Supervisors Strongly Object to Carnegie Park Expansion DEIR

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved a letter to be sent to the California State Parks Department criticizing points in the Draft Environmental Impact Report (DEIR) for the 3300acre expansion of the 1500acre Carnegie State Vehicle Recreation Area (CSVRA), on Tesla Road.

Supervisors voted at their June 23 meeting, after hearing comments on both sides of the Carnegie expansion issue from a total of 29 speakers. The last day of the state's comment period on the DEIR is June 29.

The motion by Supervisor Nate Miley was to supby the Community Development Agency, which pointed out inadequacies in the environmental document.

Among references to incounty staff cited the state water board's criticism of its failure to deal properly with water issues. Another port a six-page letter written was the state's failure to properly address traffic circulation, which is governed by policies in the county's own plan.

Without the department's adequacy in the DEIR, the DEIR properly responding on these issues, "Alameda County cannot support the project unless the stated concerns are addressed," the report states.

Assistant planning director Liz McElligott, who worked on the letter, told The Independent that the supervisors made a point of saying "not that they wouldn't support it under any circumstances, but given the documents so far, they

Haggerty Elected

Supervisor Scott Haggerty, president of the 5-member Alameda County Board of Supervisors, has been elected to serve as second vice-president on the California Association of Councils of Governments by its board of directors at its meeting this month.

Known as CALCOG, its members are comprised of representatives from councils of government (COG) jurisdictions such as the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) with responsibility for regional land use planning; metropolitan planning organizations such as the Bay Area's Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC) responsible for regional transportation planning, funding and implementation, and county level traffic congestion management agencies and transportation sales tax authorities. Haggerty represents the Alameda County Transportation Commission (ACTC) on CALCOG.

'It is an honor to be elected to serve as second vice president on CALCOG," said Haggerty. "CALCOG offers an opportunity to

Livermore Moving Forward with Planning for Downtown Area

The Livermore City Council approved moving forward with an agreement with Colliers International-DZT to develop a request for proposal (RFP) and marketing agreement for a variety of uses within an area of the downtown.

The city owns the old Lucky site, across from the Bankhead Theater on the other side of South Livermore Avenue, as well as the parking lot and Speedy

Oil Change sites adjacent to the theater. The RFP would also include the potential to include other properties if owners were willing to participate in any future development plan. The council vote was unanimous to proceed with having Colliers create a comprehensive RFP that could include the flexibility to allow responders to master plan the area with the "appropriate uses." Suggestions included a luxury hotel and conference-entertainment-event center, housing, and commercial uses, along with a parking garage.

Colliers-DZT was selected for the job because of their local, national and international contacts. The company will be paid up to $430,000 for the work. A hotel study is expected to be completed in the next two weeks. It would provide some guidance as to what a proposal might contain.

City Planner Steve Stewart said the intent is to be flexible to accommodate the size and scale of what might come from a design proposal that is unique.

Councilmember Steve Spedowfski had asked if there were only two parcels available. He mentioned that at a previous meeting, Councilmember Stewart Gary had suggested looking

Zone 7 Approves Nitrate Protection Plan

By Ron McNicoll

Zone 7 Water Agency directors have approved a plan designed to keep nitrates from reaching harmful concentrations in the underground water basin.

The board voted unanimously at its meeting June 17 to approve the Nutrient Management Plan (NMP). It will be sent on to the State Water Control Board and the Alameda County Environmental Health Department.

The plan identifies five hot spots of nitrates in the Valley. They are at May School Road, Buena Vista Avenue, Greenville Road, Mines Road, and in Happy Valley, where there has been a county-imposed moratorium on building for years.

Animal and human waste are sources of the nitrates that can contaminate water. One approach that would protect the underground water basin from nitrates in rural areas would involve the installation of efficient septic systems. The NMP talks about that, but leaves setting requirements and enforcing them up to the

When the NMP first came up for discussion a few months ago, rural landowners were concerned that they would be spending a great deal of money on an upgraded septic system in order to add to a new home.

Hanson Selected as PUSD Interim Superintendent

Jim Hansen has been selected as the Pleasanton Unified School District (PUSD) Interim Superintendent for the 2015/16 school year. He will begin work on July 1.

Hansen replaces Superintendent Parvin Ahmadi, who resigned on May 28th.

A press release announcing the appointment thanked Ahmadi for her work. The district anticipates involving the community in a very thorough, inclusive, and transparent process.

Hansen has worked in public education for 34 years, at many different levels, before retiring from PUSD in 2013 as Principal of Amador Valley High School.

Hansen stated, "I look forward to working with my colleagues at PUSD and engaging with the many students, parents, and community members I had the pleasure of meeting over the years, as well as those who are new to Pleasanton."

While the appointment is for a full year, if a permanent superintendent were found, Hansen would leave the post.

Diamond Park Doesn't Climb Priority List in Dublin

Advocates of moving faster to develop Sean Diamond Park asked the Dublin City Council to try to find money in the coming budget to make it happen.

However, the council in a 4-1 vote stuck to its plans to spend $500,000 on planning for the East Dublin park in the 2015-16 fiscal year, but no more than that, at least until possibly next year.

Mayor David Haubert was the lone dissenter on the vote. He said that the design plans should be accelerated as much as possible, then turf installed, and whatever else might be done to complete the park.

Referring to audience members who have asked for faster Diamond Park development, Haubert said, "We hear that people want some turf put in." Residents told the council that children are playing on asphalt,

There are money considerations, said councilmembers and city manager Chris Foss. Parks have had to wait because there is not enough money to build them all at Diamond Park is not yet in the line.

Further, the policy is to use money from developer park fees, not from the general fund. "The city council loaned $6 million of general fund money to keep this program afloat. There were also $5 million in community benefit fees, but the program should pay for itself," said

As it is, the city could not get started on Fallon Sports Park improvements because the bids came in too high. The improvement package will be rebid toward the end of the year. After there is success with Fallon bids, whenever that occurs, Jordan Ranch Park is next in line.

The council also voted to increase assessments for five street lighting and landscape districts, which operate under the rules of the Mello-Roos Act. Increases in the assessments vary, depending on the district.

LOCKHARTS HONORED FOR 42 YEARS' SERVICE

The council awarded certificates of appreciation to Janet and Steve Lockhart, who will be leaving Dublin to move to eastern Contra Costa County.

The Lockharts have been active for 42 years with the city, moving to Dublin before it became a city. Haubert called them "pioneers," because of the way they welcomed others as the city was growing in its early stages.

Janet Lockhart served served Dublin Partners in Education, which she will give up. She will continue Some residents suggested on the School of Imaginato remain active with Eden Housing, where she is chair for resident services.

> Janet is resigning her seat on the Human Services Commission. The city expects to fill the seat from applied last November, but also will post the vacancy, as required by law.

Steve Lockhart served on the planning commisboard. He said that he will remain active with DHPA to help with the city cemetery expansion, and some school projects.

The council greeted Lt. Col. Andrew Jones, the new commander at Camp Parks. Jones has served in the Army for 24 years, the past 20 as an officer. He has had assignments that included Washington, Oregon, Missouri, and several Southeastern seacoast states.

Dublin San Ramon Services District general manager Bert Michalczyk reported on water conservation efforts to date. During the previous week, 42 percent less water was used than for the same week a year ago. So far this year, DSRSD customers have used 28 percent less water than they did last year to date.

Michalczyk said that DSRSD's program of giving away recycled water to people who drive to their wastewater treatment plant with any size container saved the public 2 million gallons last year. This year, the figure is projected to be 5 million gallons. DSRSD will open a second water station at Dublin Place, said Michalczyk.

Dublin apartments continue to improve compliance with the city's non-smoking ordinance. A report on the consent calendar shows that three more apartment complexes -- Dublin Station, Emerald Park and Fountains at Emerald Park, chose to become non-smoking properties this year.

The ordinance, and continued improvement in apartments, has helped Dublin merit an A grade from the Lung Association on its grading scale for cities.

Dublin includes 22 complexes with 5018 units that are affected by the ordinance. All have met the requirement that at least 75 percent of their units are

First Woman to Lead a National Security Lab Selected to Head Sandia

Jill M. Hruby has been named the next president and director of Sandia National Laboratories. She will be the first woman to lead a national security laboratory when she steps into her new role July 17.

A Sandia staff member and manager for the past 32 years, Hruby most recently served as a vice president overseeing Sandia's efforts in nuclear, biological and chemical security; homeland security; counterterrorism; and energy security.

Hruby's appointment was announced to the Sandia workforce on Tuesday by Rick Ambrose, who chairs the board of directors for Sandia Corp. and is the executive vice president of Lockheed Martin Space Systems. Sandia Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Lockheed Martin Corp., operates Sandia Labs for the National Nuclear Security Administration (NASA).

'The board looked at a number of outstanding candidates," Ambrose said. "We saw right away that Jill has the right combination of technical expertise and strategic vision to lead Sandia into the future. With more than three decades of experience at Sandia, she understands the core national security missions and scientific foundations that are funda-Hruby said, "Leading Sandia is a tremendous responsibility because of its importance to the security of our nation and the phenomenal engineering and scientific talent here. I embrace the opportunity to maintain the U.S. nuclear deterrent and lead Sandia in solving the difficult security challenges we face as a nation. I'm proud to be the first woman to lead an NNSA laboratory, but mostly I'm proud to represent the people and work of this great lab.

Hruby joined the technical staff at Sandia's California laboratory in January 1983, working in thermal and fluid sciences, solar energy research and nuclear weapon component research and development. During her career, she also has done research in nanoscience, hydrogen storage, mechanical-component design and microfluidics.

Assistant City Manager Steve Bocian said that there is a stream of revenue coming in from development projects that have already been approved.

MidPen is in the process of gaining financing for Kottinger Gardens, an affordable senior housing development approved by the city last June.

The project will consist of 185 units, including single story cottages and two and three story multi-unit buildings. The new housing will be built on land currently occupied by Kottinger Place and Pleasanton Gardens. The current buildings will be torn down.

Total cost for developing and constructing the housing is estimated at $68.8 million. Funding will come from a number of sources, including 9% tax credit equity, a conventional loan, HOME loan and the city's contribution.

MidPen has applied to the Tax Credit Allocation Committee for an allocation of 9% Federal Low-Income Housing Tax Credits. Tax credits are issued for the acquisition, rehabilitation, or new construction of rental housing targeted to lowerincome households.

However, since first applying, there has been an increase in the cost of construction. Bocian told the council that the process is competitive with decisions based on a point system. MidPen determined that additional public funds were required to be competitive in the current round of funding, he explained.

To date, MidPen has obtained approval from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to remove Kottinger Place from HUD's public housing inventory, allowing its demolition.

It has received approved from the Alameda County Housing Authority for a project-based section 8 contract for 50 new units to assure that existing residents will be able to retain rents at 30 percent of their current income levels.

Three members of the public urged the council to grant the additional money.

Becky Dennis suggested that one option the council might consider to assure future funding for such projects was to increase the fee developers pay in lieu of building affordable housing.

Councilmember Jerry Pentin pointed out that the recent California Supreme Court ruling strengthens the city's ability to level the fee. 'We could consider increasing the fee in the future. Affordability is one of the biggest needs in the city."

The Court decision clears the way for cities to require developers to sell a percentage of the units they build at below-market rates as a condition of a building permit. Developers also could be given the option of paying into a fund for low-cost

VALLEY ROUNDUP

California Budget

Assemblywoman Catharine B. Baker explained her opposition to the budget deal between Governor Brown and the majority party.

She stated, "I applaud Governor Brown for holding our budget to smarter revenue projections. There are many supportable provisions in this budget. However, it includes harmful provisions that shift funding out of our classrooms where it is needed most. I cannot endorse taking money away from classrooms to fund other programs."

The budget moves $145 million of existing childcare funding into Prop. 98 without increasing Prop. 98 spending, which squeezes funds available for the Local Control Funding Formula (LCFF). The budget also radically expands Medi-Cal without doing anything to address the provider shortage or reimbursement rates for doctors--two problems that imperil health care to Californians who are currently enrolled.

Baker also points out that the revised budget does not adequately address the funding shortage for developmental service providers and foster care support programs. It jeopardizes access to justice in our judicial system by failing to provide judges and re-open courtrooms, while at the same time increasing the fees charged to Californians in order to use the court system.

Baker concluded, "The final budget deal makes little progress in addressing a key priority of Californians – water. The budget fails to streamline the construction of new water storage projects that are needed to provide long-term drought relief, despite the fact the budget provides a CEQA exemption for the construction of the proposed Golden State Warrior arena. If streamlining the process is good enough for a sports arena, it should be applied to increase our water supply as well."

Beautification Nominations

The City of Livermore Beautification Committee is accepting nominations for its 2015 Appearance Awards through July 31st. The Appearance Awards recognize Livermore residents or business owners that enhanced the surrounding neighborhood and community by improving or re-designing the overall look of their property. Since many residents have worked hard to decrease water usage during the drought, this award program provides an avenue to recognize such efforts.

