor (e.g. Agnisnan, 1985) who made one earlier feature, Haladhar (1992).

Minnar am

1994 150' col Malayalam
d/s Priyadarshan pc Goodknight Films lyr Girish Puthencheri c Anand m S.P. Venkatesh lp Mohanlal, Shobhana, Thilakan, Venu Nagavalli

Sentimental comedy adapting the well-known plot of a friendly governess who tames a bunch of spoiled brats. The orphaned Bobby (Mohanlal) lives with his uncle (Thilakan), a former jail superintendent who is also guardian to his widower-brother's five children. Bobby and the kids have a great time leading unruly lives until Neena (Shobhana), a governess hired by the uncle, arrives. Bobby first encourages the children to revolt against her, but she wins them over and gets them to turn against Bobby instead.

Mogha Mul I

1994 137' col/scope Tamil
d/s Gnana Rajasekharan pc J.R. Circuit p J. Dharmambal st T. Janaki Raman's novel lyr Vali c Sunny Joseph, Thangar Bachan
m Ilaiyaraja
lp Nedumudi Venu, Abhishek, Archana Joglekar, Soorya

The former bureaucrat Rajasekharan's debut feature is an Ilaiyaraja-derived pop phantasy about India's classical heritage. The genre usually features tragedies of unrequited love and how women are crucial to the creative muse of infantile geniuses. The film is set in the 1950s in feudal Tanjore. Babu, ten years younger than the unmarriageable Yamuna, is seduced by his voluptuous neighbour Thankamma, but he rejects her subsequent advances, causing her to commit suicide. This then enables Babu to find his true vocation as a musician under the tutelage of master Ranganna (Venu), as well as his true love and muse, Yamuna. The music, aesthetically resistant to the commercialism which besets the film, is emplotted into the crisis when Babu is forced to 'sell' it in order to raise money for his dying teacher. His failure in maintaining his incorruptibility forces him onto the streets of Madras, whence he is rescued by Yamuna who reinflates his musical genius.

Mohra

1994 177' col/scope Hindi
d/s/e Rajiv Rai pc Trimurti Films p Gulshan Rai co-sc Shabbir Boxwalla dial Dilip Shukla lyr Anand Bakshi, Indivar c Damodar Naidu m Viju Shah

lp Naseeruddin Shah, Akshay Kumar, Sunil Shetty, Raveena Tandon, Pononam Jhawar, Raza Murad, Paresh Rawal, Gulshan Grover, Sadashiv Amrapurkar

Vishal Agnihotri (Shetty), jailed for having murdered his wife's rapists and killers, is rescued when the journalist Roma Singh (Tandon) reveals the truth. Roma's employer, the blind publisher Jindal (Shah), hires Vishal to kill the gangsters Gibran (Murad) and Tyson (Grover). The fearless policeman Amar Saxena (Kumar), who is after the same gangsters, arrests Vishal. Eventually it emerges that Jindal is the main criminal and mastermind, and Amar joins forces with Vishal to get him in a climax providing considerable exposure to both stars' much touted training in the martial arts. The film features the major hit song Tu cheez badi hai mast mast, an unacknowledged adaptation of Nusrat Fateh Ali's Mast kalandar mast mast.

a US-based Marathi poet (Gokhale), returns to her ancestral village to complete her education. At university she joins a street theatre group of Dalit activists and falls in love with the group's leader (Narkar). The group attacks governmental indifference to violence against Dalit women and Mukta's participation severely embarrasses her uncle, a State Minister in the ruling Congress Party. The 'local' problem, posed by Mukta's Westernised liberatedness, escalates into a new dimension when her black American friend (Obwatinyka) visits her, leading briefly to a love triangle. In the end, the divides in the family as Mukta's parents prefer to split the joint family rather than curtail her right to decide her own future, are mapped onto new political allegiances. The unusual twist in the plot comes when the American youth accompanies Mukta's grandfather (S. Lagoo) on a pilgrimage to Pandharpur, recalling the Marathi Saint poets' struggle against caste inequalities, and sings black songs while urging the old man to recognise the intensely contemporary nature of race and caste discrimination.

his colleague Vasanthi (Gauthami), and the musical contest when the professor and his students, whose musical instruments have been destroyed by the villain, perform a full number entirely with natural sound effects. The script credits were withheld, apparently after Kamalahasan's extensive informal contributions had transformed the story. Veteran Tamil actor Nagesh makes a remarkable cameo appearance as the father of Nirmala (Brinda), a college student killed by Ramesh.

Mukta

aka The Liberated Woman

1994 154' col Marathi

d/s Jabbar Patel pc Sarala Pics p Ashok Mhatre dial Sanjay Pawar lyr N.D. Manohar, Jonaci Patel c Shankar Bardhan m Anand Modak lp Sonali Kulkarni, Avinash Narkar, Shriram Lagoo, Reema Lagoo, Vikram Gokhale, Caleb Obura Obwatinyka, Madhu Kambikar, Prashant Subedar

Wordy melodrama suggesting a link between the condition of Dalit 'untouchable' castes in Maharashtra and the lot of African-Americans (the Dalit Panther movement in 1970s-80s Maharashtra had expressed support for the Black Panthers). Mukta (Kulkarni), daughter of

Nammavar

1994 178' (163') col/scope Tamil

d K.S. Sethumadhavan pc Vijaya-Vauhini, aka Chandamama Vijaya Combines p P. Venkatrama Reddy dial Kanmani Subbu lyr Vairamuthu c Madhu Ambat m Mahesh lp Kamalahasan, Gauthami, Karan, Thayi Nagesh, Brinda

The punk villain Ramesh (Karan) is the leading thug in Shaktivel College where student violence has caused chaos. Order is restored by the new professor, Selvan (Kamalahasan). The best moments in the film are the spontaneous-looking scenes of intimacy between Selvan and

1942 : A Love Story

1994 ? col/scope Hindi

d/p/co-s Vidhu Vinod Chopra pc Vinod Chopra Prod. co-st/dial Kaamna Chandra co-s Shiv Subrahmanyam, Sanjay Bhansali lyr Javed Akhtar c Binod Pradhan m R.D. Burman lp Anil Kapoor, Manisha Koirala, Jackie Shroff, Anupam Kher, Danny Denzongpa, Manohar Singh, Sushma Seth, Chandni, Brian Glover, Pran Sikand, Raghuvir Yadav

A love story set amid the Quit India agitations during WW2. In the Himalayan foothills, the blundering, apolitical Naren (Kapoor) falls in love with the local girl Rajjo (Koirala). Since his father (Singh) is committed to colonial rule, while her father is a revolutionary terrorist, their love affair leads to the exposure of a terrorist plot to assassinate the evil British General Douglas (Glover), modelled on popular versions of General Dyer of the Jallianwala Bagh tragedy. Eventually, Naren joins the terrorists led by Shubhankar (Shroff) and, in a long drawn-out climax, achieves the deed and leads a popular revolt against the colonial power. The film, with at times remarkable camerawork revealing its New Indian Cinema antecedents, contributes to the major 90s revival of 'nationalist' themes, recalling the values of the Independence struggle (cf. Mani Rathnam's work), even enjoining the audience to stand up for the national anthem which closes the performance. Its enormously successful music was released after the death of the composer Burman.

Manisha Koirala and Anil Kapoor in 1942 : A Love Story

Bhargavi Narayanan and Nanjundaiah in Nireekshe

the film is its camerawork with extended sequence shots, often lasting for 10mins, underscoring the elegaic minimalism of performance and narrative style. The day dawns and with it independence, but the promised utopia is accompanied by the news that Kaveri has been killed by her husband.

stepson Kunjunni, a man of her own age, offers her shelter when she is ritually excommunicated. Her lover was the effete Kathakali dancer Madhavan, whom she rejects when he finally turns up to acknowledge his responsibilities to her child. Vasudevan Nair's script returns to his familiar concerns addressing a decaying feudalism in pre-Independence Kerala. The film's sensitive cinemascope camerawork as well as Thilakan's remarkable performance as the Brahmin inquisitor stand out.

Nirbachana

1994 107' col Oriya
d/sc Biplab Roy Choudhury pc NFDC st Prafulla Roy dial Hrishikesh Panda c Raju Mishra m Shantanu Mahapatra lp Bhim Singh, Bidyut Prava Patnaik, Durlabh Chandra Singh, Sangeeta Dutta, Sasmita Jagdeb

Roy Choudhury's savagely ironic allegory of rural politics in Orissa. The villagers of Mankonal, surrounded by rapidly depleting stone quarries, are offered Rs 100 for every vote they give the local Zamindar who is contesting a State election. Villagers Bharasa and Laxmi, desperately in need of extra money, 'adopt' a terminally ill beggar and attempt to keep him alive until the election so that his vote may fetch them the extra money they require for their son's marriage. The old man's condition deteriorates and they have to carry him through the quarries to hospital. On the way, they blunder onto a dynamite blast which blows the old man to bits. The film demonstrates an exemplary control over its narrative as quarry explosions rend the air, throwing up continuous clouds of acrid dust, and picture cut-outs of the politician-landlord weave through the lives of the villagers like grotesquely surreal comments both on the bizarre situation as well as on the forms of realism usually deployed by Indian film for these themes. The film was briefly denied a censorship certificate, apparently because of an unintended physical resemblance between its fictional politician and the then-Information & Broadcasting Minister.

Pakshey

1994 154' col Malayalam
d Mohan pc Kairali Films p Mohan Kumar
s Cherian Kalpakavadi lyr K. Jayakumar c Saroj Padhy m Johnson lp Mohanlal, Thilakan, Shantikrishna, Shobhana, Venu Nagavalli

When his father dies, the middle-class youth Balachandran (Mohanlal) finds himself faced with unexpected new burdens. He joins the Indian Administrative Service and becomes a minor administrator. He is also forced by his new circumstances to abandon his childhood sweetheart (Shobhana) and marry the daughter (Shantikrishna) of a rich landlord. Many of the 'personal' aspects of the male lead's dilemmas are used to individualize and psychologize the political aspects of a bureaucrat's responsibilities.

Pavithra

1994 138' col d/p/s K. Subhash pc Dhanooja Films lyr Vairamuthu, Pazhani Bharathi c Bernard S. David m A.R. Rehman lp Nasser, Ajit Kumar, S.S. Chandran, Vadivelu, Radhika, Kovai Sarala, Keerthana, Disco Shanti

Pavithra (Radhika) is unable to bear children and transfers her material affection to a terminally ill student in the hospital where she is a nurse. This makes her husband Raghu (Nasser) jealous, further straining their already complicated relationship. The film works mainly on unusually dignified performances by its middle-aged lead couple, both noted Tamil actors.

Nireekshe

1994 113' col Kodava
d/co-p/co-sc/c D. Prasad pc Memorable Movies co-p U. Chandrasena st Chittaranjan co-sc/dial A.C. Kariappa m Vijayakumar lp Nanjundaiah, Bhargavi Narayanan, Madhira Sanju, Mamatha, Addanda C. Kariappa, Achiyanda Aiyappamaiyya, Chendanda Subbaiah, Chekkera Sushila Thyagaraj

Remarkable experimental debut feature in the Kodava dialect from the Coorg region. Set on the eve of Independence, the story covers the night of 13 August 1947, showing a small group of characters in the colonial tea plantation of Chengappa (Nanjundaiah) and his wife. When a British flag is replaced by an Indian one, a police raid ensues. The main story tells of the servant Ponnu (Sanju), his relationship with his employers and with the suffering Kaveri (Mamatha). The most extraordinary aspect of

Parinayam

1994 163' (130') col/scope Malayalam
d T. Hariharan pc Seven Arts p G.P. Vijay Kumar s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr Yusuf Ali Kacheri c S Kumar m Bombay Ravi lp Mohini, Vineeth, Thilakan, Shanthi Krishna, Manoj K. Jayan, Nedumudi Venu, Jagathi Srikumar, Oduvil Unnikrishnan, Sukumari

In 1940s Kerala, the 17 year-old Unnimaya (Mohini) is widowed shortly after she has become the fourth wife of an elderly Namboodiri Brahmin. When she becomes pregnant, the local Brahmins incarcerate her for refusing to name her lover. Her progressive

Prasab

aka The Deliverance
 1994 83' col Bengali
d/s/m Utpalendu Chakraborty p Satarupa Sanyal, Jayanta Bhadury lp Arjun Chakraborty, Sreela Majumdar, Gautam Chakraborty, Satarupa Sanyal

Poignant political melodrama in context of the decline of the Naxalite movement in Calcutta and, following a massive State crackdown, its withdrawal to Bihar. Samiran (A. Chakraborty) is separated from his wife Pritha (Majumdar) when he, along with several CPI(ML) activists, is sentenced to life imprisonment. He enjoins his wife to remarry in the interests of their child's security. When he is released following a change in government, he finds that his colleague has become a rich industrialist, but Pritha, who did not remarry, has continued her struggle as a Communist leader in Bihar. A muted and, by Chakraborty's former standards, more self-consciously melodramatic work, the film has a fine performance by Sreela Majumdar.

☞ Raja Babu

1994 161' col/scope Hindi
d David Dhawan pc Sapna Arts p Nandu G. Tolani st/sc K. Bhagyaraj dial Anees Bazmee lyr Sameer c Rajan Kinagi m Anand-Milind, Amar Halidpur lp Govinda, Karishma Kapoor, Shakti Kapoor, Aruna Irani, Gulshan Grover, Prem Chopra, Kadar Khan

The best-known example of the formula associated with Govinda's starring roles. He plays Raja Babu, the spoiled and wayward son of the rich landlord Kishen Singh (Khan) and a doting mother (Irani). Raja seeks to seduce Madhu (K. Kapoor), which involves, among other stratagems, dressing up like Dharmendra in Dharam Veer (1977). Just before they are to marry Madhu discovers that Raja is illiterate and insults his father by publicly calling off the marriage. Later, Madhu changes her mind, but by then Raja has agreed to marry a girl chosen by his father. Later, Raja's illegitimate birth and the ambitions of the evil Lakhan (Chopra), Raja's Uncle, assisted by Lakhan's son Banke (Grover), trigger the complicated climax as first Raja and then his mother get thrown out of the house before joining forces to defeat the crooks. The film became notorious for its two song hits Aa ee oo/mera dil na todo (with Govinda dressed as a Congress politician and chorus girls who sexily raise their severe white and black-bordered sarees associated with the female workers of the party) and Sarkailo khatiya, both of which led to a major censorship controversy following accusations of obscenity, mainly since they were extensively aired on satellite TV before being submitted to the Indian censor board.

☞ Sainyam

aka The Army
 1994 194' col/scope Malayalam
d Joshi pc Evershine Films p S.S.T. Subramanyam, V. Balaram st/lyr Shibu Chakravarthy sc/dial S.N. Swamy c Jayanan Vincent m S.P. Venkatesh lp Mammootty, Mukesh, Mohini, Priya Raman

A nationalist 'tribute' to the Indian Air Force, continuing a pan-Indian trend of 90s nationalist melodramas (cf. Roja, 1992; 1942: A Love Story, 1994) often valorizing India's armed forces while excoriating Muslim separatists. The intensely nationalist Air Force officer Eeshwar (Mammootty) leads an exclusively Malayali unit stationed in politically turbulent Kashmir. He reluctantly offers shelter to the beautiful Lakshmi (Mohini) when she is deserted by her lover. It later emerges that her cruel lover supports the separatist militants and blackmails her into leaking secrets from Eeshwar's files. Eventually, Eeshwar, with his 'good' Muslim colleague, settles both personal and national scores with the timely help of some reformed Kashmiri terrorists who surrender with a speech committing themselves to peace, education, growth and progress.

☞ Sammohanam

1994 106' col Malayalam
d/p C.P. Padmakumar pc Cine Valley

sc Balakrishnan Mangad c M.R. Radhakrishnan
m Ilaiyaraaja
lp Archana, Murali, Nedumudi Venu, Sarath Das, Radhakrishnan, K.P.A.C. Lalitha, Kukku Parameshwaran, Janu, Kunjani

Mobilising figures and themes from rural Kerala folk forms, especially theyyam, the story set in remote North Kerala centers on a young woman, Pennu ('the girl'), whose sensuality disturbs and destroys the static tranquillity of a village inhabited by character types familiar from village stories and folkloric tales, incarnating an array of vices and virtues: the hardworking sugarcane farmer Chandu (Murali) and his family, their slightly backward helper Ambu (Das), Chindan (Radhakrishnan) who operates a sugar mill and his sister Kunjuni (Parameshwaran), some local drunks, the old Karuvan allegedly possessing magical powers, and the trader Ummini who travels to the city and back, providing the village's link with the outside world, and a consummate storyteller. Ummini and Pennu eventually form a couple, but the turmoil she caused among the locals results in Chindan mistakenly knifing Ambu, the symbol of rural innocence, and drowning himself. Pennu is forced to leave the village in the end, having dislocated it with her sexuality.

☞ Shubhal agnam

1994 145' col Telugu
d/sc/m S.V. Krishna Reddy pc Shri Priyanka Pics p K. Venkateshwara Rao st Bhupathi Raja dial Diwakar Babu lyr Jonavittula, Seetharama Sastry, Gudduru Vishwanatha Sastry c Sarath lp Jagapathi Babu, Aamani, Roja, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Suhasini, Brahmanandam, Gummadi Venkateshwara Rao

Telugu adaptation of Indecent Proposal (1993), reversing the original plot in deference to the insecurities of the targeted male audience. Middle-class protagonist (Babu), unable to satisfy his wife's (Aamani) demands for material comfort, is persuaded by her to take a rich second wife (Roja). It doesn't work out, however, and the happy ending follows after the first wife repents and the second conveniently leaves for the USA.

☞ Sopan

1994 134' col Bengali
d Ajay Bannerjee pc Concept Constructions s/lyr Samiran Datta c Soumendu Roy m Bhupen Hazarika
lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Mamata Shankar, Dipankar Dey, Ajoy Bannerjee, Moon Moon Sen, Sanghamitra Sarkar

The radical filmmaker Niranjana Chakraborty (Chatterjee) witnesses his friend, police officer Ratanlal, commit a murder. The assassinated man is a noted intellectual and Niranjana's erstwhile Communist mentor. In a drunken moment Niranjana discloses what he saw to a young journalist, causing a major political scandal. In the end, he denies having seen anything incriminating and rescues the corrupt officer from a prison sentence. The plot is padded by the journalist turning out to be the filmmaker's illegitimate daughter by an earlier wife (Shankar) who rejected him because of his unprincipled opportunism. The epilogue has the filmmaker win awards, his radical reputation intact. Much of the film depends on local references to actual people and events, e.g. the murder in the film evokes the assassination, during Siddhartha Shankar Ray's ministry, of noted Naxalite poet and intellectual Saroj Dutta by the police which it is commonly believed was actually witnessed by the star Uttam Kumar. The radical filmmaker character is seen as a caricature of Mrinal Sen and Utpal Dutt.

