Livermore Council Agrees To Review Tesla Draft EIR

Livermore city staff will review the draft environmental impact report (DEIR) for the proposed off-road vehicle park on the Tesla property.

Tesla is owned by the Parks Department, whose Off-Highway Motor Vehicle Recreation Division is expected "to acquire, develop, and operate state-owned vehicular recreation areas," according to its official literature.

In the late 1990s the State of California Parks Department purchased the 3,400 acres in the southeast corner of Alameda County along the Tesla-Corral Hollow Road. The intent of the purchase was to expand the existing adjacent Carnegie State Vehicular Recreation Area (SVRA) off-highway vehicle (OHV) park into the Tesla Park land. Last fall, State Parks officials unveiled the preferred concept for the 3,500-acre expansion of the Carnegie State Vehicular Recreation Area.

Under the preferred concept, Tesla would be developed for a wide range of off-road vehicle skill levels, from training routes for young and beginning riders to advanced trails for the highly experienced. In addition, it would have new entrances, parking, classroom/meeting space, services areas and sites for camping and picnicking.

Park officials have twice tried and failed to complete environmental impact reports for the project. The DEIR is due out this spring. The city council directed staff to review the DEIR when it is published, provide information to the council. Then if the council desires, the issue could be placed on an agenda for further discussion.

The directive came after pleas by representatives of many organizations asking the city to become involved in the process. The discussion (See TESLA, page 4)

Public Invited to Learn about International Baccalaureate Program

By Carol Graham

Last fall, a group of young learners wondered what was inside pumpkins. "After measuring a pumpkin's circumference, they cut it open to see the interior," stated Joe Michell School Principal Dr. Laura Lembo. "They noticed all the seeds and wondered whether the seeds would grow if they filled the pumpkin with dirt and watered it. So they did the investigation, watching the whole process and having conversations about their observations. We were following the students, instead of following our own agenda. It leads to genuine, authentic learning."

Joe Michell's students, from transitional kindergarten through 8th grade, are learning under a new program for the first time this year: the International Baccalaureate (IB) Programme. The program was founded in 1968 for internationally mobile students, and is headquartered in Geneva, Switzerland.

TVLC Votes to Add San Diego Charter School

By Ron McNicoll

Tri-Valley Learning Corporation (TVLC) has voted to acquire Old Town Academy, a K-8 charter school with 255 students in San Diego.

The TVLC board unanimously approved the acquisition at a special meeting Jan. 9. It remains for the Old Town board to vote to finish the agreement.

Old Town executive director Tom Donahue told The Independent on Monday that he expects the Old Town board to make a decision later this month, or early in February. He is recommending that Old Town join TVLC. "The benefits to both will be huge," said Donahue.

TVLC CEO Bill Batchelor sees it the same way. He told the board that although Old Town may not have any measurable financial impact on TVLC at first, the programmatic gain would be great.

Donahue, who co-founded Old Town three years ago, is an experienced teacher who has written software for schools. Batchelor said that he sees definite program aid on the technology side (See CHARTER, page 5)

Pleasanton Replacing Lights with LED Fixtures

The City of Pleasanton's LED street light conversion project is on schedule to begin fixture replacement by the end of January, with anticipated completion in April 2014.

Over the next several months, the $1.6 million project will begin to replace more than 5,400 High Pressure Sodium Vapor "cobra head" street light fixtures with new Light Emitting Diode (LED) energy efficient street light fixtures. LED lights have a longer operational life, are more energy efficient, emit zero UV emissions, and focus light more efficiently to a desired location.

The conversion is part of Pleasanton's Climate Action Plan, and offers both financial and environmental benefits—savings of up to 60% in maintenance and electricity costs are projected. The City anticipates annual savings of $200,000 from the new program, which will be funded through a low interest loan from the California Energy Commission and a one-time $350,000 conversion incentive rebate from PG&E.

The LED fixtures will (See LIGHTS, page 8)

Former Pleasanton Mayor Ken Mercer Dies

Former Pleasanton Mayor Ken Mercer died of cancer on Jan. 14, 2014. Flags at municipal locations will be lowered to half-staff in his honor.

Pleasanton city manager Nelson Fialho praised the former councilmember and mayor. "I cannot under-state the many contributions made by Ken Mercer during his tenure on the Pleasanton City Council and as a two-term mayor," said Fialho.

Brown's Budget Boosts Education, Debt Payment

California Gov. Jerry Brown's $106 billion budget proposal for the coming fiscal year includes another $10 billion for schools' Local Control Funding Formula.

The budget also will eliminate school deferrals, which has been the practice of keeping cash flow money that districts use, until a later date.

The state used the deferral money to pay its costs, and later sent money to districts when more revenue was available. However, it meant that the districts, had to borrow short-term so that their own cash flow was not (See BUDGET, page 4)

Annual Lions Club Crab Feed to Help Raise Funds for Matthew Yount Scholarship Foundation

By Carol Graham

Twenty-year-old Matthew Yount loved life. He woke up with a smile on his face and went to bed with the same smile, says father Greg Yount.

"He loved his brother Adam, his friends, girls, any sport - especially golf," says Yount, adding that Matthew was a four-year varsity letter recipient for golf at Pleasanton's Foothill High School from which he graduated in 2011.

As a junior attending Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, Matthew's goal was to get into the business world, possibly finance. He went to Seville, Spain to study abroad hoping to understand how international events influence the U.S. economy. But on November 20th, Matthew drowned in the Guadalquivir river, leaving family, friends and schoolmates at home bereft.

"Matthew lived life as full as anyone that I have ever known," says Yount. "He was the kind of kid who was always there to help when someone needed it. That is why we at the Lions Club thought it would be appropriate to have a scholarship in his name. This way a young adult who might not have been able to attend college might be able to now, and Matthew's legacy can live on."

On Saturday, January 25th, the Pleasanton Lions Club will host its largest fundraiser of the year, the 26th Annual Crab Feed at the Alameda County Fairgrounds. A portion of the profits will go to the Matthew Yount Scholarship Foundation.

"This year is especially close to our hearts as our current president Greg Yount recently suffered the tragic loss of his son," says Lions Secretary Pam Grimes.

Tickets for the all-you-can-eat Crab Feed cost $48 per person, with parking included. The no-host bar opens at 6 p.m., featuring cocktails, beer and Livermore's Mitchell Katz Cabernet Sauvignon and Chardonnay. Crab, pasta, shrimp salad and dinner rolls will be served at 7:30. The McCoustic Duo will provide dinner music, performing cover songs from the '50s to the present by artists that include Stevie Nicks, The Beatles, Oasis and Pink Floyd.

"Our Crab Feed was awarded Fundraiser of the Year 2013 in California from Lions International," says Grimes. "That was a great honor for our club. Event Chairman Steve Grimes has organized it for over 20 years, bringing it from a 300-person event to the more than 1,200 guests who currently attend each year."

More than 4,200 pounds of crab will be served, which equals about 3.5 lbs per guest, an amount that may make it difficult to boogie on the dance floor when the DJ starts spinning tunes, but shouldn't interfere with enjoying the casino games of Black Jack, Craps and Dessert Roulette.

"There will be two silent auction areas offering sports memorabilia and a variety of gift baskets to suit the tastes of just about everyone," says Grimes. "They include a weekend trip to Napa, a day of golf at the beautiful Callippe Golf Course in Pleasanton, and last year we added a gift basket for a full Crab Feed table (16 people) which included a personal server for the evening, bottles of wine, and for the table to be served dessert first. It was a huge hit!"

Lions Clubs International is the world's largest service club organization, with more than 1.3 million members in 46,000 clubs worldwide. The Pleasanton Lions, with 60 members currently, have been serving the community for more than 80 years. Dinner meetings are held twice monthly on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month at 6:30. They take place at the Regalia House, 4133 Regalia Avenue, Pleasanton.

"Our meetings are open to the public and we enthusiastically welcome and encourage anyone interested in learning about us to stop by for a visit," says Grimes. "We love to meet new people, and hope that we can create a community where making a difference by giving back becomes part of the joy of life."

County Says State Budget Falls Short In Funding Programs Cut to the Bone

Alameda County officials are expressing support for Governor Brown's latest budget proposal to restore some direct benefits for healthcare and other important services, but say the plan does not go far enough to reinstate support for other programs cut to the bone in recent years and raises unsettling questions about new burdens to local government under healthcare reform.

County officials say the Governor's January State Budget proposal reflects in many ways a return to responsible budgeting for the State of California. Rather than the annual deficits in excess of $20 billion of a few years ago, the State of California anticipates a surplus of $6 billion through the next fiscal year.

According to a press release, the County applauds the Governor for proposing to restore Medi-Cal benefits for mental health and substance abuse. The County also supports changes to the 2011 Public Safety Realignment to include measures designed to keep low-level offenders out of jails and more able to receive the services they need.

"These are investments in the right direction," says Keith Carson President of the Board of Supervisors and Chair of the County's Budget Workgroup. "However, there are still unmet needs in our communities as our residents experience incremental economic recovery. We continue to look to the State for leadership and support as we manage the recovery of programs that serve our vulnerable communities but have been damaged by years of cuts."

The Governor's Budget plan also shows a needed measure of caution: although the State's fiscal outlook is faring better than previous years, there are still reasons to be prudent.

County officials say the Governor's Budget proposal raises some areas of deep concern, particularly with regards to health services for low-income residents. Under the Medi-Cal program that is expanding dramatically as part of federal healthcare reform, the State has proposed significant cuts in funding it provides local governments to help care for uninsured residents. According to the press release, it is believed that thousands of Alameda County residents will remain uninsured even after healthcare reform is fully enacted, creating a new strain on the County's limited resources as it looks for ways to care for these residents. Furthermore, the Governor is maintaining cuts to the reimbursement rates for healthcare providers under the expanded Medi-Cal program. Given that reimbursement rates in Alameda County are already far too low, these proposals raise alarming questions about where residents who qualify for expanded Medi-Cal services will receive care.

The County will continue to monitor carefully the full costs of the Public Safety realignment and the Affordable Care Act to ensure its residents receive quality services. "I am encouraged by the Governor's budget plan as there are no new significant program realignments, which can add real pressure on County resources," Carson said.

VALLEY ROUNDUP

Pleasanton Top Job Spot

NerdWallet, a consumer advocacy website, recently conducted a study to find the best places for job seekers in California – and Pleasanton is in the top 10. As many people continue searching for employment in this recovering economy, NerdWallet assessed the cities of the Golden State to find the best places for jobs. To do so, the company evaluated the state's cities using the following criteria: median household income, monthly homeowner costs, population growth of those ages 16 and older, and unemployment rates.

NerdWallet ranked Pleasanton as the fifth best place for job seekers in California. Pleasanton experienced a 5.9 percent increase in the working-age population between 2009 and 2012. Its residents make a median household income of $118,713. Major employers in the city include Oracle and Kaiser Permanente. Average monthly expenses per household were $3,327, unemployment at 3.7 percent. The city received an overall score of 63.