The award categories include water wise landscaping for a home or business, special architecture, historical renovations, and improvements in the downtown perimeter. The 2014 award-winning properties were: 437 Knottingham Circle; 711 S. M Street; 1021 Olivina Avenue; Tri-Valley Haven – 116 N. L Street; and, Livermore Spa – 2255 Fourth Street

Award nominations are due no later than July 31st, and winners will be recognized at an October 2015 City Council Meeting. Residents can nominate their own property as well as neighbors. Fire in Livermore

The Livermore-Pleasanton Fire Department responded on June 22 at around 2:30 p.m. along with the Alameda County Fire Department and Cal Fire to the report of a vegetation fire threatening a structure in the 7600 block of Hawthorne Ave, Livermore.

The first fire crews on the scene found an approximate 1 acre grass fire with numerous vehicles, mechanical equipment items and a single family home on fire. Firefighters initiated a quick fire attack with the intent to stop the fire before it could cross Greenville Rd. or spread to other adjacent properties.

The fire also spread into cargo containers, one of which was filled with tires creating a large column of dark smoke that could be seen for many miles. Firefighters were able to contain the fire to the property of origin. The vehicles that burned did not appear to be in operating order prior to the fire. The residence was a total loss. The sole occupant will be staying with family he has locally.

A total of 12 Engine Companies responded to this fire. It was held at First Alarm, but that alarm was augmented by the Cal Fire vegetation response. The cause of the fire was believed to be accidental when the homeowner was working with metal equipment creating a spark that spread quickly to the dry grass. Approximately 2 acres of grass and mechanical equipment burned before the fire could be contained. An early estimate of the amount lost is $500,000. Fire crews remain on scene mopping up hot spots, and will be there into the evening.

EDITORIAL

It's Official

At last week's Pleasanton City Council meeting, the decision was made to officially end both the planning and environmental work for an Eastside Pleasanton Specific

The vote included removing the plan from the council's priority list of actions for at least two years.

The action was one we heartily support. There were no compelling reasons to continue the process. From the start, there were issues raised by the public that strongly supported not moving forward with the planning. These included the availability of water, school overcrowding, traffic and the need to move the urban growth boundary to accommodate growth on the eastside.

In addition, the city does not need to zone for more housing. It currently has enough land to meet its regional housing needs assessment numbers through 2022.

We applaud the residents for keeping the pressure on the council and urging them to continue to monitor the situation.

Commission Okays Sunset Rezoning

Commission voted 4 to 1 to recommend approval of rezoning the Sunset Office Plaza to allow for housing.

The matter is currently scheduled to be heard by the city council on July 13.

In its latest plan, Sunset would subdivide the property to allow for the development of 42 detached single-family residences and a 19,600+/- square foot office building. They would replace the existing office buildings and adjacent open space on the site.

Loretta Kaskey was the only planning commissioner opposed. She objected to the loss of the adjacent open

At the June 22 Livermore City Council meeting, Jeff Kaskey provided the council with details from when the project was first approved in 1973. He said that at that time, Masud Mehren, owner quent letter writers may of Sunset Development, had have publication of their letagreed to grant the city ownership of the 5 acres zoned as be submitted by e-mail to open space for use explicitly as a park where people could

City council members asked the staff to look into

At its June 16 meeting, the planning commission majority viewed the plan as a good compromise over previous projects, which included high density and no office use. The housing would be comparable to the adjoining neighborhood in lot size.

Neighbors have objected to the previous proposals, citing density leading to traffic and school impacts as concerns. They also declared there is a need for the office buildings that currently occupy the site.

About 25 people spoke at the June 16 planning commission meeting. Those opposed objected to the zoning change, preferring to retain the current use, which they said had fewer impacts particularly with regard to schools and traffic.

The half dozen or so who spoke in favor of the plan pointed to the need for such infill projects. In addition, they liked the low impact water landscaping.

The new plan would include new public streets, sidewalks, and utilities on site; modifications to the

The Livermore Planning median on Holmes Street; addition of bike lanes on Holmes Street; traffic signal improvements at the intersection of Holmes Street and Catalina Drive and the intersection of Concannon Boulevard and Evans Street; new sound walls, landscaping, and public utility connections in the Holmes Street and Concannon Boulevard

Council Asked to Fund Two Projects in Downtown Livermore

During the public hearing at Monday's Livermore City Council meeting, speakers asked for funding for two projects, a visitor center in the Bankhead Theater lobby and a canopy over the plaza stage in front of the theater.

They addressed the council as it considered its Capital Improvement Program (CIP) budget for the next two years. Although the budget was adopted without adding funds for either the visitor center or the canopy, the council mentioned other sources of funding for each.

Citizens also asked the council to study siting the proposed council chambers in the downtown. They believed future studies of a downtown hotel could include a review of the council chambers location. This topic were discussed more fully when the hotel and related uses were addressed later in the council

The visitor center would be created by reconfiguring the Bankhead Theater's lobby. Estimated cost is $40,000.

Staff is in the process of looking at a policy to govern funds from the host community impact fee that are used to make the lease payments on the Bankhead Theater. There is the potential for extra funds, first to develop a reserve policy and then to make changes at the Bankhead needed for the visitor center. The council would receive the proposed host impact fee policy in July.

The host fee is paid to the city as a way to mitigate to nearby landfills. If sufficient funds were found to be available, they could provide $40,000 for the Bankhead lobby alterations needed to create a visitor center.

Scott Kenison, executive director of LVPAC, told the council that work needed to begin in July on reconfiguring the lobby in order to complete the process by the start of the LVPAC season in September. He said that an application had been submitted for grant funding for the canopy to the Commission for the Arts. It would be resubmitted. City staff said that forms were not available currently for the application process. The approval of a form needs first to go to the council for its vote.

The canopy, designed to act both as a sculpture and sunshade, would cover the stage allowing for earlier evening starts to summer events, as well as additional daytime activities. Of the estimated cost at just over $485,000, $200,000 has already been raised from members of the public. Jean King, chairman of the Livermore Valley Performing Arts Center board, offered to front $240,000 as a loan if the city would commit in the near future to repay that amount over a four year period.

In addressing the need for the canopy, speakers pointed out that the sun protection it would provide would make it possible to make full use of the plaza during the summer months, when the sun is intense. When it comes the impacts of refuse taken to concerts, there is concern about the damage the sun can inflict on instruments. The late start makes events less attractive to families who may want to attend. Daytime events are not possible.

One speaker, Jean Shuler, pointed out that the canopy would be a great addition to the half marathon run each year. It would provide shade while runners sign in. She said that a visitor center would provide an excellent place for potential Lab employees to see what we have in store for them.

Lynn Seppala described the sunshade as "large and aesthetically pleasing." It was specifically designed to have architectural impact with or without the sun shade. "It's a huge structure supporting a 2600 square foot canopy. It would be owned by the city. It would provide a place where more events can be held to entertain the entire community."

The question was raised about using the proposed loan by Jean King to build the canopy. Roberts said that it would be possible. It would be up to the council to make the decision.

Speakers favoring the visitor center and canopy were an eclectic mix of the arts community, laboratory employees, business, and a community service organization. They also suggested locating a future city council chambers in the downtown. Currently plans are to build it on the site where the old library now sits.

In regard to the council chambers, City Manager

Marc Roberts pointed out that the primary use is not for city council meetings. Staff uses it for a variety of meetings about 80 percent of the time.

Councilmember Bob Woerner suggested that staff prepare a list of who would use the space and for what and how often before determining where the council chambers would be located.

Woerner said that converting the lobby for use as a visitor center makes sense. It's simple enough. However, the canopy process is more complicated. He wondered if there were a way to expedite the process.

Roberts said that a complete public process would be appropriate.

Councilmember Stewart Gary declared, "We need to look at the design of the canopy. Where was the competition? How do we know this is the correct design? It should go through the normal process. Both the visitor center and canopy are great ideas that need to be fleshed out."

Councilmember Steven Spedowfski said both ideas were great. "I would like to see them move forward. I wish local government could work that fast. I'm not sure we have the ability to expedite the process (to meet the needs of LVPAC).'

Councilmember Laureen Turner said she was waiting for the host impact fee policy before making decisions on potential changes to the property. "I wouldn't use general fund monies on the projects, although they are great projects."

Eastside Planning Stopped Pleasanton Voters Officers and Founding Members Kelly Cousins, Al Exner, Sandy Yamamoto, Kay Ayala, George Bowen, Karla Brown

'Thank You" to the Pleasanton residents who helped stop the East Side Development

Thanks to the efforts of hundreds of Pleasanton residents who turned out and spoke at the Community and City Council meetings, to those who became informed and wrote to the City Council and Planning Department about the East Pleasanton Specific Plan and draft EIR report. The Pleasanton City Council voted 3:0 on June 16th to stop the EPSP planning.

Thanks also to Karla Brown, who was the only City Council member to consistently oppose this development plan which ranged as high as 2,279 new housing units plus 1.6 million sq. ft. of non-residential building. The public outcry from so many residents against the continuation of the plan for the large number of residential homes in East Pleasanton during an ongoing drought, adding to traffic congestion and school crowding among other undesirable outcomes

The east side preferred plan anton City Limits and over 100 acres outside the voter approved Urban Growth Boundary between Pleasanton and Livermore.

The PleasantonVoters. com grass roots effort to educated and inform the residents in our community was initiated by a few but was successful because of the many of you who became involved. Thanks to your participation, stopping the EPSP planning was heard by those who are elected on the Council to represent the best interests of our community as a whole. Thank you for adding your name to our growing list of supporters so we can continue to engage residents in the important issues facing our community and effecting our quality of life in Pleasanton.

More on RO Water Alan Burnham Livermore

In an earlier letter, I argued that increased population combined with naturally variable rainfall cause periodic water crises—about every 20 years last century and probably more often in the future. Consequently, we need to either accept a smaller slice of the pie, take someone else's slice of the pie, or increase the size of the pie. I support the third option, and reverse osmosis (RO) of wastewater or brackish well water is the best way. Reforming water law may be a good idea, but don't hold your breath.

Most people want cheap water. RO water is not free, but its cost is insignificant compared to the cost of living in California, particularly in the Bay Area. If we consider the modest case of 10 ccf/month average usage at $3/ccf, the average water bill is about $20/mo for the meter and $30/mo for the water. If RO water were one third that supply at twice the cost, the average water bill would increase only $10/mo. I call that cheap! Twice that? Still cheap.

In contrast, a system to catch and store a mere 1 ccf of rainwater in a poly tank for use in dry weather would cost $1000. Not cheap! Similarly, Pleasanton's recent would have been almost 950 approval of ways to expand acres outside of the Pleas- use of recycled water may be a nice band aid, but it should not be confused with proper long-term solutions to water supply. RO water can be delivered everywhere efficiently.

Desalination is widely practiced around the world, with more freshwater produced by a variety of methods than falls in the Colorado River Basin. The cheapest method depends on the location, but RO is a good baseline. Some say desalination is energy intensive, but the electricity usage for RO supplying one third our need is only a couple percent of the average household electricity use.

Desalination for California has many parallels to energy use. Renewable energies are here because of government mandates and subsidies. We have 10% ethanol in our gasoline even though it is more expensive. California is mandating 33% renewable electricity by 2020 even though it is more expensive. Arguments about externalities and climate change also support the need for desalination. Steeply tiered water pricing would also encourage conservation and make high users foot most of the cost for expanded water supplies—analogous to current tiered gas and electricity prices. Even though tiered water prices were recently ruled illegal due to a law about cost of government services, that situation could be changed in short order if the legislature did its job. Both Cal Water's and Livermore's tiers are far too flat. Any household using more than 10 ccf per month, including prorated use per unit in apartment complexes,

We faced a similar problem for natural gas supplies in the 1970s when government regulation and should be paying RO rates.

price controls essentially squashed exploration. Deregulation has increased reserves of natural gas so much that the worry has changed from running out to having so much it will exacerbate global warming. Another failed rationing policy of the 1970s was the odd-even license plate rule for gasoline refueling, which mostly wasted people's time and gasoline as they idled in long lines. One philosophy is that it is better to light a candle than curse the darkness. Unfortunately, California seems to be adopting water policies of darkness, including use restrictions that go far past reasonable. Marijuana may be the only legal grass in the near future. Does it make more sense to create a water gestapo to enforce deprivation or do what is technically feasible to solve the problem?

The only thing stopping us from having adequate water supplies is confusing the availability of nearly free water with availability of 2-3 times as much of affordable water. There are no good reasons not to pursue RO or better technology—only excuses.

Safe Summer Renee L. Adams Livermore

Already we are hearing of young children drowning in swimming pools. I know several people who cover their pools with a solar cover. Solar blankets carry an unsafe issue. When you cover your pool with a solar blanket and a child (or animal) steps on it, chances are that their weight will pull them under. If a rescue is attempted, the solar blanket must be moved entirely before that rescue can be performed. I have no solar blanket on my pool for this very reason. Several years ago, my small grandson fell in my pool while trying to retrieve a ball. I was watching him through the kitchen window and knew what was coming. I ran out to help him, but he was already stepping out of the pool with the ball. He turned to me and asked if he could go back in. I told him as soon as we get you in dry diapers and waterproof plastic pants. At my insistence, he had been enrolled in swim school and had received drown-proof lessons. It is truly heartbreaking to lose a child, but most accidents we hear of can be avoided by simply not taking your eyes off that child when there is a body of water nearby.