Govinda and Karishma Kapoor in Raja Babu

Target

1994 122' col Hindi
d/m Sandeep Ray pc Creative Entertainment st Prafulla Roy's novel Manusher Juddha
s Satyajit Ray c Barun Raha lp Om Puri, Champa, Mohan Agashe, Anjan Srivastava, Gyanesh Mukherjee

Satyajit Ray's last screenplay tells of a rich Zamindar, Vidhyachal Singh (Agashe), who discovers that his drinking has caused him to lose his renowned hunter and marksman skills. He hires a professional hunter, Bharosa Ram (Puri), an 'untouchable', who is also expected to be the Zamindar's spy in a colony of lower-caste people. Singh insists on taking credit for game that Bharosa has shot. The latter becomes disillusioned and leads a revolt.

Tarpan

1994 140' col Hindi
d/co-sc K. Bikram Singh pc NFDC co-sc Neelabh c Venu m Rajat Dholakia lp Om Puri, Revathi, Manohar Singh, Meeta Vasisth

Ex-bureaucrat Bikram Singh's debut feature is an invented folk legend set in Shekhawati, Rajasthan. When a couple finds their daughter terminally ill, a soothsayer directs them to a distant village where no girls live beyond the age of seven. The cure is to be found in the cleaning of an ancient well, which in turn uncovers numerous past crimes which have to be repented and exorcised before the curse can be lifted. Both the script and camerawork are relentlessly exoticised in the effort to make an orientalist fantasy about superstition.

Thenmavin Kombath

1994 164' col/scope Malayalam
d/s Priyadarshan pc Prasadhi Creations p N. Gopalakrishnan lyr Girish Puthencherry c K.V. Anand m Berny, Ignatius background
m Venkatesh
lp Mohanlal, Shobhana, Nedumudi Venu, Kaviyoor Ponnamma

Frontier melodrama about Kerala's Thazavad manorial system which is based on matrilineal kinship. Sreekrishna (Venu), the brother of the Madambipura House's leader, Yashoda, is extremely friendly with his servant Manikan (Mohanlal). Another servant, Appikala, envious of Manikan's favoured status, is the film's official villain. The Madambipura House is locked in an ancestral rivalry with the equally large establishment run by Ganjimuda Gandhari, which usually finds expression in the bullock cart race at the annual Pongal festival. Both Sreekrishna and Manikan fall in love with the beautiful itinerant theatre actress Karuthambi (Shobhana), causing Manikan to briefly fall out of favour with both Yashoda and the local law. The film's camerawork adopts the glossy style (diffusers and angled lighting calibrated to the exposure of high-speed colour stock) made fashionable by Tamil cinematographer P.C. Sriram. Shot mostly at dawn and dusk, the camerawork creates a glittering fantasy world that in turn determines both plot and performances.

Tunnu Ki Tina

1994 161' col Hindi
d/s Paresh Kamdar pc NFDC lyr Bharat Acharya, Ramesh Shah c K.K. Mahajan m Rajat Dholakia lp Sunil Barve, Rajeshwari, Virendra Saxena, Renuka Shahane, Rohini Hattangadi

Kamdar's debut film avoids the pitfalls of the New Indian Cinema's tendency to rescue 'commercial' films by relying on quotations and an allegedly Brechtian self-reflexiveness (cf. Saeed Mirza, Ketan Mehta). The film tells the tale of a middle-class college youth, Tunnu (Barve), and his unfortunate love life. He first falls for an equally middle-class girl (Shahane), but abandons her when the sexy Tina (Rajeshwari) reassures his narcissism. His adventures are intercut with those of his con-man father (Saxena), a real-estate tout. In the end, the father comes to financial grief, Tunnu's sister elopes with a Shiv Sena-type slumdweller and Tunnu's girlfriend deserts him, leaving him wondering whether she ever existed. Tunnu joins the real-estate business, his optimism undiminished. The film starts with a brief narration of this tale in the 'Hindi movie' idiom, set in a hotel lobby and followed by a chase, before beginning its own story. Its main achievement, via numerous double-takes, resides in the way it reduces the entire business of storytelling to its stereotypical function, forcing viewers constantly to doubt the narrative's truth value even as it wallows in several realist conventions.

Sukrutham

1994 148' col/scope Malayalam
d Harikumar pc Chandrakanth Films
p M.M. Ramachandran s M.T. Vasudevan Nair lyr O.N.V. Kurup c Venu m Bombay Ravi lp Mammootty, Gauthami, Manoj K. Jayan, Shanthi Krishna, Narendra Prasad

Mammootty melodrama recalling the 70s 'cancer-movies'. He plays the terminally ill journalist Rajasekhar, who returns to his village to die, enjoining his young wife (Gauthami) to remarry. However, he is miraculously cured by a new kind of 'wholistic' therapy and has to contend with his wife's growing friendship with his best friend, Rajendran (Jayan). His family in the village is also dismayed by his recovery and, in the end, he kills himself.

Swaham

aka My Owr, Destiny 1994 153' (141') col/b&w Malayalam
d/co-sc Shaji N. Karun pc Filmfolk
p/st/co-sc S. Jayachandran Nair co-sc Raghunath Paleri c Hari Nair m Raghavan K., Isaac Thomas Kottukkapalli lp Venmani Vishnu, Haridas, Aswani, Mullenezhi, Sarath, Gopi, Praseetha, Rudraprathapan, Gopalakrishnan

Stunningly photographed melodrama of a family in Thenmala on the border of Kerala and Tamil Nadu. When the Brahmin Ramayyar (Haridas) dies, his wife (Aswani) has to raise their two children and look after the coffee shop that constitutes their only income. The shop is located near a countryside railway station whose manager offers them support. They are evicted by their landlord (Gopi) and the mother raises money to pay a bribe to get her son enlisted in the army. The son dies in a demonstration protesting against state corruption. A quotation from Kalidasa's Shakuntalam announces the film's intention to offer a new way of narrating a familiar Malayalam film plot, which would include all the detail that is usually discarded from such stories. The images change from colour to b&w as the story moves between the past and present, arriving at a tragic structure that furthers the director's favoured idiom (cf. Piravi, 1988) of characters struggling to come to terms with the emptiness left by death.

Unishe April

1994 138' col Bengali
d/s Rituparno Ghosh pc Spandan Films p Renu Roy c Sunirmal Majumdar m Jyotishka Dasgupta lp Aparna Sen, Debashree Roy, Dipankar Dey, Prasenjit

Ghosh's second feature, a major success, is an Autumn Sonata (Ingmar Bergman, 1978) type melodrama focussing on the differences between a famous mother, the dancer Sarojini (Sen), and her daughter Aditi (Roy), a medical student in Delhi. The daughter, as was her doctor father before her, is unable to handle her mother's sense of independence and fame. Most of the film takes place in a single night in Calcutta as the daughter tries to commit suicide on the anniversary of her father's death. A barrage of dialogue - devoted to showing two major Bengali female stars, Sen and Roy, locked in a histrionic duel - ends only when the two become reconciled, not through any resolution of the major issues involved in their problems, but by reconfirming the filial bond. The film marked a departure from the dominant melodramas of the time which were geared to addressing, in the industry's terms, 'female and rural' audiences rather than the urban middle class habituated to 'modernising' television drama.

Varavu Ettana Sel avu Pathana

1994 173' col Tamil
d/s V. Shekhar pc Thiruvalluvar Films lyr Vali
c Rajendran m Chandrabose lp Nasser, Radhika, Vadivelu, Kovai Sarala, Jaishankar, Senthil

The thrifty middle-class clerk Sivaraman (Nasser) is constantly urged by his wife Lakshmi (Radhika) to earn more so their children can have a better life. When his much-awaited promotion does not arrive, he joins the staff of a politician and member of the state legislature. This implicates him in a major scandal, and he commits suicide with his family. The morbid illustration of middle-class angst proved successful mainly in the semi-urban markets.

Varsha Laxmicha

1994 152' col Marathi
d/sc Madhukar Pathak pc Ravindra Pics p Ravindra Vinayak Joshi lyr Kusumagraj (aka V.V. Shirwadkar), Shanta Shelke c Bal Bapat
m Shridhar Phadke lp Ravindra Mankani, Sukanya Kulkarni, Narendra Pathak, Suhasini Deshpande

Ambitious and elaborately plotted Marathi film set, following an all-India 90s trend, in the years just preceding Independence, mapping the story of a family onto the freedom struggle. Laxmi (Kulkarni) is married when still an adolescent to the previously married Zamindar Vasudeo Inamdar (Mankani). She first tames her errant and macho husband and then becomes a figurehead in the nationalist Congress-led struggle. Individual animosities, mainly with neighbour and village enemy Pandu Tavade, are eventually overcome by her elevation to iconic status.

Wheel Chair

1994 118' col Bengali
d/sc/m Tapan Sinha pc NFDC p Ravi Malik, Dr Debashish Majumdar lyr Rabindranath Tagore c Soumendu Roy lp Soumitra Chatterjee, Arjun Chakraborty, Laboni Sarkar, Manoj Mitra, Ruma Guha-Thakurta

A reformist social extending Sinha's deployment of two key motifs in his work: the perils faced by women when venturing into social space and the redemption of institutions through dedicated individuals exercising middle-class professions. The plot concerns the cure of a young woman whose attempt to escape a gang of rapists, effectively filmed in ominous silence, has left her paralysed. She attends an experimental clinic run by a crippled doctor (Chatterjee) assisted by reformed youths and manages to overcome her traumatic experience.

Yamal eel a

1994 140' col Telugu
d/sc/m S.V. Krishna Reddy pc Manisha Films p/st K. Aatchi Reddy dial Diwakar Babu

lyr Bhuvana Chandra, Jonavittula, Seetharama Sastry c Sarath

lp Ali, Indrajya, Satyanarayana, Brahmanandam, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Balaiah, T. Bharani

Continuing his series of fantasy socials, this hit established director Reddy as a box office champion in '90s Telugu cinema. A youth (comedian-star Ali) discovers a magic book that can predict the future. The book had been lost by Chitragupta (Brahmanandam), the assistant of Yama, god of death (Satyanarayana), and both come to earth in search of it, leading to several comic episodes. One of the more unexpected successes of the year.

Yeh Dil I agi

1994 155' col/scope Hindi
d Naresh Malhotra pc Aditya Films s Sachin Bhowmick lyr Sameer c Raju Kaygee m Dilip Sen, Samar Sen lp Akshay Kumar, Saif Ali Khan, Kajol, Saeed Jaffrey, Reema Lagoo, Anjan Srivastava

Commercially successful comedy featuring the popular star duo of Akshay Kumar and Saif Khan (cf. Main Khiladi Tu Anari, 1994). They play brothers and heirs to the Saigal industries who both fall in love with their driver's (Srivastava) daughter (Kajol) after she transcends class differences by becoming a fashion model. Vijay (Kumar) is the serious-minded one, Vicky (Khan) the compulsive flirt. The film includes the major hit song Ole ole.

AI I du Majaaka

1995 161' col Telugu
d E.V.V. Satyanarayana pc Devi Film Prod p K. Devi Varaprasad st/dial Posani Krishnamurali lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy, Bhuvana Chandra c K.S. Hari m Koti lp Chiranjeevi, Ramya Krishna, Rambha, Laxmi, Giribabu, Brahmanandam, Kota Srinivasa Rao, Ooha, Chinna, Srihari, Chalapathi Rao, Mahesh Anand

A massive censorship controversy transformed this minor success into a major one. Sitaram (Chiranjeevi), the son of a respected village elder, is arrested and condemned to death for murdering a police officer. The villains are Vasundhara (Laxmi) and Kota Peddaiah (Srinivasa Rao). They prevent the hero's pregnant sister (Ooha) from marrying her lover, Peddaiah's son (Chinna). Sitaram escapes from custody and forces Pappi (Ramya), Vasundhara's elder daughter, to marry him, and later masquerades as Mr Toyota, a wealthy expatriate businessman. In this guise he first tries to marry Vasundhara herself, and then her second daughter Bobby (Rambha). Eventually, his true identity revealed, he escapes once again shortly before he is to be hanged, and rescues his sister and parents-in-law (including a now-repentant Vasundhara). In the deliberately voyeuristic finale, he is seen in a bedroom with both sisters Pappi and Bobby. Reminiscent in some ways of Attaku Yamudu Ammayiki Mogudu (1989) and Gharana Mogudu (1992), the film's release was followed by several protests by women's and student groups calling for its ban, and responses by members of Chiranjeevi's fan clubs threatening self-immolation if the film was withdrawn. The main causes of the controversy were the sexually explicit dialogues and the hero's flirtation with his mother-in-law. A dance sequence featuring Chiranjeevi with Laxmi and the two heroines Ramya and Rambha was accused by film critics of indecency. The song, however, was retained and only a few other cuts were imposed by a Censor revising committee.

Amma Donga

1995 149' col Telugu
d Sagar pc Mouli Creations p Bharati Mouli, C.H. Sudhakar Babu st Satyamurthy dial Vinay lyr Veturi Sundara Ramamurthy c V. Srinivasa Reddy m Koti lp Krishna, Soundarya, Aamani, Indrajya, Kota Srinivasa Rao, T. Bharani

The ageing former superstar Krishna's image is reinflated by three heroines in this story about an honest man jailed for a murder he did not commit. He comes out of prison determined to get his revenge. Bizarre sequences include one showing the villains sitting in hell plotting against the hero. Its success re-established Krishna as still one of the most reliable stars in Telugu film.

Ammoru

1995 129' col Telugu
d Kodi Ramakrishna pc M.S. Art Movies
p M. Shyamaprasad Reddy st M.S. Arts Unit dial Satyanand lyr Mallemla c C. Vijayakumar m Chakravarthy, Sri lp Suresh, Soundarya, Ramya Krishna, Baby Sunayana, Rami Reddy, Babu Mohan,
 Chidambaram

The main Telugu box office success of 1995, esp. for its special effects. Bhawani (Soundarya), a lower caste orphan and devotee of the goddess Ammoru, is responsible for the arrest of the evil Gorakh (Reddy). When Gorakh is released from prison, vowing revenge, Bhawani is married to a doctor (Suresh) who happens to be related to the villain. The doctor goes abroad to study, leaving his wife unprotected. When Gorakh's sister Leelamma tries to kill Bhawani, the goddess Ammoru (Ramya) descends to earth and takes the form of Bhawani's maid servant in order to protect her. Gorakh finds a way for the servant to be dismissed, kills Bhawani's infant son and tortures her husband, with the help of the evil spirit Chenda. Eventually the goddess returns, and in a spectacular finale featuring the special effects, kills Gorakh. Beginning with an idiom resembling the mythological, the film transforms into a domestic family drama while maintaining its allegiance to folk legends about female village deities. The big-budget hit was also known for its music often using folk tunes and established the newcomer Soundarya as a major star. A dubbed version in Tamil, Ammari, was also a hit.

Ayanaku Iddaru

1995 167' col Telugu

d E.V. Satyanarayana pc Tulasi-Annapurna Creations s Irukapalli Mohana Rao lyr Bhuvana Chandra, Samavedam Shanmugha Sharma c Adusumilli Vijayakumar m Koti lp Jagapati Babu, Ramya Krishna, Ooha, Satyanarayana, Allam Veerappa, Brahmanandam, Kota Srinivasa Rao, A.V.S. Subramanyam

A successful example of the popular Telugu melodrama associated with Shobhan Babu's 70s-80s work, in which a man has a relationship with two women. Suryam (Jagapati Babu) falls in love with Ramya (Ramya) mistaking her to be the author of an anonymous love letter actually written by her younger step-sister Ooha (Ooha). When Ramya abandons Suryam on the day of their marriage for a career in show business, he marries Ooha instead to save both himself and her family from a scandal. However, she refuses to consummate the marriage in protest. Ramya then returns and accuses her step-sister of having stolen her lover. She camps in the couple's home and tries to seduce Suryam. Despite the havoc caused by Ramya, the married couple is eventually reunited after Ooha attempts to kill herself. The film's main narrative pivot is the symbolic space occupied by Ooha, who, on the one hand, as the embodiment of modernity, refuses a subservient role in the marriage, but who nevertheless is forced to also play the sacrificing woman: a contradiction in most conventional narratives that this film specifically sets out to resolve in its characterisation.

Bangarwadi

1995 124' col/scope Marathi

d/co-sc/co-dial Amol Palekar pc NFDC-Doordarshan st/co-sc/co-dial Vyankatesh Madgulkar based on his novel co-sc/co-dial Chitra Palekar c Debu Deodhar m Vanraj Bhatia

lp Chandrakant, Adhishree Atre, Sushma Deshpande, Chandrakant Kulkarni, Nandu Madhav, Sunil Ranade, Nagesh Bhosle, Hiralal Jain, Kishore Kadam, Upendra Limaye

Palekar's second Marathi film after Aakriet (1981) revisits the classic Marathi tradition of rural melodrama associated with the writer Madgulkar, a genre central to the regionalist imaginary of post-Independence Maharashtra. Set in 1939 in the formerly princely state of Aundh, a young school teacher (Kulkarni) is posted to the hamlet of Bangarwadi, noted for its 'criminal' tribe of Ramoshis and its perennial drought problems. The teacher introduces modernity via a school as well as concepts such as the values of education and communal harmony. However the draught strikes and the villagers leave, but the school teacher stays behind. Chandrakant Mandhre, the noted Marathi star, plays the village headman.

Bombay

1995 134' col/scope Tamil/Hindi

d/s Mani Rathnam pc Aalayam dial Sujata lyr Vairamuthu c Rajiv Menon m A.R. Rehman lp Aravind Swamy, Manisha Koirala, Nasser, Kitty, Radhabai, Tinnu Anand

Controversial melodrama set in the 1993 Bombay riots following the destruction of the Babri Masjid by Hindu zealots in December 1992. In a Tamil village, the Hindu Shekhar (Swamy) falls for a Muslim woman, Shehla Bano (Koirala). When the fathers of both oppose the marriage, the couple elope to Bombay where Shekhar gets a job as a journalist, while Bano gives birth to twin boys. Their personal story is intercut with growing signs of religious fanaticism around them led by saffron-clad members of the Shakti Samaj, an obvious reference to the Shiv Sena. Following the destruction of the mosque, Muslim militants kill two workers, and the Shakti Samaj leader (Anand), referring to Shiv Sena leader Bal Thackeray, leads his party into full-scale reprisals against the city's large Muslim population. Much of the film's second half recreates the riot scenes on sets that replicate their original locations with astonishing fidelity. The couple lose their two children in the riots, who are looked after by a transvestite. In the end, after a fervent pacifist plea by Shekhar, the family is reunited and the secular-minded common folk of both communities pacify the rioters. The film was controversial even before its release, when Amitabh Bachchan, whose company ABCL distributed the Hindi version, sought Thackeray's 'approval' of the film thereby further legitimating his position as an extra-constitutional censor. It was later attacked for its allegedly 'secular' credentials, its misrepresentation of widely reported events in order to blame the Muslims for having started the riots, and for its tendency to equate the 'voice of reason' with Hindu majoritarianism. Ravi Vasudevan (1996) has published an extensive critique of the film and on its reception.