According to Nerdwallet.com: Pleasanton lives up to its name. With a cute downtown, two BART commuter train stations, and job opportunities at the city's largest employers Kaiser Permanente and Oracle, Pleasanton is a friendly city located right next to the top-rated city for job-seekers, San Ramon. Pleasanton's low unemployment rate, just 3.7 percent, and lower cost of living compared to other Bay Area cities makes it a great choice for job seekers. Its growth rate is lower than some of our other cities, with a 5.8 percent increase in the working-age population between 2009 and 2011, but the unemployment rate has continued to decline from 2009, according to the California Employment Development Department. It is also home to University of San Francisco- Pleasanton Campus, which is geared towards working adults looking to upgrade their education.

Livermore was ranked at 18 with an increase in working population of 2.8 percent; median household income of $96,322, median monthly homeowner costs at $2,927; unemployment rate 4.8 percent, and overall score of 55.8.

There were 158 cities included in this analysis. Only cities with a population greater than 40,000 were included.

Other places in the top 10 include nearby San Ramon, Palo Alto and Cupertino. For more information about NerdWallet, visit www.nerdwallet.com.

Swalwell Endorsed

Congressman Eric Swalwell announced the endorsement of twenty-eight locally elected officials, including all of the mayors of the cities in the 15th District and the majority of elected councilmembers. "As a former Dublin City Councilmember, I appreciate how hard our local leaders are working to improve the quality of life in our area," said Swalwell.

These elected officials demonstrate diverse support across the district and across party lines.

"I admire Congressman Swalwell's knowledge of the issues and his attentiveness to his constituents," said Livermore Mayor John Marchand.

Pleasanton Presents Miniseries on Resources For those with Developmental Disabilities

The City of Pleasanton will host a Doors to the Future miniseries for families of, and individuals with, developmental disabilities on Tuesday, January 21 at 6:30 p.m. at the Pleasanton Public Library meeting room, 400 Old Bernal Avenue. The event follows the well-attended Transition Information Night held at the Pleasanton Senior Center last October and requests from families for more such events.

Doors to the Future is co-sponsored by Gina Gourley who had a 25-year career in special education with the Pleasanton Unified School District and is now an independent consultant. She serves on the boards of several non-profits that serve those with developmental disabilities, and is a member of the Alameda County Inter-agency Transition Team.

The event will also include a presentation on Limited Conservatorships by Stephen Dale of The Dale Law Firm. A major focus of Dale's practice has been the unique needs of persons with disabilities and the elderly.

His interest in this specialized field began in 1972 when he became a licensed psychiatric nurse and worked in state hospitals and community programs caring for psychiatric patients, persons with severe developmental disabilities and the elderly. He regularly teaches courses to the public, financial professionals, and other attorneys on Special Needs Trusts and trust administration with a special emphasis on achieving independence while maintaining essential government benefits.

His presentation is designed for parents and care providers seeking information on how to establish certain rights to care for an adult child with a developmental disability. Those with children still in high school will also find this to be invaluable information for the future.

For more information about Doors to the Future, please contact Jessica Rea-ber at (925) 931-5373.

Opportunities to Learn

Residents have the opportunity to become better informed on two topics: hunger and water.

Open Heart Kitchen will screen "A Place at the Table: One Nation Underfed" at the Firehouse Arts Center in Pleasanton tonight, Jan. 16 at 7 p.m. The event is co-sponsored by the City of Pleasanton and the Dublin Rotary Club.

Following the film, Open Heart Kitchen Director Linda McKeever will present an overview of hunger in the Tri-Valley.

Currently, Open Heart Kitchen serves more than 260,000 meals annually at five locations in Pleasanton, Livermore and Dublin.

A documentary narrated by Ed Begley Jr., "Over Troubled Waters: The Fate of California is In Your Hands," will be shown at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 25 at the IBEW Hall, 6250 Village Parkway, Dublin. The film focuses on the history of water battles in California.

A guest speaker from Restore the Delta, an organization opposed to the governor's plans to build twin tunnels to convey water from the Delta, will lead a question and answer session after the film.

Another view of the water situation will be provided by California Natural Resources Secretary John Laird at 6 p.m. on Jan. 30 in the Dublin Club Council Chambers. He will discuss implementation of the California Water Action Plan, including how it would impact the Tri-Valley.

We urge people to take the time to learn more about the these quality of life issues.

sion was not an agenda item. It took place when Councilmember Bob Woerner raised the issue under the matters initiated portion of the agenda.

Woerner commented, "We heard a whole lot of people talk about Tesla. I suggest we have city staff review the EIR. It would be a reasonable expenditure of city staff time."

Councilmember Stewart Gary wondered what the council would do with the information. For example, would the council take a position on the expansion. "We heard one side of the debate. There is another side," said Gary.

Woerner said he didn't say what the outcome of the review would be. Speakers said that they recognized that this is a state issue. "There are a whole lot of concerned citizens looking for help in looking at what's going on. Staff would read the report, look at the impacts and determine if mitigations are adequate."

Livermore Community Development Manager Stephan Kiefer said that the staff had been monitoring the issue since 2012. Staff would look at the DEIR to determine if it were consistent with the city's general plan policies and whether or not there would be an impact on the urban growth boundary.

There is an effort to preserve the area. Leading the effort is Friends of Tesla Park, an organization comprised of 250 other groups. Friends of Tesla Park organized the presentation at Monday's council meeting. There were no representatives from groups who support expanding off-road use.

Friends of Tesla Park was represented at the council meeting by Nancy Rodrigue. She told the council that the goal is a non-motorized park. "There is strong local support for the idea. Tesla is part of the Livermore Valley and the community's history." She stated that preserving the area is consistent with the city and regional land use plans including the South Livermore Plan. "We are asking the city to comment on the DEIR and express support for preservation. The actions would be consistent with the values and policies that have protected the area's surrounding open space."

A series of speakers spoke to a variety of issues ranging from loss of habitat for listed species, erosion, and pollution, as well as the historical value of the Tesla area. There were concerns that the environmental review is part of a larger General Plan revision. Each of the speakers provided a letter and documentation supporting their statements, which they gave to the city clerk.

Tamara Ruess, president of Friends of the Vineyards, described her organization as dedicated to the preservation of Livermore agriculture, wine country and open space. That includes preserving Tesla as a non-motorized park. She said that in the past, the city has commented on projects not directly within the city limits including Del Valle, Brushy Peak, and Doolan Canyon. Ruess noted that expansion of off-highway use is not consistent with any regional land use plan including East Bay Regional Park District, Livermore Area Recreation and Park District, Alameda County General Plan and the Alameda County Conservation Strategy. All identify Tesla for preservation of some type.

Jeff Kaskey from the Livermore Heritage Guild pointed out that the town of Tesla was once a vibrant labor town. It was part of the foundation of Livermore. He was concerned that off-road use would degrade any remaining historical artifacts. "Asking people to drive more slowly through such sites, isn't the same as protecting an historic area."

From the Ohlone Audubon Chapter, Stephanie Floyd pointed out that there are three nesting golden eagles in the Tesla territory. It is the first nesting area south of the impacted Altamont wind area for raptors and other avian species. Damage to Tesla would be counterproductive to efforts to reduce bird deaths in the windmill area, she stated.

Mary Putoff from the Society of American Indians urged the council to consider becoming part of the preservation effort in order to protect Native American artifacts and sites in the Tesla area.

The Sierra Club, with 28,000 members, was represented by Donna Cabanne. She pointed out that seven threatened and endangered species and their habitat are located on the Tesla land. There are over 55 other listed plants and animals found there. "It is an unexpectedly wide range of resources."

Terry Russo said that the proposed plans to allow trails only on the steep areas will still result in pollution of lower areas where much of the quality habitat is located. Rain will result in run-off containing gas, oil and rubber residue, causing habitat destruction.

Other groups represented were the California Native Plant Society, Livermore Hill Hikers, Tri-Valley Trailblazers, Friends of the Arroyos, and the Alameda Creek Alliance.

Bringing the perspective of residents who leave near Tesla was Marilyn Russell, who taught biology at Livermore High School for many years. She spoke for the Tesla Road Resident Alliance. There are 37 members and the numbers are growing, according to Russell. "The goals are to protect our rural life-style, livestock, vineyards, wineries and horses - but most of all our peace and quiet. We are opposed to any expansion of Carnegie. It is only seven miles from city hall and three miles from most of our homes."

"Tesla Road is already a safety hazard. Opening the park area to more people will impact us in many ways including increased traffic, noise, and air pollution. There is concern that run-off into nearby wells would contain oil and gas," said Russell.

Wieskamp to Head EBRPD Board

Ayn Wieskamp of Livermore has been selected as the new president of the East Bay Regional Park District Board of Directors for the year 2014.

Wieskamp represents Dublin, part of Fremont, Livermore, Pleasanton, and Sunol.

Wieskamp has served the East Bay Regional Park District Board since June 1999. Before joining the Board, she served on the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District Board, the Livermore City Council, the Alameda County Recycling Board and the Alameda County Congestion Management Agency. She received the 1998 California Association of Recreation and Park District's Special Award for her development of special family events and her efforts to expand open space and trails. She is a former public school teacher and currently leads recreation classes. She is married and resides in Livermore.

Parks in her ward include Ardenwood, Brushy Peak, Dublin Hills, Coyote Hills, Del Valle, Mission Peak, Monument Peak, Ohlone, a portion of Pleasanton Ridge, Shadow Cliffs, Sunol, and Tassajara Creek.

interrupted, and they could pay their bills in a timely way.

Brown, in a news conference on Jan. 9 in Sacramento, said his budget emphasizes K-14 education, the justice system, social services, and a significant $11 billion incremental payment of the accumulated $24.9 million "wall of debt."

That debt was caused by the state taking money away from cities and counties to use for its own obligations. Cities will be receiving their payback this year, said Brown. There are no plans for paying back counties. That's not likely until next year, said Brown.

The wall of debt would shrink to $13.9 billion. A year later, the projection that it would fall to about $4 billion.

As to the justice system, there will be $100 million more for courts, and $500 million more for prisoner rehabilitation, which is part of the state's ongoing struggle with the federal government over the lack of adequate jail housing for prisoners.

Valley school officials were buoyed by the news about the budget. Livermore school district business official Susan Kinder said that Brown's announced figures for schools came in higher than anticipated. The state had a seven-year funding gap to make up to schools to restore them to their 1007-08 levels, when the recession started.

Kinder said that she estimated that Brown would cover 12 percent of the gap. However, his numbers show that he will be covering up to 28 percent in this first year of restoration.

Livermore's gap amounted to $11 million, so receiving 28 percent of that in one year is good, said Kinder. At 12 percent, Livermore was projecting $3.1 million in new state revenue. Now it looks like the amount will be $5.7 million, said OKinder.

In Pleasanton, superintendent Parvin Ahmadi said the news is "obviously better than the last few years, but not a whole lot better for us." She cited the fact that Pleasanton cut 20 percent of its budget over the past five years. Also, the district restored $2 million in programs this year, but that was on a one-year basis only, so the district has to look at those programs next year.

Further, the cost of such things as special education or instructional materials purchases now must be paid out of the Local Control Funding Formula, since the previous categorical direct funding from the state has gone away.

Dublin school superintendent Steve Hanke said, "We are pleased that the governor continues to invest in education." Dublin lost $12 million over the past five years. Like other officials, he pointed out it will take seven or eight years to get back to the 2007/08 level.

One thing that was not in the budget discussion, but is important to Dublin is discussion of a state-wide bond issue for school construction. With Dublin already adding portables on two campuses, and a third scheduled next year, it's important to move ahead with a state construction bond, said Hanke. The district has seen a 5 percent growth rate annually. It is the fastest growing district in the state.