Swim lessons even for a baby are really an important factor in safety. Parents tend to enroll children in dance. gymnastics and other things they feel are important. Living in California, where so many people have pools or vacation near bodies of water, swim lessons are the most important thing we can provide our children. I truly believe they are still "the best bang for your buck." It's healthy exercise and who knows it may even save a life. By the way,to the families who have lost a child to pool drowning, please accept my deepest sympathy. I am sure that the relative or friend you hold responsible for such a tragedy must be suffering also. Forgiveness is a beautiful thing and shows what kind of "stuff' you're made of. A safe summer to all.

Pleasanton Council Approves New Zoning for Summerhill Project

The Pleasanton City Council approved a downsized housing development at last week's meeting.

The vote was 4 to 1 to change the zoning from 30 units per acre to 15.9 units per acre for the Summerhill Project on West Las Positas Blvd. in the Hacienda Business Park.

Jerry Pentin, the "no" vote, objected to a provision that prevents future residents from having access to the nearby arroyo trail. He said that he did not vote for the first proposal because of lack of access to the arroyo. He asked residents to tell him why they want to keep new residents out of the arroyo.

The two residents who spoke during the public hearing noted that the residents would have the same access that they have to the arroyo, that is through Hopyard Road. Those living in Parkside adjacent to the arroyo paid a fee of $1000 each for permits to build gates to obtain access to the arroyo. They use the access to pick up trash and beer bottles.

The first plan, which has council approval and growth management allocation, was for a 177 unit apartment complex. The 94 units okayed last week will consist of condos and town homes, including ten affordable units.

Neighbors living in Parkside, adjacent to the site, had objected strongly to the apartment complex. Through negotiations with the developer, Summerhill Homes, the density was reduced to the current level.

Kevin Ebrahimi, vice president of development for Summerhill, told the council that although they could still build the apartment project if the downsize version were not approved, the condo/town home proposal is a better fit.

One of the issues raised by the council related to water use. Karla Brown asked if there were a way to delay construction during the drought.

Arnie Olson stated that in his view, a requirement that the developer gain certification from Zone 7 that there is water available for the project would be sufficient to allow it to go forward.

Brown turned to staff and asked if Zone 7 had ever failed to certify the availability of water. The answer was "not to our knowledge.'

Ebrahimi noted that it would be 13 to 14 months to two years before the first occupancy. Among other water saving provisions, the project does not include a swimming pool and would use recycled water for landscape irrigation when it became available.

Pentin wondered about the Zone 7 contract and the possibility of finding other water resources.

City Manager Nelson Fialho said that the city has no contract with Zone 7. This was done in order to allow the city to have the opportunity to look for water elsewhere, such as from EBMUD or San Francisco. The obstacle is that it is costly to make connections and secure water from these agencies, he said.

Councilmember Kathy Narum summed up the council majority's view of the project. "We have been approving a lot of apartments. I am happy to see ownership housing.

Mayor Jerry Thorne said, "I appreciate the cooperation between the developer and residents that brought us to where we are today."

Bay Area Students Learn Value of Science and Engineering Through 'My Brother's Keeper'

More than 60 disadvantaged youth from Oakland, San Francisco and Tracy visited the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory for a special "Day at the Lab," as part of the White House initiative, "My Brother's Keeper. "

The My Brother's Keeper (MBK) initiative was launched by President Barack Obama to address opportunity gaps with disadvantaged and disconnected youth, specifically targeting minority boys, to encourage positive future life and career choices. The goal is to connect young people to mentoring and support networks and to instill a passion for Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM).

The Department of Energy, which joined the MBK alliance and task force, chose Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory to be the first stop in several upcoming MBK events at the national laboratories throughout the summer.

The Lab event kicked off with Tony Baylis, director of LLNL's Office of Strategic Diversity and Inclusion Programs, stating, "Our hope is that this will be a special day to inspire and motivate you and that you take something back with you to make a difference in your life," Baylis

LLNL Director Bill Goldstein said, "We are very proud to have you here and we are very proud to be hosting this event and representing the White House and the Department of Energy with the My Brother's Keeper initiative. The Laboratory leads the nation not only in science and technology, but also in the support of STEM education. It is critical for us to be involved all along the pipeline, as you are our future scientists and

"I enjoyed Fun With Science, seeing electricity being conducted and what it can be conducted to and seeing what happens in air pressure in certain situations.'

The day also included a tour of the National Ignition Facility and a visit to the LLNL Discovery Center. Students enjoyed a presentation on cybersecurity, participated in a "Family Feud"- style game and engaged with Lab scientists at interactive displays of lasers and additive manufacturing.

On hand for the visit were several guests including Elias Alcantara, the associate director of White House Intergovernmental Affairs; Kimberly Budil, vice president for the Office of the National Laboratories at the University of California; Nicole Nelson-Jean, manager of the Livermore Field Office; Jody Tallbear, the acting strategic initiatives and policy adviser in the Office of Economic Impact and Diversity at the Department of Energy, and Timothy Mc-Cleese, chief of staff to the deputy secretary of Energy.

McCleese asked the students to remember a simple message: Pass it on. You may not remember everything about the day, however, you will remember something," McCleese said."I want you to go home and tell your brother, your sister, your cousin, your mother about what you saw and heard here today, because you may be that one individual, because of what you shared, that will encourage them to raise their hand and participate the next time an opportunity such as this

Steve Glazer and Assemblymember Catharine Baker are newly elected to their jobs. However, their predecessors, Assemblymember Joan Buchanan and Sen. Mark DeSaulnier, had ample time in office to become involved in the issue and deal with it, but did not.

The staff report says that native people's concerns are not being addressed, a topic that also drew comment from a spokesperson from the Society of American Indians in Livermore. She said that the land includes burial sites and other sacred sites for many tribes in the area.

Some of the speakers in support of the critical letter to the state represented Friends of Tesla Park, the Sierra Club, Save Mount Diablo, Center for Biological Diversity, the California Native Plant Society, 'and an equestrian group, the Tri-Valley Trailblazers.

They talked about the negative impacts off-road vehicle activity can have on habitat. The area is home to both threatened species and plants. In addition, the area is of historic significance.

Light Bulb Celebration Set

Livermore-Pleasanton Fire Department will celebrate the Centennial Lightbulb "A Million Hours of Service," on Saturday, June 27.

From 11:00 a.m. until 3:00p.m., the Livermore-Pleasanton Fire Department will be hosting an event to celebrate the first million hours of service of the Livermore Centennial Light Bulb at Fire Station Six, 4550 East Ave, Livermore.

The free community celebration is open to the public. It will also include vintage and antique fire apparatus, history mobile, fire safety house, displays, music, books and T-shirt sales, and a BBQ hosted by the Livermore-Pleasanton Firefighters Foundation.

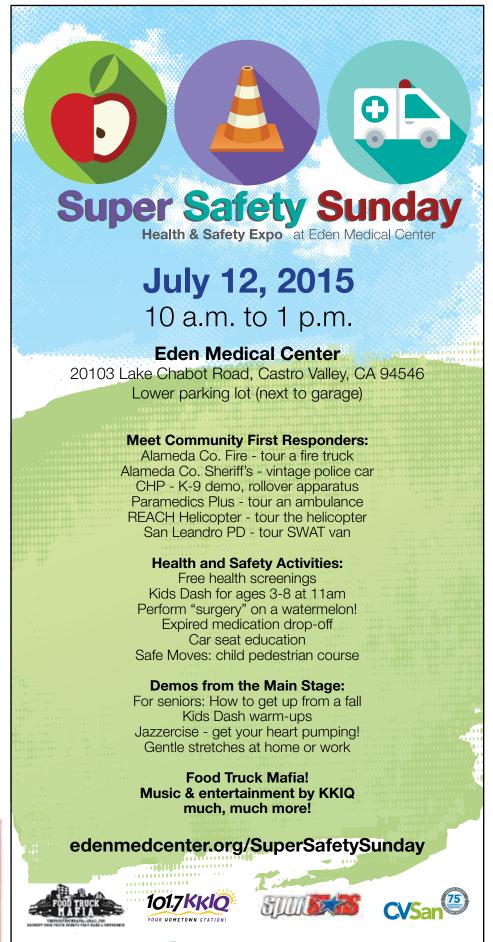

The lightbulb, continuously glowing, has served as a night light in the fire station since 1901. This year's celebration will mark another benchmark for this light bulb, "A Million Hours of Service." Included in the celebration will be the release of a new historical book about the bulb.

The light is never turned off and can be viewed through webcam twenty-four hours a day. It is acknowledged by the Guinness Book of World Records, Ripley's Believe It or Not, and numerous publications from around the world.

Over 2,000 community members and people from around the Bay Area are expected to attend the event. Money raised from shirts, books, and BBQ sales will benefit the Livermore-Pleasanton Firefighters Foundation, a non-profit 501 (c) 3 that supports injured and fallen frrefighters, the burn founda-

In suggesting that a council chambers be included as one of the uses in the RFP, Jeff Kaskey pointed out that the Downtown Specific Plan states that the city should concentrate civic and quasicivic buildings in the downtown. Council chambers were specifically mentioned as an appropriate use.

Dave Ackerman, general manager of the San Francisco Premium Outlets, stated, "Put in the language of the RFP the idea of a comprehensive redevelopment that exists as one concept." He mentioned uses such as a facility that could serve as a small convention center. small venue for performances, community center and city council meetings. Ackerman said that the structure of the RFP will determine what the city receives in Heather McGrail, manager of McGrail Vineyards and Winery, and the secretary of the Livermore Valley Winegrowers Association, said that there is a tremendous need for a full-service luxury hotel with a conference center. The area has gone from 30 to 54 wineries in ten vears. It is becoming a destination. "What I hear from tourists is that they come out from San Francisco on BART and return to the city the same day. Pleasanton Prepares Plan to Deal with 4th of July Fairgrounds Traffic

The City of Pleasanton has created a traffic mitigation plan designed to coordinate a safe and efficient exit for the more than 70,000 fairgoers expected to attend the Alameda County Fair on Saturday, July 4, 2015. A highlight of the fair agenda on that date is a spectacular fireworks display with live accompaniment by the Oakland East Bay Symphony.

Under the direction of the Pleasanton Police Department, the City has collaborated with numerous agencies including the California State Highway Patrol, Alameda County Sheriff's Office, Alameda County Fair, Livermore-Amador Valley Transit Authority (Wheels buses), Bay Area Rapid Transit, and the Pleasanton Unified School District to implement the plan on July 4, 2015.

"This traffic plan was designed to create a more orderly exit from the fairgrounds on July 4th, one that will expedite the flow of traffic and allow emergency vehicles access to the fair if necessary," according to Pleasanton Police Chief Dave Spiller. "Our best advice to those who plan to attend the festivities at the fair on July 4 would be to arrive early to secure parking. Those who are not planning to attend the fair would do best to avoid the area to avoid congestion."

The plan will involve street and freeway exit closures as well as alternative bus routes. The first component will prohibit parking on neighborhood streets around the fairgrounds on July 4. Then, perhaps as early as 3:00 p.m. on July 4, some streets will be closed, including west bound Bernal Avenue from First Street to Valley Avenue. Pleasanton will also be closed to vehicular traffic. Later in the day, access and parking at the fairgrounds main gate will be very limited. Parents are encouraged to accompany their under-age minor children to the fair as drop-off and pick-up in a close location to the fair may not be possible.

Some intersections will only allow traffic in certain directions. For example, eastbound Bernal at Valley Avenue at Bernal Avenue Avenues will only allow turns onto southbound Valley Avenue.

Following the fireworks show, fairgoers can still enjoy many of the activities at the fair, such as carnival rides and concessions, which will remain open later in the evening. Traffic exiting the fairgrounds will be directed to the freeways according to specific routes, based upon which gate visitors leave:

• Gate 12: traffic exits on northbound Valley Avenue to Hopyard Road, to I-580 • Gate 8: traffic exits southbound Valley Avenue to westbound Bernal Avenue to I-680 North • Gates 5 & 6: traffic exits eastbound Bernal Avenue to Sunol Boulevard to I-680

• Gate 9: traffic exits from Rose Avenue to Fair Street to Division/Hopyard Road to I-580

• Downtown: traffic exits northbound Main Street to Santa Rita Road to I-580

SPORTS NOTES

The Livermore Smoke 10B Summer Travel Ball team won the Capitol Sports Association ASA Junior Olympic Fast Pitch Softball Tournament held at Incline Village in Nevada the weekend of June 20th. The girls played inspired softball the entire weekend. Two come from behind wins on Saturday and a blow-out win in the Championship Game on Sunday highlighted their undefeated weekend in Tahoe. Great pitching, explosive hitting and aggressive base running led the way to their first Tournament win of the summer season. The Stompers 12B team won the Del Holson Fastpitch Softball Tournament this past weekend. On Saturday, Stompers beat the Benicia Outlaws 10-2, beat the San Lorenzo Heat 12-1, and lost to the Vallejo Hurricanes 3-12. Seeded second for Sunday, Stompers played the San Lorenzo Heat again, but this time in the quarterfinals. Stompers won this quarter-final game 6-1. Stompers moved on to the semi-final and beat Union City Fury in a very close game 8-7. The Stompers met Vallejo Hurricanes again and this time in the championship game. It was a 3-hour long game of endurance in the heat, and the Stompers triumphed with a 29-19 win. Fireworks Available in Dublin; City Issues Safety Tips on Their Use

Benefiting local nonprofits and service organizations, "Safe and Sane" fireworks will go on sale in Dublin beginning June 28, 2015, at 12:00 PM. The City of Dublin and its public safety departments would like to promote fireworks safety and urge extreme caution in their use. Safety is especially important this year due to the extremely dry conditions caused by the drought.