Coolie No. 1

1995 143' col/scope Hindi

d David Dhawan pc Puja Films p Vashu Bhagnani st Amma Creations sc Rumi Jaffrey dial Kadar Khan lyr Sameer c Rajan Kinagi m Anand-Milind, Shyam-Surender lp Govinda, Karishma Kapoor, Harish, Kanchan, Kadar Khan, Shakti Kapoor, Sadashiv Amrapurkar, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Mahesh Anand, Vikas Anand, Mahavir Shah, Tiku Talsania, Shammi

Slapstick comedy by the same director-star team responsible for Raja Babu (1994). Govinda plays Raju, a coolie who falls for the rich Malti (K. Kapoor). Shadiram Gharjode (Amrapurkar), a marriage fixer, sees this as an opportunity to take revenge on Malti's father Hoshiyar Singh (Khan). Raju masquerades as Kunwar Mahendra Pratap, the son of a Bombay-based millionaire (Kharbanda), and marries Malti under false pretences. The rest of the film interweaves Raju's desperate efforts to maintain the masquerade, which includes having to invent a twin brother, with the millionaire's evil son's efforts to kill his father. In the end, the millionaire, saved in hospital by Raju (disguised as a woman), disowns his son and makes Raju his heir. Numerous songs and a large number of stock characters of the by now familiar Dhawan-Govinda genre include comedians Shakti Kapoor as Malti's Uncle who speaks with a lisp and Tiku Talsania as the cop who unravels the whole mystery.

Manisha Koirala and Arvind Swamy in Bombay

Dil wal e Dul hania Le Jayenge

1995 192' col/scope Hindi
d/s Aditya Chopra p Yash Chopra dial Javed Siddiqui lyr Anand Bakshi c Manmohan Singh m Jatin-Lalit lp Kajol, Shah Rukh Khan, Farida Jalal, Amrish Puri, Anupam Kher, Satish Shah

1995's top-grossing Hindi film following on from the successful Hum Aapke Hain Koun ...! (1994). Choudhury Baldev Singh (Puri) is a London-based newsagent pining for his native Punjab. He wants to return to his roots by forcing his daughter Simran (Kajol) to marry the son of his old friend (Shah), whom neither has met for 20 years. Simran goes on a European tour before going to India, but there she meets and falls for Raj (Khan). This causes her tyrannical father to uproot his family overnight and return to Punjab, where he is received by dancing peasants in waving paddy fields. However, Raj turns up there and promises to rescue Simran from her intended marriage, but only with the approval of their respective parents. To achieve this, he inveigles himself into the household under a range of masquerades and false promises, until, having made the scheduled marriage impossible, he wins the girl from her reluctant father. As with HAAK, this film also allows for a limited space within the terms of a feudal patriarchy where young people may aspire to a kind of watered-down version of modern subjectivity, represented in consumerist terms, before 'returning to the fold'. An alternative reading of the film could see it as chronicling the hero's passage from British-Asian diaspora into traditional Indian patriarchy, with the love story (despite the film's slogan, 'Come, fall in love!') simply sugar-coating the prescription. A remarkable feature of the film is the elimination of e.g. the staple Bachchan formula of the State as a contested site, being replaced here by an unproblematic subsumption of feudal patriarchy into 'postmodern' globalisation and the selling of 'authentic' identity as something that can only be achieved via consumerism.

Doghi

1995 164' col Marathi
co-d/s Sumitra Bhavé co-d Sunil Sukhtankar pc NFDC-Doordarshan lyr N.D. Manohar c Charudatt Dukhande m Anand Modak lp Renuka Daftardar, Uttara Baokar, Sonali Kulkarni, Sadashiv Amarapurkar, Suryakant, Madhu Kambikar, Parth Umanan

Debut feature by sociologist and NGO activists Bhavé and Sukhtankar, known earlier for their short film Chakori (1992). Two sisters from a poor rural family sustain their relationship in the face of a variety of problems. Their parents (Suryakant, Baokar) are wage labourers who also attempt to till their piece of infertile land. Gauri (Daftardar), whose marriage is abandoned when the groom dies, ends up a prostitute in order to pay for her sister Krishna's (Kulkarni) future and her family's maintenance.

Gul abi

1995 138' col/scope Telugu
d/s Krishna Vamsy pc Varma Creations/Amitabh Bachchan Corporation Ltd. p Ram Gopal Varma dial Nadimetti Narasinga Rao lyr Sitarama Sastry c Rasool m Shashi Preetham lp J.D. Chakravarthi, Maheshwari, Jeeva, Chandramohan, Banerjee

A woman (Maheshwari) is 'sold' to a prostitution ring by hero's (Chakravarthi) friend, but is rescued by the hero just before she is to be forcibly married to a Dubai-based Sheikh. Produced by Varma and directed by Vamsy, considered a leading member of the Varma school of filmmaking, the bare plot is substantiated by a fast-moving screenplay eliminating conventional melodrama and targeting a new urban youth audience. The film's success brought its lead pair and director into prominence in Telugu film.

Hagr amayaoj inahari aka Rape in the Virgin Forest 1995 73' col Bodo

d/p/s Jwngdao Bodosa pc Bodosa Int.
co-sc H. Barahma, Narzary, M. Hajowary, M. Basumatary m Rajeshwar Barahma lp Tikendrajit Nazary, Onjali Basumatary

Melodrama in the North Eastern Bodo dialect about a woodcutter, Budan, who is forced into crime in order to pay for his daughter's dowry. He ends up under the thumb of a gang of urban goons who rape the daughter.

Indira

1995 143' col Tamil
d/co-s Suhasini pc G.V. Films co-s Mani Rathnam lyr Vairamuthu c Santosh Sivan
m A.R. Rehman
lp Aravind Swamy, Anuradha Hasan, Ashwini, Nasser, Radha Ravi

Tamil star Suhasini's directorial debut, scripted by her husband Mani Rathnam. Set in still feudal Southern Tamil Nadu, the film tells of the feud between the evil landlord Kotamarayar (Ravi) and the villagers of Maranur, whom he drives to a less fertile area across a river. The villagers are led by Sethupathy (Nasser), married to the villain's sister and excommunicated for that reason. When Sethupathy is killed by the landlord, his daughter Indira (Hasan) takes over the leadership of the village, with the encouragement of her urban lover (Swamy). In the film's climax, when a flood threatens the portion of the village occupied by the upper-caste sections, Indira succeeds in establishing a humanitarian relationship transcending caste differences and set to the chant Inni achcham achcham illai, inni adimai ennam illai (There is no more fear, there is no thought of slavery).

Itihas

aka Exploration
 1995 101' col Assamese
d/s Bhabendranath Saikia pc Rupkamal
c Kamal Nayak m Indreshwar Sharma lp Nikumani Barua, Tapan Das, Biju Phukan, Mridula Barua

Modernisation melodrama in urban Assam about the impoverished family of the widowed Sarala who owns a piece of land coveted by the greedy property developer Kishorilal. Her sons fall prey to his financial pressure and her daughter is killed.

Kahini

1995 105' col Bengali
d/p/co-st Malay Bhattacharya pc Movie Mill co-p Chandramala Bhattacharya co-sc Shyamal Sengupta c Sunny Joseph m Debajyoti Mishra

Anupam Kher (left), Shah Rukh Khan (centre) and Kajol (right) in Dilwale Dulhania Le Jayenge

lp Dhritiman Chatterjee, Debesh Roy Choudhury, Debashish Goswami, Robi Ghosh, Anuradha Ghatak, Suranjana Dasgupta, Soumomoy Bakshi, Neelkantha Sengupta

Innovative debut feature by the TV producer and designer Bhattacharya in the tradition of Chakraborty's Kaal Abhirati (1989) and Vishwanathan's Sunya Theke Suru (1993). The story, told with a very sparse soundtrack, revolves around three characters, a kind of intellectual (Chatterjee), a taxi driver and a billboard painter, who drug and kidnap a child (hanging on to a notion of childhood) and set out for the countryside in their blue Ambassador car, initiating India's first explicit attempt at a road movie. The genre's obligatory quota of 'strange encounters' demarcate two major sequences: a villager who has poisoned his entire family and is caught before he can commit suicide, and the monologue of a petrol station attendant. The kidnappers shelter in an old house where they unsuccessfully try to revive the unconscious infant, which dies, causing the trio to disintegrate. A parallel theme deals with a peasant family blissfully optimistic about finding a cure for their crippled son. The film ends with the acrobatic rehearsals, in the rain, of a travelling circus group introduced earlier as a kind of choral motif.

Karan Arjun

1995 175' col/scope Hindi
d/p Rakesh Roshan pc Film Kraft st/sc Sachin Bhowmick, Ravi Kapoor dial Anwar Khan lyr Indivar c Kaka Thakur m Rajesh Roshan lp Raakhee, Salman Khan, Shah Rukh Khan, Kajol, Mamta Kulkarni, Amrish Puri, Ranjeet, Ashok Saraf, Johnny Lever

The Hindi hit of 1995 is a remarkably scripted drama combining at least four genres: a Kali mythological, a reincarnation drama, a modernisation melodrama and a Sholay (1975) kind of Western. At some time in the past in Rajasthan, shown before the credit titles, Karan (Salman Khan) and Arjun (Shah Rukh Khan), the sons of Durga (Raakhee), are killed by the evil Durjan Singh (Puri). Durjan Singh had earlier killed their father and grandfather and appropriated the family's ancestral property. However, Kali responds to Durga's pleas and the dead sons are reborn as the streetfighter Ajay and the stable boy Vijay. The plot becomes complicated when a 'modernised' Durjan Singh, his villainy intact, becomes an arms smuggler in partnership with Mr Saxena (Ranjeet), whose daughter Sonia (Kajol) loves Vijay although she is supposed to marry Durjan Singh's equally villainous son, Suraj. However, troubled as well as invigorated by memory flashes stemming from their earlier incarnations, Ajay and Vijay in the end unite with their mother to defeat the evil gang. The film had a series of hit songs, e.g. Yeh janmon ka bandhan hai (its leitmotif spanning the generational divide) and Jaati hun main/Jaldi hai kya, picturised on Kajol and Shah Rukh Khan.

Kathapurushan

1995 107' col Malayalam
d/sc/co-p Adoor Gopalakrishnan pc Japan Broadcasting Corporation NHK, Adoor Gopalakrishnan Prod. co-p Tokiuchi Ogawa c Ravi Varma m Vijayabhaskar
lp Vishwanathan, Mini, Aranmula Ponnamma, Urmila Unni, Jagannatha Varma, Narendra Prasad, Babu Namboodiri, Lalitha, Ravi Vallathol, Mukesh, P.C. Soman

A dramatisation of Kerala's history since the onset of the Independence struggle, this film narrates the life of Kunjunni (Vishwanathan), perennially pining for his absent father but warmly looked after by the women in his family, and especially close to a servant's daughter, Meenakshi (Minni). Uncle Vasu (Prasad) is the activist in the family, first as a Gandhian independence fighter, then as member of the Kerala Communist Party. At university, Kunjunni also turns towards the CP and witnesses the first-ever democratic election of a Communist government in 1959. However, the government's land reform measures drastically impoverish his family. Turning to a Maoist group and taking part in their naxalite insurgent activities including terrorist attacks, Kunjunni is eventually arrested and tortured by the police until a court confirms his innocence and orders his release. The disillusioned Kunjunni then establishes a life of quiet domesticity with Meenakshi until the wayward uncle re-emerges, now dressed in saffron robes and claiming to have espoused a life of spiritual values, all of which does not prevent him from making serious financial claims on Kunjunni. The solution arrives when a rich parvenu buys Kunjunni's house. The film depicts with finely judged, dramatic and occasionally ironic tones the twists and turns in Kerala's recent history and its elaboration of a democratic social system.

Kazhacam

1995 95' col Malayalam
d/co-s M.P. Sukumaran Nair pc Rachana Films p T.N. Sukumaran co-s M. Sukumaran c Ashwini Kaul m Jerry Amaldev, Kaithapram lp Urvashi, Nedumudi Venu, P.C. Soman, Valsala Menon, Ravi Vallathol, Kukku Parameshwaran, Mullanezhi, Mukundan, Master Mohan

Nair, having worked with Gopalakrishnan, returns to the mother-son relationship adumbrated in his first feature Aparahnam (1990), with this bitterly ironic tale of a woman's religious mania, a variation on the theme of Radha and Krishna. The poor villager Radha (Urvashi) becomes unbalanced with grief when her husband and son die. Going to live with her mother (Menon), the two women derive some income from pilgrims visiting the local temple, an institution representing a complex knot of contradictory currents: indolence and moral corruption in the shape of its guardians (Venu, Mullanezhi) as well as traditional ideologies while remaining an important conduit for contact with outsiders. When the teacher Nandini (Parameshwaran) arrives to visit the temple with her young son Kannan (Mohan), the distraught Radha latches on to the son imagining him to be Krishna. When Kannan falls ill and dies, Radha's delusional mania, the only source available to her in an impossibly constricted and oppressed situation, overwhelms her.

Kurudhippunal

1995 156' col/scope Tamil
d/s P.C. Sriram pc Rajkamal Films p Charuhasan/Kamalahasan st Govind Nihalani sc/dial Kamalahasan m Mahesh lp Kamalahasan, Arjun, Nassar, Gauthami, Geetha, Ravi, K. Vishwanath

Kamalahasan's Tamil remake of Nihalani's Drohkaal (1994). The original story, featuring the conflict between a cop and a terrorist, is reformulated with allusions to CPI(ML) rebels in Tamil Nadu. The relocation involves an even more sensational melodrama, exemplified by blowing up a bus full of school children singing Sare jahan se achha (a hymn valorizing the Indian nation), as well as Kamalahasan's own further psychologisation of the Om Puri role. Arjun plays the Naseeruddin Shah character and Nassar the dreaded terrorist Bhadra (Ashish Vidyarthi in the original). In remaking a familiar and extensively distributed Hindi film, Kurudhippunal reverses the trend of translating local language hits into bigger-budget Hindi movies for a nationwide audience, indicating how the success of Mani Rathnam's Tamil films changed the industry's view of cultural imperatives. The film was dubbed into Telugu as Drohi.

Limited Manuski

1995 104' col Marathi
d/sc Nachiket/Jayoo Patwardhan pc NFDC, Doordarshan st/dial Shyam Manohar c Navroze Contractor m Milind Chitnavis lp Rajit Kapoor, Gopika Sahani, Ganesh Yadav, Sudhir Joshi, Kishore Kadam, Ravindra Mankani, Meera Panshikar, Purnima Pendse, Lalita Pawar, Nilu Phule

Comedy set in the Maharashtrian lower middle-classes. Bank clerk Sadanand accidentally runs his motorised bicycle into a funeral procession for an infant child. Two members of the procession, Shrirang and Govind, believe that in this accident Sadanand has 'wounded the soul' of the dead baby. For most of the film, the two try to beat up Sadanand, while Sadanand, with the help of his pregnant wife Urmila, fends off this threat. The film introduces a number of characters into this process, and ends when it is revealed that the bereaved parents of the dead infant in the film's beginning are expecting another baby.

Naan Petha Magane

1995 127' col Tamil
d/s V. Shekhar pc Kannappan lyr Vali
c Rajendran m Chandra Bose
lp Nizhalgal Ravi, Urvashi, Radhika, Manorama, Kovai Sarala, Radhabai

When Andal's (Manorama) only son Ravi (Ravi) grows up, she dominates every aspect of his life fearing that he might fall for a modern woman who, in turn, might threaten Andal's control over her domestic space. She makes her son marry Uma Maheshwari (Urvashi), a docile maid-servant. When Uma demonstrates some tendencies towards independence, Andal forces her daughter-in-law to commit suicide. Andal is arrested, but acquitted in court even though her own son believes her guilty. Although initially received with some protest, the film went on to become a major hit mainly with urban middle class audiences responding e.g. to Uma's dialogues to her mother-in-law like 'Since you feed and dress and bathe your son, why do you give me the mangalsutra, you could have worn it yourself' (i.e. you could have married your son).

Pazhanisamy (Sivakumar), a noted performer. When Parijatham returns to the stage, in order to pay her husband's debts, her insecure husband throws her out, forcing her to return to her mother (Manorama). The husband later wins custody of their son Velusami. When the son grows up and learns the truth, he abandons his father. Pazhanisamy, faced with a bitter feud with the village headman, later appeals to his estranged wife to help him in a climactic dance-duel, which she eventually wins after her husband's death. Billed after a long gap as an Ilaiyaraaja solo, the film's earthy folk music - notably the song Othe roova tharen ('I shall give you a rupee') - proved the most successful of the year in Tamil film.

Pics. p Mohan Babu st/sc K.S. Ravikumar dial Satyamurthy, lyr Bhuvana Chandra, Sri Harsha, Samavedam Shanmugha Sharma
c K.S. Prakash m Koti lp Mohan Babu, Bhanupriya, Rajnikant, Soundarya

Feudal melodrama and one of the big successes of the Telugu cinema. Tamil star Rajnikant plays a small role of a benevolent village chief who is killed by his brother-in-law and nephew (the film's villains). His two sons (both played by Mohan Babu) grow up as orphans, with the elder brother raising the younger. The two fall apart when the elder son becomes the village chief, while the younger - accused of a crime he did not commit - is banished from the village. Later, when a second feud develops between the two families, the younger brother returns to avenge his father's death, while the elder brother as well as his wife (Bhanupriya) die.

Naseem

1995 89' col Hindi
d/co-sc Saeed Akhtar Mirza pc NFDC/Doordarshan co-sc/dial Ashok Mishra
c Virendra Saini m Vanraj Bhatia lp Kaifi Azmi, Mayuri Kango, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Surekha Sikri, Lalit Mohan Tiwari, Salim Shah

Understated but intense family drama set in June-December 1992, the days preceding the demolition of the Babri Masjid on Dec 6 by Hindutva fanatics. Naseem (Kango) is a schoolgirl belonging to a middle-class Bombay-based Muslim family. She enjoys a warm relationship with her aged, ailing grandfather (Azmi). With increasing horror and foreboding, the family watches on their television set the news of the build-up at Ayodhya while the grandfather regales Naseem with poetry and stories of life in pre-Independence Agra, shown in several flashbacks. Naseem's brother Mushtaq (Shah) tends towards desperate, possibly terrorist measures of resistance which pushes him towards Muslim fundamentalist circles. The family feels increasingly beleaguered by saffron-waving mobs and the police who infest all public spaces. The grandfather dies on December 6th, his death coinciding with the news of the mosque's destruction. The film's major feature, in addition to its finely judged creation of moods and its admirably controlled performances, is noted poet and former radical Azmi playing the grandfather, providing not just a reminder but a literal embodiment of the cultural traditions that were at stake in those tragic days.

Nattupura Pattu

1995 ? col Tamil
d/p/s/lyr Kasturiraja c Kichaas m Ilaiyaraaja lp Khushboo, Manorama, Sivakumar

1995's surprise hit in Tamil was a low-budget ruralist 'folk' movie extensively featuring traditional narrative and performative forms including the karagam, kavadi, oyil, nayandi, komali etc., mounted in deliberate contrast to the post-Mani Rathnam emphasis on glossy technologically driven spectacles. Parijatham (Khushboo), a popular karagam dancer, wants to continue dancing even after her marriage to

Nirnayam

1995 165' col/scope Malayalam
d/sc Sangeeth Sivan pc Gayathri Prod./Sithara Combines p Suresh Balaji st/dial Cheriyan Kalpakavadi lyr Girish Puthencheri c Santosh Sivan m S.P. Venkatesh lp Mohanlal, Heera, Lalu Alex, Soman, Ratheesh

The honest surgeon Dr Roy (Mohanlal) falls for the U.S.-returned Dr Annie (Heera). When Annie discovers a frightening organ-smuggling racket in her hospital, she is killed and Roy framed for her murder. However, on his way to jail, he escapes when the police van is hit by a train. A fugitive from justice, he tries to find out the truth, eventually helped by a police officer (Alex) who shoots the bad guy. The Sivan brothers' team of director and cameraman combine to make a technically efficient thriller taking its cue from the film version of the television series The Fugitive. The Hindi version directed by Mahesh Bhatt was called The Criminal (1994).