Three area legislators issued comments on Brown's budget. Senate Marjory Leader Ellen Corbett, whose district includes the Valley, said that she was glad to see an emphasis on education funding and measures that continue "to bolster California's economic recovery through a targeted fiscal plan that benefits communities throughout the state and the 10th State Senate District."

Sen. Mark DeSaulnier, who represents the 7th Senate District, called Brown's budget "prudent and responsible," since it tackles debt, invests in education, and will save money in the future, because of a relatively small planned set-aside.

Assemblymember Joan Buchanan said that Brown's budget recognizes that to ensure the state's fiscal health over time, we must manage our money wisely, pay down our wall of debt and prioritize programs and services that build a strong economy and safe communities."

Buchanan, the chair of the Assembly Education Committee was glad to see an increase of $6.1 billion in Prop. 908 spending. "While this does not fully restore funding to pre-recession levels, it will have a significant impact on the ability of schools to fund and restore critical services," she said.

DeSaulnier Announces Plans to Seek Miller's Congressional Seat; Endorsed by Torlakson

California State Senator Mark DeSaulnier announced Monday that he will run for California's 11th Congressional district seat, which will be vacated by Rep. George Miller next year.

The 11th District consists of portions of Contra Costa County. Cities in the district include Concord, El Cerrito, Orinda, Pittsburg, and Richmond. It covers 70% of California's 11th Congressional district.

DeSaulnier is the first Bay Area politician to declare for the congressional seat.

DeSaulnier currently represents the 7th State Senate District, which includes Livermore, Dublin and part of Pleasanton. He would be termed out in 2016.

Miller announced Monday that he would retire at the end of this term.

"I considered Rep. Miller one of California's strongest champions for working people and the middle class," said Senator DeSaulnier. "I've always greatly admired Rep. Miller's tireless work ethic, his dedication to the residents of his district, along with his deep devotion and perseverance in fighting for the progressive values and issues that matter most to Californians."

On Tuesday, DeSaulnier was endorsed by California's Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Torlakson.

Superintendent Torlakson said. "Mark knows this district intimately, and will bring to the job more than 20 years of experience working on local and state issues ranging from education to job creation, healthcare access to energy production, infrastructure improvements to protecting working people and much more. He has my full support."

DeSaulnier, 61, has served in the state Senate since 2008, with earlier stints in the Assembly and as a Concord city councilman and Contra Costa County supervisor.

In a press release, DeSaulnier wrote,

"I'm running for Congress to help bring an end to the brinkmanship and gridlock in Washington, so that we can move forward with President Obama's agenda of creating more good paying jobs, growing our middle class, investing in our infrastructure, increasing access to healthcare, advancing the use of renewable and home-grown energy, enhancing our education systems, and making the United States a leader in innovation around the globe."

16th Assembly District representative Joan Buchanan has been mentioned as a potential candidate for Miller's seat. Another option would be for her to seek to replace DeSaulnier in the 7th Senate District. Buchanan would be termed out this year.

The 16th Assembly District includes Dublin and Livermore.

LARP Waiver Elizabeth Judge Livermore

The Livermore Area Parks District LARP is requiring all participants in any activities or classes in the district to sign a waiver absolving the district from any and all liability including that resulting from negligence or carelessness by the district. It appears that the district has gotten tired of dealing with "ridiculous" cases and seeks to put a stop to them.

This waiver is no way to do it. The first trouble is: the extreme language implies there is much negligence and carelessness going on thereby alerting folks to that possibility and insulting all conscientious instructors, lifeguards, etc. at the same time.

Secondly, any case proving negligence and or carelessness will not be dismissed in court because of a signed waiver. No waiver prevents one from suing the district, frivolously or not. Surely the district is aware of this. It is patronizing, therefore, to require all participants to become part of the farce by requiring them to sign something they know does not hold up in court.

Thirdly, it is insulting to citizens in general to attempt to bamboozle those, not aware of the realities, into thinking that the district is not liable for anything once one signs the waiver.

As if the waiver itself were not enough, the district wants to be sure to keep this whole liability issue in your face every time you sign up for something. This waiver must be signed for each individual and for each class or activity.

Shame on clients and their attorneys who attempt frivolous lawsuits. They cost all of us in the long run. But shame on the LARP board for approving such an amateurish stunt to resolve its frustration.

from Old Town.

"They use tech exceptionally well. When you visit the school, you see that students are happy because they are so engaged. There are very few behavior problems," said Batchelor.

Further, Old Town offers digital music and robotics programs, which Batchelor said that he would love to see at the existing TVLC schools.

Old Town teaches every student, beginning in kindergarten, to read and write music, said Batchelor. He said that Old Town's music program has paid off in higher math scores. (Educational researchers nationally have published papers showing a connection between the study of music and improvement in math.)

Old Town would become the fifth school to be operated by TVLC, which was founded in 2004, after Livermore parents started the Livermore Valley Charter School (LVCS), which grew into a k-8 school.

Other schools operated by TVLC include Livermore Valley Charter Preparatory (LVCP), which is a high school, and Acacia Charter Elementary and Middle schools in Stockton. All of the schools are tuition-free, supported by state tax revenue.

All have school councils comprised of parents who seek those positions. In addition, the two Livermore schools each have two seats on the TVLC board. The Stockton schools will have one seat each, after schools there make their selections. Batchelor said that is expected to occur in approximately 60 days.

There will be arrangements for the remote board members in Stockton and San Diego to attend TVLC meetings via Skype or some other electronic method. The public will be able to communicate with the board from those remote sites, said Batchelor.

The TVLC board voted after months of talks between a staff executive committee and Old Town, both in Livermore and in San Diego. This was the first time the board had seen the scoring by staff. At previous TVLC meetings, Batchelor worked with the board to develop the matrix for scoring how a potential candidate for acquisition or merger would stack up.

There were 19 questions in the matrix, with 290 the highest possible score. A matrix passed out with the board packet showed that Old Town scored 240 points. One place where Old Town fell short was its lack of longevity; another deficiency was noted in the lack of Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) accreditation.

However, WASC accreditation is important only for high schools, said Batchelor. The process is an expensive one. A small school like Old Town does not want to tackle it, said Batchelor. He said eventually that Old Town might seek accreditation.

Two audience members commented to the board before the vote. Both said that the process for the board to make its decision could have been better.

Tristan Pico said that she was "shocked at seeing this tonight. Members of the board are seeing this for the first time."

"I don't doubt this is a fantastic school. I do have a concern. They are in their third year, and will come up for renewal. It's a big burden for TVLC to take on," said Pico.

Pico urged board members to "be pragmatic, and don't just go on the staff report. I urge you to take a breather."

Kathleen Schoening said that there was no written report to back up the matrix score that evaluated Old Town. There is no definition or commentary about leadership, only a line about leadership and how it is rated. (Weighted numbers ranged from 20 for excellent down to zero for not acceptable.)

Batchelor provided copies of the second quarterly review of TVLC by the Livermore school district, which took over supervision duties of TVLC July 1, after negotiations for that change from state supervision. The board will discuss the checklist at its next meeting.

DEMOGRAPHICS DRAW TRUSTEE'S ATTENTION

Meanwhile, talking about the checklist, Livermore school trustee Anne White made comments at the school board meeting Jan. 7 that indicated she believes that TVLC can do better in serving the community's demographics that include low-income, Hispanic students and English Language Learners.

TVLC outreach to Latinos and low-income students is not working, said White. TVLC has had years to align better with the demographics of the Livermore district, which she said is required of charter schools, according to the state education code.

There is a waiting list of 600 students for LVCS, its elementary school. Batchelor said in the past that it's only through new kindergarten students that TVLC can align the enrollment to better reflect community demographics. It's slow, but TVLC is working at it by reaching out to the Hispanic community and also publicizing the school to lower income families, he said.

White said the problem is that once a family enrolls a student in the school, then there is preference in the lottery to bring in siblings. She called this a legacy system.

"The more I ponder it, the more I think we should consider that, not for lack of effort by charter school people, but maybe because of their practices in accepting legacy students, there are so few openings for diverse students. Without modifying their legacy student provisions, they'll never get there," said White.

"I think we need to decide as a board, how seriously we want to approach this, because if you can't get there from here, either give up on this goal, which is in charter school law, or insist that changes be made elsewhere in their governance model to see that they do meet the law," said White.

Batchelor told The Independent that Livermore itself uses a legacy system for its neighborhood schools. If there is a sibling at a school, the other sibling is given priority to attend the school.

More important, the Livermore district already signed off on the TVLC approach of outreach to help recruit more Hispanic students, English Language learners, and lower income students, said Batchelor.

TRVLC has five years to carry out that plan, said Batchelor. He noted that White is only one member of a five-member board. Other Livermore board members did not pick up on White's remarks. Board president Kate Runyon was absent.

TVLC PUBLISHES SALARY SCHEDULE

The meeting also saw the unveiling of a published salary schedule for TVLC for the first time in its nearly 10-year history. It was one of the requirements set by the Livermore school district, when it took over supervision.

In the past, The Independent's questions to Batchelor about the salary schedule drew the statement that the TVLC salary schedule is comparable to the Livermore district's.

A look at the two schedules shows similarities, with Livermore teachers receiving slightly more pay at the beginning. TVLC pays $45,500 to an entry level teacher with a credential. Livermore school district would pay that same person $46,814. However, if that person earned 75 college credits beyond a bachelors degree, the pay rises to $49,225.

Short of 75 credits past the bachelor's degree, the pay goes up only a dollar or two, until the Livermore district teachers arrive at the level of five years' experience. Then they go up about $2500 per step at bachelor's plus 15, 30, 45, 60, and 75 credits beyond a bachelor's degree.

A fifth year credentialed teacher at TVLC makes $50,100, and one without a credential earns $43,000. It's the last point on the TVLC pay scale for uncredentialed teachers. The assumption is the teacher will have a credential after five years.

In comparison, a Livermore district teacher after five years receives $46,827. That is without any union-negotiated contract adjustments in any given school year.

TVLC teachers receive 100 percent payment of their medical plan for themselves in the Kaiser plan provided by TVLC. Dependents of teachers receive 25 percent of the bill paid, up to a cap of $4000 annually. The cap and percentages move up every five years to a maximum of 90 percent of dependent's insurance with a $15,000 cap after 20 years.

In Livermore, employees are given a flat $10,500 and pay their choice of medical out of that. Various plans are available, including a bronze level, which aligns with the new Affordable Care Act.

At the top of the pay scales, Batchelor is paid $185,000 annually. TVLC has an enrollment of 1800 students. By comparison, Livermore school superintendent Kelly Bowers signed a contract in 2010 to earn $221,000, with annual raises of 3.5 percent. Currently she makes $244,000. Bowers also agreed to donate $5500 of her annual compensation to charities that benefit Livermore schoolchildren. Livermore district enrollment is over 12,000.

Before the TVLC board went into closed session over real property negotiations and pending litigation, Schoening asked the board about a real estate firm called ACRE, which is based in Pleasanton. ACRE's web page until early this week said that the firm took over LVCS in July 2013. It also listed the Livermore and Stockton Schools and the Old Town Academy as acquisitions.

Schoening received no answer from the board. Batchelor later told The Independent that the information on the web was erroneous. There has been no acquisition of any TVLC schools by ACRE. However, there have been talks concerning the idea, he added.