"Safe and Sane" fireworks require the use of several safety precautions. Their use is limited to the hours of 10:00 AM to 10:00 PM on the 4th of July only, in the following City parks:

- 1. Alamo Creek Park (Dougherty Road and Willow Creek Drive)
- 2. Dublin Sports Grounds (Dublin Boulevard and Civic Plaza)
- 3. Emerald Glen Park (Tassajara Road and Gleason Drive)
- 4. Shannon Park (Shannon Avenue and San Ramon Valley Road)

Dublin property owners may use their "Safe and Sane" fireworks at any time during the sales period. No fireworks of any type (including "Safe and Sane") are permitted at Dublin multi-housing units or at any undesignated Dublin park, other City facility, or public school.

Those who purchase fireworks should keep the following precautions in

- · Always read and follow the safety directions.
- Never take fireworks apart to build your own fireworks.
- Never allow children to use fireworks without adult supervision.
- Only light one device at a time, and remain a safe distance away after lighting the device.

- Never try to re-light or handle "dud" fireworks (faulty and unexploded fireworks).
- Fireworks should always be used in safe, open areas and away from buildings, combustibles, dry vegetation, and, especially, people and animals.
- A connected garden hose should be ready nearby and a pail of water kept handy for disposal of spent fireworks and "duds."
- Pet owners should keep pets indoors on July 4, as many animals become extremely agitated by the sights and sounds of fireworks. Some of these pets will even run into the streets and away from home in an attempt to flee fireworks activity that is distressing to them.

Illegal fireworks, which explode in the air or move along the ground, pose an even higher threat this year due to the extremely dry conditions of the Dublin hillsides, where there is great potential for wildfires. Law enforcement and fire officials plan to be extra vigilant due to the dry winter and the drought conditions. Penalties for those caught selling or using these types of fireworks can include fines and jail time.

Cowboy Code Academy Team Wins Competition

In February of 2013, Livermore High School teacher Sue Johnston teamed up with some students to start the Livermore High School Cowboy Code Academy.

We were going to go to Kahn Academy or Code. org. We didn't have any particular goals in mind, so we started searching and we found the C-STEM robots." Says Johnston. Johnston is referring to the UC Davis Center for Integrated Computing and STEM Education (C-STEM).

UC Davis offered Johnston a fellowship to learn how to use the robots and the Cowboy Code Academy was

Students meet once a week to learn how to program robots, taking on different and more advanced challenges including programming the robots to dance, shoot a basket, raise as much weight as possible and more. The challenges present new coding opportunities, testing the students to be creative in the programming and work to solve the challenge. "It's a real thrill, to accomplish a task and get that sense of achievement...it is really fun," says Johnston.

On May 30th, a team of 13 students competed at UC Davis in the RoboPlay Challenge. This included a team of three, a team of four and a team of five. The team of five Livermore High students won the competition; two boys and three girls: Ajan Adriano, Steven Herman, Emma Kristovich. Christine Cummings, and Abigail Paterson. In addition to the team victory, club President Megan Kristovich won the C-STEM College Scholarship.

While the Cowboy Code team was traveling north to UC Davis to compete in the RoboPlay challenge, the first annual Innovation Fair was taking place at Livermore High School. This event was created and led by Livermore High School senior Kristen Young, who will be attending Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) this fall. The Innovation Fair created a space for young students to explore, hands-on, programming, coding and robotics

LVJUSD School Board of Education recently approved a new course that integrates robotics into the understanding of Algebra 1 skills and concepts. Algebra with Computing and Robotics (C-STEM) guides students through topics in Algebra 1 while simultaneously teaching students programming and computational thinking. This hands-on course was

Lab Joins CalCharge Consortium Effort

Through the public-private consortium CalCharge, energy storage companies will soon have streamlined access to three U.S. Department of Energy national labs in the Bay Area, giving them a major competitive advantage in the fast-growing battery industry.

CalCharge, which is designed to accelerate the development and deployment of energy storage technologies, lists the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory (LLNL) as its newest partner member. LLNL joins Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory and SLAC National Accelerator Laboratory, completing CalCharge's trifecta of national labs in the Bay Area.

"Lawrence Livermore offers cutting-edge expertise in materials, manufacturing and computation for application to energy storage solutions. Partnering with CalCharge creates a valuable new path for engagement with industry in this area, which is especially important to California's energy future," said LLNL Director Bill Goldstein.

The Lab's current energy storage research ranges from electromechanical batteries to 3D-printed graphene aerogels to lithium-based batteries with improved power densities and safety characteristics. Investors and innovators will have the opportunity to tour LLNL and learn more about its work at an open house in August.

Energy storage is considered key to the broad uptake of clean energy technologies throughout the economy, from transportation to the power sector to consumer electronics.

CalCharge and Lawrence Livermore are developing a standard cooperative research agreement that would allow CalCharge members access to Lawrence Livermore's scientists and facilities. The agreement, known as a Collaborative Research and Development Agreement (CRADA), would complement CalCharge CRADAs already in place with Lawrence Berkeley and SLAC National Accelerator Laboratory. The CRADA streamlines the process for industry looking to partner with the national laboratories.

The resources available at the three institutions could help spur dramatic improvements in advanced energy storage manufacturing.

CalCharge is a battery and electrochemical energy storage consortium that brings together emerging and established companies, academic and research institutions, government bodies, and financing sources to jumpstart a new era of energy storage technologies for the electric/ hybrid vehicle, grid, and consumer electronics markets. It operates as a wholly owned subsidiary of CalCEF Catalyst, a 501(c)(6) trade association, and is primarily funded by dues and contributions from members.

regional planning activities through collaboration with regions throughout California. With its diverse regional planning organizations representing California communities ranging from those small to large, urban to suburban, rural to agricultural, located in the north, south, central, coastal, mountain, and desert, it offers the ability to compare and contrast information and experiences in the effort to effectively plan within our own regions.

"Alameda County, with learn about and strengthen its multiple gateway corridors connecting the 9-county Bay Area region to the rest of the state and nation, is deeply affected by regional planning decisions. I look forward to working with CALCOG members to improve regional planning in a way that recognizes and values the diverse economic assets of our individual regions," Haggerty added.

key features of the graphs with robotics.

"We're moving towards STEM for all kids," says Principal Alberto Solorzano. "It is great to see dedicated teachers like Sue Johnston taking on creative projects to engage students and provide access to innovative opportunities.'

LVEF Funds Support School Programs

The Livermore Valley Education Foundation (LVEF) awarded a $74,500 grant to the Livermore Valley Joint Unified School District (LVJUSD). The grant will support the following programs:

Google Chromebook computers ($39,000): District high school students use Chromebooks for a variety of purposes, including research, collaboration, remote learning, and testing. The Chromebooks are critical to the District's mission of "making sure each student graduates with the skills needed to contribute and thrive in a changing world," according to LVJUSD Assistant Superintendent Cindy Alba. Del Valle, Granada, and Livermore High School will each receive 32 Chromebooks under this grant.

Shakespeare for Second Graders (up to $25,000): Each second grade class will receive ten 50-minute Shakespeare classes over the course of ten weeks, taught by two Teaching Artists from Shakespeare's Associates, Livermore's resident Shakespeare company. The program is designed to enhance the language arts curriculum by increasing language skills, encouraging the expression of ideas, developing imagination, and relating key themes in Shakespeare's works to the students' own lives. The program will be implemented District-wide in the fall, following a highly successful pilot at Joe Michell School this spring. "I am thrilled that we will be able to expand the Shakespeare's Associates program to all Second Grade classrooms!," said LVJUSD Superintendent Kelly Bowers. "This is an amazing opportunity to expose children to poetry and the performing arts, providing a new and special component to the second grade experience. The theater is close to my heart and I am very pleased to partner with LVEF to provide this opportunity to our students.'

Music Education ($10,000): LVEF will distribute $10,000 to the music programs at Joe Michell and Junction Avenue K-8 schools; Christensen, East Avenue, and Mendenhall middle schools; and Granada and Livermore high schools. Music education has been a high priority for LVEF since the organization's incep- will use the LVEF grant tion. The primary source of revenue for LVEF's music fund is Make Time for Music, a student showcase and fundraiser which LVEF sponsored this spring for the 22nd consecutive year.

Shooting Stars ($500): Established six years ago by a Livermore High School student, Shooting Stars is a cheerleading team for LHS special needs students. In addition to performing at pep rallies, basketball games, football games, and The Bankhead Theater, Shooting Stars has been featured in the Independent Newspaper, The Valley Times, Channel 30, KPIX Channel 5, and ABC News. Shooting Stars to purchase team shirts, sweats, shoes, sweatshirts, and trophies.

"I am delighted that LVEF will support our Shooting Stars cheer leading squad," said School Board Trustee Anne White. "The Shooting Stars have become fixtures on our high school campuses and true members of the school communities. I am grateful for our very special Livermore community which has embraced the Shooting Stars, their efforts and their successes. I applaud LVEF for joining in support of our Shooting Stars.

SHORT NOTES

Donate Blood

The American Red Cross urges eligible donors to give blood in the weeks surrounding Independence Day to help ensure a sufficient blood supply now and throughout the

Many summer activities, such as vacations and travel, cause frequent blood donors to be less available to give during the summer. However, hospital patients still depend on volunteer donors to receive lifesaving transfusions - the need for blood does not get a vacation.

To encourage more people to donate around Independence Day, all those who come out to donate blood July 2-6, 2015, will receive a Red Cross embroidered hat, while supplies

Donors of all blood types especially those with types O negative, A negative and B negative – are needed. To make an appointment to give blood, download the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age (16 with parental consent in some states), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Cook-Off Competitors

The City of Dublin will host its third annual "Ribs Cook-Off" at the Dublin Farmers'

Market on Thursday, July 9.

The City is seeking participants for this fun event, which will take place on "Dublin Cooks Night." Participants will need to bring their hot, cooked ribs to Emerald Glen Park by 6:30 PM. Judges will give points to chefs based on taste, tenderness, and appearance. The winner will receive a gift certificate to a Dublin restaurant of their choice.

For more information, please contact Shari Jackman at (925) 556-4555, or via e-mail at shari.jackman@dublin.ca.gov.

Nature Programsp

A Creek Walk will be led by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District ranger staff on Sat., June 27. Meet Ranger Darren Segur at 8 a.m.

at Sycamore Grove Park, 1051 Wetmore Rd.

Arroyo Del Valle was a little dry last year. Hopefully, it will still be flowing in late June. Join this walk along the creek and see how the plants and critters are adapting to the drought. This will be about a 2-mile walk on a flat, dirt trail. Wear comfortable shoes and bring water and a camera if you like.

Leaping Lizards is the topic for a Sun., June 28 program. Meet Ranger Dawn Soles at 10 a.m. at Sycamore Grove Park, 5049 Arroyo Rd.

Summer time is reptile time and some of our most easily seen reptiles are the lizards. Come learn about lizards found in our area as well as around the world. There will be live specimens to see. This program will be held entirely in the picnic area, so it's a great choice for those who would rather not walk far.

There is a $5 per vehicle parking fee at either entrance to Sycamore Grove Park. A $3 donation is requested to help support the programs unless other fees are specified. Participants may call 925-960-2400 for more information.

There's still space available for Tadpole Camps the week of July 13. These summer nature camps for ages 4 to 6 teach kids to use their five senses to learn about the plants and animals of Sycamore Grove Park. Activities include nature exploration, crafts and games. Camp is held from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; $180. Register online at www.larpd.org or by calling 925-373-5700.

Archer Futch Memorial Service

A memorial service for Archer Futch will be held in Livermore on Sat., July 11.

The service will take place at 10:00 a.m. at the Asbury United Methodist 4743 East Ave, Church, Livermore.

Archer, a long-time Livermore resident and activist, passed away on Saturday, May 16, 2015, in Columbus, GA, at the age

He moved to Livermore in 1959 to work at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory.

Archer was actively involved in local politics in Livermore where he served on the planning commission, the Zone 7 water district board, and the city council, including a period as mayor in the early 1970s. He was a member of the Sierra Club, and Friends of the Vine-

Memorial donations in memory of Archer can be made to the endowment of the Tri-Valley Conservancy, 1457 First Street, Livermore, CA 94550.

Sandra Kay Deines Resident of Livermore May 11, 1947-May 21, 2015

Fighting a rare acute kidney disease and well on her way to recovery, Sandra passed away unexpectedly May 21, 2015.

Her father moved from Southern California to Castro Valley in 1959. She graduated with the first graduating class of Canyon High School in Castro Valley in 1965. She continued her education at Chabot College in Hayward and had a forty year career in Dentistry.

Sandie is survived by her husband of 48 years, Jim, sons Rick and Dave, granddaughter Stefani, her mother Mary Geyer, brother Jim, nieces, nephews and cousins. She is preceded in death by her father Milo and brother Ken.