Ormakal undayirikkanam aka Memories and Desires

1995 91' col Malayalam
d/s T.V. Chandran pc Navadhara p Salim Karassery c Venu m Johnson lp Mammooty, Gopi, Nedumudi Venu, Srinivasan, Priyambada Ray, Nitin

Chandran's follow-up to the hit Ponthan Mada (1993) addresses a small community in rural Kerala when the first Communist government was dismissed in 1959 by Nehru's Central government after two years in power. Told through the eyes of a small boy, Jayan (Nitin), the film contrasts his relationship with the larger-than-life Communist supporter Bhasi (Mammooty) to that with his tyrannical, Congress-supporting father (Venu). A second father-figure is provided by the mad scientist Thakaran (Gopi) who promises the end of the world. The dismissal of the government and Bhasi's arrest coincides with Thakaran's death, as well as with Jayan's own symbolic revenge against his father when he throws a bowl of curry in the patriarch's face.

Peda Rayudu

1995 165' col Telugu
d Raviraja Pinisetty pc Shri Lakshmi Prasanna

Raja

1995 168' col/scope Hindi
d/co-p Indra Kumar pc Maruti International co-p Ashok Thakeria sc Rajiv Kaul, Praful Parekh dial Tanveer Khan lyr Sameer c Baba Azmi m Nadeem Shrivani, Naresh Sharma lp Sanjay Kapoor, Madhuri Dixit, Mukesh Khanna, Dalip Tahil, Rita Bhaduri, Mushtaq Khan, Adi Irani, Paresh Rawal

Raja (Kapoor) supports his elder brother Brijnath (Rawal) when the latter's business empire is ruined by a fire and he is crippled. The film's villain, Ranasaab (Khanna), had promised his daughter Madhu (Dixit) to Raja when Brijnath was rich, but now callously refuses to let the young couple meet and perpetrates all manner of evil. As adults, Raja and Madhu meet and fall for each other again and eventually marry while bringing the villains to book. Dixit outperforms hero Kapoor with numerous solo 'highlights' - Manmohan Desai's phrase for autonomous vignettes with little relation to plot and designed mainly to showcase the star's versatility - and two major song hits, Nazrein mili and Akhiyan milao. Indra Kumar's third hit in a row (after Dil, 1990, and Beta, 1992) made Dixit, by way of Hum Aapke Hain Koun...! (1994), for a brief period into the most valuable star in the Hindi cinema.

Rangeela

1995 144' col/scope Hindi
d/p/s Ram Gopal Varma pc Varma Creations dial Neeraj Vora, Sanjay Chhel lyr Mehboob
c W.B. Rao m A.R. Rehman lp Urmila Matondkar, Aamir Khan, Jackie Shroff, Gulshan Grover, Avtar Gill, Achyut Potdar, Reema, Shammi, Rajesh Joshi

Varma's first Hindi venture is remembered mainly as the sensational introduction of former child actress Matondkar (e.g. Shekhar Kapur's Masoom, 1982) as the Hindi cinema's most recent sex symbol. Playing an out-of-work movie actress, she is discovered by a major star (Shroff) who introduces her into the film industry. This leads to problems when her boyfriend (Khan), a lower-class Bombay youth who sells movie tickets in the black market, finds it difficult to cope with her success. The film is dominated by its several Rehman-composed song hits, amongst the biggest in the '90s in Hindi, e.g. Aayi re (sung by Asha Bhosle) and Tanha tanha, shot with considerable energy and inventiveness.

Amir Khan and Urmila Matondkar in Rangeela

⊗ Sisindri

1995 151' col Telugu
d/s Sivanageshwara Rao pc Great India
p Akkineni Nagarjuna lyr Seetharama Sastry c Teja m Raj lp Nagarjuna, Master Akhil, Aamani, T. Bharani, Sudhakar, Giribabu

Successful remake of Hollywood's Baby's Day Out (1994), produced by its lead star and featuring his real-life son Akhil. An infant child gives his kidnappers a difficult time. Following a growing trend in Telugu cinema which proclaims a philanthropic intention for basically commercial film ventures, the film announced that all profits would go to the Blue Cross Society.

includes scenes in which, faced by a rape attempt from her husband, she threatens to kill him, and ends when he, chastised by his wife's initiative, finally 'accepts' her as an equal. The director's earlier Lathi (1992) had been critiqued for betraying an excessive influence of his mentor Ram Gopal Varma. That influence continues to be in evidence in the depiction of a lavishly shot, low-lit world of domesticity. The domestic here is curiously shut off from the world outside, emphasising instead its effort to suture female sexuality and woman's economic independence into a traditionalising narrative about the 'new' woman in the context of a consumerist middle-class. It also had a successful musical score.

⊗ Sati Leelavathi

1995 151' col Tamil
d/sc/c Balu Mahendra pc Rajkamal Film Intl. st Ananthu dial 'Crazy' Mohan lyr Vali
m Ilaiyaraja
lp Ramesh Aravind, Raja, Kalpana, Kamalahasan, Kovai Sarala, Heera

The married Arunachalam (Aravind) falls for Priya (Heera) to the distress of his wife Leelavathi (Kalpana). When Arunachalam moves out of his home and starts living with Priya, Leelavathi employs the services of her husband's childhood friend Shaktivel (Kamalahasan), Shaktivel's wife Pazhani (Sarala) and Priya's ex-boyfriend Raja (Raja) who wants Priya back. An adaptation of Susan Seidelman's She-Devil (1989), the film shares none of Roseanne Barr's agency in establishing her own identity while destroying her husband's; Mahendra's more conventionally melodramatic alternatives were geared to middle-class acceptance and ensured the film's success.

⊗ Sogasu Chooda Thar ama

1995 144' col/scope Telugu
d/s Gunasekhar pc Snehanidhi Films p K. Ramgopal dial Ajay Santhi lyr Seetharama Sastry, G. Vishwanatha Sastry c Sekhar Joseph m Ramani-Prasad
lp Naresh, Indrajya, Annapurna, Tanikella Bharani

When a lowly paid engineer (Naresh) finds himself in debt as a result of his lavish lifestyle, his wife (Indrajya) bails him out by starting a home-based saree-dyeing business. Earlier, the independent yet traditionalist character of the wife was established when she offered her future husband a dowry that she raised against a personal bank loan. The 'offbeat' film

⊗ Stree

1995 93' (86') col Telugu
d/sc K.S. Sethumadhavan pc NFDC-Doordarshan st Palagummi Padmaraju
c S. Saravanan m L. Vaidyanathan lp Vijay, Rohini

Following the failure of the megabudget Nammavar (1994), Sethumadhavan returned to his alternative arthouse image for this film of Padmaraju's story. The folk performer Paddalu (Vijay) finds himself forced into petty crime when he is culturally marginalised by the TV and film industries. He is reformed by Rangi (Rohini), but the two are plunged further into illegalities, for which Rangi's explanations become increasingly surreal as she presents them to the author, the only remaining sympathetic figure.

Taj Mahal

1995 156' col Telugu

d/s Muppalaneni Siva pc Shri Suresh Prod.

p D. Rama Naidu dial Jandhyala

lyr C. Narayana Reddy, Chandra Bose, Bhuvana

Chandra, Seetharama Sastry c Chota K. Naidu

m Srilekha

lp Srikanth, Sanghvi, Monica Bedi, Nutan

Prasad, D. Rama Naidu

Successful low-budget love story focussing on the problem of a woman's religion. The Hindu hero (Srikanth) falls for a Muslim woman (Bedi) while on a college excursion to Agra to see the Taj Mahal. Attempting to woo her, he gets beaten up instead by her Muslim step-brother. Her stepfather (Prasad), a migrant from Andhra Pradesh, reveals to her that she is not in fact his daughter, but of Hindu parentage. In her subsequent effort to trace her family, it is revealed that the hero is in fact distantly related to her, and the two marry after a complicated melodramatic plot.

Trimurti

1995 187' col/scope Hindi

d Mukul S. Anand pc Mukta Arts p Subhash

Ghai sc Karan Razdan dial Anees Bazmee

lyr Anand Bakshi c Ashok Mehta

m Laxmikant-Pyarelal

lp Jackie Shroff, Shah Rukh Khan, Anil

Kapoor, Mohan Agashe, Saeed Jaffrey, Priya

Tendulkar, Gauthami, Anjali Jathar

Multistar production by Ghai, re-valorizing the feudal mother-figure in 1990s consumerist religiosity. Satya (Tendulkar) goes to jail when she is framed by the Kali-worshipping mystic Kooka Singh (Agashe). Her three sons grow up, one an army officer (Shroff), the other two (Kapoor and Khan) in the pay of the villain. In the end, the unity of the clan is restored when the heroes fulfil their mother's pledge. The film was one of the most expensive and most extensively marketed productions in Hindi cinema in 1995. Its commercial failure underscored the exhaustion of the genre, itself a compendium of previous Ghai productions, this time presented in Dolby sound and computer-aided special effects.

Yuganta

aka What the Sea Said

1995 135' col Bengali

d/s Aparna Sen pc NFDC c A. Shashikant,

Dilip Verma m Jyotishka Dasgupta lp Anjan Dutta, Rupa Ganguly, Pallavi

Chatterjee, Kunal Mitra

Mapping political and environmental concerns upon a domestic melodrama, Sen's most recent film occasionally borders on the surreal. An estranged couple, advertising executive Deepak (Dutta) and classical dancer Anusuya (Ganguly), return to a fishing village where they had spent their honeymoon. Their past life is told through a series of flashbacks, while the sea, polluted by rampant consumerism, appears to symbolise their present condition. A flashback reveals that Anusuya had fought a major industrial house on behalf of environmental activists, but later capitulated when that institution funded her dance school. 'Global' issues such as the gulf war and the rise of market capitalism are presented as impacting local and even personal problems. This relationship is graphically realised in the film's end when a blazing sea, into which Deepak disappears, is connected to the gulf war oil slick. The apocalyptic end had been foretold by an old fisherman earlier in the story. Among those who publicly praised the film included major Bengali poet Shankho Ghosh, who commended its poetic sensibility, and novelist Debesh Roy who noted its independence from storytelling and Satyajit Ray-school filmmaking.

Kadhal Desam

1996 158' col/scope Tamil

d/s Kadir pc Gentleman Film Intl.

p K.T. Konjumon lyr Vali c Anandh

m A.R. Rehman

lp Vineet, Abbas, Tabu,

S.P. Balasubramanyam, Srividya

Producer K.T. Konjumon's follow up to his earlier spectacles Gentleman (1993) and Kadhalan (1994), which had introduced the genre of the megabudget musical into 90s Tamil film, is a 'teen' movie featuring a love triangle framed by rivalry between two men's colleges focused on sport and sexual conquest. The impoverished intellectual Karthik (Vineet) and the rich Arun (Abbas) are rivals who get bonded together when Arun saves Karthik's life and Karthik, in turn, lets Arun score the winning goal in a football match. Both fall for Divya (Bombay star Tabu), but she only sees them as friends and refuses to choose between them. When a student from yet another college tries to molest Divya, reprisals lead to full-scale war between three colleges as students set most of the city on fire. Eventually the triangle is maintained in favour of collective friendship. Set in two well known colleges, Loyola and Pachaiyappa's, in Madras, its mention of both institutions led to protests from the students of these colleges.

- Abbas, Khwaja Ahmad, I Am Not An Island: An Experiment in Autobiography, New Delhi: Vikas Publishing, 1977.
- , 'Supreme Court Judgment on A Tale of Four Cities', Screen, Bombay, 4, 11 and 18 December, 1970.
- , How Films are Made, New Delhi: National Book Trust, 1977.
- , Mad, Mad World of Indian Films, New Delhi: Hind Pocket Books, 1977.
- , Mera Naam Joker, New Delhi: Hind Pocket Books, s.d.
- Abraham, John, John Parayumu, Vadakara: Odessa Pravartagar, 1987 (Malayalam).
- Acharya, R. N., Television in India: A Sociological Study of Policies and Perspectives, Delhi: Manas Publishers, 1987.
- Adarsh, B. K. (ed.), Film Industry of India, Bombay: Trade Guide Publications, 1963.
- Agarwal, Binod C., Joshi, S. R. and Sinha, Arabind (eds), Communication Research for Development: The ISRO Experience, Delhi-Ahmedabad: Concept Publishing-DECU, ISRO, 1986.
- , Satellite Instructional Television Experiment: Television Comes to Villages, Bangalore: ISRO, 1978.
- , Television Studies in India: The State of the Art, unpublished paper, 1985.
- Agarwal, Prahlad, Adhi Hakikat Adha Phasana, New Delhi: Radhakrishna Prakashan, 1984 (Hindi).
- Agnihotri, Ram Avtar, Artists and their Films of Modern Hindi Cinema: Cultural and Socio-Political Impact on Society, 1931-1991, 3 vols, New Delhi: Commonwealth Publishers, 1992.
- , Social and Political Study of Modern Hindi Cinema: Past, Present and Future Perspectives, New Delhi: Commonwealth Publishers, 1990.
- Agyaat, Dr, Bharatiya Rangabhoomika Vivechanatmak Itihas, Kanpur: Pustak Sansthan, 1978 (Hindi).
- Ahmad, Aijaz, In Theory: Classes Nations Literatures, London: Verso, 1992.
- Ahmed, Akbar S., 'Bombay Films: The Cinema as Metaphor for Indian Society and Politics', Modern Asian Studies, vol. 26, no. 2, May 1992.
- Akhtar, Javed and Khan, Salim, Amar Akbar Anthony, Ahmedabad: Guide Pocket Books, 1977.
- Alekar, Vasant, Chanderi Baat-Cheet, Bombay: Rohan Prakashan, 1986 (Marathi).
- Ali, Abdul (ed.) Mehboob Revisited, Bombay: Cine Society, 1977.
- , New Theatres, Bombay: Cine Society, 1979.
- , 70 Years of Sangeet Samrat Naushad, Bombay: Cine Society, s.d.
- , A Session of Abbas Films, Bombay: Cine Society, 1986.
- , A Session of Kardar Films, Bombay: Cine Society, 1990.
- , A Session of Prakash Films, Bombay: Cine Society, 1984.
- , Devika Rani Retrospective, Bombay: Cine Society, 1982.
- , Fearless Nadia, Bombay: Cine Society, 1993.
- , J. B. H. Wadia, Bombay: Cine Society, 1987.
- , Phani Majumdar, Bombay: Cine Society, 1992.
- Ali, Imran, The Punjab under Imperialism, 1885-1947, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1989.
- Amin, Shahid and Chakrabarty, Dipesh (eds.), Subaltern Studies IX, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1997.
- Amin, Shahid, 'Gandhi as Mahatma: Gorakhpur District, Eastern U. P., 1921-2' in R. Guha (ed.), Subaltern Studies III, 1984.
- Amur, G. S., A. N. Krishnarao, Makers of Indian Literature Series, New Delhi: Sahitya Akademi, 1983.
- Anandan, 'Filmnews' (ed.), Thiraikkalai Thoguppu, Madras: Sivagami Publications, 1978 (Tamil).
- Anandur, Satyamurthy, Singeetham Srinivasa Rao, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Ananthamurthy, Sindhuvali, Gubbi Company, Mysore: Suruchi Prakashana, 1979 (Kannada).
- Anvalikar, Sudhakar, Bhulaye Na Bane, Bombay: Aarti Prakashan, 1984 (Hindi).
- Apte, M. L. (ed.), Mass Culture, Language and Arts in India, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1978.
- Apte, Shanta, Jau Mi Cinemaat?, Bombay: B. Govind, 1940 (Marathi).
- Aravindan, G., Cheriy Manushyarum Valiya Lokavum, Trivandrum: Bees Books, 1978 (Malayalam).
- Archer, Mildred Indian Popular Paintings in the India Office Library, London: HMSO, 1977.
- Archer, W. G., Bazaar Paintings of Calcutta, London: Victoria and Albert Museum, 1953.
- , Kalighat Drawings, Bombay: Marg Publications, 1962.
- Arora, Poonam, 'The Woman Caught between The Home and The World: The Erotics of Regionalism and Nationalism in Satyajit Ray's Film', unpublished paper, 1992.
- Athavale, Shantaram, 'Prabhat' Kaal, Pune: Venus Prakashan, 1965 (Marathi).
- Atorthy, Premankur, Mahasthvir Jatak, Calcutta: Indian Associated Publishing, 1922 (Bengali).
- , Nirvak Juger Chayaloker Katha, Basumati Journal, 1952-53, Calcutta: Bishwabani Prakashani, 1990 (Bengali).
- Atre, P. K., 'Mi Patakatha Lekhak Kasa Jhalo', Huns Film Number, Bombay, August 1949 (Marathi).
- , Karheche Pani, Bombay: Parchure Prakashan, 1965-7 (Marathi).
- Bafna, C. L., Law Relating to Cinemas in India, Jaipur: Bafna Law Publishers, 1978.
- Baji, A. R. (ed.), Indian Talkie, 50 Years - 1931-81, Madras: South Indian Chamber of Commerce, 1981.
- Bal Gandharva, 'Autobiographical Statement', in J. S. Tilak (ed.), Kesari, Diwali Special, Pune: October 1962.
- Balagopal, K., Probing in the Political Economy of Agrarian Classes and Conflicts (compiled by G. Haragopal), Hyderabad: Perspectives, 1988.
- Balakrishnan, P. E., Makkal Kavignar Pattukottai Kalyanasundaram Padalgal, Madras: New Century Book House, 1965 (Tamil).
- Bandyopadhyay, Samik (ed.), Govind Nihalani, Jamshedpur: Celluloid Chapter, 1992.
- Bandyopadhyay, Bidhubhushan, Chhayachhabir, Marmakatha, Calcutta: The Book Stall, 1934 (Bengali).
- Bandyopadhyay, Janaki Kumar, Satyajit, Fellini, Godard, Calcutta: India International, 1975 (Bengali).
- Bandyopadhyay, Ranjan, Bishoy Satyajit, Calcutta: Navana, 1988 (Bengali).
- Bannerjee, Haimanti, Ritwik Kumar Ghatak: A Monograph, Pune: NFAI, 1985.
- Bannerjee, Shampa (ed.), New Indian Cinema, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1982.
- , Profiles: Five Film-makers from India, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1985.
- , Ritwik Ghatak, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1982.
- and Srivastava, Anil (eds), One Hundred Indian Feature Films: An Annotated Filmography, New York and London: Garland Publishing, 1988.
- Bannerjee, Sumanta, In the Wake of Naxalbari, Calcutta: Subarnarekha, 1980.
- , The Parlour and the Streets: Elite and Popular Culture in Nineteenth-Century Calcutta, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1989.
- Baokar, Purshottam, and Vashikar, Ratnakar, Tyacha Velu Gela Gaganavari, Bombay: Aradhana Prakashan, 1970 (Marathi).
- Baokar, Purshottam, Brahmachari, Bombay: Aradhana Prakashan, 1972 (Marathi).