Hope Hospice to Screen Consider the Conversation Documentary

While many people avoid end-of-life discussions, taking proactive steps can help keep you and your loved ones from being blindsided when a medical emergency may occur. The key is having these conversations when you are healthy enough to have them – not when you are experiencing a health crisis.

To help community members start the conversation, Hope Hospice is sponsoring a film screening of the documentary, Consider the Conversation, followed by a panel discussion by medical and communication experts.

This free, thought-provoking event will be held on Wednesday, January 29, 2014, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Livermore Library, 1188 S. Livermore Ave., Livermore. To make a reservation, call (925) 829-8770, extension 281.

Consider the Conversation highlights the American struggle with communication and preparation for the end of life. "This film inspires and empowers people to make their wishes known," says Victoria Emmons, Hope Hospice CEO. "Hope Hospice is actively participating in The Conversation Project, a nationwide effort that is dedicated to helping people talk about their wishes for end-of-life care. This screening is one of several events we are devoting to this important project."

According to the California HealthCare Foundation, 82 percent of Californians surveyed said it is important to put their wishes in writing – only 23 percent have actually done it.

Advance directives give individuals control over the health care they receive and the ability to name an "agent" to speak for them if they cannot speak for themselves. "It is our hope that the community will take to heart the message of this film and speak to their loved ones about their wishes for end-of-life care and complete

Livermore to Host Half Marathon in March

Event producer Project Sport announced the creation of its next race property, the Livermore Half Marathon, running through the Livermore community. The event will run on March 29, 2014.

Livermore boasts California's oldest wine region, which will host most of the race's miles. "Runners will pass through our downtown, into our vineyards and past a world class golf course," described Rachael Snedecor, executive director of Livermore Downtown. "Then they'll experience some amazing trails before returning to downtown for an epic after party"

Project Sport president Ryan Dawkins stated, "As our flagship US Half Marathon run has grown in San Francisco, we've sought other dynamic cities to recreate that blueprint. We wanted a location that could offer a gorgeous course, but also a vibrant post-race experience and a built-in community of active and spirited runners. Livermore exemplifies that perfectly."

The course will finish on First Street in the heart of the Livermore downtown, which has become a dining, shopping and entertainment destination center while the town has flourished into a hub of science and technology in recent years.

"Of all the events and activities we put on year-round, I'm excited about what is in store for us with the Livermore Half Marathon!" said Ivy Faught, president of the Livermore Downtown Board of Directors.

Local leaders have been working with Project Sport to conceptualize a spring-time event mixing fitness with entertainment, showcasing the city's evolution into both a business and cultural destination center. The result will be the 13.1 mile run followed by a downtown festival of local wineries, craft beer, artisan chefs, specialty boutique shopping and live music.

"Downtown has a very eclectic selection of restaurants that are locally owned and globally inspired," said Faught. "We look forward to sharing our downtown, wine country and community with runners as they discover all of the brilliance we have to offer."

Registration for the Livermore Half Marathon is now open after a successful launch selling over 1500 registrations in 30 days. The launch was promoted via a $49 entry fee for the first 149 registrants and $59 for the next 159. Entry fee will approach its full price of $89 as race day nears. Register at runlivermore.com. To discuss local sponsorship opportunities, contact Livermore Downtown at events@livermoredowntown.com

Scorekeeper Remembered

U.S. Representative Eric Swalwell (CA-15) honored legendary Livermore High School scorekeeper Pete Andersen on the House Floor. Mr. Andersen passed away on December 29, 2013 at the age of 91.

Swalwell said, "After immigrating from Denmark to the United States in 1922, Pete went to high school in Pleasanton and served in the U.S. Army during World War II. Upon returning home from the war, Pete began keeping score at Livermore High School's sporting events."

"Pete had an impressive 60-year, 3,513-game tenure and built a reputation for dedication, knowledge, and a passion for sports. It's because of his dedication to our community that Pete was inducted into the first class of the Livermore High School Sports Hall of Fame in 2009."

"I would like to express my deepest condolences to Pete's wife, Margaret, his family, and friends. In talking about his sacrifice for 60 years to keep score for young athletes, he said: "It was a nice place to go on a Friday night." Well, Friday nights in Livermore won't be the same without Pete."

High School Basketball

For the third year, Tri-Valley TV30 will televise high school basketball. TV30 will broadcast a record five basketball games this season. The games will be tape delayed and may be viewed on Comcast TV Channel 30 and AT&T U-verse via Channel 99 as well as streaming on the TV30 website at www.tv30.org.

"Viewers have asked us to increase our high school sports coverage," said Melissa Tench-Stevens, Executive Director of Tri-Valley TV. "All together TV30 will broadcast over ten sporting events this academic year. Additionally, we are happy to announce that we will be highlighting two girls' basketball games this season. None of this programming is possible without the financial support of the community and the TV30 Foundation. We are thankful to those who help us support high school sports in this manner."

Play by play and color announcing will be provided by TV30 sports personalities Ian Bartholomew, George Dr. "B" Baljevich, and Tim Sbranti. Interviews during the game will include coaches, principals, players, students, and more. Matchups scheduled to be broadcast are: Amador Valley @ Foothill H.S. - Boys; Redwood Christian @ Valley Christian - Girls;

Alhambra @ Dublin - Girls; Alhambra @ Dublin - Boys; and Granada @ Livermore - Boys.

Games will air multiple times including every Saturday night at 7 p.m. starting February 1st. For complete air dates and times visit the Tri-Valley TV website at www.tv30.org or watch when it's convenient by going to tv30.org and use our free Video on Demand service. DVDs of the games may also be purchased by going to the website.

CYO Basketball

In CYO Basketball action, the boys' 7th grade SM/SC (St. Michael/St. Charles) 715, aka Spartans, were defeated by St. Isidore #713 (32-18) but not before giving fans an exciting game and showing dedication, skill and sportsmanship. Spartans' top scorers included Jacob Blaha, Hadi Zeid and Aden Cavalcanti. Defensive standouts included Jacob "JP" Peterson, Max Bauer, and Gabriel Parrish. Top scorers for St. Isidore were Grant and Jackson.

Track and Field

Athenian Athletics Track Club invites athletes ages 7-18 to participate in fall and winter practice sessions to prepare for the 2013-2014 Track and Field season as well as training for the upcoming Winter season series of competitions at Cal Berkeley and Los Gatos High School.

Practices will be held on a voluntary/drop-in basis Monday through Friday. Club participants will have Granada Little League tryouts were held on January 11. In the photo, 14 year olds are showing their pitching skills. The tryouts are used to select teams for the season, which begins with opening day on March 1. Livermore Phantom Lacrosse held its first practice on Saturday. Pictured are some of the U15s in full force. There is still space available in all age level sections. Please go to www.phantomlacrosse.org for more information.

The U9 West Coast Krew ended their season on a high, finished third in the White Bracket of NorCal State Cup. Along with individual development during the year, the Krew had quite a bit of team success with winning brackets during NorCal Playdates, and winning the Davis Legacy Classico tournament. Krew also finished second in the DFC Halloween Kick or Treat Tournament, losing on PKs. Pictured, the Krew take the pitch sporting their team Delaney shirts.

The U9 West Coast Wild Katz finished a great season under Coach Sara Giroto. During the 2012 season, Wild Katz were a young U8 team playing up an age group, going up against girls who were bigger and stronger than them. In State Cup, the Wild Katz finished 3rd out of several teams in the White bracket, narrowly missing the semi-finals. At the start of the 2013 season, pre-season NorCal rankings had them as number one. Throughout the season the girls got better technically and even more comfortable with the ball, which is what we want for little ones at this age. Each player learned fifteen different moves through the course of the season. Now, as a team the Wild Katz shared success finishing 3rd in League play, and winning the Ajax Summer Invitational, Pleasanton Rage Junior Showcase, DFC Halloween Kick or Treat, and the Mustang 6v6 Tournament. Pictured are Wild Katz with their tournament medals.

West Coast Soccer Fury concluded a remarkable season. The Fury team is a founding team for West Coast Soccer. 2013 was another year of individual and team growth for the players. First year head coach Ray Canevari guided Fury to a 8-1-1 spring season and entered the Nor Cal Cross Regional playoffs as the #6 seed. By the time the playoffs were over, Fury was able to best all the top teams in Northern California to claim the title of #1 in Northern California. The season also included a record of 42-7-5. The team entered the State Cup Championship as the number one team in Northern California (NORCAL). The Fury appeared in the final of every tournament they played in except one. In July, Fury traveled to San Diego to take part in the prestigious Albion Cup. Garden club members were busy preparing the garden for the spring blooming season.

Garden Club Spruces Up Rose Garden

In the last few weeks, the Livermore-Amador Valley Garden Club (LAVGC), has undertaken a lot of gardening at Livermore's Hansen Park at the intersection of Holmes and First Street. LAVGC assists the city in maintaining the Park's approximately 460 roses, and has been busy planting new roses and pruning the older ones.

A dozen club members planted 82 roses, 75 of which were donated to the park by Star Roses. The goals of the planting were to replace aging roses, add roses found in the original 1960's garden, fill in gaps where roses were missing, and add a planting bed dedicated to roses hybridized by Walter Lammerts, a famous hybridizer of roses (e.g. Queen Elizabeth, Bewitched, and Chrysler Imperial) who lived in Livermore in the early 1960's.

The garden club has been assisting the city with the park since October 2012. During the first year, LAVGC clocked over 400 hours of volunteer time in the park, deadheading, pruning, and fertilizing the roses. In addition to the donation of the 75 roses from Star Roses, Kellogg Garden Products donated 650 pounds of their Natural & Organic Rose and Flower Fertilizer; Sanctuary Soil, of Vernalis, CA, donated 2000 pounds of their Buckaroo Brand Natural and Organic Worm Castings; and Livermore Feed and Farm Supply provided, at reduced price, 500 pounds of alfalfa pellets.

The roses will be blooming this spring. The public is invited to stop by the Park and take a look.

Those interested in joining the Garden Club, meeting other gardeners and learning many new things about gardening, visit www.lavgc.org and look under "contact."

Livermore School Board Ratifies LEA Contract

The Livermore School Board of Trustees last week ratified a contract with the Livermore Education Association (LEA) for the 2013-14 school year.

The district also announced the start of negotiations with the Service Employees International Union, Local 1021 (SEIU).

The agreement with LEA, which was ratified by the union in December, includes a 1.08% temporary base salary increase retroactive to July 2013. The cost to the district will be approximately $530,750.

Chris Van Schaack, Assistant Superintendent, stated that the temporary increase recognizes the extra work needed to implement the common core program.

Since 2010, 45 states have adopted the same standards for English and math. These standards are called the Common Core State Standards (CCSS). The idea is that providing the same standards helps all students receive a good education, even if they change schools or move to a different state.

Both the board vote and LEA ratification for the contract were unanimous.

Trustee Anne White commented, "The negotiations have gone delightfully smoothly."

Trustee Bill Dunlop added, "It is a good agreement. I hope both groups will be happy with the contract."

Van Schaack reported that changes in the contract include added language to allow non-classroom teachers to have their work year or work day modified by mutual agreement. He explained that both the district and the union saw the need to provide flexibility so that psychologists, nurses, counselors, Teachers on Special Assignment (TSAs), etc. can work days in the summer when needed or modify their daily schedule on occasion to work.