Sandie loved the ocean, enjoyed traveling, reading, being with her monthly sewing friends for forty plus years, and her swim pals at the Robert Livermore Community Center.

Friends and family are invited to her Memorial service on Tuesday, June 30, 2015 at 1 p.m. at Callaghan Mortuary, 3833 East Ave., Livermore.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the National Kidney Foundation, or a charity of choice.

Joanne Alice Kranovich Wilky

Joanne Alice Kranovich Wilky of Livermore, CA passed peacefully in her sleep at the age of eighty on Friday, June 12, 2015.

Joanne was born in Ruth, NV to Nick and Juanita Kranovich on March 6th, 1935. She married Robert Wilky on October 14th, 1953.

Joanne is survived by her daughter Jennifer Fortner and son Steve Wilky, 5 grandchildren, and 2 great grandchildren.

Services will be held at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church at 678 Enos Way in Livermore on Friday, June 26th, 2015 at 11:00am.

Ralph Luther Williams Jr.

July 11,1933 -June 1,2015 Our loving father, grandfather, great grandfather and friend, Ralph Luther Williams Jr., age 8 1 passed away on Monday,

June 1, 2015, in San Jose,

California. He was born on July 11,1933, in Grants, New Mexico, to Ralph Luther Williams Sr. and Avah Jane McGehee.

Always a storyteller, Ralph loved to share that he was born on an Indian Reservation in a chicken coop and grew up with bright red hair in a nontraditional family especially for the times. His father was a bricklayer and his mother a stay-at-home mom. He also had a much older half brother and halfsister. Ralph would later tell his own children how poor his "Okie" family was and that his thick accent almost impeded his attainment of his Master's Degree.

In 1952, Ralph graduated from Chaffey Union High School in Ontario, California, where he was active in the Drama Club and was a Master Counselor of the DeMolay organization. Following high school, he joined the Army Reserve and served as a Staff Sergeant in the Korean War. He received an Honorable Discharge in Ralph was the first person in his family to go to college. In 1959, Ralph received his Bachelor of Science degree from Oregon State College. He moved to Pleasanton in 1971. In 1973, he attained his Master of Science degree from California State University, Hayward. Ralph learned that education was a means to breaking the poverty cycle. He dedicated his life to helping children learn to love reading and learning.

A man of all trades, Ralph was an accomplished school teacher, reading specialist, vice-principal, and adjunct professor at Humboldt University. He was also a talented fisherman, artist, guitar player, rock climber, ham radio operator, race car driver, and master skier. In fact, he was a member of the Ski Patrol in Oregon during his younger years. Ralph was an outstanding example that one can attain and do anything if they put their mind to it. He did it all and he did it well. Ralph married Linda Jeanne Watson and had two daughters, Kim and Ronna. They later divorced. As a doting single dad, Ralph raised his daughters in a loving and supportive home.

Ralph married the love of his life, Patricia Crocker on August 19,1988. They were happily married and traveled the world together for 25 years. With their marriage, they became a combined family of 6 children, 17 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Preceded in death by his parents, wife Patricia Ann Learner Crocker Williams, granddaughter Rachel Crocker, and grandson Jacob

Survived by children Kim Toledo, Ronna Piazza (Jon), Michael Crocker, Cathleen Boterenbrood (Jack), Randall Crocker (Carolyn), and Stephen Cooper (Connie).

We will miss the sparkle that Ralph always had in his eyes, along with his good nature and quick wit.

Mary Eleanor Merch was born in Dayton Ohio on May 21, 1919. Her parents were Hungarian immigrants to the United States. Mary moved to Livermore in 1955 with her first husband Charles Reitz who had an assignment at the then Rad Lab. After the sudden death of her husband Charles in 1956, Mary set herself to the task of making a new life for herself and her three children, Barbara, Jim and Tom. She found a job at the Lab, purchased a new house, raised her three children and made many new friends. Mary worked at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory for 26 years as a Mechanical Technician and retired in 1982.

In 1963, Mary met Russ Owen, a good looking carpenter and former rancher from Minnesota. She was smitten by Russ, and they married in 1966. Along with Russ came three adult children, Sharon, Jim and Bill that Mary was glad to add to her list of children and enjoyed these new members of her extended family very

During her retirement years with Russ, Mary was very active with traveling, family, friends and volunteer work. She worked as a volunteer for the Livermore Chamber of Commerce and the VA Medical Center. Her volunteer work at the VA lasted for 14 years and she logged in over 4000 hours. She was also an active member of the Odd Fellows Lodge #219 in Livermore.

With the passing of her husband Russ in 1998, Mary began another phase of her life surrounded by her very supportive family and large group of friends. She volunteered at Friends of the Library for a few years and attended the LARPD exercise classes for seniors where she made some additional lasting friendships. Mary is survived by daughter Barbara Kennedy of Kennewick, Washington, sons Jim and Tom Reitz and daughter in law Karin Reitz of Livermore, 5 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren, stepchildren Jim Owen, Sharon Banks, Bill Owen and 4 step grandchildren. She is also survived by a brother, Fred Merch of Tipp City, Ohio. She was preceded in death by her first husband, Charles Reitz and second husband. Russell Owen.

A graveside service will be held at Memory Gardens in Livermore on Friday June 26, 2015 at 10:00 AM. A celebration of life will follow the graveside service at noon. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made to Hope Hospice at 6377 Clark Avenue, Suite 100. Dublin, CA 94568 in memory of Mary E. Owen.

Born in Omaha Nebraska, son of L. Heith and Berta Davies, he often said God blessed him with the best parents possible. Following graduation from San Leandro High he served in the US Navy construction battalion toward the end of the Korean War, then the Navy reserves until 1960. Accepting Jesus Christ at a young age, Dick's parents tried to steer him toward a profession in ministry, but he chose to help others through law enforcement and joined the Alameda County Sheriff's Department. Dick met his bride, Judy, while studying police science at San Jose Junior College, marrying her in 1957.

That same year Dick joined the Livermore Police Department. He served Livermore in many facets as a peace officer, including narcotics, detective, mounted patrol, sergeant, motorcycle, but his favorite was as a patrol officer. It was not unusual to be pulled over by Officer Davies for speeding, only to have him invite you to the races, or to ask you to pop your hood so he could admire your fine machinery. Dick was instrumental in starting a bicycle safety program, as well as defensive driving courses for city employees. Having put himself through the police academy as a rookie. he also helped to make it mandatory for Livermore officers to undergo basic training before it became a state requirement. Once described as the city's most durable cop, he was training officer, mentor and friend to many officers. Always honest and fair, he made a difference in the lives of many Livermore citizens, retiring in 1988 to a full squad salute. Dick often held multiple moonlight jobs simultaneously to support his family so it took him several years to complete his AA from Chabot College in Police Science. He liked that he was paid to drive fast legally as an ambulance driver while off duty. He also worked as a mechanic at International Auto Car specializing in race car maintenance which was more of a hobby than a job. In the 60's he partnered with a friend as a member of a pit crew for a race team called the Black Widows. Later he earned the nickname "Dastardly Dick" as a destruction derby driver. Following his police career, Dick worked as a court attendant for Alameda County and finally really retired in 2000. In retirement his favorite form of relaxation was boating, fishing, watching NASCAR and the Oakland A's. Dick was a devoted husband and father. His family knew they were his priority. He always made time for them and enjoyed their company, as well as that of his many friends.

Nottingham Marks Five Years of Supremacy

When Collin Cranor was still a kid, barely of drinking age and already helping craft Satyr's Pond wines, he dreamed of making a high-end blend. Seems like forever ago, but all of a sudden, Collin and his family are marking the 5th anniversary of Nottingham Cellar's flagship Bordeaux Blend, Supremacy.

It began in 2007, when Jeff Cranor, Collin's Dad, first sourced Cabernet Sauvignon and other varieties from the Del Arroyo Vineyard in the Livermore Valley. Impressed, they acquired five Bordeaux reds from several Livermore vineyards to craft a Satyrs' Pond Meritage. When they split from Satyrs' Pond just after the 2008 harvest, Collin and Jeff knew their flagship wine for their newly launched Nottingham Cellars had to be a Bordeaux blend. It is more than fitting that Collin himself came up with the absolutely appropriate name, Supremacy,

From the outset, Cranor set out to create a "Left-Bank" style blend, meaning heavy on the Cabernet Sauvignon, light on the Merlot. Beginning with the 2008 vintage, it was 61% Cabernet Sauvignon, 14% Merlot, 11% Petit Verdot, 7% Cabernet Franc and 7% Malbec, all from Del Arroyo. We tasted it recently and it was showing like a champ, exuding its Cab Sauv chops, bristling with grilled chile peppers, tobacco and saucy ground black pepper dust. The core is smooth silky raspberry and chocolate, with an entirely fabulous finish. At only 7 years old, this one will be flying at its peak about 2030. The current price for the limited library stock is $150 per bottle.

Each year, they've fine-tuned the blend in the vineyard by working more closely with their chosen vineyard partners. Collin admits that when Supremacy first launched, finding decent Malbec and Merlot presented a big challenge. He also says that he really didn't feel as though he was making "good enough" Petit Verdot or Cabernet Franc until 2011. At this point, he is really stoked about having better components, enabling him to put together blends that better represent both the vintage and the Livermore Valley.

At this point, Cranor says that both Casa De Vinas and Smith Ranch will continue to provide the essential backbone of the wine: however, he will be trialing three new Cabernet Sauvignon vineyards in 2015, along with two new sources for Cabernet Franc, a new Malbec vineyard as well as a new Petit Verdot vineyard. There's no stopping this juggernaut.

Tasting through the five-year vertical of Supremacy, you can easily see the progress he's made year to year. That's not to say that any of them are more or less worthy or interesting than the next. Age is a friend of wines like this: the longer you let them sit, the better off your experience of them will be. Since they all come in around 14.5%, they're not too hot to erode their aging potential. However, these aren't 30-year wines: I'd give them 15 to 20.

The 2009 seemed to be experiencing a "time out" when we tasted it. Wines can do that. They behave like teenagers, locking themselves in their rooms, refusing to come out. Consequently, the aromas were quite muted, restrained and closed, although you could detect the outlines of its cherry cola core. In another month or so, it will probably be back swinging for the fences.

More of a player at the moment, the 2010 is heavy on Cab Sauv with a bit more Petit Verdot, and equal parts, 8% each, of Cab Franc and Merlot. The aromatics are lovely, with black raspberry and balsam predominating. On the palate, the supple, gorgeous texture is deftly wrapped with black raspberry, cedar and spice, with a finish that pings back and forth, much like an echo, for a considerable period. Snag some for $125. This one has miles to go.

My favorite of the lot at this time is the 2011, which is tasting just fabulous, as the Cabernet Franc has the floor at the moment. This wine comes from the following vineyards: Cabernet Sauvignon: Casa De Vinas, Smith Ranch, Ghielmetti Vineyard; Cabernet Franc: Ghielmetti Vineyard; Malbec: Corvino Bosco; Merlot: Triska Crane Ridge; and Petit Verdot: Ghielmetti Vineyard Still showing its youth, the aromas are redolent of barrel, with caramel, toast and coffee taking center stage. Intense, focused and energetic, this wine invades the palate, practically exploding in the mouth with the full force of its well-toned muscular tannins. Eternally grippy, this is a 20 to 30 year wine, if you have the patience for it. A wise investment for $65.

The 2012 will officially be released in July at $80 per bottle. It regales your nose with its considerable barrel aromas, including raspberry brulee and toasted coconut. This is very Cabernet dominant, heaped with gorgeous tobacco and super smooth cherry, with lush cocoa and coffee powder on the finish. Don't miss it, as this definitely will fly out Clearly, these wines are the product of a studied approach. Collin succinctly states, "You can't fake it at the end. The process starts with good vineyard sourcing." There is only one chance to get it right each year.

Asked how his approach to working with vineyard managers has changed as a result of making this wine, Collin comments that he has come to understand how to achieve the best grapes from the handful of people who are willing to deliver premium grapes at harvest.

Notes Cranor, "When you talk about lowering yields with growers, the price goes up. We understand this. Each acre has to generate x number of dollars. The frustrating thing is when we agree to pay more for better, and the grower just crops out the vineyard like a production site. It works once, but we never come back. Our best sites are locked in and we just produce more from those vineyards/growers."

Asked what the one piece of advice he would give to up and coming winemakers, ue says simply, "Get good fruit. Keep your winery, tools and barrels clean. Respect the winemaking process. The blending process starts the day you pick the grapes. Understanding your components early gives you tremendous perspective when it comes time to make that final call. It is about getting full value out of your investment. A lot of time, effort, sweat, tears, and dollars go into making great wine. If you respect the process, you give yourself a better chance to produce wines that you will be proud of.

With the current offering of Livermore Valley Bordeaux blends, including Supremacy and Steven Mirassou's Lineage, Livermore has much to be proud of, indeed.

to know whether the Zone 7 maps showing areas of high concentrations of nitrates were correct. Samples in the same area can vary widely. Without enough samples, it might not be a fair assessment, they said. As a result, a landowner would have to install an expensive new or more complicated septic system, when one might not really be needed.

