

Subject Waiver and Liability Release

I hereby grant and assign to the International Dialects of English Archive (IDEA) exclusive rights, including copyright, to use, license, and sell this recording of my voice. Each and every such recording made for IDEA is a “work made for hire” commissioned as a contribution to a collective work, and I understand that I will not be the copyright owner thereof and will have no rights thereto. I understand that the recordings may be published and distributed by means of various media, including, but not limited to, the internet, streaming, and AI. I make my voluntary, unremunerated contributions to IDEA in the interests of dialect research. I further understand that IDEA may distribute and/or offer for sale copies of my recordings, compilations, or other documents in the archive to inform students, professionals, and the public about dialects of English. I understand that IDEA, its owners, publishers, employees, editors, and agents cannot warrant or guarantee that use of my sound recordings and compilations, made available on the internet or otherwise, will be subject to their supervision or control. Accordingly, I release IDEA, its owners, publishers, employees, editors, and agents from any and all liability related to dissemination of the material I have contributed or will contribute. I understand that IDEA undertakes to keep my identity private and that my contribution will appear on the website anonymously, unless I have otherwise expressly requested. I have read this document and understand its contents.