Wording was added that states that in order for activities to qualify for the flexible professional development hours, they must be pre-approved and occur outside the work day.

A category for Teachers on Special Assignment (TSAs) includes language that ensures that teachers who take TSA positions can return to their former position if the TSA job is for one year; that a TSA can return to a job within the District if the position is for more than one year; and that the positions are posted with details about the project and have a defined length.

As for the SEIU talks, Van Schaack told the board that basically, the union has asked that the entire contract be open for negotiations.

The district is proposing to negotiate work day and work week, leaves, pay and allowances and health and welfare.

The current SEIU agreement expires June 30, 2014.

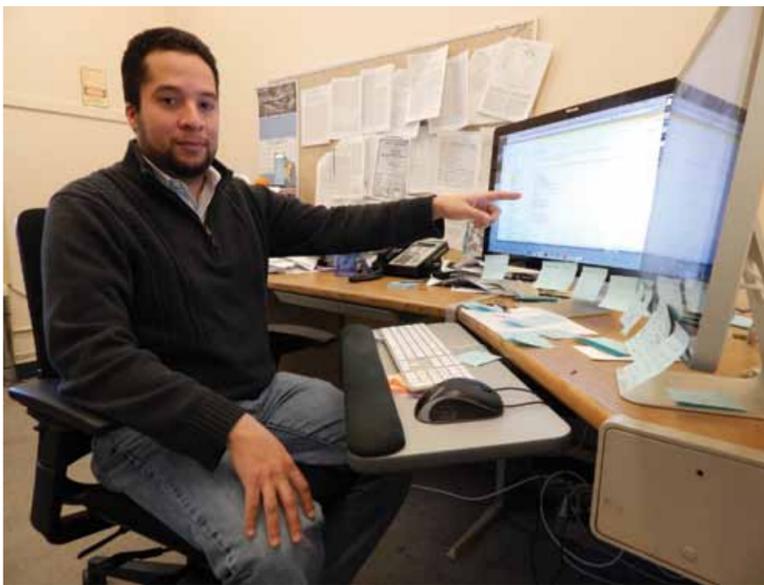

The Board will take a look at SEIU's and the district's options at its January 21 meeting.

Lab Physicist Miguel Morales selected for Presidential Early Career Award for Science and Engineering

Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory physicist Miguel Morales has been selected for a 2014 Presidential Early Career Award for Science and Engineering (PECASE) for his leading edge research in condensed matter physics.

Using advanced computational techniques such as density functional theory and quantum Monte Carlo, Morales studies materials at extreme pressure and temperature on some of the world's most powerful supercomputers. His work is important to Stockpile Stewardship, the National Nuclear Security Administration's (NNSA) program to ensure the safety, security and reliability of the nation's nuclear deterrent without underground testing. In addition, this research also provides planetary scientists with a better understanding of planet formation.

"I'm very happy and honored to receive this award," said Morales, who joined LLNL's Condensed Matter Physics and Materials Division as a staff scientist in 2010.

The early career presidential awards are the highest honor bestowed by the United States government on science and engineering professionals in the early stages of their independent research careers. Established by President Clinton in 1996, the awards are coordinated by the Office of Science and Technology Policy within the Executive Office of the President. Awardees are selected for their pursuit of innovative science and technology and their commitment to community service as demonstrated through scientific leadership, public education or community outreach.

Morales was one of 13 US Department of Energy and 102 recipients overall. Awardees will be honored in a ceremony later this year. The award comes with a stipend distributed over five years. Past recipients have received up to $50,000 a year. "The impressive achievements of these early-stage scientists and engineers are promising indicators of even greater successes ahead," President Obama said in a press release. "We are grateful for their commitment to generating the scientific and technical advancements that will ensure America's global leadership for many years to come."

A native of Puerto Rico, Morales completed a double bachelor of science degree in theoretical physics and mathematics from the University of Puerto Rico in Mayaguez (2004). He earned his Ph.D from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign in 2009, where he studied under David Ceperley, a former Livermore scientist. Before being hired at Livermore, Morales was a postdoctoral researcher at Rice University.

Morales discovered his aptitude and passion for science as a 16-year-old in the wake of one of the hurricanes that periodically devastate Puerto Rico. As he waited for life on the island to return to normal, he picked up a science book.

"After the hurricane we spent a month without electricity and water. I started reading about Isaac Newton and Albert Einstein in an encyclopedia of science," Morales recalls. "I had no exposure to science before that and I was fascinated. I started buying and reading books about science and I became obsessed with math as well. I knew then that I would devote my life to science."

also translate to an annual reduction in carbon dioxide gas emission equivalent to approximately 85,000 gallons of gasoline. The new LED light bulbs are expected to last at least five times longer than the existing bulbs. The major physical difference between the LED light fixtures and the HPSV light fixtures is the color of the light produced. The existing fixtures produce a yellowish amber color while LED fixtures will produce a white light.

The replacement of approximately 5,400 light fixtures along residential neighborhood street will occur during the day between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. The contractor is allowed to work on arterial roadways as early as 6:00 a.m. and as late as 10:00 p.m.

Throughout the replacement process, residents and businesses will have access to their driveways, but may encounter occasional obstruction while equipment is operating directly in front of their residences/establishments.

OBITUARIES

Former Pleasanton Councilmember Karin Mohr

A memorial service celebrating the life of Karin Marcia Mohr will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 26, 2014 at the Pleasanton Senior Center, 5353 Sunol Boulevard.

Mrs. Mohr died on Nov. 11, 2013 from injuries suffered in a fall while she was cleaning the gutters of her Pleasanton home.

She served four terms on the Pleasanton City Council from 1980 to 1996 when critical decisions were made that determined what type of community Pleasanton would be today. During her service on the City Council, Hacienda Business Park and three other major business centers were approved as well as key retail centers along Interstate 580 and the first major apartment complexes.

Ken Mercer, who was a council colleague as well as mayor during her council tenure, told the Pleasanton Weekly, "Karin Mohr left a wonderful legacy for the people of Pleasanton. She was actively involved in many of the wonderful amenities that we have today—from the Wheels bus system to the Pleasanton Sports Park and also including the Pleasanton Senior Center, the Pleasanton Public Library, the gymnasiums at the middle schools that are shared use by the school district and the city, and so much more."

One key reason she ran for office was her interest in getting the 18-wheel tractor-trailer rigs carrying gravel off of First Street. After winning election, she pushed that issue until the city passed the weight limit on First Street. The ensuing legal action was settled and, eventually, the trucks were banned on First Street.

Cheryl Cook-Kallio, a current councilwoman and a long-time friend, recalled both Mrs. Mohr's key role in the gravel truck ban as well as her role in the Elected Women's Lunch.

"She was one of the founding members of the Elected Women's Lunch, originally very small group of regionally-elected women. It has grown into a network of more than 175 women who mentor other women in our community.

"Pleasanton has lost a great civic leader and many of us have lost a friend," Cook-Kallio said.

Mrs. Mohr was born May 1, 1939 in Green Bay, WI, to Walter and Marcia (Ernst) Stromberg. She grew up in Lake Geneva, WI and lived there until graduating from Lake Geneva High School.

After high school, she moved to Sacramento with her family and earned a Bachelor's of Arts degree in Psychology from Sacramento State University. She worked for the Sacramento County youth authority and then Riverside county adoption agency after they moved south.

She married Larry Mohr on Sept. 1, 1962 in Sacramento and they moved to Pleasanton in 1969. She focused on raising her daughters and volunteered through the Valley Volunteer Center. She also served as president of the homeowners' association. She was member of the American Association of University Women.

While on the council, she embarked on a career as a real estate broker and worked in that field after stepping down from the council until she retired. Her hobbies including gardening and oil painting.

Her sister, Gloria Stroemer, recalled how Karin loved to travel. Before they started traveling together, Mrs. Mohr had only been to Canada and Mexico. Together, they took 12 trips to 28 different countries among them England, Greece, New Zealand, China and Peru (Machu Picchu). A favorite trip was a three-week safari adventure to Tanzania and Kenya.

They were planning to return to Africa this summer to see the gorillas in Uganda as well as taking an elephant safari.

"She was a wonderful traveler. She would go into any store, any museum and climb anything that wasn't roped off no matter how many steps," said her sister, Gloria.

Those safaris and travels brought out Karin's love of animals.

"She seemed to know more about the animals than the safari guides," Gloria said. "One of my favorite pictures of her was taken in New Zealand when she was holding a baby lamb. She just loved animals and loved feeding them."

Mrs. Mohr is survived by her sister, Gloria Stroemer of Lincoln, her daughters Jennifer Mohr-Hawkins of Pleasanton and Allison Corcoran of Seattle; grandchildren Tyler and Zachary Hawkins and Katherine Corcoran. Her oldest sister, Shirlee Huff, died a few years ago. Her ex-husband, Larry, died in 2013.

The family prefers contributions in her memory to the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, 49 Stevenson St., suite 1200, San Francisco, CA 94105 (jdrf.org).

Ronald C. Gunn

Ron Gunn, a native Californian and longtime resident of Livermore, entered into heaven on January 4, 2014 after complications from an illness. He was cared for and surrounded by family prior to his passing. Ron, 80, was born in Sacramento to Robert Lloyd Gunn and Gretchen Irene (Taylor) Gunn on April 12, 1933.

He leaves behind his wife of 57 years, Mary Gunn; his children – Kim Giancaterino, Karen Gunn, Kelly Gunn, and Kevin Gunn; his grandchildren – LaDawna Burdick, Loriann Gilbert, Rhiannon Follenfant, Robert Follenfant, Jodi Hansen, Joseph Gunn, Kevin Gunn, and Ari Giancaterino; his great-grandchildren – Katelynne Burdick, Triston Burdick, Joshua Hansen, and Bentley Hansen; and many extended family members and friends. He was preceded in death by his brother Carleton Gunn of Ontario, Canada, great-grandson Antony Burdick, and grandson Robert Gunn.

Ron graduated from San Jose State University with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Radio-TV-Film. His 4-decade career at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory began in 1958. He also worked as a freelance broadcast engineer for radio station KYTE-FM (now KKIQ-FM) from 1969 to 1975.

Upon retirement from LLNL, Ron and his wife Mary traveled regularly with American Stage Tours. Catalina Island and Yosemite National Park were among their favorite destinations.

An active member of the community, Ron bowled for more than 60 years, and was a member of the Livermore-Pleasanton Elks (Lodge #2117) for 37 years. He was an amateur "ham" radio operator (AG6P) and a member of Toastmasters International. Ron served his country in the U.S. Coast Guard for several years.

Ron's pride and joy was his 1941 Chevy, which he acquired as a teenager and maintained throughout his life. His interests included NASCAR, the San Francisco Giants, and the 49ers. Ron loved animals and was especially fond of his feline companions – Dale, Gracie, and Belle.

In accordance with Ron's wishes, there will be no formal service. Donations in his name can be made to the East Bay SPCA, 8323 Baldwin Street, Oakland, CA 94621 or Hope Hospice, 6377 Clark Avenue, Suite 100, Dublin, CA 94568.

JoAnn Miller

JoAnn Miller, born September 25, 1949, passed away peacefully and surrounded by her family on January 8, 2014. She was 64.