Also, some saw language of the plan as adding another layer of requirements to rural development. It looked to them as if both Zone 7 and county health were going to be setting requirements.

However, at meetings, staff made it clear that while Zone 7 can recommend policies to county health, it will not set requirements. That will be up to county health, as will enforcement.

Zone 7 director Jim Mc-Grail, who owns a vineyard in rural Livermore, delayed action on the plan at the board's Feb. 18 meetings, so that he and his neighbors could learn more about how it would work. Most directors had no objections to the plan, but they supported the requested delay.

McGrail said he was now ready to vote for it. However, he said that one thing "did stick in my craw." It was the word "permitting."

McGrail said he understood that Zone 7 would only recommend actions to the county, but he doesn't want anyone to get the idea that both Zone 7 and the county would serve as permitting agencies. That would be a double burden on property owners, he said.

This time, McGrail voted for the NMP, because the approval makes Zone 7 eligible for grant money. With the money, Zone 7 can study the "nitrate hot spots" around the Valley, and learn more about their exact location and depth. He said Zone 7 staff does excellent work, but needs more tools to better define the problem.

"I don't want to see these hot spots stymie agriculture in rural Livermore," he said. Without accurate knowledge, Zone 7 recommendations could unnecessarily wind up keeping farmers or others out of those areas, he said.

McGrail said that Greenville Road will be the first hot spot to be studied. General manager Jill Duerig said work on the study will begin this summer, with at least one of two interns able to devote time to it.

Director Angela Ramirez Holmes said that she would have liked more transparency around the issue. Although rural residents attended meetings earlier this year, they were not informed of subsequent meetings, she said. "They did not receive any mail telling them that we were going to adopt this,' she said. "We know they still have concerns. They called me," said Ramirez Holmes.

Director Dick Quigley said that there have been discussions about the plan. "This has been on that table. It has been truly noticed,'

DISTRICT ASKS ZONE 7 FOR WATER

Bethany Byron Irrigation District (BBID) has asked Zone 7 for water. BBID has been supplying water to Zone 7 in various years over the past two decades.

The item did not call for action. If was provided as an alert to the board.

BBID, a pre-1914 Act water district, has been exempt from later laws concerning water quotas. It draws its water directly from the Delta, and has never had limits on the amount it could take. Now that the state is severely restricting such districts, BBID is suing the state, because it will have trouble meeting farmers' needs.

It is not very likely that the federal authorities will agree to a deal to give BBID water, said Duerig. If the deal does occur, BBID has offered to pay the water back to Zone 7 over a three year period, at a payback ratio of 1.5 acre feet for every 1 acre foot borrowed.

Duerig said that Zone 7 is able to make water available. At latest report from Zone 7, retailers who are continuing strong conservation efforts. Zone 7 should have an extra 14,000 acre feet this year. Getting paid back at a higher rate would be useful for future water storage, said Duerig.

BBID has been a sort of "sister organization," said director Bill Stevens, who added he would feel guilty taking back more water than would be given to BBID.

FOUNDATION CRACKS' REPORT IS READY

Directors were given a 38-page report from a consultant about soils movement and their effect on buildings' foundations. The report, which was included the meeting packets and available on the Zone 7 web page, was not discussed. It is in response to Pleasanton homeowners, who asked Zone 7 several months ago whether nearby production and injection wells were having an effect on the soils where they live.

Several homeowners reported expensive foundation correction work. Zone 7 has said in the past that it's likely the kinds of clay soils in Pleasanton along Santa Rita Road may be the cause, not the wells.

The report talks about quake fault creep and the behavior of soils and various factors that cause them to shrink or expand, which could produce the soil movements that homeowners are concerned about.

These Educators at the school need to get educated! Come into the 21st Century and realize that Rodeo equals Cruelty to Animals. The article says-helps to defend against bullying. That's a lot of Bull. Rodeo is Bullying. Why not teach kids what the real way to interact with animals is and how a good relationship with animals leads to good relationship with humans?

Not Affordable John Stein Livermore

I enjoyed the creativity and optimism in the recent letter written by Heather Quinkerk supporting Livermore's proposed rezoning of the Sunset Office Plaza. I would like to offer the following clarifications.

Based upon the size and type of homes being proposed the starting price will likely be well over $800,000 per unit. I am not sure that defines a first time buyer. While the City requires a certain percentage of the homes be affordable, recently the requirement has been met by in lieu cash payments.

The Sunset Plaza was completed in 1979 and therefore is not over 40 years old. However many of the suggested alternative store fronts and converted single family homes are well over 60 years old.

The old Nob Hill Plaza

on Pacific Avenue would be a good location for a new office plaza, but, it is current General Planned and zone for mixed use. That is multistory residential with small shops on the first floor and limited parking. For it to become offices would require a General Plan change, rezoning, an interested developer and agreement of the property owner. Recently an application has been filed to upgrade the site for a new supermarket. I am not sure how "easily it could become a new office plaza".

Like the lobster in the pot of cold water with a fire under it, I am not sure exactly when the appearance and character of a community changes. Is it when low intensity commercial and vacant land is filled with housing like Brighton or Sunset Financial Center or when the downtown is filled with high rise apartments and condos? Is it when thousands of new residents suddenly arrive? Is it when we keep adding homes without planning for new roads, schools, libraries, churches, supermarkets and water supplies? The question is, as always, what is the amount, type and rate of growth Livermore can accommodate before turning into another San Jose or Oakland.

While the loss of Sunset Plaza offices will require thousands of people to travel hundreds more miles per year to access services, it is not be the end of the world. It will just make South Livermore and the entire City just a little less desirable place to live.

Emmy Awarded for Movie about Ray Guy: 'Destined for Canton'

By Carol Graham

JR Romero admits he was less surprised than his daughter had been to learn of her Emmy nomination for a Raiders Report special she'd produced titled "Destined for Canton."

"It had been a quest she had been on since she started working for Silver and Black Productions," said the Livermore resident of daughter Jessica Romero. "She was so determined, I knew it was only a matter of time.'

His confidence was wellplaced. On June 6th, Jessica and her team earned a 2015 Northern California Area Emmy Award for Outstanding Achievement: Arts/ Entertainment-Program/ Special at the 44th Northern California Area Emmy Awards Gala in San Francisco.

When she heard the winner announced, "I remained seated for a moment because I didn't realize they had named our show," said Jessica. "I kind of floated down to the podium to accept the award with my heart pounding through my chest. I was so happy and surprised at what was happening, it was kind of a blur."

It's an understandable reaction, especially for a 27-year-old in only her third season working full-time for Silver and Black Productions, the Oakland Raiders' in-house television production operation devoted to providing viewers with behind-the-scenes content.

"Destined for Canton" is a half-hour special that tells the story of punter Ray Guy's 2014 induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

"Ray Guy made history when he became the first pure punter to be inducted last year," said Jessica. "Our team was hoping he would finally make it in after being up for the honor numerous years and not making the cut. We knew it would be an awesome story to share with viewers and Raider Nation."

Although Jessica's official role is producer, the 2011 San Francisco State University graduate also writes, edits and conducts interviews.

"I wear a lot of hats," she said, adding that on the sixmember production team, she is the only woman. "I feel fortunate because I have a supportive team, and they give me a lot of freedom to develop my ideas for a story after we've decided on the subject matter. However, I do put a lot of pressure on myself to perform at my highest possible level knowing that I am competing in a male-dominated sports industry.'

Yet it is a world Jessica grew up with. JR's family moved to the Bay Area in the late '60s, when he was seven years old. "It was the same year the Oakland Coliseum opened," he recalled. "All of my family have been Raiders fans since then.'

While JR may not have been as surprised about Jes-sica's success as she was, he was every bit as excited.

"My wife and I were ecstatic," said JR, who in July will step up as the Livermore Rotary Club president. "We had an Emmy party at my sister's house with siblings, grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins and friends in attendance. The house was dinner, cake, and a viewing of the winning show. Everyone was taking pictures with Jessica and the Emmy. Everyone is so proud of her."

> Jessica's Emmy now sits on a desk in her Oakland apartment. "I often glance at it and am still processing that my team earned such an honor," she said. "It's pretty surreal. "Destined for Canton" is aired on Comcast SportsNet California, and can be decorated in silver and black stars and balloons. We had

"I hope viewers, especially those who are passionate about football, really grasp what a special thing Ray Guy did for the sport while representing one of the most storied franchises in the NFL, the Raiders," said Jessica. "He introduced concepts like hang time and positional punting, and set the standard for punters today. He made people realize the impact a punter could have on the game."

It is not unlike the impact of a determined young filmmaker who shared an inspirational story, and made her own dream come true.

As You Like It, Sense and Sensibility Performances Set

Productions of As You Like It by William Shakespeare, and Jane Austen's Sense and Sensibility, adapted by Jon Jory, will be presented by Shakespeare's Associates Livermore Shakespeare Festival this summer.

Lisa A. Tromovitch directs As You Like It and Jennifer Le Blanc directs Sense and Sensibility.

As You Like It is the play known for the famous line "All the world's a stage," two cousins, raised as sisters, prove the power of their love for each other by running away from an oppressive father and regime. In a forest made magical by love, passions are ignited as the rules of society are softened to fit the natural world.

As the artifice of society is worn away, that which is truly important becomes clear, and each character finds their own path to happiness: the fathers, the lovers, and even the clowns.

Joe DeRose and Amici

Livermore Library Presents Jazz in July

Jazz in July, an annual Livermore tradition, once again takes over the Civic Center Library for four programs by top jazz artists. All programs are on Sundays at 2pm at the Civic Center Library, 1188 South Livermore Avenue, Livermore.

There is no admission charge. The series is underwritten by the Friends of the Livermore Library. No reservations are required. Parking and seats are limited.

This year's lineup:

July 5: Dave Rocha's Hardbop Quintet kicks off Jazz in July

Dave Rocha has been performing with his jazz group for more than 20 years. He has played in a number of major cities, including New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

His band plays an eclectic mix of jazz standards (by Miles Davis, Wayne Shorter, John Coltrane, etc.) "pop" tunes (Cole Porter, Gershwin and Jobim) and original compositions. This covers a wide variety of styles from up-tempo bebop, "modal" tunes, swing and blues, to Latin jazz, ballads and jazz waltz.

In addition to his trumpet expertise, Rocha is also an accomplished flugelhorn player. This instrument is similar to the trumpet, but has a larger bell, which gives it a darker, mellower sound.

Dave Rocha's band members include Tod Dickow on tenor sax, Keith Saunders on keyboard, Chuck Bennett on bass and Akira Tana on drums.

July 12: Lee Waterman and Jazz Caliente

Jazz Caliente consists of an all-star ensemble whose members have appeared with a Who's Who of musical luminaries including: Tito Puente, Whitney Houston, Eddie Palmieri, Linda Ronstadt, Michael Bolton, Madonna, Jon Faddis, Tom Scott, Pete Escovedo, Sheila E, John Santos, Armando Peraza, and the Harlem Jazz Orchestra.

Band members include Lee Waterman (guitars), Melecio Magdaluyo (sax and flute, Javier Navarrette (percussion), Tommy Kesecker (vibraphone), Bill Lanphier (bass), and Bill Belasco (drums). All the band members are terrific ensemble players and exciting soloists. Don't miss this opportunity to see these world class artists perform in an intimate setting.

Jazz Caliente focuses on Afro-Cuban and Brazilian rhythms. Lee Waterman founded the band in 1989 as a vehicle for his original compositions and his unique arrangements of songs by the great Jazz and Latin masters, including Miles Davis, Duke Ellington, Tito Puente, and Sergio Mendes. For more information about Jazz Caliente, visit their website at www. leewatermanproductions. com.

July 19: Joe DeRose and Amici

Born in San Jose, California, Joe has been playing the drums since the age of five. He was first taught at home by his older brother Gino. He later became active playing in school bands and this is where his first love for jazz began. He received a scholarship to attend the Stanford Jazz workshop and then became a member of the Alum Rock Jazz Band (1988). At the age 14, Joe began playing professionally around the San Francisco bay area. He has had the honor of studying with such greats as Louie Bellson, Joe Porcaro, Freddie Grubber, Wally Schnalle, Bryant Mills, Karl Carter, John Ramsay, Rick Considine, Lewis Nash, Kenwood Denard, Mike Mangini and many others.

Joe is now the leader of his own Jazz-Fusion group, Joe DeRose and Amici. It was in 2010 that they recorded their debut CD, Sounds for the Soul. They performed their CD release at the prestigious Yoshi's Jazz club in Oakland and performed their south bay CD release at The Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa

Pamela Rose

Cruz. Their latest release Peace Streets was up for a Grammy this year. This band consists of Hristo Vitchev on guitar, Dan Robbins on Bass, Murray Low on Keys, and Dann Zinn on sax. They recently performed at The 2013 San Jose Jazz Summer Festival.

"Joe De Rose and Amici take old school fusion and move it into the next millennium with Peace Streets. Joe De Rose swings like a beast, a lyrical drummer with the intensity of a Billy Cobham and the deft touch of a Max Roach. The harmonious synergy captured here is mind blowing. I grew up on fusion, this is better. Joe De Rose and Amici get it right. This is as close to perfect as one can get!" (Brent Black, Critical Jazz).