- Bapu and Ramana, Bapu Ramaneeyam, Vijaywada: Navodaya Publishers, 1990 (Telugu).
- Barjatya, Tarachand, A Handbook Detailing some of the Problems of the Indian Film Industry, Bombay: Rajshri Pictures, 1975.
- Barnouw, Eric and Krishnaswamy, S., Indian Film, New York: Columbia University Press, 1963; rev. edn. Oxford University Press, 1980.
- Barua, P. C., 'Barua Memorial Issue', Shot, Calcutta, B. Jha (ed.), December 1951-January 1952.
- Baruah, U. L., This is All-India Radio, New Delhi: Publications Division, Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, 1983.
- Baskaran, S. Theodore, 'Music for the Masses: Film Songs of Tamil Nadu', Economic & Political Weekly, v.26 n 11-12 (Annual), 1991.
- , The Eye of the Serpent: An Introduction to Tamil Cinema, Madras: Affiliated East West Press, 1996.
- , The Message Bearers: Nationalist Politics and the Entertainment Media in South India 1880-1945, Madras: Cre-A Publishers, 1981.
- Bawa, Mohan, Actors and Acting: 14 Candid Interviews, Bombay: India Book House, 1978.
- Bedekar, Vishram, Ek Jhaad Ani Don Pakshi, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1985 (Marathi).
- Bedi, Rajinder Singh, 'A Note on the Creative Process and the Art of Short Story', Selected Short Stories, New Delhi: Sahitya Akademi, 1989.
- , Dastak (Screenplay), Delhi: Hind Pocket Books, 1971 (Hindi).
- Benimadhab (ed.), Shilpir Preithibi: Dr Bhupen Hazarika Bishesh Sankhya, special issue on Bhupen Hazarika, Guwahati, October 1981 (Assamese).
- Berger, J., Gregor, E. and Schoenberner, G. (eds), Panorama des neuen indischen Films, Berlin: Internationales Forum des jungen Films/Freunde der Deutschen Kinemathek, 1979.
- Bhabha, Homi K. (ed.), Nation and Narration, London: Routledge, 1990.
- , The Location of Culture, London: Routledge, 1994.
- Bhaduri, Sisir, 'Sisir Bhaduri on Independence: Independence and our Stage', in Sudhi Pradhan (ed.), Marxist Cultural Movement: Chronicles and Documents, vol. 2, Calcutta: Navana, 1982.
- Bhagat, Bhai, Digdarshak Raj Kapoor, Bombay: Shalaka Prakashan, 1992 (Marathi).
- , Namankit Nat Nati, Bombay: Jhavbachi Wadi, 1954 (Marathi).
- Bhalekar, Vasant, Chanderi Baatchheet, Bombay: Rohan Prakashan, 1986 (Marathi).
- , Sulochana, Bombay: G. P. Parchure Prakashan, 1969 (Marathi).
- Bhanumathi, P. Naalo Nenu, Madras: Cinema Group Publications, 1993 (Telugu).
- Bharatan, Raju, 'Those Madanutties', in Screen Channel, Bombay: v 1 n 41, July 14, 1995.
- , Lata Mangeshkar: A Biography, New Delhi: UBSPD, 1995.
- Bhardwaj, Vinod, Naya Cinema, New Delhi: Veni Prakashan, 1985 (Hindi).
- Bharucha, B. D. (ed.), Indian Cinematograph Yearbook 1938, Bombay: Motion Picture Society of India, 1938.
- Bharucha, Rustom, Rehearsals of Revolution: The Political Theatre of Bengal, Honolulu: University of Hawaii Press, 1983.
- Bhatkhande, V. N., Hindustani Sangeet Paddhati, Hathras: Sangeet Karyalaya, 1921 (Hindi).
- Bhatt, Mahesh, 'Sex in Indian Cinema: Only Bad People Do It', in Rinki Bhattacharya (ed.), Uncertain Liaisons: Sex, Strife and Togetherness in Urban India, New Delhi: Penguin Books India, 1993.
- Bhatt, Vijay, 'Nirmatani Najare Rooperi Srishti: Autobiography', Janmabhoomi, Bombay, 7 January 1968 (Gujarati).
- Bhattacharje, S. P. (ed.), Encyclopaedia of Indian Events and Dates, New Delhi: Sterling Publishers, 1986.
- Bhattacharya, Basu, Avishkar (Screenplay), New Delhi: Hind Pocket Books, 1975 (Hindi).
- Bhattacharya, Dhiraj, Jakhan Nayak Chhilam, Calcutta: Indian Associated Publishing, 1956 (Bengali).
- Bhattacharya, Dilip Kumar, Jibanshilpi Satyajit Ray, Calcutta: Haraf Prakashan, 1969 (Bengali).
- Bhattacharya, Malini (ed.), Manik Bandyopadhyay: Selected Stories, Calcutta: Thema, 1988.
- Bhattacharya, Rinki (ed.), Uncertain Liaisons: Sex, Strife and Togetherness in Urban India, New Delhi: Penguin Books India, 1993.
- , Bimal Roy, Bhopal: Madhya Pradesh Film Development Corp., 1989 (Hindi).
- , Bimal Roy: A Man of Silence, New Delhi: Indus/Harper Collins, 1994.
- Bhattacharya, Sachidananda, A Dictionary of Indian History, Calcutta: University of Calcutta, 1967.
- Bhavani, Mohan, 'Enlightening the Nation with the Documentary', Filmfare, Bombay, 21 March 1952.
- Bhide, G. R., 'Bhalji Pendharkar', Sahyadri, Pune, May 1949 (Marathi).
- and Gajbar, Baba, Kalamaharshi Baburao Painter, Kolhapur: Meenal Prakashan, 1978 (Marathi).
- Bhole, Keshavrao, Mazhe Sangeet: Rachana Ani Digdarshan, Bombay: Mauz Prakashan, 1964 (Marathi); Ashish Rajadhyaksha (tr.), 'Keshavrao Bhole: Excerpts from his Mazhe Sangeet, Sangeet Natak, no. 100, New Delhi, April-June 1991.
- Bhowmick, Someshwar, Indian Cinema: Colonial Contours, Calcutta: Papyrus Books, 1995.
- , 'The State of the Indian Film Industry', Splice, no. 2, Calcutta, July 1986.
- Binford, Mira Reym (ed.), 'Indian Popular Cinema', Quarterly Review of Film and Video, vol. 11, no. 3, Los Angeles, 1989.
- , Media Policy as a Catalyst to Creativity: The Role of Government in the Development of India's New Cinema, Madison: University of Wisconsin-Madison, unpublished.
- , 'Innovation and Initiation in the Indian Cinema', in Wimal Dissanayake (ed.), Cinema and Cultural Identity - Reflections on Films from Japan, India and China, Lanham: University Press of America, 1988, pp. 77-92.
- , 'The Two Cinemas of India', in John H. D. Downing (ed.), Film and Politics in the Third World, New York: Automedia Inc., 1987.
- Blackburn, Robin (ed.), Explosion in a Subcontinent, Harmondsworth: Penguin, 1975.
- Bombay Cinemas (Regulation) Act, 1953*, Bombay: Maharashtra State Govt Printing, Stationery and Publications, 1982.
- Booch, Harish S., Green Leaves, Bombay: Harish S. Booch Memorial Committee, 1964.
- Bora, Prafulla, Cinema in Assam, Gauhati: Performing Arts Centre, 1978.
- Bose, Modhu, Amar Jeeban, Calcutta: Vak-Sahitya, 1967 (Bengali).
- Bose, Sadhona, Silpir Atmakatha, Calcutta: Granthaprakash, 1963 (Bengali).
- Breckenridge, Carol A. (ed.), Consuming Modernity: Public Culture in Contemporary India, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1996.
- Breur, W. et al., A Retrospective of Films by Paul Zils, New Delhi: Max Muller Bhavan, 1981.
- Burra, Rani (ed.), Ashok Kumar: Green to Evergreen, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d. [1990].
- , Indian Cinema: 1980-1985, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1985.
- , Looking Back 1896-1960, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1981.
- Centre for Social Research, The Impact of Film on Society, Madras, s.d.

- Chaddha, Manmohan, Hindi Cinema Ka Itihas, New Delhi: Sachin Prakashan, 1990 (Hindi).
- Chajlani, Abhay (ed.), Lata Mangeshkar, Indore: Nai Duniya, 1983 (Hindi).
- . Nayak Mahanayak, Indore: Nai Duniya, 1992 (Hindi).
- . Parde Ki Pariyan: 1913-1990, Indore: Nai Duniya Film Special 1990 (Hindi).
- . Sargam Ka Safar, Indore: Nai Duniya Film Special, June 1989 (Hindi).
- Chakravarty, Rudraprasad, Sonar Kella Sandhaney, Calcutta: New Book Stall, 1977 (Bengali).
- Chakravarty, Sumita S., 'National Identity and the Realist Aesthetic: Indian Cinema of the Fifties', Quarterly Review of Film and Video, vol.11, no. 3, Los Angeles, 1989.
- . National Identity in Indian Popular Cinema 1947-1987, Austin: University of Texas Press, 1993.
- Chandavarkar, Bhaskar, 'The Tradition of Music in Indian Cinema', Cinema in India, vol. 1, no. 2 (April 1987) to vol. 3, no. 3 (July-September 1989), Bombay.
- Chandra, Sudhir, The Oppressive Present: Literature and Social Consciousness in Colonial India, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1992.
- Chatterjee, Bishwanath (ed.), Hindi Film Geet Kosh 1971-1980, Kanpur: Satinder Kaur, 1991.
- Chatterjee, Gaur and Bandyopadhyay, Sunil, Chitrabani Chitrabashiki, Calcutta: Chitrabani Prakashan, 1951 (Bengali).
- Chatterjee, Gayatri, Awara, New Delhi: Wiley Eastern, 1992.
- Chatterjee, Partha A Possible India: Essays in Political Criticism. New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1997.
- and Pandey, Gyanendra, Subaltern Studies VII, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1992.
- . 'Beyond the Nation or Within?' Economic and Political Weekly, XXXII:1/2, January 1997, pp.30-34.
- . Bengal 1920-1947: The Land Question, Calcutta: Centre for Studies in Social Sciences/K.P. Bagchi, 1984.
- . Nationalist Thought and the Colonial World: A Derivative Discourse, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1986.
- . The Nation and Its Fragments: Colonial and Postcolonial Histories, Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1993.
- Chatterjee, Partha, 'Ray's Home, Ray's World: Calcutta', Cinemaya, no. 20, New Delhi, Summer 1993.
- Chatterjee, Pashupati, 'Banglar Chalachitra Shilpa', in Ashim Som (ed.), Chalachitra Katha, Calcutta: Ruprekha, 1969 (Bengali).
- Chatterjee, Ratnabali, From the Karkhana to the Studio: Changing Social Roles of Patron and Artist in Bengal, New Delhi: Books and Books, 1990.
- Chatterjee, Soumitra, Swagato, Calcutta: Fourth Estate Publications, 1996 (Bengali).
- Chatterji, P.C., Broadcasting in India. New Delhi: Sage Publications, 1991.
- Chattopadhyay, Amitabh, Chalachitra Samaj-o-Satyajit Ray, Asansol: Film Technique Centre, 1980 (Bengali).
- Chattopadhyay, Dilip, Satyajit, Calcutta: Banishilpa, 1986 (Bengali).
- Chaturvedi, Brijbhushan (ed.), Suchitra Film Directory 1991-92, Indore: Suchitra Prakashan, 1992 (Hindi).
- Chaudhury, M. M., 'India: From SITE to INSAT', Media in Education and Development, vol. 19 no. 3, 1986.
- Chellangatti, Gopalakrishnan, Cinemayude Charitram, Shertellai: Prathap Publications, 1972 (Malayalam).
- Cherian, Artist P.J., Ente Kala Jeevitham, Kottayam: National Book Stall, 1964 (Malayalam).
- Chinappa, B. N., 'B. Puttaswamaiah Navaras Natakagalu', in Sriranga (ed.), Kannada Rangabhoomiya Nadedubanda Daari, Bangalore: Kannada Sahitya Parishat, 1983 (Kannada).
- . Natakaratna Gubbi Veeranna, Bangalore: Bangalore University, 1982 (Kannada).
- Chiranjeevi, Kannada Chalanachitra Patrikodyama: Nadedu Banda Dari, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Chitnis, Leela, Chanderi Duniyet, Pune: Srividya Prakashan, 1981 (Marathi).
- Chopra, B.R., 'NFDC: The Dividing Line', Screen, Bombay, 3 May, 1985.
- Chopra, P.N. and Chopra, Pratibha, Encyclopaedia of India, vols 1-2, Delhi: Agam Prakashan, 1988.
- Choudhury, Ahindra, Nijere Haraye Khunji, vol 1, Calcutta: Indian Associated Publishers, 1962 (Bengali).
- Choudhury, Asim, Private Economic Power in India, New Delhi: People's Publishing House, 1975.
- Choudhury, Ishwar Prasad, Jyotiprasad Agarwala, New Delhi: Builders of Modern Indian Series, Publications Division, Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, 1986.
- Choudhury, Salil, 'Modern Bengali Music in Crisis', in S. Pradhan (ed.), Marxist Cultural Movement in India, vol. 3, Calcutta: Santi Pradhan-Pustak Bipani, 1985.
- Choudhury, Uttam, Chitrasamalochana 40, Calcutta: Banishilpa, 1987 (Bengali)
- Chouhan, Mahavir Singh (ed.), Chulbuli Rekha, Delhi: Punjabi Pustak Bhandar, 1978 (Hindi).
- . Great Showman - Raj Kapoor, New Delhi: Star Pocket Books, 1982.
- Chughtai, Ismat, The Quilt and Other Stories, New Delhi: Kali For Women, 1990.
- Cinemasia '85 - I Film*, XXI Mostra Internazionale del Nuovo Cinema, Pesaro, 1985.
- Coomaraswamy, Ananda K., 'Young India', The Dance of Shiva: Fourteen Indian Essays [1918], New Delhi: Munshiram Manoharlal, 1977.
- . Art and Swadeshi, Madras: Ganesh Press, 1911.
- da Cunha, Uma (ed.), Film India: The New Generation 1960-1980, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1981.
- Daithota, Eswar, D. V. Rajaram, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Pratakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Das Gupta, Chidananda (ed.), Satyajit Ray, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1981.
- and Kobe, Werner, Kino in Indien, Freiburg in Breisgau: Verlag Wolf Mersch, 1986.
- . 'The Cultural Basis of Indian Cinema' (1968), Talking about Films, New Delhi: Orient Longman, 1981.
- . 'The Painted Face of Politics: The Actor Politicians of South India', in Wimal Dissanayake (ed.), Cinema and Cultural Identity: Reflections on Films from Japan, India and China, Lanham: University Press of America, 1988, pp. 127-48.
- . Majumdar, Kamal and Ray, Satyajit et al. (eds), Chalachitra: Pratham Paryay, Calcutta: Signet Press, 1950 (Bengali).
- . Talking about Films, New Delhi: Orient Longman, 1981.
- . The Cinema of Satyajit Ray, New Delhi: Vikas Publishing, 1980.
- . The Painted Face: Studies in India's Popular Cinema, New Delhi: Roli Books, 1991.
- Das, Nandini (ed.), An Anthology of Articles on Indian Cinema, New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1985.
- Das, Shyamal Kanti (ed.), Lekhak Satyajit Ray, Calcutta, Shibarani Prakashani, 1986 (Bengali).
- Das, Veena 'The Mythological Film and its Framework of Meaning: An Analysis of Jai Santoshi Maa', India International Centre Quarterly, vol. 8, no. 1, New Delhi, March 1980.
- Dasgupta, Buddhadev, 'Poetry in Cinema', Cinema in India, Bombay, January-April 1988.