JoAnn was preceded in death by her beloved husband William C. Miller, her parents Catherine Hill (nee Downing) and Donald Hill, and her sister Donna Hammitt (nee Hill). She is survived by her two brothers, Steven Hill of Bakersfield, CA and James Hill of Genoa, NV; her two daughters, Tiffany Miller of Benicia, CA and Heidi Miller of Livermore, CA and one granddaughter, Madalynn Jones, also of Livermore.

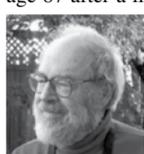

JoAnn was born in Gustine, CA and spent her childhood years growing up in several Northern and Southern California cities, before settling in Livermore after meeting the love of her life Bill. They were married in the Chapel at Livermore's Presbyterian Church in 1969. Bill was a Naval Veteran of the Vietnam War, and JoAnn spent several years living overseas so she could be with him.

JoAnn was an avid I Love Lucy fan and memorabilia collector. She was loved by many and will be missed.

Services will be held at Callaghan Mortuary on Monday, January 20 at 1 p.m., 3833 East Ave, Livermore CA 94550.

Wesley Dale Ludemann

Wes Ludemann succumbed to the effects of prostate cancer and dementia on January 6, 2014, at age 87 after a life of varied interests and adventures. He was born in Iowa in 1926 but grew up in lots of places as his family moved around. He came at age 20 to the San Francisco Bay Area and dwelt his last 50 years in Livermore, California.

He leaves behind his partner of 38 years (Carolyn), his daughter (Heidi), grandsons (Erik and Matthew), brother-in-law (Jim), two nieces (Lynne and Elaine) and their children, several cousins and their descendants, and a houseful of books. He outlived his sister (the other Carolyn) and three ex-wives (Connie, Kate, and Mary Ellen).

Wes earned a B.A. in mathematics and began graduate study, but he lost his student deferment by dropping out shortly before he became too old for the draft. The army snatched him for the Korean War and assigned him and his math skills to the Finance Corps in Japan. Later he received a B.S. in chemical engineering, then M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in metallurgy (the study of the properties of metals), all from the University of California at Berkeley. This preparation allowed him to earn a living as a metallurgist at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory.

During his time at UC, Wes enjoyed sailing on the bay, often helping friends with boat maintenance, and skin diving along the coast. He gave up these activities after moving inland to Livermore.

His attraction to high elevations probably started with a climb of Mt Fuji during his time in Japan. A lot of Sierra backpacking and skiing and a few trans-Sierra ski trips with a group of Livermore friends sprinkled the subsequent years. After retirement he went on high-altitude treks in the Himalayas (three times) and in Ecuador, and he climbed Mt Kenya and Mt Kilimanjaro in Africa. He often was out on local hikes, going up if possible.

Wes was introduced to folk dancing at UC. Later during a career goals class at work he realized that what he really wanted to do was teach folk dance. So he started a noon-time class at work and later became the teacher of the evening class in town, continuing his own folk dance education at workshops. (Science still brought in the money.) It was folk dance that brought Carolyn into his life. They started the Livermore Scottish country dance class and earned teaching certificates from the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society. Scandinavian dance was another special interest, which led to several trips to Sweden and Finland and a short stint teaching a Scandinavian dance class locally.

After Wes retired, he and Carolyn ran away from home to live in Finland for a year, where Carolyn worked for Nokia to earn their keep. Living a few blocks from Helsinki's major concert hall and with museums and art exhibits close at hand, they found being in a European capital a real treat.

Wes learned to play the 5-string kantele (a Finnish zither), built several kanteles, and performed with a local group. He took up the fiddle at the age of 58 in order to play Swedish folk music, learning from teachers both in Sweden and in the U.S., and for several years he played with groups in the Bay Area for dances. Exotic musical instruments accompanied him home from many of his world travels.

During his last 11 years, Wes and Carolyn lived half-time in Port Townsend, Washington, where the scenery and pace of life are quite different, and where new friendships and a new collection of books (plus a well-trod path to the library) developed. Widely read, Wes had at least three books going any time one looked.

Wes donated his body to medical education. A gathering for family and friends will be held later.

Mercer worked for many years as an executive with ValleyCare Health System's foundation. On the council and in the mayor's position, Mercer was a leader in the development of Hacienda Business Park and the Stoneridge Mall.

Mercer worked in an executive position for Pacific Bell for years, before his tenure at ValleyCare.

A memorial service has been scheduled for 1 p.m. Sat., Jan. 25 at the Pleasanton Senior Center, 5353 Sunol Blvd., Pleasanton.

education is that we're preparing students to thrive in the global 21st century," said Joe Michell's IB Coordinator Amie Hauselt. "We're developing students who know how to learn. They know not only how to embrace their own identity and culture, but how to communicate with people from other cultures. They'll have the skills and knowledge to do so effectively."

On Wednesday, January 22nd, Joe Michell School in Livermore will be holding an open house for all members of the community to visit the campus and learn more about the IB program.

"We open our doors at 6 p.m. with a short presentation at 6:30. Classrooms will be open for about an hour at 7 so people can talk to teachers and see what it's like to be a student at an IB school," said Lembo.

The school is currently in the second year of a three-year accreditation process. The consideration phase began last year, the implementation phase is taking place this year, and application to become an official IB World School will occur next year.

"Our world has changed. We need to think much more globally," said Lembo. "So many jobs now require that we work with a variety of different people from different countries. We need to respect each other and know that we can collaborate and create something unique and wonderful."

Hauselt agreed. "Technology has opened up the world. The students have technology in their hands. We don't want to restrict that; we want to help them find ways to go out there and be part of that world. With IB, the students are driving their own learning. It's inquiry based."

Livermore resident Mary Mele said she was fortunate to have her children educated for a time at an IB school in Berlin in 1999. "It's the most amazing approach to teaching and learning I've ever seen," said Mele. "For example, let's say students are learning about cherries. The teacher would start out asking what the students know about cherries. Then they'd be asked what they don't know. And finally, what they want to know: Are there parts of the world that don't have cherries? Can they be used for medicine? For colorings? What foods use cherries? Instead of all students doing the same report on cherries, each would explore an area of interest to them. The topics of manufacturing, medicine, geography, economics, science, etc. can be interwoven into the simple subject of cherries."

Students then share what they've learned so that classmates are introduced to a wealth of knowledge, concepts and ideas. In fact, large exhibitions are organized for 5th graders completing their primary school education and 8th graders completing their middle school education.

"The IB program encourages students to learn deeply. They're learning inquiry and research skills," said Lembo. "They're learning what they need to become lifelong learners."

Because of the IB program's rigor, it complements the Common Core Standards. In addition to learning English, mathematics, history and science, the IB program encourages critical thinking and problem solving, inquiry and open-mindedness, along with communication and collaboration.

"We also develop the character traits we look for in an internationally minded person," said Hauselt. For instance, helping students become inquirers, thinkers, communicators, knowledgeable, principled, open-minded, caring, risk takers, balanced and reflective.

"As a parent, you think, 'Doesn't every school do that?'" said Mele. "The difference is that with IB there's an intentionality. It's more than just fostering the feeling that character counts. It's an intentional movement by the school, the staff, the teachers, everybody. It's actually part of the curriculum."

Currently, Joe Michell is the only school in the Tri-Valley offering the IB program, and one of only 36 in California. The nearest are located in Oakland, Berkeley and Los Gatos. Worldwide, there are 3,584 IB schools in 144 countries.

However, more Tri-Valley schools are likely to follow Joe Michell's lead. "We've reached out to Livermore and Granada High Schools because our sixth graders will be ready to continue the program," said Lembo. "The high schools are in the consideration phase, where we were last year. They're researching the program and visiting schools. There's definitely interest."

Mele added, "It's exciting that we're part of a district that offers open enrollment and sees the benefit of having choices."

As for the young students studying pumpkins, they discovered that seeds can indeed grow inside, a lesson not many of the young learners are likely to forget.

"There is a different energy here at Joe Michell. It's just as invigorating for the staff as it is for the students," said Lembo. "There is just so much enthusiasm and excitement."

Livermore Middle School 'Mathletes' Display Their Skills in Annual Competition

By Carol Graham

When Meenakshi Singhal survived three one-on-one sudden death competitions against higher ranked opponents to take first place, she was immediately surrounded and hugged by her teammates.

"It was like having a wildcard team win the Super Bowl in the NFL," said Ted Perry, Ph. D.

It wasn't football, or any other sport, that had the crowd cheering for three hours on January 11. It was Livermore's MATHCOUNTS Competition held each January for the city's middle school students.

"I always hear from everyone who attends how exciting it is to see our MATHletes receive the same accolades, attention, and public recognition as traditional athletes in competition," said Livermore's Superintendent of Schools Kelly Bowers.

"What we value about the program is the individual as well as team competition, which mirrors other athletic events. There is definitely a lot of work and discipline that go into preparing, and the students enjoy showcasing their intellectual prowess."

For weeks, 6th, 7th and 8th grade students prepared for the competition by participating in the inclusive, extracurricular MATHCOUNTS enrichment program. At each school, teachers, parents and community members serve as coaches for the students.

"These students are pursuing math at a higher level at a younger age than their parents did," said Mendenhall coach Sue Ackerman. "MATHCOUNTS is fun for me as I attempt to remember back or learn completely new concepts that may not have sunk in the first time. The coaches help each other in a collaborative environment in the same way that the students do."

The competition took place at Granada High School with 102 students from six schools participating.

"It was tough. There are four rounds of the competition and students must stay focused the entire time," said John Mahlstedt, a Livermore Valley Charter School math teacher. "The students work incredibly hard to prepare themselves. Several spent many hours over the summer, on weekends, and even over winter break working on solving problems to make sure they were ready."

For the past two decades, the competition's problems have been provided by Perry, a physicist working in the nuclear weapons stockpile stewardship program, who holds a master's degree in mathematics, as well as a Princeton University doctorate degree in physics.

"In today's technological society, mathematics is the foundation for many important careers," noted Perry, who emceed the competition. "About 73% of students who participate in MATHCOUNTS go on to a career in science, technology, engineering or medicine. For the nation as a whole, only 25% of students go into these fields. Not being proficient in mathematics makes going into some fields an impossibility."

Ackerman said, "Coaches work to keep interest level up and frustration down while making learning new concepts fun. It's always so exciting when a student has an 'aha' moment and everything comes together on how to solve a problem."

Livermore Mayor John Marchand was on hand to present the awards. Event sponsors included the Livermore Valley Education Foundation, Sandia National Laboratories, and Kohl's Department Store.

"The study of mathematics provides students with a powerful set of tools and strategies, and a way of thinking about the world including problem-solving, abstract thinking and logical reasoning," stated Bowers. "Children are natural mathematicians and eager to use whatever skills and knowledge they have to explore and gain understanding."

Mahlstedt agreed. "Math is everywhere. Almost everything in the world involves some type of math, and it's important for students to see those connections between what they're learning in school and the world around them."

It is a message not lost on the young students.

"I see MATHCOUNTS as an opportunity for improving myself in life," said Mendenhall 7th grader Aidan Ackerman. "The time and effort is worth it because there is no better way to improve math skills, and working in a team is a fun way to solve problems."

Eighth-grade Mendenhall student Alejandro Gonzalez echoed that view. "It's important to learn math because it's used everywhere, for every job. My favorite memory of the competition is going there scared and coming out happy to have faced a challenge."