July 26: Pamela Rose--Hammond Organ Party!

Pamela Rose is a San Francisco jazz and blues vocalist who has thrilled audiences locally and internationally with her swinging, soulful style. Rose is that rare breed of entertainer who connects solidly with her audience by always delivering a personal and unforgettable musical experience. Her rich, warm voice and easy rapport with excellent musicians moves jazz and blues audiences of all ages.

Originally from Southern California, Rose attended UC Berkeley and quickly met up with Hammond B-3 organist Merl Saunders, who took her on tour in 1977. This experience helped to define the strong passions that keep music fresh for Pamela today: writing and developing songs which are personal to her, a strong love for improvisation and spontaneity that comes with performing live, and a crazy adoration for the soulful sounds of Hammond B-3 organ.

Pamela Rose has teamed up with Hammond B-3 wizard Wayne De La Cruz to create an album that jazz and blues enthusiasts are already calling a classic. Hammond Organ Party! is an inexplicably rare encounter between a soul-drenched singer and a prodigious jazz organist. Loose and limber, moving and grooving, the album feels like a Saturday night celebration, with Rose and her top-shelf cast romping through swinging jazz standards, blues hits, and R&B classics.

A romantic tale, set in Regency England, Sense and Sensibility still "holds the mirror up to nature" as women and men relegated to rigid societal roles struggle to balance propriety with desire. Perhaps because the story is set in a time and place where society's rules are so clearcut, it is easier to appreciate the predicaments we still find ourselves in today.

Two sisters express their passion in wildly divergent ways, while miscommunications fueled by gossip threaten their happiness. The play is ased on Jane Austen's novel.

Performances will be on the following schedule: July 2 – August 2, 2015 Preview of Sense and Sensibility on July 2, Sense and Sensibility Opening Night Performance on July 3rd. Sense and Sensibility performances are July 5, 9, 10, 11, 12, 18 and 19 with a Family Night performance on Thursday, July 2nd. The Benefit Gala, Auction and Performance of Sense and Sensibility will be held on Saturday, July 11th at 5:00 PM with the performance at

8PM. Preview of As You Like It will be on July 16, with performances of As You Like It on July 17, 23, 24, 25, 26, 30, 31 August 1, 2 with a Family Night performance on Thursday, July 16th.

All performances begin at 7:30PM with the exception of the Benefit Performance of Sense and Sensibility on Saturday, July 11 at 8PM.

All shows will be held at Wente Vineyards Estate Winery & Tasting Room, 5565 Tesla Road, Livermore.

Tickets are $50- $25; benefit performance with dinner and auction on July 11th $125; Livermore Shakes Family Night (Sense and Sensibility) on July 2nd (As You Like It) on July 16th; Family Night Kids Tickets $5; Pre-Show Buffet available for $49/person added to price of show

Matt Finders and Element 116 Along with Trombonist Spencer Sussman to Jazz Up 'Evenings on the Green'

Matt Finders & his Element 116 jazz band, and trombonist Spencer Sussman are the featured groups on Tuesday, June 30 at "Evenings on the Green." The events begins at 6:45

The family-friendly free concert series is sponsored by the Livermore Cultural Arts Council and the Livermore Valley Performing Arts Center. This series is presented on the Shea Homes Stage in front of the Bankhead Theater, 2400 First Street in downtown Livermore.

Livermore native Matt Finders, a bassist and composer/arranger, spent 17 years as a trombonist with the Tonight Show as pat of the Jay Leno Band. Matt has directed the jazz programs at Mendenhall and East Avenue Middle Schools and founded the Jazz Lab Music Camps.

Matt relocated to Livermore in 2013 and is dedicated to helping grow a iazz culture in the Tri-Valley. Matt formed Element 116, a Livermore-based school band that plays jazz and big band tunes. Element 116 has been seen at all the Livermorium

Element 116

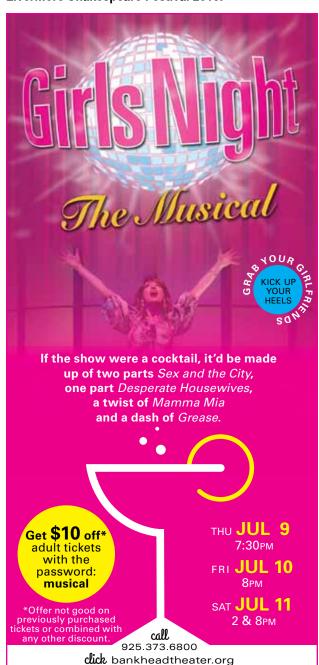

Celebrations.

Spencer Sussman (tenor and bass trombonist, composer/arranger, and educator) has entertained audiences from the warm beaches of Costa Rica to major Los Angeles music venues. He is pursuing a master's degree in jazz studies at San Jose State University, studying under the expertise of Scott Whitfield, Thomas Hornig, and Grammy Award winner Aaron Lington. He currently lives in the Bay Area where he performs, composes, arranges, records, and teaches trombone lessons.

Next Tuesday, "Evenings on the Green" continues with One Mile featuring Jeff Mirocha on guitar, playing hits by singers and song writers from the 60's and onward.

Special Exhibit Opens for Viewing

Sunnyside

As a special Summer Exhibit, the Harrington Gallery and the Firehouse Arts Center present the abstract paintings of San Francisco artist Janet Seifert. The 15 painting installation is located in the Grand Atrium exhibition spaces.

Open through July 18, the public is invited to explore and enjoy the exhibit during Firehouse open hours: Wednesday through Saturday, 12:00-5:00 p.m., Saturday 11:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m. The Firehouse Arts Center is located in beautiful downtown Pleasanton at 4444 Railroad Avenue. Admission is free.

The artist will conduct a painting demonstration and discussion on Friday, July 17, from 1:00-3:00 pm in the lobby exhibition area. Public is invited to attend, and the suggested donation for the session is $5. Free parking is available in the Firehouse Arts Center lot with entrance on Spring Street.

With her studio in the SOMA Studios, 689 Bryant Street in San Francisco, Seifert has exhibited at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art (SFMOMA) among other prestigious venues. She describes her work as landscapes of the imagination. According to Harrington Gallery Director Julie Finegan, Seifert uses "gestural brushwork to create spontaneous compositions, and capture the essence of a moment in time."

Seifert says of her work, "This series of paintings is based on abstract improvisation, a spontaneous yet contemplative approach to painterly expression born of abstract expressionism. The technique uses the flowing elegance of fluid pigment to create intuitive, original compositions that embody the freshness of passing experience. It's alchemy of a certain sort, working with intuition and materials in a way that have no certain outcome. For me the process is a journey into the mysteries of creativity."

For more information, contact Gallery Director: JFinegan@cityofpleasantonca.gov, or call the gallery: 925-931-4849.

Spend An Evening with Laura Ingalls Wilder at the Firehouse Arts Center

The name Laura Ingalls Wilder is synonymous with settler life in the 1800s and life in a simpler time. Museum on Main in Pleasanton welcomes historical actress Judith Helton as the 1800s author of the Little House book series in "An Evening with Laura Ingalls Wilder" at the Firehouse Arts Center on Tuesday, July 14th at 7pm in the evening.

Born in 1867, the name Laura Ingalls Wilder brings to mind life in the big woods, in a little house on the prairie, and on the banks of plum creek. The American author's books have spanned generations, taught us about pioneer life, and inspired the 1970s-1980s television show Little House on the Prairie. Judith Helton portrays Wilder in this onewoman program presented by arrangement with the Little House Heritage Trust.

All events are general seating at the Firehouse Arts Center, 4444 Railroad Avenue, Pleasanton, CA 94566. Tickets are $10 General Admission, $7 Seniors (65+)/Students (with valid ID), $5 Members. Tickets may be purchased online at www. museumonmain.org, at Museum on Main during regular operating hours or by phoning the museum at (925) 462-2766.

Tickets purchased by phone and online will be available for pick up at Will Call in the lobby of the Firehouse Arts Center on the evening of the event. Tickets may be available at the event subject to availability. Cash, check, Visa and Master-Card accepted.

For more information on the Ed Kinney Speakers Series visit www.museumonmain.org or phone Museum on Main at (925) 462-2766.

Bilingual Storytellers to Present Program in Livermore

The Livermore Public Library will present Cascada de Flores bilingual storytellers on Wednesday, July 1, 2015 at 2:30pm at the Rincon Branch Library, located at 725 Rincon Ave., Livermore. Cascada de Flores is one of a variety of free performances offered during the library's 2015 Summer Reading Program.

"The Tree and the Donkey Who Loved to Sing," a bilingual and participatory story, features the song, ancient musical instruments, poly-rhythms and sweet characters of Mexican music and dance. In this bilingual family program, viewers will meet the donkey and its jawbone, the abuelito and the vulture, the owl and the iguana, and the instruments that come from the tree. Children and their families are invited to sing, dance and play to the beautiful traditional songs and dances.

This free performance, sponsored by the Friends of the Library, will be held outside, with the audience to be seated on tarps. Attendees are encouraged to arrive early for best parking and viewing opportunities and to bring appropriate sun gear. Summer Reading Programs are geared toward children ages 4 and older.

The Livermore Public Library's Summer Reading Program is a free program featuring special events and prizes for all ages. Scheduled programs throughout the summer include storytimes, crafts, music concerts, puppetry, storytellers and a wildlife presentation.

For further information, pick up a 2015 Summer Reading Program calendar of events at any of the library's three locations, check online at www.livermorelibrary.net, or call 925-373-5504.

Unanimous Superior Ratings for LHS Orchestra, Symphonic Band

Both the Livermore High School Orchestra and Symphonic Band received unanimous Superior ratings at the California Association for Music, Bay Section Festival. Unanimous Superior is the highest possible rating for a band or orchestra.

Livermore High School competed with musicians from around the Bay Area. The students are judged on their performance of several prepared musical selections. The bands/orchestras are then presented a piece of music to sight read and perform for the judges after three to four minutes of review. Livermore High School Orchestra and Symphonic Band received a superior rating on both parts of the judging resulting in the overall Unanimous Superior rating.

Livermore and Granada High School bands perform in the community and at festivals upwards of 20 times per year including at football games, concerts, competitions in the fall, festivals in the spring, graduation ceremonies, and the Livermore Rodeo Parade.

"We have awesome students and the community is amazing, always supporting us whole heartedly," says Dean McNair, Livermore High School music teacher and band director, "Our students are the best, and I am extremely proud of all of them."

WINE COUNTRY

By Harry Stoll

The road less traveled: Finding white blends

Purists no doubt have good reason for wanting 100% of a varietal in their glass. I prefer blends. Red blends are long established, now white blends are making their mark. Valley wineries often include some varietals that are not commonly found in the Livermore Valley.

Seeking white blends, we left 680 at Bernal Avenue to go south on Sunol Blvd. between two branches of the Union Pacific Railroad. Shortly after they crossed in a shallow X there was Verona Road. Because former girlfriend Ghislaine was beside me, I decided to revisit the balcony scene. The map had a funny mark on it, but you know maps. We came to a bridge with a post in the middle of the road. Hah! I maneuvered around it, but at the far end: a barricade. We paused to enjoy the silence of the rush of the blue streak running deep below. Arroyo de la Laguna. Fun to say, and appropriate for the overused "awesome." I Marjorie Dawed back. Warning: Amateur driver on a closed bridge. Do not try this on the road.

At Elliston Winery, I asked for a spin with Danse de Blanc, but she hadn't saved the last dance for me. Shucks. She'll be back next year. Sign her dance card in advance and go try it.

We drove on Vallecitos Road to Tenuta Vineyards. Rich Rollins, officially the director of operations, but de facto director of fun, said, "Give us 30 minutes and we'll be friends for life." The tasting room does rock, with plenty of laughter and a wall covered with rather racy paintings. Hey come on, it's art. Rich pointed out that owner Nancy Tenuta is one of a very few women winemakers in the valley. We had a tight schedule so couldn't stay long. "Give us three minutes and we'll be friends for life," said Rich as we parted. Here are two white blends from Tenuta:

Multi Vintage Tenuta Vineyards Duet Livermore Valley ($25). This is smooth with a bountiful aroma. The label states it's Chardonnay and an aromatic varietal, which no doubt is Viognier. Has an almost hardy substance and the mere 5% of Viognier lights up your life. Turkey san with thick slices of cranberry for this baby.

2014 Tenuta Vineyards Aria Livermore Valley ($25). An intriguing blend of 60% Pinot Grigio, 30% Sauvignon Blanc and 10% French Columbard. By the pool, on the patio, sitting on the back porch, or on the deck or veranda, it's right for a light repast right now. Light and crisp, and the traditionally somewhat sweet Columbard does not cloy.

We drove the long way back to Vallecitos Road because that's what we do. We went through vineyards and passed large yellowish houses with red tile roofs on large lots. We went this-away and that-away and arrived at Pat Paulsen Vineyards. Pat's son Monty is now the owner/ winemaker and deserves several adjectives, including, but not limited to, gracious and informed. "He's the real deal," said Ghisliane. Here is one of his creations.