- . 'The Poetry and Politics of Cinema', Interview with Samik Bandyopadhyay, Splice, Calcutta, January-March 1986.
- . Swapna Samay Cinema, Calcutta: Banishilpa, 1991 (Bengali).
- Dasgupta, Manasi, Chhabir Naam Satyajit, Calcutta: Ananda, 1984 (Bengali).
- Datt, Gopal (ed.), Close-Up: The Indian Film Scene, special issue, vol. 3, nos. 5-6, Bombay: Film Forum, 1970.
- Datta, Amaresh (ed.), Encyclopaedia of Indian Literature, vol. 1 (1987), vol. 2 (1988), vol. 3 (1989), New Delhi: Sahitya Akademi.
- Datta, Dilip Kumar, Bhupen Hazarika Geet Aru Jiban Rath, Calcutta: Sribhumi, 1982 (Assamese).
- David, C. R. W., Cinema as a Means of Communication in Tamil Nadu, Madras: Christian Literature Society, 1983.
- Deodhar, B. R., 'Interview', Praviny, Bombay: 1933.
- . Gayanacharya Pandit Vishnu Digambar, Bombay: Akhil Bharatiya Gandharva Mahavidyalaya Mandal, 1971 (Marathi).
- Desai, A. R., Social Background of Indian Nationalism, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1948.
- Desai, Chimanlal B., Presidential Address, Second All-India Motion Picture Convention, Madras, 1936.
- Desai, Vasant Shantaram, Bal Gandharva: Vyakti Ani Kala, Pune: Venus Prakashan, 1959 (Marathi).
- Desai, Vasant, 'Bas Jhali Sangeetachi Gulamgiri', Huns Film Special, Bombay, 8 May 1950 (Marathi).
- Deshpande, Rekha, Smita Patil, Pune: Srividya Prakashan, 1987 (Marathi).
- Devi, Chandrabati, Chandrabati Devi Bolchhi, Calcutta: Eshana Prakashani, 1984.
- Devi, Kanan, Sabare Ami Nomi (compiled by Sandhya Sen), Calcutta: M. C. Sirkar and Sons, 1973 (Bengali).
- Dhanagare, D. N., 'Social Origins of the Peasant Insurrection in Telangana, 1946-51', in A. R. Desai (ed.), Peasant Struggles in India, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1979.
- Dharap, B. V., Indian Films 1972, Bombay: B. V. Dharap Motion Picture Enterprises, s.d.; Indian Films 1973, ibid., 1974; Indian Films 1974, ibid., 1975; Indian Films 1975, ibid., 1976; Indian Films 1976, ibid., 1977; Indian Films 1977 and 1978, ibid., 1979; Indian Films 1983, Pune: NFAI, 1985; Indian Films 1984, ibid., 1985; Indian Films 1985 (roneo) Pune: NFAI.
- Dhareshwar, Vivek and Niranjana, Tejaswini, 'Kaadalan and the Politics of Resignification: Fashion, Violence and the Body', Journal of Arts and Ideas No.29, January 1996.
- . 'Caste and the Secular Self', Journal of Arts and Ideas, No. 25/26, December 1993.
- Dhawan, B. D., Economics of Television in India, New Delhi: S. Chand, 1974.
- Dhillon-Kashyap, Perminder, 'Locating the Asian Experience', Screen, vol. 29, no. 4, London, Autumn 1988.
- Dhondy, Farrukh, 'Keeping Faith: Indian Film and its World', Daedalus, Fall 1985.
- Dickey, Sara, Cinema and the Urban Poor in South India, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1993.
- Dissanayake, Wimal (ed.), Cinema and Cultural Identity: Reflections on Films from Japan, India and China, Lanham: University Press of America, 1988.
- . Melodrama and Asian Cinema, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1993.
- and Sahai, Malti, Raj Kapoor's Films: Harmony of Discourses, New Delhi: Vikas, 1988.
- and Sahai, Malti, Sholay: A Cultural Reading, Honolulu: Wiley East-West, 1992.
- Documentary in National Development*, New Delhi: Indian Institute of Mass Communication, 1967.
- Doddanegowda, Joladarashi, Natyakala Prapoorna T. Raghavaru, Mysore: Mysore Rajya Sangeet Natak Akademi, 1972 (Kannada).
- Doraiswamy, V. (ed.), Asian Film Directory and Who's Who, Bombay: Mrs Jaya Doraiswamy, 1956.
- Doshi, Sunil and da Cunha, Uma (eds), Film Catalogue: National Centre of Films for Children and Young People, Bombay: N'CYP, 1993.
- Dutt Utpal, 'An Armoured Car on the Road to Proletarian Revolution', Interview with Mihir and Malini Bhattacharya, Journal of Arts and Ideas, no. 8, July-September 1984.
- . Towards a Heroic Cinema, Calcutta: M.C. Sarkar & Sons, 1994.
- . Towards a Revolutionary Theatre, Calcutta: M.C. Sarkar and Sons, 1982.
- Erdman, Joan L., Stages: The Art and Adventures of Zohra Sehgal, New Delhi: Kali for Women, 1997.
- Ekbote, Vidya, 'Economics of the Indian Film Industry with Special Reference to the Marathi Film Industry (1974-85)', Pune: University of Pune, unpublished, 1986.
- Engineer, Asghar Ali (ed.), The Shah Bano Controversy, Hyderabad: Orient Longman, 1987.
- Faces in the Dark: Advertising and Sales Promotion Survey on Cinema Audiences*, Bombay: Advertising and Sales Promotion, 1963.
- Fazalbhoy, Y. A., Indian Film, Bombay: Motion Picture Society of India, 1950.
- . The Indian Film: A Review, Bombay: Bombay Radio Press, 1939.
- Ferrario, Davide (ed.), Mrinal Sen e il cinema indiano, Bergamo Film Meeting, 1983.
- Frankel, Francine, India's Political Economy 1947-1977: The Gradual Revolution, Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1978.
- FTII Films 1964-1987*, Pune: FTII, 1987.
- Gadkar, Jayashree, Ashi Mi Jayashree, Bombay: Rohan Prakashan, 1986 (Marathi).
- Gala, Manilal and Gangar, Amrit, Gujarati Chalachitron: 1982 Na Aare, Bombay: Screen Unit, 1982 (Gujarati).
- Gandhi, M. K., 'Cent Per Cent Swadeshi', in D. G. Tendulkar (ed.), Mahatma, Life of Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, vol. 3, New Delhi: Publications Division, Govt of India, 1961.
- . The Gospel of Swadeshi, (compiled by A. T. Hingorani), Bombay: Bhartiya Vidya Bhavan, 1967.
- Gandhy, Behroze and Thomas, Rosie, 'Three Indian Film Stars', in Christine Gledhill (ed.), Stardom: Industry of Desire, London: Routledge, 1991.
- Ganguly, Dhiren, Biye, Calcutta: Sisir Publishing House, 1922 (Bengali).
- . 'Evidence', Indian Cinematograph Committee 1927-28, vol. 2, Calcutta: Central Publications Branch, Govt of India, 1928.
- Garga, B. D., Sound Track in the Indian Film, Paris: UNESCO, 1966.
- . The Present-Day Situation and Future Prospects of the Feature Film in India, Paris: UNESCO, 1961.
- Gaur, Madan, Other Side of the Coin: An Intimate Study of the Indian Film Industry, Bombay: Trimurti Prakashan, 1973.
- Gauthaman, Raj (Pushppraj), 'Tamil Thirai Isaip Padalkalum Penkalum', in his Yenpathuakalil Tamil Kalacharam, Bangalore: Kaavya, 1992 (Tamil).
- George, T.J.S., The Life and Times of Nargis, New Delhi: Indus/Harper Collins, 1994.
- Ghatak, Ritwik, 'An Interview with Ritwik Ghatak', Ravi Ojha and Judhajit Sarkar, Film Miscellany, Pune: FTII, 1976.
- . 'Jukti Takko Aar Gappo (Screenplay)', in Sen, Anil (ed.), Chitrabikshan, Annual Number, Calcutta, 1975.

- . Chalachitra Manash Ebam Aro Kichhu, Calcutta: Sanadan Samabaya Prakashani, 1975 (Bengali).
- . Cinema And I, Calcutta: Ritwik Memorial Trust/Rupa, 1987.
- . Special Issue, Ajantrik, no. 2, Hooghly: Uttarapara Cine Society, March 1993.
- Ghosh, Bishnupriya, 'Satyajit Ray's Devi: Constructing a Third-World Feminist Critique', Screen, vol. 33, no. 2, London, Summer 1992.
- Ghosh, Debiprasad (ed.), Bangla Bhashay Chalachitra Charcha 1923-33, Calcutta: Cine Club, 1990 (Bengali).
- Ghosh, Gaurangaprasad, Sonar Daag, Calcutta: Johumaya Prakashan, 1982 (Bengali).
- Ghose, Gautam, 'Cinema of the Dispossessed', Interview with Khalid Mohammed, Cinema in India, Bombay, April-June 1988.
- Ghose, Gautam, 'Closing in on the Elemental', Interview with Samik Bandyopadhyay, Splice, no. 4, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1988.
- Ghosh, Kaliprasad, 'Jiban Sriti', Rupamancha, Calcutta: Poush-Magh, 1956.
- Ghosh, Kartick Kumar, Oriya Chalachitrara Itihas, Cuttack: Govind Charan Patra, Orissa Bookstore, 1984 (Oriya).
- Ghosh, Nemai, 'In Memory of Nemai Ghosh', Chitravas special issue, Calcutta: North Calcutta Film Society, Nemai Ghosh Festival Special, 1990.
- Ghosh, Sital Chandra and Roy, Arun Kumar (eds), Twelve Indian Directors, Calcutta: People's Book Publishing, 1981.
- Gokhale, Shanta, 'Mother in Sane Guruji's Shyamchi Ai', Economic and Political Weekly, 20 October 1990.
- Gopal Singh, Madan, 'Ray and the Realist Conscience', Cinemaya, no. 20, New Delhi, Summer 1993.
- Gopal, S. R., Madras Talkie Register 1939, Madras: S.R. Gopal, 1939.
- Gopalakrishnan, Adoor, Cinemayude Lokam, Trivandrum: Trivandrum State Institute of Languages, 1983 (Malayalam).
- . Face To Face - Mukhamukham, transl. Shampa Bannerjee, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1985.
- . The Rat Trap - Elippathayam, transl. Shampa Bannerjee, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1985.
- Gopalakrishnan, Varkala (ed.), Prem Nazir Smaranika, Varkala: Aniyara Sahitya Sangham Film Society, 1991 (Malayalam).
- Gopalan, Lalitha, 'Gangsterism and Regionalism: Nayakan, Masculinity in India Cinema', unpublished paper, 1992.
- . 'Wogs, Natives, Heroes: Postcolonial Inquiry into Sexuality and Nationalism', Unpublished, University of Rochester, 1992.
- . 'Avenging women in Indian cinema', Screen, vol.38, no.1, Spring 1997.
- Gopi, Bharath, Abhinayam Anubhavam, Calicut: P.K. Brothers, 1994 (Malayalam).
- Govindacharya, Bannanje, G. V. Iyer, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Grover, Ashok (ed.), Filmon ke Rashtriya Geet, Meerut: Ratan Pocket Books, 1985 (Hindi).
- Guha, Amalendu, 'Parsee Seths as Entrepreneurs, 1750-1850', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 5, no. 35, 29 August 1970.
- . 'The Comprador Role of Parsee Seths', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 5, no. 48, 28 November 1970.
- . Planter-Raj to Swaraj: Freedom Struggle and Electoral Politics in Assam 1826-1947, New Delhi: People's Publishing House, 1977.
- Guha, Ranajit (ed.), Subaltern Studies I (1982), II (1983), III (1984), IV (1985), V (1987), VI (1989), New Delhi: Oxford University Press.
- . and Spivak, Gayatri Chakravorty (eds), Selected Subaltern Studies, Foreword by Edward Said, New York: Oxford University Press, 1988.
- . Elementary Aspects of Peasant Insurgency in Colonial India, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1983.
- Guha-Thakurta, Tapati, The Making of a New 'Indian' Art: Artists, Aesthetics and Nationalism in Bengal, c.1850-1920, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1992.
- Gulavani, V. N. (ed.), Films Division Catalogue of Films: 1949-1972, Bombay: Films Division, 1974.
- Gupta, Dhruva, Das Sharma, Biren and Bandyopadhyay, Samik (eds), Indian Cinema: Contemporary Perceptions from the Thirties, Jamshedpur: Celluloid Chapter, 1993.
- Gupta, Parthasarathy, Music and Political Consciousness (Regional, Pan-Indian and Communal): A Critical Study of Dwijendralal Roy and Nazrul Islam, New Delhi: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library, 2nd series, no. 15, 1988.
- Gupta, Somnath, Parsee Theatre: Udbhav Aur Vikas, Allahabad: Lokbharati Prakashan, 1969 (Hindi).
- Gupta, Udayan, 'New Visions in Indian Cinema', in John H. D. Downing (ed.), Film and Politics in the Third World, New York: Automeida Inc., 1987.
- Gutman, Judith Mara, Through Indian Eyes: Nineteenth and Early Twentieth Century Still Photography in India, New York: Oxford University Press/International Centre of Photography, 1982.
- Guy, Randor (ed.), History of Tamil Cinema, Madras: International Film Festival of India, 1991.
- . 'Once upon a City', weekly column in Aside, Madras, 1988-9.
- . B. N. Reddi: A Monograph, Pune: NFAI, 1985.
- . Starlight, Starbright: The Early Tamil Cinema, Chennai: Amra Publishers, 1997.
- Haldar, Gopal, Kazi Nazrul Islam, New Delhi: Sahitya Akademi, Makers of Indian Literature series, 1973.
- Haldar, Sukumar and Ghosh, Netai (eds), Sabakchitra, Calcutta: Basumati Sahitya Mandir, 1935 (Bengali).
- Hansen, Kathryn, 'Hindi New Cinema: Basu Chatterjee's Sara Akashi, South Asia, new series, vol. 4, no. 1, 1981.
- . 'Tisri Kasam: The Story and the Film', Journal of South Asian Literature, vol. 23, no. 1, 1981.
- Hardgrave Jr, Robert L. and Neidhart, Anthony C., 'Film and Political Consciousness in Tamil Nadu', Economic and Political Weekly, 1 January 1975.
- . 'The Celluloid God: M. G. R. and the Tamil Film', South Asian Review, vol. 4, July 1971.
- . , When Stars Displace the Gods: The Folk Culture of Cinema in Tamil Nadu, Austin: University of Texas, 1975.
- Hari Singh, Master, Punjab Peasant in Freedom Struggle, New Delhi: People's Publishing House, 1984.
- Hatkanagalekar, M. D., V. S. Khandekar, New Delhi: Sahitya Akademi, 1986.
- Hauff, R., Ten Days in Calcutta: A Portrait of Mrinal Sen (Screenplay), Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1987.
- Havell, E. B., 'Indian Administration And Swadeshi', Essays on Indian Art, Industry and Education, Madras: G. A. Natesan and Co., 1901.
- Hazarika, Bhupen, Bhupen Mamar Geete Mate: A-Aa-Ka-Kha, Calcutta: Bhawani Publishing, 1976 (Assamese).
- . Jilikabo Luyitare Paar, Calcutta: Hemango Biswas, 1955 (Assamese).
- . Samayer Pakhi Ghonrat Uthi, Dibrugarh: Banimandir, 1981 (Assamese).
- . Sangram Legne Aaji, Guwahati: Gatiprakash, 1962 (Assamese).
- . Sundarar Na-digantar, Calcutta: Bichitrnarayan Datta Barua, 1967 (Assamese).
- . Sundarar Sarubar Aliyedi, Dibrugarh: Banimandir, 1980 (Assamese).
- Hirlekar, K. S., The Place of Film in National Planning, Bombay: Visual Education Society, 1938.

- Hood, John W., Chasing the Truth: The Films of Mrinal Sen, Calcutta: Seagull, 1993.
- Hublikar, Shanta, Kashyala Udyachi Baat, Pune: Srividya Prakashan, 1990 (Marathi).
- Hughes, Stephen P., 'Pre-Phalke Era in South-India: Reflections on the Formation of Film Audiences in Madras', South Indian Studies, vol.2, July-December 1996, pp. 161-204.
- Ilaiah, K., Why I am not a Hindu: A Sudra Critique of Hindutva Philosophy, Culture and Political Economy, Calcutta: Samya, 1996.
- Indian Cinema 1965*, New Delhi: Govt of India Publications, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 77/78*, Rani Burra (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1978.
- Indian Cinema 78/79*, Uma da Cunha (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 79/80*, Uma da Cunha (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 80/81*, Uma da Cunha (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 81/82*, Kironmoy Raha (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 82/83*, Aruna Vasudev (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 83/84*, Uma da Cunha (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 1984*, Shampa Bannerjee (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1985.
- Indian Cinema 1985*, P. K. Nair, (ed.) New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1986.
- Indian Cinema 1986*, Rani Burra (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, s.d.
- Indian Cinema 1987*, Ashish Rajadhyaksha (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1988.
- Indian Cinema 1988*, Jag Mohan (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1989.
- Indian Cinema 1989*, Shampa Bannerjee (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1990.
- Indian Cinema 1990*, K. N. T. Sastry (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1991.
- Indian Cinema 1991*, Shampa Bannerjee (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1992.
- Indian Talkie 1931-56*, Silver Jubilee Souvenir, Bombay, 1956.
- Indian Talkie 1936-56*, Bombay: Film Federation of India, 1956.
- Indira, M. K., Kannada Chitrashilpi Puttana Kanagal, Bangalore: Hemantha Sahitya, 1986 (Kannada).
- Infrastructure, Production Values and Marketing of the Other Cinema*, Madras: Hindustan Photo Films, 1979.
- Irschick, Eugene F., Tamil Revivalism in the 1930s, Madras: Cre-A, 1986.
- Ivory, James (ed.), Autobiography of a Princess: Also Being the Adventures of an American Film Director in the Land of the Maharajas, New York: Harper and Row, 1975.
- Iyer, G. V., Mooru Chitra Mooru Daari, Bangalore: Navkarnataka, 1984 (Kannada).
- Jaffrey, Saeed, 'Memories of Ray', Sight and Sound, vol. 2, no. 4, London, August 1992.
- Jag Mohan (ed.), Dr P.V. Pathy: Documentary Film-maker, Pune: NFAI, 1972.
- , The Sukhdev Retrospective: An Introduction to the Man and his Documentary Films, Bombay: Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Films Division, 1990.
- , Two Decades of the Films Division, Bombay: Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Films Division, 1969.
- , Documentary Films and India's Awakening, New Delhi: Publications Division, Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, 1990.
- , Sukhdev Film-maker: A Documentary Montage, Pune: Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Films Division, NFAI, 1984.
- Jagirdar, Gajanan, Abhinay Kasa Karava, Pune: India Book Company, 1983 (Marathi).
- , Paool Khuna, Bombay: Majestic Prakashan, 1986 (Marathi).
- , Sandhyakal, Pune: Raj Hans Prakashan, 1971 (Marathi).
- Jain, Jyotindra and Chandra, Lokesh (eds), Dimensions of Indian Art: Pupul Jaykar Seventy, New Delhi: Agam Kala Prakashan, 1986.
- Jain, Rikhab Das, The Economic Aspects of the Film Industry in India, Delhi: Atma Ram and Sons, 1960.
- Jayakantan, Oor Illakiyavathiyin Kalaiyulaga Anubavangal, Madras: Thenmozhi Pathipagam, 1980/1983 (Tamil)
- Jayasimha, S., Vijayabhaskar, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Jha, Bagishwar (ed.), B. N. Sircar, Calcutta: NFAI and Seagull Books, 1990.
- , Indian Motion Picture Almanac, Calcutta: Shot, 1986.
- , Nitin Bose: Flowering of a Humanist Film-maker, Calcutta: Asian Art Foundation, 1986.
- Jha, Prakash, 'Going Back to Grassroots', Interview with Deepa Gahlot, Cinema in India, Bombay, April 1987.
- Jhony, O. K. (ed.), Aravindante Kala, Kozhikode: Bodhi, 1991 (Malayalam).
- Jog, N. G. (ed.), Screen Yearbook and Who's Who, Bombay: Express Newspapers, 1956.
- Jog, V. V., Natashreshtha Keshavrao Date, Bombay: Parchure Prakashan, 1976 (Marathi).
- Joshi, Badriprasad (ed.), Hindi Cinema Ka Sunehra Safar, Bombay: Cinevani Prakashan, 1988 (Hindi).
- Joshi, G. B. and Kurthakoti, K. D., Nadedu Banda Dari, 3 vols, Dharwar: Manohar Granthalaya, 1959 (Kannada).
- Joshi, G. N., Down Memory Lane, Bombay: Orient Longman, 1984.
- Joshi, Manilal, 'Directing Yane Film Directorni Jokhamdari', Mouj Majah, Bombay, 21 April 1926 (Gujarati).
- , Mouj Majah special issue, Bombay, 10 April 1934 (Gujarati).
- Joshi, P. C. (ed.), Balraj Sahni: An Intimate Portrait, New Delhi: Vikas Publications, 1974.
- Kabir, Nasreen, Les Stars du cinéma indien, Paris: Centre Pompidou/Centre National de la Cinématographie, 1985.
- Kagal, Ayesha et al., Nukkad: Hope for the Indian Serial?, Bombay: Centre For Education and Documentation, 1987.
- Kak, Siddharth (ed.), Cinema Vision (4 issues), Bombay, 1980.
- Kakatkar, Balakrishna, Shankar Nag, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Kale, K. Narayan et al. (eds), Marathi Rangabhoomi Marathi Natak, Bombay: Mumbai Marathi Sahitya Sangh, 1971 (Marathi).
- , 'Majhya Parichayache Shriyut Keshavrao Date', Sahyadri, Bombay, November 1950 (Marathi).
- , 'Mazha Mulgachya Nimitane', Sahyadri, Pune, February 1939.
- , 'Rangabhoomi 1940-1970: Simhavalokan Ani Samalochan', in Kale et al. (eds), Marathi Rangabhoomi Marathi Natak, Bombay: Mumbai Marathi Sahitya Sangh, 1971 (Marathi).
- , Bhoomika Shilpa/Abhinay Sadhana, Bombay: Maharashtra Rajya Sahitya Sanskriti Mandal, 1976 (Marathi).
- , Natyavimarsh, Bombay: Popular Book Depot, 1961 (Marathi).
- , Pratima, Roop Ani Rang, Pune: Nutan Prakashan, 1976 (Marathi).