Yet it wasn't all seriousness at the competition. The LVCS team showed up in gold t-shirts emblazoned with

"23 ∑ π ... and it was delicious!"

"Every year we make team shirts that involve mathematical concepts or math jokes," said Mahlstedt. "This year the symbols translate to, 'I ate some pie.' It's a way for us to have some fun with math, and it also forces people to think mathematically when trying to figure out what our shirts say."

The MATHCOUNTS State Competitions are scheduled to take place in March, followed by the 2014 Raytheon MATHCOUNTS National Competition in Orlando, Florida from May 8 - 11.

"We are very fortunate to have the Livermore MATHCOUNTS Competition," stated Mahlstedt. "Most schools that participate in the program only get to compete at the regional competition for which they can only bring 10 students at the most. However, every student in Livermore has the opportunity to compete at least once a year because of this competition."

Added Ackerman, "It really is an amazing program, but it isn't until you see the entire city come together like this that you realize the magnitude of the impact on so many students."

The winners of the 2014 Livermore MATHCOUNTS Competition are:

Laurie R. King Kicks Off Livermore Reads Together 2014 at the Livermore Public Library

Laurie R. King - author to speak.

The Kick Off event for Livermore Reads Together 2014 will be held Sunday, January 26, 2014 at the Livermore Public Library starting at 2pm. The featured speaker is Laurie R. King, author of the mystery novel The Beekeeper's Apprentice.

Livermore Reads Together 2014 is a community reading program, featuring Laurie R. King's novel The Beekeeper's Apprentice. The community of Livermore is invited to read The Beekeeper's Apprentice and join their neighbors by participating in events related to Sherlock Holmes, detectives, forensics, bees and more during the month of February 2014. Copies of books and event schedules will be available at all Livermore Public Library locations.

The Beekeeper's Apprentice is the story of 15-year-old Mary Russell, an American girl who unexpectedly encounters Sherlock Holmes during a ramble through the English countryside. Ostensibly retired, Holmes studies beekeeping and is still involved in detective work. Despite differences in age, attitude and background, Russell and Holmes become friends and sleuthing partners. Together they work to solve the kidnapping of Jessica Simpson, daughter of a U.S. Senator. The Beekeeper's Appren- tice is the first book in Laurie R. King's Mary Russell series, which now includes twelve novels. The most recent installment, Garment of Shadows, was published in 2012. According to King, the Mary Russell series touches upon many issues, including "politics, women's rights, religious expression, and governmental oppression."

Building a Jazz Culture From the Ground Up

At 7:30 a.m., three mornings a week, 29 Mendenhall Middle School students begin warming up their instruments in preparation for a zero period session in Jazz with Matt Finders. This is not a mandatory course. In fact, Finders doesn't get paid for teaching it, or for writing the necessary jazz arrangements for instruments typically not found in jazz bands, such as French horns, violins, flutes and cellos. These early morning sessions all stem from a love of music, a desire to teach and learn, and Finders' goal of building a jazz culture in the region.

The teens may be motivated to participate from an understanding of the gift this accomplished pro is giving, but perhaps not. Finders is one of those rare types who doesn't wear his accomplishments on his sleeve. It takes digging to find out that he is no stranger to writing jazz arrangements - he wrote over 400 during his 17-year stint playing trombone on the Tonight Show with Jay Leno. His experience is extensive, from playing with Natalie Cole, Harry Connick Jr., Benny Goodman, Sting, Branford Marsalis and many more jazz greats and bands. He has traveled across the country as a clinician and guest artist, taught programs in many schools primarily in the Los Angeles region, started his JazzLabb program in L.A. in 2004, and brought the program to The Bothwell Arts Center in his hometown, for his first summer Livermore workshop in 2009.

Born and raised in Livermore, Finders started playing trombone at Fifth Street Elementary when he was 9 years old. Because his brother already owned a trombone, the instrument of choice was first based on cost convenience, but it soon became a passion. He played in band at East Avenue Middle School, went on to join the Livermore High School jazz band (class of '78) and completed a Bachelor of Arts degree in Jazz Performance at San Jose State University. However, he cites as his biggest early influence, private instructor Bob Boring, a talented trombonist who taught out of Valley Music (now ABC Music Store & Academy) and may still be heard occasionally playing for private gigs. Boring opened musical doors for Finders.

Now, this is Finders' goal: To open those musical doors for others, and to help foster a local jazz community. Finders and his wife, Terilyn, moved back to Livermore late in 2013, to be near family and because he likes how Livermore has grown and the possibilities here. While he finds the music scene thriving, there is a deficit in the jazz culture. "Granada High has the only school jazz band around anymore" says Finders, "I just want to help build music education in my home town." And, due to the lack of funding for such programs, he is currently seeking help from charitable organizations to obtain funds for sheet music and the miscellaneous costs he has been underwriting himself. The first organization to step up to the plate is Livermore Cultural Arts Council (LCAC) with a mini grant.

Finders compares the summer JazzLabb program in L.A. to the one he teaches in Livermore in the summer, and says that the main difference is that most of the L.A. kids have the advantage of early exposure to music education and private lessons. To this end, he teaches for free at Mendenhall to give the early teens that necessary exposure - even if what they play is not a traditional jazz instrument - and is now teaching regular weekly JazzLabb workshops at the Bothwell Arts Center. When asked directly why he is doing all of this, he doesn't hesitate. "Because they need it," Finders says.

Finders lives in Livermore with his wife, Terilyn, who works for a public education law firm, and has two daughters, Beth (25) and Hannah (21). This year he was blessed with his first grandchild. More information about his performance can be found at www.jazzlabb.com.

The Bothwell Arts Center, located at 2466 Eighth Street in Livermore, serves as an arts incubator, offering affordable and rentable classroom, rehearsal, performance, event, and studio rental space for artists, musicians, theatrical, acting, choral, and other individuals, groups or events with a cultural arts focus. The Bothwell also opened a second site for working visual artists called the Downtown Art Studios. For more information visit www.livermoreperformingarts.org or call 925-447-ARTS.

A Chorus Line: Iconic Theater-About-Theater Musical Plays at the Firehouse

Pacific Coast Repertory Company presents A Chorus Line, directed and choreographed by Broadway stage veteran Lois Grandi, and starring TV, film, and Broadway actor Meredith Patterson in the role of Cassie. The production will also co-star Pleasanton favorite Lauren Bratton-Kearns returning from New York. Musical direction is by PCRT co-artistic director Pat Parr.

The show opens Friday, January 24, and plays Fridays and Saturdays at 8:00 p.m., and Sundays at 2:00 p.m. through February 9 at the Firehouse Arts Center. Reserved seat tickets are $17-$38, and youth, senior, and group discounts are available.

Centered around seventeen dancers auditioning for spots on a chorus line, the story opens on the bare stage of a Broadway theater in the middle of auditions for an upcoming Broadway production. The formidable director and his assistant choreographer put the dancers through their paces. Every dancer is desperate for work (“I Hope I Get It”). The director asks the dancers to introduce themselves, and with reluctance, they reveal their pasts and share about their journeys. A Chorus Line provides a glimpse into the personalities of the performers and the choreographer as they describe the events that have shaped their lives and their decisions to become dancers.

With music by Marvin Hamlisch and lyrics by Edward Kleban, numbers include “The Music and the Mirror” sung by Cassie, “At the Ballet,” “What I Did for Love,” and the musical theater anthem “One” performed by the entire company.

Nominated for 12 Tony Awards, the show won an amazing nine, including Best Musical, Best Score, and Best Choreography. In addition, the show actually won the 1976 Pulitzer Prize for Drama, one of the few musicals ever to receive this honor, and also won the New York Drama Critics’ Circle Award for Best Play. A Chorus Line was the longest-running Broadway musical originally produced in the US, until surpassed in 2011 by Chicago.

Pacific Coast Repertory Theatre’s A Chorus Line: Lois Grandi is back again after numerous accolades for her direction and choreography in PCRT’s sizzling Chicago and the heart-warming She Loves Me. Ms. Grandi was the Founder and Artistic Director of Playhouse West, the highly successful small professional SF Bay Area theatre company, which enjoyed an impressive, award-winning 13-year run. Prior to that, she had numerous roles both On- and Off-Broadway in New York City as well as National tours, and has also had TV and commercial roles. In addition, she is a well-known Bay Area chanteuse and a prominent acting coach.

Grandi has a very personal connection to A Chorus Line, having danced with Michael Bennett, the creator of A Chorus Line, when she was herself a young dancer living in New York City. She plans to bring all the style and depth to the PCRT production that Mr. Bennett did those years ago.

Broadway and television star Meredith Patterson will be playing the lead role of Cassie. She is familiar to theater-goers for her Broadway performances in The Boy Friend and White Christmas among others, as well as from television work on such shows as Boston Legal, The Good Wife, Person of Interest, Law & Order, and film appearances in The Princess Diaries 2, Broken Flowers, and Company Man to name a few. Ms. Patterson was a young dance protégé of Ms. Grandi, and they will now team up once again in this Bay Area production.

Along with Grandi, Patterson boasts a very personal connection to the original Broadway production, having herself performed recently with Donna McKenchie, the original Cassie on Broadway. McKenchie encouraged Patterson at that time to one day take on the role of Cassie if it presented itself, as she saw Patterson as a perfect fit, just as it was for her those many years before.

Co-starring and also joining the cast from New York is Lauren Bratton-Kearns. Bratton-Kearns was last seen in PCRT's productions of Beauty and the Beast and She Loves Me. A Pleasanton native, Bratton-Kearns attended Contra Costa Ballet Centre for eight years before graduating in dance from UC Irvine. She went on to study at the famed Alvin Ailey Company in New York City for two years, and has since performed with several New York City dance companies. The audiences will be delighted by her performance in this production as Val singing the hilarious tune "Dance

Livermore Valley Rules Again At the Cabernet Challenge and San Francisco Chronicle Competition

by Laura Ness

Congratulations to the guys named Steve at 3 Steves Winery for winning best red at the 2014 San Francisco Chronicle competition for their 2011 Cienega Zinfandel! Wow, that's the second Best of Show in the last three years for a Livermore wine. Two years ago, it was McGrail sweeping it for their Livermore Valley Cabernet.

Steve Burman of 3 Steves says they found out about the honor in a rather unusual way: "Amazing how we found out. Collin (Cranor) from Nottingham Cellars shows up yesterday while Zig and I are pouring in our winery tasting room. Brings in a bottle of champagne and plops it on the bar. Says it's time to celebrate our award and tells us what we won. What a great guy. Humble and killer good wines. Doesn't even tell us he won three golds and a silver medal himself for the four wines he entered! Big potential for our region I think. Proud to be a part of this community."

Incidentally, the 3 Steves also scored Silvers for their 2012 Livermore Valley Chardonnay and their 2011 Cabernet Franc, which also made it to the finals at the upcoming Cabernet Challenge. The Steves will be appearing on a terroir panel this Saturday, at The Old Mint, in San Francisco. Steven Mirassou will also represent Steven Kent Portfolio on the same panel. Seminars begin at noon. See below for more info.