Multi Vintage Pat Paulsen Vineyards American Gothic White ($20) Pat Paulsen Vineyards first launched American Gothic Red in the mid 1980s, to great fanfare and acclaim. Now it has a companion white wine. The label depicts Jane and Pat Paulsen, standing in front of the Pat Paulsen Vineyards tasting room in Asti, California, a la the classic American painting by Grant Wood.

The wine is a dry white blend of premium Californian varietals, with typical California fruitiness. Soft enough to drink on its own, yet with enough backbone to go well with a meal. The wine is 100% Lake County Sauvignon Blanc. It's crisp and smooth. I brought a bottle home to Puget Sound and really dug Geoduck (pronounced gooeyduck) clams for chowder, for a pairing.

The label points out that Jane and Pat came from the Dust Bowl to California after losing their pork belly farm.

It also says it goes with chitlins biscuits and gravy. I say it goes with jambalya and a crawfish pie me oh mio.

Now it's rising on Tesla Road to BoaVentura where we stood still will looking at the view as we appreciated the unique blend.

BoaVentura White Wine Alameda and San Joaquin counties. ($24). This intriguing mixture of 42% Albarino Mokelumne River, 38% Albarino Livermore Valley Las Positas College Vineyard, 18% Sauvignon Blanc Livermore Valley, and 2% Orange Muscat, Livermore Valley floats you on a whole raft of flavors, providing an overall balance. It was fermented in steel tanks, giving it a bit of minerality for a clean, crisp hit with a bit of citrus, peach, to dance the mango, dance the dance of love. For me, it was a salade Nicoise in the shady backyard when it was summer and the living was easy. Another good choice was crab cakes and a dip of Greek yogurt and lavender blue and dill.

Sip and Shop During Pleasanton's Annual Summer Wine Stroll

Over 30 downtown locations will become tasting rooms on Saturday, July 18th from 5-8 p.m. for Pleasanton's Annual Summer Wine.

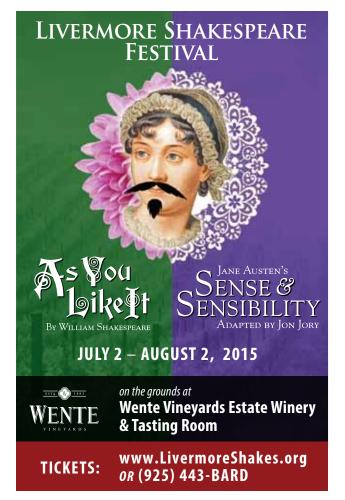

This year, musicians will entertain up and down Main Street. Participants will discover downtown businesses, listen to live music, taste a variety of local wines and small bites. In addition, each guest will receive a commemorative wine glass and event map.

Presale tickets are available for $35 online at PleasantonDowntown.net and also at Redcoats located at 336 St. Mary Street and at the Rose Hotel located at 807 Main Street. Friday, July 10, tickets will be available for $40. If not sold out, remaining tickets will be available for purchase on the day of the event beginning at 4:30 p.m. for $45 (cash only) at the event starting location – the Firehouse Arts Center at 4444 Railroad Avenue. Tickets must be redeemed on July 18 from 4:30-7 p.m. at the Firehouse Arts Center.

A variety of wine will be offered by BoaVentura de Caires Winery, Boisset Wine Living, Ehrenberg Cellars, Elliston Vineyards, Enoteca Five, Garré Vineyard and Winery, Fenestra Winery, Little Valley Winery, Mitchell Katz Winery, Murrieta's Well, New Leaf Community Markets, The Honey Wine Company, The Mead Kitchen, Treasure Island Wines, Wente Vineyards, Winemakers Studio and more.

The Pleasanton Downtown Association will be selling a limited number of designated driver tickets the night of the event for $10 cash. Event is rain or shine, no refunds. The PDA is not responsible for lost, misplaced or stolen tickets.

ValleyCare Auxiliary Awards Scholarships to Local Students

The ValleyCare Auxiliary conferred a total of six $4,000 scholarships, one $1,000 scholarship and one $500 scholarship at the Auxiliary's annual Appreciation Luncheon on May 11.

The following students received scholarships:

Zachary Kline will graduate from De La Salle High School and will attend UCLA, majoring in biochemistry with the goal of becoming a cardiothoracic surgeon. Zachary has a 4.45 GPA and has already completed an internship in cardiothoracic surgical skills at the Stanford University School of Medicine. In his spare time he is completing an online AP calculus course and is a pitcher for the De La Salle baseball team. Zachary was selected to receive the Dr. Daniel Lucas $4000 scholarship donated by the Medical Staff and named in honor of Dr. Daniel Lucas, a beloved ValleyCare radiologist.

Sabrina Downey will graduate from Granada High School and will attend Azusa Pacific University with the goal of becoming a nurse, specializing in midwifery. Sabrina is in the ROP Nursing program. Her long term goal is to travel to another country as a missionary nurse and has completed four mission trips. Sabrina maintains a 4.28 GPA. Sabrina was presented with a $4,000 Auxiliary scholarship.

Alyssa Floris will graduate from Livermore High School and will attend Grand Canyon University with the goal of becoming a nurse. Alyssa is interested in becoming an emergency room nurse and eventually a life flight nurse. Alyssa is in the ROP Nursing program and will have the distinction of being the first in her family to attend university. Alyssa received a $4,000 Auxiliary scholarship.

Augustine Chemparathy will graduate from Dougherty High School and will attend Stanford University to major in biomedical computation with the long term goal of becoming a neurobiologist. Augustine has a 4.69 GPA and has participated in several biology and chemistry competitions winning several awards. Augustine received a $4000 Auxiliary scholarship.

Cassidy Herro will graduate from Livermore High School and will attend UCLA with the goal of becoming a nurse. Cassidy hopes to join the Peace Corps and has a long term goal of becoming a charge nurse at a children's hospital. Cassidy is taking classes in sign language and will soon receive certification. Cassidy has never missed a day of school from kindergarten and has a 4.2 GPA. Cassidy was presented with a $4000 Auxiliary scholarship.

Barik Singh will graduate from Foothill High School and will attend UC Santa Barbara majoring in pre-medicine with the goal of becoming a physician. Barik has been a Junior Volunteer at ValleyCare and was selected to participate in the Kaiser Permanente Summer Youth Employment program, shadowing an orthopedic surgeon. Along with receiving an academic letter for academic excellence, Barik has been a member of the Cantabella Childrens Chorus for 12 years. Barik received a $4,000 Auxiliary scholarship.

Sarah Partridge will graduate from Livermore High and will attend Humboldt State to study kinesiology with the goal of becoming a physical therapist. Sarah is in the ROP Sports Medicine program and has shadowed physical therapists. Sarah was voted most inspirational by her high school baseball team. After an interesting evening of interviews by the scholarship selection committee, one of the interviewers, Joe Carlucci, executive director of Therapy and Ambulatory Services at Stanford Health Care – ValleyCare, was so inspired by her story, he decided to personally fund Sarah's scholarship. Sarah was presented with a $4,000 scholarship named "Most Inspirational Scholarship."

Kayla Heffelfinger will graduate from Vineyard High School and will attend Las Positas College with the goal of becoming a nurse. Kayla is interested in working in the neonatal or midwife areas. Kayla is in the ROP Nursing program, and hopes to continue volunteering at Valley-Care. Kayla received the $1,000 scholarship donated by the Ivancich, Martin & Costis Law Firm.

Avery was given a one-time award of $500, donated by Dr. Kanagala, a member of the ValleyCare medical staff and one of the scholarship selection committee members this year.

Community Invited to Tie a Knot for Veterans at 1st Wednesday

Thais Carlucci with a quilt

Hope Hospice invites all to tie a knot for Veterans on July 1 at Pleasanton's First Wednesday event in downtown Pleasanton.

During the past year, Hope Hospice volunteers have been making plush lap blankets that are adorned with patriotic symbols – the American flag, stars and stripes, and the American bald eagle – for the organization's Veteran hospice patients. This project was started by Pleasanton resident Thais Carlucci, a long-time Hope Hospice home care volunteer, as a way to say thank you to Hope Hospice's Veteran patients. "When I visit our Veteran patients and they talk about their time in the service, it's clear that it's something they're really proud of – it doesn't matter if they served for two or 20 years – it's important to them," Carlucci says. "Making those blankets is a tiny part of how we at Hope Hospice honor our Veterans."

Hope Hospice is a proud participant of We Honor Veterans, a program that helps our hospice team honor patients' service to our country and enhance the quality of care we provide to help meet the special needs of Veterans.

Community members can join in on this special project by stopping by the Hope Hospice booth to help tie knots on the fringes that border each blanket. No special skills are needed. For information, contact Hope Hospice Director of Volunteers Jill Biggs at (925) 829-8770.

Scholarships Encourage Pursuit of Interest in Science and Engineering

Two Livermore area high school students were awarded $5,000 scholarships each by National Security Technologies LLC (NSTec), to encourage their interest in science and engineering.

This year's recipients of the NSTec Engineering and Science Scholarship are Megan Kristovich and Katie Johnston, both graduates of Livermore High School. Kristovich plans to attend the University of California, Berkeley and major in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science. Johnston will attend California Institute of Technology and major in Computer Science.

The scholarship program, an extension of the NSTec education investment philosophy, was launched in 2006 and has provided more than 221 scholarships and $1 million to high school seniors across the country planning an education in engineering and science.

NSTec partners with the Livermore Valley Education Foundation to administer the scholarships. The company is the management and operating

REACH Founders Honored For Over 20 Years of Service

Norm Guest (right) and Lloyd Hanson were recognized by REACH.

The community gathered on June 14 to acknowledge Norm Guest for his many years of service to REACH for Special Adults of the Tri-Valley by dedicating a REACH home in Pleasanton to him as he retires from the board.

Members of the Guest family were present from Connecticut, Oregon, and Texas. Norm, a retired Castro Valley High School teacher, served on the REACH board for 22

The dedication also included Lloyd Hanson, who retired from the board a few years ago. Norm and Lloyd were both founding members of the organization and remained on the board for such a long time. Hanson is a retired engineer. Both are long-time residents of Pleasanton.

"We can't thank these men enough for having the vision to create, lead and inspire our organization for more than two decades," said Kay King, the Board's current Co-Chair. "It's almost exactly 25 years ago today that our founders first met with the purpose of creating our organization."

REACH currently supports 26 special needs adults in its six Pleasanton and three Livermore homes. During its tenure, REACH has sponsored other services for the developmentally disabled adults in the community including athletic teams, nutrition programs, dances, and educational opportunities.

Their annual golf fundraiser is scheduled for Monday, July 27th at the Castlewood Country Club in Pleasanton. For more information go to www.trivalleyreach.org/events.

"I enjoy the people I work with," said King "My job is about management. I enjoy mentoring my junior sailors."

USS Donald Cook is 505 feet long, almost the length of two football fields. The ship is 66 feet wide and weighs more than 9,200 tons. Twin gas-turbine engines can push the ship through the water at more than 30 mph.

USS Donald Cook is an Arleigh Burke-class guidedmissile destroyer that has been outfitted with an Aegis ballistic missile defense capability that enables the ship to conduct long-range surveillance, tracking, and engagement of short and medium-range ballistic missiles. Only 15 other destroyers in the Navy have been outfitted with the Aegis BMD system.

As a sailor with numerous responsibilities, King said he is learning about himself as a leader, sailor and a person. "I've become more mature and have experienced a bevy of different personnel," said King.

With approximately 30 officers and 250 enlisted comprising the ship's company, jobs are highly varied which keeps the ship mission ready — this includes everything from washing dishes and preparing meals to handling weaponry and maintaining the propulsion system.

King also said he is proud of the work he is doing as part of the Cook's crew, protecting America on the world's oceans.

Air Force Airman Alexis R. Massey graduated from basic military training at Joint Base San Antonio-Lackland, San Antonio, Texas. The airman completed an intensive, eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness, and basic warfare principles and skills. Joseph Massoud

Joseph Massoud Earns Eagle Scout Honors

On May 24, 2015 the Eagle Court of Honor for Joseph was held at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church in Livermore. This ceremony celebrated the successful trail to Eagle Scout rank for Joseph.

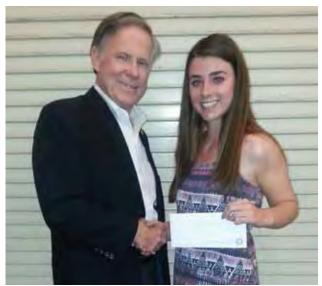

He started out as a Tiger Cub Scout with Pack 903 at St. Michaels School. He participated fully through the Cub Scout Program and bridged over to Boy Scout Troop 939 (First Presbyterian on 4th Street) with the Arrow of Light ceremony in 2008.

Joseph's trail to Eagle exposed him to numerous experiences that have contributed to his growth as a person, citizen, and Scout. He obtained many Merit Badges, has hiked over 173 miles, camped 56 nights, contributed 72 hours of service to the community, held leadership positions, such as Patrol Leader, Den Chief, Assistant Senior Patrol Leader and Quatermaster, went on bike tours, ski trips, canoe trips, and back country adventures. He spent two weeks at Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico.

For his Eagle Project Joseph built two donation boxes, one for food donations to the local food pantries, the other for clothing and supply donations for the Homeless Refuge. Both are placed at the entrance to the church at St. Charles Borromeo.