- Kale, Pramod, 'Ideas, Ideals and the Market: A Study of Marathi Films', Economic and Political Weekly, vol.14, no.35, 1 September 1979.
- Kambhar, Chandrasekhar (ed.), Kannada Folklore Dictionary, Bangalore Kannada Sahitya Parishat, 1984.
- Kannadasan, Sivagangai Seemai, Madras: Vanadhi Paddhipagam, 1994 (Tamil).
- . Thirai Isai Padalgal, Madras: Vanadhi Padipagam, 1970 (Tamil)
- Kapoor, Raj, 'Efflorescence of Little Man Image in Joker, Screen, Bombay, 18 December 1970.
- Kapur, Geeta, 'Articulating the Self into History', in Jim Pines and Paul Willemen (eds), Questions of Third Cinema, London: BFI, 1989, pp. 179-94.
- . 'Cultural Creativity in the First Decade: The Example of Satyajit Ray', Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos. 23-24, January 1993.
- . 'Mythic Material in Indian Cinema', Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos. 14-15, July-December 1987.
- . 'Ravi Varma: Representational Dilemmas of a Nineteenth Century Indian Painter', Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos. 17-18, June 1989.
- . Contemporary Indian Artists, New Delhi: Vikas, 1978.
- Karanjia, B. K., 'The State's Responsibility to Cinema', Cinema in India, July-September 1987.
- . A Many Splendoured Cinema, Bombay: New Thacker's Fine Art Press, s.d.
- Kararkasis, Pantelis, Ntritzou, Katerian and Sava, Vasso, 'Das Andere Kino in Indien', Filmfaust, nos. 28-29, 1982.
- Kasaravalli, Girish (ed.), Cinema Kale-Nele, Bangalore: Navkarnataka, 1983 (Kannada).
- Kashyap, Subhash C., Political Events Annual 1987, New Delhi: Lok Sabha Secretariat, 1989.
- . Political Events Annual 1988, Delhi: National Publishing House, 1990.
- Kathavachak, Radheshyam, Mera Natak Kaal, Bareilly: Shri Radheshyam Pustakalaya, 1957 (Hindi).
- Kaul, Mani, 'Communication', Seminar, 1974.
- . 'Exploration in New Film Techniques', Indian Film Culture, no. 8, Autumn 1974.
- . 'Seen from Nowhere', in Kapila Vatsyayan (ed.), Concepts of Space: Ancient and Modern, New Delhi: Indira Gandhi National Centre For Art/Abhinav Publications, 1991.
- Kaul, Vimala, India Since Independence: Chronology of Events, vol. 1 (1947-1966), vol. 2 (1967-1977), vol. 3 (1978), vol. 4 (1979), vol. 5 (1980), vol. 6 (1981), vol. 7 (1982), vol. 8 (1983), vol. 9 (1984), Delhi: Sagar Publications, 1977-88.
- Kazmi, Nikhat The Dream Merchants of Bollywood, New Delhi: UBSPD, 1998.
- Keer, Dhananjay, Rajarshi Shahu Chhatrapati, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1979 (Marathi).
- Kelkar, M. W., Master Vinayak, New Delhi: Wiley Eastern, 1991.
- Kesavalu, V. (ed.), Impact of MGR Films, Madras: Movie Appreciation Society, 1989 (Tamil/English).
- Khan, Pervaiz, 'Ritwik Ghatak and Some Directions for the Future', Sight and Sound, vol. 1, no. 5, London, September 1991.
- Khanna, Satendra, Indian Cinema and Indian Life, Los Angeles: University of California Press, 1980.
- Khedekar, Padma and Durgaram, Padadyamagil Bal Gandharva, Pune: Venus Book Stall, 1968 (Marathi).
- Kher, Sanjeevani, Mayadarpan, Pune: Srividya Prakashan, 1989 (Marathi).
- Khopkar, Arun, Guru Dutt: Teen Anki Shokantika, Bombay: Granthali, 1985 (Marathi).
- Khosla, G. D., Pornography and Censorship in India, New Delhi: Indian Book Co., 1976.
- Khote, Durga, Mee Durga Khote, Bombay: Majestic Book Stall, 1982 (Marathi).
- Kinikar, Shashikant (ed.), Dastan-e-Naushad, Pune: Chandrakala Prakashan, 1991 (Marathi).
- Kiron, Usha, Ushakkal, Pune: Srividya Prakashan, 1989 (Marathi).
- Koch, Gerhard, 'Franz Osten's Role in the German Cinema', German Studies in India, vol. 8, nos. 2-3, 1984.
- . 'Franz Osten: Regisseur', Cinegraph: Lexikon zum deutschsprachigen Film, Munich: Hans-Michael Bock, 1985.
- . Franz Osten's Indian Silent Films, New Delhi: Max Mueller Bhavan, 1983.
- Kondala Rao, Ravi, Shavukaru-Chakrapani, Vijaywada: Navodaya, ?.
- Kosambi, D. D., 'Social and Economic Aspects of the Bhagavad Gita', Myth and Reality, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1962 and 1983.
- . An Introduction to the Study of Indian History, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1956 and 1980.
- . On History and Society: Problems of Interpretation, (compiled by A. J. Syed), Bombay: Department of History, University of Bombay, 1985.
- Koshy, K. V., Ente Cinemasmaranakal, Kottayam: NBS, 1968 (Malayalam).
- Kozhikodan, Chalachitra Sallappam, Kottayam: D. C. Books, 1982 (Malayalam).
- Krishen, Pradeep (ed.), 'Indian Popular Cinema: Myth, Meaning and Metaphor', special issue of India International Centre Quarterly, vol. 8, no. 1, March 1980.
- . 'Knocking at the Doors of Public Culture: India's Parallel Cinema', Public Culture, vol. 4, no. 1, Philadelphia, Fall 1991.
- Krishnakumari, K. V., Manishi Lo Maneeshi Dr Akkineni, Hyderabad: Man, 1992 (Telugu).
- Krishnan, Prabha and Dighe, Anita, Affirmation and Denial: Construction of Femininity on Indian Television, New Delhi: Sage, 1990.
- Krishnarao, A. N., Pragitisila Sahitya, Dharwad: Karnataka Sahitya Mandir, 1944 (Kannada).
- Krupanidhi, Uma and Srivastava, Anil (eds), Montage Special Issue Satyajit Ray, July 1966.
- Kulkarni, Shyama Sundar, Dr Rajkumar, Bangalore: Karnataka ChalanachitraPatrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- . Hunsur Krishnamurthy, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Kumar, Dharma and Desai, Meghnad (eds), The Cambridge Economic History of India, vol. 2: c.1757-c.1970, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1982.
- Kumar, Kewal J., Mass Communications in India, Bombay: Jaico, 1981.
- Kumar, Prashant (ed.), Gulzar: Ek Shaksiyat, Allahabad: Tagore Prakashan, 1973 (Hindi).
- Kumar, Ravinder, 'The Two "Revolutions" in the Panjab', Essays in the Social History of Modern India, Calcutta: Oxford University Press, 1983.
- Kumar, Uttam, Amar Ami, Calcutta: Mitra and Ghosh, 1979 (Bengali).
- Kunnappally, Mathukutty, Sathyante Katha, Kottayam: Current Books, 1988 (Malayalam)
- . Sathyante Katha, Kottayam: Current Books, 1988 (Malayalam)
- Lahiri, Sandeep and Rahman, Hafizur (eds), Satyajit, Ritwik, Mrinal, Calcutta: Cut-Zoom-Pan, 1982 (Bengali).
- Lakshmi, C. S., 'Seduction, Speeches and Lullaby: Gender and Cultural Identity in a Tamil Film', unpublished paper, 1992.
- . The Face Behind the Mask: Women in Tamil Literature, New Delhi: Vikas, 1984.

- Lakshminarayan, N., 'Kannada Cinema towards World Show Window', Kannada Films Supplement, Bangalore: Directorate of Information and Publicity, 1977.
- Lal, Dr Lakshminarayan, Parsee Hindi Rangmanch, New Delhi: Rajpal and Sons, 1973 (Hindi).
- Lankesh, P. (ed.), Lankesh Patrike, Deepavali Film Special Issues, 1986, 1987, 1988.
- Luthra, H. R., Indian Broadcasting, New Delhi: Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, 1986.
- Madras Institute of Development Studies, Workshop on Tamil Cinema Dossier: Tamil Cinema: History, Culture, Politics, Madras, 1997.
- Maheshwari, Omkarprasad, Hindi Chitrapat Ka Geeti Sahitya, Agra: Vinod Pustak Mandir, 1978.
- Mahmood, Hameeduddin, 'Sulochana', Filmfare, Bombay, 15-28 October 1976.
- , The Kaleidoscope of Indian Cinema, New Delhi: Affiliated East-West Press, 1974.
- Majumdar, Swapan, (ed.), Satyajit Ray Retrospective Souvenir, vol. 1, Calcutta, 1975, vol. 2, 1979.
- Malihabadi, Josh, Yaadon Ki Baraat, Delhi: Rajpal and Sons, s.d.
- Malhotra, Ramesh (ed.), Film India Directory 1990, Bombay: Division of Bombay Trade Information, 1990.
- Malayala Cinema Directory*, Kottayam: Commercial Art Centre, 1970 (Malayalam).
- Mammooty, Chamayangalillathe, Kottayam: Labour India Publications, ? (Malayalam).
- Mane, Anant, 'Anant Athvani', Chandrakant Mane (ed.), Pune: Indrayani Sahitya, 1987 (Marathi).
- Manimekalai Editorial Board, Monographs on: T. Rajendar (1990), Rajnikant (1987), K. Balachander (1987), P. Bharathirajaa (1989), K. Bhagyaraj (1983), Kamalahasan (1985), Jayalalitha (1990), Madras: Manimekalai Prasuram (Tamil).
- Manto, Sadat Hasan, Kingdom's End and Other Stories, London: Verso, 1987.
- , Meena Bazar [1962], New Delhi: Rajkamal Publications, 1984 (Hindi).
- Marudakasi, A., Tirai Kavithalam Kavignar A. Marudakasi Padalgai, Madras: Bhawani Publishers, 1988 (Tamil).
- Marulasiddappa, K. M., Adhunika Kannada Nataka, Bangalore: Printers Prakashana, 1983 (Kannada).
- Masani, M., Broadcasting and the People, New Delhi: National Book Trust, 1975.
- Masud, Iqbal, Dream Merchants, Politicians, Partition: Memoirs of an Indian Muslim, New Delhi: Harper Collins India, 1997.
- Mathew, Manarcadu, Chalachitraswaroopam, Kottayam: M. Mathew, 1984 (Malayalam).
- Mathur, R.D., 'Mughal-e-Azam and Its Creator Mr K. Asif', Lensight, Pune: vol. 2 no. 4, Oct 1993.
- Mehra, Parshottam, A Dictionary of Modern Indian History: 1707-1947, Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1985.
- Mehta, Ketan, Bhavni Bhavai (Screenplay), Calcutta, Seagull Books, 1986.
- Mehta, Ushakant, Gujarati Chalachitra Parampara: Saat Dashak, Krishnanagar-New Delhi: Rajesh Prakashan, 1993 (Hindi).
- Mehta, Vinod, Meena Kumari, Bombay: Jaico, 1972.
- Meiyappan, A. V., Enadhu Vazhkai Anubhavangal, Madras: Vanadhi Padhipagam, 1974 (Tamil).
- Menon, I. K. and Chandavarkar, S. G., Indian Motion Picture Almanac and Who's Who, Bombay: Film Federation of India, 1953.
- , Handbook of the Indian Film Industry, Bombay: Motion Picture Society of India, 1949.
- Menon, N., 'Traditional Culture, New Mediums, Interaction and Diffusion', in J. R. Roach (ed.), India 2000: The Next 15 Years, Riverdale: Riverdale, 1986.
- Menon, Raghava R., K. L. Saigal: The Pilgrim of the Swara, New Delhi: Clarion Books, 1978; new edn.: Hind Pocket Books, 1989.
- Merchant, Ismail, Hullabaloo in Old Jeypore: The Making of Shakespeare Wallah, London: Viking, 1988.
- Mhambre, Gangadhar, Mounankit Chitrapat Maharshi Phalke Hyanche Charitra, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1976 (Marathi).
- Micciollo, Henri, Guru Dutt, Paris: Anthologie du cinema, vol. 9, 1978.
- , Satyajit Ray, Paris: L'Age d'Homme, 1981.
- , Satyajit Ray: Pather Panchali, Paris: L'Avant-scène du cinéma no. 214, 1980.
- Mir, Ezra, 'What is a Good Documentary Film?', in T. M. Ramachandran (ed.), Fifty Years of Indian Talkies (1931-1981), Bombay: Indian Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, 1981.
- Mirchandani, G. C., India Backgrounders: Television in India, New Delhi: Vikrant Press, 1976.
- Mishra, Vijay, 'Towards a Theoretical Critique of Bombay Cinema', Screen, vol. 26, nos. 3-4, London, May-August 1985.
- , Jeffrey, Peter and Shoemsmith, Brian, 'The Actor as Parallel Text in Bombay Cinema', Quarterly Review of Film and Video, vol. 11, no. 3, Los Angeles, 1989.
- Mitra, Ananda, 'Interconnection and Cross-Overs Between Film and Television in India', unpublished paper, 1988.
- , Television and Popular Culture in India: A Study of the Mahabharat, New Delhi: Sage, 1993.
- Mitra, Kamal, Flashback, Calcutta: Mandal & Sons, 1989 (Bengali).
- Mitra, Premendra, Snake and Other Stories, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1990.
- Moholkar, Madhav, Geetayatri, Bombay: Mauj Prakashan, 1977 (Marathi).
- Mordekar, Raghavendra, 'Bhalji Pendharkaranche Marathi Bolpat', Yeshwant, Bombay, June 1941 (Marathi).
- , 'Shriyut Khandekaranche Marathi Bolpat', Yeshwant, Bombay, August 1941 (Marathi).
- Mudaliar, Gangadhar, Jayanthi, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Mudaliar, P. Sambandam, Handbook for Tamil Talkies, Madras: Peerless Press, 1937.
- , Pesumpada Anubhavangal, Madras: Peerless Press, 1938 (Tamil)
- Mugali, R. S., History of Kannada Literature, New Delhi: Sahitya Akademi, 1975.
- Mujawar, Isak, Albela Master Bhagwan, Bombay: Shalaka Prakashan, 1991 (Marathi).
- , Dev Anand, Bombay: Priya Prakashan, 1977.
- , Maharashtra: Birthplace of Indian Film Industry, Bombay: Govt of Maharashtra, 1965.
- Mukherjee, Hemanta (with Shankarlal Bhattacharya), Amar Ganer Swaralipi, Calcutta, 1988 (Bengali).
- Mukherjee, Hrishikesh, Anand: Hindi Film Script, New Delhi: Hind Pocket Books, 1971.
- , Ashirwad: Film Script, New Delhi: Hind Pocket Books, 1972.
- Mukherjee, Madhabi, Ami Madhabi (with Nirmal Dhar), Calcutta: Pratidin Prakashani, 1995.
- Mukherjee, Meenakshi, Realism and Reality: The Novel and Society in India, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1985.
- Mukherjee, Nishit, Bangla Chalachitrakaar, Calcutta: Standard, 1987 (Bengali).
- , Bangla Sahitya-o-Bangla Chalachitra, Calcutta: Ananda Dhara, 1986 (Bengali).