Here are additional SF Chronicle results for Livermore wineries:

Concannon Vineyard won Best of Class for its excellent 2012 Assemblage Blanc, a tongue teasing tango of Semillon and Chardonnay, while Occasio Winery won Best of Class for its elegant Livermore Valley Cabernet Sauvignon in the $40 - $49.99 category. Murietta's Well captured Best of Class for its 2011 Los Tesoros Petit Verdot.

Nice to see Livermore capturing BoC for two varieties that do exceedingly well here.

Bent Creek Wines put on a solid show with a Gold for its 2011 Livermore Valley Syrah, and Silvers for 2011 Zin, Petite Sirah, Cab and Cab Franc, all from the Livermore Valley. They also picked up a Bronze for a Chard and Port.

New wine brand, Caddis, won Double Gold for its 2011 Livermore Valley Tempranillo, a Gold for a 2010 Livermore Valley Syrah and Bronze for a "Better Together" Livermore blend.

Charles R Vineyards scored Silvers for the 2008 Livermore Valley Syrah, 2009 Livermore Valley Petite Sirah, and 2008 Livermore Valley Cabernet Sauvignon.

Concannon Vineyard really stepped up to receive some well-deserved medals with a Best of Class for the outstanding 2012 Livermore Valley Reserve

Assemblage Blanc, which is probably my favorite white wine of 2013. Then, it was Double Gold for the 2010 Reserve Petite Sirah, followed by Silvers for the 2011 Conservancy Cab Sauv, the 2010 Reserve Captain Joe's Petite Sirah, the 2010 Reserve Nina's Cuvee Petite Sirah, the 2009 Reserve Polo Field Petite Sirah, the 2010 Mother Vine Cabernet Sauvignon, the 2011 Conservancy Chardonnay, and Bronze for the 2010 Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon and the 2011 Reserve Stampmaker's Red. All wines were from the Livermore Valley. Well done, Julian Halasz!

It was all Silver and Bronze for Larry Dino's all Livermore Valley wines at Cuda Ridge this year. Honored with Silver were the 2011 Petit Verdot, the 2010 Black Label Cabernet Sauvignon, the 2011 Livermore Valley Cabernet, and Bronze for the 2011 Cabernet Franc and 2011 Merlot.

Darcie Kent Vineyards came out of the gate with a Gold for the 2011 Monterey appellation Riva Blackjack Vineyard Gruner Veltliner and Silvers for the 2012 Demayo Vineyard Chardonnay, the 2011 Pinot Noir from Monterey, and the 2010 Livermore Valley Crown Block Red Wine.

Fenestra Winery will have many more medals to pin to its already crowded walls, with Golds going to both the 2008 Livermore Valley Thatcher Bay Vineyard Cabernet Sauvignon and the 2010 Livermore Valley Estate Grenache. It was a flood of Silver for these wines: 2010 Ghielmetti Vineyard Petite Sirah, 2009 Livermore Valley Estate Syrah, 2010 Lodi Silvaspoons Vineyard Tourvannillo, 2010 Livermore Valley Estate "Infrared" blend, the 2008 Livermore Valley Thatcher Bay Vineyard Merlo, the 2011 Lodi Silvaspoons Vineyard Malbec, 2011 Lodi Graciano, and 2009 Livermore Valley Estate Mourvedre. And, many Bronzes, too.

Harris Tesla scored Silver for the 2009 Livermore Valley Harris Tesla Estate Cabernet Sauvignon, and Bronze for the 2006, which is really tasting great right now with some bottle age, so they must be after fruitier Cabs at the Chron these days. Seriously, for $24 a bottle, these are some of Livermore's best values for really well made 100% Cabernets.

Unsurprisingly, La Rochelle Winery scored a Double Gold for its phenomenal 2012 Russian River Valley Saralee's Vineyard Pinot Meunier. Get some before it's all gone.

Former winemaker, Charlie Kidd's efforts paid off big time for Las Positas Vineyards with Gold for the 2011 Livermore Valley Estate Syrah, and Silvers for the 2010 Meritage and 2011 Estate Petite Sirah. We know current winemaker, Brent Amos, will rock it next year with the 2012s he finished off and the 2013s he's about to bottle.

Longevity Wines posted some solid Silvers with the 2010 California Phil-osophy and the 2010 Lodi Petite Sirah, plus a raft of Bronze winners as well.

McGrail Vineyards & Winery scored Gold for the lovely 2012 Livermore Valley Chardonnay, and Silvers for both the 2009 Livermore Valley Merlot and the 2010 James Vincent Cabernet Sauvignon.

Murrieta's Well, in addition to the BoC for the 2011 Petit Verdot, brought home Gold for the 2012 Whip, and Silvers for the 2011 Livermore Valley Los Tesoros Touriga Nacional, the 2011 Spur, and the 2012 Los Tesoros Semillon Chardonnay blend. The latter is something more wineries need to explore. The marriage in Livermore of these two white grapes is magic.

No doubt about it, Collin Cranor of Nottingham Cellars is one of Livermore's hottest young winemakers, and there's no sign of him letting up anytime soon. He scored a whopping three out of four Golds, with the following brilliant wines getting the Golden nod: 2012 Livermore Valley Fraser Howard Chardonnay, 2010 Livermore Valley Supremacy Bordeaux Blend and 2012 Livermore Valley Marina Ranch Grenache, followed by a Silver for the 2010 Livermore Valley Casa de Vinas & Ghielmetti Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon. Smart entries!

In addition to Occasio Winery's Best of Class for its 2011 Livermore Valley Cabernet Sauvignon, significant for the fact that the $40.00 pricepoint is the sweetspot for premium Cabs, their Double Gold for the awesome Telos blend speaks volumes, not just for the brilliance of the wine, but for the ability of a well-crafted blend to find common ground among a disparate group of critics. If you haven't tried it, you owe it to yourself. The 2011 Livermore Valley Del Arroyo Vineyard Petite Sirah also took Gold. Three more Silver medals went to the 2012 Livermore Valley Del Arroyo Vineyard Chardonnay, the 2011 Livermore Valley Telos and the 2011 Livermore Valley Thatcher Bay Vineyard Merlot. Nicely done!

LIVERMORE VALLEY WINES

GPS, a blend of Grenache and Petite Sirah, plus a Silver for the 2012 Livermore Valley Chandler Vineyard Chardonnay, and Bronzes for the 2010 Livermore Valley Estate Vineyard Petite Sirah and the 2013 Livermore Valley Ghilmetti Vineyard Sauvignon Blanc.

Stony Ridge Winery scored Silvers for both its 2010 Livermore Valley Zinfandel and Petite Sirah.

Wente's stalwart wine-making team scored Gold for the truly delicious 2012 Arroyo Seco-Monterey Riverbank Riesling, followed by a sleigh filled with Silvers for these efforts: 2011 Livermore Valley Charles Wetmore Cabernet Sauvignon, 2012 Livermore Valley Morning Fog Chardonnay (Safeway's number one selling Chardonnay in Northern California), 2011 Livermore Valley The Nth Degree Merlot, 2012 Livermore Valley The Nth Degree Chardonnay, 2012 Livermore Valley Louis Mel Sauvignon Blanc (a killer SB at $15.00), 2011 Livermore Valley Sandstone Merlot and a Bronze for the 2011 Livermore Valley Southern Hills Cabernet Sauvignon.

Rhonda Wood posted another great result from one of her signature Zins, this time a Double Gold for her 2011 Livermore Valley "Big Wood" Zinfandel, rounded out by a Bronze for the 2008 Livermore Valley Merlot, as well as for the 2012 Livermore Valley "Para Mas Amigas" Chardonnay.

Congratulations to all the winners! I didn't list all the Bronze medalists, of which there were quite a few, so please accept congrats even if your name wasn't listed here. There's no doubt about it, Livermore is a hot property right now.

County High School Students Invited to Participate in Poetry Out Loud Competition

The 4th Annual Alameda County Poetry Out Loud Competition has been scheduled

Poetry Out Loud, an annual program, celebrates youth and poetry. Recitation and performance are current trends in poetry.

There has been a resurgence of poetry as an oral art form, as seen in the slam poetry movement and the immense popularity of hip-hop music.

Out Loud.

School winners advance to the County competition held on February 19 in Oakland. The County winner advances to the State competition at the State Capitol in Sacramento, in late March, and ultimately to the National Finals in late April.

County level participants will receive prizes: 1st place winner prize is $200; 2nd place winner prize is $100; All other participants will receive $25. Also, $100 will be awarded to 1st place County winner's school department that facilitated the student's participation.

ProctorU Has Added Jobs at Livermore Location

ProctorU is kicking off the new year with a new hiring push in 2014. The California-based online proctoring company continues to regularly bring jobs to the Bay Area and is moving to a larger office in Livermore, Calif.

In 2011, ProctorU had 11 employees, a small office in Hoover, Ala. and the Livermore, office was just opening its doors. Since then ProctorU has grown more than ten-fold, now employing over 250 people around the country, 100 in the Livermore office and 50 in the Folsom office.

This week the Livermore office moved from a facility less than 3,500 square feet, to an office measuring 12,000 square feet. As a result, the two offices are looking to hire over 80 people in the next two months. As the company continues to ink agreements with institutions, management must constantly expand its workforce to keep up with the demand. Those interested in becoming proctors are encouraged to apply at <http://proclife.com>.

"The rate of growth we've seen this year has been staggering. We continue to grow at this incredible rate because the industry and our partnership institutions demand it," said ProctorU's Executive Vice President Jarrod Morgan. "As more and more schools begin to understand the need for our service, we have to continue expanding to keep up with the demand."

The company has proctored over 500,000 exams since being founded in 2008 and is averaging tens of thousands of tests every month. The company currently works with over 450 partner institutions including San Jose State University, the University of California, Irvine and the University of Nevada, Reno.

Jersey Mike's Subs Now Open in Pleasanton; Opening Raises Funds for PPIE

Jersey Mike's Subs opened in Pleasanton on January 15. Friends and business partners, David, Cody, and Bennett Ball; and Michael and Beverly Mills, will hold a grand opening and free sub fundraiser through Sunday, January 19 to support the Pleasanton Partnerships in Education (PPIE) Foundation.

The new restaurant, located at 6654 Koll Center Parkway, is circulating 10,000 coupons throughout the community offering a free regular sub for a minimum $1 contribution to the Pleasanton Partnerships in Education Foundation. Customers must have a coupon to be eligible.

"This is our third Jersey Mike's location. I have come to find just how rewarding it is to open our doors and support the community," said Bennett Ball. "The Pleasanton Partnerships in Education Foundation is regarded as such an integral aspect to the local education system and we couldn't think of a better grand opening partnership. We feel so lucky to be welcomed with open arms here in Pleasanton and we are grateful for this opportunity to bring the Jersey Mike's brand and culture to this community."

She added, "We hire so many local high school students to be on our team and we find that supporting the education system is just another way to give back to our valued crew members. Opening a Jersey Mike's location is a lot like opening the doors to our own home and we look forward to creating new and lasting relationships here."

Since 2010, Jersey Mike's locations throughout the country have raised nearly $7.5 million for worthy local charities and have distributed more than 600,000 free sub sandwiches to help numerous causes. Subs str made Mike's Way® with onions, lettuce, tomatoes and a signature olive oil blend, vinegar and spices. The company uses only private labeled meats and cheeses, sliced fresh for each sub sandwich and piled high on in-store baked bread.

The restaurant's hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., seven days a week. For information, call (925) 425-0865.