- . Pramathesh Barua-o-Bangla Chalachitra, Calcutta: Ananya Prakashan, 1987 (Bengali).
- Mukherjee, Probhat, Hiralal Sen: India's First Film-Maker, Calcutta: Cine Central, 1966.
- Mukherjee, Sailajananda, Je Katha Bola Hoy Ni, (compiled by Nakul Chatterjee), Calcutta: Prakash Bhavan, 1968 (Bengali).
- Mukherjee, Sushil Kumar, The Story of the Calcutta Theatres: 1753-1980, Calcutta: K. P. Bagchi and Co., 1980.
- Mukhopadhyaya, Deepankar, The Maverick Maestro: Mrinal Sen, New Delhi: Indus/Harper Collins, 1995.
- Mukhopadhyaya, Dilip, Satyajit, Calcutta: Banisilpa, 1986.
- Mukhopadhyaya, Kalish, Bangla Chalachitra Shilper Itihas 1897-1947, Calcutta: Rupamancha, 1962 (Bengali).
- Mukhopadhyaya, Subhash (ed.), Chalachitra: Barshiki, Calcutta: Signet Press, 1959 (Bengali).
- Muller, Marco (ed.), Le Avventurose storie del cinema indiano: 1. Scritture e contesti, Venice: Marsilio, 1985.
- . Ritwik Ghatak: The Burning Tiger, Rotterdam Film Festival/NFM/IAF, 1990.
- Mullick, Pankaj, Amar Jug Amar Gaan, Calcutta: Firma KLM, 1980 (Bengali).
- Munshi, Leelavati, 'Women and Film Industry', in Shyam Kumari Nehru (ed.), Our Cause: A Symposium by Indian Women, Allahabad: Kitabistan, 1938.
- Nadkarni, Mohan, Bal Gandharva: The Nonpareil Thespian, New Delhi: National Book Trust, 1988.
- Nagaiah, Chittor, V., Swiya Charitra, Madras: Inturi Venkateshwara Rao, 1983 (Telugu).
- Nagar, Amritlal, Tukde Tukde Dastaan, Delhi: Rajpal and Sons, 1986 (Hindi).
- 'Nairang', Abdul Qadus, Agha Hashr Aur Natak, Lucknow: Uttar Pradesh Sangeet Natak Akademi, 1978 (Hindi).
- Nair, P. K. (ed.), Fifty Years of Malayalam Cinema, Trivandrum: Filmotsav 1988 and Kerala State Film Development Corp., 1988.
- Namboodiripad, E. M. S., Marxisavum Malayala Sahityavum, Trivandrum: Chintha, 1974 (Malayalam).
- NAMEDIA, A Vision for Indian Television: Report of a Feedback Project, Indian Television Today and Tomorrow, New Delhi: NAMEDIA, 1986.
- Namra, Vidyavati, Hindi Rangmanch Aur Pandit Narayan Prasad 'Betaab', Varanasi: Vishwavidyalaya Prakashan, 1972 (Hindi).
- Nanda, Ritu, Raj Kapoor: His Life and His Films, Bombay: R. K. Films, 1991.
- Nandakumar, R., 'The Star System: A Note towards its Sociology', Deep Focus, vol.4 no.2, 1992.
- . 'Ravi Varma and His Relevance: An Art-Historical Revaluation', Samskara Keralam, Delhi: Dept of Cultural Publications, Govt of Kerala, July-September 1989 (Trivandrum).
- Nandi, Alok B. (ed.), Satyajit Ray 70 ans. Photographs by Nemai Ghosh, Brussels: Ed. Eiffel, 1991.
- Nandy, Ashis The Savage Freud and Other Essays, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1995.
- . Trivedy, Shikha, Mayaram, Shail, and Yagnik, Achyut, Creating a Nationality: The Ramjanmabhoomi Movement and Fear of the Self, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1997.
- . The Intimate Enemy: Loss and Recovery of the Self Under Colonialism, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1983.
- . 'How "Indian" is Ray?', Cinemaya, no. 20, New Delhi, Summer 1993.
- Narayana, Birendra, Hindi Drama and Stage, New Delhi: Bansal and Co., 1981.
- Narayanan, Andal, The Impact of TV on Viewers: A Case Study of Bombay TV Viewers, Bombay: Somaiya, 1987.
- Narayanan, Aranthai, Dravidam Paadiya Tiraippadangal, Madras: New Century Book House, 1994 (Tamil).
- . Nagarikakomali N. S. Krishnan, Madras: New Century Book House, 1992 (Tamil).
- . Suthanthirap Poril Tamil Cinema, Madras: New Century Book House, 1988 (Tamil).
- . Tamil Cinemavin Kathai, Madras: New Century Book House, 1981 (Tamil).
- Narayanan, V., Kalaivanar Vazhvil, Madras: Paranthaman Pathipagam, 1985 (Tamil).
- . Kalaivanar, Madras: Kalaivanar Nilayam, 1979 (Tamil).
- Narwekar, Sanjit (ed.), Films Division and the Indian Documentary, Bombay: Publications Division, 1992.
- . Directory of Indian Film-Makers and Films, London: Flicks Books, 1994.
- Natarajan Pillai, T. B., Cinemavin Thennattu Varalaru, Thanjavur: ?, 1958 (Tamil).
- Nayak, H. M., Kannada Vishwakosha, Mysore: Institute of Kannada Studies, University of Mysore, 1975 (Kannada).
- Nazir, Prem, Enne Thediyethiya Kathapatrangal, Trivandrum: Prabhath Book House, 1982 (Malayalam).
- Nerurkar, Vishwas (ed.), Lata Mangeshkar Gandhar Swarayatra, Kalwa: Smt. Nerurkar, 1989 (Hindi).
- Niranjana, Tejaswini and Srinivas, S.V., 'Managing the Crisis: Bharateeyudu and the Ambivalence of Being Indian', Economic and Political Weekly, vol.31, no.48, 30 November 1996.
- . 'Banning Bombay: Nationalism, Communalism and Gender', Economic and Political Weekly, vol.30 no.22, 3 June 1995.
- . 'Cinema, Femininity and the Economy of Consumption', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 26 no. 43, 26 October 1991.
- . 'Integrating Whose Nation: Tourists and Terrorists in Roja', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 29 no. 3, 15 January 1994.
- . Siting Translation: History, Post-Structuralism and the Colonial Context, Berkeley: University of California Press, 1992.
- . Sudhir, P. and Dhadeshwar, Vivek (eds), Interrogating Modernity: Culture and Colonialism in India, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1993.
- (ed.) 'Careers of Modernity', Special Issue, Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos.25/26, December 1993
- Noorani, A. G., 'Censoring Behind The Barricade', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 27 no. 36, 4 September 1993.
- Nossiter, T. J., Communism in Kerala: A Study in Political Adaptation, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1982.
- Nyce, Ben, Satyajit Ray: A Study of his Films, New York: Praeger, 1988.
- Ojha, Rajendra (ed.), 75 Glorious Years of Indian Cinema: Complete Filmography of all Films (Silent and Hindi) Produced between 1913-1988, Bombay: Screen World, 1988.
- Oomen, M. A. and Joseph, K. V., Economics of Film Industry in India, Gurgaon: Academic Press, 1981.
- Economics of Indian Cinema, New Delhi: IBH, 1991.
- Padgaonkar, Dilip et al. (eds), Flashback: Cinema in 'The Times of India', Bombay: Times of India, 1990.
- . 'L'Esthetique traditionnelle indienne appliquée au cinéma', Paris: University of Paris, unpublished, 1968.
- Padukone, Vasanthi, 'My Son Gurudutt', Imprint, Bombay: Business Press, April 1979.
- Paidipaala, Telugu Cinema Paata, Madras: Sneha Prachuranalu, 1992 (Telugu).
- Painter, Baburao, 'Interview', Screen, Bombay, 23 May, 1952.
- . 'Rangabhoomi Ani Vastralankaar', Pravinya Film Special, October-November 1933 (Marathi).

- Pal, Niranjana, 'Such Is Life', excerpted in Screen, Bombay, 28 September 1984 and in Filmfare, Bombay, 16-31 December 1983.
- Pandey, Gyanendra, 'In Defence of the Fragment: Writing about Hindu-Muslim Riots in India Today', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 26 nos. 11-12 (Annual), 1991.
- . The Construction of Communalism in Colonial North India, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1990.
- Pandian, M. S. S., 'Parasakthi: Life and Times of a DMK Film', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 26 nos 11-12, March 1991.
- . The Image Trap: M. G. Ramachandran in Film and Politics, New Delhi: Sage, 1992.
- . 'Tamil Cultural Elites and Cinema: Outline of an Argument', Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 31 no. 15, 13 April 1996.
- Pandit, Girija, Rajesh Khanna: Ek Abhineta, New Delhi: Star, 1973 (Hindi).
- Pandit, Prakash (ed.), Sahir Ludhianvi Aur Unki Shayari, New Delhi: Rajpal and Sons, 1976 (Hindi).
- . Shakeel Badaiyuni Aur Unki Shayari, New Delhi: Rajpal and Sons, s.d. (Hindi).
- Panicker, Ayyappa, A Short History of Malayalam Literature, Trivandrum: Dept of Public Relations, 1987.
- Panikkar, K. N., Against Lord and State: Religion and Peasant Uprisings in Malabar, 1836-1921, Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1989.
- Panneerselvan, A.S., 'Musical Mission', Frontline, Madras: Aug 22-Sept 4, 1987.
- Paradhaman, Kalaivanar Vazhvile, Madras: Paradhaman Publications, 1985 (Tamil).
- Paranjpe, Raja, 'Majhya Shabdaat Mi', Rudravani, Pune, 25 June 1975 (Marathi).
- Parathanam, Shibu (ed.), John Abraham: Studies and Interviews, Trivandrum: Chidambara Publishers, 1987 (Malayalam).
- Parrain, Philippe, Regards sur le cinéma indien, Paris: Le Cerf, 1969.
- Passek, Jean-Loup (ed.), Le Cinéma indien, Paris: L'Esquerre-Centre Georges Pompidou, 1983.
- Patel, Baburao (ed.), Stars of the Indian Screen, Bombay: Parker and Sons, 1953.
- Patil, Dinkar D., 'Marathi Kautumbik Chitrache Pravartak: Datta Dharmadhikari', Rasrang, Nasik, 15 January 1983 (Marathi).
- . Master Vinayak: Dighdarshakancha Dighdarshak, Bombay: Sindhu Prakashan, 1971 (Marathi).
- . Patlacha Por, Pune: Prestige Prakashan, 1986 (Marathi).
- . Ruperi Padada: Tantra Ani Mantra, Bombay: Majestic Prakashan, 1988 (Marathi).
- Paul, A. (ed.), Kerala Film Guide, Calicut: Chitravedi, 1966 (Malayalam).
- Paul, Ashit, (ed.), Woodcut Prints of Nineteenth-Century Calcutta, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1983.
- Paul, Chandra R., Film and Society: A Study Carried out and Written about Cinema for UNESCO with Reference to the Film Language as Inheritor of Oral and Visual Traditions in India, New Delhi: UNESCO, s.d.
- Pendakur, Manjunath, 'New Cultural Technologies and the Fading Glitter of Indian Cinema', Quarterly Review of Film and Video, vol. 11, no. 3, 1989.
- . 'India', in John A. Lent, The Asian Film Industry, Bromley: Christopher Helm, 1990, pp. 229-252.
- Pendharkar, Baburao, Chitra Ani Charitra, Pune: Vishakha Prakashan, 1961/1983 (Marathi).
- Pendharkar, Bhalji, Rasrang special issue, Nasik, 15 August 1981 (Marathi).
- . Sadha Manos, Bombay: Mauj Prakashan, 1993 (Marathi).
- Perala, Vasanthakumara, R. Madhusudhan, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Pfleiderer, Beatrix and Lutze, Lothar, The Hindi Film: Agent and Re-Agent of Cultural Change, New Delhi: Manohar, 1985.
- Phadke, Sudhir (ed.), Chitrasharada, Bombay: Maharashtra Chitrapat Mahamandal, 1982 (Marathi).
- Phalke, Dadasaheb, 'Bharatiya Chitrapat', Navyug, Bombay, November-December 1917, February/September 1918 (Marathi); transl. in Firoze Rangoonwalla (ed.), Phalke Centenary Souvenir, Bombay: Phalke Centenary Celebrations Committee, 1978.
- . 'Evidence', Indian Cinematographic Committee 1927-28, vol. 3, Calcutta: Central Publications Branch, 1928.
- . 'Interview', Kesari, Pune, 19 August 1913.
- . 'Swadeshi Moving Pictures', transl. N. S. Shahane, Continuum, vol. 2 no. 1, Perth, 1988-9, pp. 51-73.
- Poddar, N. L. (ed.), All-India Film Guide, Calcutta: Kalakunj, 1968.
- Political Events Annual 1989*, New Delhi: Lok Sabha Secretariat, Research and Information Division, Lardri Service, 1990.
- Pradhan, Snehaprabha, Snehankita, Bombay: Popular Prakashan, 1973 (Marathi).
- Pradhan, Sudhi (ed.), Marxist Cultural Movement in India: Chronicles and Documents, vol. 1 (1936-1947), Calcutta: Santi Pradhan/National Book Agency, 1979; vol. 2 (1947-1958), Calcutta: Navana, 1982; vol. 3 (1943-1964), Calcutta: Santi Pradhan-Pustak Bipani, 1985.
- Prasad, M. Madhava, 'Signs of Ideological Re-form in Two Recent Films: Towards Real Subsumption?' Journal of Arts and Ideas, no. 29, January 1996.
- . 'Cinema and the Desire for Modernity', Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos. 25/26, December 1993.
- . Ideology of the Hindi Film: A Historical Construction, New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 1998.
- Prasad, Chalasani (ed.), Sri Sri Upanyasulu, Hyderabad: Virasam, 1990 (Telugu).
- Premchand, Munshi, 'Cinema Aur Sahitya', Lekhak, Allahabad, 1935.
- Pym, John, The Wandering Company. Twenty-One Years of Merchant Ivory Films, London: British Film Institute, 1983.
- Rabindranath Tagore 1861-1941*, Paris: Bibliothèque Nationale de Paris, 1961.
- Radha Bai, C. A., 'An Economic Survey of the Cinematographic Industry in Madras Presidency', Madras: Madras University, unpublished, 1940.
- Radhakrishnan, M. G. (ed.), Malayalam Cinema: 50 Years, Bombay: Sahrudaya Film Society, 1989.
- Raghava, Bellari, The South Indian Stage and Other Lectures (compiled by V. Srinivasa Sarma and K. Dasapathi Rao), Hyderabad, 1976.
- Raghuram, Muddali, ed. Aravai Yella Telugu Cinema, Hyderabad: Kinnera, 1994 (Telugu).
- Raghuvanshi, Harish, Mukesh Film Geet Kosh, Surat: Audio Vision, 1985 (Hindi).
- Raha, Kiranmoy, Bengali Cinema, Calcutta: Nandan, 1991.
- . Bengali Theatre, Calcutta: National Book Trust, 1978.
- Rai, Amrit, Premchand: A Life, New Delhi: People's Publishing House, 1982.
- Rai, Hemendra Kumar, (compiled by Debiprasad Ghosh), Jatrapathe Chalachitra, Calcutta: Agami, 1990 (Bengali).
- Rajadhyaksha, Ashish (ed.), The Sad and the Glad of Kishore Kumar, Bombay: Research Centre for Cinema Studies, 1988.
- . and Gangar, Amrit (eds), Ghatak: Arguments/Stories, Bombay: Screen Unit-Research Centre for Cinema Studies, 1987.
- . 'Debating the Third Cinema', in Jim Pines and Paul Willemsen (eds), Questions of Third Cinema, London: British Film Institute 1989, pp. 170-8.
- . 'Neo-Traditionalism', Framework, nos. 32-33, 1986.

- . 'Satyajit Ray, Ray's Films and Ray-movie', Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos. 23-24, 1993.
- . 'The Epic Melodrama: Themes of Nationality in Indian Cinema', Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos. 25-26, 1993.
- . 'The Phalke Era: Conflict of Traditional Form and Modern Technology', Journal of Arts and Ideas, nos. 14-15, July-December 1987.
- . Ritwik Ghatak: A Return to the Epic, Bombay: Screen Unit, 1982.
- Rajagopalachari, C. 'The Cinema', 1953, in R.R. Diwakar/S. Ramakrishnan (ed.) Rajaji's Speeches, v 2, Bombay: Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, 1978.
- Rajamohan, O. P., Adhunik Cinema Moolayavum, Tellicherry: 1985 (Malayalam).
- Rama Rao, Veeranki, Madras Film Diary, Madras: 1953/1957.
- Ramachandran, T. M., (ed.), Indian Talkie 1931-81: Fifty Years of Indian Talkies, A Commemorative Volume, Bombay: Indian Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, 1981.
- . 70 Years of Indian Cinema, 1913-1983, Bombay: Cinema India-International, 1985.
- Ramaiya, B.S. Cinema...? Madras: Jyothi Nilayam, 1943 (Tamil).
- Ramakrishna Rao, A. (ed.), Telugu Novel, vol. 1, Secunderabad: Yuva Bharati, 1975.
- Ramakrishna, V., Social Reform in Andhra (1848-1919), New Delhi: Vikas, 1983.
- Ramakrishnaiah, M. V. and Narahari Rao, H. H., A Glimpse of Kannada Cinema, Bangalore: Suchitra Film Society, 1992.
- . R. Nagendra Rao, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- . Rajendra Singh Babu, Bangalore: Karnataka Chalanachitra Patrakartara Parishat, 1988 (Kannada).
- Ramamurti, P., The Freedom Struggle and the Dravidian Movement, Madras: Orient Longman, 1987.
- Ramanath, T.V. (ed.) Thirai Valartha Tamil, Madras: TVT Publishers, 1987 (Tamil).
- Ramankutty, K. V., Adhunik Malayala Cinema, Trivandrum: Kerala State Institute of Languages, 1989 (Malayalam).
- . Malayalam Cinema, Trivandrum: Govt of Kerala Public Relations Dept, 1988.
- Ramchandra, C., Majhya Jeevanacha Sargam, Pune: Inamdar Bandhu Prakashan, 1977 (Marathi).
- Ranade, Ashok (ed.), Sangeet Natak, special issue Hindi Film Music, no. 100, New Delhi: Sangeet Natak Akademi, April-June 1991.
- . Stage Music of Maharashtra, New Delhi: Sangeet Natak Akademi, 1986.
- . 'Popular Culture and Music', International Pop Culture, India, special issue, vol. 2, no. 1.
- Ranga Rao, V. A. K. (ed.), Bhuvanavijayamu: A Compilation of Ghantasala Venkateshwara Rao's Lyrics, Madras: Ooha Enterprises, 1972 (Telugu).
- . 'Cultural Dissemination through Cinema', in Indian Cinema 1990, K. N. T. Sastry (ed.), New Delhi: Directorate of Film Festivals, 1991.
- Rangaswami, S. (ed.), Who is Who in Indian Filmland, Madras: Happy India Office, 1933.
- Rangoonwala, Firoze, Guru Dutt: 1925-1965, Pune: NFAI, 1973.
- . (ed.), Phalke Centenary Souvenir, Bombay: Phalke Centenary Celebrations Committee, 1978.
- . Indian Cinema, New Delhi: Clarion Books, 1983.
- . Indian Filmography: Silent and Hindi Films (1897-1969), Bombay: Rangoonwala-J. Udeshi, 1970.
- . Indian Films Index (1912-1967), Bombay: J. Udeshi, 1968.
- . Pictorial History of Indian Cinema, London: Hamlyn, 1979.
- . Satyajit Ray's Art, Delhi: Clarion Books, 1980.
- . Seventy-Five Years of Indian Cinema, New Delhi: Indian Book Company, 1975.
- Rao, R. Nagendra, Idu Nanna Kathe: Autobiography (as told to C. Sitharam), Bangalore: H. V. S. Kala Sahitya Prakashana, 1974 (Kannada).
- Ray, Mriganka Sekhar (ed.), Chalachitra Samiksha, Calcutta: Federation of Film Societies of India Eastern Zone, 1983 (Bengali).
- Ray, R. M. (ed.), Sangeet Natak Akademi Film Seminar Report: 1955, New Delhi, Sangeet Natak Akademi, 1956.
- Ray, Satyajit and Basu, Partha (eds), Sukumar Sahitya Samagra, 3 vols, Calcutta: Ananda, 1973 (Bengali).
- . et al. (eds), Chalachitra, vol. 1, Calcutta: Signet, 1950.
- Ray, Satyajit, Autres nouvelles du Bengale, Paris: Presses de la Renaissance, 1989.
- . Bisoy Chalachchitra [On Cinema], Calcutta: Ananda, 1976 (Bengali).
- . Bravo! Professor Shonku, transl. Kathleen M. O'Connell, Calcutta: Rupa, 1986.
- . Ekei Bole Shooting [We Call It Shooting], Calcutta: Newsprint, 1979 (Bengali).
- . Jakhan Choto Chhilam [When I Was Small], Calcutta: Ananda, 1982 (Bengali).
- . Kanchanjungha (Screenplay), Calcutta: Mitra and Ghosh, 1972 (Bengali).
- . La Nuit de l'indigo et autres nouvelles, Paris: Presses de la Renaissance, 1987.
- . Les Pieces d'or de Jahangir, Paris: Presses de la Renaissance, 1990.
- . Nayak (Screenplay), Calcutta: Bengal Publications, 1973.
- . Nonsense Rhymes: Translations of Sukumar Ray's Poetry, Calcutta: Writers Workshop, 1970.
- . Our Films, Their Films, Calcutta: Orient Longman, 1976.
- . Pather Panchali (Satish Bahadur, ed.), Pune: NFAI, 1981.
- . Pather Panchali, transl. Lila Ray, Calcutta: Cine Central, 1984.
- . Phatikchand, transl. Lila Ray, Delhi: Orient Paperbacks, 1983.
- . Sera Sandesh, Calcutta: Ananda, 1981 (Bengali).
- . Sera Satyajit, Calcutta: Ananda, 1991 (Bengali).
- . Stories, London: Secker and Warburg, 1987/ The Unicorn Expedition and Other Fantastic Tales of India, New York: E.P. Dutton, 1987.
- . The Adventures of Feluda, New Delhi: Penguin-India, 1985.
- . The Apu Trilogy, transl. Shampa Bannerjee, Calcutta: Seagull Books, 1985.
- . The Chess Players and Other Screenplays (Andrew Robinson ed.), London: Faber and Faber, 1989.
- Raychoudhury, Tapan and Habib, Irfan (eds), The Cambridge Economic History of India, vol. 1: c.1200-c.1750, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1982.
- Razdan, C. K. (ed.), Bare Breasts and Bare Bottoms: Anatomy of Film Censorship in India, Bombay: Jaico Publishing, 1975.
- Reddy, Pattabhi Rama, Kaita Na Daita, Nellore: Nellore Progressive Union, 1978 (Telugu).
- . Pattabhi Panchangam, Mysore: Telugu Association, 1974 (Telugu).
